We gazed into the crystal ball seeking the possible future of rugby football in Belleville and were agreeably surprised at what the future might hold. First and foremost the management of the local grid team might just as well face the facts as they stand. There is no use dilly-dallying around with the veteran players who have passed their time of usefulness. Nothing short of a miracle will place the Panthers in a play-off position this year, but when we analyze the present football set-up in Belleville, the future is not as black as it might appear on the surface, however.

Three former Belleville Collegiate football celebrities are carving niches in the hall of football fame on foreign gridirons this season. We refer to Wally Hilton, prolific ground gainer at Western University, "Bud" Johnson, sturdy running half at Queen's University and Jimmie Folwell, whose trusted and educated toe has accomplished much of the success of the Ontario Agricultural College grid team in winning two Intermediate Intercollegiate titles. When this trio of football stars eventually graduate from college, no doubt they will return to their native haunts to give Belleville rugby football the biggest boom it ever could hope for.

In preparation for the return of these grid luminaries to Belleville football wars, the present management of the Panthers would be well advised to turn their entire attention in the direction of young and inexperienced rugby material. Now is the time to interest the youngsters who have much to learn about the game and prepare them for the future. With the possibility of Hilton, Johnson and Folwell returning to display their wares on the local gridiron, football has a splendid future to look forward to, but something should be started immediately towards the construction of a line of scrimmage for their protection. George Laughlin has some 20 squads playing six-man football at the B.C.I., the more promising of these squads should be invited to work out with the Panthers, after a thorough scouting.

Of course the future of the game lies in the balance as the patrons must be prepared to support a young willing squad during this period of construction. This should not be so difficult for the patrons to bear for a season or so in view of the fact that not so far in the offing—Belleville may shine brightly in the football firmament. Of course it is up to the present-day veterans to encourage the youngsters and help them if the game is to succeed. Incidentally right here is a good spot to pay a little tribute to the manner in which Leo Flagler is crashing through to break up opposition kicks this year. We hope Leo remains with the game sufficiently long enough to get back into harness with his old team-mates, Wally Hilton and Jimmie Folwell, once again.

Three times Peterboro has won the C.O.B.L. and once the Liftlock City baseballers went into the senior O.B.A. playdowns with a bye, in 1927 when the Central League did not function. Peterboro has yet to win its first provincial baseball flag, Belleville boasting of two such pennants. Central Ontario baseball moguls pinned much faith on the 1938 Petes, but like their predecessors they failed miserably. Belleville won championships when it was so cold tents were needed to house the players between innings instead of the bench, while Kingston won in 1935, when one game was interrupted by a snow storm. The Petes this year, had ideal weather for baseball, but apparently they haven't got what it takes on the ball to win top-flight baseball honours in the Liftlock City. Now they are talking semi-professional baseball out in Prexy Swanston's native haunts.

With the basketball season coming up and only a few weeks' off, Joe Shortt has announced a mammoth "basketball rally" to be held at the "Y" this evening. All teen-aged boys and young men interested in the cage game are urged to attend. Incidentally Belleville will be represented in the Intermediate and Junior O.A.B.A. ranks this season. Mr. Shortt is quite optimistic over the possibilities of basketball in Belleville next winter. "We have several well known basketball players, who reside at the Trenton Airport, attending our senior classes at the "Y", all of whom are anxious to affiliate themselves with our city intermediate basketball team and whose presence will doubtless bolster our 1939 squad considerably," predicted Mr. Shortt as he reiterated his invitation to interested basketball players to attend this evening's meeting.

George Raft, movie star, provided Eddie Mead with $5,000 to purchase the fight contract of Henry Armstrong from Wirt Ross. However, the cinema celebrity has always refused to have his name connected with the dusky champion or to pose for pictures with him.

Here is news!

John Collins, assistant business manager of the team, was brought into court as the result of a game played at night on July 27. An overflow assemblage of 34,414 sat in on the party.

Authorities contended that Collins violated fire regulations when he permitted 794 persons to stand and sit in the aisles.

The misdemeanor cost the club a fine which was paid gladly. But Collins had legitimate excuse which should have taken with the prosecutors. He claimed that an early fall of rain caused customers in uncovered box seats to move back under the shelter of the grandstand.

Remember, 'way back when they paid off in big silver dollars and "folding money" was comparatively scarce...and big league pitchers worked in more games than they do now, and had fewer sore arms?

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at a old photograph of pop and shaking her head sad, saying, My my, Willyum, how time flies and what it does on the way, O deer.

Come and weep on my shoulder, but be careful, the coat was just pressed, pop said, and ma said, You were just 30 years old when this picture was taken, and you still had all that wonderful luxurious wavy hair that I used to be so proud of and that the other girls used to envy me for.

AT THE AGE OF THIRTY

I'm better off without it, pop said. Your scalp needs air just as much as the rest of your face, and nowadays my scalp gets plenty, in fact if there's a breeze anywhere, my scalp gets it, he said, and ma said, When I think back at the admiring glances that I used to receive indirecty because of your hair, I really could cry at the thought.

I'm glad to be rid of it, pop said. Goodness knows I have enough talents and looks to make me conceited without a mop of hair like a crazy musician's to make it still harder for me to realize that I'm only human after all, he said and ma said, O deer, even if it had turned gray, or perhaps a lovely silvery white it would still be beautiful, and distinguished, too, but as it is, well, it simply just isn't. My, when I look back and think, she said.

I'd rather look falward and think, and nobody can think straight with a mop of silly curls weighing down on his brain, horse blanket to blazes. I'm going around to Peet's bowling alleys where a good looking bald head has dozens of mahogany statues in its honor, pop said.

Proberly meaning bowling balls, and he went out and ma looked at his picture a little while longer and wiped her eyes with her hankerchiff and started to do today's bridge problem.

AT THE McCARTHY

"NOTHING SACRED"

A new type of newspaper reporter comes to the screen in the person of Fredric March, after years in which the journalistic lads have been pictured as open-shirted, sartorially deficient characters surrounded by paste pots and jumbled heaps of paper.

Co-starring with Carole Lombard in the David O. Selznick technicolor production, "Nothing Sacred", at the McCarthy Theatre under the direction of William A. Wellman, March, as the star reporter of "The Morning Star", chases his story in a high silk hat and dress suit. At all other times, save when he is seen in a hot, dusty small town his wardrobe is beyond reproach.

This explains Director Wellman, is simply in tune with the day. With college men well versed in the social graces, filling the staffs of today's newspapers, films are changing their conception of reporters.

Practically, all of "Nothing Sacred" has New York for a background. Night clubs, sumptuous hotels, banquet halls and penthouses form the scenes. March and Miss Lombard, concocting a gigantic hoax, move through them all dressed for the occasions.

Even the editorial rooms of "The Morning Star" keep pace with modern news offices toward elegance. For the first time, a picture will show reporters sitting at stream lined desks, amid modernistic, chrome covered surroundings.

"Nothing Sacred" is a hilarious, comedy satire of Manhattan, screenplay for which was written by the inimitable Ben Hecht from a story by James H. Street. Pictorial color shots show the resort playgrounds of the east, including metropolitan New York, Long Island, Havana, and Nassau.

Technicolor Short Subjects

Preceding the technicolor feature presentation, two extremely fine all technicolor short subjects are presented. Little Sybil Jason, one of the finest of Hollywood's juvenile stars, is seen in her latest featurette hit "The Littlest Diplomat" a screen offering that blends smoothly together a dramatic story with smart dialogue and thrilling adventure tension, that every adult and child patron, will never forget, it's a four star attraction, do not miss it. Also a clever all technical musical cartoon "Porky's Phony Express", is an offering, that is tops in amusing entertainment. Gordon Elliott in the serial presentation "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok" is also presented and this week's chapter is packed with excitement, that will keep you on the edge of your seat from start to finish.

AT THE BELLE

"MARIE ANTOINETTE"

"Marie Antoinette," as it was revealed yesterday at the Belle Theatre, is a triumph of the motion picture art. More than that, it is a triumph for Norma Shearer.

Magnificent in its pageantry, with eye-filling beauty of brilliant costume and setting, flawlessly cast with such famed film names as Tyrone Power, John Barrymore Anita Lousie, Joseph Schildkraut, Gladys George and scores of others, these were secondary to Miss Shearer's absorbingly-human interpretation of a woman's sometimes carefree, oftimes desperate seeking for happiness.

The story has gripping power on the screen because it is so simply told. Miss Shearer's "Antoinette" is a girl eager to be in love and to be loved, who finds herself married to a moronic husband, a role superbly played by Robert Morley, young English actor making his first motion picture appearance. When he fails her and his country through weakness of mind and spirit, she seeks escape in mad pleasures and dangerous flirtations. But in the end, she cannot escape her destiny as the last Queen of France.

Director W. S. Van Dyke II, not content with merely scratching the surface of history, has probed deeply into the hearts of his fascinating characters, and gives them vitality and realism as people motivated by desires, hates, loves and ambitions, no different from those of today.

"Marie Antoinette" is thoroughly entertaining. Power is a handsome, gallant, convincing Count Axel de Fersen, the man who dared to love a Queen. There are moments of great drama and poignant tragedy, but also delightful comedy. Much of the humor is provided by Barrymore, whose performance as the cynical, world-weary King Louis XV, is among his finest. Miss George's du Barry is lusty and amusing. Schildkraut, a recent Academy Award winner, is a thoroughly villainous Duke d'Orleans.

This is a picture that can be heartily recommended to those of every age who enjoy an exciting, adventurous motion picture, replete with thrills and romance.

A very interesting news of the day and a comedy cartoon precede the feature attraction.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Gold Is Where You Find It"

With George Brent and Olivia de Havilland as its stars, "Gold Is Where You Find It", a thrilling melodrama of California in the 1870's starts at the Capitol Theatre.

It is a Warner Bros.-Cosmopolitan production in Technicolor and according to reports of previewers is one of the really best pictures of the season."

"Gold is Where You Find It" deals with a phase of gold-seeking that has hitherto been untouched by the movies —the hydraulic mining whereby tremendously powerful streams of water ripped away hillsides, from the debris of which the miners sifted their metal.

But this debris overflowed upon the lands of the wheat-growers and orchardists, and warfare resulted — a conflict that was prolonged and deadly. The fight extended over a number of years, nearly split the State of California in two, and was not settled until a court decision declared in favor of the agriculturists and made the hydraulic interests quit.

Supporting Brent and Miss de Havilland are Claude Rains, Margaret Lindsay, John Litel, Marcia Ralston, Barton MacLane, Tim Holt (young son of the famous Jack) Sidney Toler, Henry O'Neill, Willie Best, Robert McWade, Harry Davenport, a score of others, plus thousands of extras.

"Gold is Where You Find It" was made on the actual locale of the ancient war and was directed by Michael Curtiz, maker of such successful action dramas as "Captain Blood" and "Charge of the Light Brigade".

"ROBIN HOOD"

Filmed entirely in Technicolor, "The Adventures of Robin Hood", starring the dashing Errol Flynn, is set to have its local premiere at the Capitol Theatre.

Long-awaited, this beloved legend, concerning the gallant deeds of a Saxon noble who turned outlaw with a band of followers and plundered the rich Normans to feed and protect the poor and oppressed, has long been a favorite to moviegoers of all ages.

But for this Technicolor treatise, Warner Bros. has drawn on much new material rich in the lore of this legendary figure. The original screen play, based on these legends, is by Norman Reilly Raine, and Seton I. Miller. Erich Wolfgang Korngold did the musical score.

Flynn, who starred in "Captain Blood" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade" heads a cast of hundreds.

The lovely Maid Marian is portrayed by the beautiful Olivia de Havilland, Prince John is played by Claude Rains; Sir Guy of Gisbourne is brought to the screen by the sleek Basil Rathbone; King Richard the Lion-Hearted is Ian Hunter; Friar Tuck is the rotund Eugene Pallette; and the lovable little John is sturdy Alan Hale.

Olivia De Havilland starred in "Gold Is Where You Find It" at the Capitol Theatre.

Milt Learns Philosophy

By MYRA E. WINGATE

"Hello, Milt," says Whiz Whittaker, dropping the scoop into the sugar barrel and placing the paper bag of sugar on the counter. His firm, blunt fingers folded in the top of the bag with swift precision. "What's on your mind that makes you look sadder'n a setter pup? Thought you were goin' on your vacation".

Milt Bramwell nodded dolorously.

"I never let myself expect too much from a vacation," he confided. "I can always have a better time just stayin' around home, lettin' the kids do the chores, and goin' fishin' every day for a week. That way, comin' home to a good supper every night, a man gits a good deal out of it."

"The maximum of enjoyment for the minimum effort, as our friend, the judge, would say," remarked Whiz dryly. His thought shifted to Milt's thin, tired, busy wife, who daily put across a round of work that would tax many a man. "Does Miss Bramwell take a week off, too?"

"That's jest it," said Milt. "She says it's no more than fair that she and the children should have a holiday, too. There's no accountin' for women. She wants to go down East, visitin' her brother's folks. Jim Hartley's her brother. And so I s'pose we'll go. 'Tain't bad fishin' country, and her folks have got a fine farm, and a flivver. Might be a chance, but I ain't anticipatin' much."

"Like the rest of us Yankees, you hope for the best while expectin' the worst," said Whiz, pushing the bag of sugar across the counter to young Clayt Andrews.

As Milt wandered out, Clayt commented laughingly:

"Mis' Bramwell must have done some talkin'. Seldom that Milt allows anyone to interfere with his pers'nal enjoyment. He's a very consistent citizen."

"They do say," said Whiz absently, "that bakin' a pitch knot in a pot of beans gives it the same flavor all the way through."

"Meanin' that Milt's passion for ease kind of colors his whole life, like a red stockin' in a tub of white clothes," grinned Clayt. "I know Jim Hartley. Good fellow. Wish someone would put a flea in his ear."

"Sho, now," said the storekeeper gravely. "That ought to be easy. I've heard tell the sand fleas are mighty thick on the shores of those ponds over to the Falls".

Followed two weeks of the best fishing weather, when the men who gathered at the store to do the family buying, get the mail, and, incidentally, to exchange yarns and bits of news, speculated much as to Milt's enjoyment of the family vacation. Yet, when Milt reappeared in their midst, he was greeted casually.

"Kind of vacation did you have, Milt? You look as if your constitution was cons'able undermined."

"Well, sir, it's a relief to git home," said Milt, instantly responsive. "First off, looked as if I might git a pretty good time, fishin', while the women was visitin'.

"The first day I started out with plenty of lunch in my basket. My wife's brother, he was too busy to go with me, but he directed me where to go—drawed me a little map—an' I had a good day's fishin'. Great sport. Next day he let me have the car, and I went further. All that week was pretty good. Best vacation there is—comin' home to good supper after a good day's sport. But when I got home that first Sat'day night, I found Jim had dropped a rock on his foot while he was mendin' the stone wall. Rest of the time I spent hangin' round the house doin' chores—milkin', choppin' wood, and such like. Wife said 'twas no more than right—never knew her to talk so much. It was a long week. He was still pretty lame when I left. I didn't tumble even when he said 'Good-by, Milt, I've enjoyed your vacation a lot'. But jest as we topped a little rise a short piece from the house, I heard someone clinkin' the milk pails. I looked back and see Jim walk across the yard spry as a cat".

"What you need, Milt" said Whiz, "is to learn to be a philosopher."

"Expect so," said Milt, ambling out.

"Been over to the Falls lately, Clayt?" inquired Whiz, fixing young Andrews with a keen, blue eye.

"Why?" inquired the boy, innocently. "I was there last Sat'day."

"Heard here was a scarcity of sand fleas on the lake shore since then," returned Whiz gravely.

Clayt turned scarlet and met the older man's look a trifle sheepishly.

"It only took one to do the trick," he admitted. "But he was a real lively and accomodatin' flea, and took a slight of satisfaction in his work."

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—Selling forces overcame opposition in the stock market today and beat down leaders in most groups major fractions to two or more points.

Near the final hour prices were about at the lowest of the day. Rails came to the front for a while, rising as much as two points, but later joined the decline.

Transactions approximated 2,200,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 19.—(CP)— Displaying underlying strength through most of the session, with only the Base Metals showing losses of importance, the Toronto market was in a firming trend in the last hour and the Golds and Industrials registered substantial net gains. The late pick-up swelled volume to around 900,000 shares.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

If there is any unanimity in Great Britain nowadays it is on the belief that she is not armed enough. Despite the settlement reached at Munich and the pious expression of Prime Minister Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler of the hope that the two countries would never go to war again, the United Kingdom and the Dominions, already in a feverish race to rearm, are redoubling their efforts in that direction. The future of democracy depends upon strength of arms, as dictators believe that might is right.

When one considers the above and what it will mean, one cannot but become optimistic towards the security markets which, after all, only reflect developments in the business sphere.

The final date for the entering of a further appeal in connection with the Ripley Plan of reorganization of the Abitibi Power & Paper Co. came and went on October 13, without action being taken. Rumors of a new plan have been current during the week, largely due to the expiration of the time limit for action on the former.

On The Street

There seems to be plenty of Noranda for sale around the 80 level.... Higher dividends are spoken of for the preferred stock of Canadian Breweries—this company's profits in the current fiscal year are the highest record.... Buying orders have been coming in from London the last few days. This is good news....... Reports from New York say that Distillers Seagrams common is to be given a run.... Sherritt-Gordon could earn approximately $1,000,000 with copper at 11 cents a pound on its present production.... The aircraft issues have been neglected for several weeks now.... Placing of orders for bombers by Great Britain would be to the liking of the market....

Beck Confers With King Carol

Bucharest, Oct. 19—(CP-Havas)—Foreign Minister Joseph Beck of Poland came to Rumania today to lay before King Carol proposals for a settlement of Ruthenia's status which would satisfy Rumania and give her safeguards against further Hungarian expansion.

The chief purpose of Beck's trip is to convince King Carol and his government that a common Polish-Hungarian frontier —through cession by Czechoslovakia of Ruthenia to Hungary—would not threaten Rumania's interests.

Livestock

Montreal, Oct. 19—(CP)— Receipts: cattle 65; calves 90 hogs 115; sheep and lambs 310.

Calves: Western calves $4.50-$6; veals $7-$9; grassers $4.

Sheep and lambs: choice lambs $7.75; heavy lambs $6.75; culls $5.75. Sheep $2.50-$4.

Hogs: bacons off trucks $8.25; rail grade hogs brought $11.40-$11.65, cold weight.

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—Cattle sales were too few to establish prices on Toronto livestock market today. Calves, sheep and lambs traded at steady prices while no hog price was set by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Tuesday was 2,400.

Receipts reported by the Dominion livestock branch were: Cattle 380; calves 260; hogs 1,460; sheep and lambs 750.

Small lots of butcher cattle sold at $4 to $5 and a few good to choice weighty steers brought $5 to $5.65. Butcher cows were $3 to $4.25. Some bulls moved at $3.25 to $3.50. There were no sales on fed calves. Stocker trade was slow at $4 to $4.60.

Choice veal calves were priced at $9 to $9.50 with a few tops reaching $10. Common heavy calves ranged down to $5. Some grassers brought $4 to $4.75.

Previous close on off truck bacon hogs was $7.75. Good ewe and wether lambs were generally $7.50 delivered by rail with a few bringing $7.75. Truck lambs made $7.25 to $7.50. Bucks and heavies went at $6.25 to $6.75. The few sheep offered ranged from 2 to $4.50.

Woman Bound, Money Taken

Toronto, Oct. 19—(CP)— Mrs. Jean Gray reported to police today a gunman wearing dark glasses bound her in a chair after forcing her into the house from the front door and ransacked the home of Wilfred C. Philpott where she was employed. The man escaped with between $75 and $100.

Top Grade Eggs Advance 1c.

Stronger prices were in evidence on grade A-large eggs on Toronto produce market yesterday. Butter ruled steady.

The best demand appeared for A-large grades on the egg market, while mediums and pullets were inclined to be stubborn in moving. Values were boosted 1c per dozen on top grades as fresh receipts continued light on these grades, but undergrades maintained former levels. GradeA- large rose to 38c in the ungraded section, and to 44c in the retail division. Graded shipments sold for 41c to 42c for grade A-large, 39c to 40c for medium, 30c to 31c for pullets, 26c to 27c for B's and 21c to 22c for C grades.

A steady tone prevailed on the butter market. Buyers continued cautious in making commitments, while available supplies were light in view of the declining production. No butter was moving out of storage; prices are yet too low for this stock to be turned over at a profit. Ontario creamery solids were clearing at 23c for No. 1 grades, 22 1-4c for 38 score. Prints remained at the range of 24 1-2c to 25c for top grades.

Montreal Prices Steady

Montreal, Oct. 19 (CP)—Butter prices were steady and trading was fairly active on open produce markets here Tuesday, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Eggs were unchanged. Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24 1-2c to 25c a pound and creamery solids for 24c to 24 1-2c. Receipts: 2,090 boxes.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 42c to 43c a dozen for A-large, 40c to 41c for A-medium, 31c for A pullets, 26c to 27c for B-large, 21c for C. Receipts: 1,081 cases, including 660 for export.

LEVEL CROSSING CRASH KILLS 5

Lesage, Que., Oct. 19 (CP) — A level crossing accident claimed five lives at this Laurentian Mountain village today when a five-passenger sedan was crushed beneath a lumbering freight train.

The list of dead, which made a total of ten level crossing victims in the province within four days, was given as follows

Gelinas Fortin, 65, his 62-year-old wife, Ernest Lavigne, 55; a widow, Mrs. Joseph Fortin, 56, all of Contrecoeur, Que., and Adelard Jessaume, 55, of Fall River, Mass.

The accident occurred as the car attempted to make a northward crossing of the Canadian Pacific Railway line which meanders through the scattered Laurentian settlements, about 40 miles northwest of Montreal.

The car was ground to debris and it was believed all the victims died within minutes of the crash. Doctors and ambulances were rushed to the scene, about two miles out of the village.

Provincial Police at St. Jerome said they had not been notified of the accident and had received no details there.

HAMMERIN HENRY READY FOR TILT

Believes He Can Put The Bee On Ceferino Garcia

New York, Oct. 19—(AP)—Henry Armstrong stuck an index finger in his mouth and caressed the jagged scar left by the fourteen stitches embroidered in his upper lip the night he won the lightweight title from Lou Ambers.

"The doc did a wonderful job sewing me up," said the calm little negro yesterday. "It's pretty well healed now and it won't get cut again. You see, I've had the tooth pulled out that did it."

There are not many fighters who would be far-seeing enough to part with a good tooth, and there is, of course, only one Henry Armstrong. His entire preparation for his welterweight championship fight with Ceferino Garcia at Madison Square Garden two weeks from tonight has been equally studied.

For six weeks after he beat Ambers and won his third world crown Armstrong took a complete rest. For the past two weeks he has been taking the waters at Hot Springs, Ark., and gradually limbering up again.

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw, Oct. 19—Mrs. H. M. Caverley of Toronto, is visiting friends in this vicinity and Marmora this week.

A large number from this neighborhood attended Marmora fair on Tuesday.

Dr. E. A. Carleton of Stirling visited School Section No. 5 Bonarlaw on Friday last and the Spry Settlement School on Monday of this week and vaccinated and inoculated those pupils whose parents had requested this to be done.

Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne attended the Ministerial Association which was held in Stirling on Monday of this week.

Children's Day was observed at St. Mark's Church on Sunday last both at the Sunday School hour in the morning and at the evensong church service 7.30 p.m. Canon Swayne gave an interesting talk to the Sunday School and delivered an impressive sermon at the evening service. There was a splendid attendance at both.

At a meeting of the Bonarlaw Railway Club last week strong opinions were expressed regarding the statement of Mayor Bone of Belleville in a speech in Toronto regarding wages of railway employees. It was expressed by speakers that Mayor Bone has not studied the matter or else was badly misinformed. He has also forgotten, it was stated, that increased wages to railway men in Belleville and vicinity would mean more purchases would be made in his city. Why then advocate smaller wages? he was asked.

Local Dealer Praises 1939 G-M Vehicles

Returns Enthusiastic From Viewing New Models—Excellent Year Forecast

Convinced that Canada is entering upon a most prosperous year, and deeply impressed with the preparations made by the automotive industry to add impetus to that trend, Mr. Claude B. Farnham, the local dealer in Pontiac and McLaughlin-Buick passenger cars and GMC trucks, has just returned from a visit to Oshawa, Ontario, where he inspected the first 1939 vehicles of those lines.

"There is every indication," said Mr. Farnham, "that with the lifting of the tension in Europe, and the generally healthy condition across the Dominion, Canada in the next twelve months will enjoy a measure of prosperity unexcelled in the past eight or nine years. The motor car industry, which is among the most sensitive to public trends, is meeting this opportunity for progress and expansion by offering to the public the greatest value per dollar in the history of Canadian motor transportation."

Speaking of the General Motors lines for which he is local dealer, Mr. Farnham enthusiastically described the great advance in styling and engineering evident in the 1939 Pontiac and McLaughlin Buicks and GMC trucks, "Keeping abreast of every advance in automobile manufacturing," he said, "the makers of these cars and trucks have built into them every refinement for the added comfort, safety and convenience of the motorist, and they set an all time standard for quality and value in their price class."

Laura Secord Control Passes to the Public

Senator F. O'Connor Disposes of Company To Syndicate

Toronto, Oct. 19. — Senator Frank P. O'Connor has sold his entire holdings in Laura Secord Candy Shops Ltd., to a syndicate composed of H. R. Bain & Co. Ltd., Cochrane, Murray & Co. Ltd., H. B. Housser & Co., Moss, Lawson & Co., E. H. Pooler & Co., and Wood, Gundy & Co.

Senator O'Connor is president and chairman of the board of Laura Secord Candy Shops Ltd. It is understood that his holdings are in excess of 30,000 shares out of a total of 57,000 shares outstanding.

The company's balance sheet shows total assets of $2.2 millions all highly liquid. It has two studios and eighty-two shops and has shown a steady advance ever since the original venture was started in 1913 by Senator O'Connor.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, October 20
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

SURPRISE and adventure mark the forecast for this day, judging by the interesting planetary configurations. Sudden and probably unforeseen adventures may arise with breathless precipitancy, changing the plans and prospects with radical force, and drastically reshaping the destiny. Changes and decisions should be made with much keen attention and analysis, as secret influences seem to figure. There may be peculiar correspondence in which the personal relations have significance.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of sudden events and probably radical upheavals of far-reaching effect on the future career. These may be precipitated with great surprise and may come from a hidden or strange source. But they may bring a chain of new adventures.

A child born on this day may be gifted with many outstanding talents which may gain for it recognition from those in high places and a conspicuous career, possibly in a place far from its birth.

SCHEME

"He said something about forwarding a letter to the construction chief of the United States Navy Department, the letter bearing the forged signature of the President of the United States. But he did not elaborate on this plan.

"I told him I would try to get the stationery. He said there would be a lot of money in it if I could get the plans of the aircraft carriers but he did not say how much."

Wrote to "Sanders".

Rumrich said he wrote to the mysterious "Sanders", as he knew his chief in Hamburg, sending the letter to the Dundee, Scotland address of Mrs. Jessie Jordan, now serving a prison term for espionage in Scotland.

"At that time there was some trouble in the far east about the bombing of the Panay, and papers carried a reproduction of the President's protest about the bombing.

"At the top was the inscription of the White House, Washington, D.C. I thought it would be a good idea to enclose a facsimile of that message, so they would have something to go by."

Lester Dunigan, assistant attorney, read Rumrich's letter, which specified the size of the stationery to be sought and described it in detail.

"I shall need this stationery by Mar. 1," wrote Rumrich. It will get us the plans of the Yorktown and Enterprise without much expense."

Requested Expense Money.

However, Rumrich requested $300 to cover his expenses.

"It is always good to have a little cash on hand," he remarked in the letter, which was signed "Crown", his name as a spy.

Rumrich explained that he also enclosed in the letter some Polish literature about a "very valuable salve for use in counteracting the effects of poison gas," explaining today, though, that he did not read Polish.

At Schlueter's request for the names of United States army or navy officers of German extraction who "might be susceptible", he gave the agent a couple of names he got out of a paper.

GERMAN - FRENCH

the Czechoslovak issue settled by the Munich agreement, were considered favorable from the viewpoints of Daladier and Hitler.

It seemed a foregone conclusion that any bettering of relations between France and Germany would mean a deterioration of relations between France and Soviet Russia, linked by a mutual assistance pact.

Since the French Communists voted against Daladier in the last chamber test, the premier's position seemed more favorable, for in Hitler's eyes he would have less of a leftist tinge.

Bonnet talked with the Soviet Ambassador, Jacob Surits, late last night and it was believed they discussed the future of Franco-Soviet relations as a corollary to any new French-German agreement.

CAMPBELL

it was reported.

Denied Release Order Given.

However there were conflicting reports on this as Governor Mitchell of the county jail denied that Campbell had been released and Crown Attorney Newton said he had issued no release order.

Campbell appeared in a crowded courtroom in the county police court here. Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw read the armed holdup charge.

The charge was that on Oct. 13 at Mount Brydges, being together and while armed with a revolver, Campbell held up the bank and obtained $3,886, certain insurance policies, other papers and one Royal Bank of Canada seal.

After the charge was read Crown Attorney asked for a remand of one week and this was granted.

No Counsel Secured.

"Have you got counsel?" Magistrate Hawkshaw asked Campbell.

"Not yet," he replied.

"Do you want to get counsel?"

"Not just yet."

"You face a pretty serious charge," Magistrate Hawkshaw counselled.

"I've got a week to get counsel," Campbell replied in a confident tone.

Two Material Witnesses.

John Donahue, 32, of Windsor and Miss Kathleen Byrne, 22, of Windsor, who were brought to London yesterday afternoon with Campbell, remained in their cells in the jail.

Yesterday they were taken before Jack McLarty, Justice of the Peace, and remanded to jail for one week, being held as material witnesses.

After he was remanded in the county police court today Campbell was taken to the office of Identification Officer Walter Harpur of the City Police Force for fingerprinting.

Some observers believed the government would favor a proposal to administer the mandated Holy Land as a unified State, with perhaps further controlled Jewish immigration. The Government has placed about 20,000 troops in Palestine to restore order.

The Cabinet adjourned after a 2 1-2 hour session without arranging a further meeting. It was possible, however, the Ministers would meet again later in the week.

SEVERAL BY-ELECTIONS

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 19—(CP)—Neville Chamberlain's peace deal with Europe's dictators shortly will be put to the test of public opinion in seven by-elections.

The government's foreign policy is expected to be the major issue in each with pros and cons of the Munich agreement for the partition of Czechoslovakia threshed out on the hustings.

The by-elections will be in Oxford, Doncaster, Walsall, Dartford, West Lewisham, Fylde, and Bridgewater. The first six were caused by the deaths of sitting members.

BOASTFUL VISITOR THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN MEL. CAMPBELL

From newspaper pictures, Melville Campbell, who was arrested by Provincial and Windsor city police at Windsor yesterday in a surprise raid on an apartment house, has been identified by "Scotty" Wilson of this city as one of two men who visited Belleville a week or so ago, ate lunch in a downtown restaurant, and then proceeded to look for local excitement. Not finding any unusual stir in Belleville, the two men left soon afterward in their car, west bound from the city.

During his brief conversation with one of the men whom he is now firmly convinced was Melville Campbell, Mr. Wilson received the impression of their thorough "hardness."

"This man, whom I am sure was Melville Campbell, talked of throwing people through windows. 'We don't throw them through feet first, as it usual, but head first when we go into action'." "Scotty" Wilson declared the man told him in the course of their rambling conversation.

Germany Reaches Third Place in World Air Records

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP)—Germany's creation of a big military air force has been accompanied by a steady rise in her position as a holder of world aviation records.

Reporting this fact today, officials of the United States Aeronautic Association said Germany had risen from fifth place among international air record holders on Oct. 1, 1937, to third place on Oct. 1, 1938.

The United States, during the same period, fell from first to fourth place. France took first position during the year, and now holds 49 world records. Italy retained second place.

Former Publisher Dies in Toronto

Toronto, Oct. 19. —(CP)—James Murray Walker, 93, former publisher of the Perth, (Ont.), Courier and uncle of the present publisher, died yesterday in Toronto, where he came to live six years ago.

Last week, when he became ill, Mr. Walker for the first time was unable to read the Courier, which has been in the Walker family for 69 years.

Born in Napanee, Ont., he became editor and publisher of The Courier on the death of his brother, George L. Walker, the proprietor until that time. Another brother, W. T. Walker, joined him and they collaborated in publication of the weekly for several years. Thirty-six years ago it was sold to their nephew, W. W. Walker, the present editor and publisher.

771 ENLIST AS 'REGULARS'

London, Oct. 19 (CP-Havas)—The War Office today announced 771 young men enlisted in the regular army last week, compared with 455 during the corresponding week in 1937.

MANION BACKS MR. CHAMBERLAIN

Also Declares His Faith In Protective Tariff For Canada

Edmonton, Oct. 19 (CP)— Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, National Conservative leader, left today for Victoria where he will continue the Western Canada speaking tour begun here with two addresses yesterday.

In his first address Dr. Manion lauded the handling of the recent European crisis by Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain. In his second, to a political rally, he declared his faith in protective tariff for Canada—for farmers as well as urban workers and industry.

What benefit had resulted to farmers from a reduction in the implement tariff made by the present Liberal government, asked Dr. Manion. The tariff was cut from 25 per cent to 7 1-2 per cent but he was informed prices in some cases had increased.

Adequate Protection

The purpose of "adequate protection" was the preservation of the domestic market. A government could attend to those cases where tariffs raised prices to unreasonable levels or in which a tariff was used for exploitation of consumers.

Ninety per cent of Canada's farm products excepting wheat, were consumed in Canada, Dr. Manion said the wheat farmer would not benefit by protection in Canada. But he did benefit by protection in Great Britain which gave to Canada six-cent preference on wheat. It was to be hoped pending trade agreements between Canada and the United States, and Great Britain and the United States would not affect this preference.

National planning was an imperative need of Canada. Nothing had been done in this line by either the Bennett or King administrations. Public works, such as road building, might be part of National planning to replace direct relief.

British Survey Shows 57 P. C. Back Chamberlain

New York, Oct. 19—(CP)— A survey of the British electorate conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion was reported today to show 57 per cent of the voters approving Prime Minister Chamberlain and his foreign policy.

Results of the survey, said to have covered a cross-section of all voting groups, was made public here by the American Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the British Institute. The survey was made after the Munich four-power settlement of the German-Czechoslovakian problem.

According to a brief version of the British poll cabled to the American Institute, it showed Mr. Chamberlain is more popular with women voters —who, incidentally outnumber the men—than with male voters.

Based on the number of votes cast in the last general elections, the British Institute's report said the division of opinion as shown by the survey would represent about 12,500,000 votes for Mr. Chamberlain and his foreign affairs policy compared with approximately 9,500,000 against.

Cottage at Cloyne Destroyed by Fire

Tweed, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP)—John M. Harris, Brantford lawyer, escaped death early yesterday when fire believed to have been started by sparks from a fire place he had just completed, destroyed his summer cottage on Loon Lake, near Cloyne, 25 miles north of here. Harris, asleep in an upstairs bedroom was forced to slide down a verandah roof to safety.

The ice-house and several outbuildings were saved. Damage was estimated at $4,000.

A CASE FOR THE SMITHS

Pittsburgh, Oct. 20 (AP)—It was strictly a matter between the Smiths, that case in court yesterday. Mrs. Leona Smith charged her husband W. N. Wilbert, with assault and battery. The Grand Jury—William F. Smith, foreman—indicted Wilbert. Then Mrs. Smith appeared before the court and said the matter had been adjusted and asked that the case be dismissed. Judge Ralph H. Smith agreed.

RANCHER WAS GENEROUS WITH RATTLESNAKES

Philadelphia, Oct. 20 (AP)— A North Dakota rancher wrote the Zoo to send him "a couple of boxes and he'd send some rattlers back." Curator Roger Conant promptly forwarded the boxes, hoping, he said, to get "maybe three or four" snakes. But when the boxes returned, they contained, not three or four, but 219. "now," moaned Conant, "we'll be working night and day shifts chasing mice and birds to feed them."

TOO MANY DEER IN MICH.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 20 (CP)—Deer in Michigan's upper Peninsula are increasing faster than hunters shoot them, and starvation annually takes nearly 10,000 a year. A conservation department survey recently showed more than 15 deer to the square mile. Winter feeding grounds are so overgrazed many of the 112,000 fawns each year die.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

The staubosphere! It is believed that the dust in the air is as widespread as the atmosphere itself, and so a new word has been coined for this dust content. "Staubosphere" simply means the dust of the atmosphere. Dust plays a very large and important part in all human affairs. We generally note the unpleasant part —getting into our eyes and noses—but it also beneficently intercepts some of sunlight, dispersing it and making it bearable. By intercepting the rays, it also warms the air, which is quite transparent to the sun's rays. Dust also has important geological effects. Ordinary air contains about two million dust particles for every cubic inch.

THE WEATHER

BRITISH TROOPS RESTORE ORDER IN HOLY LAND

Rebellious Arabs Driven From Section, Many Being Taken Prisoners

GUNS TAKEN AWAY

Abandonment of Plan To Partition Palestine Warmly Welcomed

By JAMES A. MILLS

Jerusalem, Oct. 20 (AP)—Comparative calm reigned over this Holy City today after thirty days of continuous Arab-Jewish turmoil as the British soldiers completed clean-up operations by restoring order to the old section.

This operation ended 24 hours of steady military efforts to eliminate nests of rebellious Arabs who had held the old city for four days and was a prelude to the larger task of stopping acts of terrorism throughout Palestine.

The campaign caused nine Arab deaths and injuries to eighteen others. Two British constables and one soldier were wounded. Forty Arabs were taken prisoner.

Soldiers — members of the 20,000 troops sent here to restore order — continued searching the warrens of the old city for rebels and their arms caches.

Arabs Disarmed.

Small groups of Arab prisoners were disarmed and sent to a concentration camp in an excavation on the site of the 2,000-year-old palace of King Herod.

For the first time since Saladin the Great vanquished crusaders nearly 800 years ago, Moslem priests failed to call the faithful to prayer from the pinnacles of slender minarets within the shadow of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

The usual cry, "All is great. Allah is our only prophet", was replaced by prayers of Christian monks for the deliverance of the Holy City from the terrorism that has claimed nearly 2,000 casualties in the last three months.

Commander Reads Order.

As the new day dawned, British troops read this order from Major General Robert H. Haining, Commander of the British Forces in Palestine and trans-Jordan:

"Soldiers! On the threshold of your sacred mission in retaking the birthplace of three great monotheistic religions of the world, remember one single misdeed or misstep by a single soldier will stain the proud escutcheon of the British Empire.

"I am sure you will all do your duty in the tradition of England's reverence for holy places and her respect for all religions."

Authorities expressed surprise at what they called the feeble resistance of Arabs in the old city. Several bombs were thrown as the troops approached. The only real resistance occurred at the Damascus Gate, which [illegible] British troops

NAZI OFFICIALS TRY TO MEDIATE ALL THE CLAIMS

Placed In Delicate Position As Two of Claims Are By Old Allies

RIBBENTROP IN CHARGE

Czech Officials To Arrive Over Week-End To Air Grievances

Berlin, Oct. 20 (AP)—Nazi officials were placed in the delicate position today of trying to mediate the claims of three of Germany's friends to parts of Czechoslovakia.

Poland and Hungary, old allies of Germany, want a joint frontier formed by Hungary's annexation of sections of Ruthenia and Slovakia, newly granted autonomy by the Prague government.

Czechoslovakia, the newest friend, already shrunken by grants to Germany, Poland and Hungary, wants to keep what she has left. Representatives were sent to Germany or each others capitals to plead their respective cases.

Chancellor Hitler left the dispute in the hands of his Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, and went to Linz en route to Sudetenland to complete a tour of areas German troops occupied Oct. 1-10.

Despite the delicacy of the situation, foreign office circles expressed optimism that joint German-Italian activity would solve the tangled questions of Czechoslovak minorities.

Arrival Is Awaited.

Informed quarters said the arrival of four Czech ministers was awaited this week-end in an effort to facilitate normalization of German-Czech relations. Three diplomats — Prime Minister Joseph Tiso of Slovakia, his Minister of Education, Dr. Ferdinand Durciansky, and Ruthenian Minister Edmund Bacinsky — presented their side of the case to Ribbentrop yesterday at Munich.

Foreign Minister Joseph Beck of Poland talked—vainly, it was said—with King Carol of Rumania about dismembering Ruthenia, the eastern end of Czechoslovakia. Caroj Sidor, a special Slovak delegate, went to Warsaw to learn Poland's attitude regarding Slovakia and said the Slovaks would not oppose a joint Hungarian-Polish frontier if the Ruthenians wanted to join Hungary.

Ottawa, Oct. 20 (CP)—A Royal Canadian Air Force Command for training personnel has been established by the National Defence department at Toronto, it was learned here today.

An eastern command has been established at Halifax and a western command at Vancouver. Toronto will be headquarters for the new central command. Creation of the air commands is following out the government policy for enlarging the R.C.A.F.

Group Captain A. E. Godfrey of the Ottawa Air Station will head the Toronto command. He served during the Great War with the Royal Air Force.

"BIG THREE OF NEWLY FORMED CZECH GOVERNMENT

SUDETEN GERMANS PROVOKE ATTACKS IN TWO DISTRICTS

Six Killed In Clashes Including Mayor of Zelechovice

CZECHS PROTEST

Prague, Oct. 20 (AP)—The general staff reported today six persons were killed during disorders provoked yesterday by Sudeten Germans in two separated districts.

It said four persons were killed during rifle attacks by Sudeten German Free Corps members on a Czech military patrol at Zelechovice in Northern Bohemia. A communique said the mayor of Zelechovice became the fifth victim when he was killed after the clash was over.

The sixth person reported killed was a farmer in the commune of Vazacha. The general staff announced he was working in his fields when a German soldier fired on him.

It said the trouble at Zelechovice began when the Czech patrol, protesting against occupation of the village, visited the German commander and urged him to withdraw his troops. The Czechs said the Germans had overstepped the new frontier line in taking the place.

Take Down Banners.

During the military conference residents of the village began taking down swastika banners, hung in the windows prior to the entrance of the German troops. Members of the Free Corps, the general staff said, hurried to the neighboring village of Cizokvice and returned with a detachment of Sudeten German customs guards and opened fire on the Czechs.

One Czech soldier and three Czech policemen fell with the first volley. The mayor was killed later, it charged, because he was accused of carrying firearms.

Election of a successor to Edouard Benes as President of Czechoslovakia meanwhile was postponed indefinitely today pending the conclusion of negotiations on the minority problem and establishment of the new frontiers.

RACE CALLED OFF

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 20—(AP)—The third scheduled race of the three-out-of-five series for the International Fisherman's Trophy between the Canadian defender Bluenose and the Gloucester challenger Gertrude L. Thebaud was called off at 1:48 p.m. EST today because of lack of wind. The vessels had covered approximately 22 miles of the 36-mile course.

JAPANESE FORCES THREATEN LINE OF HANKOW DEFENCES

Driving Up Both Banks of Yangste River From Hwangshihkang

200 KILLED IN RAID

Shanghai, Oct. 20—(AP)—Japanese forces were reported today to be threatening the next line of Hankow defences in a drive up both banks of the Yangtse River from Hwangshihkang, 50 air miles from the Chinese Provisional capital.

The Japanese reported launching a gunboat attack against Ocheng, within 40 miles of Hankow, while Yangtse River south bank columns fought to the walls of Tayeh, 40 miles from the Canton-Hankow railway.

Hwangshihkang was captured yesterday in a three-hour assault by land forces and marines. A flight of Japanese bombers was said to have destroyed several Chinese planes and damaged railway tracks, the airdrome, and supply trains at Changsha. Chinese said 200 were killed in the raid.

Willing to Supply

Tokyo, Oct. 20.—(CP-Havas) — The Mitsui and Mitsubishi firms, largest industrial and financial interests in Japan, are ready to supply provisions for Hong Kong without profit to themselves if the British authorities there are willing it was announced today.

The Japanese are awaiting Hong Kong's reply to an offer made on Monday through the Japanese Consul General there. The proposal was that foodstuffs should be taken over from neighboring Formosa in the event that hostilities subject Hong Kong to a meat and vegetable shortage.

Observers said this display of good will reflect Japanese relief over the failure of Great Britain to "react" to the invasion of its "sphere of influence" in South China.

Packard Forced To Double Force

Los Angeles, Oct. 20 (AP)—William Packer, general sales manager of the Packard Motor Car Company, said today a force of 12,000 workers at the concern's plant in Detroit may be doubled within the next few weeks.

"We have recovered from the fall slump of 1937," he said. "Business rates about the same as when we hit that drop, but the trend is up instead of down."

Increased sales in "conservative small towns", and a "good used car situation", have contributed to the automobile industry's recovery, Packer said.

Ruth Etting's Former Hubby In Prison after Indictment

Radio Songbird Testifies At Grand Jury Hearing

GOT HER OWN GUN

Los Angeles, Oct. 20 (AP)—Martin Snyder, again occupied a jail cell in lieu of $50,000 bail today while the state moved to try him on charges he kidnapped and attempted to murder Myril Alderman, his successor to singer Ruth Etting's love.

The original charges against Snyder were superseded last night by a grand jury indictment—voted after Miss Etting testified that he shot Alderman in the music room of her Hollywood Hills home last Saturday night. The indictment permits the case to go to trial without a preliminary hearing.

Miss Etting, 42, flaxen-haired and visibly nervous, spoke to the jury in trembling voice of the shooting scrape.

She said Alderman drove up to the house with Snyder holding a pistol against his back. Once inside, she said, Snyder told her, Alderman, and Edith Snyder, his step-daughter, that "I'm going to kill all of you".

One bullet from Snyder's pistol went wild, she continued, but the second struck Alderman in the abdomen as the lights in the room went out.

She told of running into the bedroom to get her own revolver, a struggle with Snyder for its possession, and of Edith, her secretary, retrieving the weapon from the floor and firing at her father's retreating back.

Miss Snyder, who emerged from the jury room in tears, said she "just shot in the darkness" because Snyder "was chasing Ruthie and Ruthie has been kinder to me than anyone in the world".

Snyder, before going off to jail, emptied his pockets of cash and took a gold watch inscribed "from Ruth to Moe" from his wrist.

"Well, the little lady hung another one on me," he said, "but I can take it now because I guess all the old fires are dead."

COMMAND'S DUTY TO CO-ORDINATE AIR INSTRUCTION

Training Station At Trenton Eventually To Come Under Juridiction

DETAILS OF TRAINING

Aspects of Training Directed In Main From Toronto

Ottawa, Oct. 20 (CP)—Establishment of an air training command for Canada, with headquarters at Toronto, was announced officially by Defence Minister Ian MacKenzie here today. The minister confirmed that, following the set-up on the Pacific coast, an eastern command had been created for the Royal Canadian Air Force, with headquarters at Halifax.

The function of the air training command will be to direct and coordinate aviation instruction in the R.C.A.F. The main training station at Trenton will eventually come under the jurisdiction of the officer in charge of air training, Air Commodore Earl Godfrey. Chiefly, it was explained, the object is to remove from the headquarters staff here the details connected with the actual day to day training of pilots.

The eastern command, under Squadron Leader G. R. Brookes, will be "operational" and although aspects of training will be supervised within the eastern area by the commanding officer, this, in the main, will be directed from Toronto.

LANSDOWNE MAN KILLED IN CRASH

Allan Lakins, 35, Passenger In Car Which Overturns In Ditch

Lansdowne, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—Allan Lakins, 35, of Lansdowne, was killed last night when the car in which he was a passenger left the road and overturned in a ditch on the highway three miles west of here. Lansdowne is fifteen miles south west of Brockville.

William Fair of Prescott, Ont., driver of the car and Lakins' brother-in-law, was injured about the arms and head. Lakins was pinned under the car. Fair said his car was forced off the road by a transport truck coming in the opposite direction.

An inquest will be opened by Coroner Kenneth C. Gray of Gananoque, Ont.

PHEASANT HUNTERS ARRIVE

Pelee Island, Ont., Oct 20— (CP)—Hundreds of hunters are here for the opening of pheasant hunting tomorrow. Game officials say there is an increased number of birds available for the 650 licenced hunters with a daily bag limit of five birds to a hunter during the two days. Pelee Island is 40 miles south-east of Windsor.

Held on Robbery Count Quinton is Vigorous In His Plea for Bail

Quinton's Alibi To Be That He Was Visiting Friends

INSPECTOR ON PROBE

Hammond Inquires Into Allegation Made By Girl's Mother

London, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—Raymond (Dolly) Quinton, 41-year-old Windsor man, fourth suspect arrested in last week's holdup of the Royal Bank at Mount Brydges, pleaded not guilty in county police court today to a charge of armed robbery.

Magistrate Hawkshaw remanded Quinton to jail and set his bail at $15,000.

Others held in the same case are Melville Campbell, 37, of Toronto, charged with armed robbery; John Donaghue, 32, of Windsor and Kathleen Byrne, 22, of Hull, Que., held as material witnesses.

Brought into the county police court where Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw read the armed robbery charge to him, Quinton was so vigorous in protesting his innocence that both the magistrate and Crown Attorney Newton found it difficult to get a word in for a moment or so.

Claims Innocence.

"I'm entirely innocent, I have an alibi. I can bring prominent men from Windsor who will tell you I was in Windsor in both the morning and afternoon that day," Quinton blurted out as soon as the charge had been read.

"We had a prisoner here before, a man by the name of Bannon (Labatt kidnapping), who also had an alibi but he was found guilty," Crown Attorney Newton replied.

"It's very unreasonable that I should be held on this charge without bail," Quinton continued.

As Crown Attorney Newton stated that he would oppose any move for granting of bail, Quinton continued.

"In the meantime I expect Officer Hammond to investigate my alibi in Windsor."

Then turning to the magistrate he again asked for bail.

"Bail will be set at $15,000," Magistrate Hawkshaw stated.

Accused Man Growls.

"You don't want much," Quinton growled in reply as he turned toward the door and Officer Les Shipley snapped the handcuffs on him to take him back to the county jail cells.

Quinton is tall and of athletic figure and was dressed in a brown suit and wore a red sweater. His attitude was belligerent throughout.

The charge was of armed robbery of the Royal Bank at Mount Brydges, with revolvers, and taking $2,986, insurance policies, papers and a Royal Bank seal, identical to the charge read to Melville Campbell, 37-year-old Toronto salesman and peanut vendor king yesterday.

Campbell is also wanted for armed robbery of a bank at Richmond, Ont., in July, he was remanded for 1 week yesterday. Quinton was given a similar remand today.

Roller Skating Rinks Spring Up As New Craze Sweeps Country

Easier Than Ice Skating And Requires Less Effort

ONTARIO CATCHING ON

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

Toronto, Oct. 20 (CP)—A chorus of spinning wheels sounding like giant, whirling newspaper presses is the melody of a new craze that bids fair soon to sweep the country. It's the rhythm of the roller skate.

Most popular fad in Toronto with disciples in the thousands, it is gripping the west, too, and there's the word of Eddie Penman, Winnipeg wizard of the roller rink, that the germ is spreading west from the Prairies and east from Toronto.

Ontario has ten rinks, in Toronto, Hamilton, Fort Frances and Fort William, and there are plans for development of others at Ottawa and Montreal. Barrie is considering conversion of its original town hall into a rink. That's how popular the sport is becoming.

Easier Than Ice Skating.

It is easier than ice skating and requires less effort. Beginners, though, take some tough tumbles and their mid-air antics—the period of suspension before the bruising whack on the floor—make jitterbugs look like ballet dancers.

But the probationary period is short.

Penman, in Toronto performing exhibitions with his pretty, 17-year-old partner, Jean McCullough, said before he left to return to Winnipeg that novices may develop into proficient skaters within three to six weeks.

Great Variety of Events.

Most roller rinks provide a greater variety of events than the ice skating rink. Signal bells announce the change of numbers and the floor is cleared before the skaters move out again from the boards.

Sometimes it is "all skate" or perhaps the number is for "couples only", "men only" or "reverse skate". "Get acquainted" means you "rush" the pretty girl you spotted doing the fancy figures in the centre of the rink. And it works, too.

SPINAL INJURIES FOLLOW CRASH

Clarence Thompson Hurt When Transport Takes To Ditch

Clarence Thompson, Martin Transport driver from Toronto, sustained spinal injuries and was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital early today following a motor accident near the Trenton Airport. Upon arrival at the hospital, Dr. G. S. Cronk ordered an X-ray to determine if there had been any fracture in connection with the injury to Thompson.

Thompson was driving a transport westerly and, it is said by investigating H.T.O. Harry Caldwell, Trenton, that he was attempting to pass another Martin Transport, proceeding in the same direction, when the vehicle he was driving went out of control and into the north ditch. No damage of major importance resulted to the vehicle, but Mr. Thompson sustained an injured back and was suffering from shock, when admitted to hospital.

With sirens sounding loudly and under police escort of H.T.O. Caldwell, an ambulance speeded Thompson to the hospital early today, causing considerable curiosity among those proceeding to their daily labours in Belleville.

TOTALITARIANISM INSIDIOUS—ICKES

Boring 'From Within Temple' of Liberties of U.S. Sect'y Declares

Los Angeles, Oct. 20 (AP)—Harold Ickes, United States Secretary of the Interior, continued his tour of Pacific coast public works projects, leaving here a warning that "totalitarianism is insidiously boring from within the temple of our own liberties as well as assaulting it from without."

"No one can escape the responsibility of enlisting on one side or the other," he told an audience of 4,000 persons at the Shrine Auditorium here last night, "either with the liberalism of Franklin D. Roosevelt or with the reaction and the threat of Fascism."

Previously, in an interview, he predicted that President Roosevelt "might have to run" for a third term in 1940, but added, "for his sake I hope he doesn't". He said he thought Roosevelt "would carry the United States if he ran again."

At a meeting of the Campbellford Cheese Board, plans were completed for the holding of a fowl supper for members of the Board and friends in Campbellford on Saturday, November 5th. Mr. R. H. Mayberry of Ingersoll, first vice-president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, will be guest speaker at the dinner. The program will include the presentation of prizes won by makers during the year.

PRESERVES GROWN-IN-BOTTLE CUCUMBER FOR 25 YEARS

Twenty-five years ago Mrs. Russell Hart of Roblin placed a small necked bottle around a cucumber growing in her garden. The cucumber growing normally, filled the botte. She then deltached the vegetable and bottle from the vine, filled the container with vinegar, and has kept the well preserved cucumber since then as a curio. The vegetable is still in perfect condition.

CAR SKIDS OFF ROAD, LOCAL COUPLE ESCAPE WITH SHAKING UP

Travelling just east of the end of the pavement on No. 7 highway, near Peterborough yesterday, Herbert W. Andrews and Mrs. Andrews of this city received a heavy shaking up when their car left the road and turned over in the ditch. The greasy condition of the road due to the rainfall was declared by the driver to be responsible for a skid. Treated at Havelock by Dr. D. J. Holdcroft for bruises Mr. and Mrs. Andrews returned to report accident to Traffic Officer Broughton of Peterborough. The car was only slightly damaged.

FLOCK OF WILD GEESE FLY LOW OVER CITY

Flying like a squadron of planes in battle formation, a flock of geese estimated to contain about twenty-five birds passed over the lower section of the city early this morning en route south. The birds were reported a bare fifty feet from the ground and their honking was plainly heard.

AWAIT NEW STAMP

Local philatelists are awaiting the issue of the new ultra-marine pictorial stamp in the current King George VI issue which is expected to be available to the public about November 15th. The picture on the new stamp which will be in considerable demand, shows the entrance to Halifax harbor. Other denominations of this set went on sale in April, May and June of this year.

Uses Sweet Melodies To Help Honey Sales

A distinctly new innovation in salesmanship was introduced on the city market today when an elderly purveyor of comb honey, drew a guitar from its case when business was slack and drew sweet melodies from its strings. The small crowd of Thursday morning shoppers, and a few passersby stopped to enjoy the music, but it was not ascertained whether sales volume increased or not.

Fall and winter apples headed the small display of produce today with staple vegetables in bushel lots being in evidence.

Northern Spies were offered at one dollar per bushel for windfalls, while one dollar and twenty-five cents was asked for single hampers of tree-picked fruit. MacIntosh Reds were quoted at $1.75 for bushels with Tolman Sweets selling at the same price.

Beets, onions, carrots and parsnips showed no change from week end quotations, while potatoes remained steady at ninety cents per bag.

A few eggs were available at thirty-eight cents per dozen for "A" selects. Whitefish and pickerel at twenty cents per pound and fresh lake trout at twenty-two cents rounded out the fish offering.

HON. E. W. CROSS WILL BE SPEAKER AT CONFERENCE

Will Speak On October 27th At Public Administration Conference

The Hon. Eric W. Cross, Minister of Municipal Affairs in the Ontario Cabinet, will be one of the speakers at the Public Administration Conference for Municipal Officers which is being held at Queen's University, Kingston, October 25-28. Mr. Cross will address the conference at 8 p.m. on Thursday, October 27th. The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

HON. ERIC W. CROSS

Mr. Cross was born in Madoc, Ontario, in 1904, son of Mrs. Mary Judith Cross and of the late William Cross, barrister, and nephew of the late Hon. Charles Wilson Cross, former attorney-general of Alberta. He was educated at the public and high schools of Madoc, graduated at Queen's University in 1924 as gold medallist in economics, taking his M.A. in 1925. He was called to the bar of Ontario in 1928. In 1934 he became police magistrate for the County of Norfolk. He was chairman of the Ontario Municipal Board, 1935-7 and was first elected to the Legislature for Norfolk-Haldimand at the general election in October 1937, and sworn in as Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs.

Others who will speak at the conference during the four days are E. A. Horton, Deputy Minister of Welfare and Public Affairs; J. P. Coombe, Inspector of the Municipal Affairs, Alan van Every, solicitor, and H. H. Walker, statistician of the same department.

34th Battery Awarded Cup for Efficiency

In the medium and heavy battery field artillery competitions held for Dominion artillery units this year, Belleville's 34th Battery has been awarded first place for efficiency of personnel, it has been announced in results posted by the Canadian Artillery Association today. The local Battery will be awarded the Hurdman Cup for its signal achievement, it is further announced.

The 10th Field Battery of St. Catharines were winners of the Governor General's and the Stradbrooke Cups by earning first place over the eighty-six other units competing for the title of the most generally efficient battery in 1938. The Shaughnessy Cup for the brigade showing the most general efficiency went to the 8th Field Brigade of the Royal Canadian Artillery, Hamilton. The 22nd Medium Battery of Cobourg was awarded first place and the Governor General's Cup for being the most efficient battery in the medium and heavy sections.

Karnival Parade of Fashion Enthusiastically Enjoyed, Stage Program Entertaining

Kiwanis Club Favored By Larger Attendance On Second Night

MANY PLAY GAMES

Members of Club Working Hard To Put Over Function

Living up to the reputation made Tuesday night, when a large and enthusiastic crowd voted it one of the most colorful entertainments ever placed before the public here, the Kiwanis Karnival emerged from the second night of its presentation last night with flying colors. The Karnival will be presented again this evening with the grand climax for which everyone is now waiting, occurring on Friday night.

As on Monday night, the stunning Parade of Fashion with its galaxy of beautiful Belleville mannequins, augmented by the youthful beauty of the guest star of the Kiwanis Club, Miss Diane Perkin, more familiarly known as "Miss Toronto" drew the acclaim of the large crowd. Parading in graceful fashion, showing to the fullest advantage the many outstanding styles and phases of milady's apparel ,the mannequins more than sustained their reputation of being the acme of grace and poise.

Another page in the Book of Fashion was turned last evening, displaying for the delight of the crowd in attendance at the Kiwanis Karnival Parade of Fashion, the latest trends for making the ladies of Belleville the best dressed women of the fall and winter season. Again Misses Helen Doyle, Helen Wotten, Maisie Parry, Diane Perkin (Miss Toronto), and Mrs. M. Brooks exemplified the grace and skill of professional mannequins, and Miss Mary Forster assisted with a descriptive account of each ensemble as it made its appearance.

Afternoon Dresses

First in order last evening were the afternoon dresses from Wotten's Limited. A lovely black gown with fringe trimming and fur fabric jacket opened the show and was an indication of the high standard of excellence maintained by the firms exhibiting in the show. It was followed by a dainty crepe model in sulphur tone that was most becoming. The new swing type skirt as adapted for afternoon wear was a remarkable success in the faintly metallic threaded crepe dress with fitted bodice while the flattering draped neckline was shown in a model in black for the older woman. Miss Toronto (Diane Perkin) made an enchanting appearance in a rust crepe dress and the prolonged applause which greeted her showed how much Belleville audiences have taken her to their hearts in the few short days she has been in the city.

The chic hats shown last evening were from Woodley's and were the essence of charm, perfectly complementing the costume with which they were shown. The handbags completing the outfits were from Angus McFee, Jewellers.

Second Group of Coats

The second group of fashions was devoted to coats, also from Wotten's. A swagger model in Persian curl closely resembling the fur was a complete success as was the beautiful fitted model of fine black wool completed with a two-way silver fox collar. Tile, one of winter's favoured shades was shown in Russian

JOS. D. CLARKE PASSES AWAY

Was Prominent In Business Life For Many Years—Once City Auditor

Joseph D. Clarke passed away early this Thursday morning, Oct. 20th., at the family residence, 145 Bridge Street East. He had been in failing health for some time. Many old friends and acquaintances in this city and elsewhere will regret to learn of his death.

The late Joseph Dobson Clarke was born in Belleville and practically all his life was passed in this city. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Clarke. For years he was a member of the old established firm of Messrs. Wallbridge & Clarke and retired from the firm in the year 1898 when he went to the Klondyke where he spent several successful years. During his entire life in this community Mr. Clarke was held in high regard by all citizens. He was a man of fine character and held a prominent place in the business, social, church and sport life of the city. Although he did not accept public office he took a keen interest in the affairs of the city, and was willing at all times to give his support to undertakings aimed at the advancement of Belleville. At one time he served as city auditor for some years. Mr. Clarke loved the city of his birth with its many natural beauties and much of his leisure time in past years was spent in yachting on the Bay of Quinte. He was an enthusiastic yachtsman and was prominent in the old Bay of Quinte Yacht Club when many sailing yachts of note composed the fleet in this port. He was also an ardent curler and cricketer, and was a leader in these sports when they occupied a popular place in the recreation life of the city.

In religion Mr. Clarke was a life long member and supporter of St. Thomas Church and served for several years as a church warden. His father and grandfather were among the founders of St. Thomas' Church. He was, indeed, a good and worthy citizen.

Surviving him are three sisters, Miss Ida Clarke and Miss Emma Clarke, of this city, and Mrs. Charles J. Boldrick of Vancouver, B. C.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

OPINION DIVIDED AS TO BUILDING OF NEW FIRE HALL

Property Owners' Association Discuss Question In Open Forum

ALL FACTS GIVEN

Municipal Bureau Will Aid New Assessor Meeting Told

Members of the Belleville Property Owners' Association and Ratepayers who gathered at the City Hall last evening turned the first meeting of the fall series into a question and answer forum at which the feelings of taxpayers on immediate matters were fairly well defined.

Opinions were fairly well agreed on two counts: that in spite of the economies, that may be effected through such a move, the construction of the new fire hall addition, which would result in the merging of the fire department under one roof at No. 1 firehall site, be deferred until next year, or later, and that immediate reassessment of all properties in the city be proceeded with without delay.

Economies could be effected through the construction of this firehall addition, it was clearly shown by Alderman Laurie Lewis, chairman of Fire, who pointed out further that to put the present No. 2 firehall into shape would cost taxpayers a sum of at least $2,000; this, it was further stated would be in addition to over $3,000 worth of repairs, which were put on the building some time ago. In spite of these repairs, the entire building was out of plumb, floors and walls were in poor shape, the drying tower for hose was in a shaky state and other repairs were badly needed.

WOMAN INJURED, IS UNCONSCIOUS

Mrs. Catherine Esdale Admitted To Belleville Hospital

Suffering from concussion of the brain and in an unconscious condition, the result of a motor accident west of Trenton late last night, Mrs. Catherine Esdale, Panour, Ont., was admitted to Belleville General Hospital along with her husband, Kenneth Esdale, who is suffering from head lacerations sustained in the same crash. Dr. G. S. Cronk announced today, however, that x-rays had been taken and no fracture of the skull had resulted in Mrs. Esdale's case. A passenger, Alex Wahunick, Crowland, Ont., escaped with minor leg injuries.

Esdale was proceeding westerly on highway No. 2 west of Trenton when he over-took a large motor bus. In attempting to pass the bus, however, Esdale's car is said to have gone out of conrtol and crashed into the ditch. Esdale's car turned over twice before comstallation in Shawinigan Falls disficer Douglas Wilson, Colborne, revealed upon investigation.

Mrs. Esdale was reported to still be in an unconscious condition at noon, but somewhat stronger, Dr. Cronk stated.

HIVE OF HONEY COMB SEEN ON MAPLE TREE

Autumn leaves falling in miniature clouds from trees of the city the last few days, revealed more than gaunt naked limbs on a large maple tree on a lawn on West Bridge Street.

Clustered on a large limb of the tree, about forty feet from the ground, is a large uneven shape, that close investigation will reveal as being combs of honey. Bees swarm around this novel summer home built when heavy foliage secreted it from prying eyes.

It is believed by bee-men that the swarm escaped some time during the early Spring in view of the fact that the "hive" has the appearance of being in its place for some time.

The location of the honey may be the answer to the mystery of the presence of so many bees on the city market during the summer months, it is thought.

Electrical Worker Gives Impressions of "Death"

How does it feel to "die" instantly from severe shock—then to be brought back into the world of the living again after being to all intent and purposes dead for one half hour?

To be electrocuted, for example. To have all senses end in a dazzling flash of blinding oblivion?

"Death in the electric chair must be a painless one" declares Frank P. Woodcock, of Ottawa, former "hot wire" worker engaged recently on high power line ineffects of opium smoking or some trict, who was rendered unconscious while at work and revived nearly one-half hour later.

To all outward appearances Woodcock had been killed by the sudden electric current which coursed through his body like liquid fire. His pulse had apparently stopped. His respiration was difficult to observe by first aid workers, who struggled heroically to revive him. During that time his inner spirit had apparently ranged through Elysian fields far from earthly cares, a condition or experience popularly ascribed to the effects of plum smoking or some other exhilarating narcotic.

But Woodcock "died" suddenly and painlessly. When the voltage struck him he lost consciousness even before the effect of pain was felt.

"Death from any electric shock is painless", he stated from his own experience. "The speed at which electricity enters the body is far greater than that of the speed with which the sense of pain is conveyed by the nerves. The man who is really electrocuted, feels nothing. Everything disappears in a dazzling flash of light, that is if the voltage is heavy enough.

A visitor to Belleville yesterday, Mr. Woodcock was most interested in the account of the almost fatal electrocution of Frank Sprentall, in Stirling on Tuesday. "It takes a lot of electricity to kill a man sometimes. At other times the 110 volt house circuit will do the trick", he observed.

When Woodcock "died" a new vision of life beyond was opened up for him. A life in which residents of another sphere ranged through green fields and flower lined brooks. "Maybe it was heaven I saw. Anyhow, if that is dying, then there isn't much trouble about it. I really hated to be awakened again."

Only a confused jumble of impressions of that after life was retained by him. The experience, he related was considerbaly like that of others who have experienced oblivion through anaesthetics in the operating room. "Only these were clearer, sharper, more defined", he stated.

Awakening again, the first impression the electrocuted man had was that of a "terrible roaring" in his ears. Consciousness returned slowly. For some moments, although his brain was apparently functioning, he was unable to transmit orders to the various parts of his body. His first clear recollection was of a number of men grouped around him. Then his awakening was rapid.

Invents Invisible Ear Drum for Deafness & Headnoises

The invisible Ear Drum invented by A. O. Leonard for his own relief from extreme deafness and head noises, has so greatly improved his hearing that he can join in any ordinary conversation, go to church and the theatre and hear without difficulty.

Is inexpensive and has proven a blessing to many people. Write for booklet to A. O. Leonard, Inc., Suite 290, Canada Cement Bldg., Montreal P.Q.

Mrs. Percy Hamilton favored with a solo "Since you called me sweetheart". After a few speeches by some of the men Frances and Charlie were asked to be seated in the midst of the gathering and Miss Edith Hogle read the following address:

Dear Frances:

We, your friends and neighbors on hearing of your approaching marriage, could not let this opportunity go by without spending a social hour with you before your departure. With this in mind we have planned the gathering tonight, and we hope that for you, it may be one of many happy memories.

When we realize, that our loss is another's gain, we can overlook Charlie's intrusion into our neighborhood, and taking one of our most popular young ladies.

Are you one of the 200,000?

THAT'S the approximate number of men and women who come of age every year in Canada.

Some start work at fourteen, sixteen or twenty; some go to college; some graduate from the school of hard knocks, and some never graduate from it.

But there is one common ground on which all can meet, and that is the habit of saving money and putting it in the bank regularly. A good habit, from which all conditions of men and women will benefit.

Money in the bank is far more than a reserve for "rainy" days. To each of this year's 200,000 a bank account will mean confidence, so essential to youth's success; and when opportunity comes along, a fund of ready cash to provide a means to grasp it.

8 Things to SAVE for
Regularly recurring expenses, such as life insurance premiums.
A home of your own.
A child's education.
Your wedding.
Investments in sound securities.
An automobile.

CHANGING CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Czechoslovakia is no more as it was up to a short time ago. Lopped of territory and faced with new alignments, the dwindling republic may swing into the orbit of Hitler and Mussolini. Hitler has pointed out that the republic will have a greater future within the security of the Reich than ever in its independence such as existed up to a few weeks ago.

That country joined together out of pieces of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire put nearly twenty years into the effort to make the little republic one of the most advanced states in Europe. She is pared down to but a part of what she once was, and the pressure of problems will call for as much effort in the future but appearances would seem to indicate that Germany has not let the chance slip to influence the course of her national life and that the state may follow the line of least resistance. The Sudeten Germans who wanted more security in the Reich even if they lost more individual liberty have secured what they wanted and the others of the population of the state will feel the same diminition in freedom of thought and independence of view if Germany directs its future.

OCTOBER

October has excelled most of the months of the year so far in its excellent weather. Lovers of nature have had opportunity to witness under ideal conditions of light and warmth the magnificent panorama of the passing of the season of growth as it is written against the ground, the hillside and the sky in a glory of coloring. Whatever weather the remaining days of the month hold out for him, he should be grateful for what he has just enjoyed. He has lived in the midst of beauty, whether his be the smallest cottage or the mansion; the streets, the woodland, have been dressed in splendid array by the master painter of the seasons. Those born in this month are entitled to wear the opal as birthstone and in many ways this precious stone suits the season in its endless variety of changes from its green, with which the month began, to the gay scarlet, on to the russet brown. The skies themselves seem opal in their pearly grey. There is the baded sedge along the stream and there yet remains the hope of another spring in the stately evergreens which retain their virgin color.

October is like a halfway house of the year. Such a lovely time is repeated in one other time of the year — the time when winter changes to spring. The changes from spring to summer and from summer to early autumn have not the appeal of the changes near equinoctial seasons, when nature is ready to burst into leaf, and to go to sleep until after winter's storms.

This year October temperature ran high and coaxed out the flies from their hiding lpaces in homes, motorists have followed the invitation of the highway in quest for pleasure, have sat in shirt sleeves in parks in a month usually cold enough to forbid such airy dress.

With all the bounty of good which the month has given man, there still is the desire in people's hearts for more of this good thing and so on to the end of the month and past it, for then men will still be wondering if we are not yet to have Indian Summer.

DEVELOPING CONTINENT

One of the marvels of the New World has been the development of the west. No greater saga can be written than that of Canada and of the United States when the greatest expanses of virgin land were made part of two nations, so that coast is linked to coast, Atlantic to Pacific Ocean. The stories of the pioneers who opened up these two tracts of land are impressive in the history of civilization. Nothing like it has been read. Nations in Europe who might throw a whole world into war for the sake of a little territory have not had the opportunity for expansion and levelopment as have Canada and the United States in their western areas. Nowhere in all the world could such lands have been found. To these two countries' destiny, nature have been very kind.

Only in the age of exploration, together with trains, and telegraphs, could such gains to the civilization of these countries have been made an integral part so rapidly. Alexander the Great went to the borders of India conquering but as soon as he passed, he left no such permanency as is guaranteed in the North American nations. Their western areas are part of themselves.

The latest development is the express airplane. Trans-Canada Airlines have just inaugurated a service across the Dominion. With so much attention given to the plane from the standpoint of military and civil progress, it is easy to realize that the West will continue to develop and play its part in the progress of the continent.

HAVE YOU NOTICED THE BIRDS GETTING TOGETHER in flocks, apparently holding conventions to decide when to leave for the South, and where to spend the winter months — or something. Interesting to think about the instincts of the birds. We know that the same birds return year after year to the same places. How do they know where to come? Another question raised by bird-lovers: Do the birds fly night and day on their flight south? Montreal Gazette editorially comments upon imminent departure of the birds as follows:

The birds come north in the spring and go south in the autumn, and no one knows for certain how it is that they find their way to the same places year after year. Some of the smallest travel the farthest, at varying rates of speed. Most of the little ones make 20 and more miles an hour, while a few of the largest can go 100. Ducks can travel 60. Just now most of the migratory ones are getting ready for their winter migration. The robins have almost cleaned the mountain ash of its berries, which is a sign that these pleasant songsters may depart at any moment. Crows are cawing and some of these days they will gather around the highest tree of a neighborhood, make a tremendous clatter and then mysteriously disappear, not to return until March, with the robin. As William Cullen Bryant puts it:

The robin and the wren are flown, and from the shrubs the jay,
And from the wood-top calls the crow through all the gloomy day.

The same American poet, who gathered a library of all he considered best in English poetry, told a story of family life in his "Robert of Lincoln," the bob-o'-link, concluding with:

Summer wanes; the children are grown;
  Fun and frolic no more he knows;
Robert of Lincoln's a humdrum crone;
  Off he flies, and we sing as he goes:
    Bob-o'-link, bob-o'-link,
      Spink, spank, spink;
When you can pipe that merry old strain
Robert of Lincoln come back again.

With respect to the migration, Gautier, a French poet, in his "Departure of the Swallow," said:

The raindrops plash, and the dead leaves fall,
  On spire, and cornice and mould;
The swallows gather, and twitter and call:
"We must follow the summer, come one,
  come all,
  For the winter is now so cold."

William Howitt, the English poet, also paid tribute to the swallow, asking:

And is the swallow gone?
  Who beheld it?
  Which way sailed it?
Farewell bade it none?

Do the birds which take their flight to warmer climes as cold weather approaches travel only in the night? So far as the city man is concerned they are here today and gone tomorrow. He may notice the preparatory excitement, but suddenly there is silence in the treetops. It is nature's chain of movement, but the chain holds on, as Pope says in his "Essay on Man":

See matter next, with various life endued,
Press to one centre still, the general good.
See dying vegetables life sustain,
See life dissolving vegetate again,
All forms that perish other forms supply.

When field life in this northern clime dissolves before winter's first blasts the migratory birds will have flown, but they will return in the spring when life vegetates once more. Meanwhile the cheerful if impudent English sparrow stays with us throughout the months of snow and cold. He and his mate are hardy Canadians who deserve to be given their winter breakfast of breadcrumbs from the kitchen door.

TOM LONGBOAT, FAMOUS INDIAN RUNNER, has been located as a member of the street cleaning staff of the city of Toronto. Tom is a Mohawk Indian who made athletic history some years ago, and won renown for Canada in England and the United States. Time was when Tom Longboat was the hero of the hour and was met at the Union Station, Toronto, by cheering thousands. Tom made friends rapidly and became acquainted with one John Barleycorn, too well acquainted, too friendly, and his fairweather friends assisted. Tom liked to spend money freely and found plenty to help him, with the same old result. Get up Tom, John sit down — down, down, to the bottom, and a generation which knew not Tom Longboat.

The Rev. Mr. Bowen, the successor to the Rev. Mr. Main, as pastor of the Congregational Church, Hotel Street, this city, delivered a lecture at Cannifton last evening where a branch of the church has been organized. His subject was "Phrenology, Religion and the Bible." Mr. R. Richardson, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, was chairman of the meeting.

The Ladies' Bible Class in connection with Bridge Street Church are working to establish a free library and reading room at the church. Towards this end they have arranged for the famous Jubilee Singers to appear here shortly.

That Body of Yours

Finding Your True Blood Pressure

There was a time when operation was the favorite topic of conversation among middle-aged men and women. Operation could include removal of appendix, gall bladder, or kidney, the repair of a hernia or rupture, or other condition. Today the favorite topic appears to be blood pressure because high blood pressure may cause a stroke of apoplexy, an attack of heart disease (coronary thrombosis) or an acute kidney attack. There is therefore a real reason why high blood pressure should be feared.

What so many fail to remember is that real healthy bloodvessels with their elastic coats in good condition can be made to tighten by this very fear of high blood pressure.

It is not unusual for a physician to take the blood pressure and heart rate at the very beginning of an examination and then at the end of the examination take the blood pressure and heart rate again. In the majority of cases it will be found that at the end of the examination the blood pressure and heart rate will be lower than at the beginning.

Why is the blood pressure usually lower when taken the second time?

An answer to this question is recorded recently in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"There are two reasons for the difference in the readings. Even apparently stolid or placid persons frequently feel some apprehension or fear as the blood pressure is taken and hence the first reading is found at a higher level. Also the muscles of the arm are held tight or tense (especially if the arm is not in a comfortable position) causing a higher reading. As the patient gains assurance the arm is relaxed thus not pressing so hard against the arm band. Care taken to have the arm in a comfortable and relaxed position will help to prevent a high reading due to muscle tightness or tension.

It is a good plan to record the first reading and also the last reading after the patient is reassured and relaxed. It gives some idea of how much the patient responds to nervous suggestion or stimulus."

The thought then during a physical examination is to keep body and mind relaxed so that the true blood pressure can be measured.

Shannonville

Shannonville—Twenty-one years ago in a little farm home in Sidney Township a young man decided to take the most important step of his heretofore uneventful life. He had definitely decided to leave his home and go out west as he had heard the popular saying "go west young man go west" so much that he thought "here is my chance." Therefore he told his parents and brother and immediately set out for the west and the riches that he expected were awaiting him.

He entered the mechanical trade and for the first few years enjoyed a good business but with the advent of the depression his business began to slowly but surely decline and last year the situation became so mad that he realized he must either return east or join the ranks of the unemployed which was something he would not do except in the case of the deepest emergency. Seeing that he must return east and being a man of action he packed up his worldly belongings and with his wife set out for the east, arriving last week and joined his brother, who operates a farm near here.

When the two brothers were reunited their joy was beyond description but there was one who was even more joyful and that was their mother who had always her son's letters with anxious thoughts of his safety and well-being. Their father passed away a few years ago.

The hero of this story is Mr. John W. Moore and his brother Mr. Percy Moore, well known farmer of this community. During his brother's absence Percy as he is popularly known worked on farms and latter managed the late James F. Hill's farm who was at that time a Conservative M.L.A. and ultimately Conservative Whip. When the late Mr. Hill retired from active agricultural work and moved to Belleville Percy purchased his farm and is now considered to be a good authority in farm work.

According to Mr. Moore the situation in the west is very bad in every phase of work esptcially in the farm work. There is much more unemployment although the residents in the west are facing the task cheerfully and with high hopes for the return of the former prosperity. Although he has not definitely decided Mr. Moore expects to remain in the east and possibly assist his brother on the farm.

A Good Trick

Tony, is a little Fox terrier and he has adopted a very unusual habit of climbing ladders with an agility previously unknown. When this correspondent saw this unusual trick performed he was astounded and could not believe his eyes. Tony was standing at the bottom of a ladder and was interestedly watching his master Garnet Little painting the roof of a barn. Suddenly Tony began to ascend the ladder and with the agility of a human being he reached the top of the ladder.

When Mr. Little's attention was drawn to the dog he appeared to be very angry with the dog although as a matter of fact he was very proud. Mr. Little brought Tony down to the ground and with a stern admonishment to Tony that he remain there, he resumed he resumed his work. But Tony was undaunted and once again he started up the ladder but when he placed his forefeet on the second rung he slipped and tumbled to the ground. This did not bother this unusual animal one bit but he started up again and when half-way up an onlooker brought him down.

Tony also has many other unusual tricks one that is very comical. His master calls this the sneezing trick." A member of the household shows a piece of bread to Tony and says "sneeze Tony". Immediately Tony places his nose on the floor and sneezes loudly. He gets the piece of bread.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Richards of Oshawa were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Moore.

Mrs. William Burnett of Cobourg, Mr. and Mrs. Allan King, and Mrs. Elizabeth Little were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little.

Mr. Robert Hook spent the week end at his home at West Lake the guest of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lake.

Mr. Bert Bell of Trenton and Mr. Alfred Draycott of Belleville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Pringle.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Goodfellow attended the Marmora Fair on Tuesday.

You have as much chance of winning as anyone else! So enter the contest today!

As you probably know, people all over the world are using Ovaltine to help them get to sleep at night. Thousands have told us that it usually works the first night. They say, they feel the benefits of a good night's sleep the following morning.

But Ovaltine does more than that! When taken night after night, users tell us it helps build the habit of sound, restful sleep.

Nothing is more important than to know that every night when you go to bed you will probably get a good night's sleep—not the "dopey" kind you may get from many habit-forming sleep drugs.—But natural, restoring sleep that makes you feel rested in the morning. We know that Ovaltine helps to build this natural sleep habit.

Thousands take Ovaltine night after night for sleep insurance—Very much as they take orange juice daily for certain vitamin protection.

And so for the sake of sound sleep and good health, as well as for the prizes, we urge you to enter this contest.

Just get a tin of Ovaltine today and take it regularly every night. Take it for several weeks and see if you don't sleep better and wake up more refreshed, with lots more energy and vitality. See if it doesn't help you build the habit of sound, restful sleep!

Then fill out the statement below, describing your experience with, or opinion of, Ovaltine as a "Nightcap."

Decide right now to enter the contest whether you are an Ovaltine user at present or not. Get a tin at any grocery or drug store. Directions are on the tin. Save the rules printed in this advertisement.

THE GRAND PRIZE OF $5,000.00 MAY BE YOURS!

EXAMPLES OF THE TYPES OF LETTERS PEOPLE OFTEN WRITE:

"For two years I'd been overworking and would go to bed so nervous I couldn't sleep," says R. W. DOCK. "Three months ago I started using Ovaltine . . . Since then I've been getting real rest and wake up in the morning feeling healthy." (38 words)

"My husband lay awake each night," writes MRS. ELMER KRUEGER. "One of the doctor's suggestions was Ovaltine. My husband is more than pleased with the results. Now he drinks it every night." (28 words)

"I take Ovaltine each night before retiring in order to insure sound, restful sleep," writes MRS. JANET [illegible]. "I first tried sleeping tablets, but they did not give the kind of sleep I liked. I am grateful to Ovaltine and shall never be without it. It is certainly a wonderful product." (47 words).

Follow these Simple RULES:—

1 Just finish the statement shown in the entry blank, recording your experience with, or opinion of, Ovaltine as a "nightcap." You may use as many sentences as you like, provided you do not exceed 100 words.
2 Attach a foil seal from under the lid of a tin of Ovaltine. You may send as many entries as you like provided you attach a seal to each.
3 Mail your entry to OVALTINE, Dept. Z-21, Box 12, Peterborough, Ont. . . . Write your name and address plainly.
4 All entries must be postmarked before midnight, Dec. 15, 1938.
5 No entries will be returned. They become our property. But none will, of course, be used for advertising without your permission.
6 The decision of the judges will be final. In case of a tie, duplicate prizes will be awarded. The judges' decision will be based on the obvious sincerity and human interest of the entries. This gives everyone a chance to win!
7 This contest is limited to the U. S. and Canada and is subject to all national, state and local laws and regulations. Employees of A. Wander Ltd., their advertising agency, and members of their families cannot compete.
8 Winners will be notified as promptly as possible by mail. A complete list of winners will be mailed to anyone requesting it after Dec. 31, 1938, provided a 3c stamp is enclosed.

HINTS ON WINNING

You don't have to be an accomplished writer to win this contest. But it's important that your entry be based on your personal experience. So get a tin of Ovaltine today, study the directions and pamphlets in the tin, and start using it. Let your entry record your experience or your opinion of Ovaltine as a "nightcap."

Now Mothers Relieve Misery of Colds, Coughing Spasms With This "VapoRub* Steam"!

Soothing—Acts Fast and Direct to Bring Relief Right Where Relief is Needed — Easy to Do at Home.

NO DRASTIC—OFTEN HARMFUL —"DOSING"

Now, Mother, you don't have to worry when one of your loved ones is tortured by a miserable cold and coughing spasms.

Because you can easily prepare ONE PROVED, DIRECT TREATMENT to relieve the misery—without any of the discomforts or ill effects that so often result from drastic "dosing."

All you do is to put a spoonful of good old Vicks VapoRub in an ordinary bowl or saucepan of boiling water. Then let the patient breathe in the soothing "VAPORUB STEAM."

AT ONCE, this "VAPORUB STEAM" carries the relief-giving vapors of 7 medicines deep into the throat and upper chest — where it soothes away irritation, eases local congestion and muscular tightness, quiets coughing — and SWIFTLY BRINGS BLESSED COMFORT.

Try it at Our Expense!

Here's our offer to acquaint you with the wonderful benefits of "VAPORUB STEAM". Get a jar of Vicks VapoRub from your druggist and prepare this treatment as directed above. If you are not absolutely satisfied with the relief obtained FROM THE VERY FIRST TREATMENT, return the unused portion to Vick Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont. We will gladly refund your money.

ANOTHER PROVED, SUCCESSFUL WAY TO USE VICKS VAPORUB: Just rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime. It acts to relieve the cold two ways at once: (1) through the skin like a poultice; (2) through its medicated vapors breathed in direct to irritated air passages. This direct, two-way action continues through hours of restful sleep—often by morning, the worst of the cold is over. VapoRub has been proved effective by two generations of mothers.. *"VapoRub" is a Registered Trade Mark denoting Vick Chemical Company's Vasestimulative, Volatilizing Ointment.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Finley, Western Springs, Ill., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Caldwell, Donald Street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Scott were among the guests at the Peake-Mowat wedding in Campbellford yesterday.

Under the auspices of Christ Church choir a most successful afternoon tea was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. R. R. Casement, Highland Avenue. Mrs. A. Thomas, wife of the choir president, received the many guests with the hostess, and they were invited to tea by Mrs. A. Simpson. The dining room was beautifully arranged with Autumn flowers, the tea table being centred with yellow and rust 'mums and ivory tapers. Mrs. G. G. Wright poured and the tea assistants were Mrs. Theobald, Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Bone and Miss Saunders. Mrs. Trump acted as treasurer.

Glowing grate fires and deep-toned Autumn blossoms made a lovely setting for the tea held yesterday afternoon at Manor House, the co-ed residence of Albert College. Arranged by the Women's Guild with Mrs. T. C. McMullen as convener, the function was attended by a very large number of guests, the spacious rooms being filled at the tea hour in spite of the disagreeable weather. Mrs. E. N. Baker, Mrs. Bert Howard and Miss Jessie B. Tuite, dean of women at the College, received and the guests were invited to tea by Mrs. W. B. Deacon. Chinese lanterns made a brilliant decorative note in the living room and the handsomely appointed tea tables were centred with marigolds and matching tapers. Mrs. H. B. Simpson and Mrs. T. K. Franklin were in charge of decorations. Tea was poured during the earlier part of the afternoon by Miss Elizabeth Corbett, Mrs. W. H. Lattimer, Mrs. John Deacon and Mrs. W. S. Northcott and later by Mrs. M. P. Duff, Mrs. F. S. Deacon, Miss Lazelle Brown and Mrs. H. B. Fetterley. The tea assistants were Mrs. Donald Baxter, Miss Ruth Howard, Mrs. Fred Houston, Mrs. T. K. Franklin, Mrs. C. Gibson, Mrs. F. H. Deacon, Jr., Mrs. H. B. Simpson and Mrs. Percy McGuire, while Mrs. A. R. Schryver, Mrs. W. H. Finkle and Mrs. F. Correll replenished the tea table. The home-cooking was in charge of Mrs. Angus Martin, Mrs. G. C. Shorey and Mrs. J. W. Cook, Mrs. A. F. Fisher was treasurer.

Officers Installed By Rebekahs

On Tuesday evening, October 18th the officers of Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133 were installed by Mrs. S. R. Chesher, District Deputy President of District No. 30 and installing staff.

At the conclusion of the installation ceremony a Past Noble Grand's jewel was presented to the retiring Noble Grand, Mrs. Ethel Sandercock, by the District Deputy President.

The recipient in a few well chosen words expressed her sincere thanks to the lodge.

The District Deputy President was the recipient of a beautiful silver dish, a gift from the lodge members. The address was read by the newly installed Noble Grand, Mrs. Irene Amans and the presentation made by the retiring Noble Grand, Mrs. Ethel Sandercock.

The District Deputy President thanked the members for the gift and for the high honor which had been conferred upon her. Mrs. Kate Beal, who had been chairman of the Refreshment Committee for the past year, was presented with a beautiful purse by the retiring Noble Grand.

The recipient graciously expressed her thanks.

Presentations were also made to three recent brides, valued members of the Degree staff, Mrs. Lena McMillan, Mrs. Irene McMartin and Mrs. Jean Hatfield.

The ladies thanked the lodge members for their kindness.

Brief addresses were given by the D.D.P., Mrs. S. R. Chesher, Mrs. N. Fraser and Mrs. Kitchen P.D.D. Presidents. Bro. C. F. Frost, P.G., Belleville Lodge No. 81. Mrs. Emma Platts, P.G. of Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133 and now a resident of Niagara Falls, New York; Mrs. Mildred Page also of Niagara Falls, New York; Mrs. Windover, Noble Grand of Glenford Lodge, Frankford.

Bro. R. H. Ketcheson, P.G.P., congratulated the D.D.P. and her installing staff on the excellence of their work. He also gave a very interesting outline of the condition of the order.

The members and guests were invited to the banquet hall where a very fine banquet was enjoyed by all. Singing of the National Anthem brought to a close a very interesting and enjoyable evening.

The officers installed were:—

N.G.—Mrs. Irene Amans; P.N.G. —Mrs. Ethel Sandercock; V.G.—Mrs. Florence Pollitt; R.S.—Mrs. Mrs. Mary Phillips; F.S. — Mrs. Lena McMillan; Treas.—Miss Jessie Smith; War.—Mrs. Irene McMartin; Con.—Miss Dorothy West; I.G. —Miss Marjory Bell; O.G.— Miss Phylis Tweedy; C.H.A.P.— Mrs. Boneham; R.S.N.G.—Mrs. Rowsome; L.S.N.G.—Mrs. Nellie Cooper; R.S.V.G.—Mrs. Annie Rose; L.S.V.G. —Mrs. Clara Ironsides; Musician—Mrs. Eva Turvey; Soloist—Mrs. Mary Plumpton.

For Friday, October 21

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DAY of much initiative and high tension may be expected, with corresponding returns in progress and prosperity. New projects may be enthusiastically put over, with some friendly assistance. But it would be well to be particularly cautious with strangers or those not thoroughly dependable. The former might cause friction or loss. Personal matters are well aspected for satisfaction and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which new enterprises may be safely promoted, with definite progress and lucrative returns. But be careful with strangers or intruders, as friction, loss or regret might result from over-confidence or trusting in wrong directions. There are auspicious signs for all personal or social enjoyments.

A child born on this day may be enterprising and have fine constructive ability, with much courage and initiative. Its personal life should be happy and prosperous.

Weddings

MACKENZIE—AIKINS

Aikin's United Church was adorned with Autumn flowers, and foliage for the marriage, at high noon, on Wednesday of Frances Evelyn, second daughter of Mr. Frank Aikins and the late Mrs. Aikens to Mr. Charles Roy MacKenzie, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. MacKenzie of Belleville. Rev. H. B. Johnson officiated.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Lee Grills. Misses Jean and June Aikins sang "When Song is Sweet".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her travelling dress of brown crepe with green accessories. She carried a bouquet of giant bronze chrysanthemums.

Miss Marion Aikins was her sister's bridesmaid, and Mr. Jas. MacKenzie brother of the groom, was groomsman.

On their return they will reside in Belleville.

ROBERTSON—MOWERS

Shannonville—On Monday afternoon, Oct. 17th., a pretty Autumn wedding took place at the United Church parsonage when Miss Rosalind Mowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Mowers of Napanee, was united in marriage to Wallace Robertson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Robertson of Shannonville, Rev. W. D. Craig officiating.

The young couple were attended by the groom's only sister, Mrs. D. Waddingham and Mr. Waddingham of Marysville.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson left by motor for a trip to the United States, crossing the Ivy Lea bridge and visiting relatives en route. The bride travelled in a navy coat with grey Persian Lamb trimming, navy hat and veil, navy shoes and matching accessories. On their return they will reside at the groom's home near Shannonville.

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

The President, Mrs. McClintock presided at the October meeting of Tabernacle W.M.S. which was held in the church parlours.

The guest speaker, Mrs. H. B. Herrington of Thomasburg, was introduced by Mrs. Fisher and it being the thank-offering meeting gave a very earnest address on Thanksgiving and systematic giving. Mrs. Herrington reminded each member to form a habit of giving regularly as God has prospered us and in so doing our church would not suffer for need of funds.

We can express our thanks to God in many ways. In song, in giving of our time and talents and as we cannot all go into the Mission fields we can give of our money to help send those than can go. In closing Mrs. Herrington said "Let us as W.M.S. members remember God and His wondrous gift of His Son to us and keep giving of our gifts for Him."

Miss Lucille Herrington delighted the audience with a solo entitled "Green Pastures", after which Miss Herrington and her mother sang a duet. They were accompanied by Mrs. Duff at the piano. Sincere appreciation for her address was extended to Mrs. Herrington and also to Miss Herrington for her singing. A reading by Mrs. Shorey and prayer by Mrs. Emerson brought a very interesting meeting to a close. Mrs. Fisher and her group served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

Start to Build Confidence In Youth

Should Train a Child To Excel In Some Line of Endeavor

(By LISA GRENELLE)

"HE SHOWS qualities of leadership," read one of the lines on Frank Brown's report card.

Mrs. Jones eyed it enviously. The report of her nephew, Harry, often said that, too, but not that of her son, Jimmy. he had never seen that on Jimmy's report.

Jimmy seemed to show no qualities of leadership, and she felt disappointed. Of course, she knew that everyone couldn't be a leader, but she'd expected that Jimmy would be one. He was such a bright boy, with such an excellent background. Both his grandfathers were leaders, and his father was proving himself one.

But Jimmy showed no such qualities. And, why should he? He was dominated by his father, by his two distinguished grandfathers, and petted and sheltered by his mother.

Qualities of Leader

What qualities go to make a leader? A distinguished grandfather? I don't think so. A leader is a leader because he has more self-confidence than others. He isn't afraid to speak his mind, to assert his will. He has more self-confidence because it has been cultivated and encouraged in him since babyhood.

The child with younger brothers and sisters will usually develop will power and qualities of leadership early in life. Having younger children look to him for guidance gives him confidence and a certain sense of responsibility; it develops his initiative. It's natural for such a child to assume the same role of leader at school. It's equally natural for the others, not so well practiced in making decisions and giving orders, to follow him.

Has Advantage

The child with younger brothers and sisters has the advantage. Likewise, the younger child has the disadvantage when it comes to developing qualities of leadership. But this disadvantage, like many disadvantages, can be partly rectified by his mother. She can build up little Freddy's self-confidence by praising him, by encouraging him to make his own decisions and by giving him as much freedom and responsibility as possible.

She can also train him to excel in some one sport or endeavor for which his contemporaries will respect him. Perhaps he can learn to run faster, jump higher, dive better, roller skate or ride a bicycle with greater ease and speed. It doesn't matter what, so long as it gives him an edge and forces the other children to look up to him.

It is wonderful how quickly "qualities of leadership" will develop in a child once he realizes he can throw a ball farther or jump higher than his playmates. The confidence that he gains from this one skill will enable him to take initiative in other things.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Afraid to Trust Another Woman

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 24 and have been married and divorced. I loved only one girl in all my life. But my wife did something that broke my trust and faith in all women. For a month now, I've been going around with a girl who claims she loves me, but how do I know she means it?

She likes to go to taverns and dances, but neither smokes nor drinks. I feel that I might be able to care a good deal for her, if my faith in women could be restored. But I keep holding back. Should I risk breaking my heart again, or should I forget her altogether?

I have always dreamed of having a home and children, and she has the same ideals. The girl is 19.

Broken Faith

Please let me remind you of the old adage that lightning does not strike twice in the same place. And at 24 it's pretty morbid for you to have lost faith in women, even though your experience has been a bitter one. At your age, it seems to me you have plenty of time before deciding to marry again. Why not wait and see how this friendship develops.

"Love's Young Dream"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 18 years old and very much in love with a girl of 17. She says she's in love with me too and has agreed to marry me. Do you think we're too young? We've know each other for more than a year now, and are anxious to know what you think about our marrying. Our mothers have asked us to write to you and see what you think about early marriages.

Jack

When the poet wrote "there's nothing half so sweet in life as love's young dream," he spoke the truth. But along with the glamour and witchery of being young and in love, their stalks the grim question of whether one is able or not to yield to this magic influence.

Your mothers advise you to write me. Well, let's consider things. Do you earn enough money to support this girl? Or will you have to live with your parents after you're married? And will you be required to pay in money or work for the board-bill? Can your 17-year old sweetheart cook or keep house? Is she strong and healthy? I know our grandmothers, even mothers, were able to marry at 16 and 17. But conditions have changed.

Since you ask my advice, I'm going to tell you to wait a year or so at least.

Fears For the Future

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been married eleven years, and all we have to show for it is a smoking stand and a run-down car. Also the sweetest three-year old little daughter in the world.

I wouldn't mind the one poverty-stricken room if I saw anything ahead. But my husband has no ambition, and is content to go on as we are going. He didn't want any children, but I insisted, and now he loves the baby.

I should like to have another child, as I think the lot of an only one isn't happy. I beg him to save a little toward a new home that I could fix up and make attractive. But he won't let me save, and gives me just enough to get by on. Is there any way to let a stubborn man see that we can't get ahead? We're not young any more, and I fear for our future.

Worried

When a woman finds herself in this plight, the only thing she can do is to try and get some work to do at home. Perhaps you may have to take a little training to make even a little money. That could be arranged through some of the night school classes.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Proper Use of "Mrs"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

On September 14th., your answer to the question "How should a widow announce her second marriage?" was, "The announcement of the marriage of a widow of mature years usually reads like this,

Mr. Alexander Forbes
and

Mrs. Mary Lathrop Adams etc.

How do you reconcile the use of "Mrs." with her given name to the answers that you have given before and to the rules given in your book, that "Mrs." is never to be used with a woman's first name?

In my research into the matter I find "Mrs." means "wife of" John or James or Paul.

Personally I dislike the prevalent use of "Mrs." with a woman's first name, and in crusading against this tendency have many times quoted you as an authority. So I felt a complete let-down when I read your answer in the newspaper, for you have always said that you felt as I do.

D.

What an honor you did me by writing me such a fine and friendly letter, giving me the privilege of explaining what does indeed seem like a deep inconsistency in my answers about the proper use of Mrs. Thank you for giving me the high honor of being a co-crusader in your battle against the use of Mrs. with a woman's first name. I do feel as you do, most vigorously. For years I have battled against the use of the form Mrs. Mary Adams. I have stated over and over again that the use of this form—Mrs. with the first name—is one of the most revealing of social errors, showing at once that the woman who used this form does not know what's what.

But the single instance where the use of Mrs. with a woman's first name is considered proper is when a widow of mature years announces her marriage (in the form I gave) and prefers not to use her first husband's full name. It is, of course, entirely correct for her first husband's name . . . Mrs. John Allen Adams . . . but usually she prefers and finds it of convenience to register her maiden name also in this announcement. And custom, in this one instance, gives tolerance to the Mrs. Mary Lathrop Adams.

Am I reinstated as a member in your crusade? Please?

Toast to the Bride and Groom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me what sort of a toast should be proposed by the best man to the bridal couple at a wedding breakfast?

Male Reader

Toasts these days are simple and brief . . . . no attempt at making a speech! The best man might say, "Here's to Mary and John, and to their happiness always!", or "To Mary and John. . good wishes, good fortune, high happiness", or "To Mary and John . . . our deep devotion and our high blessings."

NOW-See Clothes Wash up to 15% Whiter-with NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL

Amazing New Ingredient not only makes new High-Test OXYDOL far whiter washing—but also makes it give up to TWICE THE SUDS even in hard water...

"Impossible!" said millions of women when they heard that America's outstanding laundry soap had been improved.

"Unbelievable!" said scientists when they heard that new High-Test OXYDOL has the power to wash clothes far whiter than the old.

Yet it's true—every word of it! For an amazing new ingredient now makes High-Test Oxydol as much as 15% whiter washing than old-fashioned soaps. Yet keeps it safe for washable colors and fabrics—safe for hands.

Tested against old-style soaps even in hard water, High-Test Oxydol does these amazing things:—(1) Washes white clothes as much as 15% whiter. (2) Gives up to TWICE the suds—suds that actually stand up two to three times longer, in tub or washing machine.

But that's not all. For washable colored things washed in new High-Test Oxydol keep their freshness and sparkle, wash after wash, to a degree that is a revelation. Even gay, colored prints washed as many as 175 consecutive times in new High-Test Oxydol suds showed no perceptible sign of fading—came brilliant, fresh!

Furthermore—High-Test Oxydol soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes, without the ruinous scrubbing or boiling associated with less up to date soaps.

You will be surprised to find how economical new High-Test Oxydol is. Cup for cup, is goes up to ¼ again as far—washes up to 25% more clothes than the old-fashioned soaps you've probably used before.

Try High-Test OXYDOL and see if you don't find an utterly new experience in easier washdays, whiter clothes. Get a package today. Procter & Gamble.

BEFORE WASHING AFTER 175 WASHINGS

New High-Test OXYDOL is amazingly safe for washable colors. Even in hard water you'll find that colored things stay amazingly sparkling and fresh through an almost unbelievable number of washings.

The sketches above illustrate how sections of cotton print, washed as much as 175 consecutive times in new High-Test OXYDOL have come through without any perceptible sign of fading.

OLD-FASHIONED WAY NEW OXYDOL WAY

OXYDOL soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes. Thus ends the washboard scrubbing that shortens the life of clothes.

Picture at left shows a new sheet (highly magnified) washed 84 times by scrubbing with old-style soap. Note fraying in weave, due to hard rubbing and scrubbing . . . On the right, another new sheet washed 84 times the scrubless OXYDOL way. Note difference in "washday" wear and tear.

How Parents Should Treat Teachers

WE WANT our children to get on well at school and to be happy there. To this end we have good reasons to induce in our children a wholesome attitude toward their teacher—and not only by what we say and do, but also by what we do not say and do.

We need to guard our table talk. When the child reports happenings at school that we would condemn, let us keep silent. Let us wait a few days until we have regained complete composure, praying for poise the while, and finally go to school to talk things over calmly. But having waited, we may not go at all; the matter may have paled to nothingness. Anyway, we will be too grown up and sensible to blow up when a child complains of his teacher. Rather, we shall help the child appreciate the best in her. Then she will be more able to do her best for him.

We shall do more. We shall help create a wholesome community attitude toward the teacher, knowing full well that the more solidly the parents of our school are back of her, the better it will be for our own child.

Being human we may, however, be tempted to act toward the teacher in terms only of our own child. The teacher, [illegible] being human, might respond [illegible] kind, showing special favor to our child, even unknowingly. The effect? The teacher will lose respect of the other children and their parents. But when our supporting attitude toward the teacher has no immediately selfish motive apparent, when it helps all other parents feel more enthusiastic about the teacher and the school, our own child, in the long run, gains the reward. By proceeding, therefore, most unselfishly, we shall reap most selfishly. Yet we need to discipline ourselves to keep our attention on the community if we would succeed.

Discourage Complaints

When we hear others complaining about the teacher we, shall avoid encouraging their complaint. Rather, we shall try to see the teacher's side and lead the complainer to a more charitable point of view. In ever so many ways—at church, at club, P.T.A. meetings or parties, we shall set ourselves to fostering goodwill and co-operation toward the teacher and the school.

I wish parents generally would try to cultivate a high regard for the teacher and her profession, and would provide more opportunities for her to mingle socially, especially with the opposite sex. Many teachers are very lonely persons. They could be better teachers of our children if they enjoyed wider social contacts.

Let us parents constantly put ourselves, in our imagination, in the teacher's place. Then insofar as others are influenced by us, can we be powerful in helping our schools to grow better and our children to be happier and more efficient pupils.

SEEN ALONG FIFTH AVENUE

FURS ARE more important than ever this winter, not only as important accessories but as an integral part of coat, suit or hat. Lynx is the fur of the season, and it appears for exquisite evening capes and to trim dress suits. Detachable fur collars or collarettes appear on many coats and dresses. Fur-trimmed gloves are used to accompany many of the new ensembles. Fur waistcoats come with many of the new suits, and there are muffs galore in all sorts of new shapes.

Pathology Is Science Of Disease

Study Tells How Body Reacts In Fighting Off Many Ailments

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

AMONG ALL the numerous books that have come out for the layman's perusal about modern medicine, there has not been one that has explained the fundamental principles of pathology. That is strange, and an unfortunate omission, because pathology is the science of disease processes. It must be very difficult for anyone to understand one of these treatises on heart disease, or arthritis, or even diet, without some conceptions of the general nature of disease processes. So following my little excursion into the general principles of physiology last week, I am going to attempt to outline general pathology in simple language in the articles this week.

A Real Science

First, I think, it should be said that pathology, the science of disease, is a real science. It is not merely a slip-slop conglomeration of guesses and speculations, which popular opinion often supposes it to be. It is a well-classified body of facts. It uses the methods of science. And it has grown through the work of a succession of some of the finest minds of our civilization.

The essential method of pathology is the postmortem, or autopsy—the examination of the human body after death. And here is the place for a plea for a more enlightened co-operation on the part of the public in allowing autopsies on relatives. It may seem grim, but it must be remembered that in no other way have the advances of modern medicine been more thoroughly made.

Not Different

Second, I think, it should be emphasized that the processes of disease are not essentially different from the processes of health. In many instances such a fine shadow line exists that one is put to it to say whether the process is physiological or pathological. The action of the heart and of the arteries, when high blood pressure is present, is just the same as in health. The cells which are found around a healing wound are just the same as the cells in normal blood. The only difference is a slightly different arrangement. And who shall say whether the process of healing a wound is natural or abnormal?

And, third, let us remember again that most so-called disease processes are defensive. Very few are primarily destructive. If the army of a Fascist state were to invade our borders, and we saw young men rushing to get into uniform, marching through the streets, piling into motor trucks on the highways to move up toward the point of invasion, you would not think of it as destructive. So if pneumonia occurs and you could see the body converted into a military state, you would not think the cells that rushed out from the marrow and jammed the blood vessel roadways and landed at the point—in the lungs—were destructive, but protective.

Fashion Flashes

(By ALICE ALDEN)

A whole line of new hair ornaments has come in with the new hair-do. For upswept coiffures, Schiaparelli makes a wide beret in the form of a curved flower spray of simulated gems.

Every day new bags appear in the shops. Just off the boat is a black satin bag sectioned off with black silk braid and fastened by a gold chain with pearl and amber tassels.

A bright thought is that of selling evening shoes with flower clips and matching hair ornaments or bandeaux. This idea is used for a gold satin shoe with mauve platform sole trimmed with a purple pansy flower clip and ensembled with matching hair ornament.

Switching round jackets and boleros is a useful way of getting plenty of wear out of the wardrobe. A purple wool dress comes with a tailored jacket of gold, silver, purple and brown striped lame, a jacket that would be grand with an evening or dinner frock also for afternoon dresses.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't fiddle around with make-shift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are it's simple if you eat only what most people do: meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crisp crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Caroline Chatfield Says Today:

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Office)

Most Large Family Trees Have Sapsuckers Attached and It Usually Devolves Upon Some Female Member of the Clan to Provide the Sustenance

(Copyright, 1938 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

(Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I am in need of your sound and logical advice which I have learned to respect in reading your column. I am an unmarried woman of 56, holding a civil service position for many years. I could live comfortably but for the presence in my home of a niece, 38 years old who makes no effort to do anything. She has lost several stenographic positions, will not prepare herself for civil service and spends most of her time brooding, complaining of headaches which come, I believe, from lack of exercise. She has a man friend who takes her out to dinner and night clubs, arriving home any hour of the morning. When wtih him she is most vivacious but with me there is no give and take of friendship or of confidence.

I must keep a maid as I'm too tired at the end of the day to attend to housekeeping. Yet it is not the money that worries me; it is her future. She has no social life, no close friends, no interest in anything worth while. I cannot rouse her from this useless life. A few years ago I gave her clothes and money to go West where she could start anew, thinking the change would benefit her. But she was soon heavily in debt, without a position, and I had to send the money for her ticket back home.

For the few months that I have been away from home she has lived with her brother, whose wife refuses to tolerate her for long. Shall I accept what appears to be inevitable or make another desperate effort to change conditions? Would a psychiatrist help? What do you suggest?

—A.W.

ANSWER:

My dear woman, I have printed your long letter in full because it is a fine commentary on an experience so universal that any clan will recognize it and know its counterpart. You don't need a psychiatrist to diagnose that niece's malady, nor to cure her. You shouldn't accept the situation; but for your sake and hers you should stand up, read the riot act, lay down the law and set about to enforce it with the only weapon that your niece will respect: the purse. Figuratively speaking, you have bought and paid for a pair of crutches, taught her to walk on them. Now hide them and tell her to use her feet. She'll walk all right—and in short order.

First, tell the lady that you are getting along in years and must provide for your old age, that you can no longer afford the luxury of a maid and either she must get a job and pay part of the household expenses or do the maid's work while you are plugging at the office. Either course she chooses will provide her with the exercise, mental and physical that she needs to lift her up out of the doldrums.

Second, you should draw in on the spending money, make her wear her old clothes, do her own hair and nails and get a taste of what it means to look over the edge of the precipice. Nothing less will wake her up and show her what a shameless waste of life she's guilty of and what a long suffering, free spending aunt you've been to her.

Practicaly every sizeable family tree has one of these sapsuckers attached to it, a dainty, leeching, loafing lady who sucks the sap from the more industrious and provident members of the clan. And how often it falls to the lot of a female member to provide the sustenance! A maiden aunt, for instance, whose maternal instincts haven't had a full outlet, a maiden aunt who is willing to make great sacrifice for the satisfaction of knowing that one is dependent upon her, looking at her for support and protection.

But even a hungry-hearted maiden aunt wants something for her money; love, appreciation, some sort of show of gratitude. She deserves all this and more and should have it but she will never get it from a sapsucker and there's no use for her to waste her substance after she's discovered this bitter truth.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

BIG SUCCESS is forecast for a tailored suit with street-length skirt, fashioned of gold or silver lame in either a chevron stripe or an overcheck plaid. The suit has a contrasting ascot scarf of velvet in either cherry red or purple.

Sheer Wool---As Supple As Silk

That's the Choice Of Young Film Stars

By ALICE ALDEN

Time was when the autumn frock of wool was a somewhat severe affair, being intended for a brisk walk or for general wear. For events and occasions, a silk frock with plenty of trimming was generally worn. But now comes the pretty frock of sheer woolen that is nice enough to sit in at a bridge game or go to a smart luncheon or tea. Sheer wool, as supple as silk, and dyed in exquisite shades, is the choice of the youthful members of the film colony, girls who set fashions.

For Beauty's Sake, Don't Let Low Spirits Get You!

"Save Tears; Laugh It Off" Good Slogan

JOYCE MATHEWS

Keeps her spirits high for beauty's sake

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

LOW SPIRIT are the enemy of beauty; no woman can afford to indulge in them. When good Queen Vic was a girl, the melancholy beauty had her fling. What a terrible bore she must have made of herself. "Crystal tears like dew drops on the rose," said the poet. Blubbering, we call it, and that's what it was then. Today's slogan is "Save your tears; laugh it off."

While women seem to have forgotten how to cry, we still have the gloomers among us. They are rushing away from their youth at a fast pace, and will be old women before they are middle aged. They'll gather more wrinkles than you'll find in a yard of crepe, and it'll serve 'em right.

Low spirits lower the vitality of the body. Everything slows up, digestive processes, circulation, body repairs. A happy nature and courage to face whatever life brings along are insurance policies against beauty ills.

Why pull down the lip ends, furrow the brow, dull the eyes with depressing thoughts? Troubles don't care who has them. We all have them. The whiner is a coward, trying to pack her load on other people's shoulders. Half the time she's whining about nothing at all. She can throw her cosmetics out of the window. They can't help her.

Pouches under the eyes are often caused by nerve tension and digestive upsets. Anything that saps the vitality and softens facial tissues will bring fullness under the pretty sparklers.

Bathe the eyes with hot water, then with cold. Dip a piece of gauze in witch hazel place over the eyes. rub ice over the gauze. Follow with light friction with an eyelid cream.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Written by DEAN HALLIDAY

For Central Press Canadian

WHEN potting hyacinths for indoor blooms this winter, select only heavy, well-ripened bulbs. Examine them carefully to make sure they are free from blemishes. Use a potting mixture consisting of fibrous loam, well decayed cow manure and sand.

After potting the bulbs place the pots in a cold frame or in the open, set in ashes as shown in the Garden Graph. Cover the bulbs either with fibre or soil to protect them from frost and to keep them in the dark. To protect the new growth as it develops, place a smaller flower pot over each pot of bulbs, as illustrated.

x x x

Start to gather leaves as an organic matter. They may be dug directly into the unoccupied spots of the garden.

x x x

The moving of the smaller woody deciduous plants can start as soon as they stop growth and start to shed their leaves. If moved before this time a ball of earth should be dug with the roots. As a rule nothing is gained by moving the deciduous plants too early in the autumn.

Can Rainy Day Be Lovely?

Goodnight Stories

By MAX TRELL

IT WAS still raining as Knarf, the shadow boy, darted across the garden. He sprang over the puddles and kept out of the mud and finally reached the top of the garden wall. Then he called out at the top of his voice: "Rabbits! Squirrels! Birds! Grasshoppers! Listen to me! I know a place where it's nice and dry. Where are you?"

At that moment he heard a hoarse voice saying: "Here!"

Knarf peered around. "Where's here?" he asked, seeing no one.

"Right at the bottom of the garden wall....on a rock," the hoarse voice answered. Knarf sprang down at once. He discovered a frog sitting on a rock.

"I know a nice dry place where you can stay until the rain stops. It's under the back steps of the house. Come with me. I'll take you there."

"But I like it here."

Knarf said: "How can you like it here when you're getting soaking wet?"

Beetle Likes It

He tried to pull the frog's leg but the frog hopped off. Knarf went off and sat down under a mushroom. By and by a beetle came along. "Mind if I rest here a bit?" he asked the shadow boy. "I'm on my way to market. Fine day, isn't it?"

"It's raining," said Knarf. "It isn't fine at all."

"That all depends on how you look at it. Now take me, for instance. I think it's fine when it rains. So do my friends, the earthworms. They wouldn't think of going out for a walk unless it were raining. And then there are the ducks. You never heard a duck complain about the rain, did you?"

Knarf agreed he never had.

"So you see, rainy days are fine days. Well.... I'm off again. Good afternoon to you. And I hope it keeps on raining."

Then off it went, leaving Knarf as puzzled as ever.

Czechs Pray at Shrine of Masaryk

Czech peasants kneel devoutly in prayer before the simple shrine of Thomas Masaryk, first president of the republic of Czechoslovakia and seek divine guidance to lead them through the tragic days which have befallen the republic. After the Munich conference settled the Czech-German crisis, villagers from the surrounding districts visited Masaryk's grave to pray and place bunches of wild flowers. No stone marks the grave—only a plain stone oil lamp that is always burning. Around the shrine are the graves of other citizens of Lany. Masaryk insisted that no special marks distinguish his grave from those of his fellow townspeople.

OPINION

"With the construction of the new addition the department would be under one roof. Economies in heating the building are clearly shown. With the whole department combined, there would not be the summer need for relief firemen such as is needed at present. From the sale of the old building at least $3,000 should be realized", declared Alderman Lewis. "The new building would pay for itself in three years," he assured.

Cost of the new addition would be about $9,300.00, it was brought out.

The present site of No. 1 Firehall at the south end of the city, while not an ideal location was about the best that could be offered, it was believed following discussion on the matter which revealed that Fire Underwriters were against the construction of any firehall in the Front Street or business section. Any Pinnacle Street location was definitely not favored due to the fact, that a railway line at present extends along that street, which might be responsible for delay at some time of emergency owing to the routing of a train down this street at the time of a fire call. The purchase of any new property upon which to build might run the total cost of the construction of an addition to over $30,000 it was believed.

The opinion expressed by W. H. Panter, which followed further discussion of the matter was that "this meeting is not capable or qualified to send any recommendation to council to do anything definite on the matter of the fire hall addition. Before we can send any definite recommendation regarding this we will have to be better informed than we are at the present time", added ex-Mayor Panter.

City Reassessment Due Soon

Mr. C. E. Argue enquired how long it would be before citizens would know definitely when the new system of reassessment would be adopted.

"Very soon," advised Mayor Jamieson Bone, chairman of the evening.

"Will the new assessment be for 1939?" asked Mr. Geo. Lent.

"No, we have the 1939 assessment completed", enlightened the Mayor.

The matter of the appointment of the new assessor was brought up by ex-Mayor Panter.

"We have the new man appointed, and now it is the general feeling that he has nothing to do, that the new company which is to do the assessment work will carry this out themselves."

Mayor Bone referred to the original suggestion of the reassessment. "When I took office, Mayor Arnott and council of last year left behind the strong recommendation that such work of reassessment be carried on in Belleville. We took the matter up and a committee was appointed from present council to do this work. Your committee visited various places, such as Kingston and Oshawa where such work of reassessment has been carried out lately, and we were given every help in the matter. We were told by these cities and by the Ontario Government itself, that Dr. Horace Brittain and the Citizens' Research Bureau were the best we could have for the work. This company has recently completed the reassessment of Oshawa and Kingston and is now busy in Halifax. Your council finally decided to hire them.

"The greatest number of complaints on the street in Belleville of late have been about the matter of different values in assessment. It has been claimed by some that two houses of similar value have been assessed differently.

Bureau Will Aid Assessor

"Dr. Brittain says we will need an assessor here, and that he will be pleased to assist him in his work. The new reassessment, as I understand it, will be carried out on a system of valuation through foot measure—that is, properties of a certain type will be assessed at a certain figure a foot. Dr. Brittain recommends a younger man for the work of assessor, which recommendation guided council in their survey of the applications for the position," continued Mayor Bone.

"It is not the idea of council to raise more money through reassessment, but to give property owners a more equitable adjustment on their property."

"That's what we all want—equality in assessment in Belleville," agreed ex-Mayor Harry Greenleaf.

During the past few years some property owners in Belleville have been losing to the amount of as high as $1,000 per year on their property investment here, it was claimed during the discussion.

"Will Dr. Brittain, who will be in charge of the work do the reassessment himself or will he merely instruct the assessor?" asked a ratepayer.

Mayor Bone—"As I understand it, he will have an assistant here certain hours every week from the Bureau checking the work. This reassessment will be carried out on scientific lines, with values on property set as nearly equal as is possible compatible with property values."

Mrs. Hope McGinnis—"What will the city pay for this work?"

"Two thousand dollars," stated the Mayor.

"Then, the whole reassessment will cost us $3,800 this year ($2,000 for the work of reassessment by the Citizens' Research Bureau and a salary of $1,800 paid the new assessor.)

Believes Local Man Capable

"I think it's a waste of money to bring in an assessor here, when we have our own Belleville men capable of the work," stated Mr. Geo. Wooton.

"No man can come into Belleville and assess houses at the value they are today. The old assessor has a better value of properties here than any man you could bring in. Take Mr. Kerr here, or Mr. Ketcheson—they know what property is in the city and what it is really worth. Surely we have men here honorable enough to do this."

The matter of council spending money this year was raised by Mr. George Lent.

"This council has spent less this year than any council before it," defended Mayor Bone. "Also it can show a reduction of three and one-half mills in the tax rate...."

"For which we are very grateful," complimented Mr. Lent.

Mayor Bone, continuing—"The amount of money councils of municipalities may spend or may not spend, after all is fixed by the government. There are certain defined amounts that have to be paid each year, such as for the school board and so on. These are set by law. The amount council has control of is very small, comparatively."

Outside Speakers Suggested

How best to increase interest in the local Property Owners' Association among Belleville ratepayers, was pondered by Mayor Bone.

"How can we best get the people to turn out and attend these meetings?" he asked. "How can we carry this on to the best advantage? We know property values here have fallen behind, as they have in every other city but what are we going to do about it?

"I'd suggest that with the coming year we start out again with a new slate of officers, prepared to tackle all these questions which need immediate action."

The suggestion was made by Mrs. McGinnis that the local association take up the matter of having various speaker from outside address Belleville audiences.

From Pacific to Atlantic Canada's Business Horizon Is Distinctly Brighter

President of Canadian Bank of Commerce Gives Review of Business Conditions From Coast To Coast Before Representative Audience of Belleville Business Men —Barriers To Better Business Being Broken Down

A birds-eye view of business conditions in Canada in the various provinces from British Columbia to the Maritimes, present conditions and future prospects, given in optimistic vein by one of Canada's leading financiers was the highlight of a very interesting gathering in the Belleville Club Wednesday. The occasion was a welcome given by Belleville business men to the number of more than one hundred to the President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. S. H. Logan, who visited this city, accompained by Mr. J. E. W. Stephenson, superintendent of the bank's business development branch. The speaker was Mr. Logan, who in a pleasant conversational way drew an interesting picture of Canada today from a financial viewpoint. He was introduced by Manager Jewell, of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. Jewell reviewed briefly the career of President Logan, from the time when he was manager of the bank's branch in Cobalt during the early boom days of the silver camp to his steady rise in the ranks of executives until he reached the position of General Manager, and recently was elevated to the position of President of the Bank, every step in his banking career being marked by outstanding ability which led him ever upward until the highest position in the bank was his.

President of The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

British Columbia was first cited in the course of a verbal tour across the continent by Mr. Logan, and he described the prosperity that had come to the Pacific province through the export lumber business, owing to the great demand from England for building material in consequence of an extensive national house building program.

Alberta with its vast oil and other resources was prosperous enough to pay its debts, and the future of the oil fields there was full of promise with prospects of vast pipe lines to carry the oil to tidewater.

Saskatchewan after several years of blighted hope and poor crops was looking up again and prospects were brighter than for some time. Manitoba was prosperous and the future bright.

Ontario is always all right and this year is no exception. Quebec and the Maritimes are on even keel and going places, and the financial picture on the whole is encouraging.

Mining development in Ontario and Quebec was touched on by the speaker as a tremendously valuable contribution to the prosperity of these provinces in particular and Canada generally.

Roosevelt a Friend

Canada's relations with the United States was touched upon briefly, and President Roosevelt praised as a good friend of Canada in breaking down barriers to trade and opening markets which otherwise would probably be shut to Canada. The Fordney tariff bill of a previous administration was cited wherein Canadian cattle were practically barred from the United States market, decreasing the value of each head of cattle in Canada by over ten dollars. A more friendly spirit has developed under the government headed by President Roosevelt which helped to brighten the financial picture. Every effort should be made, said the speaker, to break down trade barriers the world over and stimulate world trade. Upon the success of these efforts depends largely the measure of the future prosperity of Canada.

Shadow of Recession

Canada began 1937 with high hopes and every prospect of increased prosperity. Then the recession in the United States cast its shadow here and retarded what otherwise appeared to be a real forward movement in trade generally in the Dominion. With good crops and improved conditions in most of the provinces the financial horizon is brightening in Canada.

Millions in Mining

Referring to the mining industry, so important a factor in the Canadian business situation. For the first half of the year the value of mining production was estimated at $210,000,000, and there is no indication that this ratio will diminish during the last half of the year. The volume of gold production increased by about twelve per cent, that of copper by 20 per cent, that of zinc by 16 per cent, and that of lead about three per cent.

Mayor Jamieson Bone, in a brief but witty speech, expressed the thanks of the gathering for the very fine address of Mr. Logan and the pleasure of meeting this gentleman.

Says Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, as good advice for home treatment as any friend can give, is to get a prescription known as Moone's Emerald Oil.

Simply ask Doyle's Drug Store or your druggist for an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you should notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are no longer burdensome. So penetrating and efficient is Emerald Oil that it also helps simple swellings due to strain to disappear.

Picton

Picton—The Evening Branch of the W. A. of the Anglican Church met at the home of Mrs. Chas. Patterson on Monday night. Following devotional exercises and routine business, sewing on a quilt was carried on. Lunch was served in the dining room, at a table centred with a silver basket of cosmos, by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Chas. McNabb, Miss Vera Miller and Miss Hilda Haddon.

Rev. A. J. Anderson of Milford will occupy the pulpit of St. Mary Magdalene's Church until the new year. He will also preach at the regular services at Milford and Waupoos. The congregational farewell to Rev. C. C. and Mrs. Winter is being held in the Parish Hall on the evening of October 31st.

Miss Ethel Franklin is enjoying holidays in Rochester, N.Y.

Friends regret the very critical illness of Mrs. Fred Goodman of Black Creek in P. E. C. Hospital.

Birth—In P. E. C. Hospital on Monday, October 17th to Mr. and Mrs. Archie Cole (nee Marion Gordon) a son, Gordon Archibald.

Mrs. Eugene Keogh spent Tuesday in Bloomfield where she attended a meeting of the W. I.

Mrs. Alwilda Welsh spent Monday in Toronto.

The very modern and attractive new apartment house of Mrs. Joseph Garvin on King St. is nearing completion and will be ready for occupation by November 1st.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was writing a letter at her private desk, saying, Benny, I'm sending a letter off to your Ant Fanny and I think it would be very nice if you wrote her a few lines that I can slip in with my letter.

Ant Fanny being ma's sister, making her my ant and I said, Well aw G, ma, I wouldn't know what to say to her, and ma said, Dont be silly just tell her the news in your own words.

Well gosh, ma, what news? I said, and ma said, Why, any news that you think would intrist her, here's a nice sheet of note paper.

And she finished her own letter, saying, Well, have you written it?

Yes mam, I'll read it to you, I said.

Wich I did, saying, Deet Ant Fanny, Nothing much has happened here that I think would intrist you since your last visit, except ma and pop having a long intristing argument the other nite on the subject of whose relations are the worst, hers or his, and I dont know wich one won on account of not being any judge there to decide, but I would of voted for pop's side if anybody had asked me, on account of him using the fanciest words. The bed in the spare room, the one you slept in, hasn't been slept in since. It fell down the other day all by itself, and pop told ma if it was a bed with any sense it wouldn't of waited till it was empty to fall down. Your loving neffew Benny.

Well of all things, do you actually imagine I would remotely dream of sending that to your Ant Fanny? ma said, and I said, Well G wizzickers, ma, why not? and she said, Read it to your father and he'll tell you why not.

Wich I read it to him and he said he couldn't see any reason why not. The resqlt being ma tore it up and didn't send it.

Change of Heads Reported in Loyalist Spain

JUAN NEGRIN DIEGO MARTINEZ - BARRIOS

According to reports received in London the Spanish Loyalist government premier, Juan Negrin, has resigned his office and may be succeeded by former president and Premier Diego Martinez-Barrios. Report of Negrin's resignation came after a radio speech by him, delivered during an insurgent air raid on Barcelona, in which he rejected the suggestion of mediation by the four Munich pact powers to end Spain's civil war. Negrin is a Socialist, Martinez-Barrios a left Republican.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

MARIE ANTOINETTE

Adapted from the METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Picture by GERTRUDE GELBIN

SYNOPSIS: Marie Antoinette is married to Louis August, Dauphin of France, for reasons of state, despite the fact that Louis is unfit to be a husband. Court intrigue led by Du Barry, the King's Mistress, makes Marie the tool of the unscrupulous Duke D'Orleans. Upon his advice she becomes the most talked-about woman in Paris. During a hilarious gambling affair Marie meets Count Axel de Fersen, Swedish nobleman who denounces her and spurns her kisses.

NOW READ CHAPTER THREE—BELOW

"It's her business to give us an heir."

"Royalty loves an occasional roll in the gutter."

"Help me Louis—please—I need you."

"When we first met, my heart stood still."

Du Barry (Gladys George) now finds herself with her back to the wall. Marie Antoinette (Norma Shearer) has become the idol of the Court. Du Barry knows her power is only as great as the number of nobles surrounding her. Daily she discovers that more and more of the corrupt coterie who have kept her in power, are following the lead of the glamorous and exciting Dauphine. She knows, too, that the Duke D'Orleans (Joseph Schildkraut), her sworn enemy, is the sponsor for all of Marie's escapades. Du Barry decides the time has come to take matters in hand.

Knowing that the Dauphin (Robert Morley) still refuses to live with Marie as husband and wife, Du Barry uses the pretext that Marie is still childless after two years to influence the aging King Louis XV (John Barrymore) against her. But first she demands that Marie do what she never has done in all her years in Paris—publicly acknowledge du Barry at a royal ball. The King commands that this be done. Marie has no choice. At the brilliant ball she greets du Barry publicly—then turns the tables by insulting her before everyone. Du Barry retreats in confusion.

Du Barry intensifies her campaign against Marie. Ill and no match for his mistress, the King agrees to her wish. He orders the marriage annulled and the immediate return of Marie to Austria. Marie turns to her supposed friends and all of them, the Duke D'Orleans in particular, deny their friendship for her. She begs her husband to help her, but he is terrified at the tide of events. Nevertheless, her husband does love her in his peculiar way and unbeknown to her, he finally does plead for her with the King. Marie, meanwhile, flees to the home of the Austrian Ambassador.

At the Ambassador's she meets again Count Axel de Fersen (Tyrone Power) the Swedish nobleman who figured in the gambling house escapade. Marie confides her desperate plight to him. Confessing that he has loved her since her childhood, Fersen begs her to believe him her friend. Marie, overcome at this sudden kindness in the face of the treachery done her, determines to find with Fersen one night of romance before returning to Austria. Morning finds a new Marie; gone is the frivolous creature of the Court; in her place is a woman—deeply in love with the man of her heart, Count Fersen. Read the next chapter.

Cossack style with Persian lamb trimmings. Another black with silver fox showed the regal appearance such a coat gives the wearer, while a Spanish tile "boxy" coat was lavishly furred in brown from sleeves to yoke.

Fur coats from Woodley's were distinguished examples of the furrier's art and included a silvertone raccoon, a muskrat in the new narrow mink striping, so justly popular with the younger set; broadtail in black with silver fox collar, and brown squirrel, a lovely creation. A double silver fox fur was shown, and, it was pointed out that this type of scarf is more in keeping with modest budgets than in former years.

Continuing the parade of appealing frocks was the sports exhibit from Kroch Bros. There was a raspberry wool dress with matching hat, also from Kroch's, a light-weight teal gray model smart in its two-toned design, and light English woolen with clever pleated bodice. The three-piece green knitted suit was trimly tailored and the rich coppertone of the rabbit wool dress worn with brown fur fabric was indeed charming.

Evening Ensembles Shown

Evening ensembles from the J. A. McNabb, Limited, were very striking. In rich velvet a smoothly fitted, hooded, black wrap proved reversible, showing a lining of deep flame tone that made it most unusual. It was worn with the very ultra in this season's gowns, the strapless evening gown of silk-back velvet, dramatically outlined at the bodice with white gardenias. A deep blue quilted wrap was worn over a Sweetheart blue gown with shirred bodice and shoulder effect. Tailored broadcloth formed an interesting wrap worn with a black and white dinner dress which caught the fancy of the audience immediately. A black dinner gown sparkled with touches of brilliants and was shown with a black velvet lapin trimmed wrap. The final presentation was that of a midnight blue taffeta dress with jacket and wrap of black velvet with novel fur pockets and collar.

With this model Miss Toronto wore a handsome diamond bracelet and beautiful diamond ring, from McFee's, their total value being five thousand dollars. Other jewelry ensembles for afternoon and evening wear were greatly admired and were also from the stocks of this firm.

Coiffures Most Pleasing

The coiffures of the young ladies were arranged in the very newest hair styles by Mayfair Beauty Salon, and the new high note was seen to be particularly effective for evening wear, especially when accented by jewelled hair clips, as shown by McFee's. The cosmetics used by the mannequins were from Lattimer's, the preparations blending so perfectly with the occasion and individual requirements being the "Helen Rubinstein" line.

Heading a stage entertainment that was head and shoulders above that of preceding night was Clare Rouse, "the Old Beachcomber", "Admiral Jellyfish," and the man of a thousand instruments. From the deep-pocketed mysteries of his humorous costumes, this clever performer extracted nearly all the instruments known to music with the exception of piano and drums.

Clarionet, trumpet, oboe, saxophones of varying shapes, jews-harps, a French horn, a "Sweet potato" and other instruments of varying size and design. And in proof of his versatility, Rouse played nearly every phase of music known, from the modern swing to the ballad thence to jazz and grand opera. He was particularly clever with a set of musical bars representing a jail cell, that brought down the house. He performed with a hammer and bottle extracting music in a dexterous manner. And finally brought down the house with a violin that carried a tin horn for a soundbox. His rendition of Irish jig and Scottish reel brought vociferous acclaim from the enthusiastic crowd that filled the Armouries to near capacity.

Held Over For Tonight

Rouse, has been held over for tonight's performance by popular demand. Requests for a repeat performance poured in to committee headquarters following the show, and he is being held over tonight.

The Austin sisters, two clever dainty banjo misses, struck a popular note with their fine renditions. Mac and Daly, two comedy roller-skaters also drew acclaim with their humorous feats on skates, that ended in a whirling finale.

Dainty Miss Inez Forster, resplendent in a blue and gold military costume, captured the hearts of her audience with a clever tap dance, cleverly executed, that concluded with a difficult routine with a set of steps. Little Barbara Diment, attractively garbed in a diminutive farmer costume sang and danced her way in a manner worthy of a professional. Ruth Hagerman's outstanding acrobatic dance was interspersed with outbursts of applause from the audience as the clever little miss went through her fine movements. All three dancers are pupils of Miss Mary Forster, and reflect great credit on her as an instructress.

Tonight's show will be bigger and better than ever, Kiwanians say, and are anticipating an even larger crowd than attended last night.

A notable feature of this year's Karnival is the new colorful setting provided by the Decoration Committee. A splendid arch done in a harmonious color scheme, upon which is emblazoned the famous "K" of the Kiwanis Club, and which bears the name in full across the front is but part of the panoramic parade of color that features the entire setting. The booths of progressive merchants whose display of merchandise in a manner seldom if ever before seen in this city, are a riot of shades, blends and contrasts. Beautifully decorated the booths themselves are a distinct credit to those live-wire business men whose contribution to the 1936 Karnival has been no small factor in its success to date.

Bingo Quite Popular

Following the stage show and fashion parade, the crowd thronged around concession booths where bereted Kiwanians announced their attractions in stentorian tones. The ever-popular Bingo, that proved such a sensation first night, again stood out as the main attraction, with numbers of people forced to wait their turn in order to get a "card".

Cigarette wheels where one could get a year's supply of smokes, providing his luck held out, chocolates and other valuable prizes were to be had for a small sum of money providing Lady Luck cast a smiling countenance your way. "Miss Toronto" mingled with the crowd, captivating everyone with her gracious manner".

Husky Kiwanians, blue-bereted and white-aproned, threw aside the cares of business to don culinary apparel, and made "hot-dogs" and hamburgs with a dexterity worthy of the best country fair concessionaire. Soft drinks were handed out to thirsty ones as the panorama of fun slowly rolled to the dance-floor climax.

And here again, to the melodic rhythms of Bud Haines and his tuneful Commodores, a large crowd of dancers whirled and pivotted on the large dance floor placed in the Armouries for their accommodation.

Gayly Decorated Booths

Gayly decorated booths displaying modern merchandise greet the eye upon entrance to the Karnival. The display spaces clearly depict the modern trend of modern house furnishings and drew a large audience of interested spectators.

The largest display is that of the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Company, where the latest models of radio and electric refrigeration and Alemite products are on display.

The Deacon Sportswear and Grenville jackets, shown in the latest creations by the Deacon Shirt Company show the latest for winter and sports, while nearby is Stephen Licence's sports goods and bicycle booth.

The Y.M.C.A. has an inviting booth clearly showing the work of that Association, while next is the Imperial Oil display and nearby that of Arthur Sills, showing modern roofing and tiling for the home.

The Canadian Department Stores booth has the latest equipment in kitchen stoves, while the Weaver Music Store features radios. "Toots" Holway welcomes visitors to his booth displaying Firestone tires, next to which is located the Belleville Utilities booth of electrical and gas fixtures, all of the most modern type.

Cliff Baragar's display is interesting with Goodyear Tires and U.S.L. batteries, across from which is the Model Home Furnishings, everything for the home is their motto. The Houston Lumber Company has roofing and insulation for the home, while the Percival Stores have a complete line of home furnishings, which are of the most up-to-date type.

The Home Appliance Company has a large display of radios and the Fess automatic blower for the furnace, while the Hastings Motors introduce the latest style of Plymouth automobiles. The Canadian Tire Company, sponsored by Weese and Onderdonk, brings before the eye the new Super Lastic tire, near to which the Keyes Supply booth show the very latest in Marconi radios. The Robert Simpson Company booth of oil heaters for the home and a display of radios and the miniature model of the Trudeau Motors Ltd. representing Ford and Lincoln automobiles, concluded the display of exhibitors. The miniature model is undoubtedly one of the features of the Karnival.

With the zero hour that will prove beyond a shadow of a doubt the most popular girl at the Karnival, drawing near, contestants in the Popularity Contest are exerting every effort on the last minute drive to pull under the wire a winner.

As the returns come in, denoting the closeness of the contest, excitement is beginning to grow tense. Friends of the girls are bending their efforts too to help their favorites, while public interest as denoted by the large crowds that centre around the booth in the Armouries is beginning to heighten.

Tomorrow night, the final results will be made and some girl will be made happy as will a number of ticket-buyers, when the draw will be made that will bring golden dollars to fortunate contestants and other people.

The standing last night was:

Eva Hogle	16,400
Gladys Knox	15,600
Marion Clarke	14,500
N. Dorian	14,500
Margaret Hebert	13,200
Jean Ramsay	10,500

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 20 (CP)—Walkers Common featured the industrial share market with a rise to 50¾ on the Toronto Exchange today, a new high for a year or longer. A gain of more than two points was held at the close after a turnover of about 7,000 shares. The industrial list was a bit heavy and the mining issues eased off in the last hour, dropping the gains that were showing at noon. The Western Oil share market also was slightly weak. Volume was off to about 700,000 shares.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York Oct. 20 (AP)—Selective buying gave the stock market a recovery tinge today and weak issues of the preceding session came back fractions to a point or so.

Support eventually was accorded steels, motors, coppers, utilities, rails and specialties.

While analysts obviously were a bit disappointed over the sluggish response of the list Wednesday to cheerful news from motor, steel and other industrial fields, the drying up of offerings today was an off-setting influence. Turnover was about 1,300,000 shares.

HELD ON ROBBERY COUNT

London, Ont., Oct. 29.—(CP) — While Raymond (Dolly) Quinton, 41, of Windsor, protested that he was innocent of the Mount Brydges Bank holdup a week ago, Inspector E. D. L. Hammond of the Criminal Investigation department today investigated a charge that Melville Campbell, also charged with the holdup, virtually kidnapped Kathleen Byrne, 22-year-old Hull girl, who was arrested with Campbell and held as material witness.

Inspector Hammond visited the girl in her cell in the county jail and spent nearly two hours in conversation with her in an effort to get to the bottom of the allegations of the girl's mother.

Inspector Hears Suggestion

The allegation that the comely brunette who is held with John Donaghue, 32, of Windsor, as material witness in the Crown's case against Campbell may have been kidnapped by him was made by her mother, Mrs. William Byrne of Ottawa.

When he learned of this allegation that the girl was made to accompany Campbell by force, Inspector Hammond declared he would investigate.

"This may throw a new light on the case I will have to talk to the girl and learn her version," Inspector Hammond stated.

He was present in the court room when Quinton appeared and was remanded. He then went to the county jail where he interviewed the girl for more than two hours.

Quinton's Alibi

It was learned that Quinton's alibi is that he visited friends at the Windsor jail last Thursday, the day two armed bandits walked into the village bank and got away with $4,000 loot.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 20 (CP)—Cattle trade continued dull on Toronto Livestock Market today with a few sales on killers 25 to 50 cents lower for the week. Hogs were 10 cents lower on most sales. Calves, sheep and lambs were steady. Cattle holdover from Wednesday was 1,500 head.

Receipts reported by Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 10; calves 20; hogs 320; sheep and lambs 160.

Medium to good butcher cattle brought $4.50 to $5 with common as low as $3.50. Good weighty steers sold at $4.50 to $5. There were no sales of any account on butcher cows or bulls. A few medium to good fed calves made $5.25 to $8.

The few veal calves offered went at $4.50 to $9.50.

Most hogs were $7.65 off trucks for bacons with some as low as $7.50. Sows were quoted at $5.50 to $6.

Good ewe and wether lambs traded at $7.50. A few good light sheep ranged from $4 to $4.50.

Membership Committee: Mr Thomas, Miss Adams, Miss Brown, Miss P. Campbell and Miss MacLarin.

It was decided to have the first lecture in November. The Secretary was advised to write to the Extension Department of Toronto University in order to arrange for speakers. —Tentative plans for five lectures were made.

ERLE DENYES GIVES ADDRESS AT C. OF C.

Guest speaker at today's luncheon of directors of the Chamber of Commerce was Erle Denyes, Hastings County Clerk. Plans were made at the luncheon for the next Tuesday meeting of representatives of the Chamber, the city council, and County Council with the Ontario Minister of Highways at Queen's Park, when an effort to obtain action on the proposal that the government take over and create a provincial highway on that section of road reaching from Belleville to Whitney at the edge of Algonquin National Park as a tourist trunk road, will be made.

Butter Exports Show 100 % Increase

Toronto, Oct. 20.—Cheese exports from Canada bulged 3,242 boxes during the past week and were 1,111 boxes above a year ago, according to a report issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Total clearances for the current season to date, on a comparable basis with last year, however, show a sharp decrease of 113,385 boxes, or about 9.6 million pounds. Shipments of butter amounted to 144,144 pounds last week, while for the period May 1 to October 15, exports reached a total of 2,959,488 pounds, and compare with 1,442,000 pounds shipped in the like period of 1937. For the week ending October 15, 42,029 boxes of cheese were exported, as against 38,787 boxes in the preceding week and 40,918 boxes a year ago. Number of boxes shipped during the season May 1 to October 15, aggregated 605,988, which compare with 719,373 in the same perriod of last year.

Trading showed a quiet pace on the butter market, with prices holding former levels. Offerings were not burdensome in view of the continued light arrivals of fresh receipts. Report from London, England, dated Oct. 4, states that New Zealand production is running as much as 20 per cent below last year, which is more than offsetting the increase in the Australian make. Stocks of all butters in Great Britain on Sept. 24 were reported at 29,382 tons, compared with 16,144 tons a year ago. Yesterday, Ontario solids were quoted at 23c for No. 1 grades and 22 1-4c for 38 score with prints to the retail trade also unchanged.

The egg market was steady to firm. Movement was still inclined to be stubborn on mediums and pullets while top grades experienced the best demand. Graded shipments were clearing at 41c to 42c for grade A-large, 39c for medium, 30c for pullets, 26c to 27c for B's and 21c to 22c for C grades.

Montreal Cheese Quiet And Dull

Montreal, Oct. 20 (CP)—The cheese mart was quiet and dull on open produce markets here yesterday, but butter prices remained steady and mostly unchanged, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24 1-2c to 25c a pounds and creamery solids for 24c-24 1-2c. Receipts: 2,037 boxes.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 42c to 43c a dozen for A-large, 40c to 41c for A-medium, 31c for A-pullets, 26c to 27c for B-large, 21c for C. Receipts: 1,295 cases, including 512 for export.

Faith In A Postage Stamp

During the last decade my own experience with letters mailed from all quarters of the globe by air, land and water routes, not forgetting four-footed beasts and plain hikers, has given me profound admiration for every and all identified with keeping open the mail routes.

Not since 1925 when I began sending from far and near the material that goes into my tri-weekly column in the New York Sun, has a single batch of copy failed of delivery to the addressee. The total number of separate manuscripts exceeds two thousand, with double that amount of casual correspondence in the form of letters and postal cards.

The one iron-clad steel riveted and copper-lined rule that I have always preserved and to which I attribute this unbroken record, is that I make it a point to fix with my own hand whatever stamps are requisite to pay the freight. An envelope even though addressed and sealed, but without a stamp, might just as well be catalogued among the lost, strayed or stolen. Remember this, all ye epistiliarians who fling your messages about the world....

Not until a letter is stamped does it becomes sacred. Once emblazoned with the seal of the State it assumes a status with which few are wont to tamper, and ninety-nine times out of a hundred it will find its proper destination. Stamp your own letters. Don't let George do it.

On occasion for purposes of experimentation and from widely scattered points on the globe, I seal a blank sheet of paper in an envelope, address same to myself in New York, fix the proper postage, and then leave the letter in some conspicuous place where it will come under the eye of a stranger; on post-office desks, cafe tables, in shops, telegraph-offices restaurants, and in some instances dropped on the street pavements, the object being to observe what percentage have the good luck to be posted by unknown hands. Of eighteen such, fourteen, posted by volunteers, came through. For all I know, the undelivered four might have been entirely overlooked or else opened.

On one occasion I smeared a "test letter" with dust and placed it on a highway twenty kilometers outside of a village in Sweden. The address was legible, though messy, but the stamp was there and supposedly the epistle was on its way to the addressee when dropped on the open road. At all events, it was picked up and reached New York in advance of the writer's arrival.

A letter tucked down behind the cushions of an automobile which bore me from Florence, Italy, to Montesficioni, was found six months later by some well-disposed chauffeur, and mailed in Orvieto. The stamp affixed established the responsibility of Italy and the person who found the letter saw to it that the transaction was completed at the nearest post-office.

From Honolulul, a letter that I had dropped in the locker-room of a golf club, bearing a five-cent stamp, was duly mailed by someone who took the time to write upon the flap: "The bird who stamped his don't know that Honolulu is in the United States. Three cents would have brought his letter to New York. Aloha."

Indeed, there is ample evidence to justify faith in postage stamps, and in the ultimate delivery of letters that bear them. If you would maintain a correspondence and keep in close touch, carry plenty of stamps and see to it that they are put on the right spot by your own hand. —from "People, People, Everywhere," by Bob Davis. (New York; Stokes.) in Christian Science Monitor.

Will Canada and U. S. Join?

An Ottawa man has been writing to the American Mercury suggesting the probability of eventual "Anschluss" for Canada and the United States and so confident is he of this taking place at a comparatively early date that he predicts Ontario will cast her 13 votes for Roosevelt if James son of the current President, succeeds his father as the Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1940.

Other people have been predicting annexation for many years without anything remotely suggesting it actually occurring. Long before Confederation, as a matter of fact, a number of sober and level-headed Montreal business men circulated a petition with that object in view. But Canada has remained British and there is little reason to doubt that she will continue to occupy that alignment unless, of course, there should be a complete Imperial break down in which case Canada might prefer independence to absorption by her neighbor. The latter, indeed, seems to have quite enough on his hands without asking her additional territory or trouble.

It is quite possible, however, that future years will witness relationships between Canada and the United States even closer than those which now exist. Speaking the same language, having in large part the same customs and the same tastes, it is inevitable that these two peoples, living side by side, should constantly be drawn more closely together for their mutual interesst and protection. But each, we believe will respect the other's sovereignty and independence and it is unthinkable that "Anschluss" as we understand the term, should ever take place against the wishes of Canadians themselves.—Brockville Recorder-Times.

5 INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Hamilton Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—Five persons were injured today in two automobile accidents here. Police said an auto driven by Theodore Carson struck two girls. Margaret Egeter suffered a compound leg fracture and Ruth Petrie was bruised. Another car crashed into a hydro tower and injured the driver Joseph Toth and two companions, Joseph Mrav and Louis Pustai.

VISITS O.A.C. FIRST TIME

Guelph, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP) — Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, paid his first official visit to the Ontario Agricultural College today, accompanied by Hon. P. M. Dewan, Minister of Agriculture; Hon. Bona Dussault, Minister of Agriculture for Quebec; Rene Trepanier, chief technical adviser to the Quebec Agricultural Department and others.

MICHIGA PAYROLLS INCREASE

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 20 (CP) — Michigan, often sited as an economic barometer of the United States, reported a payroll increase of 26.5 per cent from August to September. Automobile factories had the largest employment increase, 64.9 per cent. Industrial payrolls in the state increased 23.6 per cent.

when PENNIES count — The "Ontario Intelligencer" is The Ideal 'Shopping Guide'—

How to get the most out of every penny is mighty important to folks who are just starting out. An error in buying judgment that would be considered trivial by anyone else, might be tragic for them. They can't afford to make mistakes . . . they can't run the risk of "gold bricks". Every penny counts. Every penny has to do DOUBLE-DUTY. It's interesting to know (and we can't deny that we're a bit proud!) that The Ontario Intelligencer is making it possible for people like these to get more for their pennies. For the pages of The Ontario Intelligencer are a "Shopping Guide" to values. Every day advertisers offer definite savings on the things all of us need. Of course, if you are already an Ontario Intelligencer reader, you are well aware of this fact.

WOMAN IN LOVE

A woman's notion of choosing a man is all her own.

She will love a blackguard because of the way his hair grows or because of the tone in his voice when he speaks to a dog.

She will for no better cause detest on sight an excellent fellow who might make her happy. Her day dreams are all romantic. She will moon over actors, join the mob when a film lover visits London.

Yet in practice she will put up with anything in the way of looks, and minus everything in the way of character; put up with it, stick to it, work and sometimes die for it.

This apparent inabiliyt to spot the rotter, or to quit him when spotted, probably accounts for the world contriving to go round, and for the sales of wedding-rings keeping fairly steady.

When women judge men by men's standards it may be another story.

But they never will.— Overseas Daily Mail.

Do you add one for the pot?

- it's better that way. You should use a warmed crockery teapot - a teaspoonful for each person and one for the pot - add fresh, boiling water and steep five minutes - to get all the flavour from TEA.

'SALADA' TEA

by May Christie

"Ah, but you'll get over it, miss" His clear old eyes that had looked on far horizons for a lifetime had, oddly enough, a look of understanding in them as he turned them on her, kindly, quietly. "Life's like that net of mine. It gets torn in places. But you mend it, and put out to sea again. And all kinds of things, the good and the bad, some up in the catch."

She thought: "He saw me crying." And tears were very near the surface. She stared straight ahead at the endless procession of tugs and river boats, freighters, and swift ferries that headed for their goal.

Where was she heading?— she asked herself.

She was adrift!

"When my old missus died three years ago come Christmas, it was like my life had come to an end." He had removed his pipe, and seemed to be talking to himself. "But the boats went out just the same in the early morning, and me with them—and the dawns were as beautiful over Tamalpais —and there's healing in working."

Healing in working!

Like a beacon of hope, those three words of promise sank into her soul.

Life was a mending. The broken heart, like the torn net, could be reinforced and strengthened. A new dawn would await her, if she bravely faced it.

"In New York!" decided Toni. She would go to New York.

There's healing in working!

CHAPTER VI

Bright lights of Broadway. Jostling crowds everywhere. Noise. Traffic. Newsboys yelling the morning papers at eight o'clock in the evening. Street hawkers. Beggars. The rush hour for the theatre.

Toni Goddard in the milling crowd about the Astor Hotel. Tired from a long day of tramping the agencies. A search for work that didn't lead to anything. Thousands of girls in the city wearing out shoe leather similarly. She had been in New York almost three weeks, and the end of every day was blank disappointment. How much longer would her money hold out?—she wondered.

But grim determination, not hopelessness, was in the taut face that was thinner than it had been in San Francisco. Come what may, she wouldn't go back.

She would find her place, or die trying. Adversity was building a new character in Toni. A quitter? A burden on her already burdened parents. Never! She'd scrub floors sooner than admit defeat.

But so many illusions had been discarded. The importance of a university degree in a workaday world was among the first. Then her yen for writing. She had haunted newspaper offices. They wouldn't even give her a try-out. There were not enough jobs for the experienced reporters, let alone bothering with a novice. Staffs were being cut, not enlarged, she was impatiently informed.

Employment bureaus had the same tale to tell. Besides, where were her references? What was her experience? Yes, she could typewrite, but she had no shorthand. Didn't she realize there were hundreds of excellent stenographers jobless?

A social secretary? She'd had plenty of experience, giving parties, and she knew all about entertaining and the correct form of invitations, and how a ball should be run. Shrugs and snubs greeted these efforts. Would-be social secretaries were as plentiful as blades of grass in Central Park.

What about teaching? Very few people, apparently, were employing governesses these days.

"If I were a beauty expert or a millinery designer, I might land something," thought Toni, appalled by the knowledge that, despite her four years at the university, she knew very little that was saleable.

She read the Help Wanted columns.

> MASSEUSE, licensed, well built. Apply Kilmoon's Gymnasium.

"Well built, but not licensed." giggled Toni to herself. Here was something more promising.

But it was a wild-goose chase, and humiliating too. For the picker of beauty curtly told her that she was neither young enough nor pretty enough, in his opinion. Looking in her mirror, as she left the place, she realized she did look rather haggard, for she had slept badly the night before, and worry didn't improve one's appearance anyway.

Despite this snub, and now more careful of her make-up, she sat for hours in the waiting rooms of theatrical agencies.

Hadn't she had good parts in plays put on by the college dramatic society? And wasn't she willing to begin with small bits, and work her way up?

The agents laughed at her naivete, her greenness. One gave her a voice hearing, and appeared somewhat impressed. "If the field weren't so crowded, we might land you as a blues singer," he told her as he took her name and address—and that ended it.

At the end of her second week in New York, Toni moved to a cheaper hotel, bought an electric plate, and started light housekeeping.

But she didn't let her parents know of her change of address.

The first hotel had been smarter. Her mail could still be sent there. She could call for it. Keep her chin up. That was important.

Extraordinary that a big city could be so frightfully lonely! Here on teeming Broadway, she was grateful to exchange a few words with old Bridget, who had a tiny fruit-stand on the corner of Forty-seventh Street. When buying oranges from Bridget on more than one occasion, the sympathetic woman had drawn from Toni her continued disappointment in trying to find work.

To-night it was windy, and a sudden gust caught Bridget's stall, scattering fruits on the sidewalk. Toni swooped down on them, gathered them and returned them to the old vendor.

"Lissen, honey, there's a try-out at the New Gallic Casino at ten to-morrow morning. You'd make a swell showgirl. You go on over and tell 'em you've had experience," advised Bridget.

"But I don't know anybody to ask for." The place in question was an enormous cafe and music-hall on Broadway that was crowded nightly.

"'Twas little Cassie Doyle as lives around the corner told me they're putting on a new revue. She's in the chorus. Ask for Cassie. Be there early and say a friend sent you. Cassie'll see you. She's a good-natured kid," grinned Bridget.

CHAPTER VII

Morning found Toni in the surge of applicants at the stage door. They were turning them away already! Desperately she scribbled a message on a card, thrust it, with one of her few remaining dollars, at the doorkeeper and begged him to give it immediately to Miss Cassie Doyle.

After an interminable wait, a small, red-headed, snub-nosed girl appeared, in shorts and blouse. Toni's card in hand, she looked at her sharply as Toni pushed forward.

"Boy friend send you?" she asked.

"Why, no." Toni plunged in recklessly. Might as well take a chance! "It was—your mother."

"Gee! You from Cincinnati? You saw my mother? Come right in!" Cassie jerked her past the doorkeeper. "My ma's a peach, and any one's a friend of hers is a friend of mine. Say, we can't talk now—we're rehearsing. You wanna get a job? Where's your practice clothes?" Her eyes roamed over Toni's figure.

"I didn't bring any."

"I'll lend you an old set of mine. What's your specialty? Singing? Dancing?"

"A — a little of everything," stammered Toni.

Cassie looked dubious. At that moment, down a passage leading from the wings, a fat man appeared.

Cassie darted toward him. Toni couldn't hear what she was saying, but she spoke volubly, as with enthusiasm. Then she beckoned Toni.

The man stared blankly at her "Take off your hat and coat and let's have a look at you," he commanded.

Toni did so.

"How much experience?"

But before she could mention her amateur efforts at college, Cassie cut in. "Say, she was a riot in Cincinnnati, and a hit in the Greenwich Village Follies."

"Get into some working clothes, and come back to the stage," said the man.

Cassie hurried her upstairs to the dressing room of the chorus, which was littered with discarded garments, grease paint, make-up boxes and all sorts of paraphernalia.

"Slip into these, and make it snappy. That was Fatty Gusheim. He's directing a big yachting scene in the first part of the revue. The yacht's supposed to be in the harbor at Monte Carlo, or one of those fancy foreign places. He's looking for French mannikins — y'know, clothes horses. You oughta suit perfect."

Toni was embarrassed at disrobing before Cassie. But, down on the stage, all the other girls were just as airily clad. "Fatty" was surrounded by several tall girls in a corner, while a dance director was putting the chorus through their routine.

"Go on over to Fatty," whispered Cassie. "Hold your chin up like you had a million dollars, and every one was dirt under your feet! Act the duchess, Toni! I said you was a society girl from Cincinnati, and your people are wild at you for being on the stage. You'll get the job if you'll act haughty. Say, your legs are lovely. Your line's to be classy, remember! Go to it, kid!"

She smiled encouragingly.

For three hours Toni was rehearsed in the yachting scene. She was one of twenty showgirls who had nothing much to do but move about the stage, warbling what seemed a very silly ditty with the others, making a background for the girl who was principal.

Cassie and she had a bite of lunch together around half past one.

Toni felt bad about having deceived Cassie about the introduction. When the part was really hers, she would explain to Cassie that she'd never been in Cincinnati nor met her mother. That the entering wedge had come from old Bridget, the fruit vendor. Cassie was so kind, she would surely forgive her.

In the day's excitement, the thought of Brock Milbank was for the first time pushed to the back of her mind.

Work was a healer, as the old fisherman at the Embarcadero had assured her. Already his prophecy was coming true, thought Toni.

At five o'clock she was definitely engaged, at forty dollars a week, as a showgirl in the New Gallic Casino. She was to report for work at ten o'clock the next morning, and that night she was to see and study the show from the auditorium, dining at a small table out front.

"The curtain rises on the first part of the present revue at seven forty-five. Dancing for the diners starts at seven. Be there early" Cassie warned her.

The big theatre-restaurant with its gorgeous decorations was filling rapidly when Toni arrived, as smartly as possible. She wore a trousseau gown of black satin, with an elbow-length cape that was edged with mink. If things had gone as expected, Brock Milbank would have been the first to see her wear it!

A waiter conducted her to the table that had been reserved for her just behind the orchestra, and directly in front of the stage. She was healthily hungry. She ordered dinner. And because she was lonely, and embarrassed at being unescorted, and needed heartening she ordered a cocktail.

It was a good cocktail. Potent. A little color crept into the gardenia-like pallor of her face.

Men were looking at her. Why worry? Wasn't she "professional"? Within a week they would be looking at her on the other side of the footlights.

Lights were lowered. The curtains parted on the wide expanse of an empty stage. The orchestra struck up a waltz. People rose from the tables and, laughing and chattering in couples and in groups, went to the rainbow-illuminated stage to dance.

Toni ordered another cocktail, feeling dreadfully alone, yet exhilarated. The floodlights shone upon her, dimming all surrounding tables.

Then they moved.

And as they moved, she was conscious of a man, seated alone at another table, looking directly at her with strangely magnetic eyes.

A dark and handsome man with a strong, square face and a scar across his cheek. As his eyes met her and held them for a moment, she had the queerest feeling—as though floods of electricity washed over her.

promptly stormed when they found it blocked from the inside.

Sever Telegraph Lines.

Scarcely had the British occupied most of the old city when Arabs in other parts of Palestine severed telegraph lines.

Two Arabs were killed and several others wounded after they set fire to the International Oil Pipeline near Tulkarm. Three Arabs were killed near the Raselain railway station when they attempted to ambush a Jewish truck.

Arab circles warmly greeted reports from London that a Royal British Commission had recommended abandonment of a plan to partition Palestine into Jewish, Arab and British-corridor sections and that Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald suggested instead a project whereby the Holy Land would remain a united Arab-Jewish state under British administration.

TAPPED LIGHTLY WITH SIDE OF AXE

Harold Oliver, Farm Hand, On Trial At Coburg Assize

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 20.—(CP)—A statement, allegedly written by Harold Oliver, that he "tapped" Mrs. Edith Parker, "lightly on the head with the flat side of the axe", was admitted as evidence today at the attempted murder trial of the 20-year-old farmhand.

Oliver is being tried before Mr. Justice Ainslee Greene. He faces also a serious moral charge and an arson count, both arising from the alleged attempt to murder the Hamilton Township widow for whom he worked two years.

The statement was produced by Provincial Constable A. L. Mennie, who said he found a notebook in Oliver's automobile after his arrest. He allegedly admitted entering the Parker home by a ladder to an upstairs window. Mrs. Parker testified yesterday he threatened her and her daughter Josie, because she was keeping company with another youth.

Constable Mennie said the statement read:

"I took the axe for protection but meant no harm. When I saw Mrs. Parker at the bedroom I tapped her lightly on the head with the flat side of the axe and she fell down and lay there about fifteen seconds. I had to cut the telephone wires and before I left I placed a cigarette on the couch to smoke them out."

NO DEFICIENCIES IN NAVY'S ARMOR

Challenge of Emergency In Recent Crisis Quickly Met

London, Oct. 20—(CP)— In the midst of charges the German-Czechoslovak crisis had revealed "glaring deficiencies" in Great Britain's defensive armour, the nation's first line of defence—the Royal Navy—emerged with enhanced reputation.

Of all the services, the navy has been singled out for generous praise for the way in which it met the challenge of the emergency.

When orders were issued to mobilize the Navy during the early hours of September 28, there were some misgivings among Admiralty officials as to how the machinery of organization would function under pressure. There were fears complicated mechanism which had not been tested since the general mobilization of 1914, might disclose some weaknesses.

But the machine, according to Admiralty spokesmen ran smoothly and efficiently throughout "beyond highest expectations".

Although the fleet was never completely mobilized, 30,000 men were at their posts three days from the time the proclamation was signed by the King. The formality of signing took place at 11 a.m. Sept. 28, but morning papers of the same day brought the call to early readers several hours before the proclamation was officially signed.

A number of reservists who read about the order in early editions had reported by 6 a.m. Two hundred had arrived at one depot by 8 a.m. At two other depots 8,500 men were examined, passed and equipped within 24 hours.

Majority of the men were drafted to ships without delay, some being on their way within three hours of arrival.

INSTITUTES MEET IN CONVENTION

More Than 300 Delegates In This Region Assemble

Bringing to the city over three hundred members of Women's Institutes of Hastings, Prince Edward, and Northumberland, the annual area convention opened this morning in St. Thomas Parish House. Mrs. Jas. Bailey, Eldorado, area chairman, presided. Mrs. T. J. McDowell, Provincial President of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, Miss M. V. Powell, Toronto, General Assistant, Ontario Women's Institutes, Department of Agriculture, Miss Greta Pollard, Bowmanville, in charge of Girls' Work were among the distinguished visitors.

Tonight, the evening session will be devoted to Peace and the convention will be privileged to have as their guest speaker, the Hon. Cairine Wilson, Ottawa.

King and Queen Will Be Invited To Owen Sound

Owen Sound, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—His Majesty King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will be invited to visit Owen Sound and Grey County during their stay in Canada next June. The king will be asked to unveil the soldiers monument to be erected by the people of the city and county on the brow of the hill overlooking Owen Sound bay. The beacon light 100 feet high will cast its gleams miles in all parts of the county.

This decision was reached at a meeting of city and county officials last night.

AT THE BELLE

"MARIE ANTOINETTE"

Norma Shearer, whose courage has won for her the respect and admiration of a world that hailed with enthusiasm her decision to resume a brilliant career, returns to the screen in "Marie Antoinette", Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's spectacular romance at the Belle Theatre.

With Tyrone Power as her co-star for the first time, Miss Shearer brings to life the glamorous and fascinating Antoinette, a rôle she has waited four years to play. Power is cast as Count Axel de Fersen, the man who dared to love a Queen of France.

History has written no more tenderly romantic or grimly tragic episode than that of the little Hapsburg Archduchess whose marriage to Louis August, Dauphin of France, changed the course of empires. The powerfully dramatic character role of Louis is played by Robert Morley who was discovered in London after a year's search.

A happy and carefree girl, Antoinette looked forward to her wedding as the supreme adventure. She left for Paris in high spirits, soon to be disillusioned by her meeting with Louis, stupid, physically unattractive, terrified by a marriage he did not want.

Denied the love of a husband and friends she could trust and surrounded by enemies in the Palace of Versailles, Antoinette determined to find happiness no matter what the cost. She became the gayest, most extravagant woman in France. She gave lavish parties, lost fortunes at the gaming tables and welcomed dangerous flirtations. Then Antoinette met Fersen. They fell desperately in love, a love that as a Queen, Antoinette had to deny. But through the later years, it was Fersen's love and his courageous efforts to save Marie Antoinette from the guillotine that provided one of history's most beautiful love stories.

"Marie Antoinette" was directed by W. S. Van Dyke II. one of the foremost directors in the film industry. One of the most spectacular motion pictures ever created, its filming required four years of research and preparation and entailed an unprecedented cast of 152 supporting players with an additional 7,000 extras in its breath-taking spectacle sequences.

Among the prominent names in supporting parts are John Barrymore as King Louis XV, Robert Morley as King Louis XVI, Anita Louise as Princess de Lamballe, Joseph Schildkraut as Duke d'Orleans, Gladys George as Madame du Barry and Henry Stephenson as Count de Mercy.

Others in the cast include Cora Witherspoon, Barnett Parker, Reginald Gardiner, Henry Daniell, Leonard Penn, Albert Van Dekker, Alma Kruger, Joseph Calleia, George Meeker, Scotty Beckett and Marilyn Knowlden.

"Came the Brawn", a funny "Our Gang" comedy and Popeye in a clever cartoon "Bulldozing the Bull" precede the feature attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"NOTHING SACRED"

David O. Selznick's New Technicolor sensation "Nothing Sacred" co-starring Carole Lombard and Fredric March, literally roared on to the screen of the McCarthy Theatre. The laughs started from the first flash of the original and satirical maintitle by Ben Hecht which describes New York as ... "Skyscraper Champion of the World..... With a Silk Hat for a Soul and a Mammy Song for a Heart.... Bagdad, Babylon and Podunk in a Cakewalk between two River Banks." From then on the hilarity gathers momentum as the action of the picture unfolds.

For sheer entertainment that will make you forget your inhibition and explode in raucous guffaws of mirth, "Nothing Sacred" is just what the doctor ordered, and the doctor in the picture is Dr. Enoch Downer, portrayed by Charles Winninger who comes to the big city just for the ride and aids and abets Carole Lombard as Hazel Flagg, the small town gal in perpetrating a colossal hoax that turns New York inside out. Fredric March is the ace reporter of the "story of the century" with Carole as the central figure.

"Nothing Sacred" dramatizes life in New York as Mr. Selznick's previous hit "A Star Is Born" dramatized life in Hollywood. As the title implies, it pokes fun at people and things, which in this case is New York and some of its foibles.

The story is an original by James H. Street and the script is by Ben Hecht who knows more about New York than any man in Manhattan, and he has done one of the best jobs of his writing career in his farcial treatment of "Nothing Sacred."

The cast is an impressive one headed by Carole Lombard and Fredric March, and they enter into the rollicking spirit of the action which calls for them doing everything from riding on a hook and ladder and jumping off the dock to being the principles in a lavish night club sequence as well as a whirlwind, rough and tumble fight.

Fredric March, Carole Lombard and Walter Connolly in "Nothing Sacred" at the McCarthy Theatre.

In addition to Charles Winninger other important featured roles are played by Walter Connolly and Maxie Rosenbloom with a veritable host of others in support. The picture is lavishly produced and the marvellous technicolor shots of practically every important point of interest in New York and its environs is almost breath-taking in its pictorial beauty and dramatic effect.

To Carole Lombard and Fredric March however go the high honors for performances that stand out like the Empire State Building on the New York skyline. Miss Lombard's flair for comedy has been established in previous hits, but she surpasses anything she has done heretofore. Fredric March makes an ideal team mate for the blonde and beautiful Carole and after their romantic merger in "Nothing Sacred" it is predicted the public will clamor to see them together in more pictures of this same fast-action, romantic type.

"Nothing Sacred" is tops for screen entertainment in a season that has been marked by fine pictures, and is another outstanding release on the United Artists program of hits.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Gold Is Where You Find It"

"Gold Is Where You Find It" co-starring Olivia de Havilland and George Brent is at the Capitol Theatre.

An outdoor drama based on the colorful war between the ranchers and the miners of California in the 1870's, "Gold Is Where You Find It" is an adaptation for the screen of Clements Ripley's best selling novel by the same name which ran serially in the Cosmopolitan magazine.

During this period the wealthy but unorganized wheat ranchers were fighting desperately against the big financial interests which were running the hydraulic mines.

The mining operation was carried on by the use of huge monitors which threw powerful streams of water against the mountainsides. The dirt and gravel which was thus washed out poured down over the valley ruining thousands of acres of valuable wheat lands.

In the picture, George Brent, playing the part of a young miner from the east, arrives right at the height of this dramatic feud. The whole state is divided into two factions and bloodshed is the rule of the day.

"Gold Is Where You Find It" is a vivid portrayal of this dramatic story from history.

"Robin Hood"

Robin Hood! How strange the fascination, how thrilling the sound of these two words—the legendary name of a hunted outlaw—beloved by thousands of Englishmen.

Well may it thrill, for "The Adventures of Robin Hood," a Warner Bros. film in Technicolor, starring Errol Flynn is coming to the Capitol Theatre.

Rich in lore is the story of how a Saxon noble, Sir Robin of Locksley, the ablest archer in all England, gathered a band of stalwarts around him to harass the cruel Norman knights. How the outlawed Robin Hood plundered the rich and fed the poor has been sung and resung in ballads and has come down through the centuries—an incomparably fascinating story.

With this wealth of material did two Warner Bros. writers sit down to fashion the script, the picturization of which is due to reach the Capitol screen soon.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

M. Callaghan's Punt Wins Dual Sailing Honors of Belleville Yacht Club

After You 3rd Wrests Club Championship From Smith's Joka

TROPHIES PRESENTED

Annual Distribution of Cups And Trophies Takes Place

Dual aquatic honors went to Maurice Callaghan when his "After You 3rd" won the class "A" honors and the club championship while his After You 2nd won the 'B' class title of the Belleville Yacht Club for the season of 1938. The annual distribution of cups and trophies of the Belleville Yacht Club was made in the club house last evening, when the members and sailors met to honor the season's champions.

Before the presentation of prizes President Maurice Callaghan spoke to the meeting presenting the history of the club. "Our club was instituted on January 12th 1933. Since that time our club and its sailing members, have spent in excess of $5,000.00 in this city, including the boat owners expenditures on rigging and sailing equipment. We took over our present club site and improved it considerably. We are the only club of its kind in Belleville owned solely by the club members and have lowered our initial expenditures over $1,000.00 during the past year," revealed President Callaghan, who has guided the destinies of the club as president for the past six years.

"I hope" continued President Callaghan, "we can clear this club of all indebtedness and with due ceremony burn the mortgage papers before our 1939 sailing season opens." Owing to the fact the 1938 treasurer's report had not been audited, however, the annual election of officers had to be postponed until the evening when the candidates seeking election for civic honors have been invited to appear at the Belleville Yacht Club next month. In the meantime, however, Mr. M. P. Duff and Mr. Harold Armstrong, who were present last night agreed, to audit the club's books.

Takes Exception to Letter

During the meeting, however, President Callaghan took exception to a letter, which appeared in the local press and signed by "A Taxpayer," relative to donations or sanctions by the city council to the Belleville Yacht Club. "Gentlemen, we are paying our current taxes and when they are paid up I, as one, intend to approach the city council and seek the deed to the property upon which this club house is erected. Our club has erected a dock in front of our club house and generally improved the Belleville waterfront therefore I feel we should be given the deed to this piece of property, as we are paying the yearly taxes in full," added President Callaghan.

The result of the distribution of prizes for the year 1938 by the Belleville Yacht Club resulted as follows:

"A" class and club championship: After You 3rd (M. Callaghan); Runner up Joka (F. Smith).

"B" Class: After You 2nd (Skipper Bill Nicholson); Runner up, Dorothy (J. Rushlow).

Mikel Trophy: (Centennial) After You 3rd.

Payne Trophy: (Challenge) After You 3rd.

Wm. "King" Rogers Trophy: Alaska (H. Semark).

Picton Trophy "A" Class: Alaska (H. Semark).

Picton Trophy "B" Class: After You 2nd (Skipper W. Nicholson).

It was announced during the evening that a fine silver trophy had been procured for the dinghy class for 1939, when that class of sailing will be fostered.

NEW CHAMP

In a fight that drew as many laughs as it did cheers, Joey Archibald, ABOVE, who calls Pawtucket, Rhode Island, home, won the world's featherweight championship by gaining a 15-round decision over Mike Belloise, of New York. The New York Athletic Commission staged the bout to establish a champion in that division to succeed Henry Armstrong who relinquished the crown to concentrate on his other two titles.

HARVEY JACKSON IS LOSING WEIGHT

Leafs' Left-Winger Must Make 192 Before Signing Contract

(By Allan Nickleson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

That's just what Manager Conny Smythe wants him to do. Smythe has asked Jackson to let down to 192 pounds and when the Busher reaches that mark he'll start talking contract with the boss of the National Hockey League's 1937-38 champions. Jackson says he will have no trouble getting rid of his excess poundage.

The big left winger has lost four pounds since the Leafs officially opened training here Tuesday. After a hard practice he weighed in last night at 198 pounds.

Though only about 10 of a combined squad of 32 Leafs and Syracuse Stars, Toronto's International-American League farm team, have signed contracts, team officials anticipate no difficulty in the matter of signing. One or two of the seven amateurs in camp may be offered contracts.

Of the amateurs, Don Metz, with Toronto Goodyear seniors last season and 19-year-old Walter Stanowski, ace of the 1937-38 Dominion junior champions, St. Boniface Seals, have shown to most advantage in training camp practices.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 20 (AP)—Marquette hasn't got a football captain, but it has no less than 20 high school captains on its Varsity squad....A fellow named Pat Boylan writes from Minneapolis that when the Gophers kicked goal and seven-to-sixed Michigan, a well-known headache tablet was retailing at 50 cents a single—and you can believe that or not.... Lou Smith who usually knows what he is talking about, writes in the Cincinnati Enquirer that Joe Medwick is almost a "sure shot" to wear a Red unform next season .... Mike Jacobs is due back from the coast Friday with an important announcement relative to a Joe Louis-Max Baer bout in San Francisco in the spring.

Apparently running doesn't run in the San Romani family.... Archie who used to do his stuff on the track for Emporia (Kas.) teachers, has a brother, Egideo, who plays a cornet and mends watches, also at Emporia.... He is not a track squad candidate and students out there wish he could run more and tinker less....If Frankie Frisch catches on with the Giants don't be surprised....That's what New York papers are saying.

On sitting down to rest at halftime, Jack Dorflinger, South Carolina tackle, landed on a burr.... And in the next period he drove right through to a touchdown .... Elmer Hackney, Kansas State's fine fullback, is so jittery they won't let him start a game....Les Bruckner of Michigan State is a fair weather football player—and admits it.....In his six years of football he has yet to play on a rainy day.

DIMAGGIO THROUGH BEING HOLDOUT KID

San Francisco, Oct. 20 (AP)—Joe DiMaggio, one of Colonel Jake Ruppert's wayward Yankees at the start of the 1938 season, confided in the home folks today—"I'm through being the holdout kid."

Back in San Francisco at picturesque fishermen's wharf, Joe talked with the humble fishermen who were his companions before he deserted the nets for baseball and who are among his greatest boosters.

"Yeh," said Joe, "that's right. I'm through being the holdout kid. I expect to be among the first in camp next spring and I'm gonna get myself in shape so that I can't miss having a good season." Some believe Joe already knows what Col. Ruppert will pay him next season. He got $40,000 this season.

'BISCUIT-ADMIRAL' RACE RUN NOV. 1

Baltimore, Oct. 20 (AP)— The Maryland Jockey Club, composed of gentlemanly devotees of horse racing, is gently and dignifiedly ballyhooing an event that has a good portion of the racing world agog—The Seabiscuit-War Admiral duel at Pimlico Nov. 1.

Anuthor of the latest plug for the $15,000 contest between two of turfdom's greatest present-day thoroughbreds is David Woods, able publicity director for the jockey club.

Woods printed an informative "press brochure" of facts and figures about the 1 3-16 mile 'Biscuit-Admiral race, to be known as "the Pimlico special."

From it for instance, one learns that Seabiscuit, owned by C. S. Howard, has started 83 races, won 31 and earned $331,405. War Admiral owned by Samuel Riddle, has started 23 times, won 18 times and earned $262,050.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

Nobody laughs any more when Major Frederic McLaughlin sits down at his piano. The tune is still the same: "It looks like a great season." But the Major's Chicago Black Hawks have fooled the rest of the National Hockey League once too often to raise anything but a wry smile today.

The Black Hawks won the Stanley Cup in 1934 by defeating Detroit's league champions and they came out of third place in the United States Division to capture the trophy again last spring. So when their owner beamed over the club in practice yesterday at Champaign, Ill., and said he was pleased with the scoring punch shown, no one got up to say the Hawks would be lucky to live through the season.

Defencemen have been named to Captain Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers. Ebbie Goodfellow succeeds Doug Young as ice leader of the Wings and Art Coulter was re-elected by the Rangers. Coulter is only the second captain the Blueshirts have had, for Bill Cook held the position for 10 years until big Art was chosen last season.

Coulter leads the Patrick pack into action tonight at Winnipeg against New York Americans in the fall's first exhibition. The fans will be looking for attacking action but the managers' eyes will be on the defencemen. Lester Patrick will be trying to choose a rear guardsman from between his son Murray and Lary Molyneaux, while Red Dutton of the spangled club wants to know if his rookie defencemen Wilf Field and Pat Egan, will stand up under fire.

Field, from Seattle's Pacific coast league club, and Egan, from Nelson, B.C., signed before the Americans left camp at Saskatoon. Dutton likely will stand pat on the rest of last winter's lineup unless Joe Benoit doesn't take a European tour with the Allan Cup champions from Trail, B.C. Benoit says he's going abroad if the Smoke Eaters do; otherwise he likely will turn pro.

Pit Lepine, former star with Montreal Canadiens who will coach their New Haven farm club is itching to know what players the Canadiens will let him have. But manager Cecil Hart will not announce the Habitants' lineup until next week—the job of sifting the wheat from the chaff is that tough.

Toronto Maple Leafs are at it hammer-and-tongs in their first week of ice drills at Galt, Ont. Yesterday young Jack Fox and Murph Chamberlain swung sticks at one another but made up afterwards. Ken McAdam, McMaster University student who has been drilling with the Leafs as a preparation for future years, went back to school with two stitches over his left eye after the workout.

Don Deacon, former Regina boy who was with Detroit's Pittsburgh farm last season, will be with the Red Wings in the big league this year because of a bicycle. Deacon always has been overweight at the beginning of the season. So manager Jack Adams sent him a bike this year and told him to take off weight. Deacon rode it and came into camp in first-class shape. Adams announced last night Deacon had made the grade.

KINGSTON TRIM TRENTON FLYERS

Kingston, Oct. 20—Kingston Garrison kept on even terms with Cobourg for the leadership of the Eastern Ontario intermediate O.R.F.U. group here Wednesday afternoon with a 13 to 7 victory over Trenton R.C.A.F.

Playing in a heavy rain during the last half the Kingston soldiers made the most of their weight to break up a Trenton kick, block a punt and get in position for a major score, Nig Gray plunging for the touch. The first half produced close hard football with the Fliers getting a lead when Winch intercepted a Garrison forward pass and raced for a touchdown which Ullyot converted. The Kingston soldiers evened the count when Hayes made a spectacular catch and ran back a Trenton punt and Armishaw plunged over for a try which Elliott converted.

Kingston had a big advantage in weight and also got better booting from Nig Gray. Trenton tackled exceptionally well and forced the green-shirted Garrison collection to the limit. Nig Gray, Armishaw, Coach Bob Elliott, Smith and Boon played well for the Garrison, with Winch, Drake and Wilkie the best to the Fliers.

Kingston Garrison—Flying Wing, Grant; backs, Gray, Boon and Dunne; quarter, McCallum; snap, Wright; insides, Cole and Spooner; middles Jenkins and Bond; outsides, Hayes, Young; subs., Bulger, Vivian, Robinson, Elliott Sanderson Huston, Petrie, Smith, Agnew, Armishaw.

Trenton R.C.A.F.—Flying wing, Drake; backs, Ripley, Winch and Brown; quarter, Wilkie; snap, Luftus; insides, James, Slemon; middles, Cessford, Trepanier; outsides, Davidson, Semple; subs., Zyzenierski, Golding, Web, Delmott, Staples, Allan, Williams Gauthier, Ullyot, Daignault.

Officials—Dr. Harry Batstone and Doug Waugh.

As Hamilton Tigers strive to regain some of the glory that was theirs not so many years ago, they go about the task with a team made up mostly of younger players. So far they have looked much better than was expected and stand to improve as the Big Four season progresses. Two important members of Coach Jerry Brock's set-up are Norton Freeman, LEFT, and George Mountain, RIGHT. Freeman plays in the backfield and handles the major part of the kicking duties. Mountain, captain of the squad, plays at inside wing.

Today's story children pertains to that old chestnut—baseball importations," a subject which invariably when brought up results in differences of opinion and ultimately terminates in arguments pro and con. But back to the original topic—in this year of nineteen hundred and thirty-eight Peterboro with no less than at least six imported baseball celebrities again failed to cop a provincial baseball pennant while Belleville, in years past, nailed seven C.O.B.L. flags and two provincial titles to the masthead with less imports than Peterboro had this year, which should prove local diamond talent is better than the average run of importations.

When the Petes' baseball ship floundered on the senior O.B.A. seas at Hamilton last Saturday the club boasted of three imported hurlers, Joe Jakafby, Eddie Whitehill and Frank McNally, two imported infielders, Eddie Murphy and Bobbie Doll and at least one importation in the outer garden, Charles Kearns, former Toronto ball hawk. When the old Belleville Grand Trunks won their first provincial ball title back in 1919, every regular on the squad was a native son, Freddie Goyer and Harry Whalen pitchers, Peeney Mills catcher, Walt Gerow, Jim Smith, Vern Smith and Joe Kelleher infielders, Sammy Symons, Wicky Ross and Al Morden in the outfield.

Again in 1928 Belleville pinned another senior O.B.A. flag to its baseball post without the services of too many imports. "Hoot" Gibson who came to Belleville not to play baseball but to work in the C.N.R. shops and learn a mechanic's trade. Gibson never pitched before he came to Belleville and commenced his baseball career as a third baseman. Peeney was again on the receiving end with Harry Mills at first, Vern Weir second, Bob Scott third and Dr. Harry Blakely shortstop. Stan Hagerman, Wicky Ross and Sonny Green in the field. Harry Blakely was born a few miles north of Belleville, while Bob Scott came here to play hockey originally, so again we find the absence of imports to prove the folly of the same. When Kingston won their lone provincial flag they only had one import, Bud Clancy, but Clancy was about all, that was needed that season to win.

From this corner it has always been a mystery just why Peterboro baseball clubs fail to play air-tight ball behind Russ Kitchen, who has been forced to pitch and win the majority of his own games, with little assistance from his team mates, for these many years back. Kitchen is as good an average hurler as ever stepped on a C.O.B.L. mound, but like the poet—was always without honor in his native haunts.

Of course as the baseball picture is seen locally today, multiple imports would be needed in Belleville if a senior club is to be fielded in the near future, but perhaps the better plan would be to manufacture our own material with a four teamed junior city lyeague next season. Just while we are on summer sports it might be well to mention the fact that softball is looking for a big season in the year 1939.

For the first time in many moons "Duke" Smith's Joka failed to sail off with the major honors of the Belleville Yacht Club, Maurice Callaghan's After You 3rd winning the "A" class and club title for 1938. Incidentally Callaghan's After You 2nd, skippered by Bill Nicholson, won the "B" class for good measure. Last evening the annual distribution of cups and trophies won by the Yacht Club puntsters, was held at the sailing club house, but unfortunately the annual election of officers had to be postponed through an oversight.

President Callaghan gave a brief outline of the club's history and its uphill battle to the successful position it today holds in the city. It was with pride Prexy Callaghan announced that over $1,000.00 indebtedness had been paid off this year. "And I hope we can burn the mortgage before next season opens", predicted Mr. Callaghan, who is completing six years of yeoman service as president this term. He also stressed the fact that the Belleville Yacht Club was the only sporting club in the city to be built and owned solely by the club members, another fine tribute to the entire club.

Bob Elliott's Kingston Garrison gridders moved into first place in the district football loop by virtue of a 13 to 7 victory over the R.C.A.F. "Flyers yesterday at Richardson Stadium. In order to keep pace with the sturdy "army" team, however, Fred Dufton's Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" must win over the Panthers here on Saturday. Frankly speaking we feel the white-clad "Ghosts" are not only the class of this loop but potential provincial champions and the lovers of the fall classic are urged to take in Saturday's tilt, when they will get a squint at a classy rugby squad. The Cobourg squad play that rapid-passing razzle-dazzle style of football, which is always appealing to the patrons. In the meantime Coach Archie Duffield is mustering his strongest lineup in order to give the "Galloping Ghosts" their hardest tussle of the current football campaign.

Coach Teddy Graham, of the Owen Sound Greys, has opened a school for junior pucksters in Owen Sound's new 75,000.00 artificial ice arena. It is said that Owen Sound openly advertised for junior ice hockey material recently, but responses were not as numerous as hoped for, thus the proposed "hockey school" under the direction of Teddy Graham. Many N.H.L. clubs have signified their intentions of assisting Graham in the project, the Rangers, Red Wings, Maple Leafs and Amerks will co-operate with players to assist. Apparently Owen Sound is out to regain her lost junior hockey laurels and doubtless we will see the day dawn when the name of the Owen Sound Greys will again flash across the headlines around Memorial Cup time.

'Easy as A. B. C.'

By HELEN BENNER

Jim Wells, from the kitchen, called to his wife, who was entertaining the school teacher and the minister's wife in the front room:

"I'm goin' down ter the store fer a leetle spell, Rissie!"

"Land, Jim," Rissie snorted, "run along!" Turning to her guests, she exclaimed: "Jest as if he hadn't been goin' ter the store reg'ler three nights a week for the last 20 years."

Jim muttered, "Thought I'd tell yer," and sat down in the kitchen to pull on his rubbers. He could hear Rissie (who thought that he had gone) still talking.

"I can read Jim jest like an open book. My birthday's next week, and I can tell yer right now what he's goin' ter give me! One of the 'lectric lamps Dave Hall's got in his store! With a blue shade. I seen him fingerin' the fringe whenever I've been in the store with him, an' he's asked all manner o' pointed questions. He's as simple ter read as ABC!"

Jim slipped quietly out, muttering to himself. In the road he stopped a moment, then laughed and hurried on.

On his wife's birthday, Jim went down to the lower end of the village to work. When he reached home, Rissie commanded him: "Wash up good and proper! Mis' Dennett and Miss Wendell are comin' over fer my birthday supper."

Jim's eyes twinkled. "'Sgood," he muttered and disappeared into the bedroom.

When he heard Rissie at the door admitting her guests, he slipped out and tucked a large box under the table just beside her chair.

When they came to the table, Rissie, with well-feigned surprise, picked up the two packages which she found at her place. Admiring and exclaiming, she opened them, while the donors simpered in embarrassment.

"A tattin' dolley an' an embroidered towel! Ain't they jest handsome Jim? Land, I can't thank you ladies enough!"

Rissie looked a little questioningly at Jim, who made no sign, and they sat down. Rissie felt the box beside her, jumped up, and pulled it out.

"I declare!" she exclaimed. "Is this a present from you, Jim?"

Jim nodded.

Rissie exchanged a knowing glance with her guests. With shaky fingers she tore off the papers and opened the carton. While the other two women stood with bated breath, she reached in, made a startled movement of her hand, and drew out a plain glass candle-holder and a long, ugly, over-decorated yellow candle! The two women looked at Jim and then back at Rissie's flushing face.

"How—how lovely!" they gasped, at last.

"Jest about fit your parlor mantel, won't they, Rissie?" Jim piped. Rissie groped despairingly in the carton and drew out the other candlestick.

"A pair!" said Mrs. Dennett, trying to be tactful. "Two always look so nice, one on each end."

When the meal was finished Rissie announced: "I'm goin' ter make you folks right ter home now. It's colder in the front room, so we'll stay right here in the sittin'-room."

Jim drew his rocker up to the stove and sat down with his feet on the hearth.

"It's Wednesday night. Ain't you goin' down ter the store, Jim?" Rissie asked.

"Nope!" Jim answered. "Guess I'll stay ter home."

"What's got inter yer!" Rissie exclaimed.

Conversation lagged. Rissie fidgeted. At last she jumped up.

"I declare! I b'lieve it's nicer in the front room, after all."

Her guests followed her, and shivered involuntarily as they passed out of the warmer room. They made an effort to be cheerful but the creaking of Jim's chair startled them, and the front room grew colder. It was early when they prepared to leave, and Rissie hardly urged them to stay. There was a tone of pity and condescension in their good-night to Rissie.

Rissie came back from the door and dropped into a chair. Jim smiling and bearing a large box, came from the bedroom.

"I've got another present fer yer, Rissie," he offered.

"One's enough!" she snapped.

"It's—it's somethin' you'll like."

He drew out a lamp with a soft rose-and-blue shade.

"It's somethin' like what Dave had at the store," he went on "but it's nicer. I sent ter town, I knowed you wouldn't want Mis' Dennett ter see it. She'd be makin' half a dozen jest like it by tomorrer."

Rissie turned. As she gazed at the lamp, her eyes softened with delight.

Jim chuckled wickedly. "I can read you jest like a book, easy as ABC!"

Rissie gave a little sigh of defeat and reached a caressing hand toward the silky shade.

VAGRANCY CHARGE AGAINST TWO MEN

Thos. Matthews And Harry Mattis Arrested Early Today

The old adage of "in the bag" figuratively resulted in two Belleville men being in the toils of the law today.

Seen carrying a bag between them, Thomas Matthews and Harry Mattis, Belleville, were apprehended, by police on McDonald Ave., early today. Investigations revealed the bag contained a large 30-pound live gobbler turkey and a dead turkey hen.

When questioned by police the men refused to make comment and were subsequently remanded to the custody of the county jail on nominal charges of vagrancy after being arraigned before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace at the police station.

Early today local police received information that two men were acting suspiciously near the Belleville Golf course while carrying a large bag between them. Provincial Police were notified and later Matthews and Mattis were apprehended after being surrounded by the police. Sergeant Harman and Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard approached them from the west, while Constables W. E. Smith and Wm. McBrien, Provincial Police, closed in from the opposite direction to choke off alleys of escape.

Police later announced following investigations that two turkeys, the property of Col. W. N. Ponton, Trent Road, were reported to have been stolen. The live turkey gobbler found by police was today returned to Mr. Ponton.

Police later admitted that Matthews and Mattis denied stealing the birds, but refused further comment. They were remanded until the next sittings of police court.

BLACK SQUIRRELS SHOW INGENUITY IN STEALING APPLES

The strange disappearance of apples from the window sill of a George Street home has been solved.

For some time the housewife has been amusing herself by placing a row of apples on the sill of the window, only to have them disappear in most mysterious fashion in spite of careful watch. Yesterday the thief was discovered—a husky black squirrel which with the utmost stealth and squirrel cunning has been rolling the apples from the sill to the ground, then working them over the lawn to some quiet place where a daily meal has been enjoyed.

"That little animal used almost human ingenuity in making off with those apples. He must have watched every day to see that no one was around when he took them," declared the amused resident.

The common procedure of the squirrel has been to mount the sill, then push the apples one by one to the ground, it was discovered. At times he is believed to have an accomplice in the thefts to carry them away.

Now, the diet has been varied for the squirrel. As well as apples, the housewife has provided a meal of hickory nuts daily, but the little animals are entirely welcome to the handout, it was stated.

Personal Appeal By Chamberlain To Hitler Expected

LONDON, Oct. 20.—(CP)—Havas News Agency said it was reported in government circles that before Prime Minister Chamberlain throws Great Britain's armaments machinery into high gear he will make a personal appeal to Chancellor Hitler for an Arms Limitation Agreement.

In this connection, Havas noted, Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Germany, left Berlin Tuesday night for London to spend about a week here.

The News Agency added that if Mr. Chamberlain takes the initiative toward limitation talks with Hitler, his plea will probably concern land as well as air armaments; past experience has indicated only qualitative limitation of land armaments can be hoped for.

It is taken for granted in London, said Havas, that France and the United States would support any move toward a halt in the arms race. Only last night United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, in an address to the Navy League, spoke in favor of limitation.

To Alter Children's Shelter Building Into Nurses' Home

Building permit has been granted by the local office of the building inspector and work has already been commenced by the Dickie Construction Company of Toronto on additions and alterations to the former Children's Shelter building on East Dundas Street near the Belleville General Hospital to convert it into a nurses' home. Estimated cost of the work of conversion is reported at $14,000. It is expected that about three months' work will be required to fit the building for occupancy. The new building will provide accommodation for thirty-five nurses, and will be completely modern throughout.

CO - ORDINATION IN DEFENCE PLAN

Toronto, Oct. 20.—(CP)— Lieut. Col. A. M. Thomas, former officer commanding the Toronto Scottish regiment and representative of the non-permanent force on the Canadian Defence Council, said in an interview today co-operative defence arrangements between Canada and the United States would be discussed in November at the annual convention in Ottawa of the Canadian Defence Association.

"It is fundamental that these two great nations, side by side without defences either on the Canadian or United States side of the boundary, must co-operate in any scheme which might embrace the defence of the North American continent," he said.

Police Blotter

When the automobile which he was driving went out of control and crashed into a telephone pole on wet pavement of Highway No. 14, fifteen miles south of Belleville last evening, W. J. Hall, 278 Front St., narrowly escaped serious injury when the motor car was badly damaged and the pole broken off at the base. It was raining at the time. Mr. Hall failed to negotiate the curve and went into the ditch to strike the pole, Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine reported after investigation. Mr. Hall miraculously escaped serious injury.

Held on suspicion when he could not give a good account of his actions, a transient who gave his name as Maurice Powell, alias Harry Richards, Cornwall, was apprehended on Dundas St. late last night by Sergeant Arthur Booth and Constables W. T. Evans.

The police observed Powell's actions for some considerable time before placing him under arrest on a nominal charge of vagrancy. A flashlight was found in his possession.

LEAKAGES WORRY DEFENCE DEP'T

Efforts Made To Find Out Those Responsible For Disclosures

Ottawa, Oct. 20 (CP)—Leakage of information relating to Canadian defence matters is worrying National Defence Department officials. Reports, however, a board of inquiry would be set up to probe the source of such leakage were denied today.

For some considerable time items considered of a highly confidential character have found their way into public circulation, both in the newspapers and in common gossip. The wall of secrecy the department has striven to erect around some of its decisions and activities has been of little value.

Departmental regulations with regard to the issue of information are strict. The steady and consistent violation of these is causing the authorities considerable concern. Efforts are now being made to jack up the department with a view to ascertaining and disciplining those responsible for the disclosures.

TO BE EXAMINED ON OBJECTIONS

William Sidley Served With Notice To Appear For Examination

Racine, Wis., Oct. 20.—(AP) — William Horlick Sidley, 26, said last night he had been served by a Deputy Sheriff with a notice to appear before a Racine Court Commissioner Monday for an adverse examination in connection with objections he has filed against the will of his mother, Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, late Malted Milk heiress.

Mrs. Sidley died July 6 in Toronto at the home of W. Perkins Bull, barrister and financier. Her will, disposing of an estate estimated at $4,000,000 left equal bequests of $250,000 and one-third shares in her residuary estate to Bull and to her son.

Questioned on Objections

Sidley, one of the executors of the will, said he believed that under Wisconsin law the other four executors who are seeking to have the will probated would be entitled to question him Monday once on each of his objections that: his mother was of unsound mind at the time the will was drawn, and that she was unduly influenced; that her signature was obtained by the exercise of fraud and duress, and that the will was not executed in a manner provided by law.

The will fight is scheduled to begin in court here November 28.

Two in Racine

The Milwaukee (Wis.) Sentinel said it learned Michael Bull, eldest son of the Canadian barrister, and Richard Casson, Bull's secretary, had been in Racine and had left last night for Chicago with Bernard F. Magruder, one of the executors of Mrs. Sidley's will.

At Toronto late yesterday Attorney General Conant of Ontario said he intended to introduce amendments to the Coroners' Act at the next legislative session to overcome technical legal points which halted a Coroner's inquest there into Mrs. Sidley's death.

Three South African Cheese Factories To Exhibit Cheese Here

By airmail this morning in an envelope marked "By Pos Vroeg, Virvroe Aflewerin, South Africa" a communication was received at the local office of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association advising that the Fort Montgomery Cheese Factory of King Williamstown, South Africa, would consign at least eighty pounds of cheese of this factory's make to Belleville for the British Empire Cheese Exhibition which is to be held in this city, November 28-29-30. Today's letter was the third received from South Africa advising that cheese would be sent from there for the local exhibit at which cheese from possessions throughout the Empire will be on show. The two other factories are the Jack Moxam Co-operative Industries, Ltd., Presfontein, Kokstaad and the Co-operative Varies, Ltd. of Cedarville, South Africa.

'DID NOT COME TO BE INSULTED'

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 20 (CP)—Major General L. R. LaFleche, Deputy Minister of National Defence, said today he did not propose to be insulted by Lieut.-Col. George Drew, author of the article in Maclean's Magazine which gave rise to the Bren gun inquiry.

"I did not come here to be insulted," said Gen. LaFleche. "I may have to be insulted but I do not propose to take insults from you."

The general had just offered to produce another cost-plus contract similar to the one under which the John Inglis Company is to make 7,000 Bren light machine guns for the National Defence Department after Col. Drew asked whether there were others and challenged him to bring one.

Hon. J. L. Ralston, government counsel, said another contract might be produced if the name of the company involved were struck out.

Assurance Asked For.

"I will accept it," said Col. Drew, "if Col. Ralston gives me his assurance it is a true copy of a genuine contract."

"My word should be sufficient," declared General LaFleche heatedly as he protested against insults.

"Oh, I accept your word without question," said Mr. Justice H. H. Davis, Royal Commissioner conducting the inquiry.

"Thank you for your confidence," said General LaFleche.

Production of Ontario Company office records of the John Inglis Company and its associate companies, Industrial Reserves and Anglo-Canadian Engineers of Toronto, was requested by Col. Drew.

FARMER BURNED ON FACE AND HANDS AS TORCH EXPLODES

Burned about the face and hands when the acetylene torch he was using yesterday exploded, J. Purdy, R. R. 4 Belleville, was treated at the Belleville General Hospital for his injuries. Mr. Purdy had been engaged in some repair work on his farm when in some unexplained manner the torch exploded. Dr. R. S. Gibson attended the injured man, later allowing him to return home. His injuries were not reported as serious.

NEWS ODDITIES AND BRIEFS

DEADLY GUN INVENTED TO BRING DOWN PLANES

Detroit, Oct. 21 (CP)—The United States is developing an electric anti-aircraft gun that will shoot down raiding airplanes as readily as a good hunter kills a duck, George M. Miller, engineer, disclosed today at the convention here of the iron and steel division of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

The gun would shoot 6,000 feet a second and pour out an endless stream of bullets, eliminating any difficulty in allowing for the airplane's speed. The gun's inventor is Dr. F. Northup, formerly of Princeton University.

FRONT PORCH DANGEROUS PLACE FOR SMITH

Galt, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—Lloyd Smith wondered what visitor could make all that noise on the front porch but it was just a truck paying an informal call. Lionel Aikin, the truck driver, applied his brakes to avoid hitting a car and his truck skidded on to the porch. Smith wasn't too surprised. A similar accident occurred there a few years ago.

GOOD HUNTING!

Ionia, Mich., Oct. 21 (CP) — Gordon Town and Fred McVeigh, Michigan reformatory employees, found hunting good the other day. They bagged two pheasants, two rabbits and then caught Leroy Bell, 30, fugitive from Michigan State hospital. They won a $25 reward for Bell's return.

INDIAN TREATED WHITE WOMEN WITHOUT M.D. LICENCE

Montreal, Oct. 21 (CP)—Chief Dominique, Indian medicine man, pleaded not guilty yesterday to a charge of illegal practice. He was accused of having treated two white women for back and stomach ache and liver and kidney ailments without a licence from the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Why the Weather?

Weather and corn! In the midwest is the green corn belt. Nowhere else in the world is there so large a stretch of land so fertile and yielding such abundant crops. This land also has the most reliable weather for corn to be found anywhere. But even there the crop is endangered by droughts, floods, hot winds, and other adverse weather conditions which either reduce the yield or destroy the crop. But with all the vicissitudes of the weather, this region averages in a favorable season thirty to forty bushels of corn to the acre, and produces about one-third of the world's supply, and in addition other crops. It is said that this land produces more food per square mile than any other large region anywhere.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 21 (CP)—Pressure is high over British Columbia and the Rocky Mountain States, also to the northwest of Hudson Bay, while a fairly deep disturbance, which developed over the middle Atlantic States last night has moved northeastward to the Maritime Provinces and a moderate depression is centred just west of Lake Superior. The weather continues fair in the Western Provinces and it was warm yesterday in nearly all districts, while from the region of the Great Lakes eastward it has been comparatively cool with light scattered showers in Ontario and Quebec and moderate to heavy rains in the Maritimes.

Lake Superior — Fresh northeast winds; cloudy and cool with scattered showers over south portion. Saturday, north to northwest winds, partly cloudy and cool.

UTTER CONFUSION AS JAP TROOPS ENTER CANTON

Parts of City Left Burning As Chinese Dynamited Buildings

Hong Kong, Oct. 21 (AP)—Japanese troops this afternoon entered Canton, South China metropolis and objective of a fast overland offensive that started more than 100 miles away on Oct. 12.

An official source reported that "utter confusion" reigned in Canton, vital supply centre for Chinese troops in central China as the invaders pierced the city's first defences.

Government officials fled to Yungyun, 92 miles north of Canton.

The Chinese dynamited a cement plant, a power plant and other major utilities before the Japanese entrance, according to the defenders' "scorched earth" policy of leaving nothing behind for the invaders' use.

Tried To Dig Trenches.

As the invaders approached, the Cantonese had furiously tried to dig trenches and make machine-gun emplacements at strategic centres, while hundreds of thousands of inhabitants fled in all directions, leaving a small fraction of the population behind.

A Japanese spokesman said aerial observation showed the Chinese were retreating in a long line north of Canton.

(Reuters News Agency reported from Shanghai that General Chiang Kai-Shek, according to reliable reports, was preparing to leave Hankow, the other main Japanese objective about 550 miles north of Canton and Chiang's provisional capital. A large part of the Hankow population had fled as the Japanese advanced to within 35 miles of Hankow.)

One House In Ten Tenanted.

In Canton, only one house in ten was found tenanted. Most shops were closed. Streets were empty. Roads from the city were crowded by a strange procession of carts, bicycles, jinrikishas, and trucks piled high with refugees' belongings.

Japanese tanks were said here to have penetrated Canton past the Canton hospital to a point opposite Shameen.

Official reports said parts of Canton were burning as the result of the dynamiting of factories by the fleeing officials.

The Japanese unit which entered the city encountered little resistance in the ten days' fighting overland from Bias Bay. The Japanese said they lost only 40 killed and 100 wounded at Waichow, where the heaviest fighting occurred, while the Chinese casualties were estimated at 1,400 at Waichow.

CONSTABLES DO HAVE TROUBLES OF THEIR OWN

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—Booking a deaf mute was a tougher ob than Constable Joseph [illegible]ylor expected. He got an interpreter who knew the sign language when the transient wanted a free bed. The interpreter was in a spot too. The transit knew only French.

ARMORED CAR USED TO STAVE OFF ARAB ATTACKS

Marked by Arab bullets, is this armored car used by five Jewish policemen to hold off for one hour the attack of 80 Arab tribesmen, on a Jewish colony in Palestine. Order has been restored in Jerusalem where British forces have put down Arab terrorists.

MAKE GT. BRITAIN IMPREGNABLE TO AERIAL ATTACKS

Stated He Believed Hitler's Peace Pledge Given At Munich

SOME DEFICIENCIES

Clacton-on-Sea, England, Oct. 21 —(CP)—Great Britain's answer to German critics of her war preparedness program made "in a way that should carry conviction" was given last night by Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary.

He declared "I must be prepared for some successor who may not hold his (Reichsfuehrer Hitler's) views," as he appealed for Anglo-German co-operation but reaffirmed Britain's determination to speed its rearmament to make the United Kingdom impregnable against a knockout blow from the air.

Sir Samuel, member of the "Inner Cabinet" which advised Prime Minister Chamberlain on the pre-Munich crisis over Czechoslovakia and, as Home Secretary, director of air raid precautions, said measures to tighten up such defence would be announced shortly.

Believed Hitler Pledge

He said he believed Hitler's peace pledge just as Hitler said he believed those of Mr. Chamberlain and Premier Daladier of France.

"But, like Hitler, I must be prepared for some successor who may not hold his views."

Sir Samuel borrowed what he said was Hitler's own motto to express British policy of being "always willing for peace and at any hour ready for defence." He said it was in the interests of peace that "I attach such vital importance to the need for national strength."

He said Hitler's past actions "inevitably give us cause for anxiety" but added he was sure now that friendly relations with Britain constituted a cardinal point of Hitler's policy.

Vast Upheaval in Europe Seen as Sequel to Munich Pact

Correspondent Says French And British Influence Weakened

PILSUDSKI'S FORESIGHT

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Warsaw, Oct. 21 (AP)—The political set-up of central and southeastern Europe has been changed overnight to the advantage of Germany by the decisions of the four-power Munich conference which finished slicing Czechoslovakia up like a birthday cake and gave Chancellor Hitler the pieces with the plums in them.

You really have to be on the ground in this part of the world and travel from the north down into the Balkans to realize the magnitude of the upheaval.

Those attending the Munich conference undoubtedly realized that French and British influence in this section would suffer through the offering of Czechoslovakia as a sacrifice on the altar of peace. I was there and I heard that opinion in conference circles. Probably not even the most pessimistic, however, visualized the extent and avalanche speed of the change.

Go where you will and approach whom you will among those qualified to speak and you will get the same blunt story

Influence Transferred to Hitler.

The vast influence which was exercised by France has been transferred to Hitler's knapsack like the proverbial marshal's baton; and he has marched off with it to estabish economic and political domination over central Europe and the Balkans if he can.

CLAIMS DEFENCE FORCES NEGLECTED

No Government To Blame, Says Col. Ian Mackenzie On Stand At Probe

Ottawa, Oct. 21.— (CP)— The Canadian Defence forces have been "crucified by neglect for several years but no government in particular is to blame," Defence Minister MacKenzie told the Bren Gun inquiry yesterday.

He said the adoption of the Bren gun for the Canadian forces was decided upon in connection with general re-organization.

There was a sharp difference of opinion as to the merits of government and private manufacture of armaments among officers of the National Defence Department, Mr. MacKenzie said.

The Minister, who continues his testimony today, said Major General E. C. Ashton, chief of the General Staff, headed the Government Ownership School of Thought and Major General L. R. LaFleche, Deputy Minister headed the other school. He had the utmost respect for both officers.

Estimate of Cost

In coming to a decision, however, he had to obtain an estimate on the cost of equipping a government factory for the production of machine guns and other small arms as well as the other equipment and supplies which were required and found it would be upwards of $35,000,000.

With the total defence department estimates amounting only to about $34,000,000 to $35,000,000 a year there appeared little prospect of obtaining enough money to embark on manufacturing establishments.

Events Described

The Minister was examined by Hon. J. L. Ralston, Chief Commission Council, on events leading up to the award of a contract to the John Inglis Company of Toronto for production of 7,000 Bren light machine guns. Criticism of this contract in an article by Lieut. Col. George Drew in Maclean's magazine led to the inquiry.

Mr. MacKenzie said his first recollection of meeting Major James E. Hahn, president of the John Inglis Company, was in May of this year although he understood they had been introduced in 1936.

He said he had written a letter of introduction for Major Hahn to Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in London, in October, 1936, on the recommendation of Hugh Plaxton, Liberal member of Parliament for Toronto-Trinity, and on the strength of information given him by Major General LaFleche. It was his practice to write such letters for any industrialist vouched for by a member of parliament and he had done it at the suggestion of members on both sides of the House

BOMBS KILL TWENTY-FOUR

Barcelona, Ont., Oct. 21 (AP)—Two insurgent planes bombed Barcelona residential areas today, killing 24 persons and wounding 11. Five air raid alarms were sounded during the night. From one apartment, rescue workers took the bodies of two children, killed in their beds.

TRENTON YOUTH KILLED AS CAR TOPPLES ON HIM

Kenneth Moore Passenger In Car Driven By Gerald Wycott

DRIVER CHARGED

Twenty-one-year - old Kenneth Moore, Trenton, was crushed to death when an automobile, loaded with cord wood, toppled over on him near Stoco early last evening. Moore was a passenger in an automobile driven by Gerald Wycott, also of Trenton, and it is believed Moore was outside of the vehicle attempting to prevent it from turning over when the heavy load shifted. He was killed instantly, Dr. M. G. Dales, Tweed, stated upon investigation.

A preliminary inquest was opened before Coroner Dr. Dales at Tweed last evening and following identification, the hearing was enlarged for one week. As a sequel to the inquest however, Gerald Wycott was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence. The accused was arraigned before a Justice of the Peace and remanded in custody.

Load of Wood Shifts

The accident occurred on a concession road near Stoco when the men were returning in Wycott's car, with a load of cord wood, piled in the rear of a sedan. In some manner the load is believed to have shifted, Moore getting out and proceeding to the low side of the vehicle to assist in righting the load. In some unaccountable manner the heavy vehicle toppled over into a six-foot ditch, pinning Moore beneath the vehicle as it dropped. He was badly crushed, police revealed upon releasing the body. Wycott escaped with minor injuries, when the car turned over in the ditch.

Chief J. C. Hayes of Tweed, and Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien of Belleville, conducted the investigation.

Mrs. Lillian Kenny Remanded Again

Toronto, Oct. 21.—(CP)— Mrs. Lillian Kenny, stormy petrel of Toronto's stork derby, was remanded for a third week to Psychiatric hospital when she appeared in police court on an arson charge. The woman, who failed to share in the will left by Charles Vance Millar to the Toronto woman registering the most births from 1926-36, was arrested two weeks ago.

Mrs. Kenny's arrest followed a fire at her Bathurst Street home. She was remanded to Psychiatric hospital for observation when she appeared in court October 7 and remanded again last Friday.

Magistrate Forsythe today marked the case over to October 23.

55 CANADIANS SHARE IN SWEEP DRAWN IN DUBLIN

One Draws Ticket On Dubonnet, 10 To 1 Favorite, For Cesarewitch

Prize Fund Divided Into 14 Units of 100,000 Pounds Each

Dublin, Oct. 21 (CP)—The whirring drum that deals out fortunes for lucky Irish Hospital sweepstake ticket holders today spun out prizes for 55 Canadians.

One Canadian ticket holder, using the nome de plume "Triplets", drew a ticket on Dubonnet, 10 to 1 favorite, which would bring him as much as $150,000 if the horse won the Cesarewitch at Newmarket next Wednesday.

There were chances that other Canadians yet might draw tickets on the favorite as the spinning drum continued to deal out the lucky tickets

A Canadian using the name "We Two", drew a ticket on Snipewood, a 100-to-7 shot.

Three Canadians drew tickets on Snake Lightning, a 15 to 1 chance. The ticket holders used the nome-de-plume "Dishwasher", "Peggy O'Shea", and "Butch".

The prize fund was announced as £1,405,300 ($7,026,500). Total receipts were put at £2,446,481. The prize fund was divided into fourteen units of £100,000 each and fourteen persons holding tickets on the winning horse will receive £30,000 ($150,000) each, fourteen with tickets on the second horse £15,000 each and fourteen with tickets on the third horse £10,000 each.

Drawers of tickets on each one of 83 horses originally accepted for the race will receive about £437 ($2,187) each. Of those originally accepted, 34 horses were officially listed as probable starters. In addition there are 50 cash residuary prizes of £1,006 ($5,030 each which are not dependent on the outcome of the race, and 1,400 consolation prizes of £100 ($500) each.

BLUENOSE TAKEN OUT FOR REPAIRS

Canadian Boat Protested; Based On Shifting of Ballast

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 21—(AP)—While race officials fretted today over a protest by the Canadian defender of the International Fisherman's Trophy, Captain Angus Walters, and a counter protest against the Big Salt Banker Bluenose by the Skipper of the challenging Gloucesterman Gertrude L. Thebaud, Walters ordered the titleholder out on a marine railway to inspect her underbody.

Walters said he feared Bluenose might have been damaged when she struck a submerged obstruction while towing back to port after yesterday's unfinished race.

A failing breeze caused postponement after the American challenger had taken a lead of approximately a mile, virtually insuring her victory had there been wind enough to finish within a six-hour time limit. Thebaud had negotiated only about 22 miles of a 36-mile course and with only an hour and a quarter remaining there was no chance of her finishing.

Skipper Admits Shifting

The protest against Bluenose was based upon shifting of ballast, which Captain Walters freely admitted. Under the rules, ballast must not be increased or decreased once a series opens.

The charge brought by Captain Walters was that Thebaud has been sailing with more canvas than the deed of gift of the Trophy permits.

A race scheduled for today was postponed at Walters' request. He displayed a piece of splintered timber about two feet long which he said a diver plucked from Bluenose's keel at Boston a few days ago.

Captain Walters said this forenoon he expected to be ready to resume the sailing duel tomorrow.

Alludes to Past Tyrants Who Blamed Christians for Persecution of Them

PERSECUTIONS OF OLD

Pontiff Optimistic For 'Future Is What God Permits It To Be'

Vatican City, Oct. 21 (AP) — L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, said today Pope Pius had denounced Nazi "persecution" in Germany and Austria with allusions to tyrants of the past.

It said the Pope recalled Julian the Apostate, Nero and the Apostle Judas in references which archeologists, whom he addressed in an audience at Castel Gandolfo yesterday said they took as meaning Chancellor Hitler.

L'Osservatore, in a summary of the Pope's remarks, noted he spoke of archeology as dedicated to exhuming monuments and studying "dead texts". Then, it said, he added that "not far away quite a different archeology is being practised."

"Workers and personages which would better be left in oblivion are being called and recalled on the scene of life and action," the newspaper summarized the Pope's message.

"It is erroneous archaeology and truth which exhumes sinister figures to bring them back into existence and put in operation sinister works.

"He recalled the work of Julian the Apostate with sad, extremely sad, persecutions which, if they were not the most violent and bloodiest, were extremely uncompromising, deceitful and shrewd.

Blaming the Christians.

"He said it not only as Pope and as father of Christianity but also as a man. In fact, the Pontiff continued, the dignity of man seemed to him badly served indeed when one had reached exactly the same point reached by Julian the Apostate even though he was not the first to blame Christians for persecutions with which they were afflicted. Nero, too, had done it for the burning of Rome and persecution which followed it.

"So, today, continually and without respite it happens that on the faithful, on their fate and on their conscience, blame is lain for persecutions which have been noted.

Persecution of Sacred Purple.

"It is a truly strange thing; strange heights have been reached. Because it must be said that persecution even of the last of the faithful of the last son entrusted to the care of Jesus Christ and to his vicar strikes the Pope as well and also persecutions—this is its true name—together with the paucity of accusation has mounted as far as the sacred purple of a high pastor. The paternal grief could not but be, as these sons well understood, great and profound."

(This allusion was regarded in some quarters as a reference to Nazi charges that Theodor Cardinal Innitzer, Archbishop of Vienna, himself brought on recent Nazi raids on his palace.)

Pope Is Optimistic.

L'Osservatore added:

"But the sons will take inspiration from the father's sentiments, His Holiness continued. The Pope is optimistic and not pessimistic for the future because the present is what it is and what God permits it to be."

The newspaper said the Pope then cited historical examples to show that "irrefutable truth that the future has not responded to the signal and hands of men but to the signal and hands of God."

Dr. W. C. Morgan Hurt at Port Hope

Port Hope, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—Noel Julian, 19, of Ottawa, is held on reckless driving and driving without a licence charges, and Dr. W. C. Morgan of Belleville is in Port Hope Hospital with leg and facial injuries as a result of an accident at Welcome Corner here yesterday.

Julian, a hitch-hiker, told police he had been picked up by Dr. Morgan and that later, at the doctor's request, had taken the wheel. At Welcome Corner he lost control and the car left the highway, hurdled a hedge and hit a tree.

Julian escaped with minor injuries.

MAYOR SERVISS OF GALT NAMED

Will Oppose Karl Homuth, Conservative In Federal By-Election

Preston, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP)—A close battle between the Liberal and Conservative candidates is anticipated when Waterloo South electors select a successor to the late A. M. Edwards, Conservative member of parliament, in the forthcoming November 14 Federal by-election.

The ridings Liberal Association last night nominated Mayor R. K. Serviss of Galt, president of the Ontario Mayors' Association and long prominent in civil politics, as its candidate. Opposing him will be Karl K. Homuth, who represented the constituency in Ontario Legislature for twelve years, as the Conservative nominee. Mr. Homuth was nominated Oct. 11.

Past governmental policies in dealing with Canada's railway problem were criticized by Mr. Serviss in his address of acceptance before the nominating convention. He suggested Premier Hepburn of Ontario as a man who could solve it. The problem never would be solved "until you get a man in Ottawa like Premier Hepburn who will do it."

Mayor Serviss was nominated by acclamation. Three other candidates withdrew.

FAVORS RETURN OF COLONIES

Daily Express Sees No Justification To Refuse Return To Germany

London, Oct. 21 (CP-Havas) — Great Britain no longer has "any moral justification" for refusing to return Germany's pre-war colonies, the Daily Express (Independent) argued today in recommendation of a "redistribution in Africa".

The newspaper declared editorially, "It is plain that the future of the former German colonies held on mandate by Britain imposes upon us an obligation to examine the moral issues involved.

"These colonial territories do not form a part of the British Empire. In taking them from the Germans, we did not incorporate them in our own colonial possessions. We are trustees, not owners. We are dealing with an estate. We cannot argue with the Germans, with whom we have made a naval treaty and the Munich pact, are unsuitable to rule native races. Accordingly, we have no longer any moral justification for withholding colonies from them."

STIRLING BANK MGR. RECEIVES TRANSFER

Mr. H. P. Els, manager of the local Branch of the Bank of Montreal for the past three and a half years, has received notice of his transfer to Coll'ngwood, Ont. Since coming to Stirling, Mr. Els has been an active member of the Stirling Agricultural Society, and along with Mrs. Els has taken a leading part in the activities of the various organizations of St. John's Anglican Church. He was also a member of the Stirling Community Welfare Club, and was one of the prime movers in the establishment of playgrounds for the children in the village.

A talented musician, Mrs. Els was a valued membr of St. John's Anglican Church Choir, and was heard frequently on the different programmes presented in the village. Both Mr. and Mrs. Els have a large circle of friends who will regret their departure from Stirling.

Mr. S. L. Lucas, of Tara, Ont., will succeed Mr. Els and it is expected that the transfer will take place within the next ten days.—Stirling News Argus.

A. & N. VETERANS COMPLETE PLANS FOR POPPY DAY

Final plans for the observance of Armistice and Poppy Days were made at a special meeting of the executive of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch 201 last night.

Poppy Day will be held on Saturday Nov. 5th., officials decided, and again will launch an appeal to the public of this city and district for aid in this worthy cause. The poppies are made by veterans disabled in the Great War and the proceeds go for the alleviation of war-veterans who are suffering from the aftermath of war, and economic conditions.

The public has responded generously in the past, officials declared, and they again ask for the same fine cooperation that has been given them in previous years.

The Annual Church parade of the veterans will be made to the Salvation Army Citadel where Major Alderman will deliver the address.

On Armistice Day a banquet and get-together will be held in the City Hall as in former years. Prominent speakers are being contacted and no doubt one of the outstanding war-veteran orators of the province will address the veterans.

DANDELIONS BLOOM ON CHURCH LAWN

Reminiscent of balmy Spring days a large number of dandelions were seen poking their yellow heads above the grass on the lawn of St. Thomas Church today.

With stems from three to four inches in length the blossoms were in full flower, and added a distinct Springlike touch to the green of the spacious lawns.

FIRE DEPARTMENT FASTER THAN STORK

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 21.—(CP)—The fire deparment beat the stork the other day. Clave Harvey, prospective father, had no telephone, and Mrs. Harvey needed a doctor immediately. Harvey turned in a fire alarm that brought hook-and-ladder company which in turn sped his wife to the hospital. Mrs. Harvey and her infant son are reported "doing nicely".

Contest In Popularity Draw For Karnival Closes Tonight

Gathering their forces for the final drive tonight, when the winner will be declared from the stage of the Armouries, contestants in the Kiwanis Karnival Popularity Contest are making every effort to flash under the wire the winner of the handsome cash prize and the honor and glory that goes with the title of "Miss Belleville."

While the standing as released late last night indicates a fairly large margin between the first and last contestant, the last-minute drive is liable to see an upset by time the final standing is declared. It is a close race and the winner will not be decided until the last minute. All books must be in the hands of the committee by ten-thirty tonight so that the committee in charge can compile the results in order to announce the winners at the same time as other prizes are distributed.

The standing as at midnight last night is: :

Mother Bruin Injures Trapper Trying to Secure Pair of Cubs

Robert Thompson, Dickey Lake, Lacerated On Leg

BROTHER WIELDS AXE

The next time William and Robert Thompson, brother-farmers and trappers residing at Dickey Lake, take it upon themselves to capture bear cubs in the bush, they'll make sure the mother of the youthful bruins is not nearby. Their lack of such caution nearly resulted in fatal injuries to Robert recently, when the brothers came upon two bear cubs and in their anxiety to capture them, forgot the mother bear, which attacked Robert Thompson, biting him on the leg and inflicting several deep claw lacerations before the enraged bruin was felled from the blow axe in the hands of William Thompson. Today the pelt of the parent bear is on display in their camp, while the two cub bears are chained in captivity on the Thompson farm, but only after one of life's rare and exciting experiences.

Hastened to Rescue

One day this week the Thompsons were trekking through the bush near their Dickey Lake farm, when they came upon two bear cubs basking in the bright warm sun. The Thompsons agreed they should capture the cubs alive and gave chase, but the nimble cubs sought shelter in a thicket. The now-excited hunters approached the brush from opposite sides, failing to observe the sudden appearance of the female parent bear, which sniffed the air, realized the danger of her offsprings and hastened to their rescue.

The larger bear was at close range to Robert Thompson before he realized the seriousness of the situation, because as he turned around Mrs. Bruin hurled her full weight of 360 pounds at Robert, knocking him to the ground. The bear clawed and bit him in her rage to protect her young. Hearing the shouts of his brother, however, William Thompson ran to his assistance and with one well-directed blow from h's woodsman's axe, felled the ferocious and angered bear. Later the stunned animal was killed with another blow from the axe, but not before Robert Thompson had sustained severe cuts, bruises and the deep teeth marks of the bear embedded in his right leg. His clothing was literally torn from him also.

Round Up Cubs

After assisting his brother and rendering first aid, the Thompsons succeeded in rounding up the two cub bears, which are now basking in the sun and seemingly enjoying life in captivity at the Thompson home.

"Oh, well, that bear skin will make a fine rug, commented Robert Thompson as he told his exciting story of being attacked by an angered mother bear in defence of her cubs.

"The next time I decide to catch bear cubs alive, I'm going to locate the cubs' mother first," assured William Thompson.

PREMIER HEPBURN FLOATS NEW LOAN

$15,000,000 At 3 Percent Will Be Borrowed To Mature Nov. 1, 1950

Toronto, Oct. 21 (CP—Premier Hepburn of Ontario today announced a new Ontario $15,000,000 issue of three-per-cent bonds, maturing in 1950, would be offered immediately by a large syndicate of investment dealers and banks. The money will be used for provincial highways purposes.

The new bonds will be dated Nov. 1, 1938, and will mature Nov. 1, 1950.

The premier said that during the current fiscal year, which ends next March 31, accrued ordinary receipts and ordinary expenditures have been within his budget estimates which called for a balanced budget in the fiscal period.

The new bond issue includes a "callable" feature which permits the government to call them in three years before maturity. Two days ago the government renewed $10,000,000 of treasury bills for two years with the Bank of Montreal at an interest rate of 1.6 per cent.

Highways Minister McQuesten said purpose of the loan was to continue the extensive road-construction program in Northern Ontario.

The roads on which work will continue North Bay to Sault Ste. Marie; North Bay to Timmins; Severn Bridge to North Bay; Nipigon to Long Lac.

The minister said some work had been done already but it would require several years to complete.

OBITUARY

WALLACE HUBBLE, (Frankford)

Wallace Hubble passed away suddenly at the residence of his son, Mr. Ross Hubble, Murray Township, Northumberland County, on Saturday, Oct. 15th.

The late Mr. Hubble was born 82 years ago in Murray Township and resided there all his life. When age and health permitted he was engaged in farming. He was a man of most estimable character and held a high place in the regard of all residents in the community. In religion he was a member of the Tabernacle Church in that neighborhood and was a member of the official Board for many years. Fraternally he was a member of the Masonic and Orange Orders.

Surviving him are two sons, Mr. Ross Hubble and Mr. Ernest Hubble, both of Murray Township.

The funeral took place from his late residence on Monday afternoon, Oct. 17th., to Stockdale United Church where an impressive service was conducted by the Rev. A. Poulter, assisted by the Rev. Mr Lane of Frankford. The combined choirs of the Tabernacle and Stockdale Churches led in the singing of the hymns at the service. The funeral was largely attended.

The bearers were Messrs. Warren Free, John Rogers, Kirk Moran and Charles Wright.

Interment was made in Stockdale Cemetery.

LATE MRS. MARIA THOMPSON

The funeral of Mrs. Maria Thompson, who died in Detroit, Mich., on Tuesday, Oct. 18th., took place from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street, Belleville, on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 20th, to Christ Church where the burial office of the Church of England was conducted by the Rector the Rev. G. G. Wright, who conducted also the committal service at the graveside in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. Richard Snell, George Low, James Reid, Thomas Marshall, R. H. Ketcheson and Frank Sharpe.

DAVID H. SPRUNG

After a lengthy illness David Henry Sprung passed away at the residence of Mrs. W. J. Barber, 24 McAnnany Street, Belleville, on Friday morning, Oct. 21st.

The late Mr. Sprung had reached an advanced age, being in his 87th. year. He was born at Melville in Prince Edward County, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William W. Sprung. For many years he resided in the county where he was born and for the past twenty years he made his home in Belleville. By those who knew him he was well esteemed. In religion he was a member of Holloway Street United Church.

Surviving him are one sister, Mrs. J. W. Barber, Belleville; five nephews, Mr. Morley Davidson, Massassaga; Mr. Stanley Barber, Mr. Reginald Barber and Mr. Clifford Barber , all of Prince Edward County; Mr. Leonard Giles, Mountain Station, Ont.

His wife, who was Ella Glenn, prior to her marriage, passed away twenty-five years ago.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

POLICE COURT

Alfred Schafer, transient, was sentenced to one month in the common jail after being convicted of a second offence intoxication charge before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K. C., in today's local police court. The sentence was automatic in default of the payment of a $50.00 fine levied upon conviction.

Maurice Powell and Albert Richer, two transients charged with vagrancy, found their cases further enlarged for one week. "Richer was found in possession of a large quantity of cigarettes, which we believe were stolen," revealed Chief Kidd. "Prefer such a charge when he appears next week," replied Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K. C.

Frank Simpson, Belleville, appeared charged with the theft of 17 angle bars and a quantity of rail plates, the property of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Simpson's case was also further enlarged at the request of the Crown. Gordon Robertson, local barrister, appeared on behalf of the accused, who was arrested by Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard at his home recently.

An employee of the R.C.A.F Trenton was convicted on an assault charge and fined ten dollars and costs, amounting to $27.00 in all. The charge arose after the accused is alleged to have tripped a woman on the Market Square last Saturday night. An alleged companion was dismissed when the prosecution failed to advance charges, however.

An inebriate was given one week in which to raise the necessary finances to meet a fine levied for intoxication following a plea of guilty.

Women's Institutes in Convention Review Year of Achievement

Appeal for Sympathy Toward Czechoslovakian Refugees Made By Senator Cairine Wilson

Addresses Convention Here of Women's Institutes On Matters of International Importance To Homemakers

Speaking in Belleville for the first time, Hon. Cairine Wilson, first woman to be named to the Canadian Senate, brought to her hearers the national and international outlook in matters of vital importance to home and country. when she was guest speaker last evening at the Women's Institute convention held in St. Thomas Parish Hall. Senator Wilson also made a strong appeal to her hearers to be understanding and sympathetic with the plight of Czechoslovakians who have given up their country to save ours and who now are homeless. On this problem the Senate is devoting much time and thought and it is hoped a national committee will soon be set up.

Large Crowd

The accommodation at the Parish House was taxed as delegates and citizens of Belleville were present to hear Canada's distinguished woman legislator.

Senator Wilson was introduced by Miss Pollard of the Department of Agriculture, who in a gracious manner referred to the delight of the women, not only in the west where the suggestion of a woman senator emanated, but throughout the Dominion that choice had happily fallen on Senator Wilson.

Senator Wilson replying to the words of introduction said she was "alone" in the Senate for five years until joined by Senator Iva Follis, and so understood all about minorities.

Proud of Institute

As a citizen of Ontario she was proud she said, of the fact that Women's Institutes originated in Ontario from which it had spread throughout tthe world. At the 21st anniversary of Institutes in Great Britain 8,000 delegates in Albert Hall, London, represented 300,000 members in the British Isles. Addressing them the Right Honourable Stanley Baldwin said that no other movement had done more to steady the country in the years after the war than the Women's Institute.

The silver jubilee of the Women's Institute of Nova Scotia was an interesting event attended by Senator Wilson who was tremendously impressed by the great gathering of women from all points in the province.

These women, as all rural women of Canada, are deeply interested by matters of legislation which have a distinct bearing on the home. The rural woman must study carefully from all angles the economic problems of production and marketing and follows with keen interest the different process of government bearing on what she has to buy and sell.

Health Internationally

Turning to international health matters for disease, she said, was no respecter of boundaries, Senator Wilson in an interesting way revealed some of the problems within the scope of the Health Service of the League of Nations, as clearly and vividly presented in a film sponsored by the group. The first work of the section in 1920 was that of combating typhus, originating in Russia and threatening the eastern reaches of Poland because of the influx of refugees. Marshalling the scanty health resources of the counties, by superhuman effort the disease was checked.

Preventing Plagues

In 1923 the Rockefeller Foundation assisted the Epidemiological Bureau organized in 1920, and a branch was established in Singapore. In touch by daily wireless with 186 ports, it guards against plagues. The result of the fine organization is, that if a ship leaves Shanghai for instance, for Sydney, and happens to stop at a port en route in which bubonic plagues later develops, word is immediately relayed to Sydney and before that ship nears port it is stopped while thorough investigation is carried on to see if it carries any rats, bubonic carriers, which are destroyed.

The film depicted the famous trail of death left by a ship years ago which in its voyage touching many ports it was responsible for two million deaths.

Halted by War

In China remote areas are almost in the times of Marco Polo, so backward are the ideas of health and sanitation. Through the Chinese Red Cross assisted by such organizations in other countries some strides were being made till war had halted developments. Now health authorities must turn to efforts to keep the epidemic of cholera from arising in war stricken areas when a recent appeal was made for eight million doses of anti-cholera toxoid, more than the required amount was subscribed immediately by the United States, Rumania and Turkey.

Efforts that could be used in improving humanity's sanitary and housing and similar problems, said the speaker are being sacrificed where constant hatred promotes wars between nations which we had hoped ere this would live together in peace and unity.

Visits Belleville

Hon. Cairine Wilson, first Canadian woman senator, who spoke at W. I. Convention here last night.

Problem of Refugees

The problem of refugees is a major question before nations today. The speaker said she was surprised and mortified to learn that Jewish organizations had done more for the rehabilitation of Christians in other parts of the world than had Christians.

She told of 1500 French homes being opened to Spanish children. France has never refused to assist political refugees.

Soon it is hoped to set up in Canada a committee for refugees from Czechoslovakia and other parts of the world. These peoples will bring a great deal to this country in culture and ability. This has been the history of other times. From Flemish weavers who were refugees, Britain developed the trade of weaving and no cloth has since equalled British achievements. The Huguenots contributed the lace making art to Britain.

Asks Sympathy

"I think most of us," said the speaker, "are in Canada because our parents and grandparents had to leave the country in which they were born. My own ancestors came to Canada one hundred years ago because their own land was considered more profitable for raising sheep. And the McKay's weren't exactly welcomed in the Red River district by the Hudson Bay Company which gave them a poor reception.

"So we should all be more sympathetic to and welcome a people who perhaps in order to save our country from war had to leave theirs."

Mrs. Jas. Bailey, Eldorado, convention chairman, expressed appreciation for the very thoughtful address. Senator Wilson had asked the ladies, instead of paying the expense of her trip to contribute that amount to the Refugees Fund in which she and all members of the League of Nations Society were so interested.

A collection was also taken at the desire of the institute delegates to add to the fund.

Interesting Program

Previous to the business of the meeting, Austin's orchestra from Wooler provided an excellent musical program which was keenly enjoyed. Under the leadership of Mrs. H. Harrison of Latta, community singing was an interesting part of the evening, with Mrs. Snider, Smithfield as pianist.

Other numbers included a vocal solo by Mrs. F. E. Houston of this city, Mr. V. P. Hunt acting as accompanist, and a clever reading by Miss Jean Cook also of Belleville.

Ingenious Display Of Handiwork At W. I. Convention

Ingenuity and originality characterized this year's display of articles for the Thrift Exhibit at the Women's Institute convention. The collection of decorative pieces showed what can be accomplished in home decoration at very small expense.

Glorifying the familiar flour sack was an easy task for the clever fingers of members and a dainty embroidered dresser and stand set had advanced a long way from its humble origin. Smart pajamas, finished with touches of blue looked so attractive that it hardly seemed possible that they, too, were of flour sacking.

The hearth rug displayed, the work of Mrs. Burke Seymour, of Seymour East, was made entirely from jute bags. A sack formed the foundation and the design, hand-drawn, was worked of four stranded jute from ripped sacks. It was developed in beige and brown with contrasting design.

A display of a Christmas dinner table arrangement and of gay wrappings for Christmas gifts was most interesting.

An intricately quilted spread, a print pattern on a white background was very lovely and attracted much admiration. Slips, housedresses and aprons splendid examples of dainty needlework were also included in the display which was shown to advantage on tables arranged below the stage of the Parish Hall.

A. W. Sparks Speaks To Convention In Session In Belleville

FINE PROGRAM

Discussion On Education Feature of Meeting of W. I. Delegates

Civic greeting to delegates at the Women's Institute yesterday afternoon was extended by Mayor Jamieson Bone, who was introduced by Mrs. Clarence Holmes, presiding officer. Mayor Bone welcomed the visitors to Belleville, the centre of the surrounding county. He congratulated the leaders on having arranged to have Senator Wilson as guest speaker at the evening session. The men say if you want results, get the women to do it. They are fearless in their enthusiasm and the speaker wished there were more women in the legislature to stir the government. Mayor Bone spoke of the prosperity in England. In Canada there are 240,000 young men with no opportunities and if this goes on there will be no homes. In conclusion, the speaker complimented the ladies on their work and wished them every success in their endeavors.

Response to Greeting

Miss Lily Weese, Melrose, thanked Mayor Bone for his kind words of welcome. The members were always pleased to visit this progressive city and had many pleasant recollections of previous conventions.

Reporting on Legislation, Mrs. H. T. Eade, Deseronto, reported that many branches had made a study last year of legislature matters such as "laws every woman should know". "Qualifications of school trustees." "The vote is a trust, use it." "Highway traffic laws".

Law is the foundation of the country, said Mrs. E. B. Kinkle, Chatterton, in discussing the report given. She advocated closer study of liquor laws, Sabbath observance and particularly, in view of the racket bringing disaster and financial ruin on young people in large centres, should attention be paid and indignation registered in the laxity of the laws protecting citizens from loan sharks.

Health Program

Mrs. W. J. Honey, giving the report prepared by Mrs. G. Honey, Colborne, pointed out that many valuable papers were delivered at branch meetings on the topics of health and child welfare. This part of the program was most instructive and in the discussion that followed, led by Mrs. F. J. Nickle, Eldorado, it was suggested by some members that more stress should be placed on the child welfare side of this phase of institute work. The educational aspect should be emphasized to really fulfill the ideal of institute to make projects community-wide.

Representing the Canadian National Institute of the Blind, Mr. A. W. Sparks, Belleville, gave a most interesting address. This organization was the only one in Canada devoted to the tremendous task of educating, caring for and supervising rehabilitation work for the Canadian blind. Organized work in this matter began in 1918, originating with Canadian soldiers at St. Dunstan's overseas. At present 10,000 adult blind are registered with the Institute. In these twenty years Canada has made such rapid strides in care of its blind citizens that it has attracted world wide attention, a fact for which all should be proud.

Care of Sightless

The Institute for the Blind maintains a Braille library of 40,000 volumes. which can be borrowed postage free, and without fee, by the blind. Talking books are available, and a magazine printed in Braille. Also through the efforts of the Institute for the Blind, sightless persons can secure free railway transportation, free radio licences and free theatre tickets — Everything possible, to make life more bearable for the afflicted.

Preventive Work

Preventive work, educating citizens in preservation of eyesight, educating communities to report cases needing care, come within the scope of the Institute, which has as its object making happy useful citizens, and assets to their community, of those who may have just felt that because they have lost their sight, they have lost their usefulness.

Mr. Sparks paid grateful tribute to the constant support and cooperation of the Women's Institute of Ontario, speaking in behalf of the Canadian Institute for the blind, the blind registered in the various communities and for himself. In Conclusion he urged the members to bring immediately to the attention of officials, cases of blindness needing care.

Report on Education

Not enough originality was a fault of the branch activities in education, said Mrs. F. M. Rutherford of Bonarlaw, who reported on this topic. Papers, oratorical contest prizes, and travelogues, contributed to the progress in educational matter last year.

New Course of Study

Mrs. Ross Bush, Consecon, led spirited discussion on the report particularly on the new course of study.

"At present we aren't sure if we are paying for education or recreation," said one speaker.

"It should be studied more thoroughly. Our inspector gave us an address and we see that they are being taught not just how to earn a living but how to live," said another.

Attend School Meetings

"Why can't we have more women attending the annual meeting of school trustees?" interjected another delegate. "That is when we could really see what is being done. I was the only woman attending from our section and the menfolk said that this wasn't women's place, at the School Board meeting. But if the school is where our boys and girls have to spend their major part of every day, we should be interested enough to look into school affairs.

To really understand and study school problems, a Home and School Club or Parent and Teacher Association be organized. Ways of becoming familiar with the new source of study were thoroughly discussed.

Educate in Citizenship

Education in citizenship was greatly needed to counteract influences against democracy. A well informed electorate can work wonders to bring about needed changes, the discussion leader concluded.

"Couldn't we as Women's Institutes start a movement to get the boys and girls back to the farm where they belong?" asked Mrs. C. Macoun, Campbellford, as the unemployment situation was under discussion. "Farmers' sons as well as city boys are out of work. There is plenty land. Many are willing and anxious to establish themselves but need help. Let us think about this project."

Home Economics

Covering a wide range of enterprises, the Home Economics program was followed with increasing enthusiasm by the various branches, Mrs. T. J. Brown, R. R. No. 4, Belleville, reported. Papers were given on household topics and demonstrations in cookery, home decoration, and dress designing, while contests of all kinds stimulated interest.

Keep Women Thinking

To work towards the Institute ideal of teaching women to think should be an aim kept firmly in view by members, said Mrs. Elgin Gorsline, Demorestville, commenting on the report in the discussion period.

Department short courses should be taken, she continued, and encouragement given boys and girls taking coaching work.

Miss Phyllis Hall contributed greatly appreciated solos during the morning and afternoon sessions.

Mrs. M. B. Weese, Rednersville, reported on agriculture and Canadian Industries. Wonderful reports were received from all branches, in this subject, the importance of which cannot be over-estimated. Introducing into form life definite culture and godliness would make a success oft he farm woman's career, the speaker felt.

Reforestation

Gardening, farm hobbies, and prizes for contests and addresses on horticultural subjects, were the ways in which interest was maintained in this branch of the W. I. work. As a result of Col. Vanderwater's talk last year, many members had been instrumental in having small trees placed on unused areas on their farms.

Research into the manner in which articles are manufactured in Canadian industries was made by branches and other findings presented in interesting papers. Home crafts were not overlooked in this study.

Catering to tourists is a Canadian industry from which many farm women could derive extra funds, and they would be well repaid for any study and planning they made of the situation.

Mrs. W. A. Hoskins, Grafton led in the discussion on the paper. She endorsed a remark by Mrs. Weese that the apple industry could be furthered by having the farming women help educate their urban sisters in the proper use of the many types of apples.

A question box, answered by Miss M. V. Powell, of the Department of Agriculture, concluded a lengthy and interesting afternoon's program.

Meals Provided

Delicious meals were served the members by St. John's Mission. The tables were arranged in the basement of the church and the ladies thoroughly enjoyed the luncheon and dinners prepared for their convenience.

Reports of Season's Activities Feature of Institute Convention

Two Day Meeting Held In St. Thomas' Parish House

SPLENDID PAPERS

With Mrs. Jas. Bailey, Eldorado area chairman, presiding the annual Women's Institute convention for Hastings, Northumberland, and Prince Edward Districts opened Thursday morning in St. Thomas' Parish House. An unusually large delegation numbering about 200 were present. Registration was in charge of Mrs. H. T. Eade, Deseronto, and Miss A. Bradshaw, Belleville.

Banners of the district and branch pennants decorated the assembly room, while the stage was arranged with ferns, potted plants and orange marigolds.

Community singing led by Mrs. H. Harrison, Latta, with Mrs. Snider, Smithfield as pianist, the Institute Ode and prayer opened the meeting.

Interesting Exhibit

Articles for the care and preservation of clothes formed an interesting exhibition at the front of the Hall and were greatly admired as were the samples of garment making.

Projects of outstanding success during the year were described in the roll call of districts. For Prince Edward Mrs. M. W. Ward, Consecon, referred to the Officers' Rally and hospital work as of prime importance, Mrs. W. A. Hoskins, R. R. No. 4, Grafton, for West Northumberland, outlined the local leadership training course in vegetables in the diet, enthusiastically supported by branches; local leaders' clothing project; a musical festival and girls' club work were named by Mrs. Jos. Greenley, Warkworth, as some of the many fine enterprises undertaken by East Northumberland.

Mrs. Carl Clancy, R. R. No. 1, Harold, gave an interesting resume of meetings in North Hastings district stressing the marketing project, and relief work for the underprivileged.

Toxoid Available

A social evening in Stirling Community Hall for West Hastings district members was a splendid success, Mrs. Kenneth Faul, Frankford, pointed out, and the talk given by the local doctor led to toxoid being available for the school children of that area. Community spirit built up by the enthusiasm and the friendliness of members were the principal achievements of East Hastings, as reported by Mrs. W. White, Roslin and resulted in whole-hearted support of the worthwhile works in the district.

Miss M. V. Powell, General Assistant, Ontario Women's Institutes led the interesting discussion that followed these brief talks. Miss Powell congratulated the chairman on her efficient manner of presiding and commended the speakers on their fine addresses on the seasons activities. The value of discussion of papers was stressed by the speaker who endorsed the program which had arranged so adequately for this part of the convention plan.

Advocate Prompt Openings

For successful meetings, Miss Powell advocated prompt opening, and careful planning of time so that business would not overcrowd the allowances for papers and social interchange. Two hours and a half was an ample period for the average meeting and the social time was an important part of every monthly gathering.

In her review of the papers just read, Miss Powell gave many helpful comments and encouraging words which would inspire Institute members for even greater efforts in the future.

Mrs. Fred Denyes, R.R. No. 3, Brighton, representative on the Federated Board brought highlights of District annuals as she described those she had attended during her past year of office. Knowing the members better and more thorough planning of meetings had made her visits more enjoyable than during her first year.

The programs were good although in some cases more time was given to entertainment than the business aspect of such meetings warranted. Community singing, however, was a fine part of the meetings.

Health and peace were the topics most stressed at the annuals, and more discussion periods were suggested by Mrs. Denyes.

Choose Committees Wisely

The speaker urged a wisely-chosen nominating committee whose members understand the qualifications of each officer for the better election results. Mrs. Denyes commended the addresses of speakers sent from the Department of Agriculture to the district convention and discussed other features of the meetings which had impressed her.

"Canadianization" formed an interesting part of branch programs throughout the year, Mrs. H. S. May, Trenton, convener of this work, reported. Papers had been given at various branches and Canada, its history and emblems was thoroughly studied by many groups, while Canadian music and literature featured several meetings. The Women's Institute embracing all creeds and nationalities is an important factor in "Canadianizing" the community pointed out the speaker who showed how the ideals of the Dominion may be implanted by example and love, in the newcomers to the land.

Know Your Neighbors

In discussing this paper, Mrs. R. Hill, R.R No. 4, Trenton, emphasized that phase of Canadianization which would prompt members to know their neighbours and to help Canadians-in-the-making, warmth of welcome and personal contact would make the newcomers realize that this a country to which they will be happy to belong and whose flag they will be proud to claim.

BENES THE PROFESSOR

One of the great men of the time who has spent the last twenty years of his life putting into practice his views of democracy and theory of government has decided to accept an invitation to lecture at the University of Chicago. This institution will be in the public eye as the noted Prof. (late President) Benes joins the staff.

This man has figured in the greatest events of modern times. Rarely is a practical statesman also a professor but Benes was a professor before he became a statesman. Now he is back in his old job of delivering lectures and will follow his old chieftain, the late Dr. Masaryk, who over a third of a century ago lectured at Chicago.

This is one of the finest examples of the methods of modern education. Who is more qualified to instruct or lecture than the man who has known from the inside the problems facing statesmen? The fact that Benes' Czechoslovakia has changed will not lessen value of the work he will perform at Chicago University.

Dr. Benes has been one of the great protagonists in an era now past, an era which lived under the Treaty of Versailles, and which strove to maintain a state of different racial origins in a time which ultimately brought a reaction, which in a brief time snatched from the Czechs much of their territory on the basis of the principle of race.

His lectures will be interesting to democracy in the New World as he shows the stress under which it labors in the Old world in the presence of the other political views held in Europe by the three powerful states of Germany, Italy and Russia. He speaks in a land where democracy is paramount and his lectures should be a precious document on the struggles of the idea of democracy conceived in 1918-19 and how they are likely to fare in the future. He may also be able to forecast the fate of the totalitarian states and indicate how long their conception of the life of the state will survive his democracy of Czechoslovakia. Benes while his republic has been diminished in size and importance, will not admit the ultimate twilight of democracy in the world. He may be able to look into the years and catch a glimpse of what is in store for mankind and for the survival of democracy. Those who hear him and those who come to learn of his message cannot but be interested.

KEMAL ATATURK

Kemal Ataturk, President of Turkey, has been lying dangerously ill. He has not been as much in the news as some of the public men of the past decade, but he has achieved a new Turkey.

Kemal is a man who has done things with a will, whatever the sacrifice to himself. Even if other leaders of nations may seem to be almost machines for the amount of work they do, they do not compare with the reckless sacrfiice which Kemal has shown. If he sacrificed himself, he also made others do things.

One of his great achievements in the modernization of Turkey. The old Turkey of the Sultans was wiped out by him, when he came to power in a Turkey severely crushed in the Great War and in the settlement. He was a commander of greatest gifts as his battles with the Greeks testified. Naturally it could be expected of him that he would be a dictator and so he has been. Fortunately he has been a dictator who wished to modernize his people. There is little doubt that he had changed forever the course of the destiny of Turkey which has thrown away old traditions and customs.

The small Turkey whose course he dictates with a firm sway remains to play an important part in Europe. The part-Asiatic country straddles the boundary between Europe and Asia and hence Kemal has been able to take an outlook of wider range fortunately for his country. Today his country is on very friendly relations with Britain.

Only a world's fair can bring a billion dollars of "new money" to "town" and that is what the World's Fair in 1939 at New York is expected to do. Other fairs, the district type to which the county of Hastings is accustomed may not bring a billion, but they in their way achieve as much directly for agriculture and for their own area. Chicago World's Fair at the depth of the depression brought in "new money" to the amount of an estimated $700,000,000.

Readers of short stories will be interested to know that the short story is no longer a parvenu but real literature if well written, Wilfrid W. Werry, said in New York. Once it was customary to look on the short story with patronizing indulgence. But a short story well done, possesses a power of its own, and gives an effect equal to that of the lyric in the field of poetry, he says.

YOUTH WANT JOBS — Youth want to marry. Naturally . . . Youth want to take their place in the owrld and try and make a better world. They are ready to take over the job us elders have made more or less of a hash of, in a manner of speaking. There was a war to end all war and oceans of blood was spilled by youth to make the world safe for the fathers and mothers of the world. Now the war clouds hover too near for comfort. A new army of youth and courage is being trained to take over and try and make this a better world. Did you know that 670,000 young men in Canada are out of employment —that 70,000 of these have never had a job? What are we going to do about it? Young Men's Christian Association of Canada has been giving this problem of youth serious consideration for some time and is contributing worthwhile assistance — taking youth from the streets, giving them wholesome entertainment and opportunities for education, opportunity to build up healthy, vigorous bodies as befits robust Canadians, ready for anything their country asks of them; instilling the highest ideals consistent with Christian life — in short, helping to build up robust Canadianism of which the country will be proud. Nearly 700,000 young men out of work in Canada — imagine the despair, the temptations to go wrong, the bleak outlook. These boys need the sympathy of their elders who were boys once themselves — let's give hearty support to the Y. M. C. A. which deals directly with the present problem of youth, more serious than it ever has been before as shown by the rising tide of crime statistics in the United States, revealed by G-Man Hoover, in crimes that youth are implicated in. You are your brother's keeper and the keeper of your brother's son and all the sons who are today lined up in the army of the unemployed and wondering whether there is any place for them in the business world — if they have any future worth looking forward to.

NEW USES ARE BEING FOUND FOR COBALT, once practically thrown away as almost a worthless byproduct in the silver camp of Cobalt, named after the mineral, used in the making of paints and other uses. Old dumps are now being worked over to recover the cobalt content which has become valuable. When they mine the dumps of Cobalt for cobalt they will soon be mining the roads around Cobalt which were macadamized with low-grade ore from the dumps in the days of silver sidewalks and ore that commonly assayed 2,000 ounces to the ton. An echo comes down the years "Let's sing a little song of Cobalt, if you don't live there it's your fault".

Miss Annie Carey, Church St., has returned home from Brockville, where she visited friends.

Mrs. S. G. Geen has left for Toronto and Cookstown. Later she will go to Utica, Ill., where she will reside with her son, Dr. J. S. Geen. Her many friends here will wish her every happiness in her new home.

The horses attached to Walter Lambert's hack ran away this morning and collided with one of John Lake's hacks. Both vehicles were considerably damaged.

Mr. C. A. Gibson has taken over the billiard room at Hotel Quinte and will run it on his own account.

Dr. Wellington Jeffers of Lindsay, Ont., is the guest of his brother, Mr. J. Firth Jeffers, in this city.

Mr. Walter Fanning has returned to the city from Montreal.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 21st, 1888.

Mr. W. H. Snider who resides near Albert College, missed one of his horses about a month ago and suspected the animal had been stolen by gypsies, who were in the neighborhood at the time. Yesterday afternoon he was surprised when the horse returned home, accompanied by a horse owned by Mr. Robert Large, which disappeared at the same time. It is thought that the horses have been roaming the country.

In the sports at McGill College, Montreal, recently, Mr. John Moore of this city, took second prize in the running broad jump; second prize in the standing broad jump and with Mr. J. M. Hughes, won the three-legged race.

A small chain and collar worn around the neck of Chief of Police John Newton's dog, was taken off the dog some time yesterday. As the Chief has knowledge of the guilty party, he had better return the collar at once.

VAST UPHEAVAL

Most say that French influence is all but dead at this moment, and that British prestige has sustained a mighty jolt. Some will dispute such a sweeping statement, but all agree that the damage is great.

The powerful political machine which France built after the Great War with so much care and at such great expense, as a bulwark against Germany, has been smashed.

'Take Care of Ourselves'

The French-sponsored Little Entente—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia—which was to fight with France in the event of German aggression is cold ashes. The keystone of this structure was Czechoslovakia, small but stout. The other members of the entente both are now making gestures of friendship towards Germany.

The explanations, which are given with perfect freedom everywhere, are couched in almost identical language. I have heard this over and over

"Czechoslovakia put her faith in her French alliance. When the showdown came the alliance didn't save her. It is patent that the small countries of eastern Europe cannot look for assistance of this sort from France and Great Britain. We must take care of ourselves."

Not Prepared To Pawn Birthright.

This doesn't mean that these nations are prepared to pawn their political birthrights to Germany even though it seems advisable to work economically with Hitler. Poland, for example, although very friendly to Berlin is maintaining a highly independent attitude as she always has. As a matter of fact Poland saw the writing on the wall long ago as regards the influence of France in Eastern Europe. It was the late Marshal Pilsudski, Poland's grand old man, who called the turn in 1933.

I understand that he then advised France to wage a preventive war against Germany as he figured it would have to be fought eventually. France turned down the idea and Pilsudski altered his policy forthwith. He said the alternative to affiliation with France was to come to terms with Germany and he did. There have been ups and downs in the friendship but it has been firm during the past year.

Alliance With Russia.

It is also interesting to note that Pilsudski in 1934 predicted France's alliance with Russia would result in breaking up of French influence in central Europe in four or five years. Many Polish people credit the marshal with having been psychic and point to this prediction as an example of his extraordinary foresight.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

The Thirty Food Elements Necessary for Health and Life

In these days when you read and hear over the radio about the various minerals and vitamins that must be in the food if we are to remain well, or even live, you naturally wonder whether or not you and yours are really eating in a sensible or scientific manner.

As a matter of fact we really do need all the vitamins and minerals of which you read and hear.

"There are no less than thirty different food elements which are essential or absolutely necessary for life. If any one of these thirty food elements is left out of diet or is not present in sufficient amounts, the health of the individual is impaired, and death will eventually result. This information has been obtained after years of laborious and painstaking investigations and observations."

I am quoting Dr. Frederick F. Tisdall, Toronto, in National Health Review.

As an example of how new or recent some of the information on food really is, Dr. Tisdall says:

"It is interesting to note that one of these essential substances was isolated but a few months ago—nicotinic acid. This substance, known to chemists for 75 years, was not suspected of having anything to do with human nutrition until some months ago when it was discovered that it would cure that dreaded disease — pellagra of the Southern States." As pellagra affects the stomach, intestines, nervous system, skin, and eyes, it can be seen how important food can be to the entire body.

"It is now established that tiny amounts of this acid are necessary to life. It is found in many food substances such as wheat germ, liver and yeast."

A further interesting and valuable discovery was made in that if patients with pellagra have some infection present also, such as an ordinary cold, the amount of nicotinic acid necessary to overcome the pellagra is increased many times. The infection increases the need for this substance just as infection increases the need for iron in the system.

Dr. Tisdall shows also the need of each of the vitamins and other food substances and one naturally asks himself how can it be known that all these food factors are present in the diet. "Build up your diet around milk, meat, eggs, vegetables and fruit, add some vitamin D in the wintertime (cod-liver-oil, butter, eggyolk, milk, liver, green vegetables are rich in vitamin D), and you can be sure that you are getting all of the 30 food elements necessary for health and life.

MAKE GT. BRITAIN

The workings of the Anglo-German naval agreement, he said, had convinced him of that.

(Before Mr. Chamberlain left Munich Oct. 1 after the four-power conference that desmemered Czechoslovakia, the Prime Minister disclosed he and Hitler had agreed, that the Munich accord and the 1935 naval pact were "symbolic of the desires of our two peoples never to go to war with one another again."

(This treaty limited German naval tonnage to 35 per cent of that of Britain.)

Disclosed Deficiencies

Sir Samuel acknowledged that the German-Czechoslovak crisis had disclosed deficiencies of air raid precautions but said a tightening up would be announced soon.

This, he said, would deal with the distribution and supply of gas masks, a more fully developed shelter policy against gas and incendiary bombs and high explosives and the billeting of children.

The speech was regarded as the government's answer to Hitler's speech at Saarbruecken, October 9, in which he said Germany wanted only peace but at the same time was preparing herself defensively more than ever, and to German press criticism of Britain's defensive measures.

Sir Samuel called for Anglo-German co-operation to "fill up the trenches which have been dividing Europe", and declared his conviction that "without friendly relations between England and Germany there can be no stable peace in the world."

Berlin Paper Critical

Berlin, Oct. 21.— (CP-Havas)—The Voelkischer Beoachter, organ of Chancellor Hitler, today warned Great Britain that its rearmament could not fail to cause repercussions in the countries "against which it is visibly directed."

"While formerly they hoped to avoid participation in a European war, or at least to have only the fleet and air force involved, it seems now that owing to pressing representations by their (Britain's) French ally it has been decided to extend the preparations to the land army," the paper said.

British Rearmament

"There can be no other explanation for the creation of an easily-transportable expeditionary force. The question is whether the mighty efforts of Great Britain are really being made on behalf of peace. The British people's desire or security cannot be questioned, but British rearmament is assuming dimensions far beyond the security needs of an insular state and cannot be without repercussions in the countries against which British rearmament is visibly directed."

SHARP PAINS SHOT THROUGH KNEES

Woman Suffered 10 Years

"Since coming here from England 10 years ago," writes a married woman, "I have suffered badly from rheumatic pains. I bought medicine, lotions, liniments, and have taken concoctions until I was tired spending my money. I heard of Kruschen Salts so often, that I thought one day I'd try that. By this time my knees were frequently full of terrible pains. I bought a bottle of Kruschen, and took a teaspoonful every morning. It had no effect. But my husband said 'Persevere! Give it a chance to act.' Well, I did and before long my knees were nearly normal. I kept on, and believe me I am not like the same woman. I walked four miles the other day and felt fine, whereas before I could hardly walk across the floor."—(Mrs.) E. A.

What more need be said about the relief that Kruschen Salts can bring to sufferers from the pains and stiffness of rheumatism?

Madoc

Madoc—On Thursday afternoon the members of Trinity W. M. S. met in the church parlors with the president Mrs. F. Dafoe in the chair.

Following an opening hymn and the offering of prayer, the leader, Mrs. Earl Burnside, outlined the theme of Worship Service — "Thanksgiving Service for Honan Mission Jubilee." Much information was gained from Mesdames M. Fox, F. E. Burnside, I. E. Kennedy and F. Fleming, concerning the progress of Honan Mission in regards to—(1) The historical background; (2) The educational status; (3) The medical work and (4) The church as it is today. Following a hymn, an earnest prayer for workers in China and Japan was offered by Miss A. Wood.

The business period was conducted by the president, who presented an interesting and informal report of the sectional rally of the W.M.S. held on Oct. 7th at Hazzard's Church. With much pleasure Mrs. Dafoe informed the members of the sectional banner being won by this organization. Reports were received with interest from the secretaries of the following, Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. M. Fox, and Community Friendship and Associate Helpers, Miss A. Wood.

Following a hymn, Rev. Kennedy pronounced the benediction, after which Mrs. McBain and Mrs. Herne were hostesses in a pleasant social time.

Mr. Alexander of Calgary and Mrs. McMechan of Melrose are visiting their sister, Mrs. E. J. West.

Mrs. T. F. Blue who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. McCracken, Niagara Falls, N. Y., returned home on Monday.

KIWANIS KARNIVAL GAINS MOMENTUM AS CLOSING NEARS

Splendid Stage Show Given Large Attendance Last Evening

FASHION SHOW

Amateur Night Will Close Affair With Best Acts Available

A small stoutish man, excruciatingly funny in his clown, and "admiral" makeup, who drew from the capacious depths of his pockets every conceivable kind of musical instrument with the exception of a piano and a pipe-organ, and who proved himself master of them all, brought down the figurative "house" at the Armouries last night, where one of the largest crowds of the current Kiwanis Karnival gathered to enjoy the third night of this entertaining show.

On clarionet and oboe, on saxophone and horn, on jewsharp and "sweet potato" and on an ingenious "fiddle" drawing melody and music from the swingy swing of swing music to the lofty melodies of grand opera, this versatile musician played and clowned his way into the hearts of his audience. His imitations of bagpipes and other instruments, played in a flawless manner drew loud acclaim from his listeners. A sensational hit on the Wednesday night program, Clare Rouse, as he is known, was held over for last night's performance.

Comedy Juggler

Sharing topflight honors of the splendid vaudeville entertainment offered by the Kiwanis Club was a comedy juggler, Carl Thorenson, who electrified his audience with his skill and daring with rubber balls and other juggling paraphernalia. His running line of comedy patter added a humorous touch to a fine act while his feature act of whirling Indian Clubs, and the balancing of a feather on his nose drew him well-earned applause. A funny climax of the appearance and disappearance of a cigarette in a bottle, capped a sterling exhibition.

A novel feature of the stage entertainment was the presentation of a baby bathing-beauty show in which seven tiny tots with the blue and white "K" of the Kiwanis Club emblazoned on their bathing suits vied for beauty honors in an unique demonstration. Quaintly the little girls paraded and tumbled on a special mat in a manner that brought them the instant acclaim of the audience.

At the end of the "Revue" tiny Miss Judy Scriven was adjudged the winner, and was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses by "Miss Toronto" emblematic of her victory over her "colleagues." The dainty little winner in turn presented "Miss Toronto" with a magnificent basket of flowers while the audience came to its feet with a spontaneous burst of applause. The "Revue" and its participants, all tiny girls of real beauty were the proteges of Miss Mary Forster, whose pupils and their accomplishments have been no small factor in the success of the Karnival to date.

Again, in a novelty offering four dainty misses, attractively garbed executed difficult and pleasing dance routines, in a "Tap Strut."

Charming little five-year-old Dawn Myles, of Tweed, brought the audience to its feet, as dainty toes twinkled in a splendid tap-routine. Exhibiting no signs of stage-fright, the clever little miss tapped her way to the hearts of her audience with a clever performance.

By way of variety, the rich baritone voice of George Walsh, concert and opera baritone, was heard to great advantage in several numbers. His finale of "Marching Along Together" was a pleasing climax to the "Open Road" and "I Love Life." He was well received, and no doubt will get a fine reception on tonight's program for which he has been held over.

Parade of Fashion

As on the previous nights, the quartette of Belleville mannequins augmented by "Miss Toronto" (Diane Perkin) again drew the unstinted applause of their audience with their grace and poise as garbed in the latest creations in fashionland they paraded in a panorama of well-dressed beauty before the critical gaze of the crowd.

"Miss Toronto" again won the hearts of the large gathering of city and district residents with her winsome unaffected beauty, that was enhanced throughout the Parade of Fashion by the gorgeous styles of beautiful clothes that she wore with ease and distinction.

Climaxing two nights of delightful showing of the last word in milady's garb for the coming seasons, with a display of fashion, that was a delightful culmination to a superb exhibition of style and beauty, the mannequins rose to the heights as the large crowd applauded again and again the colorful creations and designs of apparel paraded for their inspection and approval.

Again the Misses Helen Doyle, Helen Wotten, Maisie Parry, Mrs. M. Brooks and Diane Perkin (Miss Toronto) brought out to the full the beauty and style of the many dresses and coats, evening and sports wear, that a clever program arranger had chosen for their final appearance. Fur coats, afternoon dresses and coats, evening dresses and sportswear, from the salons of Woodley's, McNabb's, Wotten's and Kroch Brothers rounded out an ensemble of style and fashion, that made an instantaneous hit with the audience. Miss Mary Forster again added to the colorful picture with a running descriptive microphone comment of the many styles and varieties of apparel, injecting timely comment on the cosmetics "Charles of the Ritz" from Lattimer's Drug Store, and the superb hairdress worn by the mannequins, which were given by the Mayfair Beauty Salon.

A fitting culmination to three nights of the Parade of Fashion came when the models were introduced from the stage, and received the well earned plaudits of the audience for a splendid exhibition.

Door Prize

For the first time since the opening of the Karnival the holder of the ticket drawn for the nightly door-prize of twenty-five dollars failed to put in an appearance. Following the drawing of Ticket No. 1555 from the drum by a small young lady, the holder of the corresponding stub failed to appear within the alloted time with the result that the person holding the lucky ticket tonight will receive the sum of fifty dollars.

Booths and Games

Good-naturedly the large crowd surged around the many booths and games where members of the host club were kept busy catering to the wants of the crowd. Bingo again demonstrated its popularity. While other "wheels" and concessions did a land office business. The closing act of a splendid night's entertainment came with the lovely dance melodies of Bud Haines and his Commodores orchestra as a large number of the younger members of the audience danced until a late hour.

Closing Night Tonight

Tonight will be the closing night of the Karnival and to everyone concerned the banner evening of all. For tonight will the winners of all contests be decided, and not only will this be a gala attraction but the committee in charge have provided a program that will, for sheer entertainment and beauty of presentation, eclipse all former ones.

Tonight is "Amateur Night". And a far-seeing committee has gathered the cream of amateur artists from a widely-spread district. A guest artist will be Jackie Marsh, Belleville's "Bobby Breen" who has already won the hearts of thousands with his superb voice. Other headline amateurs, veterans in contests, will be on hand to perform, while George Walsh, operetta baritone will lead a jolly community sing.

The winner of the "Popularity Contest" will be declared tonight, as will the fortunate winners of the various "draws" for lucky tickets. Following is the program of amateur acts that will be seen on the stage tonight:

Eldorado

Eldorado—On Tuesday afternoon and evening, October 18th, was held the forty-sixth annual convention of Madoc and Elzevir Sunday School Association at Union Church. The Sunday Schools of the district were well represented at both sessions of the convention. All were made to feel welcome so that the words of greeting by Mr. Jack Empey were hardly necessary, though they were appreciated by all present. Each session was opened by a short worship service.

Rev. S. B. Smith opened the worship service in the afternoon session.

Mr. Percy Holland, Vice President was in charge and opened the convention.

Mr. Hercules Rollins was called on for a few remarks. Mr. Rollins has served the association faithfully and well since its organization forty-six years ago and he drew the attention of all present to the purpose of why the members of the Sunday Schools had met.

Rev. F. R. Vanderburg of Kingston was present at both sessions of the convention. In the afternoon he led in a round table discussion which proved very interesting and helpful.

After the reading of each report the different departments were led in a discussion, bringing out items of interest.

Temperance was brought before the convention by Mrs. George Harris, she also said there could be a book procured of temperance stories and gave a story of "Jack and Jill", a temperance story by way of illustration.

The evening session opened with a sing-song led by Mr. Jack Empey and the worship service was in charge of the Hazzard's Sunday School with Mr. Harry Love as leader.

In the evening Rev. Vanderburg gave a very appropriate address using as his keynote the writings of Paul: "Come over into Macedonia and help us."

Mr. E. Burris and Miss Jennie Burris gave a beautiful rendering of a duet with guitar accompaniment, "Into a tent."

The following officers were elected and installed by Rev. E. Snelgrove.

Honorary President, Mr. Hercules Rollins, Cooper.

President, Mr. Percy Holland, Madoc.

Vice. Pres., Mr. Vernon Spencer, Queensboro.

Past Pres., Mr. Fred Rollins, Queensboro.

Secretary, Miss Marjoria Delyea, Queensboro.

And the following superintendents of their respective department:

Children's Work, Mrs. Whytock, Madoc.

Girls Work, Miss Jean Rollins, Cooper.

Boys' Work, Mr. John Bristol, Madoc.

Temperance Supt., Mr. J. Empey, Eldorado.

Missionary Supt., Miss Annie Holmes, Eldorado.

Young Peoples' Supt., Miss Alma Moorcroft, Madoc.

Adult Division, Miss Frances Keene, Madoc.

Home Religion, Miss Marion Love, Queensboro.

Leadership Training, Rev. S. B. Smith, Eldorado.

It was decided to hold the next convention at Hart's United Church.

Mrs. Stan Rollins read the resolution: Resolved that we express our appreciation to the pastor and officials of Union Church for the use of their building for the convention and their kind entertainment in providing for physical needs and comforts.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Moncrieff, Bleecker Avenue announce the engagement of their older daughter, Frances Esther, to Thomas Arthur Spruston, son of the late Thomas Arthur Spruston of Vancouver Island. The marriage to take place early in November.

Mr. W. McCoy is visiting this week in Eldorado.

Mr. Jesse Harris, 17 Cedar St. is celebrating his 80th birthday today. He was born in England and has been a resident of Belleville for 65 years.

A delightful afternoon tea was held yesterday at the home of Miss Wilder, 62 Grier Street, by the Senior Ladies' Bible Class of the Emmanuel Church. The guests were received by Miss Wilder, who proved a charming hostess and were graciously invited to the tea room by Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. S. Pomeroy presided over the tea table, which was tastefully arranged with a lace cloth centred with a silver basket of marigolds, supplemented by yellow tapers in silver holders. Mrs. Marshall poured tea assisted by Mrs. Pomeroy, Sr. Mrs. Bell assisted as treasurer for the tea. Mrs. Cook had charge of the home cooking table. Mrs. Ellis presided over the novelty table while Mrs. Mifflin looked after the fancy work table. Mrs. McBrien, Mrs. Holland, Mrs. Blow, capably assisted with the refreshments. The living room was most attractive with chrysanthemums and salvia. During the afternoon the drawing was made by Miss Dawkins for a delicious cake, the holder of the lucky ticket being Mrs. Waldorf, 50 Gordon Street.

Weddings

DALY—STRONG

The marriage of Miss Margaret Joy Strong, daughter of Mrs. Strong and the late George Victor Strong, Port Hope, to Mr. John A. Daly, Toronto, son of Mrs. Daly and the late Herbert Daly, Napanee, took place this afternoon in Appleby School Chapel, Oakville. Rev. J. A. M. Bell, headmaster of Appleby School and brother-in-law of the bridegroom, officiated and Mr. David Ouchterloney played the wedding music.

Mr. G. Norman Strong of Port Hope, gave his sister in marriage, and she wore a frock of Jorde blue English wool crepe, with blue doll hat to match, black suede accessories, and corsage of sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley. She carried a prayer book which her mother carried at her own wedding. Miss Effie Strong, Port Hope, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, and Mr. George Daly of Napanee, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

After a reception at the home of Rev. J. A. M. Bell and Mrs. Bell, the bride and bridegroom left for a short trip to the United States and on their return will live in the Royal York Apartments, Sherwood Avenue, Toronto.

CHAPTER VIII

"Say, even if you did fib to me in the beginning, it was a darned lucky meeting, Toni!" announced Cassie Doyle.

She was cooking scrambled eggs and little link sausages on an electric plate for their noon-time breakfast, while the coffee bubbled. Toni had come to share her tiny apartment.

Toni liked Cassie. She was often amazed at her point of view, amused by her nonchalance, intrigued by her Bohemian ways. The revue had been running two weeks at the Casino, and they were both still in it, at forty dollars per.

"Cute little place, isn't it?" purred Cassie, her bright eyes complacently roaming over the living room that was cluttered with useless bric-a-brac and what - nots and absurd souvenirs. A breeze jangled the bead curtains. They were hideous, thought Toni. But she wouldn't hurt kind, simple Cassie by saying so.

"You're a godsend, what with Herman so much away on the road. He's a swell looker, Herman, and a slick business fellow. One of these days," said Cassie dreamily, " he and me'll get married."

Love?—thought Toni ironically. She believed in love no longer. Poor Cassie!

"Say, why don't you give Fatty Gusheim a tumble, Toni?" — as Cassie dumped sausages and eggs on two hot plates. "He's got a crush on you, if you ask me. It's a well known proverb, in show business, to combine business with pleasure."

Repressing a shudder, Toni poured the coffee, measured the right quantity of evaporated milk.

"My mind's on my career, Cassie, which has started nicely, thanks to you and old Bridget."

"But you can push the career along a lot quicker if you're nice to Fatty. You know, in his way he's not a bad sort. 'Course, I have Herman—"

Toni sighed and Cassie desisted. There was something different about Toni—a kind of haughtiness, fastidiousness, that stopped you. You just couldn't take "liberties."

Presently, the apartment straightened, Toni went out for her early afternoon walk. Rain or shine, nothing stopped her. Cassie was lazier. But then, Cassie figured that her own work in the revue was more strenuous, what with the dancing.

In an hour, Toni was back, carrying a bundle. She was excited. She had got a record bargain.

"I was walking along Forty-fifth Street, when a mysterious car with two men in it pulled up alongside me, and one of them leaned out and, looking around to see that there was no one near, told me he had a magnificent silver fox to dispose of, and would I look at it?"

"Yes. Go on. I've wanted one myself, but they're terribly expensive," said Cassie practically, adding: "Now if you'd only be nice to Fatty Gusheim—"

Toni interrupted. "I told him I only had ten dollars in my purse. He said the fur was worth at least a hundred, but I could have it for seventy-five. I walked away. The car followed, and he showed me the silver fox. It's gorgeous. We haggled, and finally, believe it or not, he came all the way down to ten dollars!"

"Stolen!" said Cassie. "Of course, it was stolen, Toni. You must have known that!"

"How should I? I had no idea where they got it."

"Of course not, kid. Let me see it." Cassie tore off the wrapping, and, to their utter amazement, out tumbled what looked like a mangy old cat!

Toni was speechless. Dumbfounded. The two girls stared at the cheap imitation. It was terrible.

Finally Cassie found her voice.

"Darling, the old sucker game! You know there's one born every minute!" she chortled.

"Fatty" Gusheim, the director, kept Toni a little late after the show.

He had important business to discuss with her. The principal in the Monte Carlo yachting scene had a touch of laryngitis. Toni had a nice voice. He'd like to hear it solo. Maybe, tomorrow night, she could substitute?

He suggested a late supper at Dave's Blue Room.

The importance of her career in mind, Toni accepted.

He ordered champagne, Toni partook of it sparingly. He urged her to take more.

"Say, why can't a girl of your good looks loosen up a bit?" he asked irritably.

"But you wanted to hear my voice. Champagne won't do it any good," she excused herself, speaking placatingly.

"You'll have the audition tomorrow morning. We'll set it for noon, That'll give you plenty of time for sleep. Don't worry."

There was something in his tone and words she did not like. Nor was she surprised, though considerably dismayed, when presently he suggested that they go up to his apartment.

"I have a piano there," he added, seeing her look. "We'll have a preliminary try-out. What say?"

He waited for her answer.

"Why," stammered Toni, "there's a piano right here in this room, and an accompanist." The place was rather empty at the moment. She was cornered. As an alternative she would rather sing here than risk a visit to the man's apartment. "The accompanist is sure to know my songs, and I don't think the management would mind. Do let me."

At this moment, the manager stopped for a word with the director, and Toni plunged into her request.

"We'd be delighted," said the manager. Before Fatty could say anything, he beckoned the man at the piano, and Toni and he had a conference.

She was anxious to sing now, to get it over, before more people came into this late night spot. Yes, she knew French. She'd prefer to sing in French, as did the leading lady of the yachting scene for whom, provided she gave a satisfactory performance, she would substitute tomorrow night.

Toni went over to the orchestra stand. Her heart was thudding. She would conquer her nervousness. The rippling cords ran up and down the piano "'J'ai Deux Amours, Mon Pays et Paris," sang Toni, in her throaty contralto.

At the conclusion of the song came a burst of applause. A slim, sallow-looking man, who seemed as though he had been poured into his evening clothes, so perfectly they fitted, clapped loudest, from his table in the restaurant.

"Bis! Bis! Encore!" he exclaimed. Toni had a quick conference with the pianist. Then she went into the exquisite strains of "Parlez Moi d'Amour."

A curious, hungry sort of look was on Fatty Gusheim's face as she returned to the table. Thank Heaven the ordeal was over! And by the applause—it was even now ringing out surely she had acquitted herself favorably?

"Nice voice, and nice delivery," said Fatty. He added, suddenly gripping her hand under the table: "Let's get out of here, and go up to my place." He beckoned the waiter and paid the check.

"Please, no. I'm terribly tired. I'll go right home," said Toni outside, signalling a passing taxi and holding her hand out to the director. "I'll be at the Casino at noon tomorrow, for the audition. And thank you a thousand times for giving me this chance!"

Fatty ignored her hand. He mumbled something that sounded like: "So you'd turn me down huh?"

"Tomorrow at noon," repeated Toni, her face in a set smile. She got into the taxi, giving the address of Cassie's apartment. The cab swung around, and off.

Was Fatty annoyed with her?—she wondered. But she'd handled the situation beautifully, to her own mind. He knew now that her voice was good. That was the one thing that truly counted.

Arrived at the tiny apartment that had been her home for the past three weeks, she heard a man's voice, and Cassie's gay laugh.

Cassie called:

"That you, Toni? Say, I've a surprise for you! Who d'you think walked in on me? None other than the boy friend! Meet Herman!"

Toni stood rooted to the spot as Herman rose, took a step forward, stared at her.

"Why—you! You here?" Her voice was angry, incredulous, shocked! It was the man who, this afternoon, had taken her ten dollars and palmed off the old catskin on her!

CHAPTER IX

Toni awoke at eleven o'clock the next morning to the loud ringing of the alarm clock.

This was the all-important day of the audition. But merely a matter of form now, she having acquitted herself so excellently in Dave's Blue Room the night before!

She turned off the alarm, not wanting to wake Cassie in the other bed. But, glancing over, she saw there was no Cassie. The bed had not been slept in. That was funny. But perhaps the usually sleepy Cassie had risen early, tidied the place, and then gone out.

In the living room were empty glasses, half a sandwich on a plate, cigarette ashes on the floor.

And if Cassie had gone out, she hadn't made her morning coffee. More likely she'd "done the town" with Herman. And how had the night ended? Toni was worried about Cassie.

Ought she, on her return last night, to have denounced Herman, then and there?—she wondered. Shown him up for what he was, to the girl who loved him, and who had been so kind to him?

She hadn't wanted to hurt Cassie.

But Cassie had seen their mutual shock at meeting. Had acted in a huffed, suspicious manner, thereafter. Toni had gone to bed, following Herman's brazen remark that she was confusing him with someone else. Cassie apparently had not swallowed that.

Toni dressed, breakfasted, and was backstage at the Casino well before noon.

She waited. Chatted with the stage hands working with new scenery. Noon came. A half hour passed. No Fatty Gusheim.

She began to wonder if she had made a mistake in not yielding to his whim about going up to his apartment. Often he gave parties. He was hospitable. Had she been overprudish in suspecting an ulterior motive?

She sent a prop boy for a sandwich and a glass of milk and continued to wait, hoping. Hours passed.

At half past six, it was time to snatch a light dinner and hurry back to the Casino. The director would explain what had happened. Something had prevented his coming for her audition.

She was sure of that.

Arrayed in a gorgeuos gown and a huge hat swirled in ostrich feathers, Toni and the other showgirls drifted about the deck of the yacht in the first scene. The principal sang as though she'd never heard of laryngitis! Had the director's gesture been nothing but a trick?—Toni wondered.

Calamity, for Toni, occurred toward the end of the scene. She was tripping down the gangplank right in view of the audience, when the girl behind her, crowding her, pushed her suddenly, so that her heel caught in the planking. She fell to her knees, righted herself, but an "Ah!" went up from the diners. The rhythm was broken, there was an awkwardness among the other girls, a loud laugh from some one in the audience. Then order and rhythm were restored.

Fatty Gusheim was waiting for her at the end of the cat.

His face was grim.

He didn't even give her time to ask about his failure in appearing for the audition. He said curtly: "Awkwardness has no place on the stage, nor have I room for an awkward showgirl. You'll get your salary from the doorkeeper. You're through."

Nor was there any sympathy from Cassie when she reached the apartment at the end of the performance.

It was obvious that Herman had poisoned her against her new friend so as to cover up his trickster activities. Toni was "no good..' They'd met before. This he admitted She had run after him.

"Don't you dare try to tell me that it was Herman who palmed off that old fur on you!" cried Cassie, indignant. "Why, Herman only got back from Chicago late last night. He hasn't been in New York in a month. You are the liar! Didn't you trick me with that trumped-up tale of knowing my mother? It was I that got you your part in the show and you repay me by getting in Dutch with the director!"

Toni went back to her former hotel, saddened but wiser.

She would get a new job. Trust no one any more. Be harder, shrewder.

If the almost miraculous birth and survival of the Dionne Quintuplets mean anything to me, more than a biological eighth wonder of the world, it means a vital suggestion that all babies born into this worried old world can and must have the same chance for survival and health that these five little babies had and are receiving.

These famous babies, since the momentous day of their birth, have enjoyed every advantage that loving care and exacting science can give them. During my lifetime as a doctor in this northern country I saw children born and reared in anything but ideal conditions. Prenatal care was something unthought of; aseptic conditions on the part of parents were unknown. Proper feeding and routine after birth were the least considerations on the part of the mothers toward the case of their many children. It was truly a survival of the fittest.

Only under pressure of dire necessity was the counsel of the country physician sought; lack of funds with which to purchase the all-important medicines and to pay the meager fee regulated such calls, rather than need. Pasteurization was neglected; the milk supply dirty and carlessly handled, more often than not; skimmed milk, water and sugar became the diet of these little immature, emanciated, rachitis-burdened babies. Codliver oil, pure milk and orange juice, the three rudimentary necessities in such cases, were all too often lacking in their poor homes, to the detriment of the suffering babies.

And so I used to dream, as I jogged along the rough country roads behind my horse; dreams that seemed most fantastic, like reaching for the moon. These dreams always took the same shape and form—to give these innocent, disease-ridden, immature babies of the north country the same scientific advantages that the large, expensively equipped, fully staffed city hospitals gave to each little mite accepted within their doors.

I wanted these mothers to learn the advantages of prenatal care, of proper feeding and routine, of attention to cleanliness, to the hundred and one little things that make the difference beween a robust, healthy, happy youngster and these emanciated, puny little babies, susceptible to every disease, doomed to either an early grave or to live on in poor health, struggling a life-time to overcome a poor start due to ignorance and lack of knowledge.

The conditions I faced were not exceptional; doctors everywhere were handicapped by identical standards. It was a heart-rending situation that appeared to have no happy ending.

Then—one day my dream came true!

The Quints were born and in a few hours the newspapers were full of the event. Graphic stories were splashed across the front pages of every newspaper on this continent and abroad telling of the intense battle for life we were waging here. Parents everywhere became interested and followed, day by day, the ups and downs of the fight to preserve life in the five tiny bodies, weighing altogether little more than one normal baby. The medical profession, interested from a scientific viewpoint as well as the human one gave all it had.

To newspapers, also, must go much credit in a material way. Starting with practically nothing to work with, these early writers, through their daily columns, told the world what we needed. Equipment and supplies poured in, enabling us to carry on and to wage our battle with more confidence

As the Quints continued to survive, and scientific methods of feeding, education and care were undertaken, these writers, piling hundreds of thousands of words on top of millions that had already been written, helped to spread the gospel of proper child care over the world, citing the example followed for the five little girls here.

Thus my dream of years ago, that mothers of poor, neglected babies might have some illuminating example to follow, has come nearer to realization every day, through the knowledge of what has been done for the Quintuplets, and what can and must be done for all babies everywhere.

Oil Treatment Urged Prior to Permanent

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

BEAUTY SHOPS keep the permanent wave fires burning all the year round, but the average woman contents herself with two hard-boiled undulations a year. She's wise. Frequent treatments often result in a wave that soon goes limp. The spirals aren't strong, haven't enough elasticity to snap into pretty patterns.

If you are due for the frizzling ordeal, have at least four hot oil treatments. Your locks won't be dry afterwards, and they will respond to the steaming sachets. Use olive or mineral oil: both are good. Have it heated. Friction into the scalp to give the skin surface a housecleaning. Spread it the full length of the hair shafts. Ends especially need lubricating.

Get busy with the hair brush because now is your chance. When you're sporting fascinating finger waves, you'll have no yen to weaken them. If the beauty budget permits, have professional attention. It's no fun fussing with one's mop one tires too soon. Yet, home care is better than no care at all.

Should it happen that you have been playing with dyes or rinses, make full confession to the operator before the job is started.

SHIRLEY ROSS

Gives her beautiful hair the best of care

When Missus Hippy gets into a public conveyance and takes up two seats instead of one, she's in for a lot of dirty looks. There' no need to suffer this humiliation. If she will get down on the floor and roll from side to side, she'll flatten those panniers of hers.

Here's the way to do it: Lie on the back on the floor, hands clasped above the head. Lift the left leg, stretch it full length, roll to the right. Do it ten times. Then up with the right leg and roll to the left in the same manner.

Fat cells weaken when they undergo disurbances. They waste away, give up the ghost. Before starting on a rolling spree, take measurements of hips, thighs and waist. In three weeks there will be happy returns.

HOLLOWAY STREET W.M.S.

The regular meeting of Holloway Street Woman's Association was held at the home of Mrs. J. Waddell, Foxboro, on Thursday, Oct. 20th. The meeting opened with the President, Mrs. Sills, in the chair by singing 'Abide With me' followed by all repeating the Lord's prayer. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and reports of various secretaries and committees given. The roll call was taken with forty-five members and visitors present.

A helpful worship service was opened with a beautiful duet "Take up they Cross and follow Me", rendered by Mrs. Cordes and Mrs. Hagerman followed with a discourse by Mrs. R. E. Newman based on John 12, verse 32: "I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me". "The Earth Spirit" and "The Spirit of Sacrifice" were forcibly contracted, concluding with a challenge of complete surrender to Christ". Prayer closed this service followed by another duet. "He Knows" very capably rendered by Mrs. Cordes and Mrs. Hagerman.

The meeting closed by all repeating the Mizpah benediction. Mrs. Waddell and her group then served a very dainty lunch.

COURT RESERVES JUDGMENT IN PATTERSON CASE

Evidence Taken In Motor Accident Case Near Napanee

Napanee, Oct. 21.—Magistrate E. J. Butler reserved his decision for one week in the case of Col. William Patterson of Toronto, who appeared on Monday afternoon on a charge of reckless driving, arising from an accident which occurred west of Odessa on August 9th in which three cars were involved and several people were injured. The hearing took considerable time and the magistrate stated that he wished to read the complete evidence before giving his decision. Col. Patterson was represented by John Callahan, K.C., of Toronto, while K. S. Ham appeared for the Crown.

At a previous hearing, two sisters by the name of Youdale gave evidence as they had to return to England. In fact, they were enroute to Montreal to take passage on a boat on the day the accident occurred.

William Youdale, of Belleville, the driver of the car proceeding east on August 9, told the court that he was driving on his own side of the road and his speed was about 30 miles an hour owing to the drizzle of rain and the slippery highway. Mr. Youdale remembered very little about the accident as he was rushed to the Kingston General Hospital, having sustained injuries.

His companion in the front seat, Isaac Sills, estimated the speed of the Youdale car at about 35 miles an hour and said that at times Mr. Youdale dropped the speed to about 30 miles an hour. Mr. Sills said that he never saw the Patterson car turn out from the line of traffic.

R. B. Miller, who was driving westerly and whose car was ahead of the Patterson car, said that he saw a car approaching and that it was on its own side of the road. He glanced in the small mirror and saw a car in the rear of his car. Mr. Miller could not positively state how his car became mixed up in the accident. The color of Miller's car was maroon and a moment later Traffic Officer Jillings in giving evidence said that there were maroon marks on the left front fender of the Youdale car.

Col. Patterson stated that he and his wife had left Gananoque about 9 o'clock in the morning and that the accident occurred about 10.15. It had been raining and the highway was slippery.

He also stated that he had followed the Miller car for some distance and that at one time, when quite near, when applying his brakes, his car shifted.

"However my car was never over the centre line of the road, near where the impact took place and I never made any attempt to pass another car," said Col. Patterson.

The witness, in describing the accident, said that it seemed to him that the Youdale car shot in between the Miller car and his car, and might have struck the rear left fender of the Miller car first.

Col. Patterson was supported in his evidence by Mrs. Patterson, who said that their car never crossed the centre of the road.

Just before the case closed an argument arose between Mr. Ham and Mr. Callahan. The former recalled Traffic Officer Jillings and asked him to detail the statement which Col. Patterson made to him after he accident. Mr. Callahan strenuously objected and said that when Mr. Ham had the opportunity to ask the question before he closed the case for the Crown, he did not ask the question, therefore he had no right to call Mr. Jillings in rebuttal.

Stirling

Stirling—The largest church in Stirling, St. Paul'sUnited Church had its auditorium filled to doors for both morning and evening worship as friends from all parts of the district joined with the congregation for worship as they marked the occasion of their anniversary. Rev. W. J. Scott, minister, introduced the guest speaker of the day, Rev. Prof. J. O. Watts, Ph.D., of Queen's University, Kingston. Delivering excellent messages, particularly appropriate to the occasion Dr. Watts inspired the members of the church to a greater appreciation of its accomplishment. As a group the Christian people are given too much to modesty we fail to point to passed accomplishment, he stated. If we were a little more boastful we might gain ground more rapidly. Special music by the large choir under the leadership of Mr. G. L. Clute assisted greatly in the success of the splendid service offering two anthems in the morning service, "He is my salvation", Lester; "God is a spirit", Bennett. In the evening worship they sang "O praise the lord" and Miss Ruby Stapley, soprano soloist, offered "From day to day", by Millard.

Young People's Organization Begin Fall Activity

Young people's organizations of the Stirling churches begain their fall and winter activities last Monday evening after a recess during the summer months. St. Paul's United Church Young People's Union held the first meeting in the form of a social evening, acting as hosts to the teaching staff of the public school and the staff and pupils of the Stirling High School. Mr. Donald Baxter, President of the Conference Young People's Association, was the guest speaker of the evening and an excellent program featured the talent of several members.

The Program

The meeting was opened with the usual devotional period conducted by Miss M. Hagerman, President, and Rev. W. J. Scott led in prayer. This was followed by the business part of the meeting which included financial and secretarial reports. After a brief address of welcome to the visitors Miss Hagerman turned the meeting over to Mr. Don Williams convener of the program committee who acted as chairman and introduced the following numbers: Vocal solo by Miss Ruby Stapley; Instrumental selection by W. Jones; Vocal duet, M. McKee and Helen Jeffrey; Piano solo, Miss Grace Pitman, A.T.C.M. Mr. Donald Baxter, President of the Conference Young People's Unions of the United Church of Canada was introduced to the gathering at this time and delivered an inspiring address under the title "Looking to the east." The appreciation of the audience for this splendid address was briefly expressed by Rev. W. J. Scott and Mr. Don Williams. This was followed by a social period which included interesting games and contests and the luncheon served by the young ladies of the organization climaxed a most enjoyable evening.

St. Andrew's Young People's Guild

St. Andrew's Young People's Guild held their opening meeting for the fall season in the Sunday School rooms on Monday evening. The meeting opened with a brief devotional period conducted by the president, Mr. Roy Juby and Mrs. H. Foster directed the remaining portion of the meeting and introduced the fillowing numbers: Recitation, Shirley Montgomery; Instrumental solo, Mrs. R. H. Williams; vocal trio by Mary Tulloch, Marybelle Rodgers and Doris Jandrews; Recitation Donald Hulin; Vocal solo, William Dermedy. Mr. Dermedy who recently returned from the Provincial Annual Convention of Presbyterian young people gave an excellent report of its success.

Held in Knox Presbyterian Church, Toronto the convention was a vivid display of unity and cooperation from the time of registration until visitors and delegates from all parts of the province left for home filled with enthusiasm for greater accomplishment. A great Sunday evening rally at the famous Cooke's Church. A banquet at the dining hall of the Royal York Hotel. Motorbus tours through the residential parts of the city and a four of the famous Casa Loma, famous castle built by Sir Henry Pellat were features of the program which included round table conference, committee meeting and forums which brought forth excellent ideas for progressive work among the Young People of the Presbyterian Church of Canada. The meeting was brought to a close with the Mizpah Benediction.

Work is about completed on the new wing of the Stirling High School and the pupils of the manual training classes have begun to use their new equipment. Under the direction of Principal C. A. Wells the first classes were held in the new room on Wednesday and the boys are keenly interested in their modern surroundings. Within the next few days the girls division will be ready for use and classes in domestic and household science will be taught in the new quarters. The gymnasium, dressing rooms, showers, etc., are now ready for use and the entire structure will be opened officially for use in a short time.

Mr.and Mrs. Ivan Caldwell spent the weekend visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Briggs in Toronto.

Mrs. W. Haslett of Bulyea, Sask., visited friends in Stirling on Wednesday. Mrs. Haslett who is a former resident of the district is on her first visit to the old surrounding in twenty five years.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hough of Toronto and Mrs. M. Hough of Foxboro visited friends in Stirling in Sunday last.

Mr. Arthur Andrews returned home last week after spending a few days visiting friends in Aylmer and Toronto. Mrs. Andrews who remained for an extended visit will return home later.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hulin spent Sunday last visiting at the home if their daughter Mrs. Chas. Bennett, Frankford.

Miss Olive Munro, nurse-in-training at the Nichols Hospital, Peterboro has returned to her duties after spending the past ten days at her home in Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Montgomery and son Jimmie of Toronto were Sunday evening guests of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. J. Montgomery and his borther Mr. Duncan Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and Orlo of Belleville were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gel. Bennett, Ridge Road.

Mrs. Robert Christie is spending a couple of weeks at the home of her sister Mrs. Ed. Good, Thomasburg.

Miss Lottie Christie is spending a few weeks visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Christie in Foxboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rosebush, River Valley, were dinner guests in Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hulin.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Thain of Madoc spent Sunday visiting friends in Stirling and attended the Anniversary services of St. Paul's United Church.

Services were withheld both morning and evening last Sunday in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in order that its members might join in special anniversary services of St. Paul's United Church.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Covert, Church St. were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rose and family of Mount Albert; Mrs. Rose who has been spending the past three months visiting her daughter, Mrs. Covert, returned to Mount Albert with them.

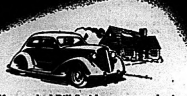
On Tuesday, Oct. 16th a group of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Thompson, Mill St., for a surprise party given in hono of Mrs. Wilson Harlow who upon that day celebrated her eightieth birthday. Mrs. Harlow who is a well know resident if the village enjoys remarkably good health for her years and was the recipient of many messages of good wishes throughout the day. In the evening the members of St. Paul's W.M.S. called upon her and presented her with a large gift box of fruit and candy. A social evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all present and refreshments served. Others present on the occasion included Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Thompson.

Mr. H. P. Ells, Manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal has returned home after spending the past few weeks in England on vacation.

BUT CAR STARTING IS ONLY ONE OF EXIDE'S MANY DAILY SERVICES TO YOU!



If you asked Bill Smith, an average business man, how often he used an Exide Storage Battery, he might answer—"Once to start my car in the morning and once again at night, about twice a day." But, let us follow Bill Smith and see. He drives to work and parks his car.

He takes an elevator to his office—operated by a dependable supply of electric current that *storage batteries help to ensure.

In one morning he makes a dozen telephone calls—without knowing that *storage batteries help to carry his voice over the wires.

If his firm receives a shipment from abroad, *storage batteries helped to ensure its safer passage because batteries are used aboard ship to safeguard the operation of wireless and modern protective apparatus—while most of the trucks that handle the cargo on the docks are electric trucks powered by *storage batteries.

That evening at home, Bill Smith turns on his radio. The broadcasting station uses *storage batteries to help keep its programmes on the air.

Later at a motion picture theatre, he hears the voices of the actors with startling realism—because the steady power of *storage batteries was used in making the film.

Asleep at night, Bill Smith and millions like him relax because of the protection offered by municipal fire-alarm systems, for which *storage batteries are the source of unfailing power.

Like Bill Smith, all of us can take these services for granted largely because Exide Batteries perform their functions with such complete dependability. It is facts like these that can help to guide you in selecting the battery for your car. Is there any other battery which so thoroughly merits your confidence? Look for the Exide Dealer Sign—a symbol of honest service.

 Exide are the batteries that business and industry depend upon in a large measure for this and other vital services.*

PANTHERS FACE STRONG SQUAD FROM COBOURG

Meikle, Visitors' Triple-Threat Man, To Be Closely Watched

LIGHT, FAST TEAM

Locals Can Get Back In Running With Win Over Cobourg

Cobourg's white-clad "Galloping Ghosts" 1937 intermediate "B" series champions of the O.R.F.U. invade the Belleville gridiron for their lone-scheduled O.R.F.U. fixture of the 1938 football season on Saturday afternoon. Fred Dufton's Cobourg squad comes to battle Coach Archie Duffield's Belleville Panther hopefuls being heralded as the speediest grid squad in Eastern Ontario, but in contrast Belleville's strongest point is their speed also. The result will doubtless be interesting.

Both teams went through a strenuous week's training, but the "Galloping Ghosts" have been idle for practically two full weeks, while the Panthers have the advantage of two league games, although not victorious in either tussle.

Morley Baker, who has been suffering from an injured hand and unable to boot the ball previously this season, reported he would take his place as the team's chief puntster and on his trusty boot will decide much, as Baker will be kicking against the most formidable opponent of his grid career in Gord. Meikle, crack Cobourg triple-threat man, who the Ottawa Rough Riders sought earlier in the season. Meikle has scored most of Cobourg's points this year, having run 105 yards for a touchdown versus the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" opening day.

The "Galloping Ghosts" boast of a squad composed of players imported from Lindsay, Peterboro and Toronto and heralded for their wide open razzle dazzle style of football. Fortunately the Cobourg squad is not as hefty as Garrison, which will doubtless favor the lighter Panthers in their plunging efforts. Coach Archie Duffield is sending in his strongest squad against the "Galloping Ghosts" in hopes of handing the Cobourg squad their initial reverse of the season and a tidy football tussle is assured the patrons of the autumn classic in Belleville on Saturday.

Public Expecting Too Much of Canadiens Says Paul Haynes

Montreal, Oct. 21 CP)— Stocky Paul Haynes hoisted a red flag today, warning he didn't like it a bit the way the paying customers is expecting so much this season of Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League race.

Now, the centre ice star is far from a pessimist and really thinks the Flying Frenchmen have a good team. But he'd feel a lot safer if word wasn't out that Canadiens are going to be "hot" Haynes considers that anything less than third place "will almost be taken as a bad season for us by the fans."

"When something happens that is expected the fans won't be so liable to rally around the team," thinks Haynes. "I'd a lot rather everyone wouldn't concede us a top place in the league and then if we did come through it would be a lot better."

Haynes called on the great comeback two years ago with Canadiens of the glamorous Howie Morenz as an example. Morenz, a long-time star with the French team, was sold and played with New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks before being repurchased by Canadiens.

"Everybody thought Howie was through when he came back to us and his great comeback captured the imagination the more because it wasn't expected generally. It lent inspiration to the team too....even after he died."

On paper and in practice Haynes grants that Canadiens look first rate.

"Of course I may be mistaken, and I hope I am, when I refuse to go overboard. Because the team really looks good and certainly should be stroner with the six players we picked up from Maroons. It certainly has to be admitted that the team looks stronger than last year when we finished second in our section."

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

There's no need for New York's National League entries, Rangers and Americans, to give Western Canada fans blood-and-thunder hockey in their current exhibition tour—the customers will come anyway. But evidently the league's last intra-city rivals mean to battle as if the Stanley Cup were at stake.

Five thousand watched the Rangers defeat the Americans 2-1 at Winnipeg last night as they opened the "wheat league" campaign, and others were turned away at the box office. It was certain then that the trek would be a financial success, but the teams put on a fiery show anyway with a free-for-all fight thrown in.

Tommy Anderson of Americans and young Dutch Hiller of the Blueshirts started a general melee that earned them major penalties.

Montreal Canadiens signed their 18th man yesterday when Jimmy Ward put it down as "James". It is believed all those who will be regulars have put their names to contracts. Manager Cecil Hart will have to dispose of some of his amateur candidates among teams of the Quebec senior hockey league, since Canadiens and their pro and amateur farms, New Haven and Verdun, can't absorb them all.

Two kids who have roomed together while teammates at Sudbury are battling for the 15th position with Boston Bruins. Pat McReavy and Glen Sutherland have been told that they're the ones for the job. Both are centres.

HAWKS ADD REAL SCORING THREAT

Addition of Three Former Maroons Team Will Be Hard To Take

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 21 (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks, who surprised last season by winning the Stanley Cup, abound with confidence that they can repeat as world champions this year with the help of the newly acquired forward line of Baldy Northcott, Russ Blinco and Earl Robinson.

The heavy scoring combination that came to Chicago from the defunct Montreal Maroons already is bidding for recognition as the Hawks' number one attack line and keen rivalry is developing in training between it and the Hawks' star line of Doc Romnes, Mush March and Paul Thompson.

Led by Romnes, who shows no effect of the leg injury that kept him out of 28 games last season, the latter line is setting a dizzy pace in training but Northcott and company are flashing more speed and cunning than they did most of last season.

A line of the Hawks' forward strength can be gauged by the fact the veteran Johnny Gottselig, leading scorer in the playoffs, is relegated to the third line. One certain mate of Johnny is Cully Dahlstrom, winner of last year's best rookie award.

All of the Hawk champions are confident of the future, but goalie Mike Karakas is far and away the most confident of all "The new forward line is bound to give us added scoring punch," he reasons. "You have to remember we did alright last winter with the 'guns' we had. Add the new ones to that and what have you?"

Nothing but the next world's champions," he grinned in answer to his own question.

Jacobs and Shubert Taking Good Licking In Jai Alai Venture

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Mike Jacobs, known as a man with a keen eye for a dollar, has discovered the perfect scheme for reducing his excess profits from the prize fight industry, and in a round-about way, giving the income tax collector a licking.

Mike, along with Lee Shubert, the theatrical man, is putting up the money for those dazzling exhibitions of jai alai (pronounced hi-li) seen nightly and Saturday matinees at the Hippodrome. It's been going on for a couple of months now, and the nightly loss is a satisfying $400 or better.

The nightly "nut", including salaries of the swarthy men who bang the ball about, advertising and hire of the hall, is $1,200, and the receipts haove averaged around $800. At this rate it will, of course, take some time for the proprietors to get back their original investment of $50,000.

So pleased are Jacobs and Shubert with the reception given the favorite Latin sport by the thrill-seekers of Sixth Avenue that they plan to keep it going at least for another year. By that time they should be getting a whale of a laugh at the government's expense.

If you are not familiar with jai alai, it is something like handball, only the players attach a basket-like contraption to their arms that has the general effect of a sling-shot, sending the old goatskin against the wall at the approximate speed of light.

RIGHT WINGER IS NEEDED BY LEAFS

Jackson And Horner Think Team Could Win If Player Available

Preston, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—There's only one thing lacking to make this year's edition of the Toronto Maple Leafs a Stanley Cup team, Red Horner and Busher Jackson are agreed. That's a good right winger of the calibre of the famed Charlie Conacher at his peak.

Not that the Leafs won't win the world's professional hockey championship and the cup this season, Red and Busher hastened to add last night as they discussed the team's prospects in the 1938-39 National Hockey League wars which open Nov. 3. It's just that there is a wee bit of doubt about it without the big bomber patrolling right wing.

Jackson 27-year-old left wing stalwart, and Horner, 29, should know what is needed to win the Stanley Cup. They are the only surviving members of the Maple Leafs that won the Stanley Cup in 1931-32, the last time Toronto has won Lord Stanley's rather worn piece of silverware.

Horner summed it up: "Our team looks pretty good right now, but I think we need a right winger. If we had a right winger like Conacher at his peak, no doubt we'd win the Stanley Cup this season. At this point Jackson interjected: "I've never seen our team work as hard in the training camp as they have this season".

Conacher was forced to retire from the game last season owing to ill-health. He is attempting a comeback this year with Detroit Red Wings. His sale to Detroit was announced shortly before last year's N.H.L. champions went into camp.

DORAIS' THEORY TO BE TRIED OUT

Abolish Point After Touch And If Teams Tied, Most Yardage To Count

Detroit, Oct. 21 (AP)—Charles (Gus) Dorais, veteran head coach at the University of Detroit, advocates settling the argument over football's point after touchdown by abolishing it and counting a touchdown seven points.

Dorais would settle tie scores by ruling the team which makes the most yards from scrimmage the victor.

The Detroit coach has made tentative arrangements to try out the theory Nov. 27 when his team meets Santa Clara at Sacramento, Calif. Buck Shaw, Santa Clara coach, is willing to co-operate it was understood here.

The plan provides for an official scorer who would keep a record of yardage gained.

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—This should clear up the Don Budge situation....All he is waiting for is not the $25,000 difference between him and Jack Harris but the National rankings....The minute he is named United States No. 1 amateur again, he'll turn pro in a hurry, unless all the dope we have is screwy, and will make his pro debut in Madison Square Garden Jan. 9 against Ellsworth Vines.... This may or may not turn out, but you can wait and see.

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

Recommendations to further the opening up of Canadian football are being suggested by Robert D. Campbell, veteran Ottawa football coach. There are those who believe it would be advantageous to permit the use of any forward pass play from any position behind the line of scrimmage; will not require the forward pass to cross the line of scrimmage and will enlarge zone of interference from three to ten yards in advance to the line of scrimmage. At present, however, the forward 'pitch' can only be tossed from a point five yards behind the line of scrimmage. It seems the Western Canada and Quebec football mentors have already accepted the advanced rules.

Mr. Campbell continued to comment on the subject as follows: "Making the forward pass from any place behind the line opens up many new possible plays," he commented, "and if the ball did not have to cross the line of scrimmage the game would be still more interesting. Extending the interference to at least five yards would mean that very few plays would be called back because scarcely any line plunge goes farther than five yards. It would also mean that some of the play which is now not quite legal under the rules but is not called by the officials would be proper."

There is no doubt but the introduction of these proposed rules will open up the game considerably. However, we are not in favor of the complete adoption of American football rules. If interference is permitted up to ten yards in advance to the line of scrimmage, we feel the ball carrier has had sufficient assistance and should be forced to gain his own yards with good broken field running from that point. Canadian football places more responsibility on the individual ball carrier than does the American style, all of which makes the game more interesting, but to open up the Ontario game would do it no harm, as we see it from this corner.

Local football fans will get a peek at a fast-moving quick-passing rugby squad here on Saturday when the Cobourg white-clad "Galloping Ghosts" invade the Belleville gridiron for a league fixture. Particularly of interest will be the work of Gord Meikle, Cobough's triple threat star. Meikle raced 105 yards for a touchdown against the "Flyers" recently, while his punting ability attracted several tempting offers from the camp of the Ottawa Rough Riders prior to the opening of the current football season. To date the scores in the district intermediate O.R.F.U. loop have not been too one-sided and even if the "Galloping Ghosts" are reputed to be the strongest squad in the group not infrequently we find the under-dog rising up to slap down the high and mighty, which may be the case when the Panthers meet the "Ghosts" tomorrow.

We received a letter from Fred Dufton, manager of the Cobourg squad today. Fred says his "Galloping Ghosts" are not taking Saturday's game too lightly. "We had our squad out four nights this week and I think Belleville fans will like our style of play. We have a light, but fast squad, but always remember—a fumble or two and it's any man's football game," reminded Fred. If the Cobourg squad is light and fast a much different type of game can be expected than the Panthers were forced to play against the bruising Garrison squad. Belleville has a fairly light and fast squad also, so we're looking for a wide-open football game with lots of razzle dazzle as the "Ghosts" and Panthers clash Saturday.

Mrs. Carol Karakas, wife of "Mike" Karakas goalie on the world champion Chicago Black Hawks, sustained serious injuries during a motor accident near Champaign, Ill., yesterday. Mrs. Karakas was enroute to visit her husband who is training at the University of Illinois with Coach Bill Stewart's Black Hawks.

Attention Rev. Hope Swayne, President of the Trent Valley Hockey League—"If your loop desires additional clubs for the coming season there is a group of potential pucksters in Belleville who are anxious to sponsor a Trent Valley team for 1939. It seems the employees of the local banks in Belleville feel they can ice a fairly good squad of puck-chasing artists and desire a berth in your loop. They have players the calibre of Freddie Baines, former Winnipeg star, Bob Pringle, exToronto Marlboro junior, "Tip" Tummon from your own village of Tweed, Alex Stark, Ernie Whelpton, former Hamilton hockeyist and several others who want to get back into the game. For further information contact Mr. Brown of the Royal Bank here in the city."

The standing of group No. 1 in the intermediate O.R.F.U. today is:

	W.	L.	Pts.
Kingston	2	0	4
Cobourg	1	0	2
Belleville	0	2	0

Games Saturday: Cobourg at Belleville; Wednesday, Cobourg at Kingston.

HODGE PODGE — The latest wrinkle will be soft sweet organ music with your hockey at the Maple Leaf Gardens this season; 'twouldn't be a case of—'music hath charms to soothe the angry beast?' ..Billy Evans, former American League arbiter, will be the chief speaker at a baseball banquet in Niagara Falls next month....Only five answered the call to basketball arms the other night at the "Y", but who would be thinking of tossing ringers with such nice weather in evidence?

OTTAWA - ARGOS' CLASH SATURDAY GAME OF WEEK

Deep Thorough Hatred Has Sprung Up Between Teams

VASTLY DIFFERENT

Argos Depend On Speed While Ottawa Will Use Tank Corps

(By Sydney Gruson Canadian Press Staff Writer).

The first big blow of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union's 1938 season, which has gone two weeks in the calmest manner, comes up Saturday with those old-time rivals, Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts, prepared to commit a slight case of murder on one another in the east's feature game.

From where it sprang no one really knows, but through the years a deep, thorough hatred has developed between the teams. Put an Argo and a Rider opposite each other on a football field and anything is liable to happen. Last year they carried Harry Sonshine out of one game with a broken jaw and Ed McFall suffered a broken leg.

The prospects of viewing such ferocity apparently delights the fans and the early ticket sale indicates 20,000 will jam Toronto's Varsity stadium to watch the Big Four's classiest squads, who must battle all over again in the playoffs. They did just that last season, when Argos staggered through for the Union championship, and eventually the National title.

Both at Top Strength

The set-up is just right for tomorrow. Both clubs have breezed past Montreal Cubs and Hamilton Tigers, who will be settling the cellar position at Hamilton and both are close to top strength.

As usual, it will be a clash between different systems with Argos relying on speed and kicking to offset Ottawa's acknowledged superiority along the ground. The Rider tanks—Dave Sprague, Frank Ussher, Bunny Wadsworth, Tony McCarthy and Murray Griffin—have been rolling stronger than ever and the attack has become more versatile with Griffin to aid Orville Burke at passing.

Elimination faces at least one team in each of the three senior unions as the schedule moves to the half-way mark. Losers of two straight, Peterborough Orfuns and Queen's University, the college champions of 1937, face stern opposition.

Imperials Rated to Win

Orfuns make a home stand against Sarnia Imperials, who are rated to win almost as they please over the youthful and inexperienced Peterborough squad. Bernie Moroz will not play for the O.R.F.U. champions, a leg injury shelving him for 10 days. Queen's, weakened by injuries, must beat the powerful undefeated McGill Redmen to retain serious hopes in the college race. They play on McGill's home grounds.

Next to the feature game, the best football of the day should come from Montreal, with the O.R.F.U. Nationals and Toronto Balmy Beach meeting for the first time, and London, where University of Toronto fight it out with University of Western Ontario for second place in the college circuit.

ST. KITTS TO HAVE SENIOR 'A' TEAM

Will Play Games In Niagara Falls Until New Rink Completed

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 21 — (CP)—Under the watchful eye of Alvin (Speedy) Groh, one-time professional star, St. Catharines Macs are prepping for their debut to senior "A" hockey ranks this season. By the year's end, the Macs will have St. Catharines' new $80,000 rink as their home arena.

While finishing touches are being put to the new building, first covered rink in the city's history, the team will play home games at Niagara Falls.

The team is being built around the best of last season's senior "B" team with Bobby Pinder, Arnold and Lorne Rombough, Frank Dorman, Spud Inglis, Joe Desson and Walt Coupland the best of that group trying for places on the senior "A" squad. Groh, besides coaching, also will take a regular turn on the ice.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was opening his mail at breakfist, saying, Well well, every dog has his day, this is an honor.

Why, Willyum, what do you mean, what is it? ma said, and pop said, It seems my services are requested at the capitol, I don't know if I'd actually get to meet the governor, but anyway this letter is written on official stationary. Not so bad for a small business man, he said.

Now Willyum you know you're far from a small business man, you're a big business man and you've had honors galore and this one is no more than you deserve, ma said. Do they want your advice about something? she said, and pop said, Well yes, it seems they understand I have access to some information that mite be of value to them, although I'm sure I dont know what gave them that idea.

Oh dont be so modest, ma said. Do they want you to serve on a committy? she said, and pop said, Well, they dont say.

It must be that, it couldn't be anything elts, ma said. The newspapers are full of committies nowadays, I dont know how they keep out of each other's way. Maybe you could take me with you, Willyum, it would be very narrow minded of them not to pay all your expenses in a case of this kind. When do they want us, I mean when do they want you? she said, and pop said, Well let me see, according to this it seems any time within 14 days will be okay.

My, maybe you'll have your picture in the paper, ma said, and pop said, There you go again with your modesty. Is it entirely honorary or will there be a fee attached to it? she said, and pop said, There may be a fee, but they'll call it a fine. It seems there's a little misunderstanding about my income tax return, but I imagine I can settle the whole thing through the mails, he said.

And he left for his office not looking worried and ma finished her breakfist looking disappointed.

AT THE McCARTHY

"NOTHING SACRED"

Carole Lombard finally got the chance for which she was waiting —the opportunity to swing a right across to Fredric March's jaw.

Throughout the David O. Selznick technicolor comedy, "Nothing Sacred," the feature attraction at the McCarthy theatre, directed by William A. Wellman, Miss Lombard has been on the receiving end. She was kicked and punched in the hotel room fight scenes; she was pushed off a dock, shoved into a packing case and pulled beneath two wrestlers.

The return bout came with the shooting of a new scene, in which Miss Lombard, catching March unawares, swings once, and with finality.

"This," she said, as Director Wellman gave the call for action, "is indeed a pleasure."

Then she swung. March couldn't retaliate because it wasn't in the script.

Hilarious scenes of the screen play written by Ben Hecht, from an original story by James H. Street, are of the type in which fast action and dialogue are mingled. Many of the funniest lines are spoken between punches, during kicks, or while the stars are dodging pursuers.

Excellent Featurettes

An extra treat entirely in technicolor, presented in advance of the technicolor feature presentation "Nothing Sacred", features tiny Sybil Jason, one of Hollywood's most talented juvenile stars in a British Army story entitled "The Littlest Diplomat." That we mention as one of the finest short subjects, that has ever shown on the screen, "Porky's Phony Express" an amusing musical cartoon offering and another thrilling chapter of "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok" are two more praiseworthy featurettes, that round out an excellent two hour program, of a swell variety, of entertainment, at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"MYSTERIOUS RIDER"

"BREAKING THE ICE"

Russell Hayden, Charlotte Field and Douglas Dumbrille in "Th Mysterious Rider" coming to the Belle Theatre.

Boasting a story genuinely human in theme, richly enhanced by homely humor, with scenes laid in the contrasting backgrounds of a quaintly rustic section of Pennsylvania and the entertainment world of Chicago, and with an elaborate and beautiful sequence of an ice-skating carnival as its show-piece, Bobby Breen's latest and by far most pretentious picture. "Breaking the Ice," approaches screen presentation. It will be seen at the Belle Theatre. Featuring the world's youngest ice figure-skater, Irene Dare, and Charlie Ruggles and Dolores Costello, at the head of a supporting cast of brilliant names, the film takes rank easily as Bobby Breen's most important vehicle.

Bobby himself, whose glorious singing voice has enriched four previous pictures, emerges in "Breaking the Ice" as an entirely different screen personality. The boy is strangely revitalized. Many of the mannerisms which he had been taught to adopt in his previous work are gone, and he stands out as a dominant character, a scrappy, happy-go-lucky youth who fights adversity with a song on his lips and dynamite in his fists.

Another factor which lends importance to the picture is its size and quality. Plain is the fact that this is the costliest of all Bobby Breen features to date. The sets are elaborate, and the songs the boy sings are the best he has ever had.

It is interesting to observe that Victor Young, the noted orchestra leader, is responsible for the musical setting, and that Frank Churchill, in collaboration with Paul Webster, wrote three of the five songs Bobby sings. Churchill is the man who composed those unforgetable numbers in Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

The picture numbers among its supporting cast such stellar players as Charlie Ruggles and Dolores Costello, and Robert Barrat, Dorothy Peteron, Charlie Murray and Billy Gilbert. But the big surprise is little Irene Dare, the six-year-old figure skater who is known throughout the middle-West as the "baby Sonja Henie."

"Breaking the Ice," is little Miss Dare's debut in motion pictures, and it is fortunate that she found a picture and a producer worthy of her unique talents. This child is a marvel at skating. With the least amount of effort she somersaults on ice, whirls, spins and dances to the accompaniment of a full orchestra of forty pieces.

Zane Grey's Story

Zane Grey, dean of Western writers, has fashioned a thrilling story of quick-shooting cattle thieves, masked riders of justice and young lovers of the plains for "The Mysterious Rider," which Paramount will present to local outdoor action fans as the added attraction. Douglass Dumbrille, playing a masked horseman who has been exiled from his ranch for a murder he did not commit, stops his wandering long enough to come to the rescue of his beautiful daughter, whose property is menaced by a crooked guardian in secret league with rustlers. After routing her enemies and cinching her romance with a handsome young foreman, he rides away into the desert again without revealing his identity to her. The young sweethearts are played by Russell Hayden, the familiar "Lucky" of "Hopalong Cassidy" stories, and pretty Charlotte Field.

"MARIE ANTOINETTE"

Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer's spectacular romance "Marie Antoinette", featuring Norma Shearer and Tyrone Power concludes a highly successful four-day engagement at the Belle Theatre tonight. Two entertaining featurettes precede the attraction.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, October 22
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE ASTRAL influences for this day point to great progress and prosperity, with affairs moving under high pressure, stimulated by an expansive ambition to accomplifish mighty and endurable objectives. And while all such are under fine stimuli, with much promise of achievement, there may be tenacious obstacles, disappointments and postponements to cope with. Some arduous effort may excite bitter opposition or histility, which should be met with tact, diplomacy or strategy.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of great opportunity, with promise of success and prosperity. However, their aggressive and bold efforts may provoke hostility, enimity and bitter opposition. These would be best manipulated by quiet methods, rather than open friction.

A child born on this day may be capable, versatile and have great energy and high ambitions. It may work under high pressure and meet much opposition and enmity. Its ultimatqe success depends on early training and direction.

"WORN OUT" AND WORRIED

Dragging around each day, unable to do housework — cranky with the children — feeling miserable. Blaming it on "nerves" when the kidneys may be out of order. When kidneys fail the system clogs with impurities. Headaches — backache, frequently follow. Dodd's Kidney Pills help clear the system, giving nature a chance to restore health and energy. Easy to take. Safe. 116

MARIE ANTOINETTE

Adapted from the METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Picture by GERTRUDE GELBIN

SYNOPSIS: Marie Antoinette is married to Louis August, Dauphin of France, for reasons of state. Court intrigue lead by Du Barry, the King's Mistress, makes Marie the tool of the unscrupulous Duke D'Orleans. Using Marie's childlessness as a pretext du Barry influences the King to annul the marriage. Everyone deserts Marie, but she finds in Count Fersen a friend. She learns to love him, as he loves her.

NOW READ CHAPTER FOUR—BELOW

"I'm so happy—happy—happy!"

Their night of love gone, Marie Antoinette (Norma Shearer) and Fersen (Tyrone Power) bid each other a tender farewell. Marie is overjoyed in their love. She promises they shall meet soon again, this time at her personal palace, the Trianon. She glories in the fact that her marriage will be annulled, because the annulment will remove from her forever the position of Queen and leave her free to love Fersen. In memory of their meeting she gives him her ring inscribed "Everything Leads To Thee."

"I shall do without your help, Duke."

Marie returns to the Palace of Versailles to find it in confusion. King Louis XV (John Barrymore) is dying. The order for the annulment of her marriage has not yet been carried out. Should he die before this is done, the Dauphin (Robert Morley) will be King, and she, in her present status as his wife, will be Queen. The very courtiers who deserted her the day before now rally around her. Marie spurns the Duke D'Orleans (Joseph Schildkraut) and thus makes him her mortal enemy. The Dauphin shyly confesses to her that just prior to the King's collapse he had pleaded her cause, because he loves her.

"I love you—but you are Queen of France."

The King's death and her husband's avowal of love come as a catastrophe to Marie. After she and the Dauphin are crowned King and Queen of France she seeks a rendezvous with Fersen. He tells her sadly that although he could dare to love a Dauphine, he must not love a Queen. He is sailing for America to join Lafayette. He promises he will love her always; that he will come to her should she ever need him. He departs with the words: "You must live openly, in sight of all, with authority—and never with regret." Her heart broken, Marie nevertheless realizes and accepts his wisdom.

"What an excellent smith you would have made."

Thus love goes out of her life forever; but its memory sustains Marie in her determination to be a good Queen and a devoted wife. She bears Louis a son and daughter; as the years pass she learns to care for him with a kindly affection because of his goodness to her children and herself. She tries to help him rule, but he lacks the force and decision needed in that critical period. Marie realizes sadly that his only fault is that he was born a King. As a blacksmith or carpenter he would have been a happy, forthright, honest citizen. Read the next chapter.

The Third Big Thing

By SUSAN FELDMAN

Until now only two exciting things had come into Anna Kearn's twenty-two years of life. Both occurred when she was only seventeen, a senior at high school.

Anna had been the plainest and quietest girl in her class. She wasn't even "least popular," She just wasn't noticed. Her hair hung down her back in a heavy braid. Her clothes were severely cut. She spoke to no one first, and when others tried to make friends with her, her painfully forced manner led them to believe that she did not desire their friendship.

Nevertheless, Anna delighted in looking at her pretty classmates, and she was afflicted with an almost fanatical worship of Don Roberts, the football hero and the most popular boy in school.

One day Anna became ill. It was not a serious illness but kept her in bed for a week. In her room at home Anna was a changed person. Here she was a princess cast into a dungeon because she would not marry a powerful cruel king but remained true to her poor knight. Hee she was all in all. In her room she let her hair fall loosely to her shoulders. It softened her face and lent a lovely glow to her cheeks and eyes.

One afternoon, as she lay in bed gazing through the open window at the blue skies, she heard voices in the yard below.

Anna sat up and looked eagerly at the door. Slowly it opened and a cheerful voice said: "Your mother told me to come right up. I've come to visit you and bring you something."

Don Roberts the high school hero! He had come to visit her! In that moment her hero worship turned into something deeper and finer, and she welcomed him with pleasure and surprise. Don was quite as startled as she, but only becasue she looked so pretty.

"Gosh, Anna," he said, "you look awfully pretty with your hair down like that and everything."

Then, suddenly, he remembered something. With a half-smile and half-puzzled look on his face, he drew a small candy box out of his pocket. Then he grinned and said: "Here, Anna, is something some of the fellows elected me to bring to you. I hope you'll like it."

Anna thrilled with the laughter in his eyes. No one had ever before been so kind to her. Her eyes flashed with delight and her fall was complete.

"For me?" she asked. So she took the box, opened it quickly, and gazed petrified at its contents: a big lemon!

Then Don laughec and laughed. For one agonizing moment Anna thought she would cry. Then: "Thank you, Don, and thank the others. It's nice to be remembered."

"Say?" he was full of admiration for Anna. "She's a sport! She said, 'Thank you, Don, and thank the others. It's nice to be remembered.' Gee, she's awfully pretty."

From that day Don began to pay attention to Anna. He walked near her, talked at her, invited her to every conceivable event, but was coldly snubbed in every case. Incidentally, Anna was wearing her hair curled softly about her face. Don persisted in his attentions even after he had graduated from college. Though she had forgiven the lemon episode, she seldom encouraged him. Finally he left for a position in New York. That was more than a year ago. Meanwhile Anna lived the life of the average American girl.

Now as she sat in the same little room staring happily at a letter and picture in her hand she thought back over the past few years. The third big thing was coming into her life! Don was in a position to get married and wanted her for his wife.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 21—(AP)—Rails, Aircrafts and Specialties furnished rallying fuel for today's stock market but many issue failed to work up rising steam.

Motors, Steel, Utilities and Rubbers chugged over a narrow route. Profit taking hit the market after the opening and the ticker tape, for a while, fell behind. There was a subsequent slow-down and prices, near the final hour, were well fixed.

Transfers were about 1,800,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct 21.—(CP)—Led by the Food Shares, the Industrial section of the Toronto Exchange advanced narrowly today while the Mining Division showed as many or more losses than gains and the Western Oil were barely firm. Volume was off to about 675,000 shares with the Junior Golds providing more than their usual portion of the turnover.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

Effects of One Cent Rise in Price of Base Metals

Aldermac produces about 6,000,000 or more pounds of copper so that a one cent increase in the price would mean additional earnings equivalent to between 2 and 3 cents per share.

Consolidated Smelters which is the world's largest producer of lead and zinc benefits chiefly from these two metals; the production is so large that a One Cent increase in the prices for lead and zinc means additional earnings of $2.00 for each share of the stock. More than any other stock, "Smelters" is extremely vulnerable to fluctuations in lead and zinc.

International Nickel controls over 90 per cent. of the world's output of nickel and the price for that metal does not change; however its copper output is huge, amounting to 300,000,000 pounds annually so that a One Cent rise in the red metal means additional profits of $3,000,000 or the equivalent of 20 cents per share.

Sherritt Gordon is not selling its zinc but sales of copper run at 10,000,000 pounds annually so that a one cent rise in copper means about 5 cents a share additional profits.

Waite-Amulet will soon be producing well over ten million pounds of copper and still more zinc; additional profits per one cent rise in metals would be close to 20 cents a share. When new proposed mill is in operation additional profits would be on a proportionately larger scale.

The United States is Quickening its Pace Toward the Inflationary Road

Bullish traders and some seasoned investors are not inclined to worry too much about such temporary maladjustments as the relationship between stock prices and company profits, divergence of commodity prices, labor troubles and political unrest in Europe. They hold that this country is quickening its pace toward that point in the inflationary road at which credit expansion will make itself felt in stock and commodity prices, comments the financial editor of The New York Sun. "We have been having inflation of a dangerous sort— the spending of billions more by the Federal Government than it has collected by taxes and which have been obtained by marking up bank credit—for several years. That can't go on forever without spurring speculation in stocks. Time certainly is working on the side of the speculator who is holding for an inflationary boom.

Butter Offerings Continue Light

Toronto, Oct. 21.—An easier undertone developed in butter on the local produce market yesterday, while eggs were barely steady.

Prices drifted lower on the butter market as trading maintained a quiet pace. Offerings, however, were not piling up to any extent, with current supplies light and no butter moving out of storage. Ontario creamery solids were quoted in the range of 22 3-4c to 23c for No. 1 grades, 22c to 22 1-4c for 38 score. Prints were unchanged at 24 1-2c to 25c for top grades and 23 3.4c to 24 1-4c for 38 score.

Consumers, feeling the effect of present high prices on top grades, are apparently buying the lower grade eggs. As a result demand has slowed considerably on top grades and the tendency was for reduced prices on these grades on the egg market. Mediums and pullets in particular were difficult to move. Fresh receipts were reported as sufficient for requirements. Graded shipments sold yesterday at 41c for grade A-large, 39c for medium, 30c for pulelts, 26c to 27c for B's and 21c to 22c for C grades.

Butter Steady At Montreal

Montreal, Oct. 21 (CP)—Butter continued to move at steady prices on open produce markets here yesterday, while the cheese section remained easier and quiet, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Egg prices dipped slightly.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24c to 25c a pound, and creamery solids for 23 1-2c to 24 1.2c.

Cheese sold at 14c to 14 1-8c a pound for Ontario white, 14 1-8c to 14c for Ontario colored. Receipts: 5,778, including 1,866 boxes for export.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 42c a dozen for A-large, 40c for A-medium, 30c to 31c for A-pullets, 26c to 27c for B.large, and 20 1-2c to 21c for C. Receipts: 1,090 cases, including 450 for export.

CHICKEN THIEVES GET 3 MONTHS

Nathan Clapper And Joseph Storms Sent Up "On The Hill"

Nathan Clapper and Joseph Storms, both of this city, were sentenced to serve three months in the common jail by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., today after being convicted of the theft of eleven chickens. The pair elected summary trial on an indictable offence and tendered pleas of guilty, when charges were read by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

Mr. Donnan introduced the previous convictions registered against the respective accused men and urged severe punishment. "Chicken thieving is about the meanest crime on the calendar. The owners have no protection at night and naturally are vulnerable. I strongly urge a penitentiary sentence," demanded the Crown Attorney, which resulted in the court being interrupted by sounds of sobbing, coming from relatives of the accused at this point.

"My client, Clapper, was convicted last in 1932, since which time he has been a law-abiding citizen. Restitution has been made, this man is not a confirmed criminal and I strongly urge a suspended sentence," stated R. D. Arnott, K.C., counsel for Clapper.

"A penitentiary sentence is absurd. My client is not a habitual criminal and should not be judged for all of the chicken thefts of the community. He was not the ringleader, but was drawn into this," stated Jacob Goodman, local barrister appearing for Storms, when he was suddenly interrupted by Mr. Arnott, who remarked: "Careful there, my learned friend—remember what happens when thieves fall out."

"I will not suspend sentence in such cases as these. This is a serious matter and I wish to warn all that the judgment of this court is not to be considered a precedent," sternly warned Magistrate Butler as he imposed a three months' sentence upon each man charged.

City Clock Recovering From Lightning Bolt

A lightning bolt which shattered sections of masonry on the upper section of the city hall tower during a severe electrical storm this fall, also gave the city hall clock a severe case of the "jitters." "But the clock is gradually getting back to normal", it is reported by Jack Roblin, custodian of the clock, following numerous complaints from residents they have been unable to keep their own clocks and watches in tune with the official time.

"The old clock has been galloping back and forth since she was affected by the lightning. It's been impossible to get it running right. But the last few days we've been able to check her down to the last few seconds", it was added.

The venerable old time piece was further reported to be in extremely dirty condition. Not for a period of five or six years has it been given any sort of cleaning, and according to the caretaker its interior is "full of sand and grit."

"City council ought to remember the clock now and then and appropriate enough to have it cleaned right. Then it will be just as good as the best of them", declared Mr. Roblin.

SILVER SAVED BUYS A NEW WASHER

From cigars to suds, in two years. Realizing that he was spending too much money in tobacco, a Picton resident decided to quit smoking and save the silver he ordinarily spent for this luxury.

The other day he emptied his bank of seventy dollars in silver —went down town and purchased his wife a washing machine.

Mrs. Sarah McColl still is in very poor health.

FIRST CHIMNEY FIRE OF SEASON REPORTED

The first chimney fire of the fall and winter season occurred yesterday afternoon when city fire apparatus answered an alarm to 52 West Moira Street. Overheated stovepipes had ignited a chimney in the home of a family named Rutter, but no serious damage resulted before the blaze was extinguished by firemen.

FRAGRANT ROSE AGAIN BLOOMING

Strawberries and raspberries ripening in October are now common occurrences. And now the fragrant rose is coming in for its share of publicity. The other day, Mrs. W. B. Purtelle, Barker Street, Picton, discovered a lovely red rose in the full beauty of bloom growing in her garden. The mild weather of the past two weeks is believed responsible for the unusual bloom.

What price SPACE MR. ADVERTISER?

Space in a daily newspaper possesses a power that is lacking in the lineage of other advertising media.

It is not only more economical . . . which is a matter of easy computation . . . it is not only more flexible, it is not only more timely and rapid, but also it is the advertiser's unfailing point of contact with the mass market and every spot market of the Dominion of Canada.

The Daily Newspaper possesses a power by means of which an advertiser, who knows how to use it, can reach and move to action all or any part of the Canadian consuming public.

In this North American continent there was spent during 1934 in the columns of the daily newspapers more than $500,000,000. The strongest of all supplementary media was used to the extent of $114,000,000. Why?

Because for prompt action on sales plans . . . for quick consumer influence at minimum cost . . . for willing co-operation from the retail trade, the daily newspaper is today, as it always has been, the outstanding and most economical basic advertising medium.

Plainfield

Plainfield—On Sunday, Oct. 16, the officials of Hazzards United Church, of the Queensboro pastoral charge at their anniversary services which were conducted by the Rev. J. F. Everson, a former minister, requested from the congregation an offering of $150.00 to meet necessary expenses. When the receipts were counted the treasurer asked the minister to announce that over $175.00 in cash had been that day contributed through envelopes prepared for the occasion. This same congregation last April when their minister the Rev. E. D. Snelgrove, was about to leave on a vacation to Florida presented him with a month's salary in advance. Such action surely proves that many people still are sound at heart in their relation to the importance of the work of the church. One attractive feature of the morning service was a junior choir of thirteen youths who led the singing and supplied two special numbers.

The anniversary services held at Mount Pleasant United Church, Plainfield circuit, and conducted by the Rev. E. D. Snelgrove of Queensboro were well up to other years and considered by the members of the congregation a splendid success. The choir of Gilead United Church supplied the music in the morning and the Plainfield choir for the evening service. The thankoffering received instead of having a supper came up to the expectations of the officials.

The sympathy of their many friends in this community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brough in the death of his only sister Mrs. John Goodman, who passed away in Picton Hospital on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Addison Hall and family of Toronto spent the weekend with friends here.

Tweed—Tweed Lodge A. F. and A.M. was favored on Friday night with an official visit from Right Worshipful Bro. Clem Ketcheson, D.D.G.M. of Frankford Lodge. The first degree was exemplified by the officers of the the local lodge. At the conclusion of this and general business the members of the lodge with a number of visiting brethren from Madoc, Marmora, Belleville, Stirling and Frankford Lodges repaired to the banquet hall below where the ladies of the Eastern Star served a banquet. The hall was appropriately decorated with autumn leaves. The tables were attractive with fruit, pumpkins and autumn flowers.

Worshipful Master Bro. Edward Rath made a most efficient toastmaster, proposing the toast to "The King and Craft". The National Anthem was the response to this toast. The toast to the "Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge Officers" was proposed by W.M. Bro. A. W. McGuire and responded to by the D.D.G.M., R. W. Bro. Clem Ketcheson. The toast to "Canada and the Empire", proposed by Bro. Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne. responded to by Br. Dr. Harold Welsh, M.P.P. The toast to "Visiting Brethren" proposed by Wor. Bro. T. C. Graham, responded to by Wor. Bro. Chrysler, Marmora; Wor. Bro. Nicholson, Frankford; Rt. Wor. Bro. Canon Swayne, Bonarlaw; Bro. E. W. Jamieson, Stirling; Bro. W. Mellican, Medicine Hat; Wor. Bro. Gable, Madoc. The toast to the "Candidate" proposed by Sr. Warden Bro. W. A. Paul and ably responded to by the Candidate.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Climate and human pursuits! Our activities are determined largely by climate and weather, which is strikingly illustrated in the stretch of country from Florida to Maine. In southern Florida winter vegetables are grown; in northern Florida, oranges; in Georgia and South Carolina, cotton; in North Carolina, tobacco; in New Jersey, summer vegetables; in Massachusetts, cranberries. Of course some of the products are determined by nearness to markets. There is also a great variety of pursuits in going from the east coast to the west coast. In the east most crops are harvested in summer and fall; while in the west coast in winter and spring.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 22 (CP)—Pressure continues high over the Prairie Provinces and Western States, and high pressure has spread across Northern Ontario and Western Quebec while a disturbance of moderate intensity is centred just west of Lake Michigan and fairly low pressure covers the Mackenzie Valley. The weather has been fair and somewhat cooler in the Prairie Provinces and it is now comparatively cool over Eastern Canada. Light showers have occurred in the region of the Great Lakes, while farther east the weather is generally fair.

Lake Superior—Strong east and northeast winds; cloudy and cool with showers or snowflurries, chiefly over southern and eastern districts. Sunday, fresh northeasterly winds; mostly cloudy and cool.

Manitoba — Light to moderate winds; fair and cool. Sunday, fair and somewhat milder.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Fair today and Sunday and becoming somewhat milder.

WOULD REQUIRE REGIMENTATION IN SOME FORM

Triangular Treaty Would Be Departure of Germany's Bilateral Policy

'ARENMARK' SUGGESTED

Problem To Find Ways For Having Germany Buy And Supply Goods

Berlin, Oct. 22 (AP)—Authoritative economic ministry quarters proposed today that three unofficial economic experts, representing the United States, Great Britain and Germany, get together soon and try to devise a triangular agreement to supplant or supplement the proposed Anglo-American trade treaty.

Such unofficial experts, conferring with the approval of their governments, would in the opinion of these quarters lose nothing if they failed, but had everything to gain for their respective countries and world trade if they succeeded.

One of their tasks, it was suggested, would be to restore confidence among business leaders of the three countries involved. Another would be to find ways for having Germany buy and supply those things which at present are a stumbling block to conclusion of the Anglo-American treaty.

Germany could buy American cotton, wheat and tobacco, but as she has no foreign exchange with which to pay for them she could supply Great Britain with needed chemicals, electric goods and machinery. Great Britain, instead of paying Germany for these, would pay cash to the United States for Germany's purchases of American raw materials.

German authorities admit the proposed triangular arrangement would not be possible except under some form of regimented economy. Foreign economic observers pointed out that the triangular proposal constitutes a definite departure from the bilateral principle hitherto adhered to by Germany.

Assuming that the three economic experts failed, German authorities have another card up their sleeves for German-American trade. They suggest the creation of a special "arenmark", meaning a special mark covered not by gold but by goods. This mark would not be saleable on the money market but would be used for transactions with the United States in specified types of goods only. It was pointed out that Germany already has this type of mark in use with South America.

Germany Seeks New Deal.

One reason for Germany's anxiety about establishing better economic relations with the United States lies in the fact that Czechoslovakia was one of the few European countries which enjoyed the advantages of an American trade treaty.

Under terms of that treaty, Czechoslovakia exported toys, cheap jewelry, glassware and many other objects, virtually all of which were produced in Sudetenland. Germany stands to lose this lucrative business unless a new deal in German-American economic relations is made.

Opportunity for Youth and Security for Old Age Needed

Dr. R. J. Manion Says This Will Make Life More Liveable

TRINITY OF ABUSES

Vancouver, Oct. 22 (CP)—A breakfast address to young Conservatives today started the schedule of Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, National Conservative leader, on the second day of his stay in Vancouver. Tonight Dr. Manion will head east with speeches scheduled at Calgary, Moose Jaw, Branton, Souris and Winnipeg.

The Conservative party was prepared to go ahead with the reforms needed to ensure the preservation of the British democratic political system and the capitalistic economic system of free enterprise, Dr. Manion told 1,800 persons at a party rally in the auditorium here last night

Opportunity for youth and security for old age were the key reforms needed to make life more liveable for the great number of people. They were both attainable with an enlightened public opinion and the party was ready to do its part in creating that opinion and in

DEPREDATIONS, VIOLENCE WORSE THAN IN 20 YEARS

Largest British Force Since Allenby's Time Now In Palestine

WATCH DEVELOPMENTS

By EDWIN JOHNSON

London, Oct. 22 (CP)—The largest British overseas force since General Allenby conquered Palestine twenty years ago is operating today to put down rebellious Arab guerrilla bands in the Holy Land.

Harassed British statesmen, whose lives have recently become a matter of one crisis after another, are looking anxiously eastward, whence come reports that the violence and depredations of the Arab rebels are worse than at any time in the two decades since Great Britain began administrating the Holy Land under League of Nations mandate.

A Chronic Headache.

For Malcolm MacDonald, youthful Colonial Secretary, the Palestine problem is proving just as much a chronic headache as it was for his predecessors. But the man credited largely with bringing Britain and Eire together is believed by many observers to have a good chance of settling the long-standing Arab-Jewish conflict.

Recent emergency measures have met with encouraging success but

Two Large Bears Turned Out to be Couple of Porcupines

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP)—The mistaken judgment of two Toronto hunters probably explains why they went "pheasant-less" yesterday.

In new hunting outfits and with new guns, the visitors went into the bush near here, ready for a day's pheasant hunting. But they weren't in there long before things started happening.

Uphill residents—they tell the story—heard yells and saw two hunters dash out of the woods.

"Two bears in there," they gasped, and kept on running to their automobile.

Uphill people armed themselves and took up the trail of the "bears". They found two large porcupines.

RUDOLPH SIKORA FREED OF CHARGE

Jury Finds Man Justified In Killing Sweetheart of Wife

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP)—A jury of eleven husbands and a bachelor decided Rudolph Sikora, the "perfect husband", was justified in killing the man who stole his young wife's affections.

They acquitted the 31-year-old defendant last night after deliberating less than two hours.

Russell Hornburg, 35, Jury foreman, apparently voiced the sentiments of his fellow jurors when he declared

"We felt that he acted in a way that should protect the sanctity of the American home."

Edward Solomon, 35, the bachelor lover of Mrs. Margaret Sikora, was shot to death on a street corner last Aug. 22.

"I feel swell," exclaimed Sikora.

In contrast, his 25-year-old wife was calm. She had scored her husband's defence by taking the witness stand to vow allegiance to the memory of her dead lover.

"I expected that verdict," commented the pretty brunette

BABY'S DEATH TO BE PROBED

Guardian of Child Gave Police Statement After Arrest

Ottawa, Oct. 22 (CP)—Further investigation into the death last Oct. 2 of 18-months-old Arthur Jones will be made by authorities, it was indicated last night after an inquest into the baby's death was adjourned to next Thursday.

Mrs. Mary Dora Mulligan, charged with boy's murder, adopted the child from a Hull woman last Sept. 5, according to witnesses at the inquest.

Evidence showed Mrs. Mulligan, with the baby, had dinner with Paul Hamilton, a Chinese laundryman, in Ottawa the night the child died.

A statement made by the accused to the police after her arrest and produced at the inquest said the child started to cry and have a fit.

"I went for some water and when I came back I gave it a slap and my breath and then I took the child to the tap and it kind of fell on the tap and bumped its head and I gave it my breath again," the statement said.

Mrs. Hulligan said in the statement "if I had intended to kill it I would not have brought it to the hospital.

CZECHOSLOVAKIAN TROOPS READY TO PROTECT BORDER

Italy And Germany Are Urging Hungary To Accept Terms

DIFFICULT TO RESTRAIN

Prague, Oct. 22 (AP)—The general staff reported today the killing of twelve Hungarian terrorists and one Czech gendarme during fighting near Berehovo in southern Slovakia.

It declared Czechoslovak troops captured a number of other alleged Hungarian terrorists, seized their arms and ammunition, and surrounded eight persons who made up the remainder of a band operating around Hunyadi, near Zerehovo

In a communique it also reported terrorists firing from ambush had wounded two Czech gendarmes at Perechrestna, in the district of Svalava.

"Gendarmerie officials were ordered in pursuit of the attackers, one of whom was wounded fatally and three of whom were captured.

Hungarian patrols which were reported to have tried to mine a bridge near Svihy were said to have been dispersed on the approach of Czechoslovak soldiers.

Uzhorod, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 22 (AP)—Hundreds of thousands of Czechoslovak troops were ready for action along the Hungarian border today, but the general feeling among them was that Hungary would not resort to military action to enforce her territorial demands.

One authoritative source estimated 750,000 Czechoslovak soldiers probably were concentrated along the frontier from Komarno deep into Ruthenia.

(Dispatches from Balassa Gyarmat, on the Hungarian side of the border, said close to 500,000 Hungarian troops faced Czechoslovakia. In some sections, the reports said, officers had difficulties in restraining their men from crossing the line "to free Hungarian brothers and sisters from the Czech terror".)

200 Hunters Get Less Than 100 Birds On First Day

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP)—Hunters swarmed through the Brant County Townships of Onondag and South Dumfries today hoping to have better luck on the second day of the county's first pheasant shoot than yesterday when the two-day event began. The 200 or so hunters out yesterday collected less than 100 birds

As far as could be learned, only one hunter made the three-bird bag limit. He said he got his early and that was the only time a person had a chance. Jack rabbits and cottontails were plentiful but most hunters scorned them.

JAPAN COMMAND SAYS THE FALL OF HANKOW LIKELY

Mass Bombing Planned To Shatter Last Chinese Resistance

START WITHDRAWAL

Foreign Shipping Advised To Avoid Canton Area In South China

Shanghai, Oct. 22 (AP)—Japanese commanders said today the fall of Hankow was imminent and said the Chinese were in retreat at that wartime capital, goal of the Japanese invasion.

Mass bombing of the Hankow area to shatter the last Chinese resistance was foreshadowed in a memorandum delivered to envoys of foreign powers at Shanghai, warning foreign shipping to proceed up the Yangtse River at least ten miles above Hankow by midnight tonight.

The memorandum, which also advised foreign shipping to avoid the Canton area in South China, explained that Chinese troops were retreating across the Yangtse at Hankow and said extensive bombing might be necessary.

Japanese forces stabbing at Hankow's outer defences were pushing nearer to the city every hour.

Fall of Canton — Japanese announced the city was occupied—was said to have given impetus to the central China drive against Hankow and the adjoining cities of Hanyang

TWO CONTENDERS TO BE MEASURED

Bluenose And Thebaud To Race On Sunday Over 36 Miles

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 22 (AP)—Remeasurement of the two contenders for the sailing championship of the North Atlantic today had both in port.

After charges and countercharges, the race committee directed that Captain Angus Walters' big salt banker Bluenose, the Canadian defender, and the Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, American challenger, be-measured again to determine if they meet the rules of the international fishermen's trophy race.

The committee directed resumption of the deadlocked series — in which each has won a victory — off Gloucester at 10:05 a.m. tomorrow. A 36-mile course, twice around an 18-mile triangle, has been ordered.

Dense Undergrowth Hampers Hunters on Amherst Island

Birds Hard To "Kick Up" And Trained Dog Needed

PHEASANTS WISE

Dawn today signalled another outburst of firing along Ontario's pheasant-hunting front as the nimrods scrambled in their last chance for a bag of the elusive birds. The two-day open season prevailing in fifty townships ends at dusk tonight.

First day casualties were conservatively estimated at 1,000 birds and three humans None of the latter, however, were hurt seriously. H. O. White and Charles Kirk, officials of Westminster Township near London, were pinged in the neck by pellets while Oliver Sturdee, 75-year-old farmer of the Aurora district, north of Toronto, was grazed by a bullet. In the same area a dairy truck was splattered by shot.

Many on Pelee Island.

Biggest concentration of hunters occurred on Pelee Island, situated some 25 miles out in Lake Erie south of Leamington and 45 miles from Windsor.

On this spot of land, the most southerly in Canada, the number of hunters is limited to 650, and the size of the bag to five birds.

Reeve Hubert Taylor said last night few of the gun-toters succeeded in bagging the limit.

"The hunters told me the birds were there all right, but they were too wise," remarked Taylor.

Capture of Canton City, Expected Fall of Hankow May be Prelude to Peace

Might Content Selves With "Undeclared Armistice"

THREE TERMS OFFERED

Resignation of Chiang Kai-Shek One of Terms Demanded

Tokyo, Oct. 22 (CP-Havas)—Japan is ready to make a fair peace with China, a high Japanese official close to the government told Havas today. No actual negotiations have been undertaken as yet, he said, but the capture of Canton and the expected eary fall of Hankow may well be the prelude to a negotiated peace.

Pending such a peace Japan may content itself with an "undeclared armistice". That would mean no further advances beyond Hankow and restriction of further military action to "mopping up" in the occupied territories.

Havas' informant, listed among the leading "moderates" close to Premier Fumimaro Konoye, outlined Japan's terms as follows:

1. Resignation of Chiang Kai-Shek and the organization of a new government headed by an outstanding Chinese leader.
2. Co-operation between China and Japan in all domains.
3. Rupture of China's relations with the Soviet Union.

Hunts Pheasants For Family to Celebrate Luck

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP)—An unemployed toolmaker, Ross Moyer of Echo Place, hummed something about having a pocketful of dreams today and went pheasant shooting so the family could celebrate his luck in having a horse in the Irish Hospital sweepstakes.

Moyer would not believe the news yesterday when informed his ticket under the name of "Risco" drew Miss Windsor, a 33-1 shot in the Cesarwitch. He will receive at least $2,300 and stands a chance of collecting $150,000 if the horse wins.

A toolmaker in the Massey Harris plant, Moyer has been out of work several weeks but expects to be called back as soon as the plant resumes operations.

Motorcyclist Takes Spill Into Ditch

Burrs, Ont. Oct. 22nd. (Special)—Hurled into a deep ditch when his motorcycle skidded from the shoulder of the road while attempting to pass a car on the Allisonville, Harnes Corners road late last night, Keith Quackenbush, farm laborer of this district was knocked unconscious, suffering slight head injuries, that medical examination later revealed to be not serious.

James McKenna, a friend of Quackenbush, who was riding in the pilion seat when the accident occurred was uninjured.

Quackenbush was attempting to pass a car while returning from an amateur play at Allisonville, and, it is said, turned to the right in an effort to get by. The driver of the car pulled over to the right side of the road, and forced the motorbike to the soft shoulder, where it skidded and turned over in the ditch.

Dr. R. A. Sarles, Wellington physician, rushed to the scene and treated the injured man who was unconscious for upwards of thirty minutes. He was taken to his home after recovery, by Murney Parks, his employer.

Germany Wants to Become Third Party In Trade Agreement

Berlin, Oct. 22 (AP)—German economists indicated yesterday that Germany would like to become a third partner to the British-United States trade treaty now under negotiation in Washington.

One of Germany's highest economic authorities, without permitting his name to be used, expressed the opinion that the proposed Anglo-American treaty could more rapidly become a fact if Germany were let in on it.

According to this authority, the United Kingdom is unable fully to absorb raw materials from the United States because of its agreements with Canada. Germany could take these American raw materials, such as cotton, and pay for them with industrial goods deliverable in England.

He mentioned chemicals as one specific German product which Great Britain could readily absorb. Some types of machinery also were mentioned

DEFENCE COUNSEL TO APPEAL TERM

Harold Oliver, Farmhand, Given 15 Years In Penitentiary

Cobourg, Oct. 22 (CP) — Harold Oliver, 20-year-old farmhand from Hamilton township, yesterday was sentenced to fifteen years in penitentiary on a charge of wounding Mrs. Edith Parker, farmwife, and to five years concurrent on a charge of setting fire to her home.

Another charge against Oliver was transferred to the next assizes, the crown intimating it would be withdrawn. Defence counsel F. C. Richardson announced he would appeal the sentences.

Oliver was convicted Thursday of the assault charge, it originally having been one of attempted murder. He pleaded guilty to the fire-setting charge.

All three charges arose from an incident July 11 when Oliver is said to have entered the Parker home, attacked Mrs. Parker with an axe and then forced her 19-year-old daughter Josephine, into another room where she too was assaulted. Before he left the house he cut the telephone wires and left a burning cigarette on the couch.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGE

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP)—Fred Pearson of Toronto was acquitted of a manslaughter charge by an assize court jury here yesterday.

The charge arose out of an automobile accident near here in which William Hicks, also of Toronto, was killed.

TWO KILLED IN CRASH

Aden, Arabia, Oct. 22 (CP-Havas)—A bombing plane of the Eighth Squadron crashed today at Khormasar Airport. Its pilot, Roy Chill, and a soldier passenger, Leslie Wilton, were killed.

NADINE HALL RECEIVES GOLD MEDAL AWARD

Belleville Board of Education medal for the year 1938 for the pupil winning the highest marks in High School entrance class has been awarded Miss Nadine Hall of Queen Mary School, members of the Board were informed by the school inspector at their regular meeting last evening.

Miss Hall placed first with an aggregate of 689 marks out of a possible of 750.

The gold medal which will be especially made according to the Board's own design will be presented Miss Hall by mail owing to the fact she at present resides in Toronto.

TRUANT OFFICER MAKES REPORT

Finer weather during the month of September resulted in more activity on the part of the school attendance officer, F. Wiggins, it is revealed in the officer's monthly report, which showed a total of 117 home and 49 school visits had been made. During the month a total of 12 home permits were also issued. One child of a public school received the gift from the Belleville Kinsmen Club of a pair of glasses specially prescribed, for which thanks of the Board of Education has been tendered to the club through Dr. Bird.

1481 SCHOOL CHILDREN EXAMINED BY NURSE

During the period between September 19th and October 18th, a total of 1481 pupils of the city's public schools were inspected by the school nurse, Miss E. A. Earsham, it is revealed in the monthly report. Of this total, 43 special physical examinations were made. During the period 176 office treatments were given in the schools 24 home visits were made, and seven visits of parents to school offices were recorded.

Health of the children was comparatively good, with only two cases of measles, four of chicken pox and three of whooping cough being registered.

At the end of this month the city Medical Officer of Health will visit schools and give toxoid treatments for diphtheria. "While there is practically one hundred per cent immunization from small pox in Belleville's schools, with beginners and newcomers each year there are about thirty per cent to be immunized against diphtheria", it was reported by Miss Earsham.

Hamilton Command Approves Appointment Group Capt. Godfrey

Squadron Leader D. U. McGregor, M.C., and his officers of No. 119 Bomber Squadron, R.C.A.F., of Hamilton, hail the appointment of Group Captain A. E. Godfrey, formerly of the Royal Canadian Air Force base, Trenton, to head the central command of the Royal Air Force, it is noted in a news article in yesterday's issue of the Hamilton Spectator.

Commenting upon the appointment of Group Captain Godfrey, Squadron Leader McGregor declared the former Trenton base commander to be a "well known and most capable officer".

OBITUARY

JOSEPH H. FORTIER

(Verdun, Que.)

Joseph H. Fortier, Canadian National Railways Parlor Car conductor, died in the Belleville General Hospital early this Saturday morning, Oct. 22, as the result of heart ailment. The deceased who was 54 years of age, was taken ill while in the discharge of his duties on the fast train which arrived at Belleville from the east, en route to Toronto, on Thursday evening, Oct. 20. Upon arrival at Belleville, Dr. E.G. Kennedy, Medical Officer for the C.N.R. here, ordered removal of the sick man to the Belleville General Hospital.

The body will be forwarded today from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, to Verdun, Que.

TOP GRADE EGGS ADVANCE 5 CENTS

Supply Chickens Offered At 60-70 Cents Each—Butter At 35c

Egg prices shot sharply upwards on the city market today noting an increase of five cents as "A" selects were quoted at forty-three cents per dozen, with mediums selling at thirty-seven cents and pullets at thirty-three cents per dozen. Wholesale prices quoted to vendors were thirty-nine cents due to increasing demand on city markets.

Cool Autumn weather with a bright sun shining brought out a large number of vendors who displayed a good offering of staple winter fruit, vegetables, and dairy produce.

A low temperature drove vendors and shoppers to the comparative warmth of the inside market where a good display of chickens, ducks, butter and eggs was offered. Chickens were fairly plentiful with choice young birds selling at sixty and seventy cents each with yearling hens offered at from ninety cents to one dollar each. Ducks were quoted at from ninety cents to $1.25 each.

Farmers' butter remained steady at sixty-five cents for two-pound rolls with "singles" offered at thirty-five cents each. Home-cooking booths were well patronized with shoppers availing themselves of the many delicacies offered.

Vegetables in bushel lots appeared to predominate this phase of offering on the outside market, with parsnips at seventy-five cents; carrots at sixty cents; onions at eighty cents; beets at seventy-five cents; and turnips at fifty cents rounding out a variable display. Cabbage and cauliflower were fairly plentiful selling at from five cents per head according to quality and size.

Potato prices remained steady in spite of slight fluctuations on other markets; Bag lots were quoted at ninety cents with bushels offered at sixty cents. Radishes, celery and other bunch vegetables sold well at the usual prices.

Northern Spies headed a variable winter apple display with tree-picked fruit quoted at $1.50 per hamper. Windfalls were offered at one dollar per bushel.

Large Greenings were quoted at $1.50 per bushel, Tolman Sweets at the same price, and Delicious at one dollar per hamper for windfalls. Blue and white grapes were quoted at thirty-five and forty cents per basket with Large Prune Plums selling at sixty cents per six-quart basket. Home-grown cranberries made their initial appearance on the market today and sold briskly at twenty cents per quart. Hickory nuts sold at the same price.

Fresh Laketrout at twenty cents per pound, with a slight additional charge for filleting and cleaning, white fish at the same price, mullets at three for twenty-five cents, mudcats at two pounds for twenty-five cents and pickerel at eighteen cents per pound rounded out a variable fish-offering.

Provincial Officers Visit L.O.B.A.

At their regular lodge meeting the ladies of the L.O.B.A. had as their honored guests R.W. Prov. Grand Mistress Sister Moore of Lindsay, R.W. Prov. Grand Chaplain, Sister Johnson of Trenton, R.W. Prov. Grand Deputy Lecturer of Picton and Honorary Grand Mistress Sister Mandar of Ontario West. The ladies of the local lodge are always glad to have the Grand Mistress present as she always has so many things that are worth while to leave with members. She also brought greetings from her lodge members. Other honored guests brought greetings from their lodges. Visitors from Trenton, Picton, Holloway, Napanee and Brighton were present.

Initiation ceremonies were conducted by a degree team of P.M. After this ceremony W. Sister Ceigler presented the Grand Mistress with a lovely gift as a token of esteem.

After business of lodge all repaired to dining hall where all sat down and did justice to the many good things set before them. The ticket with W. Sister Turner, Grier St., being the lucky winner.

TRAVELLER'S CAR SPATTERED BY SHOT

Some local duck hunter in the marshes just west of the road near the bay bridge who is believed to have fired too close to the highway at a flight of ducks is believed responsible for the spattering of pellets on the side of a car and through the window of the driver's seat, narrowly missing Kenneth Nevin, local salesman, on the bay bridge road last evening.

Driving north along the road just before the local man heard the sound of a dull report, and immediately experienced the metallic rattle of shot bouncing from the side of the car. Several of the pellets reportedly entered through the opened window and were deflected to the floor of the machine where they were picked up later. They were spent in force, however, and caused little damage. On the exterior of the car, small dents in the paint showed where the scattered shot had struck.

It is the second report of the season of local hunters shooting too close to homes and highways adjacent to nearby marshes.

FATHER DROWNS DAUGHTER

New York, Oct. 22 (AP) — Raymond Swinscoe, 39, a relief worker who admitted holding the head of his four year old daughter under a kitchen faucet until she drowned, today faced a 20 year-to-life prison sentence.

The term is mandatory. Swinscoe interrupted his trial to plead guilty to second degree murder. The State charged Swinscoe disliked the child because he did not believe he was her daughter.

Police Blotter

Continued complaints relative to rowdyism in the vicinity of a Prince Edward County dance pavilion resulted in the apprehension of two local youths, charged with violations of the Liquor Control Act last night. The complaints were received at the Provincial Police headquarters and subsequent investigations terminated in arrests. Provincial Police issued a warning today regarding such practices, revealing that the penalty is extremely heavy in such matters, when convictions are registered.

Considerable property damage resulted to motor cars as the result of an accident, which occurred at the intersection of Foundry and Church Streets, yesterday. Mrs. H. Buskard was proceeding north on Church St., in an automobile, which was in collision with a truck driven easterly on Foundry Street by Michael Masterson, R.R. No. 5, Belleville. Fender and body damage to the vehicles was considerable, police stated following investigations. No charges were deemed necessary howver.

Herbert Fadella, no address given was arrested by Trenton police yesterday, on a charge issued by local police. Fadella was remanded in custody on a nominal charge of vagrancy and will be held for investigations following alleged threats said to have been made by the accused.

1938 EDITION OF KIWANIS KARNIVAL A FINE SUCCESS

Interest of Crowd Centred On Various Draws of Final Night

AMATEUR SHOW

Thanks of President And General Chairman Extended To All

Climaxing a four-night show with a display of super-entertaining, the 1938 edition of the Kiwanis Karnival lowered its final curtain last night in a blaze of colorful glory. Three thousand people crammed every available inch of space in the Armouries to pay tribute to their favorites in the Popularity contest; to enjoy the splendid program of guest artists and amateurs who accorded every bit as much entertainment as did their more experienced colleagues and to hold high hopes that there take-a chance spirit would bring to them one or more of the many valuable prizes that were decided on the draw of a ticket.

Naturally the interest of the large crowd was centred on the several "draws" for prizes that took place after the high-class entertainment had concluded. It milled around the stage shortly after eleven o'clock when announcement was made that the drawing for the fifty dollar door prize would take place.

Farm Laborer Wins $50

And interest did not die down after ticket No. 3845 held by Charles Healey, a farm laborer residing on Rural Route No 4, Belleville, bashfully approached the stage and claimed the prize. It cheered the winner who modestly spoke his thanks.

Vociferous acclaim rang out when Master of Ceremonies Fred Whyte announced that Miss Eva Hogle had been returned winner of the Popularity Contest and had been formally crowned "Miss Belleville" with Marion Clark finishing in second place a few votes ahead of Gladys Knox last year's winner. The winners were presented to the audience from the stage and each gave brief speeches of appreciation to those who had assisted them in the contest.

The crowd still strained in expectation as tickets for prizes given for holders of stubs in the Popularity contest were drawn by a diminutive young lady. The first prize of thirty-five dollars was won by Howard B. Dafoe of Stirling, with Barney Smith, 8 King Street, Belleville and Mrs. Ted Watts, 143 Burnham Street, this city, winning second and third prizes of twenty and ten dollars respectively.

The envied hope chest, a centre of admiration during the entire four nights of the Karnival was won by Mrs. L. M. Howe, of 311 Charles Street, Belleville. Two tickets for the Belle Theatre were awarded to Miss Margaret Howes, Rednersville, while the handsome radio donated by the Home Appliance Stores was won by Miss Alice Knight, 191 Charles Street, Belleville.

Entertainment provided by a number of guest artists and junior and senior amateurs of the city and district received the well-merited acclaim of the large gathering.

St. Michael's Children's Band in a variable offering of music; an acrobatic team from the same institution, that showed amazing ability in pyramid, tumbling and other physical calisthenics, Jackie Marsh, Belleville's "Bobby Breen" whose sweet voice captivated his listeners; Jimmie Cowan and Mary Lou Pigden in "Little Lady Make Believe"; Miss Mary Forster in a sparkling tap-dance that drew vociferous applause; dancers from The Ontario School for the Deaf, whose abilities in colorful costume denoted the results of careful training and who presented a girls' dance ensemble and a mixed Spanish dance; a "Farmer's Fiddlers Trio", whose rural melodies on guitar, violin and harmonica brought them rounds of applause and the splendid voice of George Walsh, bass-baritone opera star, whose closing number "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" fairly brought down the house, rounded out a part of the program, that was thoroughly appreciated by the audience.

Amateur Show Excellent

With the applause of the audience denoting the popularity of the various contestants, and being the base of the various awards, senior and junior amateurs swung into action with a splendid varied program.

Douglas Saylor, Belleville, a clever youngster with guitar and mouth-organ won the senior first prize with Murray and Melita Smith. Bloomfield's smooth singing-and-playing duo finishing in second place Ruth (Billy) Marsh, a sister of the famous Jackie, annexed third money with her fine voice.

In the junior section, dainty Margaret Cockrill, 143 Burnham St., won the acclaim of the audience with her clever tap-dancing. In second place came Len Haggerty. Ivanhoe's contribution to the singing world while Jean Woodward, a clever roller-skate tap-dancer and pupil of Miss Forster finished in third place.

Other contestants in the contests were: Senior, Wilfred, Jack and Kenneth Motley, boy musicians and Dolores Istead, pianist. In the junior ranks were besides the prize winners, Frank Cronin, harmonica; Marshall Spafford, imitator, who deserved a better fate and Jimmy Cowan and Jerry Forster, boy singers.

So intense was the applause of the audience while judging of the various winners was taking place that Master of Ceremonies Fred Whyte and Kiwanians Ivan Scott and Frank Domenico were forced to ask for "repeats" before final selections could be made.

President Ab. Boynton of the Belleville Kiwanis Club in a brief address expressed his appreciation of the support of the public and told the large crowd, that every cent of the proceeds would be devoted to the many service activities of the club. Kiwanian Frank Domenico voiced appreciation of the club to those individuals and organizations, who in any way assisted to make the Karnival a success.

A Touch of Drama

A touch of unexpected drama was injected into the evening's fun shortly after the draw for the door prize took place, when a carelessly thrown cigarette ignited paper decorations of one of the booths. Flames shot quickly up the side of the wall and for a tense moment excitement reigned and anything was liable to happen.

Thomas Gill, snatched at burning paper, and in spite of fiery crown of burning tinsel that settled on his head, inflicting light burns, with the assistance of Fire Chief William Lynch, whose hands were scorched in the operation, beat out the flames before they made any headway.

It was a tense moment, and only the presence of mind of Gill, Lynch and a few cool spectators, averted what might have developed into serious consequences.

Lateness of the hour and the condition of the dance floor prevented any attempts at dancing. Booths carried on a land-office business until a late hour when the 1938 Kiwanis Karnival passed into successful oblivion.

Home and School Clubs of District Meet in City

80 DELEGATES ATTEND

Home and school clubs from Peterborough to Belleville inclusive met Friday for a regional conference in this city, with Mrs. G. A. Spicer of Peterborough presiding. Sessions were held during the afternoon in King George School, with a dinner served by the Comrade Club in the Tabernacle United Church at six o'clock and the evening session in Queen Alexandra School. About 80 delegates attended, the largest registration being from Peterborough which sent thirty-seven members.

After a hymn, "O, Master Let Me Walk With Thee", Mrs. R. Parnell, president of Peterborough Home and School Council, took charge of the devotional exercises using Matt. 18: 1-6-10 as her text.

Mrs. Spicer in opening the conference said that eight of such sessions were held throughout the province at this time of year to better equip members with better ability to handle the problems of parent and teacher education. The provincial president, Mrs. Reese, sent a message of regret at not being able to be present as she was in Woodstock attending another meeting.

Discuss Programs.

The first part of the meeting was devoted to a discussion of program planning for a smoothly functioning club. Mrs. L.M. Richardson, past president of Queen Alexandra Home and School Club, Peterborough spoke on the objective of a meeting. It is necessary to have an object before one can have an objective. The main object of the club is to foster a sympathetic feeling between parent and teacher. The mother shows her sympathy with a teacher by loyal co-operation, such as seeing that the teacher is regarded with respect, or stressing punctuality and regularity. Study groups are of major importance and there is a wide range of subjects from which choice can be made in training to better citizens. A good meeting, the speaker pointed out doesn't just happen. It is planned. There could be a talk by a teacher, the main address by the speaker, reports of the various committees, a little music and a social half hour when members can get acquainted.

Procedure of meetings was the second topic under Program Planning and was capably handed by Mrs. Darling of Peterborough who advocated opening of the meeting with the Lord's Prayer, and opening it promptly at eight o'clock. The president welcomes members. Business should be brief and the speaker's talk about twenty or thirty minutes. The meeting should close with the National Anthem. At each meeting the principal or a teacher should be present and any problem to be brought before the parents can then be discussed.

The duties of each officer were then outlined. Mrs. Gillespie of Peterborough assisted with this part of the program. It was suggested that children should be occasionally given a place on the club's programs. This will give them self assurance. They should appear first on the program, however, so they can go home immediately.

Home Education.

Mr. A. Mowat, Inspector of Public Schools, Peterborough, delivered a most interesting address on Home Education. Parents he said should have a general knowledge of the child's school life and of his growth. The proper environment for the child was of great importance. The first seven years of his life are the most important and parents should bear in mind that at this time a child's education does not try to prepare him for adult life but helps him to develop his own individuality.

The bodily growth of a child is rapid, and so is his mental growth. Thus one must keep his interest moving. Participation in play is vital and the companionship of other children is necessary if the boy or girl is to learn to live happily with others, without the handicap of an inferiority complex. He learns much from the child older than himself, but there should not be too great an age difference. A child is dynamic, he either moves forward or backward.

During the first period in a child's school life he learns the art of adjusting himself to others, takes an interest in playing games. Then comes the age when he grows lazy This must be watched and counteracted by the wise parent. The collective tendency is the next to develop followed by the constructive age when the child can be interested in useful handicraft work.

For his first years the child dwells in the realm of imagination and does not know the difference between truth and untruth. He should not be punished for his imaginary tales but these should not be encouraged. At about five, he should be taught to develop truthfulness. To trust the parent, the child must receive rigid truthfulness from adults. Fear engenders untruthfulness and a feeling of confidence and trust should be fostered between parents and children.

Must Interest Men in Meetings

Mrs. W. H. Finkle, president of Queen Alexandra Home and School Club, Belleville, discussed ways of interesting men in the meetings. She suggested having the meetings in the evening so that the men may attend. Special fathers' meetings could be arranged, or men could be asked to take charge of program and while it is realized that no one type of program will interest all men, men can be kept busy in club work. Mrs. Finkle outlined some of the meetings held at her club which had proved most successful.

Mrs. R. J. Ashbury, president of King George Home and School Club, Belleville contributed a paper on "Type and Time of Entertainment". One must not lose sight of the fact that the main object of the club is to promote parent education, child welfare and unite the home and school in common interests. The different types of program may be chosen as educational lectures, music, dramatics, especially short plays. The League of Nations committee will supply clubs with many different plays which would be of value not only as entertainment but as fostering good citizenship, world friendship, and a knowledge and understanding of people in other lands. Debates are also always good entertainment. Speakers on current events add to a program. A friendly half hour should be spent at every meeting being sure to have some one to welcome and introduce new members. Friendliness should be the keynote of the social hour.

Banquet is Held

At six o'clock members adjourned to the church parlor at Tabernacle United Church for dinner. Here attractively decorated tables bright with red tapers and blossoms were arranged with a delicious variety of food served by members of the Comrade Club. Mrs. Spicer presided and following the appetizing menu the members heard with interest a talk by Mrs. W. R. Morris, Peterborough, a member of the Board of Education of that city and of the executive of the National Federation of Home and School Clubs. She told some of the outstanding features of the annual meeting recently in Halifax of the Dominion executive. She spoke of the sorrow the members felt at the retiring of Dr. Kirby of Calgary, long the national president. His successor, Mr. L. A. de Wolf, director of rural education for the Province of Nova Scotia, was informal, pleasant, with a well trained mind, one who would be a real leader. She referred to an interesting talk on the Nova Scotio cooperative plan[illegible] by St. Francis Xavier College, not as a religious movement but as a step towards helping the province lift itself out of the depression, led by men who are servers of mankind. At the banquet Mrs. Morris said she heard the most delightful music she had ever listened to, at such a function and the program of Scottish and Irish airs was irresistible. The Premier, Mr. Macdonald was especially captivated by their charm.

At the conclusion of her address a vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. P. Black of Peterborough, while Mrs. W. Finkle of Belleville, expressed appreciation to the ladies responsible for the fine banquet.

The evening session of the Regional Conference of Home and School Association was held at Queen Alexandra School, Mrs. Spicer, Peterborough, presiding.

The meeting opened with the Vesper Hymn.

Mr. A. A. Martin, Inspector of Public Schools, Brighton, gave a most interesting paper on the new course for grades 7 and 8. The course has been in use only since September. It is carrying out the idea of progressive teachers, who found the curriculum needed to be changed in a changing world.

Mr. Martin discussed the seven divisions of the course, Social Studies, English, Composition, Mathematics, Science and Health, Music and Art and explained the method by which each is taught.

The speaker had a large number of interesting articles showing the projects undertaken by the students.

Mr. H. J. Clarke, B. A. Inspector of Public Schools for South Hastings, addressed the members on "The Wider Area of Administration." Mr. Clarke in an interesting manner reviewed the educational system of Ontario. He traced developments in methods of teaching and discussed advances in education in city and country. Compulsory attendance measures originated in Belleville, Sir Mackenzie Bowell sponsoring this phase of school law.

A keen discussion followed both addresses and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Members of the local Chamber of Commerce, in an effort to stimulate building trades in this and other areas of the province, will in a resolution which is to be presented to the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce at its annual meeting to be held in Toronto next month, will ask Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and the Province of Ontario, to have a "realignment of the system of municipal taxation, so that it will bear some reasonable relation to income received from property so taxed".

The local Chamber would have an enactment of the law which would permit the tenant of the property bear a fair share of the burden, as in Great Britain.

The resolution in full which will be presented at the meeting is:

"Whereas it is fully and generally realized that the present scale of municipal taxation has effectively stopped the building and allied trades, has seriously jeopardized the financial stability of all our municipalities and is far beyond the ability of property to support.

"And whereas public opinion is now definitely and preponderantly in favour of positive action by the Government in the matter of taxation on real property.

"Therefore be it resolved that the Premier and Government of the Province of Ontario be hereby memoralized to carry out the wishes of the public, as expressed time and again, along the lines herein recited and that they realign our system of municipal taxation so it will bear some reasonable relation to income received from the property so taxed; so that the tenant may bear a fair share of the burden as in Britain, and so property may be taxed only for services rendered to property. It is particularly urged that the cost of secondary education be not charged to property owners who are but 10 to 15 per cent of the urban population."

Society in Philadelphia was astonished when Mrs. Katherine B. Fell, 28, TOP, announced her engagement to her stepfather, Edward Lyddon Lycett, 45, multimillionaire of Haverford, Pa., BOTTOM. It will be the second marriage for Mrs. Fell and the third for Lycett.

HON. DR. SIMPSON TO VISIT CITY ON NOVEMBER 7th

Minister of Education For Ontario To Spend Day In District

SPECIAL BANQUET

Children of Schools Will Be Allowed To Visit Cheese Exhibit

The Hon. Dr. J. L. Simpson, Ontario Minister of Education, will visit Belleville on Nov. 7. He will spend the day in this district, visiting the Ontario School for the Deaf in the afternoon, and attending a special banquet in the library of the Collegiate and Vocational Institute in the evening, at which he will be guest speaker, members of the Board of Education were informed at the regular meeting last evening.

In a communication received by chairman Charles Hyde, Dr. Simpson thanked the local Board of Education for the invitation to visit Belleville, and assured members of his presence here on that date.

A committee composed of chairman Hyde, Trustees Russ Wotten and the Rev. A. B. Payne, and Principal P. C. MacLaurin have been entrusted with the arrangement of the banquet to which the staff of all city public schools, the collegiate, St. Michael's Academy, Board of Education and teachers, Albert College and the Ontario School for the Deaf staff, and other educational institutes of Belleville and district are invited. The dinner proper will not be open to the general public, except insofar as wives and friends of the teaching staffs are concerned, it was stated.

For the first time in a considerable period, members of the board as a whole will have their photographs taken by a local photographer. From this group photo an engraving will be made from which copies will be printed for use in a history of Belleville now being compiled by Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C. Agreement to have the picture taken followed a request by Mr. Mikel for a photo of the present body and pictures of all city schools for use in the book.

Attendance Excellent.

School attendance in the Collegiate and Vocational School during the month of September was excellent, it was shown in the monthly report submitted by Principal P. C. MacLaurin. In some cases average attendance reached the 99 per cent mark.

"There has been a tendency on the part of some parents to keep some of the pupils at home for trivial reasons, such as minding the house for children while they are away, and so on," Mr. MacLaurin reported. "These excuses are not being taken."

Two families were advised during the month that their sons would be better out of the school. No interest or progress in school work was shown by either pupil, it was further stated.

The word "trivial" was examined by Trustee Russ Wotten.

"I don't think it is trivial to keep a pupil home from school to mind the house," he objected. "Lots of parents haven't the means to keep servants, and often they wish to go away for the day and keep the house open. I object to that word. If they do this occasionally, I don't believe it is trivial."

"This report says there is a tendency just on the part of some parents," pointed out Rev. A. B. Payne, chairman of the Committee of the Whole.

"Well, I'll move for the acceptance of the report. But I still don't like the word 'trivial'," added Mr. Wotten.

Miss Constance Williams was recommended by the principal for the position of assistant in the collegiate office to fill the office vacated by Miss E. Moncrieff through her resignation.

Children To See Exhibit.

School principals and teachers will be permitted by the Board to visit the British Empire Cheese Exhibition at the city hall during the three days of Nov. 28-29-30, arranged by the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, it was decided by the board following an invitation to all pupils tendered by that association. Owing to the exhibit being of an educational nature the visit may be made during school hours, it was agreed.

In a communication received by the secretary, it was agreed by the Board of Trenton High School that all cost of pupils from Trenton taking purely technical subjects in the Belleville Vocational School would be borne. "We are not responsible for any cost incurred in teaching academic subjects," reminded the Trenton Board.

Following a request by Mrs. Helen Ketcheson, representing the Women's Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital for use of the collegiate gymnasium, cafeteria and library for the purpose of holding a dance on the evening of Dec. 28, proceeds to be devoted to furnishing part of the new nurses' quarters, permission was granted after some discussion.

Cost of heating, lighting and other incidentals during the night were scanned.

"You can't open this school up for any night in the winter for less than $35 or $40, the cost of fuel and lights," reminded Trustee Harrison.

A special meeting of the board will be necessary in the near future at which members will be requested to examine carefully a new book of rules and bylaws of the board, work which has been about completed by the special rules committee headed by Chairman J. Allin, he informed the meeting. Work on this has been carried out for some months past.

Tramp Blames His Plight on Too Much Competition

"This world is getting such that it is not a fit place for a decent hobo to live in," Jim Harrington, wanderer of the highways said this morning, as he turned frying sausages over in a pan on a stretch of pebbly beach near the C. P. R. Bridge.

"The brotherhood is getting so its members won't stand on their own feet," he said, as he poked a dry stick in the flames beneath the small bar of iron, that was his stove.

Opposition, too much competition, that is the ruination of the world today", this fifty-six year-old knight of the road said. "I would have been a happily married man if it had not been for that."

"Sure, I had a business down in Quebec and was doing fine, until the 'opposition' ganged up on me and drove me out. Opposition cost me happiness, for that is what took my girl away. It was one thing after another, so I decided to hit the road, and there I found the same old story. Competition is tough here too, so I go my way, and they go theirs."

Harrington had secured four large sausages, the gift of a local butcher. A lady gave him a small pan to cook them in and he was as happy as a lark. He deftly flipped a large slice of bread into the pan. "It's a funny world we live in. People are yelling about unemployment, yet they won't do anything about it. It's partly the fault of the unemployed, because they are too content to sit around and wait for things to come to them. It can't be done. If you want anything you have to go after it. If that wasn't the case, do you think I would be here cooking this breakfast. Not by a jugful."

"How long do you think that breakfast would last if I were in the jungles. Not a minute. For the past twenty years I have been on my own, getting what I want myself, and letting the other fellow do the same. The world is going back a thousand years when man fought for what he got. The same is happening today only in a different way," he grinned.

OPPORTUNITY

pointing the way to action.

Endorsed Resolution.

The money spent on direct relief by Canada in the past few years might better have been spent on completion of the trans-Canada highway. It would promote tourist traffic and enable Canadians to know each other better.

Liberal rule federally and in the provinces had brought a surge of sectional antagonisms that rendered the break-up of Confederation more possible than ever, said Dr. Manion. The political leader today had "to think across all Canada" to do his duty in holding the nation together.

For the first time Great Britain in 1932 had granted Canada reciprocal tariff preferences Preferences on fish, fruits, minerals and lumber meant that British Columbia profited more greatly than any other province.

Worst of Bargain Claimed.

If the trade agreement with the United States, now being negotiated, resulted in any subtraction of these preferences in the British market, it would be harmful. All down the record Canada got the worst of the bargain in trade treaties with the United States.

"Apparently we are on the verge of making another treaty with the United States which will probably give them greater preferences at a time we are buying from them 50 per cent more than we sell to them.

"There seems to be no finality to a trade treaty nor to our dealings with the United States."

Moderate protection was the Conservative tariff policy. Tariffs that raised prices too greatly were not justified. The primary purpose of a tariff was to hold the market for the domestic producer. A secondary one was to give Canada a weapon in international trade bargaining.

"A third principle of Conservative tariff policy is that there shall be no exploitation of consumers through tariffs," said Dr. Manion.

Trinity of Abuses.

Canada should not become a suburb of the United States, he said in urging retention of distinctively Canadian and British customs and foods as an attraction for tourists. The U.S. tourist wants to see and taste in Canada what he can't see or taste at home.

Unemployment, lack of opportunity for youth, fear of insecurity in old age were the trinity of abuses that marred our democratic and capitalistic system. They must be ended. Their existence led to the acceptance of dictatorships and the setting up of third parties.

Third parties in Canada's history had a record of impotence. They did no particular good or evil. The Conservative party was prepared to go forward to the needed reforms.

"I am not out to make the rich richer or the poor poorer but to make the great body of our people better off."

National planning, as has been undertaken by Great Britain, was needed in Canada.

TYPHOON STRIKES EASTERN JAPAN

Tokyo, Oct. 21 (CP)—Train services were disrupted, liner sailings cancelled and 23,000 houses in Tokyo flooded as result of a typhoon which struck eastern Japan, including Tokyo and Yokohama, early today. (Reuters News Agency reported 226 persons were killed and 590 injured.

(The Reuters report said thousands of homes collapsed and washed away in floods in the Kagoshima district of Kyushu, southernmost main island of Japan, then struck the Tokyo and Yokohama district. An estimated 35,000 were said to have been left homeless.)

The 6,000-ton British freighter Hatterlock broke her mooring chains and drifted ashore but her crew was believed safe. Twenty-three fishing boats were missing off Chosi, in Chiba Prefecture. The typhoon passed northeast toward the Pacific.

The Japanese freighter Toten Maru also snapped her lines and grounded.

Traffic and communications in Tokyo suburbs were suspended.

STORIES OF SPIES

Writers of fiction, especially of the thriller detective and mystery stories have a rival these days in the exposure of alleged spy plots, reports of which appear in the newspapers daily. The imagination of one writer or the combined influence of a fraternity engaged in writing such stories can no more than match plots as they are told

Espionage plays and films are certain-fire successes, so great is the appeal of such a type of plot. In the revelations of the hearings in New York there is just such an appeal.

From many corners of the world today come stories of spy trials, spy executions, trials of conspirators and from what one can gather from the flow of international events, the espionage services of many nations must be one of the most important services. The peoples of nations have been jittery at times but so far the fear of spies has not come to the point where the public has begun to suspect the presence of such in communities.

THE FALLEN LEAF

While a pile of burning autumn leaves is an impressive sight, many persons do not take this method of disposing of them. They rake them off lawns and place then on the streets where they are gathered up. Ultimately the leaves find themselves being used by gardeners and flower growers for their value as a mulch and in the formation of vegetable mold. Fire leaves but a faint black ash or powder, for most of the value goes up in gases, which are lost in space. This method of disposal is not economic. Therefore those who know the value of leaves in enriching soil urge against their destruction.

Many individuals after raking their lawns, take the further step of placing them in a pile where they are dampened and are packed down so that they may not blow away. As time passes they become an excellent fertilizer. The leaves themselves have come from the soil and the air and it is only to be expected that they in their return to the earth will fertilize it. Leaves naturally contain the essential chemicals for growth of plants, flowers and trees. If the leaves are burned the earth loses most of these chemicals.

IN PALESTINE

News of disorders in Palestine and particularly about Jerusalem and Nazareth brings a sense of shock to readers, because of the historic and religious associations with that land and its cities and towns. Yet such disorders appear in the past history of this land very frequently. Palestine and Jerusalem have seen more struggles than perhaps any land or city on earth. Its people in early history were on the connecting link between Egypt, which had an early civilization and great empires of the east such as Babylon and Persia and others. Armies marched over this land and its history in early days was written in warfare and strife. Armies knew nothing of neutrality in those days and a march across Palestine to attack another nation was the usual thing. The people of Palestine had their wars too. But somehow in spite of this arose a civilization the like of which the world has not seen — the results of which are felt in all corners of the earth with the spread of the Jewish people. Today when one speaks of the Jew, his religion is taken as his race, so closely has religion in the prophets and priests been involved in the Jewish conception of a state throughout its history.

Palestine was the bridge between the Asia and Africa in olden days. She was never sought for herself but once in those days, and that was in the time of the Crusaders. She has been constantly overrun by invasions seeking Egypt or by return attacks from Egypt on states east and north of Palestine. Hittites, Ethiopians, Assyrians, Egyptians, Scythians, Parthians, Persians, Greeks and Romans, Mongols have devastated or marched through the Holy Land. The conquest by the Arabs in 634 A.D. typifies the destiny of this country which appeals particularly to a desert race like the Arabs. In the Christian era the Crusaders, in one of the greatest demonstrations of religious fervor caused by a revival of interest in the land of the Bible as Europe began to recover from the collapse of the Roman Empire four or five centuries earlier under the pounding of the tribes from the north of Italy, established themselves in Palestine from 1098 to 1187. It was natural that ultimately in those days when communications were dangerous and distances were great the Crusader should yield Palestine and return home. Napoleon met his first great reverse in this land when he abandoned his first ambition.

Events of today seem in a measure typical of the war-scarred history of this land, which has seen empires come and go, all of them stronger than she and yet she survives. Today her problem is the Arab and the Jew, solution of which would almost seem to baffle statesmanship.

Three great religions look with reverence upon this land, Christian, Jewish and Moslem Arab. Now the struggle is not really between Christians and others, but is the bitter rivalry of the Arabs against the Hebrews. Today the Christian is endeavoring to settle this issue which is one of great antiquity, for while the Jews have been in Palestine from the earliest times, the Arabs did not come until they gained ascendency in the seventh century.

Despite the vicissitudes of times and civilization the religious interest in Palestine will always remain.

THOSE WHO SIT IN THE SEATS OF THE MIGHTY appear at a distance to be supermen, a species of gods made of human flesh. Closeups reveal that the Seats of the Mighty are filled with very human he-men; big men, it is true, mentally, but men who early learned to look beyond their own particular personal problems and vision the world and its problems, including humanity, as an entity, uncircumscribed by parochial limitations. One such visited Belleville recently, the President of a great national bank, Sidney H. Logan, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Close acquaintance proved that even a bank president is human and that President Logan is very human and a most likeable chap, as well as a shrewd and clever financier with a clear conception of world affairs in the great arena of business, with the causes that contribute to the fluctuation of trade and the reasons for good and bad times, one able to picture the future with calmness and appraise the present with clear-eyed optimism tempered with the knowledge that conditions are often made or marred by the folly of politicians and those placed in high places in the world.

Away back in the hectic Cobalt boom days, a young man arrived in the famous silver camp, then barely past the point of discovery, a camp with a good percentage of optimists who predicted great things, as opposed to the usual gang of pessimists who contended that Cobalt was only a flash in the pan and would be as dead as Caesar's Ghost in a twelvemonth. This young man came to start a branch bank and quickly was doing business in makeshift quarters, first a tent, then a log shack, then a small but beautiful frame building, the then finest building in Cobalt, which had been under construction since his arrival and was the bank's very own. Sid Logan, Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Cobalt branch, became one of the most popular young men in Cobalt, at the same time holding his head as an efficient bank manager in one of the most difficult places to do banking, a new mining camp, where the entire citizenry was made up of strangers from all parts of the world, good men, bad men, men of means, and men who lived by their wits, besides many men seeking to make a fresh start in the world after coming a cropper elsewhere.

In this atmosphere of "wildcats", "get-rich-quicks", and hectic excitement Manager Logan kept his head while all around him men were losing theirs and trying to blame others, (as Kipling would say), and gained experience and useful knowledge which stood him in good stead later as he started up the ladder of success, which had its first firm rungs among the cobalt-tinted hills of Nipissing.

As good natured as he was efficient Sid Logan made friends as he went along and rising from rung to rung he finally found himself sitting in the Seats of the Mighty as General Manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce — there was only one higher rung, that of President, and recently he surmounted that, and yet a comparatively young man.

This, in brief, is the personification of a success story which even Horatio Alger would have been almost afraid to print.

President Logan came to Belleville almost as a stranger, today he has a host of warm friends here, a friendship kindled by his warm and kindly personality.

WHAT AN EDITOR SHALL READ OR NOT READ is not often decided for him as it was for the editor of the Kingston Whig who recently crossed the new Thousand Island bridge to Watertown, and returning, brought back several ten-cent magazines. One of these magazines was confiscated by the Canadian customs officer as not being permitted to enter Canada. Whig-Standard editor gives the incident an editorial column space in which he whimsically and ironically reviews the affair. Says he: When I reached home I hurriedly hid my copy of Decameron. Naughty! Naughty!

GRETA GARBO IS BACK IN AMERICA, and if she sees the photos taken and published by the New York newspaper men she will no doubt moan "I wanna go home", for they are terrible. No one could be as homely as the pictures of the great Garbo depict and live.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 22nd., 1918

During the lull in the sale of cheese on the Perth Board on Friday last Senator Webster and the veteran auctioneer of the Perth Board, Mr. Lennis Noonman, when they were swapping stories, dug up some reminiscenses dealing with the price they paid for cheese long years ago. The Senator said he was commissioned to buy 2700 pounds of cheese at Frankville in 1897 and bought 2,900 pounds at five cents per pound. Mr. Noonman recalled that in 1890 he got six cents per pound for cheese and thought he was lucky. Mr. McVeigh stated that in 1907 cheese sold on the Perth Board at 9 cents per pound. The price on Friday on the Perth Board was 24 9 1-16 cents per pound.

The influenza epidemic conditions show some improvement here. The critical stage of the disease has been reached with the majority of patients and the spread of the disease has been materially checked; a few days should show a radical change for the better. The volunteer association is very busy and the headquarters at the Y. M. C. A. resemble an army general headquarters with a big battle raging. Many calls for help are still being received. Volunteer workers who will go into homes, administer medicines, and perform imperative household tasks, are still urgently needed, as these workers are far too few to meet the demand. Nourishing broths are being made in large quantities at the High School by the Domestic Science Department where a number of ladies are at work, and jellies and other delicacies for convalescents are being sent out daily.

Mr. S. M. Daly, one of the 15th. Battalion heroes of Batoche, and who was wounded in the famous charge, is spending a few days in the city. He is at present stationed in the Bank of Commerce at Woodstock, Ont.

About 8.30 o'clock last evening a young man on horseback came down Hotel Street and proceeded down Front Street at a furious pace. Two ladies who were crossing the street near the lower bridge had a narrow escape from being run down. Persons who were on the street at the time were under the impression that it was a runaway, but the rider was reported to have returned up Front Street later in the evening in the same manner. If the name of the guilty person is discovered by the police he will be severely dealt with.

Messrs. J. T. & F. Warrington have just completed one of the largest shipments of cheese that has occurred here for some time. Two days ago they loaded fourteen cars and three more cars were added to the consignment yesterday.

Ruthenia, literally was filled with troops. All highways were crowded with vehicles taking soldiers to concentration centres.

Hundreds of Czechoslovak soldiers were encamped along the highway between the Hungarian frontier town of Satoraljaujhely and Uzhorod—so cleverly camouflaged they were visible only upon the closest inspection.

Hungary Urged to Accept.

(Dispatches from Budapest said Germany and Italy were urging Hungary to accept Czechoslovakia's latest offer—an offer to cede more than half of the land demanded by Hungary—but the foreign office remained silent.)

In Prague, Foreign Minister Frantisek Chvalovsky was reported to have told the Soviet Minister, Sergei Alexandrovski, that Czechoslovakia was "no longer interested" in its alliance with Russia.

Czechoslovak sources, however, emphasized the fact that the alliance—a mutual assistance pact of which France was a signatory—had not been terminated.

The Foreign Minister's reported statement was regarded as further toward Nazi Germany. It is known evidence of Czechoslovakia's swing that Chancellor Hitler wants the Soviet alliance terminated.

JAPAN COMMAND

and Wuchang.

Wholesale Withdrawal.

A wholesale Chinese withdrawal was said to be under way from both the Canton area in South China and the central China Hankow region. Chinese were streaming northwest from occupied Canton, with Japanese controlling the area completely both on the ground and in the skies.

In the Yangtse River valley, Chinese troops were reported in retreat from defence positions east of Hankow to the city's environs.

Japanese troops and river boats kept up their steady advance. A mid-afternoon communique announced that ground forces had occupied Ocheng, on the south bank of the Yangtse 35 miles east of Hankow, and were driving directly west against Wuchang.

Gains New Momentum.

Air, naval and ground forces gained new momentum in the invasion which has brought all of China's chief seaports, its major cities, and the rich North China area under nominal Japanese control.

Observers have predicted that Japanese, once the Hankow region was conquered, might rest on their gains, content to defend the occupied territory against possible guerrilla attacks.

Emerging from his Belgrave Sq. house is the Duke of Kent, en route to the country for a trip. Very noticeable is the sandal which the Duke is wearing on his right foot. A few minutes earlier, the Duke was seen entering the house wearing shoes on both feet, and very quickly talk was that the Duke had injured his foot in the interval. A London paper making inquiries was told that the Duke has not hurt his foot. He must have just been absent-minded.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

The Best Time to Exercise

A recent magazine article on exercise suggested that exercise immediately after arising in the morning was harmful because the temperature of the body, the blood pressure, and the heart rate were at a low ebb. Naturally the blood pressure, heart rate, and body temperature are at their lowest because there is no food in the process of digestion and the food eaten at the last meal the night before has long since given its entire heat and energy to the body. The first thing the body really needs then is food, not exercise, and few athletes—boxers, bicycle riders, oarsmen—go out to engage in hard exercise without taking a little food to 'stay' their stomachs.

At a military camp the commanding officer wondered why so many of the men fainted at the setting up exercises of thirty minutes at 6.30 a.m. I suggested a slice of bread and some hot tea or coffee before the exercise as breakfast was not served until 8 a.m. By this simple method all the men were able to take the exercise without collapsing.

To the average man under fifty years of age, a few minutes light exercise in the morning as soon as he leaves his bed should not cause any distress or harm. No food is really required. It should be more of a stretching and loosening up of the body than an attempt to develop muscle. It is a healthful habit as it keeps the body more resilient or elastic thus preserving youth.

For men over fifty hard exercise before breakfast might be a shock because of the lowness of the body forces at this time.

What is the ideal time for the average business or professional man to take exercise?

If he has (as most do) eaten a light breakfast and a light lunch he should eat a piece of candy or an orange or a banana or bread or biscuit at 4 or 5 o'clock and then take his exercise—golf, riding, gymnasium, walking, tennis (if young). He should have his exercise finished a half to an hour before his evening meal so that his appetite and digestive forces will be at their best. Eating the large evening meal when tired is the cause of many stomach and intestinal upsets.

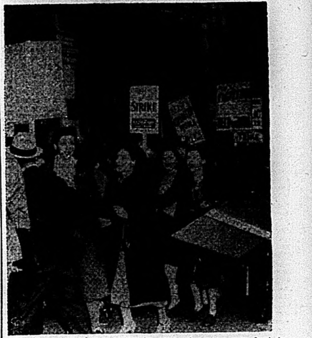
After last Wednesday night's experience no one needs to be told to that extent the city dweller's comfort and convenience, and even the routine of his work and play, are dependent on the "juice" that flows through a few arterial cables. It is a point of reminder, moreover, to those who have not studied the modern technique of revolution as it is taught in Moscow that just as all lighting, all the most important transportation facilities, nearly all communication by telephone, telegraph and radio, all electrical refrigeration and electrically controlled heating can be cut off at a few master switches, so can water and gas be denied to millions by those in possession of no great number of master valves.

The more highly centralized the control of such modern essentials becomes, the less thought is given to the provision of substitutes in an emergency, and the more difficult it becomes for the average apartment dweller, let us say, to live his life without them. Where at a pinch, is he to get candles or lamps and kerosene? In what would he burn wood or coal if he could get them? If he wanted water badly enough to go to the river for it, what would he carry it in? And where would he, or his butcher or his milk distributor get ice to keep food in warm weather?

As the city's conveniences are extended to the hamlet and the farm, moreover, the impotent dependence of the city dweller on a few key services goes with him into the country.

Any one who was abroad Wednesday night in the blacked-out districts of Northern New Jersey, for instance, must have been impressed by the fact that the denizens of the smallest towns had abandoned all effort to make anything of the evening at dusk and had gone to bed—many of them supperless. Street and shop-window lights were out, pavements were littered with fallen branches, and few had flashlights or lanterns to get about with. Candles and lamps were almost as scarce at the cross-roads store as on Park Avenue. The "movies" were closed, the ice-cream parlors soon followed suit because their stock in trade became too soupy to sell, and even the bars, lighted with candle stubs stuck in whisky glasses, were too depressing to those accustomed to the bright lights to hold them. The radios did not work, telephones were dead, so there was no comparing notes with friends, and there was no fun in chugging from one scene of gloom to another.

So traffic stopped an hour after sunset and a profound silence fell upon scores of normally gay and noisy little towns. The few pin points of light to be seen indicated where lonely bartenders slept in armchairs or where a bevy of old fellows who had learned how to kill an evening long before the coming of the village picture house and the radio played pinochle by a glowing range in a lamp-lighted kitchen and cackled over the discomfiture of their juniors of the gadget age, for whom sleep was the only refuge from boredom when the gadgets broke down.—New York Herald Tribune.



Here is a section of the picket line outside the plant of the Aerovox Corporation in Brooklyn, where 400 strikers and sympathizers rioted when non-strikers attempted to enter the struck plant. A score of persons were hurt in the melee that ensued. Seventy-five police rushed to the scene, arrested 15. According to placards carried by the pickets, the strike is in protest of long hours and wage cuts.

Here are the opponents whose quarrel precipitated Mexico's second rebellion of this year. On the LEFT, is General Jose Tafolla Caballero, military commander of the Pacific coast state of Sonora. On the RIGHT is General Roman Yocupico, governor of the state. Conservative-radical friction is the root of the present trouble with General Caballero and his Agrarians and labor unionists lined up against the Conservative regime of Governor Yocupico. At latest report General Caballero was marching in open revolt at the head of a numerous "farmers" army.

NEW HOPE

It may be that one of the cruelest forms of slavery still existing in these United States is about to be abolished. This is the slavery imposed on the householder forced out in the blazing sun to mow his lawn. Oddly enough, it would be no chore at all in Wintertime, at least before the snow falls — just a brisk stretch of invigorating exercise. But in July and August it is one of the most efficient perspiration - inducers known to science.

Perhaps we have been cultivating the wrong kinds of grass, species that thrive only with constant application of the lawn mower and the sprinkler.

The search for a velvety lawn culminated in the bent grassers which depend on heavy fertilizing frequent watering and close clipping. Kentucky blue grass is considered the best, but it should be cut every other week and freely waterd. In the old days camomile, which exudes a delicious ripe apple fragrance, and thyme, which has an even more pronounced odor were considered good enough. Even before the lawn mower arrived, however, these required the ministration of the sickle and scythe.

Now, according to horticultural experts, the "turfing daisy" is coming to make life easier for the man of the house.

It is said to develop rapidly into a close mat of foliage never more than two inches high and of a rich green hue. It grows wherever ordinary lawn grass will sustain itself.

And it has virtues beyond the dreams of the most imaginative household. It does not require any water except that supplied from the sky. And it has to be mowed exactly once a year in late May or early June, just after the little flowers appear.

For the rest of the Summer the turfing-daisy fancier just sits luxuriously in the shade and watches it grow.—New York Times.

Y. M. C. A. DRIVE TO RAISE FUNDS

Five Thousand Dollars Required To Carry On Service For Year

GENERAL CANVASS

Belleville Y.M.C.A. will start off on Monday, Oct. 24th., on a five thousand dollar campaign to finance its service to the youth of Belleville and the community and canvassers will wait upon the people on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 26-28 for contributions.

Y. M. C. A. service is a noble type of service for it is placing youth in the position where he can do most for the world and the community — his finest contribution to life. Boys are at the critical stage in life when destiny is made, when great and glorious enterprises are inspired. The Y.M.C.A. has leadership and hundreds of boys are now being directed and guided in recreational, educational and character-building activities.

The Campaign Committee thoroughly convinced that this work is worthy of the generous support of all citizens confidently goes to work to raise the $5,000 by contributions.

In this age, when so much is heard of the spirit of separatism, the Y. M. C. A. remains one of the binding forces, for it serves all creeds, all classes. It is as wide as interest.

The influence of the Y. M. C. A. anywhere can turn youth from deteriorating influences and surroundings and anti-social conditions which might lead to misspent lives.

Like every philanthropic and social movement, there is a practical side, the Y. M. C. A. requires support for there are privileges provided in buildings and service which cost money in salaries, in taxes, in expenditures, and in replacement and, besides many things are done by the Y.M.C.A. without charge.

With this motion in mind the committee is appealing for generous support, and cooperation of the general public in bringing to the youth of Belleville a continuance of the privileges it has been providing for many years. Generous support is requested.

Shannonville

Shannonville—Vincent Hanovan, local mail courier whose route is from Shannonville to Read stated that one farmer on his route recently said that this district was going to have a good crop next year. The reason this farmer extended for this prophesy is that while ploughing his land recently which is hard and lumpy he found several fishworms which apparently is a sure sign of a good crop.

Due to the fact that Melrose United Church was holding its anniversary services there was no service in the United Church on Sunday. Services which were held in the morning and afternoon at Melrose were conducted by the Rev. W. D. Craig.

Villagers are busily employed raking up their lawns this week as most of the leaves have fallen from the trees and the beautiful scenery so common in Autumn is nearly gone.

Mr. and Mrs. A .A. Cook and son Robert of Aurora spent a few days in the community the guests of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Cook. On Monday evening they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Cook.

Mrs. Cecil McCarthy was a Tuesday dinner guest of the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Bloe of Belleville.

Mrs. Ira Cook attended the funeral of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Buck of Strathcona on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Ben Fuller is vacationing in Oshawa where she is the guest of relatives.

Mrs. J. W. Stewart was a Thursday afternoon guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Spencer.

A number from here attended the chicken supper held at Read on Wednesday night.

Mrs. Graves is spending a few days in Point Anne where she is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Roluf.

According to local farmers the majority of the crops were as good as were expected this year although they stated that their late potato crop was away below par. The early potatoes were very good however.

Deseronto

Deseronto—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Church of Redeemer (Presbyterian) held a sale of home cooking and afternoon tea in the vacant building on Main Street on Saturday afternoon.

A card party was held in Malley's Hall under the auspices of the Canadian Legion Branch No. 280 on Tuesday evening. The prize winners were Mr. L. Thompson, Mrs. Marlin, Lone hand, Charles Knight. Consolation, Mrs. Oscar Thompson. Door prize was won by Mrs. Lindsay. After the cards lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coran and baby son of Toronto spent the week end with the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coran.

Mrs. Gilhooley of Point Anne spent the week-end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Gartland.

Mrs. James Burns who was seriously ill at her home on Thomas Street is somewhat improved.

Another dance was held at Duck Inn on Tuesday evening with a fair attendance. The dance music was supplied by Jack Denmark's orchestra. During the evening refreshments were served.

34th Wins Hurdman Cup for Efficiency of Personnel

First Time In History Belleville Unit Wins Trophy

OFFICERS PRAISED

Announcement yesterday of the award of the famous Hurdman Cup, emblematic of the first place in efficiency of personnel of all field artillery batteries in the Dominion of Canada, to the Thirty-Fourth Battery C.F.A. of Belleville, brought a glow of pride to not only members of the unit but to those who realize what the achievement actually means.

It means in short, that every member of this crack unit of Belleville's garrison is one hundred per cent, perfect in efficiency; that every one now is a highly trained soldier that with perfect unity between all ranks brought to Belleville the highest award the Canadian Artillery Association can bestow.

For twenty years, members of this unit, earlier representatives of which won undying fame with their guns in France, have been seeking the enviable award. Gradually they climbed toward the top until last year they were nosed out by a few percentage points. Determined to wipe out the slim margin this year, Major VanSteenburg, commanding officer, his officers and men redoubled their efforts, and yesterday received their award.

Defeated Crack Batteries

When the fact that the 34th, defeated the crack batteries of the Dominion, no mean feat at any time, is considered the achievement is all the more worthy of congratulations of the residents of this city.

For a number of years the 34th have had a place high in the records of military training accomplishments. Last year they won second place for the Hurdman Cup; won the valuable MacDonald challenge Trophy, were seventeenth in gun practice and ninth in general efficiency. This year they not only annexed the Hurdman Cup, but finished fourth in General Efficiency, and ninth in gun practice.

Members of the battery are all Belleville residents who have been trained here under a highly efficient staff of officers and instructors. Major Van Steenburg is the officer commanding with Captain J. H. McLeod, and Lieuts. J. H. Wells, R. L. Bird and J. M. Cousins. Lieut. George Lauchlin, did not attend camp with his unit, in view of the fact he was taking a military course elsewhere. Battery Sergt. Major William Lindsay, recently appointed to his position is given a great deal of credit for his unit's splendid showing, by his superior officers.

Fruit Purchasers Must Use Boxes of Standard Size

Warning has been given by the local office of C. T. Stevenson, inspector of the fruits and vegetable branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture against the practice of unethical fruit purchasers in the use of oversize boxes when used for orchard or warehouse buying. Though no complaints have been registered in this section as yet, in Bowmanville area it has been discovered that several fruit growers have been losing money due to the unscrupulous buyers using boxes and crates not standard size.

Some of the buyers purchase apples by the box which are larger than standard, and make an extra barrel out of every ten or twelve boxes, it was reported. Growers are urged to check boxes when selling their apples. The standard size, it is pointed out is 18 inches long, 11½ inches wide, and 10½ inches deep. Standard crate measurements are 17 inches long, 14 inches wide, with a 9½ inch depth of sides, and 11 inch depth of ends.

3rd. Sidney

3rd Sidney—The home of Mr. Frank Aikens, 3rd concession of Sidney, was the scene of a happy gathering on Monday evening, when friends, relatives and neighbors met to present his daughter Frances with a miscellaneous shower, in honor of her approaching marriage to Mr. Chas. Mackenzie of Belleville.

A short musical program was given Mr. Wm. Wheeler acting as chairman. An address was read by Miss Edith Hogle and appreciation was voiced by Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie for the gifts presented them. Lunch was served by the ladies and a social hour was spent.

Centenary anniversary services were well attended on Sunday. Rev. Tristram was the special speaker, and the autumn flowers and fruit that adorned the church, and the full choir with their appropriate singing and music added to the beauty of the services.

Mrs. W. H. Kells attended Holloway St. anniversary services on Sunday and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Glover.

Mrs. Wilmot Bailey and Mrs. Lee Grills spent a few days last week in Toronto, guests of Miss Jewel Gallie, while Mr. Grills and Mr. Bailey attended the International ploughing match at Barrie.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brickman accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brickman of Rednersville spent the week end in Montreal visiting their parents.

Several ladies from Aikins Woman's Missionary Society attended the thankoffering service of Stone Church W.M.S. on Wednesday.

Mr. George Lawrence who has been at the home of Mr. T. A. Hinchcliffe for the past three years left on Saturday for Newmarket where he has secured a position.

Mrs. S. Westover, Mrs. Fred Westover, Mrs. W. Bailey and Mrs. H. Hubble were guests on Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Saylor.

Mrs. Peter Aikens of Toronto is visiting her sons, Messrs Frank and Fred Aikens and attended the McKenzie-Aikens wedding at Aikens Church on Wednesday.

Several residents of this community were in attendance at Bridge St. Church on Sunday and Monday evening to hear addresses by the noted Canadian authoress Nellie McClung.

Mrs. Harley Hubble, Mr. and Mrs. Selburne Westover and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hubble attended the funeral of the late Mr. Wallace Hubble at Stockdale United Church on Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bates of Belleville attended Centenary anniversary services on Sunday and spent the dinner hour with Mr. and Mrs Fred Aikens and family.

Red Cross Appeal For Northern Fire Sufferers Made

Imergency appeal for Northern fire sufferers has been made by the Canadian Red Cross Society to the Canadian people.

"Thanksgiving Day" this year will never be forgotten in the Rainy River District — as it marks one of the greatest catastrophes in the history of Northern Ontario.

While Canadians generally were giving thanks for their blessings, thousands of men and women in this northern district were living through hours of indescribable horror. For days and nights, they fought, heroically, to save life and property from the raging forest fires which devastated their country. Bandaged feet, eyes, bodies and faces blistered and burnt, today bear witness of that stubborn and magnificent fight against overwhelming odds.

In spite of these heroic efforts, 20 persons are dead; some 300 men, women and children are homeless, destitute; some 400 others have seen the results of their years of labour, their barns, their stock, even their seeds for planting, all swept away; over 3,000 square miles of forest and farm land are in ashes and ruins.

Requested and supported by the Provincial and Federal Governments, the Red Cross has undertaken the arduous task of relief and rehabilitation in these burnt-out areas.

Remembering how generously and warm-heartedly the people of Ontario came to the rescue of the Haileybury Fire victims in 1922, the Red Cross confidently lays the plight of these present fire sufferers before you, knowing that you will do what you can to relieve their distress.

$100,000 is urgently required. Your contribution, whether large or small, will be welcomed at any local Red Cross Branch, or may be sent direct to Red Cross Headquarters, 621 Jarvis Street, Toronto, Ontario.

Mr. I. G. Hefkey, manager of the Royal Bank, Belleville, is president of the local branch of the Red Cross and will gladly receive and transmit to headquarters any contributions made here.

Lyric Male Choir Given High Rating By Musical Critics

Music lovers of Belleville will be particularly pleased to learn that the Lyric Male Choir of Toronto, an organization with an international reputation and considered by many critics to be Canada's finest male choir, is giving a concert at the Collegiate auditorium next week.

This splendid choir has been consistently engaged by the Canadian National Exhibition as a feature of Music Day and has also filled engagements at the Coliseum for the Kiwanis Club, at Maple Leaf Gardens for the Oddfellows, at the Toronto Island Stadium for the Musicians' Union, singing on each occasion with the band of the 48th Highlanders.

Mr. Frederic G. Thomas, conductor, has been an active figure in musical Toronto for over thirty years. He was for seven years choir secretary of the "Oratoric Society". was for nine years choir leader of Garrison Church, Toronto, and spent seventeen years with the well-known Mendelssohn Choir of Toronto. Mr. Thomas sang in male choirs in Bristol, England, under Mr. George Riseley, dean of male choir leaders in England. He is a poet as well as a musician.

Miss Winnifred L. Thomas, accompanist and sister of the leader, was a pupil of Mr. F. C. Maker, famous English composer and hymn writer with whom she used often to play duets for piano and organ. Miss Thomas was organist at Toronto Garrison Church for nine years and was for seventeen years a member of the Mendelssohn Choir.

The Lyric Male Choir has a repertoire of culture and their concerts are dignified, satisfying all classes of music lovers. Several numbers have been written especially for them and dedicated to them. Arrangements by Toronto musicians are also included.

Miss Elizabeth M. Beale, celebrated Canadian elocutionist, is coming to Belleville with the choir and will assist in the concert with several numbers.

Mr. Frank Whittle, well-known Belleville singer, is a charter member of the Lyric Choir. The Toronto singers are coming to Belleville under the auspices of the Baptist Brotherhood of Victoria Avenue Church, in co-operation with Mr. Whittle, who is song leader of the Brotherhood.

Miss Marguerite Young, Reg.N., Psychiatrist hospital, Toronto, is taking refresher course at Toronto University School of Nursing. Miss Young is a niece of Mrs. George Cornish of this city.

Mrs. Albert Wonnacott was hostess to about thirty-five ladies of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Thursday afternoon at a delightful tea. The guests of honour were Mrs. Sinclair, mother of the minister and her sister, Miss E. Smith, who are soon to leave the city. Mrs. Robert Orr poured tea and Mrs. Geo. Andrews and Mrs. Fred Jobson served. Mrs. Sinclair with Mrs. Albert Wonnacott received the guests. The hospitable home was tastefully decorated for the occasion and a very pleasant time was enjoyed.

Following regular chapter meeting last night, members of Belleville Chapter, No. 55, O.E.S. entertained at a jolly Hallowe'en party held in the Chapter room of the Oddfellows' Temple. The Hall was effectively decorated in the Hallowe'en tradition, with orange and black streamers, apples and pumpkins used artistically. The members came in costume and the scene, as beautifully dressed masquers in colorful attire mingled with the cleverly dressed comics, made a brilliant picture. Prizes were given for costumes and the best dressed couple was adjudged to be Mrs. arley and Mrs. Holst. Prizes for best costumes were won by Clara onside, first, Mary Carmichael, second and Phyllis Barlow, third. laire Elliott, won the prize for comics, with her costume of Popeye the Sailor, which was highly praised by the guests. Mrs. C. Buck won the prize apple and the prize dance was won by Dorothy McGlashon and Frank Wessel. A singing contest was an interesting feature of the party and it was won by the "Pumpkin Pie" group. Dancing and refreshments added to the enjoyment of the evening. The dainty lunch featured the delicacies that are part of all Hallowe'en entertainments.

The Dionne Quintuplets are what they are today—five healthy, happy, normal children—for one reason and one reason only: The unfailing care taken of them, of their diet, of their training, right down to the minutest detail.

Now, mothers, don't get alarmed about this statement. True, the Quints have been brought up in a nursery with nurses in constant attendance. But very little has been done for them that you cannot do for your child in your own home. Yes, your child can have all the advantages that Quints had. I sincerely hope that it will be my privilege to tell you from day to day, just how this can be done.

Common sense has been the keynote in bringing up the Quints. That is why I tell you mothers that you can do as much for the members of your family. Discipline, simplicity and a large measure of common sense are the main requisites for raising healthy, happy children.

When I say "discipline", please don't think I mean the old-fashioned "rod-of-iron" kind. When mistakes are made, correct them of course, but be careful not to do it if you are in a temper. Self-discipline is one thing we have tried to practice in the nursery. One thing we know: children cannot learn discipline themselves until they have learned the rudiments of it from the adults they meet every day.

The old rule, "know thyself", doesn't apply to anything more than to child training. You fathers and mothers remember that, and the next time young Bill won't eat his spinach, or stays out later than he should, don't fly into a temper and scold him.

In the first place it probably won't do any good. He'll probably retaliate by just being a little more covert in his wrong-doing next time. You will tumble in his estimation, and it may be a long, long time before you regain the ground you lost.

I mentioned common sense as being of paramount importance in training the child. I mean just that. It seems indefinable, but every mother, away down in her heart, knows what I mean. All that is necessary is to apply it.

I referred to diet in connection with the raising of children. It is strange but I have found from time to time that people have the idea that the Quints eat some wonderful dish that keeps them alive. I have had mothers say: 'But, Doctor, I couldn't afford to feed my child what the Quints get".

This is rather amusing for I doubt very much if the Quints' diet isn't a great deal simpler, much freer from fad and frill, than 90 per cent of the youngsters in the whole country. Our great care has been to see that diet has been kept simple, not to make it complex and difficult to understand.

No; what these children thrive on could and should grace the table of every home in the land. Even those who are in meagre circumstances will find that, in general, their children will be able to eat the same things as the Quints. There is no good reason why distinctions should be made between those who cannot. Also you will find that in many cases substitutes can be made for most of the articles on the diet list.

For a long time the impression has persisted that the Quints get something special in the way of food I take this opportunity to contradict it. From time to time I will publish diet lists just to prove my point and when I do you will clearly see that it is free from most of the luxuries that grace your own table.

Weddings

GARBUTT—RATH

A pretty Autumn wedding was solemnised at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rath of Sulphide, on Saturday morning, October 15, when their only daughter, Reta, became the bride of Keith Garbutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Garbutt, of Belleville. Rev. H. Lloyd Morrison, of Tweed United Church, was the officiating clergyman.

The ceremony was performed under an arch of Autumn foliage, and the bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a frock of Empire-blue crepe, with beaded trimmings and corsage of Talisman roses.

Miss Gwendolyn Drew of Havelock, attended the bride, and wore wine crepe and corsage of pink roses Mr. Clifford Murphy, of Belleville, was groomsman.

Immediately following the ceremony, a large number of relatives and guests sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner. The table was tastefully decorated with flowers and pink and white streamers leading to place-cards. The toasts to the bride and groom were proposed by Rev. Morrison and an appropriate response was made by the groom.

Following the dinner, the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to Detroit and other U.S. points. The bride travelled in a royal blue ensemble suit, with fur trimmings and matching accessories. On their return they will reside near Belleville.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. George Luffman and Mr. and Mrs. Bridge of Foxboro; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grass, Sr., Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. William Drew, Miss Helen Drew and Mr. Douglas Drew of Havelock.

PEAKE—MOWAT

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Magnus Mowat, Campbellford, was the setting for a wedding when their younger daughter, Miss Helen Elizabeth Mowat, was married to Mr. Thomas Oliver Peake, younger son of Mr. Fred Peake, Jr., and the late Mrs. Peake of Seymour. Rev. Harold B. Neal officiated. Miss Wilda Saunders of Peterborough, cousin of the bride, played the wedding music, and Miss Elva Mowat, sister of the bride, was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Lido blue sheer over satin, with halo of Sweetheart roses and blue lily of the Nile, and carried a cascade bouquet of Briarcliff roses and bouvardia. Her only attendant was Miss Effie Saunders of Peterborough, and Mr. Donald Peake was best man.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Peake left by motor for New York State, and on their return will live in Campbellford.

GOING BIG is the little frock, ideal for general day wear. Such a frock is of raspberry red wool jersey, with slit hip pockets and pockets on the jacket-like jumper top. Trimmed with matching plastic buttons. The neckband ties in a loose bow.

A new ease marks the line of many of the new coats. This is in the form of soft blousing above the back of the waistline, with the hipleni tight in contrast. This line is used for an exquisite coat of soft brown woolen with a twelve-foot scarf of sable-dyed baum marten.

Plenty of use for a smart and colorful suit. Jacques Heim shows a suit of wide-ribbed velveteen in a warm terra cotta color. The seven-eighths fitted coat is edged at the collar, the revers and down the front with plain velvet of the same shade. Worn with matching velvet gauntlet gloves and a brown chiffon blouse.

The Young Mother
Has her health problems

Happy and fortunate is the bride who enters married life in full health and vigor of mind and body. Perhaps the importance of robust health at the time of marriage is sometimes overlooked.

But the cares and worries of the household and the tremendous strain of baby's coming demand an abundance of rich, red blood and a healthy, buoyant nervous system. Modern life and present financial stringencies tend to make the life of the woman in the home more difficult and more nerve racking.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can be of very great benefit to you both before and after baby's coming. By restoring health of body and mind it will save you from the irritabilities which tend to destroy the happiness of the home. It will restore hope and confidence at a time when ill health lets you see only the dark side of things.

Young Rawdon Couple Honored

Rawdon—One of the largest crowds ever seen in Mount Pleasant hall gathered on Tuesday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Will Heath, nee Frances McKeown. Over two hundred and eighty friends from various points were present for this occasion.

The bride and groom were given seats of honor in the hall bridal suite and Rev. J. E. Beckel was master of ceremonies. He expressed the good wishes of the gathering to the young people and welcomed them to the Bethel appointment and also paid tribute to another bridal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Don Heath who were in the audience.

On behalf of the trustee board of the church, Rev. Beckel gave Frances a letter of appreciation for her services as pianist for the past three years and enclosed was a chequqe.

An interesting program was then staged. Mr. and Mrs. Herb Higgs and Mr. Burton Calvert delighted with several selections on Jews Harp guitar and violin.

Miss Evelyn Barnum recited a humorous courting skit.

Misses Ruth Rose and Lois Weaver sang a duet with Mrs. Kenneth Weaver as accompanist.

Miss Marion Rose gave a reading in the usual way.

Miss Lois McAdam contributed a solo with Miss Phyliss David as accompanist.

Master Don Spencer rendered a guitar solo.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a humorous reading about "Wives."

Mr. John Coggins sang a selection giving a humorous history of the bride and groom with Mrs. Ross Hoard as pianist.

Miss Evelyn Gibson and Mr. Garland Irwin sang selections with guitar accompaniment one being "The Eastbound train."

Mrs. Cyrus Summers gave some useful advice to the girls in the audience who were unmarried.

Miss Esma Cole read an address of appreciation to the young couple.

Frances and Bill both suitably replied thanking their friends for the kindness shown to them and inviting all to visit them in their new home.

The young couple assisted by Misses Marjorie Hagerman and Esma Cole spent the next half hour unwrapping the vast army of gifts.

At the close Frances again extended thanks for the gifts and all joined in singing For they are jolly good fellows.

An appetizing lunch was served by the young folks and all enjoyed a social time together.

The address follows:

Mount Pleasant, Oct. 18, 1938

Dear Frances and Bill:

It is with much pleasure that we your friends and neighbors have gathered here tonight to congratulate you on your recent marriage and wish you much happiness and success in your wedded life.

Marriage brings many pleasures. It also brings greater opportunities and responsibilities. We feel sure that you will assume these with courage. It has been said that life is what we make it. We know that yours will be one of joy and cooperation.

In all our church and community work Frances you have gvien your time and talents graciously and willingly. In the Sunday School, Young People's League, choir, W. M. S. and Mission Band your services will be greatly missed. We appreciate much your great patience and sacrifice as pianist of the church. We are sorry to lose you from our neighborhood and we are glad that you will not be far away. However what is our loss is another's gain.

To you Bill we offer our hearty congratulations in so wise a choice of a partner for life. We know that Frances with her sincere manner will be your help in the dark days as well as the bright ones which are in the future. As a slight sign of our esteem and good wishes we ask you to accept these gifts. As you use them may they remind you of your many friends at Mount Pleasant.

May success and happiness crown all your best efforts and God's riches blessings ever follow you through the journey of life.

Signed on behalf of your Mount Pleasant friends Bert Jeffs. Anna Sharp, Esma Cole, Herbert Smith, John Coggins.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Forestell have returned to Sudbury after spending the past week with Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan.

Little Maurice Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Montgomery of Mount Pleasant met with an unfortunate accident on Tuesday when he fell from the wire fence and a piece of the wire tore a three cornered gash in his lip necessitating medical attention.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan entertained about fifty of their relatives and friends to a party on Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Forestell.

Junior Program.

Girls of Junior Institute branches took the centre of the stage at the convention during the morning and the youthful speakers showed the result of careful training, in the ease and graciousness with which they conducted their part of the meeting. A series of splendid demonstrations and talks comprised the program which was in charge of Miss Kathleen Giles, Mountain View, convener of Girls' Work who acted as chairman, and Miss Greta Pollard, Bowmanville, of the Department of Agriculture in charge of Girls' Work branch

Miss Giles told of the girls' groups organized in the convention area and the fine success they had attained.

The program consisted of demonstrations on "Would you be well dressed" by Chatterton Girls' Club, Hastings County; on "Clothes Closets up-to-date" by girls from Warkworth Club, Northumberland County and on "Table Setting for a Farm Supper" by Hillier Club, Prince Edward County. Miss Beatrice Maracle, Mohawk W.I., gave an interesting resume of the girls' conference at McDonald Hall, Ontario College of Agriculture, Guelph.

Miss Pollard congratulated the girls on their achievements and expressed her appreciation of the encouragement and support she had received from branches since she took over the work.

Next year the project for Northumberland County girls will be a nutrition course, "The Milky Way". Prince Edward "House Furnishings" and Hastings "Sleeping Garments".

Peace Program

"This is the fourth year we have included 'Peace' in our program," said Mrs. C. Fraleigh, Bloomfield, convener of this section "and great interest has been shown, from all reports sent in. Since 1918 more than fifty countries have been swept by revolution. Countries only grow better when men and women want it. Lady Tweedsmuir has said that we cannot have peace if we do not have it in our own hearts and lives."

Canadian women can kelo to bring about peace by starting at home and making a habit of not being critical over little things.

In discussing the report Miss Powell of the Department of Agriculture pointed out that splendid help could be obtained from the Peace Library of the Department. The financial report was read by Mrs. A. Mitchell and accepted.

Mrs Ralph Wilder contributed a solo, with guitar accompanied.

Community Work

Community activities and relief undertaken last year by Women's Institute reported by Mrs D. Gibson, Coldsprings, showed how complete is this phase of the organization's program. Bales were sent to the needy, flowers and fruit to the bereaved and sick, visits made to the Old People's Home. "Family Nights" and Major Bowes programs were some of community projects sponsored by the Institutes. Mrs. William Calder led in the discussion and stressed the fact that money making is not the only important thing in the community activities. There must be neighborliness and a kindly feeling shown toward the members of the community.

Historical Research

Mrs. J. Barlow, Bonarlaw, gave the report on Historical Research which is considered a rather new topic as yet but many are studying it extensively. It is necessary to secure authentic information and a valuable contribution to Canadian history can be made by various institutes preparing papers concerning their district. Mrs. Barlow outlined the papers given to branches on this subject. Mrs. C. Ketcheson, Trenton stressed the fact that such papers can be interchanged by branches, in her discussion of the report.

Mrs. Jas. Garbutt, Belleville, acted as chairman during the afternoon's session, Friday. Mrs. J. Black of Warkworth presiding in the morning.

Provincial President

Mrs. T. J. McDowell, Provincial President, Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, was an interested visitor at all sessions of the convention. On Friday afternoon she addressed the members bringing messages of greetings from the Board and giving greatly appreciated advice and information on a variety of topics. She urged the members to keep in mind that the Women's Institute is distinctly not a welfare organization; it is educational and members should first look after the educational needs of their own branch, stimulating welfare measures but not assuming the full responsibility for them. She advised women speakers to make more careful study of the elusive art of public speaking so that they may all preside gracefully introduce speakers charmingly and impart their message well.

After detailing the organization of the Federated Board and the reason for fees, Mrs. McDowell gave a highly interesting address on the "Songs We Sing." The Institute Ode should be used as it is intended as a poem of lofty ideal and the National Anthem written by Dr. John Bull in the 1600's should be sung more devoutly, for after all it is a hymn. The only response to a toast to the king is the singing of the national anthem. Taking familiar and inspiring Canadian songs "O, Canada," "Rule Britannia" and "When You and I Were Young Maggie," Mrs. McDowell described their writers and their history. This was followed by a discussion of such favourites as "Annie Laurie," "Drink to Me Only" and others, her hearers being left with a deeper understanding of the songs they love so well.

Score Sunday Dancing

Besides the resolution of courtesy thanking all those who had taken part in the success of the convention, only one resolution was introduced that concerning the abolition of Sunday dancing and considerable discussion followed. It was suggested that this came under the Lord's Day Alliance Act and it was recommended that copies of this act be sent to all proprietors of dance halls in the vicinity. It was learned that councils when approached by delegations on this subject were unable to act as the dance hall licences are issued by the Provincial government from whom action would have to come.

The motion which finally was passed, unanimously said that "whereas West Hastings district believed it to be in the best interests of the future of boys' and girls' that all dance halls be closed on Sunday, therefore be it resolved that the convention area asked that consideration be given to the abolishing of Sunday dancing throughout the province."

C. Clancy Newly Elected President at Convention

Annual Convention Held In Salem United Church; Officers Elected

Rawdon—The annual convention of Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Religious Education Council was held in Salem United Church on Wednesday, October 19th with a splendid attendance of interested Sunday School workers.

The afternoon session opened at 2 p.m. with Rev. S. Delve, pastor of the church, in charge of the worship period.

Mr. Ernest Searles graciously welcomed the guests and Mr. W. J. Johnson, the President, gave an address.

A review of the work of Department Secretaries was given as follows:

Children's Division, Mrs. S. J. Elliott, Bethel; Boy's Work, Mr. F. Elgie, St. Pauls; Girl's Work, Mrs. K. Armstrong, Marmora, read by Rev. Hollingsworth; Young People's Work, Mrs. George Bailey, Springbrook; Adult Division, Mrs. B. Bateman, read by Mrs. H. Mumby; Dept. of Home Religion given by Canon Swayne, Bonarlaw, for his wife; Missionary, given by Mrs. S. Meiklejohn, Rylestone; Temperance, by Mr. W. J. Sharp, Mount Pleasant.

There was no Leadership Training during the past year.

Little Miss Eva Hagerman delighted with a solo.

Mrs. Hiram Mumby gave the statistical report of Secretary-Treasurer, followed by roll call.

Group discussions and a round table conference led by Rev. F. R. Vanderburg proved most helpful and the service was closed by Canon Swayne.

The ladies of Bethel served a very appetizing supper and those who remained thoroughly enjoyed the social hour.

The Sunday Schools in this district are as follows: Wellman's United, Mr. Clifford Clancy; St. Paul's United, Mr. John Good; Salem United, Mr. Wm. Johnson; Rylestone United Mr. Roger Lain; Mount Pleasant United, Mr. W. J. Sharp; Carmel United, Mr. Lou Bird; St. Mark's, Anglican, Mr. J. P. Baker; Springbrook United, Mr. Carmen Sine; St. John's, Anglican, Mr. Fred Houchin; Bethel United, Mr. Roy Welbourne; St. Andrew's, Presbyterian, Mr. Harper Rollins; St. Thomas, Anglican, Mr. W. J. Tanner; St. Paul's, Anglican, Rev. A. B. Caldwell; St. Andrew's, United; Zion, United, Mr. Jas. A. Nickle.

Evening Session

Rev. J. E. Beckel presided over the evening song service and worship service based on "Take time to be holy" and a few verses of Paul's Macedonian Call.

Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth installed the newly elected officers as follows:

Honorary Presidents, Mr. J. F. Baker, Bonarlaw, Mr. Wm. Johnson, Salem.

President, Mr. Carl Clancy, Wellmans.

Vice President, Mr. George Bailey, Springbrook.

Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Fred Elgie, St. Paul's, Stirling.

Children's Work, Mrs. S. J. Elliott, Bethel.

Boys' Work, Mr. Roy Juby, St. Andrew's, Stirling.

Girls' Work, Mrs. Keitha Armstrong, Marmora.

Young People's, Mrs. George Bailey, Springbrook.

Adult Division, Mrs. Carman Sine, Springbrook.

Dept. of Home Religion, Mrs. Jason Baker, St. Mark's, Bonarlaw. Leadership Training, Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth, Marmora; Missionary, Mrs. S. Meiklejohn, Rylestone; Temperance, Mr. Ross Hoard, Mount Pleasant.

The new president, Mr. Carl Clancy was introduced and in his address he said he felt honored in the office which had been bestowed upon him and he hoped he would be able to fill the office and be worthy of the position.

Salem choir with Mrs. V. Hagerman as organist rendered "The Galilean Call—Follow Me".

Springbrook Sunday School was awarded the Banner for another term. During the year they have organized a Trail Ranger Group, C.G.I.T. group and two organized classes.

Mr. Carman Sine, president, received the banner and spoke briefly.

The 1939 convention will be held at Bethel United Church.

Mr. J. B. Hagerman sang "Heaven seems nearer" and Mr. Don Williams spoke of the Training School to be held in January at St. Paul's United Church and he extended thanks to all, especially Mrs. Hiram Mumby and Mr. Will Johnson who are retiring. The County convention will be held in Springbrook on November 16th.

The special address of the evening was given by Rev. F. R. Vanderburg, provincial representative and he congratulated the association on the fine spirit of co-operation and he hoped the schools would increase in spirit and fervour.

Each Sunday School has a part in World Fellowship working at home and abroad. There are thirty million people definitely linked up as scholars, teachers and leaders with the O.R.E.C. and our text is to promote Christianity and fellowship.

He spoke of Paul's experience when he took the second choice and went to Troas, there to hear the Macedonian call and through Paul's second choice we in Canada have Christianity.

If you cannot do what you think is best, then do the second best and make it as best as possible.

He graphically pictured the lives of Joseph, Philip Brooks and Sir Walter Scott, each of them wanted to do something else but finally decided to take the second choice and each succeeded in that task.

He admonished his hearers that when they fail to achieve their dreams that they think are best, then make the best of the second best.

Canada today has the greatest youth movement in the world inside the Church. So his closing challenge was that all would say "not my will but thine be done in all that we attempt."

Rev. A. S. McConnell of Stirling Anglican Church graciously closed this helpful and inspiring service.

Those from Mount Pleasant who attended the Sunday School convention at Salem on Wednesday the 19th were Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine, Mrs. Cyrus Summers, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. John Reid, Mrs. Frank Jeffs, Misses Muriel Sine, Doris Sine, Anna Sharp Messrs John Coggins and Bert Jeffs.

SEVERAL MOTIONS GIVEN ACCORD

Recommendations Passed By Committee Sent On To Council

City council at its regular meeting on Monday evening next will be asked to adopt a resolution passed at last evening's committee meeting of council, which would not permit the rehiring of any employee of the city in the same department, who has been discharged for just cause.

The resolution in full states: "With a view to discouraging subversive tactics on the part of discharged civic employees, and the maintenance of discipline, the following is recommended:

"That no employee of the city, discharged for cause may be reinstated in the same department".

Other resolutions which will be submitted for approval are:

"That before purchasing parts or service for typewriters, adding machines or other business machines in civic departments, at least two competitive prices be obtained, and that the different departments be so informed".

"That a committee of Alderman Rollins and Haig be appointed to consult with the Army and Navy Veterans with regard to tax adjustment for the current year on Memorial Hall.

Recommended that the name of Alderman Logan be substituted for that of Alderman Haig on the personnel of the delegation appointed by council to interview the Ontario Minister of Highways with regard to the Whitney-Belleville road next week."

"That any marked cheques sent in as deposits on the fire hall addition tenders be returned to tenderers."

"That the city solicitor take such action as he deems necessary and expedient for the closing of that part of Dufferin Avenue lying south of Dundas Street and north of the C.P.R. right-of-way for the purpose of bettering the title of the lands occupied by the Childrens' Shelter.

"That the Public Utilities Commission be requested to place two extra lights on George Street between Bridge and Dundas, at the regular charge of seven dollars per annum, and also change the two lights to the proper poles.

Following the regular choir rehearsal a number of interesting and amusing contests and games were played. Mrs. Morrison served a delicious lunch. The appreciation of the choir for the hospitality of the pastor and his wife was expressed by the choir leader Mr. S. H. Connor.

The sympathy of Tweed and Sulphide friends is extended to Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Bowers of Tuckahoe, N.Y. who suffered the loss of their seven-year-old son following an attack of spinal meningitis. One little sister, Helaine, also survives. Dr. Bowers is a son of the late F. C. Bowers and Mrs. Bowers of Sulphide.

Amid a setting appropriate to the autumn season, Reta, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rath of Sulphide, was united in marriage to Keith Garbutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Garbutt of Belleville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. Lloyd Morrison, B.A., pastor of Tweed United Church at the home of the bride's parents. The bride was attractively gowned in Empire-blue crepe with beaded trimmings and corsage of Talisman roses.

Miss Gwendolyn Drew of Havelock as bridesmaid, wore wine crepe and corsage of pink roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Clifford Murphy of Belleville.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Following the wedding dinner, Rev. Morrison proposted the toast to the bride. The groom responded.

Following a wedding trip to Detroit and other cities of the U. S. the young couple will reside near Belleville.

Guests from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Luffman, Foxboro, Mr. and Mrs. Bridge, Foxboro, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Grass Sr., Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Drew, Miss Helen Drew and Mr. Douglas Drew of Havelock.

Miss Alice Nicholson of Kemptville, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. R. Nicholson, formerly of Tweed, was granted her A.T.C.M. piano diploma at Convocation Hall, Toronto, on Monday evening. A short address was given by Dr. Duncan McArthur. Sir Ernest McMillan, Principal of Toronto Conservatory of Music presented the candidates to President Dr. H. Cody who made the presentation of the diplomas.

Mr. H. E. Wager underwent an emergency appendix operation at Belleville General Hospital this week. He is progressing favorably.

A number from Tweed attended the lecture given in Bridge Street United Church by Mrs. Nellie McClung.

Miss Jean Roberts, B.A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Roberts of Actinolite, spent a brief holiday at their home recently. Miss Roberts, formerly of Kitchener Collegiate Institute staff is now on the staff of Western Technical and Commercial School, Toronto.

Wallace Moffat, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Moffat, was operated on in Belleville for the removal of tonsils. Dr. A. C. Locke performed the operation.

Mr. Wadell of Cobourg has been engaged as moulder at Tweed Foundries.

Birth—To Mr and Mrs. Gerald A. Quinn, a daughter (Mary Carol), at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, on Thursday, Oct. 13th.

Misses Irene and Alice Tufts of Tweed were recently presented with diplomas from the Home Service Training Centre, Ottawa. The presentations were made by Mrs. A. J. Frieman, O.B.E., Ottawa. Pins were presented by Mrs. Paul Leduc, wife of the Ontario Minister of Mines.

Joan, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson, was operated on for removal of tonsils at the office of Dr. A. C. Locke, Belleville.

At the Hungerford School Fair, held at Stoco recently, the prizes awarded to exhibitors with the highest number of points were won as follows: First prize, T. Eaton Co. Trophy, Barbara Whalen, S.S. No. 6 Hungerford. Second prize, Book, "Birds of Canada", Claude Thompson, S.S. 1, Hungerford. Third prize, Book, "Three Centuries of Canadian Story", Anna Forbes, S.S. 4, Hungerford.

Don't let these THREE hold you up this winter!

You can forget that there ever was such a motoring menace as a freeze-up when you choose "Prestone" anti-freeze.

Because "Prestone" anti-freeze and water in the proper proportions just can't freeze even at 60° below zero!

And this is true every day, no matter how long the winter—or how severe. Because "Prestone" anti-freeze doesn't evaporate—doesn't lose its strength! Three or four days of mild weather won't send you scurrying for another quart.

"Prestone" anti-freeze protects against rust-clogging, too—can't harm the finish of your car—can't create an unpleasant odour.

NO FREEZE-UP
One half "Prestone" anti-freeze and one half water protects against freezing to a temperature 34° below zero. Use more "Prestone" anti-freeze, according to printed directions, for protection at 50° or 60° below zero. The guarantee is printed on the tin!

NO EVAPORATION
"Prestone" anti-freeze will not evaporate. When mixed with the proper amount of water in a normal cooling system, it gives guaranteed all-winter protection.

NO RUST-CLOGGING
Special properties in "Prestone" anti-freeze reduce the danger of rust-clogging and corrosion to a minimum. A rust-clogged cooling system often leads to expensive repairs—play safe with "Prestone" anti-freeze.

HARVEST OF DOLLARS

Canadians Generally Will Reap Rich Rewards On Cesarewitch Stake

(By The Canadian Press)

More than two score Canadians, their hopes for riches soaring, awaited today the harvest of dollars that will come with the running of the Cesarewitch race in Newmarket, England, next Wednesday.

From the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes draw in Dublin yesterday, 41 Canadian tickets on starting horses were plucked from steel drums.

Some of these tickets are held by groups, swelling the number entitled to participate in the melon. All have a chance of winning one of the three major prizes—$150,000 for the winning horse, $75,000 for second and $30,000 for third.

In addition, 66 Canadian ticket holders are assured of approximately $2,187 each for drawing non-starters.

Nurses Hold Good Ticket

Only a few of the lucky ones revealed their identities last night. Among them were three Saskatoon nurses, who using the nom-de-plume "Triplets' drew a ticket on the favorite, Dubonnet, a 10-1 shot. All unmarried, they are Laura Reynolds, Margaret McCardle and Edna Graham.

An unemployed carpet weaver, father of seven, was one of the three known Toronto ticket-holders. Philip Sims, whose ticket drew Malkowiczze listed in the betting as 40 to 1, said he hoped to make a payment on a farm so as he could put his three husky sons to work—something they've never had a chance to do.

Ald. William Croft, however, contended Sims should sell a half-interest in his ticket and turn the money over to the Toronto Welfare Department in return for the assistance he has received during the past few years.

To A. H. Scott of Toronto who held a ticket on Earth Stopper a 20-1 shot, the money will help him realize two things—help his daughter get married and enable him to undergo medical treatment to correct his crippleness.

Track Auditor Draws Horse

A race track auditor, Alec Carmichael completed the Toronto trio. Carmichael's horse is Corofin; the odds, 33 to 1.

At London, Arthur J. Chapman, factory inspector, revealed he was one of a group of 10 fellow employees who owned a ticket on Goldenshore a 100 to 1 shot. Their pseudonym was "Living in Hope".

Ross Myoer of Echo Place, near Brantford, Ont., drew Miss Windsor, a 33 to 1 shot.

Twelve Great War veterans at Vancouver shared in a ticket on Queen's Shilling, one of the longer priced entries. Thomas W. Goode, secretary-manager of the Army and Navy veterans associations in South Vancouver, spokesman for the group said its nom-de-plume was "Chicken Feed"

LAST RACE AT DUFFERIN TODAY CLOSES SEASON

Five Months of Active Campaigning Has Been Successful

STABLES GO SOUTH

Bunty Lawless, Sir Marlboro And Archworth Best of Canadian Breds

(By Foster Barclay Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Toronto, Oct. 22 (CP)—A banner 1938 racing season, one of the most prosperous in years, closes today, ending five months of active campaigning in Eastern and Western Canada.

When a field of thoroughbreds thunders down the stretch in the seventh race at Dufferin race track here today frenzied fans will screech and escream for their choice stand on benches and crane their necks for a glimpse of galloping horses for the last time this year. Racing fever will be over for another year.

Heralding the end, the larger stables 10 days ago started to van horses to the United States for fall and winter campaigns. Jockeys also headed for warmer climates. Thoroughbreds not scheduled for in-between- season racing have been unwound and taken to winter quarters.

No Lack of Horses

Racing associations have not released figures, but it is understood the business achieves a peak in recent years. Generally, purses averaged higher and attendance figures increased. There was no lack of horses.

Performance of horse in the east was overshadowed by an exhibition of horsemanship displayed by wiry, strong-wristed jockey. Sterling Young, a native of the United States, stole riding honors and was crowned the leading Canadian jockey. When he left for the United States a week ago he had scored 124 victories, most of them on Canadian tracks.

Young accepted nearly 600 mounts and ranks among the first 20 jockeys on the continent. He displaced Pat Remillard who held the title for two straight years.

Bunty Lawless Best

Bunty Lawless branded the best Canadian foaled thoroughbred since Inferno, carried off the three-year-old crown. The study cold, owned by Willie Morrissey of Toronto, sped to a handy victory in the King's Plate, Canadian turf classic, and retained his form throughout the year He was taken to Saratoga during the summer and matched strides successfully with outside competition.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

All the time Toronto Maple Leafs have been looking for that high-powered defenceman, they may have had him right in camp. At any rate, Manager Conny Smythe is liking the looks of blonde Bingo Kampman more every day—and Kampman was with the club last season.

It is known that Smythe was probing around the rest of the National Hockey League for an experienced defenceman during the off-season. Then, with the training campaign at hand, he tried to trade Charlie Conacher for a Detroit defenceman. Unsuccessful, he sold Conacher to Detroit and decided to bank on his rearguard of last season.

Yesterday Conny declared: "Bingo is the most improved player in such a short space of time that I've ever seen in my life. He's checking better, he's hitting harder and he's not afraid of anything." Smythe may have the answer to his prayers in the Kitchener boy who had just about everything but finish in 1937-38.

Cooney Weiland, veteran centre who recently assumed the duties of assistant manager, will carry on as Captain of Boston Bruins, Manager Art Ross announced yesterday that Weiland, his ace-in-the-hole will lead the team when he is on the ice, while Eddie Shore and Dit Clapper will be Captain when Cooney is off.

Wilf Cude little goalie of Montreal Canadiens who suffered a six-stitch cut in his lip early in the week when hit by a puck from the stick of Wilf Hoch won't be back at practice until Monday. The big slit and the heavy stitching were still causing him too much bother to return to the ice today.

Lorne Carr, right winger of New York Americans who was injured in Thursday night's exhibition with New York Rangers, was discharged from hospital yesterday and accompanied the team to Saskatoon. The Americans and Rangers continue their "wheat league" series tonight at Saskatoon and strained tendons in Carr's right ankle are expected to be ready for the game.

Charlie Conacher is getting the ribbing of his life from his new-found Detroit mates. The Red Wings' physician was inoculating players with anti-cold serum when someone noticed big Charlie slipping from the room. Cornered, big Charlie admitted he was scared to death of the needle

Cecil Hart Confident He Will Have Powerful Canadien Team This Year

Ex-Maroons and promising Rookie Crop Brightens the Montreal Outlook.

By GUS GARBER
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Montreal, Oct. 22—There are only about half a dozen Frenchmen left on Les Canadiens' roster but take it from Cecil Hart those Canucks are going to be the "Flying Frenchmen" of old when they step out on the Forum ice, Nov. 6 in the National Hockey League inaugural here against Chicago Black Hawks.

True, those great troupers Aurel Jollat and "Pit" Lepine will no longer sport the tricolor sweater in which they starred for upward of a dozen years. Having reached the end of their playing trail these two stout-hearted hockeyists will devote their time to coaching. Other Canadiens of last season who will be missing from the line-up next month include Marty Burke and Joffre Desilets.

To replace these departed stars Hart has a flock of high-grade hockey material in the ex-Maroons the Canucks grabbed up when the "Big Red Team" suspended operations. Such sterling performers on the ice lanes as Jimmy Ward, Bob Gracie, Herb Cain, Stew Evans, Cy Wentworth and Desse Smith should gladden the hearts of the most enthusiastic Canadien followers.

"Start 'Em Young"

Cecil Hart, who, like silver-thatched Lester Patrick of the New York Rangers, believes in the old adage about starting 'em young has almost a score of hopeful amateurs fighting for berths with his team.

From Quebec, Ontario and Western Canada these young stars have come to Montreal full of hope and ambition, and chances are that one or more will make the grade. If Hart can develop one new man from the amateur ranks each year, he'll be more than satisfied. Fans remember last year when he brought Bill Summerhill up for the play-offs.

Here was a youngster who migrated from Toronto and wound up with Verdun Maple Leafs, amateur farm sponsored by Canadiens. When the latter were riddled by injuries as the play-offs rolled along Summerhill was called in to fill the breach and acquitted himself nobly, making a sensational bow in the monied ranks.

Hart believes the woods are full of counterparts of Summerhill or Toronto's Syl Apps, or.... but why go on? There's a lot of good hockey timber just waiting to be developed and this maker of champions, Cecil Hart, is out to develop it.

The coming hockey season looks like the best in a long time for Montreal's Canadiens. With a promising rookie crop and stars from last year's Maroons to add to their regulars, they expect to go places with a venegance. Three reasons—LOWER LEFT Bob Gracie, ex-Maroon; TOP LEFT, Cy Wentworth, hard-hitting defenceman, also from the disbanded team; RIGHT, George Mantha who's been patrolling the ice lanes for 10 years with the Flying Frenchmen.

From far away Flin Flon, Manitoba, there is Marcel Tremblay, a right winger, who comes to Montreal highly recommended. Toronto and Hamilton, which have produced some of the greatest players the game has ever seen, have a pair of amateurs apiece working out with the Canadiens. There are George Miller and Hubert Hardy, wingers from the Queen City; and Adam Brown and Bob Gardner, also wingmen, from Hamilton.

From Far Fields

Hugh O'Leary of Fort William, John Lalonde of Port Arthur and Smack Allen of Niagara Falls, round out the Ontario boys seeking a place with the Hartmen. The latter played for University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, last season, Max Bentley, a right winger, hails from Del'sle, Sask. In addition there are approximately a dozen boys from Montreal and the surrounding territory.

Gus Mancuso and Wilf Hoch, right winger and defenceman respectively, who tried out for a last year, but were farmed out to New Haven Eagles in the International - American league, are backed for another shot.

Hart is never one to predict a championship before the season gets under way, but this year he's almost tempted to call the shot for his team.

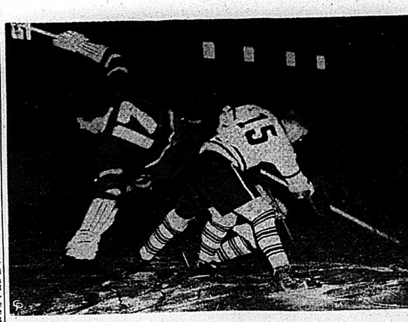
"Just say we'll have one of the strongest teams to ever represent the club and don't be surprised if we win the Stanley Cup and world's championship," is the way he puts it.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)— Mike Jacobs, back from the coast, makes no bones about it—he's having trouble finding guys to fight Joe Louis....One and all are willing but the crop ain't what it ought to be for a heavyweight title setup. James J. Carroll, the big St. Louis turf commissioner, reports plenty of action on War Admiral at 1 to 2 against Seabiscuit in their match race.

Gents, it would amaze you how quick baseball got off these New York sports pages....Why, you wouldn't know the Yanks or Giants—much less Brooklyn—were in the league....All you read here now is the football doings of Fordham, and the members of the Ivy League....without taking a thing away from Fritz Crisler, don't forget that Harry Kipke predicted his 1937 Michigan team—that was the year before he got the old heave-ho—would drop four games (which it did) and that his 1938 outfit would be a darned good one.



With the opening of the National League hockey season but a few football games away the boys are really turning on the heat in practice sessions in various parts of the country. Most of the kinks have been ironed out and they're saying it, with sticks and body checks. Here's a shot from the arena in Galt, Ont., where Toronto Maple Leafs are going through their pre-season paces Flying through the air with becoming grace 's Pete Langelle former Winnipeg Monarch, who played last year with Syracuse Stars in the International-American League. Langelle is expected to stick with the Leafs this year, but in this picture he was getting all the worst of it as he tried to break through a defence made up of Reg. Hamilton and Bingo Kampman. Reg is the one giving Peter the hip, while any arms or legs that can be seen that seem to be superfluous are Bingo.

Why Canadian football players are prone to muff and repeatedly fumble forward passes, while on the receiving end, is a problem. Not infrequently we find potential receivers of forward passes in Canadian football have both hands firmly placed around the fleeting oval, only to subsequently fumble and drop otherwise perfectly good forward pass. In the American game, however, the receivers seldom muff forward passes when in the clear. On the other hand, however, Yankee receivers just can't seem to catch lateral passes, while this art is just so much "apple pie" for Canadian football handlers. No doubt the smaller American ball has much to do with the receiving of forward passes, but the apparent difference lies in the manner in which these respective players actually take their forward passes. The American player merely glances over either shoulder and lets the ball pass him in flight, thereby having to catch it in front of him, while both are going in the same direction. Frankly speaking we feel the reason, why Canadian players fumble so many forward passes is because the Canadian football is so much larger than the American football.

In commenting on this selfsame subject Vern DeGeer in the Windsor Star, compliments Canadian football in comparison with the professional game played in the States. The Windsor writer watched the Sarnia-Montreal game last Saturday and a pro game in Detroit on Sunday and the following is his opinion:

In the matter of honest-to-goodness gridiron entertainment we saw as much action in the first quarter of Saturday's Sarnia-Montreal Nationals' game at Sarnia, as was presented in the 60 minutes of the professional football show at Briggs Stadium, Detroit, Sunday. There were no Sammy Baughs at work in the Sarnia game, although Bummer Stirling did a pretty fair chore. And you can't forget that the greatest difficulty in Canadian football is not in pass tossing, but in finding lads capable of handling passes, even when dropped into their laps. The punting at Briggs Stadium was far superior to that seen in most American college games. The business of sacrificing a few extra yards in order to click on out-of-bounds punts is something that Canadian hoofers have never fully appreciated, or attempted to master.

Our football selections for this week find us in somewhat of a quandry in one or two positions. In the Interprovincial Hamilton over Montreal and Ottawa will beat Argos on their season's showing. In the senior O.R.F.U. it's Sarnia easily over Peterboro; and Montreal over Balmy Beach. In the Intercollegiate it should be McGill to beat Queen's, but with Varsity at Western we're not so sure, but will have to string along with the "Mustangs."

While taking in the sights at the Kiwanis Karnival last evening we ran across Norman "Flat" Walsh, former Montreal Maroon goalie and more recently hockey coach at the Queen's University. "Let me tell you, this boy Bud Johnson is playing great football for Queen's this year and inside of two years he will be one of Canada's ranking grid stars," predicted Flat, as he continued to laud Belleville's most recent gift to Intercollegiate football. When questioned regarding the possibilities of hockey at Queen's this season, Flat stated he expected to have a much better puck squad than last season.

Thomas O. M. Sopwith, wealthy English yachtsman, doesn't believe a challenge for the America's cup will be forthcoming for some time.

He first favors the building of a testing tank in England, like the one at Stevens Institute, where a challenger might be equipped to develop the necessary speed.

Wilfred Hetzel, basketball shooting expert, has 52 different shots from sitting, lying and kneeling positions. He has played before 500,000 persons in 17 states.

The Central Ontario Basball League, organized in 1919, will hold its 21st annual meeting in Peterborough this evening. We understand that President Max Swanston, who has guided the Central League ship through many a stormy sea for the past six years, will likely resign, as will Newton Thompson, who has conducted the office of secretary and treasurer in a most efficient and capable manner for the past 14 years, being elected to office in 1925 to replace the late Jack Nott. Just where the C.O.B.L. expects to procure such capable officers we are at a loss to know, although Vice-President Art Casterson, Kingston, should be in line for the presidency.

According to the latest reports from Kingston, there is a movement afoot to revive senior ball among the scattered Ponies for 1939, although the majority of officers to hold office in the Pony management have resigned. No doubt when the Limestone City delegates convene at Peterboro this evening there will be plenty of fireworks pertaining to last summer's difficulties, when the Ponies were suspended for the use of alleged ineligible players, but the Petes were permitted a clean bill although tarred with the same brush.

Just how the C.O.B.L. expects to operate with another three teamed loop is hard to visualize. As a matter of fact we would not be surprised to see Oshawa seniors linked up with the Niagara Peninsula loop. "It is five miles farther from Oshawa to Kingston, than it is from Oshawa to Niagara Falls, Ont.," revealed the Motor City scribe some time ago when he confidentially informed us that the Oshawa crowd was soured on the Petes and were applying for a berth in the Peninsula loop. The C.O.B.L has lived in hopes of seeing senior ball revived in Belleville, but more recently fired (as the Liftlock City scribe gracefully admits) the only interested Belleville party, who might have lent efforts towards such a revival. Something of a boomerang huh?

Hodge Podge — Art Ross, helmsman of the Boston Bruins, predicts a great season for "Flash" Hollett, whom he procured from Toronto... Jack Adams has signed nine Canadian amateurs for his Pittsburg, Eastern League farm....The Peterboro scribe really went out on the limb, when he described Shiner Johnson as an "imported ball player" to Belleville. How that feller's imagination functions is little less than phenomenal .... Buck Jones who was here with the Owen Sound Trappers last year is in the Detroit Red Wings camp now .... Bob Shawkey who piloted the New York Yankees after the death of the late Miller Huggins, is seeking the managership of the Montreal Royals....One more football selection forgotten—Cobourg to win over Belleville; score ??—don't even worry about it....Joe DiMaggio will be the first to sign with the Yankees next year. His poor showing the result of a holdout in 1938, prompted this decision...The Petes had more "imports" this season than Belleville has had in all the years it has been playing senior ball....And Belleville has won 2 provincial titles.

After four delightfully tasty servings of bear Cubs (Chicago style), slugging Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee outfielder, returns to his San Francisco restaurant, and proceeds to serve some tasty steaks to the customers himself. Here he is back in the kitchen with Chef Carlo Luisetti, as he settles down to a winter of work before he returns to play with American league pitching next season.

DEPREDATIONS

Whitehall is watching developments closely and not without concern.

Re-establishment of law and order is the primary condition demanded by Mr. MacDonald before the government undertakes to enter upon further negotiations in working out a long range policy for appeasement in the Holy Land. Without an atmosphere of calmness and good will, it is believed any new overtures involving compromise or possible concessions would be construed only as signs of weakness and fatal obstacles to peace.

Wait Hopefully For Next Move.

Britain is waiting hopefully the next move by the Colonial Secretary. Late this month, or shortly after parliament reconvenes, he will present the report of the technical commission headed by Sir John Woodhead, which was entrusted with the task of defining boundaries for the tripartite division of Palestine proposed by the Peel Royal Commission last year.

Recently Taufik Beg, Foreign Minister of Iraq, conferred with Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary on another plan. This scheme, reported to have the support of King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, contemplates an independent Palestine divided along cantonal lines, similar to the government of Switzerland.

A similar proposal was advanced before but was rejected as unworkable by extremists on both sides. And that has been the fate of all plans to date.

Want To Revive Traditions.

A million Arabs intent on reviving the traditions of the "Arab Golden Age" are mainly alarmed over the increase of the Jewish population in Palestine since Britain assumed its mandate.

They point to statistics showing a rise from 83,800 Jews in 1922 to nearly 400,000 today. The Arabs consistently have refused to accept economic benefits as adequate compensation for increased Jewish immigration.

In authoritative circles here it is said that the Woodhead Commission, in its report, advises that the partition of the Holy Land into separate Arab and Jewish states, with a British buffer state between, is neither equitable nor practicable.

DENSE

The same conditions were reported on the mainland where the pheasants, if anything, proved even more gun-shy.

Average Bird Per Hunter.

It was estimated about 275 hunters invaded the low lands of Westminster Township where the bag limit was set at three birds. Officials said the result at the end of the day was an average of one bird per hunter.

As many as three men were shooting at one time on a 100-acre farm in the St. Thomas area and aside from the toll among the feathered folk, one hunting dog "bit the dust".

Results were even more disappointing in Kent and one estimate, unofficial, was that the shoot average was one bird to a "motorcar load of men".

On Amherst Island, off Kingston, 125 nimrods held forth Dense undergrowth hampered the hunters. The birds were hard to "kick up". they said and it required a trained dog to flush them.

AT THE BELLE

"BREAKING THE ICE"
"THE MYSTERIOUS RIDER"

More tuneful and entertaining than any previous Bobby Breen vehicle is the eleven-year-old singer's "Breaking the Ice", which is on the Belle Screen. By all odds the picture is the most costly, as well as the most spectacular in the career of this songster of radio and screen.

Most outstanding qualities are its clever and entertaining mingling of music, romance, adventure and comedy with a very pleasing eye-full of magnificent spectacle, unexpected in a film centering around a juvenile personality.

Of great importance to the boy's admirers is the fact that "Breaking the Ice" presents him as a new personality. Heretofore the main objective was to exploit his great talent as a singer, with a consequent subduing of his personality. This new picture stresses the former, as it properly should, but pays a liberal amount of attention to the boy himself—this in a film which has exceptional merits of its own, and which could stand on its own, regardless of whether the boy sang or not.

The big surprise of "Breaking the Ice" is in the spectacular ice revue at the beginning of the film This introduces to the screen for the first time the highly promising Irene Dare, the six-year-old figure skater and "baby Sonja Henie." This youngster should merit stardom by virtue of an exceptional talent and personality.

Charlie Ruggles gives an exceptional comedy performance, which means that his is a particularly bright spot in the picture, and Miss Costello, who has only recently returned to the screen appears as beautiful and as talented as she was when she left the screen several years ago to devote all her time to her two children. In capably-played supporting roles are Robert Barrat, Dorothy Peterson, Billy Gilbert, Charley Murray and John King.

Zane Grey Story

Zane Grey's latest tale of life in the raw Western cattle country is being presented at the Belle when Paramount's new range romance, "The Mysterious Rider" is announced as the added feature offer.

As the hero of his new story Grey has chosen one of the most unusual and colorful characters ever to come from his pen. He is a masked rider, played by Douglas Dumbrille, who rides about the Arizona desert country handing out a rough-hewn justice at the point of a six-shooter and biding his time until he can settle old scores with men who sent him into exile for a murder they themselves committed.

The masked rider flies into action when his enemies take advantage of his long absence to try to make away with the ranch and cattle of his grown-up daughter, a girl he has not seen since she was a baby. By means of taking a job as puncher on her ranch in disguise and working hand-in-hand with her daring sweetheart, Russell Hayden, Dumbrille succeeds in routing his enemies and making his daughter's happiness secure.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Girl Said No"

Combining sparkling comedy, drama and musical selections of pristine-excellence from the brilliant production "Princess Ting-Ah-Ling", which scored with outstanding merit in the United States, "The Girl Said No" is indisputably one of the most lavish screen productions Grand National has released to date. The various roles are superbly portrayed by thorough screen artists that include Irene Hervey, Robert Armstrong, William Danforth, Frank Moulan and the original stage cast of the musical production of "Princess Ting-Ah-Ling".

"The Girl Said No" will be the feature attraction at the McCarthy Theatre for three days commencing on Monday.

"Vacationing in Quintupland"

An exceptionally fine technicolor short subject entitled "Vacationing in Quintupland" that gives a camera-eye view of our own province of Ontario during the summer holiday season. This is one of the most enjoyable travelogue presentations ever produced and should be well received by the patrons. Andy Clyde, in his latest twenty minute comedy offering entitled "Jump Chump Jump" and a clever musical cartoon in color entitled "Bluebird's Baby" will be presented in advance of "The Girl Said No".

"Nothing Sacred"

Carole Lombard, Fredric March, Charles Winninger and Walter Connolly in the technicolor comedy hit, "Nothing Sacred", will be presented tonight at the McCarthy Theatre. Complete performances starting at 7 and 9 p.m. This is one of the finest comedy productions produced this year and we recommend that you see it.

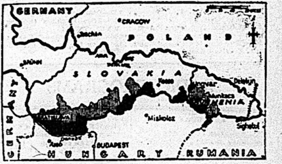
Katherine Byrne, ABOVE, arrested with Melville Campbell, who is being held at London, Ont. on charges of armed bank robbery, has denied that she was kidnapped and forced to accompany Campbell to Windsor, according to police, Mrs. W.J. Byrne, mother of the girl is reported as having said that Katherine had been forced to accompany Campbell when he was fleeing from police following the robbery of a Richmond Hill bank.



Hungary's claims in Eastern Czechoslovakia and Poland's desire for a common Polish-Hungarian border are still unsolved. Germany is believed to favor giving Hungary only areas in which more than 50 per cent of the population is Hungarian (shown by heavy shading). But Budapest wants additional areas in which there are large Hungarian colonies (shown by light shading). Poland is reported to have proposed dividing Ruthenia between Hungary and Roumania.

Five persons met death in this car when it collided with a lumbering freight train in the little Laurentian village of Lesage, Que. The accident victims were five of a party, travelling in two automobiles through heavy rain from Contrecoeur to Sainte-Agathe to visit a relative in the hospital at the latter town. This accident was the second of its kind to happen in Quebec province within the last week and raises the death toll for level crossing fatalities to 10 in a week. Gelinas Fortin, 65, his wife, 62; Ernest Lavigne, 55; Mrs. Joseph Fortin, 57, all of Contrecoeur, and Adelard Jessaume, 55, of Fall River, Mass., lost their lives in the ABOVE crash.

Art McEwing and his Farmer Fiddlers, old-time ensemble which CBC will present to a world wide radio audience during the Fifth World Concert Sunday, October 23, 2.30 to 3.00 p.m. E.S.T.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 23

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a very propitious one, with every promise of attaining honors and the endorsement of superiors and those in high standing. These should be sought for promotion or preferment, but be discreet in writings, especially of an intimate nature, and guard against small loss.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very lively and important year, with matters moving at such high tension as to attract the attention and support of those in power and authority. These may be sought for promotion, favors or even their personal friendship.

A child born on this day may be talented, progressive and ambitious. It should not be backward in attracting its employers and superiors who will assist its career.

For Monday, October 24

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for rather disturbing or unsettled conditions, which may cause a disagreeable uprooting, a relinquishing of plans or environs, or other events rather devastating and disappointing. Strange influences are noted, with documents, writings, speculative agreements or contracts holding importance.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which there may be surprising developments, with some disturbances and hazards to the fortunes and peace of mind.

A child born on this day may be clever and adventurous, but [illegible] difficult to understand and impossible to manage, although it [illegible] have proclivities to intrigue, craft and expediency.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 22 (AP) — Aircrafts pointed the way to a brisk but selective upswing in today's stock market and leaders, at the best, scored gains running to three or more points.

The bulge tempted profit takers, however, and top marks were reduced in many cases near the close. Numerous new recovery peaks were touched in the first hour's advance. Transfers were about 1,300,000 shares.

Canadian issues were narrowly irregular. Gainers of minor fractions included Canadian Pacific, Dome and Distillers, while Dominion Stores and Lake Shore slipped back as much. Canada 4s were in mild demand.

Prominent on the climb, beside Douglas Aircraft were United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Kennecott, American Telephone, Loew's, National Lead and International Nickel.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Oct. 22 (CP)—Prices were scaled up moderately and buying improved in the second hour today on the Toronto Exchange, giving the market a strong week-end tone. New high prices for the year appeared in both mining and industrial groups and the indices were up at the finish.

International Nickel advanced to 58, up a full point from the previous high price this year, Noranda and Smelters posted gains of ½ to ¾ and Waite-Amulet and Ventures gained about 10 cents each.

McIntyre sold at 50, up ½ to a new high for the year. Heavy trading appeared in a group of the junior golds. Features were McWatters, up about 7 cents on top of yesterday's gain of 13 cents, Gunnar, up about 7 cents and St. Anthony and Augite, both up a cent or two.

Recovery of about a point of Friday's loss was registered by Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams firmed a small fraction. Steels, Utilities, foods and papers posted more gains than losses.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

Considerable publicity is being given the business improvement in the United States, and it is reported that industry has absorbed approximately 1,000,000 unemployed in the last few months. This is adequate proof of the recovery that is in progres sand explains the buoyancy of the New York market in recent weeks. A reflection of this improvement is bound to be felt in Canada.

The strength in the alcohol stocks this week is not surprising. Distillers-Seagrams, which is paying $2.00 in dividends, annually, reported earnings for the year ended July 31, 1938, of $3.75 a share, as against $3.95 in the previous year. This indicates that the $2.00 dividend is amply secured, and consequently, even at 20, the yield is ten per cent. In addition, it is understood that the security is presently receiving good market sponsorship.

Hiram Walker's preliminary earnings results for the year ended August 31, 1938, revealed income equivalent to $8.04 a share on the common as against $8.29 a share in the previous year. The $4.00 annual dividend, therefore, has been covered more than twice and the yield of around 8 per cent. is attractive. In connection with Hiram Walker, an unconfirmed report is to the effect that the directors may shortly give consideration to the question of splitting the shares, possibly on a three-for-one basis.

In considering the liquor stocks, cognizance should be taken of the fact that these companies are presently entering their busy season and should experience good earnings between now and the end of the year. As a business man's investment, such stocks as Hiram Walker and Distillers-Seagrams offer a high return in addition to good appreciation possibilities.

Sensitive Scales Used in Weighing

In order to make an accurate weighing, the object must be free from all incumbrances. This condition was not easy to obtain where the carcasses are moved on the rail by an endless chain.

This was overcome by installing a shuttle on ball bearings which carries the carcass ahead of the finger that propells it so that it is free from all incumbrances during the period of weighing.

This feature contributed much to the accuracy of this very sensitive scales.

Toronto Butter Prices Ease

Toronto, Oct. 22—Further weakness appeared in butter prices during yesterday's session of the local produce market, while graded eggs were easy.

Prevailing lethargic trading again depressed prices on the butter market. Although traders displayed little interest in buying, there was no accumulation of any account in offerings as the floating supply remains light. Production is showing the seasonal decline, which, in turn, is being reflected in the smaller arrivals of fresh receipts. Holders of storage stocks are still not willing to sell at current prices. Ontario creamery solids were offered at 22¾c for No. 1 grades, 22c for 38 score. Prints ruled steady at 24½ to 25c for top grades and 23¾c to 24¼c for 38 score. Buyers continued to quote in the range of 21c to 22c for No. 1 grade churning cream (country truck prices.)

The slower demand was more in line with the limited supplies of fresh eggs arriving on the egg market, and prices in the graded division reached for lower levels. Mediums and pullets, the grades most difficult to move, eased 1c per dozen. Graded shipments traded at 40c for grade A-large, 38c for medium, 29c for pullets, 26c to 27c for B's and 21c to 22c for C grades.

Eggs Active at Montreal

Montreal, Oct. 21—Egg prices were steady and active on open produce markets here Friday, while most other sections remained firm at Thursday's levels, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24c to 25c a pound and creamery solids for 23½c to 24½c.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 42c a dozen for A-large, 40c for A-medium, 30½c to 31c for A-pullets, 26c to 27c for B-large and 20½c to 21c for C. Receipts 1336 cases, including 1125 for export.

Bottle with Note Ends Journey of 3 Years in Atlantic Ocean

For Second Time Mr. G. M. James Has Demonstrated For Himself Course of Ocean Current — Bottle Dropped East of Gulf Stream Between New York And Bermuda in 1935 Is Reported This Week Found On Coast of British West Indies — Voyage of Bottle Note Proves Circular Current From Gulf of Mexico Crosses Atlantic And Returns To Gulf — First Experiment Made In 1932 In Mid-Atlantic

Like a voice from the misty past, from over stretches of turbulent sea, breathing memories of an incident perhaps long forgotten in the author's mind, a letter received by G. M. James at the James Texts office, Front Street, this week from the British West Indies, spanned a bridge of 3 years' time and brought the realization to local residents that even in present prosaic times romance of the sea still lives.

Mr. George M. James of Belleville, noted educationist, lecturer, and author of James Texts, who this week has for the second time secured positive proof of the course of ocean currents as a result of his own experiments made at sea.

Three years ago, on May 19th., 1935, while en route to Bermuda from New York, Mr. G. M. James wrote the following on stationery of the "Queen of Bermuda", steamship of the Furness Bermuda Line: It was wholly in the nature of an experiment.

"This letter and bottle were dropped in the Atlantic Ocean today from the 'Queen of Bermuda' steamship midway between New York and Bermuda southward bound. If the finder answers the following questions and returns this letter, he or she will get a cash award".

Instructions contained in the letter informed the finder to deliver the communication and answering correspondence to Mr. Geo. M. James, Box 126, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

Letter Arrives This Week

This week, graphic in its very simplicity, a letter received by Mr. James from Samuel Sawyer, Savannah Sound, Eleuthera, Bahamas, B.W.I., told of the finding of the bottle on the North Beach of Savannah Sound, half buried in the sand of the shore. It was in perfect shape, and clearly legible, despite its apparent long immersion in sea water and sand.

An indication of the character of the finder is revealed in the humanly interesting answers given to the penetrating questions asked by Mr. James in his bottle-sealed letter. They follow:

Many Questions Answered

"Your full name and address?" asked Mr. James in his message.

"Samuel Sawyer, Savannah Sound, Eleuthera, Bahamas, B.W.I.

"Your age?

"Fifty-six years.

"Are you married or single?

"Married, and the father of three children.

"Do you believe in luck? And if so, why?

"Yes, I really do, because I am in pretty tough luck right now!

"Who is the greatest man living now?

"Being a British subject, to me King George VI is.

"Name the greatest country.

"To my mind, England.

"What would you like to have best of all if you had your choice?

"Long life, because health is better than wealth.

"What is your occupation, and how much do you earn in a year?

"My occupation is farming, and in nine cases out of ten the end of the year comes and I don't see one penny to rub against the other, consequently I earn practically nothing.

"Is the world getting better or worse?

"I should say worse, because we can't get money now as we used to ten years ago.

"Do you go to church, and if so what demonination, sect or creed?

"Yes, I go to church very frequently. I am a member of the Methodist Church."

Cash Reward is Forwarded

True to his promise in the letter Mr. James has already forwarded a cash award to the finder of the bottle and note, and has placed the original letter and answer among his many other unique curios in a large collection. Stained and scuffed through its contact and handling by a person he has never seen, the original message and answering correspondence, form one of the most human documents possessed by the local author—businessman.

"A very small world, after all", comments Mr. James.

Truth is stranger than fiction. This is the second time in which Mr. James in search for proof for himself of the general opinion held as to the course of ocean currents, has substantiated the accepted opinions. One of the oddest facts is that two bottles which he dropped into the sea three years apart have been found and the messages they contained returned to him. Mr. James now has the satisfaction of knowing for himself what the courses of ocean currents really are.

First Bottle Adrift

It was in July 1932 that the first bottle was dropped as nearly as possible in the middle of the Atlantic as Mr. James was crossing between England and Newfoundland. "It was as near the middle as could be designated to me by the Captain," said Mr. James. "That bottle travelled three thousand miles as nearly as I could figure to Norway. After running the gauntlet of icebergs and rocks, along the coast of Iceland it landed far north on the shores of Norway.

Mr. James made fairly certain that if found there would be a reply from the finder as he offered the inducement of a cash reward, in this case and in the case reported today for the first time.

The second bottle was dropped on May 19th., 1935. Mr. James, taking the time to travel from New York to Bermuda and dividing it in half, figured that this was half way between Bermuda and New York. "I was careful to get it placed outside of the Gulf Stream and as a result it travelled south. It was dropped to the east of the Gulf Stream, about 400 miles east of the coast of the United States and about three hundred miles to the north of Bermuda," he stated.

Mr. James' Conclusions

"It was a case of scientific experiment in each case," he explained, "to show positively the course of currents in the Atlantic and as a result of the experiments I have come to these conclusions:

(1) "That the bottle dropped in mid-Atlantic in 1932 followed the branch of the Gulf Stream which travels north to the coast of Scandinavia, whereas the other branch of the Gulf Stream travels straight across the ocean to England.

(2)—"The bottle dropped off the Atlantic coast in 1935 proves that there is a circular current from the Gulf of Mexico and the West Indies to the West Coast of Africa and back to the Gulf of Mexico. These facts were already established and I wished to establish them for myself by my own experiments."

AT THE CAPITOL

"Robin Hood"

The premiere of "The Adventures of Robin Hood" will take place Sunday midnite at the Capitol Theatre where it will remain for an extended run. The large Technicolor melodrama received some of the highest praise ever accorded a motion picture from critics and audiences when it had its Hollywood premiere.

Starring Errol Flynn, the dashing young Irish star who has made such a phenomenal rise to stardom, as Robin, the Warner Bros. production was supervised by two of the outstanding film directors of Hollywood, William Keighley and Michael Curtiz.

Olivia de Havilland, the petite and lovely star who played opposite Flynn in "Captain Blood" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade", plays Maid Marian, his lady-love. Claud Rains as the villainous King John, Basil Rathbone plays Sir Guy of Gisbourne, Ian Hunter is King Richard the Lion-Hearted, and Patric Knowles, Herbert Mundin, Montagu Love, Melville Cooper, Alan Hale, Eugene Pallette and Una O'Connor have supporting roles.

Original Story.

Norman Reilly Raine, who recently received the Academy Award for his writing job on "The Life of Emile Zola", collaborated with Seton I. Miller on the screen story for "The Adventures of Robin Hood".

Although the story has the same principal characters, it is far different from the tale employed by Douglas Fairbanks when he made a silent movie of "Robin Hood" some sixteen years ago. Since it is a matter of debate whether Robin Hood ever lived in actuality, or was merely a legendary figure, there is much material, both mythical and historical, from which to tell the story of Robin Hood and his merry band. So the scenarists of this tale, Norman Reilly Raine and Seton I. Miller, used their liberty to the fullest, and made a melodramatic romance that outdoes all previous yarns about the hero of Sherwood Forest and his many adventures.

Prominent Financier Becomes Associated With Dominion Stores

Announcement is made of the election of Francois Faure, of Montreal, to the Board of Directors of Dominion Stores, Limited. Mr. Faure, who is Vice-President of Consolidated Paper Corporation, is a prominent figure in commercial and social life in the Province of Quebec.

FRANCOIS FAURE, of Montreal, whose election to the Board of Directors of Dominion Stores Limited is announced. Mr. Faure is Vice-President of Consolidated Paper Corporation.

Born in Belgium, Mr. Faure came to Canada 32 years ago, and became associated with the Belgo-Canadian Pulp & Paper Company of Shawinigan Falls as assistant to the President, H. Miermans. Upon formation of the St. Maurice Valley Corporation he became a Director, subsequently serving in the capacity of woodlands manager with Canada Power & Paper Corporation. In 1937 he was made Vice-President of Consolidated Paper Corporation in charge of woodlands.

His work in connection with woodlands has for years kept Mr. Faure in intimate touch with the rural life of Quebec. At the present time he directs the operations of several thousand lumbermen in different parts of the Province.

A resident of Montreal since 1926, Mr. Faure has been prominently identified with the French Federated Charities, being President of the Executive 1936-1937.

And So—

By JOAN POOLE

You remember Terrydale, don't you? The little town just this side of the Junction? The one with the shabby gray station and the fringe of barberry bushes just back of the platform? Of course, it's only a grown-up village, but ....for one little hour it became rather heady with its own importance. That was when the dark green and glistening splendor of Dan Farraday's private car came out of the West and came to halt beside the little station platform.

Dan Farraday had come home! after 15 years of struggle and success and glory, he had returned to the scene of his boyhood activities.

Far down the street he could see a canvas pennant strung across the street inscribed, "Welcome home, Dan!" in preparation for the big reception which was to honor him; he sighed a little at the thought of that reception! Just now he was homesick for a sight of the quiet little street of his boyhood; he wanted to walk through the thick fallen leaves of that little lane and glimpse the tiny white house which had held his boyhood and echoed to the sound of his mother's voice.

The street lay as he had always remembered it; quiet and tree-lined, with infrequent glimpses of white houses far back from the white picket fences. There was a familiar odor of burning leaves. And here, seen through a sudden mist in his eyes, was Home. White, tiny and silent. But was it silent? A sudden gleam of light shone in an upper window, passed and was followed by darkness and then, after an interval, a rosy gleam in the lower window. His mother's old lamp! Somebody was in the house.

It was a somewhat startled someone who replied to his imperious summons, someone in a rose-colored shawl, and who stared incredulously.

"Dan Farraday!"

"Cynthy!"

"I kind o' thought you'd come here, Dan," she said softly. "And I came over to....have it ready for you." She picked up her shawl again. "And you can stay here until the reception. You'll find things just as they always were, Dan. I've got to get over and help the Ladies' Aid. The supper, you know. O Dan, that supper!" He groaned and clutched at her hand.

"Don't leave me, Cynthy," he pleaded. "I need you here. Please! I want to have you show me around the old place." Arm in arm now, they walked through the rooms, laughing at familiar things, silent at intervals, coming to a halt before the faded, old-fashioned portrait of Dan's mother over the mantel. She touched his arm timidly.

"She must be so proud now, Dan," she said quietly. "She always said you'd be a great man some day—that you'd have everything." He stood silent, fingering the books in the old-fashioned walnut rack by the fireplace, taking them out and replacing them absently, rustling the leaves blindly.

"A great man!" he echoed, "and have everything! And I haven't, Cynthy .. .. .. I haven't. She ... she died before I could show her, and before I could do things for her. And there was nobody to take her place." He turned the leaves of the book in his hands idly; a sheet of paper fluttered from the book and he picked it up absently; then, as the writing came before his eyes, he frowned incredulously.

"What is it, Dan?" the woman asked quietly. He handed her the sheet of paper wordlessly. She read the paper through to the signature; her color had flown when she finished and she was suddenly very white.

"I don't understand," she faltered. "What . . . what does it mean?"

"You mean you never knew about it?"

"Never, Dan. I . . . O, I'm beginning to see. You wrote this to me that night, 15 years ago..."

"And sent it to you in the book," hen finished quietly.

"O, Dan! Dan! And I never knew. You went away and I waited and waited. And then I went away, too. And I suppose the book came back to your house. And all these years....O, Dan!"

"When I didn't hear, I thought there was no hope for me," he said heavily. "And I tried to forget. There has never been anybody else, Cynthy. Tell me, would it have been Yes?" She smiled up through tear-brilliant eyes.

"It was always 'Yes,' Dan," she said.

After a while the cheers and whistles from the town brought them back to reality.

"Good Heavens, Dan, the reception!"

He laughed.

"Bring on your reception," he said cheerily. "We'll go together, Cynthy. This is going to be a large night for Terrydale."

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

CHAPTER X.

Days went by. One evening she ventured into Dave's Blue Room, hoping an opportunity might be given her to sing there.

But before she could make her request to the manager, he recognized her and said quickly: "Mr. Niklas has been looking for you. We both got in touch with Mr. Gusheim, and he said he didn't know where we could find you, that he'd let you out of the show at the Casino. But Mr. Niklas wants you—here's his phone number."

He gave her a slip of paper.

"Who," asked Toni faintly, "is Mr. Niklas? And why does he want me?"

"He heard you sing here that night. He was the sallow-faced man in the corner who applauded. He's one of the richest and most important night-club men on Broadway. He can make you or break you. My advice is for you to get in touch with Mr. Niklas immediately," the manager urged her.

Over his desk in his handsomely appointed office on Broadway, the sleek, suave Mr. Niklas assessed Toni through brilliant dark eyes.

"I have sent for you"—his voice was extraordinarily soft and gentle—"because it is my belief that I can fit you importantly, into a night club I am opening shortly."

"Yes?"

"The work," said Mr. Niklas, drumming beautifully manicured fingers upon the desk, "requires discretion. Poise. Above all class. When I heard you sing in Dave's Blue Room, it was the last two qualities that interested me. In addition, of course, to your voice."

Was this genuine?—Toni wondered. Her performance of that evening had failed completely, so far as Patty Gusheim was concerned. Was there a catch here? Her straightforward gaze met that of the promoter.

He caught the troubled look in her eyes. He said, his voice gentle: "You are new to Broadway? To its ways?"

She hesitated. Subterfuge had only brought her trouble.

"Completely new, yes."

"Ah, that is very good." He smiled. It was a pleasant smile, displaying excellent white teeth. "How long have you been in the city, Miss—he consulted a memorandum—"Miss Goddard?"

His accent was definitely foreign. Staccato. She thought: "He doesn't talk. He purrs!"

"Only a few weeks, Mr. Niklas."

"Your first visit to New York?" He was watching her keenly.

"Yes." Nervously she adjusted the mink coat that had been a twenty-first birthday present from her father. Only the day before she had been on the point of selling it at one-eighth of its value. She saw Mr. Niklas looking at the coat, and was aware that he was wondering by what methods she had obtained it.

Annoyed, therefore, and with a sense of foreboding, she made a quick resolution to put her cards on the table, so there would be no future mistakes.

"I am from San Francisco. My people lost all their money. I came East, hoping to get a job as a writer. Sublime optimist!" she added, smiling wryly.

"But, you have traveled? You have—pardon me!—the air."

"I studied in Paris two years. Also, I've been in the Orient."

"You have an excellent French accent. Just like a native."

"I had French governesses from the time I was a tot. And"—no longer did she feel boastful about it, but rather deprecatory, after her snubs from the many employment agencies—"I majored in French as well as in English literature at college."

"So? That gives me an idea. And you have no relatives, no friends, no ties here in New York? On your way to and from Paris—"

"By the Canal route," she finished for him. "I know no one in this city." Fear caught her at what was coming. Would it be another experience such as she had had with Patty Gusheim?—she wondered. Was there no place on Broadway for decent standards of conduct?

"You were a showgirl in the New Gallic Casino, I understand?"

"But that didn't last." A burning flush covered her face.

He saw it. His keen mind appraised it.

He said, deliberately, his foreign accent noticeable: "That Gusheim, eh is—please forgive the word—a scoundrel."

She was relieved. He understood, then, what had occurred. And, understanding it, there would be no similar occurrence in the job he was planning for her. Toni drew a long breath and smiled at Mr. Niklas.

He thought: "She has a beautiful smile. She's a lady. We could turn her into a beauty. No ties, no friends. Excellent! She could be an A-1 drawing card. We could re-create her."

But none of this showed in his inscrutable black eyes.

"At college, did you study psychology, Miss Goddard? A knowledge of people, how to please them, win their confidence—in fact, find out all about them, is immensely important in this business."

"The night-club business?" she asked.

"The part I shall require you to play in night-club life." His eyes slitted as he looked at her.

Again that feeling of uneasiness assailed her. What lay behind his meticulous phrases?—she wondered.

"Discretion. Shall I say, a sixth sense that informs one who is important, and who isn't?"

She said, honestly: "But I know no one in New York."

"With your social background, the experience that travel must have given you, Miss Goddard, you will readily separate what I may call the sheep from the goats! You will attract the rich, important clients to our premises that are ah!—so beautiful!" Mr. Niklas rubbed his hands together. Her naivete was not real. She was a deep one. And that pleased him also. It would add that touch of mystery that was a magnet to the public.

She heard herself asking, with a touch of sharpness that slipped from her unawares: "What exactly would be the nature of my duties in your night club, Mr. Niklas? And what salary would you be prepared to pay me?"

He evaded the first question. With a distinctly foreign gesture, he turned the palms of his hands upward and out.

"That would depend entirely on your drawing ability, Miss Goddard. If you make a hit, develop an important following. I might even go so far as to give you a share in the profits." He paused, for a chill had come over the face of the girl opposite him. He thought, with a touch of admiration: "She's shrewd!"

"Meantime I have to live, Mr. Niklas. I depend entirely on my earnings. I shall require a guaranteed salary, weekly. That is," she added, "if the work you plan for me is the type that I am suited for. I presume you want me as an entertainer—a singer, perhaps?"

The clock on the mantelpiece gave one single chime.

Mr. Niklas rose to his feet. "We will discuss that at luncheon. It is one o'clock now."

Luncheon? Ought she to refuse?

The inhibitions of the sheltered girl swept over her, so that she was on the point of refusal. Then hard necessity informed her it would be a tactical mistake.

In the elevator she took an appraising look at the man it was essential to please.

Not at all the type she would have accepted as an escort in the old days in San Francisco, even had she met him formally! Too sleek, too suave, too—well, foreign, somehow.

Yet one couldn't put one's finger on anything noticeably wrong in manner or appearance. He was immaculately turned out. To some women, doubtless, he would seem handsome, with his neat small features, olive complexion, and snapping black eyes. He had a lithe, slender figure of almost catlike gracefulness, thought Toni. She remembered that in Dave's Blue Room he had had the effect of being poured into his evening suit, so excellently did it fit.

CHAPTER XI.

They went out to the street.

A large, handsome, limousine was at the curb, and standing beside it a proportionately tall, husky chauffeur. Toni thought he looked like a champion of the ring! Inside the car, she nodded at the man's broad back and murmured to Mr. Niklas: "He looks like a prize fighter!"

Her escort gave her a sidewise, penetrating look. "Why wouldn't he be, in these days of kidnaping? He's a powerful fellow, and an excellent body—I mean, servant—is Lavroff."

Feeling she had stepped on something here, she changed her ground and brought the conversation round to the proposed new job. Mr. Niklas told her that they would discuss it at luncheon.

"I'm expecting my publicity man, Lou Steiner, to join us around one-thirty. That fellow's a wiz. He can think up more things than a barrel of monkeys," said Mr. Niklas, grinning, as he dropped into American slang.

Toni gazed about the interior of the big car. It boasted an extraordinary number of fittings and gadgets. Its polished panels, too, had a cryptic air, as though if one found the button they would slip back smoothly, revealing compartments and queer crannies.

Mr. Niklas had an uncanny ability of reading one's mind.

"You're thinking this an odd sort of conveyance?—Not so, Miss Goddard?"—as he smiled with one corner of his mouth.

"It reminds me of a room—an attic—in our home in San Francisco, with wood-panelled walls. Mother would never let me share the secret, but there was a hidden spring in the boarding somewhere. You pushed it, and presto!—back flew a panel. When we shut up the house to go to our ranch for the summer, she hid the family silver there!"

Mr. Niklas was silent. This girl would need watching. She was astute.

He would turn her cleverness of observation in the right direction, toward customers. Only in so far as was essential—and he could see no reason for it, for caution was a predominating factor in his make-up—would he let her in on any of his secrets.

The car pulled up at the restaurant. They went inside

In the banks of flowers in the foyer, deep rugs, and golden light suffused on smartly garbed men and women, Toni was achingly, devastatingly reminded of her agonizing last experience in the St. Francis Hotel back home.

Brock Milbank! Her shock in reading the announcement of his elopement at the hotel news-stand!

She hadn't thought of Brock since yesterday! Gradually she was being cured of her infatuation? One couldn't love a cad. She had only loved the idea she had set up.

They made their way through the spacious lounge where people sipped pre-luncheon cocktails, and up the wide, shallow steps to the Oval Room.

Already the fashionable rendezvous was almost filled. The head waiter led them to a small table toward the rear.

"Good!" thought Niklas. "My find must remain unnoticed until I have prepared her and the public!" He picked up a menu. They ordered, Toni selecting the table-d'-hote meal, because she was frankly hungry.

"A cocktail, Miss Goddard?"

"I don't think so, thanks."

At which he was pleased. He neither drank nor smoked. But today he wished his companion to have a cocktail, so as to observe its effect upon her. On a girl who did not drink, one cocktail might loosen the tongue and the emotions. He thought shrewdly that it was imperative to note her reactions. He hated giggly, silly women. Women who could not hold their liquor. As an employee in his club, Toni would be useless, even dangerous, if she came under that category.

"An Alexander for the lady," he said briefly to the sommelier who had approached their table, his symbolic key dangling on his chest.

Toni was silent. Gave in gracefully. She sipped the lush, sweet Alexander, and looked about the restaurant with interested eyes.

Here was her old world of fashion gayety. She would not have been a real girl had she not reacted pleasurably to her surroundings.

"Look, Miss Goddard, please, at the lady who is now entering, the one who wears the beautiful silver-fox cape." Niklas' voice was low but emphatic. "Take a good look at her, for I desire greatly that she become a regular patron of our club. Her name is Miss Harriet Brewster, and where she goes, the rich crowd follows."

Toni followed his gaze to the balcony. A man was with Miss Brewster, settling her in her chair, helping her slip back her gorgeous cape, seating himself so that his face was now visible to Toni.

She gasped. She had seen that face before, in a shaft of light, that handsome, magnetic face, those eyes that had drawn and held her. In her weeks of loneliness and despair, she had turned for strengthening her spirit for uplifting, to the image of that face as it rose once, powerfully but fleetingly, in the darkened auditorium where she had sat alone.

"Who is that man?" she asked.

The sharp gaze of Niklas was on the balcony. He said impressively: "That is Mr. Guy Halstead Flagg, a very rich gentleman from the South who could be a most important client of our club, if"—his eyes narrowed—"you are clever enough to attract him, Miss Goddard."

Sattiday afternoon me and pop were taking a walk in the park, and pop said, When I was a lad your size you wouldn't of caught me walking through a country field on a beautiful sunny day like this with my shoes and stockings on.

Well G, pop, this ain't the country, it's the park, I said, and pop said, The grass is green—and the ground is springy. As the poet says, When the ground is springy and the grass is green what more, my lad, can the country mean?

Well gosh, all rite, it mite be fun-I said.

And I took off my shoes and stockings and the grass felt more like sticks than just grass, and pop said, For Peet sake put your feet down as if you meant it, they're feet, not butterflies.

But jimminy, pop, this grass hurts, I said, and he said, Listen to the city boy, what would Walt Whitman say. It was good old Walt who wrote, Give grass to my unshod feet, let the toes fall where they may. By gollies I'll walk barefoot with you. I'll show you how it's done by experts, he said.

And he took his own shoes and socks off and put one foot down hard and the next one down easy, saying, Well, that's something like it.

Not saying like what on account of proberly not wanting to say like stickers, and I said, Why dont you put your own feet down hard, pop?

My feet are heavier than yours, not that I want to seem to brag, pop said. Oh well, there are poets and the greatest of all was Shakesbeer, and he was the one who said, How sharper that a serpents tongue, is autumn grass to old and young. And wha am I to conterdict Shakesbeer? he said, and I said, And G Wizzickers who am I?

And we both put our shoes back on and felt better instead of worse.

MARIE ANTOINETTE

Adapted from the METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Picture by GERTRUDE GELBIN

SYNOPSIS: Marie Antoinette, married to the Dauphin of France for reasons of state, is the victim of court intrigue lead by Du Barry, mistress of the King. Du Barry uses Marie's childlessness as a pretext to force the King to annul the marriage. Everyone deserts Marie but she finds in Count Fersen not only a friend, but the man she loves. The King dies before the annulment is carried out. Marie becomes Queen of France. Count Fersen goes to America. Marie bears the King two children.

NOW READ CHAPTER FIVE—BELOW

"This necklace is a masterpiece!"

The Duke D'Orleans (Joseph Schildkraut), who refused to aid Marie Antoinette (Norma Shearer) during her difficulties, is denied her favors when she becomes Queen. Embittered, he plots against the throne. Through intrigue, the purchase of a fabulous diamond necklace is credited to the Queen. Nothing she or the King (Robert Morley) can do offsets the story. D'Orleans, through street songs and poems, brands the Queen a vicious, selfish woman who spends fortunes on diamonds while the populace of France starves and dies of poverty. D'Orleans, trusted by the mob, becomes a leader in the agitation for revolution.

"No bloodshed! I won't have bloodshed."

The situation reaches a climax when a Paris mob storms the Palace of Versailles. The King, the Queen, their two children (Marilyn Knowlden and Scotty Beckett) and the Princess de Lambelle (Anita Louise) Marie's only friend, are taken prisoners. Fersen (Tyrone Power), returning to France, learns of Marie's danger. He goes to her and makes plans for her escape. Disguised as ordinary citizens and with false passports secured by Fersen, the royal party is to drive to the border and escape, Marie posing as the children's governess, and Louis as one of the coachmen.

"I promised to come if you needed me."

All is in readiness. With the aid of a handful of still faithful soldiers the royal party makes its escape from the Palace. They drive through the night, stopping at morning to change horses. Drouet (Joseph Calleia), a private Citizen, recognizes the King. On horseback he cuts through the woods, arriving at Varennes, just a few miles from the border, in advance of the royal carriage. With the townsfolk surrounding him he exposes Louis as the King of France. Marie takes command of the situation and convinces the people that Drouet is lying.

"I am governess to these children."

But Drouet knows he is right. The mob takes a vote and decides the coach shall drive on. Drouet recalls that an elderly priest in the village has been to Versailles and knows the face of the King. He pleads with the mob to let the priest verify his claim. The priest is sent for. Louis is forced into the strong light of a street lamp. The priest falls to his knees and addresses him as "Sire". With a wild cry the mob seizes Marie, Louis and the children. Under guard, the four of them and the luckless Princess de Lambelle are taken to the Prison of La Force. Read the next chapter.

PRIME MINISTER GIVEN WELCOME

Mackenzie King Visits Jamaica on Extended Vacation

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 24 (C.P. Cable)—Jamaicans rose early today to welcome Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, as he arrived here for a vacation.

Mayor Robertson of Kingston, representatives of the Governor and of the Island military and naval forces were among the members of the reception party. The mayor said Jamaica was honored by Mr. King's choice of a vacation land and expressed hope the Canadian statesman would benefit from his stay here.

Accompanying the Prime Minister was Dr. O. D. Skelton, Canadian under-secretary of State for External Affairs. The Prime Minister and Dr. Skelton were driven through the city after their arrival, in compliance with Mr. King's wish to see Jamaica's public buildings.

Prime Minister King thought he would be here for about three weeks.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Rainfall, a hazard! There are many weather hazards or hazards resulting from weather phenomena which beset us. No part of the world is entirely exempt from them. We can have too much or too little rainfall. In either case famines may result, as is the case in North China. At Tientsin the June rainfall may be almost nothing or as much as 8.5 inches. In the past 100 years North China has had 40 years of famine. The floods of the Yangtze River drive from 10 to 20 million people from their homes, of whom many millions are unable to salvage the necessities of life.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP)—Showers have occurred in many parts of Ontario and Quebec, while in the Western and Maritime Provinces the weather has been fair. It has been comparatively mild in the Western Provinces and has become cooler in the region of the Great Lakes. Pressure is high off the Nova Scotian coast and over the western states and a deep disturbance centred over Davis Straits with a trough extending southwestward to James Bay and another disturbance is developing over the South Atlantic States.

DYNAMITE SQUADS BLAST FIREBREAKS TO CHECK FLAMES

Conflagration in Canton Spreads Into Residental Districts

MUNITIONS EXPLODE

Plenty of Evidence Most of Fires Started by the Chinese

Canton, Oct. 24—(AP)—A gigantic conflagration threatened to destroy this South China metropolis today as fires roared into residential districts after burning out the business sections.

Japanese dynamite squads blasted firebreaks around the burning areas in an attempt to halt the spreading flames, while foreign volunteers aided in trying to save foreign buildings.

Dynamite was the only weapon the fire-fighters could use since the blasting of Canton's reservoirs before the Chinese fled had completely disrupted water supplies.

Some small fires broke out in the International Settlement on Shameen Island, but were quickly extinguished and a shift of the wind carried the flames away from the island after a mile of waterfront buildings across the 80-foot creek had been destroyed.

Many buildings on the island were damaged yesterday by three terrific explosions of munitions which the Chinese had abandoned in Wongsho railway station. The blasts scattered fragments over the entire settlement, breaking windows and blowing out shutters.

Reporter Hit by Stones

An Associated Press photographer near the station at the time was hit in the back by falling stones.

The Sa ichuen and Honan districts of the city were the worst damaged. Buildings destroyed included the ministry of finance, provincial and municipal headquarters, a Buddhist temple, several hotels and the post office.

"There was no official estimate of the damage, but unofficially it was believed to run as high as $10,000,000.

Flames mounted 150 feet high during the night and today a vast, low-lying cloud of smoke partially hid the sun.

Driven from Homes

The fires drove from hiding thousands of poorer Chinese, the only remnants of a population of 2,000,000 living in the metropolitan areas a short time ago.

Thousands of panic - stricken Chinese still were fleeing in river junks and other thousands huddled in terror opposite the International Settlement.

Foreign authorities arrested one Chinese attempting to ignite gasoline opposite the Settlement. Elsewhere piles of paper and wood were found in buildings and many foreigners said they saw Chinese lighting fires.

The flames failed to halt loot-

For the first time corn is being grown commercially, two crops a year, winter and summer, without soil. The plants are fed by chemicals placed about the roots and reach a height of 12 to 14 feet. This method was begun in the 17th century and has been found to give better control over the plants. For the past three years the Ohio Agricultural Experimental station has been experimenting with using this method to produce corn commercially.

AERIAL BOMBING BRITISH WARSHIP BRINGS PROTEST

Gunboat Sandpiper Bombed but Fortunately None of Crew Injured

VIGOROUS PROTEST

(By Morris Harris)
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Shanghai, Oct 24—(AP)—Japanese aerial bombing of a British warship and a customs dispute over an American passenger liner today added two new incidents to the long list of International complications in the China War.

Bombs from six Japanese plans fell about and damaged the superstructure of the British gunboat Sandpiper, anchored at Changsha about 200 miles southwest of Hankow. There were no casualties.

The bombing damage to the British gunboat was the most serious to a foreign man of war since the United States gunboat Panay was sunk in the Yangtse River last December 12, with death to four foreigners, and the British gunboat Ladybird was shelled with one seaman killed.

British naval officials said they "vigorously protested" the bombing

ADRIFT ON LAKE ALL THRU NIGHT AS ENGINE FAILS

Party of Five at Orillia Returns Safe as Engine Suddenly Starts Up Again

NIGHT OF SEARCHING

Orillia, Ont., Oct. 24 (CP)—Adrift all night on Lake Couchiching in an open launch whose engine went dead five Orillia persons made their way to safety when the engine suddenly started up again early today.

The five were Reginald Lee, 60, grocery store proprietor, and his wife, their son Stanley, 22, and his wife Muriel, 21, and their four-year-old daughter, Beverley. The youngster slept all night in her mother's arms.

As many as twenty boats at different times during the night searched for them. At daybreak an airplane, piloted by Gordon Welstead, instructor of the Orillia Flying Club, joined the search.

Party Located.

Just before they were sighted by the plane on a rocky shoal close to Chief Island, opposite the Rama Indian Reserve on the east shore of the lake, the stubborn engine started to run. Stanley Lee got the boat off the shoal and it made its way back to the municipal wharf under its own power.

Stanley Lee, a bread driver, had his breakfast and immediately went out on his route as if nothing had happened. The rest of the adults, tired and exhausted from cold and the harassing experiences of the night, went to bed. The only exception was the little girl, who had been wrapped up with a piece of canvas sail cloth and slept most of the night in spite of the rocking of the boat. When she got home she said: "I want to play".

No Call For Help.

The party left Orillia at 1.30 p.m. for a Sunday sight-seeing ride. They turned at Washago, late in the afternoon, they said, the engine sputtered and stopped near Lighthouse Island, about three miles from Orillia.

The lake is quite shallow here and Stanley Lee began to work with the engine, thinking it would soon start.

"We didn't call for help or anything, although we saw people go by on shore," Mrs. Lee said "we thought we'd get the engine going any minute."

Back in Orillia, Frank Lee and his wife became alarmed when the launch party did not return for supper. As darkness fell they telephoned boathouses and gave the alarm.

Plenty of Pheasants Left After Two Days of Shooting

Record Turnout of Hunters but Birds are Cagey

ONLY ONE ACCIDENT

By the Canadian Press

There will be plenty of pheasants for Ontario nimrods to hit or miss when the season opens next year. There was plenty of missing as huntsmen in 50 townships took advantage of a two-day shoot at the week-end and cagey birds took protection from shot-gun fire in thick underbrush.

There was probably a record turnout of hunters who took advantage of springlike weather but there was also a record for wasted shells as few hunters were reported to have bagged the legal limit of three birds.

Most of the pheasants who survived the barrage will have a year's rest but at Peelee Island, the birds will have to be on their best dodging behaviour again next Thursday and Friday.

The quota of the Lake Erie Isle is five birds and huntsmen are hoping the protective shrubbery will be stripped by frosts to make their task easier in the next two-day shoot. For the shoot just concluded nimrods came by air and water and few bagged the full quota.

Only One Casualty

Only one shooting accident was reported. Bertram Graham, 22-year old Toronto duck hunter practically severed his index finger when he reached for his gun which accidentally discharged as he was seated in the bow of a skiff being pushed through the marsh at Mud Lake, ten miles east of Orillia. The finger was amputated in Orillia Hospital.

Norfolk County's shoot, confined to the townships of Windham and Townsen, attracted more than 500 sportsmen. The consensus was that birds were plentiful but hard to get. The two townships netted about $348 through issuing licenses.

Regulations appeared to be followed thoroughly by hunters, with few cases of infractions being reported. Game Wardens at Pelee Island said several hen pheasants were taken from over-eager nimrods —one of the five birds allowed may be a hen. No arrests were made

In Toronto, D. J. Taylor, deputy minister of Game and Fisheries for Ontario, said the hunters were "well behaved." Reeve Clayton Hunter of Windham said he thought a one-day shoot would have been sufficient.

Street Demonstrations in Hungary are Quite Prevalent

By LOUIS MATZHOLD
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Budapest, Oct. 24 (AP)—Hungary was said by well-informed sources totday to have set Wednesday as a deadline for Czechoslovakia to comply with her territorial demands.

Unless Czechoslovakia makes a satisfactory reply by that time, it was said, the Hungarian army would start marching across the border.

It was stated in diplomatic circles that the Polish army would march into Ruthenia at the moment Hungary starts and advance into Slovakia. (Official circles in Warsaw declared these reports were "false", asserting that Poland's aim was for a peaceful settlement with Czechoslovakia.)

The Hungarian government last night announced that Prague's latest territorial proposals had been rejected as unsatisfactory because they left important Hungarian towns under Czechoslovak sovereignty.

SPECIAL GUARD FOR LINDBERGH

Authorities Refuse to Disclose Why Guard was Placed

Lannion, France, Oct. 24 (AP) — A special police inspector was appointed today on permanent assignment here, apparently to watch over the security of Colonel Charles Lindbergh and his family.

Lannion is 12 miles from the small town of France's northern coast, Port-Blanc, where the American aviator takes a launch back and forth to his home on Illiec Island.

Authorities refused to disclose whether the special protection was requested or was merely a precautionary measure taken on their own initiative.

(Colonel Lindbergh spent the day in Berlin inspecting plans for the rebuilding of Berlin and looking over construction work already completed.)

CHILD RETURNED TO HIS PARENTS

George O'Connell in Charge of Boy Put Under Arrest on Arrival

Floral Park, N.Y., Oct. 24 (AP)— Three year old Dean Tripp, son of wealthy Wilbur Tripp, today was returned to his home by George O'Connell, former United States marine, with whom he disappeared Saturday, ostensibly on a shopping trip to New York City.

O'Connell was placed under arrest as he stepped from a train at Floral Park station of the Long Island Railroad. The charge on which he is held was not learned.

Federal Agents were called Sunday when O'Connell, befriended by Tripp, failed to return to the Tripp home with Dean.

The child was freshly bathed and neatly dressed. Police Chief James Humphreys took the child and handed him over to his mother.

"Why did you do it, George?" a reporter asked.

"Do what?" the former marine answered. Before further questions could be asked O'Connell was whisked away to police headquarters.

Questioned by Chief Humphreys, O'Connell said he and the child had spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Goden, of Kew Gardens, Long Island, friends of the Tripps.

He said he had tried to phone the Tripps Sunday afternoon but received no answer. Mrs. Tripp told police the family had been absent for a time Sunday afternoon.

Traffic Officer Notified after Theft of Gas at Deseronto

Armed and in possession of four sets of Ontario licence plates, travelling in an alleged stolen sedan, three Niagara Falls men were arrested on charges of the theft of gasoline by Motorcycle Patrolman H. Jillings as the trio drove into Napanee last evening.

Complaints that three men in a high-powered sedan had driven away from Erwin's garage, Deseronto, without paying for twelve gallons of gasoline brought about their arrest. As the men roared easterly away from the garage the proprietor immediately notified Napanee police authorities with the result that Traffic Officer Jillings went to the outskirts of Napanee where he stopped an automobile bearing three men. Later at the Napanee police station they gave their names as Fred Moreau, 22, Boyd Engleheart, 17, and James B. Ryan, 22, all of Niagara Falls. Ryan, Constable Jillings later revealed, was found in possession of a .32 revolver. Four sets of Ontario licence plates were also found in the automobile, which police also alleged has been stolen. The trio appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in Napanee police court this afternoon charged with the theft of the gasoline taken at Deseronto last evening. No plea was asked, the men being remained in custody.

"When I first stopped the car two of the men got out. Ryan seemed to be anxious to get his hand inside his coat, so becoming suspicious I pulled out my own service revolver and merely said 'I'll take that gun sonny', and he reached in and sure enough handed over a .32 pistol. It doesn't pay to be too careless with these fellows travelling up and down the highway, I've discovered," remarked Jillings as he told of the capture of the armed men.

Rabbi is Embarrassed When He Learns His Wife Shares in Ticket

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP) — Rabbi Samuel Sachs, outspoken opponent of gambling and sweepstakes particularly, admitted today he was "terribly embarrassed" when he learned his wife was among seven people sharing an Irish sweepstakes ticket that drew a non-starter. They will split about $2,175.

"I am terribly embarrassed by the whole affair," the Rabbi said. "If it were my money I would donate the whole amount to the United Welfare Fund, and I shall certainly do my best to persuade my wife to do just that."

An innocent game of mah jong for insignificant stakes caused the trouble. When the game was finished, the women decided to share ten tickets, costing $25.

Storm Sweeps Black Sea, 3 Rumanian Fliers Lost

Plane Crashes Into Sea Investigating Another Plane Disaster

SHIPPING IN HAVOC

Bucharest, Oct. 24 (AP)—Three officers were drowned today when a seaplane of the Rumanian navy's Constanza squadron crashed in the Black Sea near Jurilofka. A fourth man swam ashore.

The plane, which had been ordered to investigate the sinking of another, with two men aboard, fell almost in the same spot as the first.

A storm, which caused the first accident, raised havoc with Black Sea shipping and caused at least six deaths, has abated. Earlier reports said 100 men were missing aboard ships sunk by the gale in Constanza harbor or ripped from their anchorages and blown to sea.

May Let Some Other Man Make Attempt to Save 'What Remains of China'

AS FAR AS MONGOLIA

Occupation by Japanese of Chinese Territory to be Prolonged

Hong Kong, Oct. 24 (CP-Havas)— General Chiang Kai-Shek is disheartened by military reverses and ready to resign to let "some other man" attempt to save "what remains of China", Chinese sources declared here today.

It was said peace talks have started in this British crown colony between unidentified Japanese emissaries and representatives of Wang Ching-Wei, President of the political council of the Kuomintong and former premier.

Report Is Denied.

(At London, Chinese Ambassador Quo Tai-Chi said reports Chiang intended to resign were groundless. He also denied reports that Dr. Wang Chung-Hui, Chinese Foreign Minister, and Wang Ching-Wei had gone to Hong Kong to discuss mediation with diplomatic representatives of foreign powers.)

Informed sources here said that the foreign minister and the Chinese vice foreign minister, Tseng Yung-Pu, were in this city.

A Chinese source attached to the alleged Chinese "peace group" told Havas today that Chiang "had virtually resigned" and was prepared "to retire to the interior."

To Hold China.

Tokyo, Oct. 24 (AP)—Japan's determination to hold China indefinitely under military occupation and compel her to "cooperate" with Japan in all vital matters after the war is ended was disclosed tonight in a statement emanating from government sources.

The statement, published by Domei, Japan's smi-official news agency, apparently was issued in anticipation of the early fall of Hankow, China's provisional capital.

Dispatches from the war zones tonight said the Japanese forces had drawn their cordon around the city to as close as twelve miles on one point.

The pronouncement was interpreted as an indication of the Japanese government's belief the capture of Hankow would end the purely military phase of the conquest and permit cessation of further offensive operations by the Mikado's forces in China.

Japan will compel China to "cooperate" politically, economically and culturally after the fighting is over, said the declaration.

Japan Demands Control.

It said Japan's program for control of China stands on three main pillars:

1.China must accept industrial and economic "reciprocity".

2. China must join the anti-comintern accord of Japan, Germany and Italy and prohibit all anti-Japanese movements.

3. China must abandon "all policies and forms of education likely to destroy amity" with Japan.

The statement repeated previous declarations that negotiation with the present Chinece government under General Chiang Kai-Shek was impossible, but said the rise of a

10-Hen Pen White Leghorns Sets Record

Agassiz, B.C., Oct. 24 (CP)—A 10-hen pen of white leghorns entered by a veteran British Columbia poultryman has set a new world record for egg-laying hens, William Hicks, head of the Dominion Experimental Farm at this Fraser Valley City, announced last night.

The pen of C. Droom of Cloverdale, B.C., laid 2862 eggs over the official 51-week period and was awarded 3,333.6 points, based on size. The previous officially accepted world mark was held by J. A. Hanson of Corvallis, Ore., whose white leghorn pen laid 3082 eggs and collected 3,297.8 points at the New York State official egg laying contest a year ago.

BRITISH TROOPS ARE WITHDRAWN

Campaign of Arson and Terrorism Continues in Outer Districts

Jerusalem, Oct. 24 (AP)—The bulk of British troops withdrew from the old city of Jerusalem today after smashing the grip of Arab insurgents. British military machine-gun units still occupied strategic positions on the ancient walls, while police replaced troops.

The Insurgents' campaign of arson and terrorism continued unabated however, in other parts of the Holy Land. A Jew was injured in a Jerusalem suburb yesterday when an unidentified assailant attacked him with an axe.

Authorities placed a 24-hour curfew on Hebron after the slaying of a policeman and the burning of a synagogue and a Jewish school.

The great Moslem fast of Ramadan began today after a week-end in which 40 Arabs were slain and scores wounded. British losses were confined to one dead and several wounded.

Orders Issued.

Reports reached Jerusalem that Abdul Rahim, commander-in-chief of the Arab insurgent forces, has issued orders that henceforth his followers must refrain from engaging British troops except in self defence.

In some informed quarters belief was expressed this might be the prelude to a truce similar to that of October, 1936, which, however, lasted only three months, giving way to a fresh wave of terror.

Jewish leaders expressed the opinion the Arab chieftain's reported order was a face-saving gesture, made because the Arab insurgents against British rule in the Holy Land were confronted with overwhelming British forces determined to stamp out terrorism.

Advance On Jafa.

Meanwhile the British general staff developed plans for a country-wide campaign against the insurgents. It was indicated the army would advance soon on a new objective, the Biblical port of Jaffa on the Mediterranean. As in 1936, Jaffa has been terrorized and under partial control of the insurgents for months.

Civil authorities there have been unable to proceed against the Arabs because of the impossibility of differentiating between actual rebels and peaceful citizens.

Besides Jaffa another rebel-dominated town likely to receive early attention is Jericho.

City and District News

Dr. W. C. MORGAN IS IMPROVING

The condition of Dr. W. C. Morgan West Bridge Street physician, injured in a motor accident near Port Hope, last week was reported today as improved. Dr. Morgan, who is still in the hospital at Port Hope is expected to return to his home within the next few days.

RAIN WILL BENEFIT FALL FARM WORK

Farmers of the district gazed with appreciative eyes at their rolling fields today as a warm Autumn rain fell steadily on acres that in parts were badly in need of moisture.

Pausing temporarily from their fall ploughing, two rural residents of north Prince Edward County took time out to mention the benefits that will accrue from the rainfall.

"Ploughing will be facilitated, as fields in our section of the district are beginning to show signs of lack of moisture. Autumn grains that are now beginning to show green in the fields will benefit greatly, while the harvesting of root crops will be made easier, providing we get enough moisture."

FOXES ARE REPORTED MORE PLENTIFUL

Foxes, reported by farmers residing a few miles north of Corbyville, to be gradually increasing in numbers, are becoming bolder, according to a resident of that district in the city today.

While the animals to date have not conducted any foraging raids on the henhouses of the district, they have been seen in close proximity to farmhouses and buildings.

A fine specimen of fox, red in color and boasting a fine brush dashed across a road near Corbyville ahead of the car of one motorist yesterday afternoon. As large as a small dog, the fox hesitated for a moment, stared with bright eyes at the approaching vehicle, then dashed for the safety of a roadside brush.

ANOTHER GIANT BEET WEIGHS 38 POUNDS

Claims for record-sized sugar beets grown in this area are still being advanced. This morning, in the window of Charles Bishop's seed store, Front Street, what is believed the latest record is a healthy specimen of Giant white sugar beet grown by Clifford Barber, Mountain View. The single beet weighs just 38 pounds.

VARIETY PROGRAM TO BE PRESENTED

The famous Lyric Male Choir of Toronto, which will be heard at the Collegiate Auditorium tomorrow night is presenting a program of such variety as will appeal to the taste of all music lovers.

Theer is included Beethoven's "Creation Hymn" and Sullivan's "Lost Chord," the highly dramatic and emotional "Martyrs of The Arena" by DeRille, Negro spiritual "Steal Away" and the delightful "Border Ballad" by Maunders. A feature will be the humorous "Torpedo and The Whale" introduced to Canada by this choir and specially arranged for it by W. E. Thomas, a brother of the conductor.

Miss Elizabeth M. Beales, teacher in expression at Toronto Conservatory of Music and Miss Ruth McJanet, Toronto violinist, will assist in the program.

FRACTURES ARM WITHIN MONTH OF 100TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Rorabeck, Wellington, Slips on Stone While Walking on Beach

SAYS "IT IS NOTHING"

"If I had minded my own proper business, this would not have happened," and Mrs. Phoebe Rorabec, Wellington's grand old lady who celebrates her 100th birthday on the 13th of November, smiled bravely through bruised cheeks, as she attempted to life her broken left arm, sustained when she slipped and fell on the beach at the rear of her modest cottage in the lakeside village on Friday.

Hale and hearty, retaining all her faculties, Mrs. Rorabec, whose twinkling sharp eyes and cheery smile have endeared her to all with whom she has come in contact went for a walk on the beach near her home, to "look at the lake". Slipping on a sharp stone she fell heavily to the ground fracturing her left arm above the wrist and suffering bruises and lacerations of the face.

She was taken to her home where medical attention was given her. She smiled in her pain, and the spirit that has carried her through nearly a century again shone in her eyes.

"Why it is nothing," she said. "I am all right. If I had minded my own business it would not have happened."

Reports yesterday from Wellington stated that she is doing nicely, and is looking forward "to a good many years yet".

Mrs. Rorabec is an aunt of Mrs. (Dr.) T. S. Philp of Picton. For a great many years in fact until a year ago, she spent her winters in Orange, New Jersey, with her son, the late Fred Rorabec, who passed away a short time ago. She traveled alone, and always looked forward to these visits as well as returning for her summer holidays in the village and beside the lake she loves so well.

Last night, in her bed, she laughed and joked with visitors, minimizing her injuries and displaying a courage and fortitude that would do credit to one many years younger.

'Heil Hitler' Slogans Found in Packages Of British Machinery

Employees of a local manufacturing concern and truckers who unloaded the shipment are a bit puzzled this week over the apparent "heiling" of Hitler engaged in by employees of a machine manufacturing company in the north of England.

Some time ago an order was placed by the Belleville company in the British Isles for some specialized machinery. At the end of last week the machinery arrived and was unpacked.

On the heavy wooden blocks which supported the machines in the bulky crates was painted in large figures the well known Nazi swastika, with the wording in various places: "Support Hitler"; "Heil Hitler!"

Some of the blocks have been kept by the trucking firm as souvenirs.

Local Port May Be Kept Open Until Late November

Official date for the closing of navigation at the local port has not as yet been announced, it was reported this morning by Harbormaster Jos. Waddell, though it is probable that this season, unless weather conditions interfere, the port will be kept open a little later than usual, probably until the latter part of November. A few more carriers are expected to enter before the season is brought to a close, it was stated.

Shipments of coal, gasoline and regular loadings at the government dock have been heavy this year, and a "good" season will be officially entered in the harbor log. High water levels of the bay this year have permitted heavier cargoes, and carriers have not been forced to enter with only part loadings as in low water years. This condition has been particularly favorable for the heavy lake ships entering here with gasoline consignments for local companies.

This morning heavy shipments of cheese and canned goods were being prepared at the warehouse for loading on the Steamer Glen Allan for Montreal later in the afternoon.

COLLIE GIVES BIRTH TO FOURTEEN PUPS

Sarnia, Ont., Oct. 24 (CP)—"Queenie", Max Frankel's Scotch collie, has set some kind of a record for the dog world, in these parts anyway. When Max set out from Goderich for Toronto, "Queenie" had given birth to six puppies. When Max returned he found the big Scotch collie nursing 14 puppies, seven male and seven female and all, including mother, were doing well.

FIRE DESTROYS SULPHIDE STORE

Youths Sound Alarm—Owner and Family Leave Without Injury

Tweed, (Special) —While residents were sleeping, fire broke out in the general store and adjoining home of E. J. Curry, Sulphide, early this morning, and resulted in complete demolition of the frame structure. The fire was noticed by some youths who were passing in a car about one o'clock. They immediately aroused the household, members of which were able to leave the burning building without injury.

The cause of the fire is yet unknown, and the loss is partly covered by insurance. The building with its contents of merchandise and household furnishings was completely destroyed. Mr. Curry had purchased the business about two years ago from Mr. F. C. Bowers.

Homeowner, Turned Handyman, Appalled When Work Collapses

A Foster Avenue resident who turned handyman to construct a cellar partition against his wife's suggestion that expert help should be hired, is this week digging wearily to uncover the season's stock of home preserves from beneath tons of blower coal which covered them when the wall collapsed.

"Shucks, that's easy. I'll do it myself" commented the homeowner when the services of a carpenter were mentioned.

Last week the partition was finished. The next day trucks came unloaded tons of coal through the cellar windows. Under the black avalanche the partition sagged, finally gave up the ghost in a crashing collapse. Clouds of coal dust filtered like a black fog through the house. Where preserves and furniture had been stored, only a dark wall appeared.

A cleaning and repairing bill, plus the work of restoring order in a coal covered cellar, has convinced the local man that a carpenter was after all a logical thought.

Beauties of Ontario Shown on Screen

Perhaps never before has the picturesque natural beauty of the main centres and vacation spots of Ontario been brought out in such sheer colorful beauty of detail as it is in a "short" now being shown at the McCarthy Theatre, which bears the name of "Vacationing in Quintupland."

The exacting eye of the camera aided by the new Technicolor process reveals the various spots of the province in which we live in a natural form that will excite the admiration of the most biased spectator.

Flashing across the screen in a beautiful panoramic effect is seen the rolling farmlands of this garden province of Canada with proud scions of bovine and equine aristocracy grazing on fields as green as those of proverbial Killarney. The golden peach of Niagara, clustered on tree and in basket, and other fruits for which this province is justly proud are brought out in the full of their colorful magnificence.

The blue lakes of Muskoka, the sparkling waters of northern streams where anglers are seen hauling in the fighting black bass, the summer homes and cottages that border these popular holiday spots, are seen in all their beauty.

Of especial interest in the "short" is the home and other surrounding of Canada's famous babies, the Dionne Quintulpets. Here are shown the modern buildings that house Ontario's sweethearts, as well as close-ups of the simple home in which they were born, and the milling crowds of people that yearly flock to see the babies. Kindly Dr. Dafoe, playing with his pet dog, is seen in a colorful closeup, the famous Dafoe smile adding additional charm to the picture.

Ontario's gold mines of the north, prove of absorbing interest with a "shot" of molten lead being poured into bricks climaxing this interesting part of the picture.

The Rev. Father Lalle, Belleville born priest, is seen dedicating a shrine, while many attractions of the Canadian National Exhibition are brought out in vivid reality.

It is a fine camera conception of the province in which we live. A narrator carries a running comment on the scenic and other beauties as they unfold before the eyes of the audience and is loud in his praise of the vacation and business possibilities of "our friendly neighbor to the north."

Police Blotter

Provincial Police investigated a break-in at the "Cedars" near Cannifton, over the week end. Entrance was gained to the premises, which are occupied by Clayton Webb and a number of small non-valuable articles stolen.

George Martin, Wallbridge, walked out of his home last evening in time to see two men run from behind his parked automobile. Subsequent investigations revealed Mr. Martin had been successful in frustrating an attempt to steal gasoline from his car. A long piece of rubber hose and a metal can were found behind Mr. Martin's car where attempts to siphon the gasoline were in progress upon the owner's arrival. Owing to the darkness Mr. Martin was unable to recognize the culprits, he told Provincial Police upon their investigation.

MRS. HARRY WILSON
(Formerly of Belleville)

The death occurred Friday morning Oct 21, at Lindsay of Bessie Louise Riggs, beloved wife of Harry Wilson at her home on Melbourne Street W. Mrs. Wilson had been in ill health for some time but two weeks ago she took a turn for the worse and passed away early Friday morning.

Born in Wimborne, England, the late Mrs. Wilson came to Canada when she was 11 years old and settled with her parents in Belleville. In 1903, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson moved to Lindsay where they have resided for the past 35 years. A devout member of the William Street Baptist Church, the deceased was also a member of the W.C.T.U. of which organization she was representative for the Travellers' Aid.

Left to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and mother are her sorrowing husband, one daughter, Mrs. W. Evans (Mildred) of Toronto, and three sons, Vernon, Carl and Harry. Also one sister, Mrs. Beecher Doolittle, Victoria Avenue, Belleville.

The funeral was held from the family residence, 4 Melbourne Street West, on Sunday, October 23.

DAVID H. SPRUNG

The funeral of David Henry Sprung, took place on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 23rd., from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, Belleville, Ont. The service in the chapel at 2 o'clock was conducted by the Rev. R. E. Newman of Holloway Street United Church and the Rev. J. D. P. Knox.

Interment took place at Wellington cemetery, the same ministers officiating.

A large number of friends from Belleville and Prince Edward County attended the funeral. There were many floral tributes.

The bearers were Messrs. Morley Davidson, John Walker, Leonard Giles, Stanley Barber, Reginald Barber and Clifford Barber.

GEORGE JOHNSTON

George Johnston passed away at his residence, Herchimer Avenue, in Thurlow Township, on Sunday, Oct. 23rd. He had been in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Johnston, who was in his 87th year, was born at Bayside in Sidney Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston. The greater part of his life was passed in Thurlow Township, and for the past twenty years, he lived on Herchimer Avenue, a short distance beyond the city limits. In religion he was a member of St. Michael's Church and well respected in the community.

Surviving him are three nephews, Mr. Henry Johnston, of Tacoma, Wash.; Mr. Frank Johnston of Sidney Township, and Mr. John Johnston of Foxboro.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

MRS. NICHOLAS PANOS

After an illness of two months' duration, Mrs. Nicholas Panos passed away at the family residence, 150 Front Street, Belleville, on Sunday, Oct. 23rd.

The late Mrs. Panos, who was in her 60th year, was born in Hamilton, Ont., her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hines. The deceased resided in this city since June 1937 and was well respected by all who knew her. Prior to coming to Belleville she resided in Kingston.

Surviving to mourn her loss are her husband, Mr. Nicholas Panos; two daughters, Estella Thorne and Audrey and one son Eddie; three brothers, Mr. Harman Hines, Sault Ste. Marie; Mr. Edward Hines, Detroit, Mich., and Mr. Ernest Hines, Hamilton, Ont.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

ROYAL MASON

Death came suddenly to Royal Mason at his late residence in the village of Cannifton on Sunday, Oct. 23rd. He had been about the house, apparently in his usual state of health when he was seized with a heart attack and died immediately.

The late Mr. Mason was born in Thurlow Township and was in his 70th year. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. David Mason. All his life was passed in Thurlow Township and for the past thirty-five years he lived at Cannifton. In religion he was a member of the United Church at Cannifton and was well respected in the community.

Surviving him are two daughters, Miss Cora Mason and Miss Leona Mason of Cannifton, and one son, Mr. David Mason of Cannifton; one sister, Mrs. Walter Melburn, Toronto; three brothers, Mr. Daniel Mason, Cannifton; Mr. Lewis Mason, and Mr. Herbert Mason, both of Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE DOBSON CLARKE

The funeral of the late Joseph Dobson Clarke, took place from his late residence, 145 Bridge St. east, on Monday morning.

Service in the home was conducted by the Rev. A. L. Geen, assisted by the Rev. A. E. Pepper of Shannonville. Interment was in the family plot at the Belleville Cemetery, where the committal service was read by the Rev. A.L. Geen.

WHITE GLOVES GIVEN JUDGE

No Criminal Cases on Docket of Fall Assizes Supreme Court

Traditional white gloves were accorded the Honourable Mr. Justice Keiler Mackay, indicating the absence of criminal cases on the docket of the Fall Assizes, which opened before His Lordship at the Court House this afternoon. The time-honoured white gloves were presented to His Lordship by Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn at the opening of the court.

Three cases were originally listed for trial, one being settled previous to the opening this afternoon. The case of Allen vs. Allen, an action for readjustment of an estate was settled between the parties concerned. The firm of Porter, Payne and Arnott represented the plaintiff, while G. S. White was counsel for the defendants.

The two cases to be heard include an alimony charge of Tuck vs. Tuck. Jacob Goodman, local barrister appearing for the plaintiff and the firm of Cameron and Cameron for the defence.

The remaining matter is a contested divorce action of Leeman vs. Leeman, Ponton and Pringle law firm representing the plaintiff and Jacob Goodman the defendant.

Cost of Education Per Pupil Lower Than 15 Years Ago J. W. Noseworthy Declares

Denial Given Statement Teachers' Salaries Excessive—Education Too Valuable to be Left on Doorstep of Municipality — Broader Basis Urged—B. C. I. and V. S. Average of Salaries Cited by President K.S. Hill at District Convention of Secondary Schools.

"Teachers may be the 'aristocrats' of the community, but they are not the plutocrats. They are rendering just as good a service to public life as mayors or any other public men. It is far more important that we have good teachers than that we have good mayors, for a misfit in the classroom is of much more importance to society than a misfit in a mayor's office," J. W. Noseworthy, B.A., Toronto, Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation President, told one hundred and twenty-five members at District No. 10 annual meeting in the Hotel Quinte on Saturday.

Mr. Noseworthy, in a stirring address, answered what he termed "adverse criticism of the curricula, type of school, and costs of education, on the part of representatives and would-be representatives of big business."

He directed specific remarks against the reports that appeared in the press recently that quoted figures, and charged that teachers were grossly overpaid.

"This press correspondent," he charged, "did not quote any of those figures correctly. The salaries quoted are among the highest in Ontario, and of the staff of a Toronto school where salaries are at a maximum. The point attempted to be brought out by this correspondent is to show that the salaries are ridiculously high. He did not state that these men have been teaching for twenty years."

"I ask this correspondent to give the press the salaries of the highest paid lawyers, doctors, dentists, financiers and other big men. Place these averages against those of the seventeen highest paid school teachers, and see what he will get."

"Is there any reason why men who have reached the top of the teaching profession should not be paid the same as those who have attained the heights in any other profession?" the speaker demanded. "Haven't these men the right to expect the same consideration as that paid other public men? The citizens of Ontario pay other men's salaries, in one way or another just as truly as they pay those of the teaching profession. Is there any good reason why the best brains of the teaching profession should not be paid as much as those who have reached the top in any other profession? Is not the education of youth, the work connected with it, and those in charge, just as important to society as bankers, lawyers and other men in public life."

Mr. Noseworthy declared, "If any class is underpaid it is the teacher, and it is not the money that is being paid them that is leading the country to bankruptcy. Compare the list of salaries of teachers with those of big business and public man, and I repeat, remember, the people of Ontario are paying these men just as truly as they are paying those of the teachers."

"If the teaching profession is such a lucrative one, it is a wonder to me that anyone is left to fill business and professional positions, and it is more of a wonder to me that anyone is left to fill the offices of Mayor," the speaker declared.

Criticism of Schools

Not all the criticism of schools has come from Belleville, the speaker declared. "In Toronto there is a big business executive who directed a drastic criticism against keeping boys and girls in school until they are fifteen or sixteen years of age," he said. "This man charged that students were being kept in school long after they had ceased to absorb knowledge. His remedy was to send the boys out of school at an earlier age and apprentice them to business and industry."

"I doubt very much," the speaker added, "that the business and industrial heads of Canada are ready to lend co-operation to such an idea. I don't think our great national industries and businesses are willing to sacrifice the education of our boys and girls to the extent that this man says they would."

"Another well-known speaker, contends that if it were not for excessive educational costs, certain cities would have been saved from bankruptcy; that the depression itself, and the present recession in business, are caused by the taxes business is called upon to bear. Of course the one tax singled out for criticism is that levied for education, while the main item in this tax that draws the special ire of the critics, is that of teachers' salaries."

Remedies

"The remedies proposed by these critics," Mr. Noseworthy continued, are that we provide fewer boys and girls with secondary education at public cost—that education beyond the public school level is really unnecessary—that if large numbers were taken out of school before they reach the age of fifteen, taxes would be lower, business would boom, and boys and girls apparently would have jobs and everybody would be happy and contented. An undemocratic procedure, if there ever was one."

"Already thousands of boys and girls, even with the expenditure of today, are leaving school because of lack of parents' finances. Is it not true," the speaker asked, "that every intelligent boy and girl who is shut out of school is a heavy loss to the country. We can make no better investment than giving these boys and girls an opportunity to pursue their studies as long as they profit by them."

"Certainly, if we are to make any very drastic savings in educational costs, we shall have to close the doors of our secondary schools to all but those who can afford to pay. Is that what our critics want, but dare not openly advocate?" the speaker asked. "To say that many pupils attending academic schools cannot profit by the education received there, does not touch the problem. Any type of Vocational School would be still more costly, so that the only means of saving money, as I have said, would be to refuse all secondary education to large numbers of our young people."

Mechanical Cogs

"The solution depends on what we are educating our boys and girls for," the speaker continued, "If we are educating them to become mechanical cogs in a machine that will produce fortunes for the few and poverty for the many, then by all means close the doors of the schools. But if we want to educate our youth to become citizens who will keep Canada abreast of the world, then we must provide more educational opportunities for these boys and girls."

Educational Costs

Quoting figures from the report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the speaker pointed out that cost of education in Canada last year was one hundred and twenty million dollars, or about 13 per cent of all government expenditure. For this the taxpayer gets nine great educational systems employing 74,000 teachers and serving 2,500,000 boys and girls. Education is a provincial and not a dominion responsibility, the speaker asserted, and is largely supported by local taxes on real estate. Compared with other municipal services so supported, educational costs are not excessive. In Ontario, about 27 per cent of total municipal expenditures are for education, and only about 17 per cent of the total municipal indebtedness is due to education.

"The report states that Canada spends only 3.5 per cent of her income on education and the same report shows that it costs $3.750 to raise the average boy or girl to maturity, and that only $750 of this is spent on education." Mr. Noseworthy said.

"In other words, it costs no more to raise six children and give them an average schooling, than to raise seven completely illiterate," he said.

"The Canadian people spend one-third as much for cigarettes every year as they spend for education, and two-thirds as much for liquor as they spend to educate two and one half million children, and expenditure on both cigarettes and liquor, is showing a steady increase each year. Education in Canada, exclusive of universities, costs about ten dollars per capita."

"If we want a nation of illiterates, then there is the opportunity for saving." Mr. Noseworthy stated, "but I think that most intelligent people realize that it is to the better advantage of all concerned to raise six educated children than seven illiterates."

Less Cost Per Pupil

Statistics prove that we are spending less per pupil on education today than we were fifteen years ago, and during those years enrolment has increased 150 per cent in secondary schools," the speaker stated, adding that this increase required services of 117 per cent increase in teachers while the total amount paid in salaries increased only 47 per cent.

"General decline in the total cost of education since 1929-30, as well as cost per pupil has been largely due to the reduction in teachers' salaries," he said.

The Remedy

"The remedy lies not in the curtailment of educational advantages but in broadening the basis of financial support," Mr. Noseworthy said in conclusion, "Education as we have often advocated, is far too important to be left on the doorstep of the municipality as is being done at the present time. We in Canada are so blinded to the myths of provincial and municipal rights that men in public life prefer to retain these rights even at the expense of education, rather than have the burden of educational costs placed where it belongs, on the shoulders of the Provincial and Dominion Governments. Let us hope that a more intelligent solution of our problem may be found than that being advocated by the enemies of any educational system that offers opportunity to the masses."

Takes Issue With Mayor

Following his address of welcome to the delegates and guests, district president and chairman, Kenneth S. Hill, Belleville Collegiate Institute, took issue with the statement of Mayor Jamieson Bone that appeared in the press last week in which he is reported to have said "as regards secondary education, there is little hope here. Here are some figures on salaries paid High School teachers in Toronto. They are little less here but very little less."

Mr. Hill quoted the figures appearing in Mayor Bone's statement in which he charged North Toronto Collegiate salaries averaged $3250 for 26 men and $3075 for 13 women. Also the Central School of Commerce figures that stated 29 men received an average salary of $3780.00 and 17 women an average of $3400.00.

Quoting from the Blue Book, Mr. Hill stated that the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School salary figures were 18 men at an average salary of $1916.66 and 16 women at an average remuneration of $1912.50.

The average salary of the High School teachers of the province were, all male assistants $2316.00; all female assistants $1954.00, and average salary all assistants $2129., the president pointed out.

"There may be a difference of opinion as to what 'a little less' or 'a very little less' represents," he said, "but if the B.C.I. teachers were paid at the average salaries of the North Toronto teachers they would receive a total salary of $108,700.00 whereas they only receive $65,100, a mere $43,000 less."

This sum, Mr. Hill stated, represented 4 1-3 mills on the tax rate, which is not a small amount. "I ask the citizens of Belleville and the province to judge whether the average salaries of the High School teachers of the province, and those of the Belleville Secondary School teachers were, as Mayor Bone is reported to have stated, 'a little less, but very little less' than the average salaries which he quoted."

A great responsibility rests upon the shoulders of the school teachers of Canada, Dr. Harold Welsh, M.P.P., told the convention in a brief address." It is up to the teachers to uphold that responsibility if we are to develop in the children of Canada, that great national spirit necessary to the life of Canada and the Empire," he added.

Touching on the criticisms levelled against the Federation, Dr. Welsh declared that "any one criticising the best investment Canada can make, the education of its youth, should be strongly criticised in turn."

Charles Hyde

Two great factors will, if properly developed within the next two decades, result in an era of boundless prosperity, Charles Hyde, Chairman of the Belleville Board of Education, told delegates in his address of welcome. These are, the education of Canadian youth and the development of that great Canadian resource, electric power.

"We are standing on the threshold of a new era," Mr. Hyde believed, and these two factors, one of man the creator, and the other one of God's gifts, working together will start us on a great era of prosperity." The speaker did not approve of some of the criticisms directed against secondary education, he said, adding that "if the standard of success is the accumulation of wealth, then there are a great many failures in the world, including myself."

Brief addresses were given by William Harrison, Vocational Chairman and Principal P. C. MacLaurin of Belleville Collegiate Institute, who in his introduction of the guest speaker drew a ripple of laughter from his listeners with his reference to them as "aristocrats."

Police Blotter

Considerable property damage resulted to motor vehicles, which were in collision at the intersection of Pinnacle and Dundas Streets yesterday afternoon.

A truck, being driven southerly on Pinnacle Street by Harry Palmer, Cannifton Road, was struck by an automobile, owned by Ross Munroe, Toronto, as the latter vehicle was making a righthand turn off Dundas Street. Damage to the extent of at least $75.00 to the motor car and considerable to the truck was done, Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard found upon investigation.

Residents at 218 Church Street, complained to police some person had stolen a practically new garbage pail from their premises last night. An old model motor car was seen stopping in front of the home, following which the can was found to be missing.

Police were called to Foster Ward yesterday afternoon where a number of boys were amusing themselves by discrarging a .22 calibre rifle. The boys were dispersed from congregating and the gun confiscated.

A second call took authorities to Grier Street where a number of boys were engaged in playing football in a vacant field and generally disturbing the peace of the Sabbath. They were also dispersed.

An inebriate and 11 transients shared the cell block at the police station over the week end.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, October 25

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

JUDGING BY the lunar transits, this may be a day that will be encouraging to all manner of new projects of a highly-constructive nature, and this despite certain detriments, obstacles or opposition. The latter may come from elders or those in important positions, but determination, energy and enterprise are likely to win the day and with flying colors. Tact, diplomacy or strategy would not be amiss.

Those whose birthday it is will find themselves in a year of opportunity for engaging their initiative and skill in constructive lines of a rather important character. This is forecast despite the hostility of influential personages. Enterprise and determination may win support of the "opposition camp."

A child born on this day may be enterprising, aggressive, persistent and practical, winning its way by hard work and application rather than through financial aids or speculative enterprises. Its manner may incite hostility.

PRECAUTION AT LEVEL CROSSINGS

Level crossing accidents have been reported from different parts of the country with heavy loss of lives of motorists. Such tragedies have brought a cloud upon motoring.

Work in improving conditions of safety at level crossings has been undertaken in many places by the removal of various obstructions to view. Wherever a road crosses a railway track there is always present an element of danger which demands the utmost in precaution. Drivers owe it to themselves, their passengers, the crews of trains and the passengers on trains to see that no train is within range of hitting them should they attempt to go over the crossing.

Level crossing accidents usually demand a heavy toll in life, limb and property, the chances of escape from injury being quite slim when one comes in contact with a train in motion.

NOW THE PETS BENEFIT

Man has developed many inventions and applications of the electric current for himself, to bring comfort, security, immunity against disease.

But science has not stopped with developing devices which help man. One reads an advertisement in a paper of a lamp which shoots death to non-flying insects, their eggs and larvae so that dogs, cats and canaries benefit. But the invention does not stop even there, it is applied.. to plants,.. clothing, or furniture to rid them of insect pests.

From time immemorial, certainly from the earliest days of man and his pets, the latter have been afflicted with the insects which keep a dog busy, make a cat scratch or worry the life of a poor canary or fowl. These ancient pests are now to go since detective science is on their trail.

Application and control of the forces man is learning to handle in which he draws from the great reservoir of energy and power in nature cannot but continue until the last need of the kind is satisfied for no one can sees an end of them, unless man forgets his knowledge of science. The ancient Egyptians knew the arts and possessed application of the laws of physics and mathematics which account for the movement of the hugest blocks or rock ever hewn by man, into position in the pyramids, their edges cut in straight lines that not even an article as thin as paper can find its way into the joints. That knowledge has been lost by man. But unless civilization should collapse and man return to a state of barbarism throughout the world, which would not require the use of modern inventions, inventions will continue to be developed.

IN CENTRAL EUROPE

A writer in the New York Times refers to the "unknown quantity" in Europe — the reaction of the nations to the future seemingly carved out for them as a result of the Four-Power pact at Munich. Some of the states have fought with, some against Germany; in the past fifty years six out of eight of them have thrown off foreign domination so that their total reaction cannot be defined as yet. "While it is by no means certain that they can find a basis for cooperation, neither is it to be taken for granted that they will submit without a struggle to a new overlordship by Berlin", the Times says.

The Times editor states that it is apparent that none of the capitals in Central Europe seems to know what the others are doing. In New York messages can be pieced together and a more nearly whole picture secured than it can be in any of the countries of Europe. He noted that the nations not consulted at Munich are busy plotting their own future. He goes on to say—"The quarrel on the remains of Czechoslovakia is not a pretty spectacle. All the neighbors seem to be trying to pay their scores to one another at the expense of the Czech Republic. Poland, a country which has always balked at the idea of a four-Power directorate, is seeking Rumanian support for a plan to divide Ruthenia between Hungary and Rumania, as part of a scheme to create a Polish "system" to serve as a barrier to Russia. Hungary seems disposed to make terms over the Hungarian minorities in Rumania and Yugoslavia for the support of these countries for Hungarian claims in Czechoslovakia.

"The point of illumination in the whole sordid business is that most of the proposed deals are opposed by Germany. Except for the rumors of a possible exchange of the Polish Corridor for Memel, all the manoeuvres seem aimed to interfere with Hitler's plans. Even Rome, while loudly protesting that the "axis" is invulnerable, is openly backing the Hungarian and Polish schemes against Germany. Not much space is left for Italy in the area set aside for the German "living room," hithetro considered also a sphere of Italian influence. Not much opportunity for stretching and independent growth is provided for the young and ambitious nations already occupying the territory marked for the expansion of the Third Reich. Therefore, although the foundations are firmly laid for Hitler's house, at the present stage of operations it is a bit too soon to nail down the roof."

BOB BURNS IS A TRAMP PRINTER in a new movie play, now being shown, dealing with tramp lite and this and that. The Sage of Van-Buren County, Arkansaw, should find himself at home in the role of "tramp printer" if he can carry his famous bazooka along. The play is to be called "The Arkansaw Traveller" or something like that. Jeff Davis, who calls himself "King of the Hoboes" is technical supervisor on the picture, seeing that the tramp scenes are correct. Jeff was discovered in a Hobo Jungle near Philadelphia by movie scouts sent out to locate him, and just imagine trying to locate a person with no postoffice or street address. Tramp Printers were an interesting character study in the days before typesetting machines removed the itinerant from the road. They were called Tramp Printers because they had no regular place of abode and moved from place to place across the country, working a while for a grub stake, then dressing up and going on a glorious binge which ended with the new clothes in hock and the tramp printer in a box car or on the blind baggage heading elsewhere. He was also called a hobo printer, or a tourist, according to the mood of the caller. Hobo is a notch or two above tramp in the language of the road and the Hobo News, a publication of authenticity on matters concerning the jungle, the rods, blind baggage, shacks, hand-outs and all, defines the hobo as a man who will work between journeys; a bum is a man who won't work and won't travel; a tramp is a man who won't work but loves to travel. A tramp printer to attain full rating and top honors in the craft, had to cross the continent several times, and tour Canada; while extra honors were awarded those who had visited England—and some did by cattle boat from Montreal, getting cool reception from the aristocratic top-hatted Prince Albert-coated English journeyman printers.

"VOX POP" HOISTED WITH HIS OWN PETARD, whatever that is. New York City sidewalk radio commentator was making fun of women's hats, latest styles, when a young woman stepped up to the mike and certainly took him for a ride. TRENTON FIREMEN DO NOT NEED EXTENSION LADDERS OR SAFETY NETS, apparently, for when they get trapped in an upper floor they just slide down an inflated hose to the ground, according to a recent report in the Trenton Sun. Readers being inclined to laugh at the Sun the editor maintains that the practice of sliding down inflated hose is a common one with Trenton firemen, and while he did not see this feat performed personally, he says the Trenton Fire Chief is willing to take his affidavit that "The water pressure in the hose is enough to support the weight of a man without anyone holding it at the top." That's his story and he's stuck with it, so he'll stick to it. And why not? Doubters are referred to the Indian Yogis who throw a rope up in the air where it remains while a boy climbs up and disappears into nothingness. Only thing about sliding down an inflated hose, as we see it, is the danger that with the nozzle unfastened the hose is liable to cut so many figure eights before one reached the bottom as to cause a sickness worse than sea sickness. Public demonstration of sliding down inflated hose from skyscrapers is now in order.

ing "immediate occupation" of the disputed areas.

Foreign diplomatic observers were inclined to believe, however, that Hungary could not afford to endanger the peace of Middle Europe at a moment when she already had been offered much territory by Czechoslovakia which, since the Great War, had seemed lost forever.

Hungary objected to Czechoslovakia's most recent offer on the ground that cities like Bratislava were not included in the territory to be ceded and because her requests for pleb iscites in Ruthenia and Slovakia were ignored.

Close to Hitler Plan

It was understood the Prague offer closely resembled the "Hitler plan" which however, was said to take into consideration numerous economic and strategic necessities for the new Hungarian-Czechoslovak border.

According to German suggestions the Slovak capital, Bratislava, in which Slovaks, Germans and Hungarians are represented in almost euaql numbers should become a free city. This, Hungary and Slovakia were said to have accepted.

The "Hitler plan," it was said, did not included plebiscites in Slovakia and Ruthenia as Hungary demanded, nor a common Hungarian-Polish border at the eastern end of Czechoslovakia.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

Psychoanalysis — Study of our Behaviour

It has been well said that this face and body each of us presents to the world is really not our true self. It is just like a coat or cloak which others see and judge us by. Our words and actions can be what we want them to be. The true self may be really better than what the world sees, but with most of us we present our best side, our show window as it may be called. While we realize that we do not present our real selves to the world, we do not realize that we do not really know what our real selves are like. All we know is what might be called our thoughts and actions during our conscious moments.

There is, however, another part of us, a very big part, that we ourselves do not know and this unknown part of us may make us behave a little differently from normal. This different action or behavior on our part is said to be due to this unconscious (not subconscious) part of us.

The study of our behaviour due to our unconscious self is what is called psychoanalysis.

As a matter of fact this unconscious part is really the biggest or most important part. "It is more important for two principal reasons: first, because it covers a far larger range, both as to time and extent, reaching back into our life before we were born and into the lives of our ancestors, and, second, because it is free from any interference or handling by us, and therefore when it is made to speak it tells the frank and unvarnished truth."

A psychoanalyst is one who by patience and skill makes us answer directly and without prepared thought the significant questions he asks. The words in these questions arouse certain words or expressions of thought in our minds. The psychoanalyst can interpret the words or expressions which come from our unconscious mind, explains their meanings fully and how these thoughts or expressions became a part of us and have caused certain behaviour on our part. When this is all explained to us we can see the reason for our acquiring this abnormal belief or thought and why we must get rid of it if we are to behave in a normal manner.

"MEN AT WORK!"

The most cheerful sign on the road

"MEN AT WORK" is an encouraging, cheerful sign upon the highway.

It is the happiest sign on the business highway too.

Business enterprise, making wise use of banking service, is the mainspring of employment.

The contractor responsible for that "Men at Work" sign gets the job of building that stretch of highway by being the lowest responsible tenderer.

Not always does he have the ready money to buy all the materials, pay wages and build it out of his own resources. He goes to the bank and, having assets and a good reputation, he negotiates such advances as he may need.

He orders materials, sets men to work. As the job proceeds, engineers' certificates enable him to collect from those with whom he contracted, and the work goes on.

The highway finished, the bank is repaid. Such repayments enable the bank to supply credit to other responsible borrowers.

A manufacturer gets a large order, with an early time limit for delivery. With only a hundred men, his factory cannot turn out the articles within the time required. With more men he can do it—but he lacks sufficient cash.

Operating his factory, as a going concern, with a profitable order and having a reputation for integrity, he asks the bank to lend him what he needs to pay wages.

The bank makes him a loan. He takes on more men. They get wages. The goods are turned out, delivered and paid for. The manufacturer repays the bank with the agreed interest.

He has his profit and can spend some money developing new business to keep his men employed.

How does a bank make these advances — where does the money come from?

Banks, having branches throughout Canada, mobilize the surplus funds of millions of depositors, large and small, and, based upon them, make credit available throughout the country as may be required.

Millions of little sums represent the toil, production and lifetime savings of Canadians—your fellow-citizens.

Safeguarding these deposits is the bank's first care.

Deposits of $1,000 or less—most of them much less—are owned by 3,770,000 out of Canada's 4,084,000 savings depositors. The total of all bank savings deposits in Canada is nearly $1,584,000,000; the average savings deposit in a bank is only $387.

Wisely safeguarded by Canada's chartered banks these deposits furnish credit that keeps "men at work" when used by Canadian business and industry—producing new realizable wealth from Canada's great resources. The country and all its people benefit.

In the field of business deposits, out of an average of 660,000 "current" accounts, 596,000 amount to $1,000 or less.

Savings deposits are, primarily, the basis on which banks can make loans.

Only the confidence of the people and their willingness to leave their money on deposit, enable a bank to lend money and—at small profit-margin to itself—serve the community.

We have mentioned the contractor and the manufacturer. The same process stimulates employment throughout the whole fabric of production, industry and commerce.

Loans to agriculture and for marketing agricultural products totalled in 1937, $88,294,000—9.0 per cent. of all ordinary bank loans shown on the return to the Minister of Finance, October 31st, 1937.

Of this sum $57,490,000 went to farmers, cattlemen and fruit raisers and $30,804,000 to grain dealers, seed merchants and grain exporters.

Other bank loans went to municipalities and school districts; wholesalers, retailers, manufacturers of and dealers in lumber, pulp and other forest products; fishermen; fish packers and curers; public utilities including transportation companies; stockbrokers and bond dealers; provincial governments; mining men; churches, parishes; hospitals; and to charitable and religious institutions.

Canada's chartered banks defend and protect the safety of the funds of depositors—the millions of thrifty souls we have described, whose life-savings they entrust to their banks.

No Canadian depositor, through the world-shaking events of recent years, has had to fear for the safety of a single dollar lodged with Canada's chartered banks.

The funds of depositors are their own — not a pool from which everybody may draw at will for any and every new financial experiment.

Wednesday afternoon at 4.15 the B.C.I.V.S Debating Club had the pleasure of being addressed by Mr. Alan Sprague, barrister of this city.

During his talk, Mr. Sprague stressed the importance of well-prepared material, convincingly and logically presented, point by point. He advised careful study not only of your own side of the question, but also of your opponents'. In this way, you are often able to dismiss the opposition's strongest points at the beginning of your speech; in addition, you can prepare a more adequate defence than would otherwise be possible.

Near the end of the meeting, our speaker suggested that the Debating Club take the form of a Mock Parliament, following Parliamentary order, as closely as possible. If this idea is carried out, questions of current issue will be discussed, every member being given an opportunity to express his own views.

This suggestion met with the unanimous approval of the club, and a committee was appointed to settle further details. This Mock Parliament may eventually be an established school society, acquainting the pupils with correct parliamentary procedures.

Mr. Sprague's advice and his promise of future co-operation were deeply appreciated by the members, who will be very glad to take advantage of both. L. B.

Girls' Athletics: A new plan is being tried out this year. All the girls are divided into teams, with senior girls as coaches. There will be special nights for the teams to practice the various phases of athletics, after four.

On Tuesday night the girls of Grade X assembled at Zwick's Island for a weiner roast, the primary object of which was to help teams and coaches to become acquainted. By five o'clock a fair representation had assembled. When the food arrived in Joyce Porritt's car, we soon began to roast ourselves as well as the weiners. Campfire singing, led by Marjorie Hitchon, completed a happy evening. J. W.

Attendance: Mr. MacLaurin announced in Assembly the other day that the classes with the highest average attendance during the month of September were IXB and IXC, both of which had 99 per cent. Members of these forms are determined to be leading again next month, when the October averages are read out.

B. C. I. RUGBY

Monday: Monday's game seemed to be a little one-sided as 9F won over 9B by a score of 21-0 and 10E won over 10C by a score of 3-0.

Tuesday: There was only one game as the other game was postponed. This proved to be the best game the 9th graders have had this season. 9D were the victors over 9A by a close score of 6-5.

Wednesday: Wednesday was the opening night of the third form rugby. There was a drizzling rain which made the oval slippery to handle, but at the end of the muddy struggle "McMaster" proved themselves the victors over "O.A.C." by a score of 17-5. In the second game 10H won an easy victory over 10A by a score of 22-0.

Thursday: Thursday was the opening night of the upper school rugby. The struggle was between "Varsity" and "Western"—and I do mean "struggle" because these boys take their rugby seriously. At three-quarter time the score was 11-5 for "Western" on the last play "Western" had "Varsity" on their five-yard line and "Western" fumbled. C. Tripp of 'Varsity' recovered the ball and ran fifty yards for a touch down. They covered and tied the score 11-11. In overtime "Varsity" scored the winning point by a rouge.

Dramatic Club: The date of the school play "Journey's End," announced for November the tenth, has been postponed until Friday, November 18.

On Thursday we are enjoying a series of lectures given by Miss Joan Maraskas, one of our graduates, on drama appreciation and technique.

With witches, skeletons gay lighted lanterns, and all that gives a Hallowe'en atmosphere, a dance was held for the student body in the girls' gymnasium on Friday. Under the excellent chaperonage of Miss Wallen and other members of the staff, the large crowd danced to the world's best orchestras through the medium of a "Nickelodeon". Many novelty dances were performed, and every one received Hallowe'en favors. "A good time was had by all"— as the venerable saying goes. L. S.

Rawdon

Rawdon Municipal Hall was the scene of a happy gathering on Wednesday evening, October 19th, when about two-hundred poeple from the surrounding communities of Bethel and Springbrook gathered to pay tribute to Messrs. Bill and Don Heath on the occasoin of their recent marriages.

All enjoyed a round of community singing with Mrs. Harold Elliott at the piano and Misses Edna Stillman, Evelyn Bailey and Irene Tucker leading in the sing song.

Rev. J. E. Beckel was chairman for the occasion and gave a jovial address wishing the newlyweds much happiness on their matrimonial venture.

Master Gerald Scott sang a number and Miss Bessie McMullen recited a humorous selection.

Master Bobby Elliott sang a solo, "When I Marry You."

Mr. Norman Leury gave a harmonica selection. Mrs. Harold Elliott and Miss Laura Tucker delighted with a piano duet, "Waves of the Ocean."

The two bridal couples were given seats of honor on the platform and the brides made a charming picture in their wedding gowns of white chiffon velvet.

Miss Edna Stillman read the following address:

Harold Ontario,
October 19, 1938.

Mr. and Mrs. William Heath:
Dear Bill and Frances,—

It is with great joy that we assemble here this evening to do honor to whom honor is due and to offer our "Cngratulations and Best Wishes" on the occasion of your recent marriage.

Bill, you have grown from childhood to manhood in our midst and you have been a faithful friend and neighbor and a real sport in all community interests as a baseball fan and a leader in Junior Farmers.

We especially welcome you, Frances, to our community and know that you will be willing to help whenever you can and we hope you will feel quite at home among us as we join together in good fellowship.

As a token of our esteem, we at this time ask you both to please accept this studio couch, not for its value, but rather that it may often remind you of our friendship and best wishes for your future happiness.

Signed on behalf of the community—Edwin Faulkner, George Runnalls, Lorne Bailey, Gordon Green and Ray Sine.

Edwin and George made the presentation, and both Bill and Frances thanked their friends for the lovely gift.

Miss Blanche Wright read the second address:

Harold, Ontario.
October 19, 1938.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Heath:
Dear Don and Marion,—

We have gathered together this evening to express to you our heartiest congratulations on your recent marriage. We extend to you and Marion our best wishes upon the life partnership which you have so happily entered.

We are especially glad to know that you are going to reside in our midst.

Don, we are all acquainted with your generous acts of kindness wherever you go, and although some of us are not so well acquainted with you, Marion, however it is sufficient recommendation for us that Don has chosen you as a life partner and co-worker. We heartily welcome you, Marion, and wish for you the best of everything in your married life.

As a token of our sincere esteem and respect we ask you both to accept this studio couch and as you use it, may it remind you of your many friends.

Signed on behalf of the community—Ray Sine, Gordon Green, Lorne Bailey, George Runnalls, Edwin Faulkner.

The presentation was made by Gordon and Ray, after which both Don and Marion expressed their thanks.

The couches were upholstered in rust velour and were appropriate gifts.

All sang "For they are jolly good fellows."

An appetizing lunch topped off with lemonade was served and those in attendance enjoyed a social half hour together.

Carmel

Carmel.—Our W.M.S. Thanksgiving service was conducted by the preacher, Rev. A. Armstrong, in the church on Sunday. His message was along the Missionary line and was greatly enjoyed.

Miss Fern Patterson spent the week-end in Perth attending the Young People's Rally of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Messrs. Harold and Joe Brentnell, Ruth Brentnell and Miss Iva Horton attended the chicken supper at Rednersville last week and reported 500 in attendance. Miss Iva Horton contributed to the program that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Brownson of Madoc, and Mr. and Mrs. James Brownson of Bancroft were visitors last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Simmons.

Mrs. Arnold Scott is spending a week at her home, near Toronto.

Visitors on Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Simmons' were: Mr. and Mrs. Sid. Simmons and daughter of Deseronto and Mrs. Frank Harnden of Napanee.

Mr. Harold Goodfellow has completed his threshing for this season.

Rain is badly needed in this district as most of the farmers report that the ground is too hard to plough.

Mr. Joe Brentnell is attending night school in Belleville.

Centenary

Centenary—A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Miss Hazel Keen on Wednesday, October 12th, when she invited a number of girl friends to a linen shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Hart, (nee Mable Christopher), a recent bride.

The rooms were tastefully decorated in pink and white, the bride and groom were seated together in the centre of the room and the following address was read:

Centenary, Ont.,
October 12, 1938.

Dear Mable and Elwin,—

It is on the occasion of your recent marriage that we, your girl friends, have gathered together tonight to wish you happiness for a prosperous married life.

You have both taken an active part in the community, especially in the Sunday School and Y.P.U. We heartily join in expressing our congratulations on your choice of life partners. May you both continue to be the same good sports, with your friendly and cheerful natures that have won you many friends in the past.

Please accept these gifts, in the form of a treasure hunt.

Signed on behalf of your girl friends,

Ila Calvert, Hazel Keen.

The hunt for treasures then started and the bride found many lovely gifts hidden here and there, proving the warm place she held in the hearts of her friends.

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games, after which delicious refreshments were served.

Anniversary Services were held at the church on Sunday with a large attendance both morning and evening. The guest speaker for the day was Rev. Mr. Tristran of West Huntingdon. His morning subject was "The Optimism of Jesus." The evening subject was a prayer of a father for his son, in which he emphasized the necessity of trials and hardships to develop character. Our desire should not be for a life of ease, but rather for God-given grace and power to surmount every difficulty, thereby building character. The subjects which were ably handled were inspiring and helpful. There was special music by the choir under the direction of Mr. D. A. Thrasher. Master Jack, of Belleville, sang "Abide With Me" at the morning service, and in the evening, Mrs. Houston of Belleville sang a solo. Miss Groves presided at the piano.

Rev. Mr. Platt in reviewing the year's work, thanked all the organizations for their support and cooperation.

Mrs. Gerald Brenton of Corbyville and Mrs. Norman Hardwick of Belleville attended the Anniversary Services on Sunday and also assisted in the choir.

The best wishes of the community are extended to Mrs. C. Mackenzie (nee Miss Frances Aikens) who was married on Wednesday.

The road on the lower third is receiving much-needed repairs.

Mrs. A. D. Holton has returned home after spending several days in Kingston visiting her cousin, Mrs. Hazelton. During her visit she enjoyed a trip over the Thousand Island Bridge and spent a day in Watertown.

The annual chicken supper was held on Wednesday, October 19th, with a record attendance. The supper was all that could be desired, after which a splendid program was enjoyed. Those taking part were: Mr. S. Anglin, Miss Phyllis May, Mr. Connors, Mr. and Mrs. Cordes, Mrs. S. Hageramn and Mr. Atkinson.

Marmora—Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell attended a Deanery meeting in Tweed on Thursday.

Mrs. Harry Caverly of Toronto is visiting Mrs. C. Caverly this week.

Mrs. Oliver Airhart and Mrs. Stewart Airhart have moved into Mr. G. B. Airhart's residence on McGee Street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Fraser of Montreal visited at the home of Mrs. Hugh Jones for a couple of days last week.

Mrs. J. R. Bogg and sons of Oshawa were week end guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sabine.

Misses Olive Crough and Eileen Collins of Peterborough visited Miss Myrtle Campion over the week end.

Mrs. P. MacDonald of Havelock is visiting friends here.

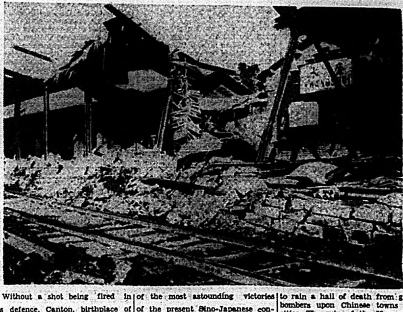
St. Paul's Laymen's Association met in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening. Mr. H. B. Smith presided in the chair. A report was given on the recent satisfactory drawing and card party. Bert Kouri and Eugene Reynolds played some instrumental selections. W. J. Cottrell gave a brief talk on sketches of olden times in Marmora. The rest of the evening was devoted to euchre.

The heavier Madoc High School Rugby team inflicted the first defeat that Marmora High School has sustained this season as they won at Deloro on Friday afternoon by the score of 13-0. The earlier meeting of the teams this season resulted in a tie. The girls' softball tussle ended with Madoc victorious with the score 17-12.

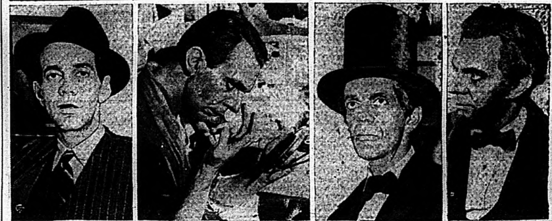
A euchre party was held at the parish hall on Thursday night under auspices of Group 7 Ladies' Guild. The prizes were won by Gilbert Steenburg and Mrs. Henry Melville.

Mr. W. J. Cottrell was the week-end guest of Mr. Charles Wellinger, musical director of C. K. O. C., Hamilton.

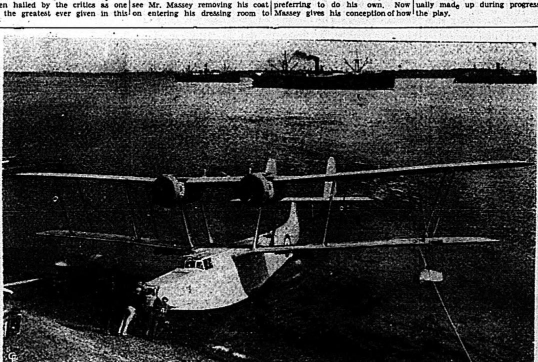
Mrs. Delora Gavin of Boston, Mass., visited her brothers, Messrs. John and Robert Neal in Marmora Township on Thursday.



Without a shot being fired in its defence, Canton, birthplace of Chinese nationalism, fell into the hands of Japanese invaders in one of the most astounding victories of the present Sino-Japanese conflict. In other parts of China, however, the Japanese are continuing to rain a hail of death from giant bombers upon Chinese towns and cities. The ruin of the Kwangshui station is pictured here following a Japanese bombardment.



Although there were grave doubts expressed by the predicters that a foreigner could not do justice to a stage portrayal of Abraham Lincoln, the performance of Canadian Raymond Massey has been hailed by the critics as one of the greatest ever given in this role. Here our camera takes you behind the scenes at the Plymouth theatre in New York and shows you actor Massey making up for his part as the youthful "Lincoln in Illinois." First you see Mr. Massey removing his coat on entering his dressing room to begin the task of making up. Then you see "Honest Abe" begin to materialize with the aid of grease paint, powder and other theatrical make-up. Mr. Massey scorns the services of a make-up man, preferring to do his own. Now Massey gives his conception of how Abraham Lincoln looked when he was 25 years old. Most familiar to us is the bearded Lincoln, and here you see Raymond Massey as he reached the bearded stage during the play. The beard is gradually made up during progress of the play.



Known as a supermarine craft and weighing 8 1-2 tons, the first of 10 giant bombers and patrol airplanes for protection of Canada's coastal lines successfully passed tests at the Vickers plant in Montreal and will undergo final fitting at once. The giant flying boat, shown here as it was launched on the St. Lawrence river, is twin-engined, and of metal construction throughout with fabric-covered super-structure. Equipped for firing two torpedoes, the flying fortress also is equipped with several machine guns and will carry a crew of eight.

Weddings

MACKAY—GIBBARD

Only immediate relatives were present at the marriage in Napanee, Saturday morning, of Marjorie Gibbard, daughter of Mrs. G. H. Challies and the late Mr. George W. Gibbard to Mr. David Stanley MacKay, son of Mr. and Mrs. MacKay of Kincardine. Rev. W. P. Woodger of Cobourg, conducted the ceremony at the home of the bride.

The bride wore a simply-cut gown of Windsor blue taffeta with a sweeping skirt banded with deep wine velvet and a small Victorian hat to match. Her bouquet was an old-fashioned nosegay of deep red roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Jean Gibbard, and Mr. Stanley Brown of London was groomsman.

After a small buffet luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. MacKay left for a short trip to the Eastern States and on their return will reside at 480 Oriole Parkway, Toronto.

A sum of about $65 was cleared towards the Mission expenses. The meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Pepper.

Every morning I travel the crowded highway, from my home in Callander, the two miles to the Quintuplet Nursery, to pay my daily visit to the five young ladies, to receive reports and to confer on such administrative matters as arise daily. And perhaps I cannot be blamed, on many of these mornings, for letting my mind run back a mere four and a half years, to the time when this smooth-surfaced highway was but a winding dirt road through the country, sometimes hub-deep in mud in Fall and Spring.

But now, as I approach the Nursery, I see a well-kept property, neat and with pleasing-looking log-style buildings gracing the five-acre plot which has been the mecca of so many thousands in these past few years.

My first morning duty is to receive reports from the police who guard the life and property of the little Canadian girls. There are three in charge the year round, with extra men during the Summer tourist season. There reports cover work to be done on the property and the buildings, the attendance figures and details that arise in the administration of the acreage

The police, who are responsible to the head nurse, are in charge of all labor done and keep the time of all extra men employed. They are on duty in their various shifts for the full 24 hours of each day, the man on duty at night making his rounds regularly with his time clock, which he turns in to the head nurse for a check-up at 8 o'clock each morning. Thus danger of fire is kept to a minimum and the safety of the property assured.

In the Nursery proper the head nurse gives me the daily charts kept on the children's health and behavior, telling me how the babies have been the past 24 hours. Then follow administrative matters, what is needed in the way of supplies and so on. In my absence, the head nurse is in charge; the police and other members of the staff, including the housekeeper and maids, report to her.

The teacher is responsible to the Department of Education, Province of Ontario, under whose jurisdiction all educational matters pertaining to the Quintuplets fall.

Thus the permanent staff has a personnel of nine; two nurses and a teacher; housekeeper and two maids and three policemen, augmented in the Summer by traffic officers, janitor and others.

In order that members of the staff may be in close proximity to the children at all times, a staff house is provided on the grounds. It is a double house, furnished as living quarters in one half for the teacher and nurses; the other half providing living quarters for the guards. Each half of the residence is a separate unit, with individual entrances.

CARE OF HEALTH

Strong-Constitution Goes Long Way Toward Resisting Pneumonia, Influenza, Bronchitis And Common Cold

With the approach of cold weather the importance of a strong, healthy body is especially stressed by the Department of Pensions and National Health at Ottawa. A vigorous constitution, it is pointed out, will go far toward resisting pneumonia and other infectious maladies, such as bronchitis, influenza and the common cold, which are most general during winter months.

Pneumonia is the most fatal of all acute diseases. Records show that it exceeds tuberculosis as a cause of death. Frequently, although not necessarily, it is of a secondary nature, following attacks of milder diseases which leave the body in a weakened condition. Its principal targets are young children and aged persons, but no one is secure from attack.

The disease is a lung inflammation caused by germs which enter the system through the mouth and nose, and leave the body mainly in the discharge from the same channels. It is spread therefore, by contact with those suffering from pneumonia or those carrying the pneumonia germs.

Unlike some of the communicable diseases which bestow immunity on the individual after a single attack, pneumonia does not confer a high or lasting immunity. Indeed, there would seem to be increased susceptibility to subsequent attacks, and recurrence is more common than in any other acute disease. For this reason, it is all the more important that persons do their utmost to avert a first attack.

Since pneumonia is more apt to strike at those in a run-down condition, healthful living is essential, and as the disease is frequently secondary in character more attention should be paid to minor acute respiratory infections. It is a frequent complication of influenza, measles, whooping cough, typhoid fever, etc. Accessory factors which may prepare the body for an attack of pneumonia are alcoholism, fatigue, exposure and overexertion, nasal and throat irritation, unbalanced diets, worry, lack of exercise and overcrowded and overheated rooms.

Phophylactic measures which enable the individual to combat the effects of the disease are cold baths, properly regulated temperature and ventilation, sleeping with open windows or in the open air, and correct oral hygiene. Those who live healthfully and use common sense in their contacts wiih probable carriers should have little fear of contracting the disease.

W. M. S. Kingston Presbyterial Meets

Madoc, Oct. 24.—(Special)—A rally meeting of the Western division of the W.M.S. of Kingston Presbyterial of the Presbyterian Church was held in Tweed, on Thursday morning and the auxiliaries were well represented. The President, Mrs. W. A. Hunter, Madoc, was in the chair. The opening exercises were conducted by Mrs. Wm. Shaw of Ivanhoe. The hymn "From Ocean unto Ocean", was sung and Mrs. Shaw read Ephesians, Third Chapter and Mrs. McGee of Stirling, offered prayer. A cordial address of welcome to St. Andrew's Church, was given by Mrs. S. B. Rollins. Mrs. Bateman of Belleville, gave a report of our supplies for this past year and mentioned that the allotment for 1939 was to be hospital supplies. Mrs. Hunter then gave a splenlid report of the business done at the council meeting in Toronto in September. The Treasurer, Mrs. Strachan, Toronto, reported the work carried on under retrenchment but no work was curtailed or missionaries recalled. There was an increase in life memberships for the past year and the work of the young women's organization had showed a fine upward trend. Mrs. Hunter said that the council gave great credit of Miss Helen Mackintosh, the editor of the magazine "Glad Tidings" for the great improvement in it and urged the auxiliaries for an increased subscription list. The forenoon session, was closed with a hymn and prayer. Adjournment was made to the lecture room of St. Andrew's Church where a most delicious dinner was served by the ladies of the church.

Accept Resignation

The executive met at 1.30 and accepted the resignation of Miss Dorothea Druce of Kingston, as Mission Band Secretary with deep regret. Mrs. Harper Rollins, Stirling, with Miss Clara Thain of Burnbrae, as assistant, were appointed until the annual meeting in May.

The afternoon session was called at two o'clock. The hymn of peace "We Thank Thee Oh Lord" was sung and Mrs. McDonald of Roslin, read the 107th Psalm after which Mrs. T. Leslie, Queensboro and Mrs. McCaffrey, Madoc, led in prayer for Peace. Mrs. John Wallace, secretary pro-tem read the minutes of the forenoon session and Mrs. P. Ranson, Belleville, gave the roll call and each auxiliary gave an interesting item form theirs year's work. Belleville read a fine paper on "Pep" prepared by Mrs. Tompkins, Stirling, the Exchange Secretary. Roslin reported sending a car and getting all their members out to every meeting. Madoc mentioned an honorary life membership given to a member by friends also a very successful meeting and afternoon tea in the country. Burnbrae mentioned the mission band rally there.

Returned Missionary Heard

The offering for Presbyterial expenses was taken and accepted and the guest speaker, Mrs. Davis, a returned missionary from Manchuria, China, was called on. She was dressed in native costume and had many beautiful colored pictures to show how they tried to educate the people. She gave a delightful talk on educational work which consisted in getting groups together and teaching them and then these went out and carried on the work. She showed a magnificent banner that had been given her and the inscription on it was "Love has reached to the uttermost". She exhibited idols that had been discarded through their work. Rev. Mr. Hunter of Madoc, then spoke a welcome to St. Andrew's church, Tweed and also of the very fine address of Mrs. Davis and brought greetings from the Presbytery. The session was closed with a hymn and benediction by Rev. Mr. Douglas of Deseronto.

Keep Eyebrows Normal but Shapely

KAY FRANCIS
Favors having her eyebrows natural looking

By HELEN FOLLETT

Do you spend time every morning teasing and tweezing those pretty hirsute ornaments upon your forehead? Let the scimitars widen slightly. You'll look like yourself again and the family will be pleased.

There's been too much tinkering with eyebrows, so much that many a pretty pair have almost vanished. Movie stars are letting theirs get back to normal. Better join up with the beauty progressives.

It is possible to improve upon nature who is sometimes too generous with eyebrow fuzzers, but there's no sense in following a policy of distortion. The quirky, zigzag pattern is definitely out. The line should be slender, graceful, smooth, with no furry edges. Take a look at yours and see if they are in Class A. If not, friction them with mineral oil every night, brush them with a tiny brush made for the purpose, cultivate a new design.

This is the season when every human being should snatch a walk every day—air crisp, leaves on the trees taking on autumnal colors, a winter ahead when there will be small opportunity for outdoor exercise.

Pull in the tummy, hoist up the chest, let the arms swing naturally, keep a brisk step.

The skin will become glowing, and that's good for a lot of things that all you. Eyes will brighten, lips redden; you'll "cook up" an appetite. Few women walk enough to keep themselves in form. It's too convenient to jump into the family car or public conveyance. Lazy creatures, shame on 'em.

Fashion Flashes

GOING UP with the hair and the hat is the coat collar. Most of the new coats dispense with the flat collar in favor of a collar that rises to new highs in back. Which makes the long-haired furs such as fox and lynx much more popular for coat trimming than mink or Persian lamb.

Richer and richer are the new suit trimmings. A delightful suit has the dress of light weight woollen in brown, while the loose, boxy coat is of the same color and fabric but in a heavier weave. The coat is trimmed with doule tuxedo revers of wide bands of cross fox.

A charmer of a frock is a strapless gown of black velvet, the heart-shaped decolletage edge with purple velvet that forms a tiny bow with very long ends in centre front.

Stepping out for a brisk walk is nice with the right shoe. A nice model is a seven-eyelet oxford of alligator in rust red. The lacing is of matching grosgrain.

Lucky girl is she who is able to choose a suit by Paquin. The famous designer makes a lovely suit of rust-colored velvet, the seven-eighths length fitted coat having a huge collar and a rippling hem of rusty red fox.

More and more moire is used this season. For afternoon wear there are suits and two-piece dresses of moire. A black moire dress, a two-piece model, has the jacket top trimmed with flower sprays in iridescent blue sequins.

AT THE BELLE

"THE ARKANSAS TRAVELER" "KING OF ALCATRAZ"

A moving and human picture of small town America, seldom before equalled on the screen, is given in the new Bob Burns film, "The Arkansas Traveler", now at the Belle Theatre.

For his portrayal of that colorful American figure, the fighting editor of the country newspaper, Burns deserves to take his place alongside the greatest interpreters of native characters, including even the incomparable Will Rogers. Although he is at all times Bob Burns, he is also always the homespun countryman —when he rides the rails with his brother-hoboes, edits a local newspaper to help a lady in distress, promotes a romance between two uncertain young lovers and cleans up politics in the face of powerful opposition.

Playing a mother role as she alone knows how, Fay Bainter is the courageous woman for whom Burns quits his life of wandering and who sticks to "the Traveler" when everyone else has lost faith in him. In the touching final scene of the picture there is more than a suggestion that the wandering printer has saved her newspaper only to take her heart.

An excellent supporting cast performs in "The Arkansas Traveler" under the direction of Alfred Santell, who delighted audiences everywhere with his "Coco-anut Grove" and "Having a Wonderful Time." It includes such top-notch performers as John Beal and Jean Parker, as the tempestuous lovers, Lyle Talbot, as the political ringmaster, Porter Hall and Irvin S. Cobb, a comedian as typically American as Burns himself.

"King of Alcatraz"

The spine-tingling story of a man who breaks out of mighty Alcatraz, the prison which the Government declares "break-proof", hi-jacks a steamer and massacres the crew will come to the Belle tomorrow as the companion feature in Paramount's new thriller, "King of Alcatraz" which features a cast of such screen favorites as Gail Patrick, Lloyd Nolan, J. Carrol Naish, Harry Carey and Porter Hall.

It's a mile-a-minute tale, is "King of Alcatraz", with action, thrills and a thoroughly believeable romance worked into its punchy scenes. "King of Alcatraz" is the story of a notorious Public Enemy, who boards a coastal steamer, disguised as an old woman, and once at sea, assembles his henchmen, also on board, to capture the ship.

Naish's gang seize control of the ship, but in a thrilling reversal, the loyal crew, led by Radio Operators Nolan and Preston and Ship's Nurse, Gail Patrick, regain control. Naish is killed, but in the last minutes of the fight Nolan is so severely wounded as to require an emergency operation.

Miss Patrick, forced to operate, puts in two-way radio communication with a doctor aboard another ship some hundreds of miles away, and following his instructions step-by-step, she saves Nolan's life.

Grand Show Tonight

Bobby Breen, Charlie Ruggles, Dolores Costello and six-year-old Irene Dare, the "Baby Sonja Henie", who entertains in fifteen minutes of the fastest and most eye-filling Ice Skating Scenes ever seen on the silver screen, are featured in "Breaking the Ice" at the Belle tonight with Zane Grey's thundering Western Classic "The Mysterious Rider", featuring Russell Hayden, Charlotte Field and Douglass Dumbrille. Paramount News presenting the latest World News Events will also be exhibited.

AT THE McCARTHY

"THE GIRL SAID NO"

Irene Hervey, Robert Armstrong and a host of well known film favorites including Edward Brophy, Poula Stone, Harry Tyler, Richard Tucker, Bert Roach and Vera Ross, head the excellent cast of "The Girl Said No", the outstanding operetta filmusical, at the McCarthy Theatre. The original New York, Gilbert and Sullivan stage cast are featured in the operetta sequences that bring to the screen for the first time the tuneful, "Princess Ting-Ah-Ling" musical numbers that include such immortal musical selections as "Three Little Maids From School" "The Mikado's Song", "Poor Little Buttercup", "Flowers that Bloom in Spring" and "A Wandering Minstrel." "The Girl Said No" is a new type of screen entertainment that has sparkling comedy, drama, romance and music in abundance, to please every desire you may have for wholesome entertainment.

"Vacationing in Quintupland"

Preceding the feature presentation, an excellent featurette entitled "Vacationing in Quintupland" brings to the screen a technicolor camera-eye view of ONTARIO'S fine beauty spots during the summer season, this is a presentation that will appeal to all, because it brings to you in vivid reality the most interesting facts of why tourists have always chosen Ontario as their abode during the vacation season. Andy Clyde at his funniest, in "Jump Chump Jump" and a swell technicolor musical cartoon "Bluebird's Baby" are also two excellent short subject attractions of merit now showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL

"ROBIN HOOD"

"The Adventures of Robin Hood", filmed entirely in Technicolor, will have its premiere in this city today at the Capitol.

Errol Flynn, the young Irishman, who so capably filled the dashing roles in "Captain Blood" and "The Charge Of The Light Brigade", is a made-to-order Robin Hood in the title role of the film.

The familiar tale, descended from English ballads of centuries ago, was seen on the screen some fifteen years ago when the agile Douglas Fairbanks Sr. played the title role. The present Warner Bros. version goes deeper into untold escapades and exploits of the rich to feed the poor.

Olivia de Havilland, Flynn's leading lady in both "Captain Blood" and "Charge Of The Light Brigade," plays Maid Marian. Other important roles are filled by Claude Rains as the treacherous Prince John, Basil Rathbone as villainous Sir Guy, Ian Hunter as King Richard and Patric Knowles and Alan Hale as outlaws.

It is, of course, a famous story filled with breathless adventure, mighty men and mightier deeds, and lovely ladies who are supposed to have spent most of their days in ivory towers embroidering and weaving. Robin Hood lived, according to the legends, at the end of a century of adventure that has no equal in history or fiction.

Richard, the Lion-Hearted, was King of England but was absent for long periods while he led his knights to the Crusades, leaving his villainous brother John in charge of his throne.

It was the era of the joust, of the lance and sword and the bow and arrow, of rough fun and rougher warfare, of men who fought magnificently, loved dangerously, lied generously and ate and drank prodigiously. A young deer was scarcely enough for a meal for a real man, and the drugstore sandwich was still unknown.

The great legend of Robin Hood has been put on film at last, with all the characters which have been the heritage of the English-speaking races for many centuries, brought to life in color and conversation. Several hundred men and women, working for Warner Bros. have sampled a slice of life such as they might have lived in 1197 with Robin Hood and his Merry Men or Richard the Lion-Hearted—when men wore iron underwear and ladies lived in ivory towers.

Attire For Buffet Supper

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Do women guests attending a buffet supper on Sunday evening wear dinner dresses?

2—If not, should the hostess wear dinner dress or afternoon dress?

—Is it permissible, when serving twelve at buffet, to use six napkins at one end of the table of one design, and six napkins of a different design at the other end?

H.

1—The welcome answer to the question of what to wear to a buffet supper on Sunday evening is the type of dress that has become so popular in the past few years . . the "don't dress" or Sunday-evening frock. This is the simple dress of ankle-length, sometimes designed with long sleeves, sometimes with elbow-length sleeves, sometimes with short puff sleeves, and, very often, with a short jacket, of matching or of an effectively contrasting material, such as velvet or lace or lame.

This type of dress is a valuable addition to the wardrobe of any woman, a "sartorial fortification" for so many informal parties that are given nowadays, parties where a street-length afternoon dress isn't just the right thing, and where a dinner dress is a bit too dressy. However, it is clever to plan a dinner dress so simply that over this we can wear an attractive jacket that transforms the dinner dress into a Sunday-evening dress. And we can find a great variety of this decorative kind of jacket in shops at the moment. A black crepe or velvet dinner dress is a grand "starter" . . . . then add color and glamor with the jacket or bolero!

If a woman guest invited to this kind of party hasn't this type of dress, she may wear her smartest afternoon dress.

2—The hostess would properly wear the same type of dress that I have described in the first answer. Or she might wear a hostess gown of a formal type.

3—Yes. Don't hesitate for a moment to place napkins of different designs at opposite ends of your buffet table.

Christening Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just accepted an invitation to act as godmother at the christening of a year old baby. Will you please suggest the proper gift for the occasion?

L.

Appropriate christening gifts are a silver cup or porridge bowl, a silver food set (small knife, fork, spoon, or pusher and spoon), a pair of silver or gold or delicate enamel baby-pins, a comb and brush set, a carriage set for the perambulator, a book for snapshots or photographs, any dainty accessory of wearing apparel such as a bonnet, bootees, a pretty dress, a little knitted jacket, a coat and bonnet set.

Sometimes a godparent, chooses to send a silver item (such as a silver cup or porridge bowl) which can be engraved with the name of the baby, the godparent's name and the date of the christening.

Very sensible too is the idea of a godparent's giving a sum of money (small or large) or a check or a bond with which to start a bank account in the child's name. This may be added to, according to one's circumstances by presents on birthdays, graduations and other important milestones in the child's life.

Choose a simple and appropriate gift as your christening present, appropriate for a baby and appropriate to your circumstances. A ring or a bracelet, for example, isn't appropriate.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Makes a Successful Marriage?

Good Health Makes Happy Partnership

On the eve of becoming a bride every girl hopes and possibly even prays that her husband may always remain her lover.

It may be that her ears have been filled with old wives' recipes for "holding" a husband. Perhaps she has been led to believe that it is all a matter of strategy; that marriage is like a checkerboard and that if the young wife is shrewd enough to make the right moves, she wins. In which case her husband will remain enamored.

But all that sounds artificial and old-fashioned when reconciled to this bit of advice, both up-to-date and sensible, about preserving the freshness of married love.

My advice is: Be healthy and stay so.

Because of having more out-door life than girls used to have, and more training in sports, young wives nowadays are as a rule, healthy. Which is a great blessing for themselves, their husbands and their children. But it's possible for the healthiest person, man or woman, to form unconsciously and by degrees the bad habit of being only half well, a condition which greatly endangers the happiness of marriage.

Men, I will confess, because of the routine of their lives, are less likely to acquire this habit. A girl however, who has been magnificently heathy up to the time she marries, sometimes slumps as soon as she moves into a home of her own and has perhaps not quite enough to do. It's so easy to imagine one isn't quite well enough to get up in the morning; easy to coddle one's colds or one's headaches, even to make a fetish of them.

It's quite natural that a sympathetic young husband, very much in love, will for a time actually encourage this sort of thing. His wife's imagined frailty will even seem charming to him and he will find it sweet to tend her and pity her and do her work for her—for a while.

I have even seen cases of soft-hearted men who allowed themselves to be thus exploited for a being neglected, the home itself becoming seriously damaged.

Usually, however, it doesn't work that way. Usually husbands get tired of waiting on wives and making sacrifices for them when medical inspection has proved that nothing really is the matter. Then what happens? Why, misunderstandings, hurt feelings, quarrels, shattering of all the early dreams.

Genuine illness is another matter. That has its own problems which I'm not at present referring to. What I am pointing out is that one of the main joys of marriage is companionship, and that a married pair who aren't able to do the same things, to work together and to play together, miss a big chance of being happy.

A strong, cheerful young couple who adore taking long hikes together on Sunday or who, when the kitchen gets a bit dingy, enjoy doing the re-painting job together, have made a promising start toward success in marriage.

The households where all sensible precautions are taken in order to keep sound and well, but where the dreary subject of illness is not mentioned except when it's strictly necessary, are, I assure you, the enviable ones.

A young wife who wishes to be lovely and lovable can do far more for herself than any beauty shop can do. Sound, glowing health is the only secret!

"MECCA" OINTMENT

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

CHAPTER XII.

Lou Steiner arrived.

He was a plain young man with enormous, horn-rimmed spectacles, a staccato manner, a world of vitality and new ideas.

Else he would not have lasted with Niklas.

"This is Miss Antoinette Goddard, the young lady of whom I spoke," said the promoter, watching the expression of his publicity man.

Lou's reactions were uncannily correct. If he didn't see possibilities in the girl, the deal would be off.

"Antoinette?" repeated the newcomer, turning his eyes full on Toni. "Happy coincidence! An Empress! Got the air ,Nicky. Bright boy! You're some picker!" And he seated himself with a flourish.

Toni consumed creamed mushrooms, watching the pair. Niklas's words about attracting the rich man from the South had been vastly disturbing.

Lou Steiner ate and drank. Despite his evident enjoyment of the delicious food, Niklas was aware that his press agent missed nothing in the demeanor of the girl.

"And now to get down to business," he said, when coffee was served. "Miss Goddard speaks excellent French, as I informed you, Lou. She has a sweet throaty voice."

"Ha! That makes it perfect!" Again his eyes swept her as though she were a race horse or a dog, thought Toni. "She's got points, Nicky. She's an aristocrat. See her hands—the way she fingers that patrician throat of hers. I've got it. Name's prophetic. Marie Antoinette and the guillotine!"

In her embarrassment, Toni had been fingering a slim chain about her neck. To Lou Steiner, the gesture suggested things.

Nicklas demurred: "But the movies and the stage have played that out."

Lou thought a minute.

"Listen." His eyes snapped. "That old fool of a Louis wasn't much good to his queen, so she up and got her a lover Count Something-or-other, and according to the record he was a darn good-looking chap. A foreigner, if I remember, with big deep-set eyes like Miss Goddard's. Nicky"—he rapped the table sharply—"what say we recreate her as their descendant?"

Toni thought: "He is quite mad!"

"I am an American," she began.

Niklas's suaveness vanished. He said sharply: "The kind of work I offer you demands co-operation, Miss Goddard. Please understand that the night clubs are already surfeited with society singers, what you call home-products. Novelty is a first essential. I can go out on Broadway and get girls by the score. It was the knowledge of the French language, your rendition of French songs, that interested me, primarily. Whether you could be transformed to look the role of a queen's descendant remains to be decided."

It was a distinct snub.

Fearful that she would lose the part, Toni said quickly: "I understand. It shall be as you say."

With a tug at the heart, a kind of desperate nostalgia, she realized the worlds that now separated her, socially as well as financially, from that handsome stranger on the balcony. But, if she took this job, followed Niklas's command, would they?

Could she, by her charm, her originality, maybe her beauty, attract him, as Niklas had said?

What matter if they did give her a new identity, weave some story around her, since her old life was swept away as chill winds sweep the leaves of autumn? A new beginning? Why not? Let Toni Goddard disappear as, from her mind and heart, must fade Brock Milbank forever!

"You said Miss Goddard is new to New York? No family? Friends? Connections? No one to give her away?" the press agent shot out.

"That's right," said Niklas.

"Anyhow," said Lou Steiner, appraising her keenly, "we'll make a change or two in her appearance. I suggest her hair be made blond. The line of the brows changed, and dyed black, for a start. There's that new shade of green powder—gives the skin a dazzling transpaency—she's a bit sallow. And she can use the blue make-up around the eyes, maybe a touch of silver on the lashes, and bright rose lipstick. Huh?"

Niklas weighed this in silence. The press agent went on: "My idea is to create glamor, mystery about her. Get the town talking."

"What," asked Niklas, "was your idea about Marie Antoinette and her lover? Repeat that." He looked over his shoulder, for fear someone might be listenink. But the buzz of conversation, the clink of glasses and rush of waiters, completely covered their talk.

"Why not present her as a newly imported beauty of the Old Regime of France? It wouldn't be difficult to set the rumor going that the girl has royal blood in her veins. She has the air, Nicky. In this credulous town it wouldn't be hard to swing it that she's a direct descendant of Marie Antoinette—on the left-hand side," he finished with a wink.

Niklas said: "Ah! The whispering campaign?"

"Exactly. More star material has been put over by gossip than by anything else. Glamour, Nicky! Mystery! Get me?"

"Her name?"

Lou Steiner gave Toni another swift glance. "The Goddard would be dropped, naturally. She doesn't have to have a last name. Antoinette! That's pretty. That's appropriate. The club is being decorated to represent a French chateau, with a garden and a fountain in the middle. Say, why not name it Le Chateau de la Marquise? She's the chatelaine, get me? The owner of the castle! I see peacocks, illuminated water, fetes like they had at the Petit Trianon in the days of her ancestress, the queen at Versailles! Gosh, when I look at Antoinette, there is a close resemblance between her and the poor, guillotined Marie! And she's fingering her throat again. Look, Nicky, I do believe," cried the press agent, giving himself over to his dream, his eyes shining, "that the spirit of the dead queen is in her, remembering the sharp feel of the axe!"

"Good!" nodded Niklas. And to Toni's amazement, there was no light of humor in his brilliant black eyes. He added practically: "Naturally it will depend on the audition. You will phone Madame Berthe to have the period costumes at the club immediately. It is not so good to sing—er—immediately after one's luncheon, but we are busy men. You understand? You will come with us."

"Certainly."

He paid the check. They were about to depart. Toni's heart hammered. Not because of the imminent audition that meant so much to her, exciting as that was. But because, on leaving the Oval Room, they must pass the table where Guy Halstead-Flagg sat with Miss Brewster!

Would he recognize her?—she wondered. Would there be any likelihood of introduction, business being uppermost in Mr. Niklas's mind?

Her hopes were dashed when the press agent suggested they slip out through the ballroom directly behind them, for fear the smart throng might notice Toni before her transformation, thus possibly spoiling the scheme of the new identity.

Mr. Niklas seemed to demur. The press agent whispered to him, but Toni overheard: "Lola's out there in the lobby."

"Oh, very well, then." They made their exit by the ballroom.

Toni thought: "What's the mystery of Lola?"

CHAPTER XIII.

The audition was over. It had been a success.

Madame Berthe's assistant had brought a make-up box along. "Now we turn a pretty girl into a beauty." She had smiled at Toni as she worked magic with her face.

Three were three exquisite period costumes in the Du Barry style. Three snowy wigs that were the crowning touch in giving Toni an ethereal, startling beauty.

The first gown was slipped over her head. Billowy blue satin skirts over peach taffetas, streaming with silver lace. An uncomfortably tight, but beautiful bodice, with square, deep decolletage outlined with rosebuds, in the best tradition of the court of Versailles.

The club was being decorated. The workmen paused when Toni appeared. The accompanist struck rippling chords on the paino. Toni went into an old French chanson. Then the second gown. The second wig. Anther song.

Then came the third, most difficult test.

For this final costume was unwieldy. And even more so was its accompanying headpiece!

For set on the wig, in amusing fashion, was a miniature farmyard, no less! A tiny duck pond fashioned from a bit of mirror, tiny toy ducks, cows, a donkey, sheep, a little barn, and a dairymaid.

Thus weighted, Niklas commanded her to sweep elegantly from the balcony down on a winding flight of taairs that led to the main floor. There must be no teetering, no stumbling. "You are the chatelaine, receiving your guests!"

Over and over, this last test was made.

"Thank heaven," thought Toni, "for old mam'selle back home who used to make me walk the nursery with a book on my head!"

"And this time you will please sing as you descend," called Niklas from the orchestra dais.

Three men, presumably associates of his, had entered the club. With Lou Steiner and the workmen, they formed an intent audience. With the last note of her song, as she reached the middle of the dance floor, Toni swept low in a curtsy. They applauded heartily.

But not Niklas.

He beckoned her. And the old fear of being back on Broadway jobless, came over her.

"You will do," the promoter told her curtly, "but bear in mind, Miss Goddard, that you are still in the amateur class. You must practice."

"Indeed I shall. All day long." Her heart rose.

"We shall open the club within two weeks," he told her. "Meantime you will take a two-hour singing lesson daily. I have already engaged an instructor, provisionally."

"Yes. Thank you."

Would he pay for the lessons?—she wondered. Or would they be deducted from her salary? Probably the latter.

"The instruction will be included, gratis, in your contract. You will come to my office now and sign it, please."

His lawyer was already there. A quick worker was Niklas. With dinner and supper at the club, with three appearances to make between the hours of half past seven and hal past two, she was to receive seventy-five dollars a week on a three-months' contract.

Three period costumes and three wigs were to be paid for by the management.

It seeemd fair enough. Even enticing, thought Toni.

But she was no fool. Suppose by the end of the first month, her success was unprecedented?

She hinted at that. Saw Niklas frown.

"Certainly, in that case we shall be willing to revise the contract, Miss Goddard. But you know it works two ways. That's only fair. A month in the club will show your drawing capacity. If it is unsatisfactory, we will have to let you go. That's understood."

With a nervous flutter of her hands, she said: "I will make good. I'll practice hard. I won't fail."

His face relaxed. His manner became suave again. "I'm sure of it, Miss Goddard, otherwise I should not have made negotiations with you. I am not a man who wastes his time."

She signed the contract.

"You will remain very quiet until our opening. Except for going to your singing lessons, you will not be seen around Broadway. The publicity must start immediately, you understand"—Niklas turned from her to Lou—"this web of mystery you spoke of, this build-up—"

The two men moved off, and conferred together.

When they came back to her, Niklas said:

"You will move immediately from your hotel to a quiet inn at Riverdale-on-the-Hudson, where I shall engage and pay for a room for you."

Her eyes widened in suspicion. By accepting this, would she not be obligated to him? Suppose he came to visit her?

In the ensuing pause, the expression on Niklas's face remained unchanged, and yet she knew that he had read her thought.

"Between now and the opening, I shall see you only at rehearsals at the club, at such times as I send my car for you."

"And I come in daily for my singing lessons?"

"That will be in order," said Niklas, "since Monsieur Alphonse's studio is away from Broadway."

"I suggest she wear a veil going and coming from her lessons," said the press agent. "Lots of theatrical people go to Alphonse. They mustn't see her. It might defeat my campaign."

"Not necessarily. She's a singer, isn't she? Why not?"

"Better get that hair dyed blond today, Miss Goddard—Mademoiselle Antoinette, rather. That's the name under which you will register at the Riverdale Hotel. The 'marquise' will come later." The press agent winked knowingly. "Nicky, once the show's opened, and everybody's talking, it might be advisable to move her to somewhere swankier. Get me?"

"When the time comes," said Niklas meaningly, "all that will be attended to."

CHAPTER VIX.

Again that sense of unreality swept over Toni, and mingled with it was a queer sense of foreboding. For some reason known only to those two—perhaps to Niklas only—they were gambling with an unknown Cinderella, possibly trading on her ignorance, her complete lack of friends.

Who was this Niklas?—she wondered. What was there about the man that compelled one to obey him? Wasn't there something sinister in the very phrase, "whispering campaign"?

If she were in her right senses, she would destroy that contract, refuse to lend herself to anything phony. She was Antoinette Goddard of San Francisco. A name to be proud of. Why change it?

Why pose as something she wasn't, all for filthy lucre, for attracting silly, credulous sheep into what might prove to be anything but a respectable fold?

It was too fantastic, this scheme of transforming herself into the descendant of a queen! The public would laugh heartily or, following Lou Steiner's bizarre publicity, she might even be hooted at the opening!

Yet not alone for the needed salary did Toni know that she'd go through with it, risk everything for a new identity, a new start.

The added factor was the break with the old life and with the Toni Goddard who had suffered such humiliation from the man she'd been engaged to.

Plus an inner, disturbing voice informed her, the possibility of meeting Guy Halstead-Flagg.

The day of the preview, "by invitation only" arrived.

It was to take the form of a cocktail party. The guests had been carefully selected by Lou Steiner. The rich. The spenders. The social leaders.

There were acres of hors d'oeuvres. The variety in canapes was endless. Russian caviar. Truffles. Pate-de-fois-gras. And champagne flowing like water.

This from five to seven o'clock.

Niklas had been most generous. Two hundred guests had been bidden. In some instances, a guest was even privileged to bring a party. Miss Harriet Brewster was one so favored.

"You understand, Miss Antoinette, that this afternoon we are expecting what will be called a big success? This will rest largely on your shoulders. I am sure you will not fail us."

She trembled.

He came to her dressing room at a quarter after five. From downstairs the hum of conversation was surging to a roar, as of a river murmuring to gigantic falls. "The Niagara of champagne," she thought whimsically.

"Ah, you are beau-tee-ful, my dear Miss Antoinette, or I should say, marquise!" Niklas rubbed his hands delightedly as he regarded the ethereal vision in the exquisite eighteenth-century costume. "Not nervous?"

"A little."

"Come. You shall have a fortifier." He pressed a button, then comanded a knee-breeched, bewigged waiter to bring champagne.

He even took a sip himself, nodding kindly over the rim of the glass.

"To the success of a beautiful ambitious, clever young lady who will be the toast of the town!"

She drank. A reassuring warmth stole through her.

He pulled out his watch. "In ten minutes, for the crowd are already assembled, you will appear on the balcony. And do not forget Pepito!"

Well trained, of brilliant plumage, Pepito was a parakeet of haughty mien. At first he had scorned poor Toni. "For the fake I am!" she thought ruefully. Perched on her shoulder, he had pecked her painfully at rehearsals.

Now, with complete about-face, he was friendly. Even affectionate.

"Miss Brewster has come with a party such as I had hoped she would."

Toni's heart rose. Would he be in that party?—she wondered. And if he was, would she meet him?

Or was she to stay back in her dressing room between performances? Perhaps since this was a preview, Mr. Niklas might let her mingle for a while with the guests.

He had the faculty of seeming to know her thoughts. He said: "After your song, and the encore, I shall seat you at a little table, and bring to you such gentlemen as are important. And if they ask you, you will dance with them, please."

She took a long look at herself in the mirror. Was this vision of beauty actually Toni Goddard?

No, no, the marquise in her chateau! Or, better still, Marie Antoinette reincarnated!

A queen who would welcome not her subjects, but congenial spirits of her court. It would be a revel as in Petit Trianon days! There was nothing to be afraid of. They adored her. As she stared into the glass, the urgency of her wish brought about the queerest experience. Mystic! Thrilling!

She had the power of seeing back! She was one with the ill-fated queen! She wasn't in this century. The hands of time had been turned back. Through the power of her imagination, she was Marie Antoinette, fearless, coquettish, a grande dame, conquering.

Monsieur Alphonse, who had been suffering all her nervous tremors with her, saw her chin tilt high. "The child has breeding, courage, the grand manner," he told himself on a long breath of relief as he watched her.

Amazing transformation!

Quietly he slipped on his glasses. He had the strangest feeling as though he were spying on something that was not quite of this mortal world. This dark-eyed beauty, her lips parted, that radiance on her face, seemed to have contacted some eternal truth, as though a veil had suddenly been lifted.

As indeed it had.

Or so, looking back on it afterward, it seemed to Toni. A queer, psychic phenomenon. The soul of Marie Antoinette seemed to have taken possession of her, animating her gestures, infusing her frightened heart with queenly courage.

In the mirror, Toni saw exquisite, shadowy figures all around her. Gradually, beside her, the worn face of her singing master changed. It assumed a noble mien. With thudding heart she knew it for her lover, the handsome count who had been faithful unto death. He smiled, infinite tenderness in his eyes.

It seemed to her like the image of Guy Halstead-Flagg smiling at her, encouraging her.

A call boy came to the door. Mr. Niklas had started his speech. Was she ready?

She did not hear.

She was listening to the music of a spinet and a harp, smiling back at dear, dark eyes that caressed her.

Alphonse touched her on the shoulder. "Come."

With head held high, Pepito on her shoulder, she swept out on the balcony at the last word of Niklas's speech, and was led to the top of the staircase by him to rounds of applause.

In a dream she sang as she had never sung before. Bewitched! The silvery notes rang high and clear, thrilling with their dramatic quality.

Gone was her fear. They loved her. They were her subjects. She was on a throne. Her eyes swept the spellbound audience, seeking one face.

It smiled up at her.

x x x

She was seated at a small ringside table.

Niklas, Lou Steiner, and her singing teacher, made a kind of bodyguard over her for the smart guests at the preview clamored to meet the enchantress.

Niklas was beaming. Behind his goggles, Lou Steiner's eyes snapped with the light of victory. Monsieur Alphonse was similarly radiant.

She had put it over. It had been a triumph.

"Will you honor me by dancing with me, marquise?" Before her stood a son of one of the richest families in America.

She glanced at Niklas.

"Ah, thank you. You are ver-ree kind. But I am jus' a leetle tired—fatigue. You understand?" She smiled dazzling at the boy, softening his disappointment.

Without rehearsal, without even dreaming she would do it, her role had become such a part of her that it seemed perfectly natural to drop into the broken accent.

Niklas was delighted.

Everything was going far beyond his expectations. His hunches were right. No professional could have done better. Lou's flights of fancy were borne out in fact.

Why hadn't he been smart enough to invite columnists and critics here? Elicit raves over his new find? But the guests were so enthralled by her, they'd talk; they'd spread the news like wildfire!

Couples danced by, hilarious with champagne. The orchestra played divinely. Le Chateau de la Marquise was the last word in elegance and beauty.

"I go now to move among my guests." Niklas rose. "You, Lou, come also. You wil answer their questions, with discretion, about our leading lady. And"—his eyes narrowed in stealthy warning—"you wil be guarded, you will not overdo it."

On the dance floor, Harriet Brewster swept by in the arms of a partner. She was of medium height, and rather squarely built. Under her black brows, her champagne colored eyes flicked Toni from silver slippers to the absurd hat on her snowy curls. She passed a second time. Her stare was more prolonged, keenly appraising. It was almost rude. "As though I was a figure in a wax works!" thought Toni. But she knew it was folly to resent it. She must expect this sort of thing. Indeed, it was a kind of compliment, professionally speaking.

One would get used to it. One must.

The music stopped. More people were presented to her.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

MARIE ANTOINETTE

Adapted from the METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Picture by GERTRUDE GELBIN

SYNOPSIS: While still Dauphine of France, Marie Antoinette meets and falls in love with Count Fersen. When she becomes Queen, Fersen goes to America. Marie bears King Louis XVI two children. The Duke D'Orleans, her enemy, plots against the throne and agitates a revolution. Fersen returns and attempts to help the Royal Family to escape across the border. The plot is foiled and the Royal Family is sent to the Prison of La Force.*

NOW READ THE LAST CHAPTER—BELOW

"We demand the life of Louis Capet."

"God take care of you, my baby."

"Let me speak with the Queen."

"Take me in your arms as you did the other dawn."

Upon their arrival at the Prison of La Force, the family is separated. Princess de Lambelle (Anita Louise) is killed at once. King Louis (Robert Morley) is taken to a cell by himself. Marie Antoinette (Norma Shearer) and her two children (Marilyn Knowlden and Scotty Beckett) are placed under special guard. Daily the mob gathers in the prison yard. The roll of drums, the cheers of the populace, the groan of the guillotine and the dull thud of heads falling in its grisly basket, celebrate the revolution.

Copyright 1938, Loew's, Inc.

And then, one night, the guard escorts Louis to Marie. They are to dine together. The children are beside themselves with joy at seeing their father again. The evening passes happily with kindness and devotion between Marie and her husband. Their son, breaking the arm of his toy soldier, asks his father to mend it for him. Louis promises to do so and send it back in the morning. "Will you bring it back?" asks the child. Louis shakes his head. With a sudden stab of pain Marie realizes that morning will find her husband on the guillotine.

His death leaves her crushed and bewildered. Unbeknown to her, it has been the deciding vote of the Duke D'Orleans (Joseph Schildkraut), now Citizen Orleans, which ordered her husband's execution. Danton and Robespierre, leaders of the people, openly acclaim him—they are not ready yet to behead him—not until he finds a way for them to execute the Queen. D'Orleans thinks up a plan to incriminate Marie Antoinette. Guards arrive at her prison cell and take her son from her. Marie, believing they mean to execute the child, collapses.

But such is not their plan. The boy is taught a routine of malicious lies against his mother. In the prison courtyard he is forced to scream them as he points to her. On this testimony, Marie is condemned. D'Orleans has served his purpose and is guillotined. Fersen (Tyrone Power) makes a last desperate chance to save Marie. But Marie tells him gently it is too late. She has suffered too much; she is content now to die. At dawn, aged by suffering, horror and despair, but still the Queen, she mounts the guillotine and goes to rest.

Orfuns' Defeat of Imperials And Argos Win Over Ottawa Upsets of Week-End Matches

Peterboro Scores with Placement in Dying Minutes of Game

QUEENS BEATEN

Roughriders Fooled on Pass Forward that Gave Argos Victory

(By Sydney Gruson Canadian Press Staff Writer).

The shocks in the east's most thrilling football Saturday of the season reverbreated over the section today amid the confusion resulting from an upset unrivalled since Winnipeg Blue Bombers slapped mud in Hamilton Tigers faces to win the National championship in 1935.

Experts were still trying to put themselves together after the amazing 3-2 victory Peterborough Orfuns a first-year senior club built around intermediates, scored over the mighty Sarnia Imperials. The thrills in Toronto Argonauts' 10-6 triumph over Ottawa Rough Riders and a 4-3 win for Montreal Nationals over Toronto Balmy Beach still had the fans dizzy.

These were the outstanding results in a day that saw Queen's Tri-color all-but dethroned as Intercollegiate champions by losing 17-5 to McGill, while University of Western Ontario took a 3-2 decision from University of Toronto at London and Hamilton Tigers scored their first win of the season, 17-3 over Montreal Cubs.

Epected to Rout Orfuns

Imperials, champions of the O.R.F.U. for seven straight seasons, had been expected to route Peterborough, coached by a one-time Balmy Beach star, Bill Irwin. Orfuns, who plucked an odd veteran from Toronto teams to lend a measure of experience to the youngsters, had set themselves a three-year campaign to rise to the calibre of Imperials.

But they had everything Imperials possessed Saturday. They fought for and made their break with three minutes to go when the heavy, hard-charging line smashed through to break up a Stirling kick on the Imperial 45. Leo Deadey raced 30 yards to the 15 with the loose ball and Ford (Mike) Loucks, with 3,000 home-town fans dead silent, calmly booted the winning placement field goal.

Played For Win

Loucks and Don Crowe, the backs, and the whole line, which broke up another kick early in the first quarter, were the Peterborough stars. Crowe matched the great Bummer Stirling through the air with 50 to 60-yard punts, something the acknowledged eastern kicking stars have been trying to do for seasons.

For a while after Stirling got the wind at his back in the fourth quarter, it seemed Imperials would scrape through on the strength of two singles the Bummer lashed behind the Orfun line. But Peterborough, whose feat in holding Imperials scoreless for three quarters would have rated attention itself, were playing for the win — and they got it.

Stukus Paces Argos

Annis Stukus paced Argonauts to the victory that gave them leadership of the Big Four and sent Rough Riders, 7-5 pre-game favorites, into second place. Stukus, a big quarterback whose steadiness has featured Argos' play for five years, scored all their points on a field goal, touchdown and convert.

Stukus waited until only four minutes remained and the 18,000 fans jammed in Varsity stadium had conceded Riders a 6-4 win to pull off his thrilling touchdown play. He picked off a 26-yard pass from Doug MacPherson at centrefield, shook off three Rider tacklers and raced 5 yards for the try.

The teams had fought 56 minutes with Riders holding a slight advantage along the ground when the pass play, something that beat Riders in last season's playoffs whipped them again. Ottawa held a 6-3 lead at half-time, on Murray Griffin's touchdown after Riders blocked Johnny Munro's kick on the Argo five.

Teams Evenly Matched

Figures showed how evenly the teams were matched. Riders gained 176 yards from scrimmage to 129 for Argos and both teams completed only one pass. The kicking, especially Bob Isbister's for Argos, was disappointing, and Ottawa's Rocky Rocano held them even during the second half.

Nationals remained the only unbeaten O.R.F.U. club and held first place by two points over Sarnia by their victory, taken on Ray Mullins' placement field goal with three minutes to play. That didn't end the thrills for the Montreal fans as Beaches passed their way to the National 10 and brought Barry Gray out for a placement attempt on the second-last play.

Gray's shot went wide by inches for a single and Beaches protested futilely that it was good. Beaches had dominated play on Ab Box's kicking and Teddy Manorek's plunging until a centrefield fumble paved the way for Mullins' placement. Johnny Atcheson ripped off 15 yards on an end and Johnny Ferraro fired a 25-yard forward to the Beach 18 immediately preceding the placement.

Kennedy Boots Them All

Jack Kennedy's long booting scored all Western's points as they edged past Toronto into second place in the college circuit. In position three times to kick singles, Toronto gambled for field goals and each time Cam Gray failed. More than 10,000 Montreal fans watched McGill, led again by Herbie Westman, hand Queen's their third straight beating. Westman kicked four singles and Alex Hamilton and Bob Kenny scored converted touchdowns for the Redmen.

Tigers and Cubs played loose football at Hamilton. Tigers moving into an early lead on Turnbull's 30-yard touchdown dash. They were never threatened seriously.

Pitt and Fordham Still Undefeated, Meet on Saturday

By BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Oct. 24—(AP)— On a day when one-point and one-touchdown margins of victory were the rule rather than the exception, the unconquered football teams of Pittsburgh and Fordham performed Saturday as if under orders to furnish added build-up for a game that already shaped up as one of the best on next week end's United States College program.

The Panthers, making good their threat to mix passes with the customary power, swamped Southern Methodist 34-7, striking through the air for two touchdowns. Fordham, goaded out of an obvious inclination to let a 13-0 lead stand by a last-period injury to star sophomore Len Eshmont, let go with both barrels to crush Oregon 26-0.

Provided Eshmont's twisted knee responds to treatment, the Rams' invasion of Pittsburgh next Saturday should be a sight worth travelling miles to see.

The Wolverines, launching their winning drive after gaining possession of the ball on an Eli penalty for roughing the kicker, nosed out a gallant Yale team, 15-13; Notre Dame continued unbeaten and dropped Carnegie Tech from the undefeated ranks with a 7-0 triumph accomplished in the last quarter, when the referee lost count of the downs and Tartans lost the ball; Louisiana State scored in the last quarter and Duke in the first to beat Vanderbilt and Wake Forest, respectively, by 7-0 counts; Rice, playing its first conference game, gained its first victory and handed Texas its fifth straight defeat, 13-6, and California, ringing up its sixth consecutive triumph, scored on Washington for the first time in three years to down the Huskies 14-7.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Oct. 24—(AP)—Some of the New York scribes repprted that Fordham's smashing win over Oregon was just about the answer to the Rose Bowl snub... we had a wire from California last night that Don Budge is typing it out.... Waite Hoyt, the pitcher, is doing a nifty job as sports spieler over a New York station.... the Pirates must do something about it, so Pie Traynor has started by bidding for Al Lopez (and here's a modest $1 bet he doesn't land him)....fight fans should not forget this: Gunnar Barlund will be back in the heavyweight picture almost before you can say "Jack Robinson." ....

Ceferino Garcia's fight with Henry Armstrong likely will be the toughest the little colored boy has ever had....Garcia can hit like nobody's business (if he can get set) ....any takers? .... Barney Ross, who has fought both of them sticks to Armstrong....Joe Louis will be at the ringside when the thing comes off....

You could have knocked us for a loop the way the Yales went after Michigan in the first half Saturday.. you'll see one of those football games you read about when Fordham goes out to Pittsburgh this week....both are primed....

TORONTO'S LEAFS SETTLE DOWN TO SERIOUS GRIND

Coach Irvin to "Bear Down" on Squad in Last Week

EXHIBITION TILTS

Preston, Ont., Oct. 24 (CP) — Toronto's Maple Leafs settled down to business today. The occasional "fooling around" that cropped up during the National Hockey League champions' first week in training camp is a thing of the past for Coach Dick Irvin says "we really bear down from now on."

As the Leafs and Syracuse Stars, Toronto's International-American League farm team, skate into the second and final week of training, stars and rookies alike are battling for jobs. The roster of neither team yet has been selected and Irvin says it won't be until the end of the week.

Irvin "cracked down" on his hockey men and warned all must be in "splendid"—not just good — physical condition for the opening of the N.H.L. season Nov. 3 "or I'll know the reason why." However, he added "I've no complaints as to conditioning so far as it takes some of the older fellows more time to get into shape than the young bucks."

Among the "older fellows" Irvin places Harvey Jackson and Bill Thoms. "They aren't handling the puck well yet—but they will. Red Horner's still a little short on condition. Syl Apps and Gord Drillon are flying and Bingo Kampman, a much improved player, has eyes in the back of his head on defence".

The team practices here until Friday when they play an exhibition game in Owen Sound. A game will be played in Galt Saturday then the teams jump to Syracuse Sunday; Toronto, Monday and Midland, Tuesday, before opening the season against Boston Bruins at Toronto a week Thursday.

Tweed Rugby Team Wins 2nd Game From Stirling

Tweed—Tweed High School made it two straight wins over their smart Stirling High School rivals in an interscholastic rugby game at Tweed Agricultural Grounds on Friday afternoon, winning by a score of 16-6. The first quarter saw the visitors go into the lead by virtue of an onside kick by R. Richardson which resulted in a touch down. They were held scoreless by the locals until the third quarter when Richardson kicked a single point.

G. Wager, Luffman and Courneyea were the point-getters for Tweed, each crossing Stirling line for a major score, none of which were converted. Wager also kicked a single point.

The game was featured by Courneyea's running. He was away for big gains every time he got the ball. Wager made a nice job of his kicking and forward passing, with Porritt and Luffman tackling and catching well.

Pyear, Woods and Beckel were best for Stirling with the two Richardsons also doing some useful work.

It is unfortunate that these games do not start early enough to make it possible to conclude the games in daylight. During the last ten minutes players could not be distinguished.

Stirling—Bailey, snap; Lancaster and Brooks, insides; West and Martin, middles; Armstrong and McGowan, ends; R. Richardson, flying wing; Pyear, quarter-back; Woods and Beckel, halves; D. Richardson, full-back.

Tweed—G. Morrison, snap; Price and Hawes, insides; Elliott and Shannon, middles; Rivers and Bailey, ends; D. Porritt, flying-wing; G. Wager, quarter-back; Luffman and Cassidy, halves; A. Courneyea, full-back.

Officials, Messrs Etherington, Calnan and Wells.

BILL STEWART BACK AT HELM

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 24—(CP)—Bill Stewart, back from umpiring in the National Baseball League followed by a stay in hospital where they removed his appendix, today was in the thick of preparations to guide his Chicago Black Hawks —he hopes—to a second consecutive Stanley Cup.

He began his National Hockey League season last night by calling the players together for a discussion of the five rule changes made since last season.

It was agreed that the change in the penalty shot should result in more goals from that play. The rule now allows the player taking the shot to skate over the 30 foot line instead of coming to a dead stop.

Cobourg 'Galloping Ghosts' Easily Defeat Panthers 35-1 To Tie Kingston for Lead

Locals Could Offer No Defence for Their Well-Timed Plays

BREAK THRU LINE

Meikle Not Used Often but Dynamite When Put in Action

From the opening play, when they introduced a sneaker play for a substantial gain of yardage, the Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" lived up to their names as they speeded in all directions to down the Belleville Panthers 35 to 1 in their scheduled intermediate O. R. F. U. grid fixture in Belleville on Saturday.

With their star halfback, Gord Meikle, on the sidelines for the greater part of the day, Bagnell and Newton, former Upper Canada College star, virtually ran rough-shod over and around the youthful Panthers, while the punting of Johnnie Lucas left nothing to be desired in that department as the white-clad "Galloping Ghosts" moved into a tie for the group leadership with the Kingston Garrison as the result of Saturday's onesided victory.

Only twice during the game did Belleville advance the yardage sticks for gains and the Belleville lone tally came as the result of a rouge following Pat Blaker's second half kick off. Jacobs, Cobourg endman, made life miserable for the Panther backfielders as he repeatedly broke through the Panther line to smear the local ball carriers in their tracks.

On the initial scrimmage of the game Jacobs pulled that old football chestnut, "the sneaker play" and took a forward pass for 30 yards gain. Newton made yards twice and when Belleville held on their own 10 yard line, Johnnie Lucas was satisfied to kick for a singleton at the six minute mark.

A 30 Yard Gain

Bill McQuaid put the Panthers into the game with a forward pass to Cooper for a 30 yard gain, but Blaker's kick was short. Bagnell pivoted smartly through the Belleville line for the first major score of the piece at the ten minute mark. concluding the scoring for that period at 6 to 0. Newton carried the ball over for a touchdown on the very first play in the second quarter Lucas converting nicely. On the kick off Pat Blaker punted well over the Cobourg line, Cooper rouging Lucas for Belleville's lone point of the game, the score now being 12-1. A bad snap gave the ball to Cobourg on Belleville's 25 yard line, following which Lucas speeded around left end for a try, which was converted at the ten minute mark. Bagnell faded back to leap into the air and take an attempted Belleville forward pass on the gallop to run 40 yards for a touchdown making the count 23 to 1 at the half way mark.

Jacobs, accepting a forward pass on a "statue of liberty play," went over standing up for a touchdown, which was converted. Pat Blaker was literally robbed as Belleville marched up the field to Cobourg's 40 yard line and Blaker's attempted placement kick struck the cross bar for no score, as the ball bounced out into the playing field. It was a splendid effort. Pepper and McQuaid completed a forward pass as the period ended. Henderson went around right end for a touchdown in the last quarter, when the Panthers showed their best football, but could not score as the game ended 35 to 1.

3rd Defeat for Locals

Johnnie Lucas punted fine for Cobourg, with Bagnell, Newton, Jacobs, Begley and Meikle standing out for the winners. Coach Archie Duffield introduced several new youngsters into the pastime, these green youngsters showing class at times. Storey, Flagler, Cooper, Haffey and McKee carried much of the Panthers' brunt, however. It was the Belleville squads third defeat in as many starts.

The line-ups — Belleville — snap, Blaker; insides, V. Guay, Skelcher; middles, Flagler, Whalen; ends, Cooper, J. Haffey; quarter, McKee; halves, Pepper, Storey, McQuaid; flying wing, Grant; alternates, N. Guay, Knott, Burns and C. Haffey.

Referee — Pete Beach, Albert College.

Umpire — "Mike" Murphy of Cobourg.

REGINA DALES WIN TITLE

Regina, Oct. 24—(CP)— Regina Dales, Western Canada Junior Football Champions last year, won the Saskatchewan Junior title Saturday by swamping Moose Jaw Millers 18-1. Dales will meet the Winnipeg Junior League winners for the Western title.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

Living up to their heralded reputation as a squad of speedy gridiron stars, the Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" really galloped around Archie Duffield's youthful hopefuls on Saturday. The score of 35 to 1 about indicates the respective strength of the squads, as the white-sweatered Cobourg boys could surely get over the terra firma and post haste. We will be watching with interest the result of the Cobourg-Kingston Garrison game, however. The powerful 'army' team will give the lighter "Ghosts" a surprise as Bob Elliott's Garrison crowd really carry plenty of avoirdupois along their line of scrimmage and the "army" team knows how to use that extra weight, but we'll string along with the fleet-footed "Galloping Ghosts", however.

Coach Duffield has the nucleus of a good football squad if the fans will only support them for a year or two. Glancing over the Panthers' line-up of Saturday we find only four players on the complete Belleville roster of 18 men in uniform who are over 20 years of age. Taking this into consideration the green Belleville youngsters made a remarkable showing on Saturday. Coach Duffield is still looking for more grid-material, preferably teen-aged lads who have plenty of intestinal fortitude. It was a shame to see Pat Blaker's 40 yard placement hit the Cobourg cross bar of their goal and bounce back into the field for no count. Blaker's placement kicking isn't lacking any of its old exactness.

Belleville attempted an even dozen forward passes on Saturday, only three of which were completed. This part was not so bad, but the fact that the "Galloping Ghosts" intercepted four for substantial gains is actually what hurt. Cobourg only tried six forwards, but they successfuly completed all but two. Incidentally both Bagnell and Newton, Cobourg's speedy backfielders, are ten second men on the track and they surely showed plenty of speed on Saturday. Gord Meikle was not used, Johnnie Lucas doing a splendid job of punting for the winners.

The squads had to select two officials from the grandstand, when the O.R.F.U. arbiters failed to appear. Fortunately the squads got two good officials, but the O.R.F.U. should be taken to task for not assigning neutral officials as agreed upon by the Union and the clubs at the group meeting.

Harry "Red" Doran, former Belleville boy who has been playing hockey in the big leagues for some years past, was in Belleville over the week end enroute to Montreal. Harry was originally signed by Jack Adams' Detroit Red Wings, but last week the Montreal Canadiens purchased Doran's contract from Detroit. "I don't know what it's all about, Canadiens have six defencemen, but it makes little difference to me what uniform I wear, just so long as I'm playing hockey," was Doran's only comment on the move.

The annual meeting of the Central Ontario Baseball League in Peterboro on Saturday failed to bring about any developments. The meeting postponed its election of officers until the semi-annual gathering next spring. "In the meantime we are taking our troubles to the O.B.A. and seeking a possible fourth team through them. Kingston was present and will reorganize providing there are four clubs in the league" Secretary Newton Thompson told us today. The league is also going to try and place an amalgamated senior team between Cobourg and Port Hope in the loop.

Last week all of the football upsets were seen in the American leagues, while it remained to have the Canadian loops provide the upsets this week end. And what upsets they were. No person ever expected Peterboro to beat Sarnia. Incidentally Newt. Thompson, who saw the game, tells us the Orfuns played inspired ball to break through and smother the Imperials at every turn. "They were all over Sarnia," says Newt. That last minute Dick Merriwell Argo win over Ottawa was not in the dope book either.

With Jimmie Folwell punting superbly the Ontario Agriculture college gridders virtually cinched the intermediate Intercollegiate honors by taking Western 2nd. 21 to 13 on Saturday. Both Wally Hilton and "Bud" Johnston were on the sidelines for Western and Queen's respectively, only getting into the games occasionally. Hilton muffled on his own 27 on Saturday for a costly gain, however. It begins to look as though the old subsidies will have to be put back into operation, if Queen's is to return to its former lofty perch in the Intercollegiate Union.

Montreal is leading two of the big league football unions, the Montreal C.N.R. "Nationals" being undefeated in the senior O.R.F.U. while McGill has three wins in as many starts in the Intercollegiate with Argos leading the Interprovincial without a defeat. When the Peterboro Orfuns upset the dope bucket and beat Sarnia on Saturday it was the most profitable thing that could happen. Football is now sold at the Liftlock City.

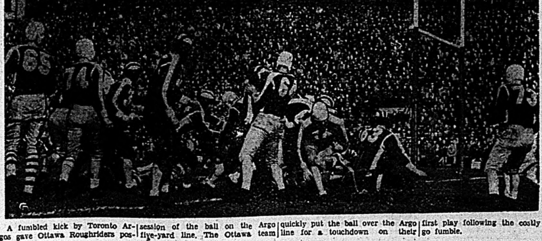
Roughriders Snare Ball on Argos Five Yard Line

Over 12,000 rugby-mad fans turned out for the classic game of the Eastern grid-iron circuit when Ottawa Roughriders met Toronto Argonauts in Toronto. Previous to the game both teams were undefeated. The Roughriders played hard, smashing rugby and capitalized on the cold weather to take advantage of Argo fumbles. Here we see the ball in the air as the Argo muffed a kick and gave Ottawa the ball on their five yard line. The next play saw the Roughriders carry the ball over the Argo line.

Roughriders Score Touchdown Against Argos



A fumbled kick by Toronto Argos gave Ottawa Roughriders possession of the ball on the Argo five-yard line. The Ottawa team quickly put the ball over the Argo line for a touchdown on their first play following the costly Argo fumble.

SNOW STORM IN THE MIDDLE WEST

Gales and Sub-Freezing Temperature Mark Winter Arrival

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP) — Snow, gales and sub-freezing temperature marked winter's arrival to portions of the Middle Western United States during the week-end.

Minnesota, Wisconsin and the upper Michigan peninsula felt the brunt of a storm that disrupted power and communication lines, impeded highway traffic and imperilled upper Great Lakes shipping.

The snow ranged from wisps in Chicago to eight inches at Ishpeming, Mich. Snowplows went into action on highways near the Wisconsin-Michigan border.

A power failure caused a temporary shutdown on Red Wing, Minn., factories. Phillips, Wis., was without power for twelve hours. Broken telephone and telegraph communication lines isolated several Wisconsin communities.

A 40-mile northwest gale churned Lakes Michigan and Superior. Michigan state ferry service at the Straits of Mackinac was suspended for a day.

TAKE-OFF FROM EGYPT

Oxford, England, Oct. 24 (C.P.-Havas) — Four Vickers-Wellesley bombing planes left Upper Heyford today for Egypt where they will take off on an attempt to set a new world record for a straight-line distance by a non-stop flight to Australia.

The planes will make the attempt in formation, under the orders of Wing Commander O. R. Gayford. The present record of 6300 miles was set by Russian fliers.

AERIAL BOMBING

of the Sandpaper.

The incident followed a Japanese warning to foreign vessels Saturday to withdraw from the Hankow area to avoid dangers of a massed aerial bombardment.

Japanese planes bombed Hankow rail centres all day Sunday and today's 20-miles advance brought Japanese naval forces to within twenty air miles of the China capital but the foreign warships remained at their Hankow anchorages.

British naval officers here doubted the bombing was accidental. (The Admiralty Office in London and the naval office in Tokyo early today had not received a formal report of the incident.)

A customs dispute arose over Japanese refusal to clear the Dollar Liner President Coolidge early today for San Francisco, with a cargo of silver valued at more than $4,000,000 which the Japanese-sponsored government apparently considered its property.

The Dollar Line agreed to unload the silver whereupon permission was granted to sail at 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Chinese customs officials on Sunday issued permits for exports of the silver and for departure of the Coolidge, and passengers took the tender to board her in midstream before Japanese officials cancelled the permits.

Clarence Grauss, United States Consul-General, was understood to have referred the matter to Washington.

The silver, loaded under United States Marine guard, was reported consigned to the Chase National Bank of New York.

The Japanese-sponsored government of Shanghai with the co-operation of Japanese military and naval authorities effected cancellation of the clearance papers.

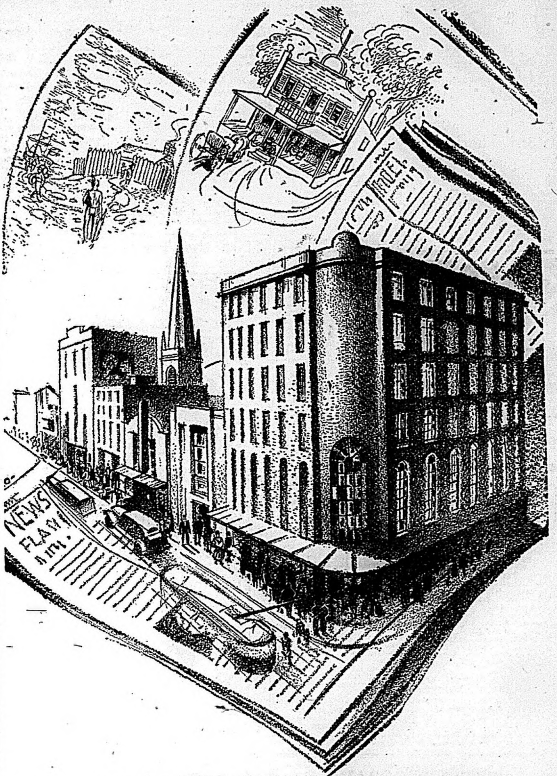
The President Coolidge was the first American passenger liner to call at Shanghai since the President Hoover was bombed during the Japanese siege of Shanghai in August, 1937.

(By J. F. Sanderson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 24.—(CP Cable)—Great Britain is expected to make a strong protest to the Japanese Government over the bombing of H.M.S. Sandpiper. A protest from British diplomatic officials in Shanghai probably will be backed up by another from London.

Reports of the incident are being studied by the Foreign office and the admiralty.

At the request of Japana the location of each British ship in Sino-Japanese war areas has been reported to the Japanese daily. In view of this the bombing of the Sandpiper has taken on added significance because the location of the ship was known to the Japanese naval authorities.



The Show Windows of the Nation

The merchants of Canada have played an important part in national development. They were in the vanguard of colonization; their business is the axis on which modern trade and commerce revolve.

Every merchant's progress and the value of his service to the community have depended at all times on his ability to keep prospective customers informed of the kind and quality of the goods he could supply. Advertising has been essential to the profitable conduct of his business.

The efficiency of the local daily newspapers as advertising media has been demonstrated more and more conclusively as markets have expanded and the variety of competitive goods has increased.

Today the most successful merchants are those who advertise their products consistently and frequently in their local newspapers. They know the newspapers maintain an intimate contact with every home and that every consumer depends on his daily newspaper for reliable information concerning goods and services available.

Consequently, the advertising columns of the Canadian daily newspapers have become, in a very real sense, the show windows of the nation. They influence the purchases of more than two million families every day.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP)—Prices held fairly close in today's session to the closing level of Saturday and the market lacked features aside from activity on some of the junior issues. Some of the golds, notably McIntyre and Pamour, were strong spots and in the base metals a point gain for Noranda was the chief adjustment. Western oils and industrials held steady in the average. Volume improved to show turnover of around 850,000 shares.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Buying interest centred on utilities, oils, aircrafts and specialties in today's stock market but profit taking restrained many recent leaders.

The ticker tape fell behind shortly after the opening as insistent offerings came into steels and motors. The pace slowed later, coincident with any attempt to rally the more depressed issues.

A substantial jump in this week's steel mill operating rate to the best level since last November helped steel stocks after noon but they were unable to hold and most were a shade in arrears near the final hour. Advances of fractions to a point or so, however, predominated. Transfers were about 1,800,000 shares.

PRODUCTION OF CARS INCREASES

Detroit, Oct. 24—(CP)— New shiny automobiles rolling off the assembly line in their hundreds of thousands, promise pay cheques for additional thousands of workers in the industry and its many associated businesses th's fall and winter.

Competent observers predicted almost 800,000 cars would be turned out before the end of this year, and foresaw a drive toward 4,000,000 output in 1939.

That would be car in exces of the output for the present calendar year. Since Jan. 1, approximately 1,650,000 1938 models have been produced. If the manufacturers succeed in turning out 800,000 1939 models by Dec. 31, the year's total would approximate 2,450,000 units.

Developments of the past week in the automobile industry caused Ward's reports, one of the leading trade publications, to boost earlier estimates of 1939 potent'al output to "between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 cars and trucks." Motorcar makers said Ward's "have been too conservative in gauging their market."

The developments have been:—

1. General Motors announced 35,000 workers would be added to its present payrolls by Nov 1, and salaries of those earning less than $300 a month would be raised in a move designed to restore levels attained before cuts were made last winter.

2. Chrysler Corporation similarly announced an increase in working personnel and cut-restoring wage increases.

3. Ford Motor Company will recall additional thousands, the number unspecified. It has been adding about 1,000 a week for the last month. Today the company exhibits its new models to newspapermen and trade journal representatives.

Butter, Egg Prices Steady

Toronto, Oct. 24—Former values prevailed for all lines during Saturday's short session of the local produce market.

Interest was definitely lacking on the butter market, and dealers reported prices nominally unchanged. Although trading has been comparatively light throughout the week, the demand was sufficient to keep offerings fairly well clear. The make is reported to be falling off noticeably, and no storage stocks have been offered for sale as yet on the open market. Saturday Ontario creamery solids were quoted at 22 3-4c for No. 1 grades, 22c for 38 score. Prints to the retail trade moved at the previous rates of 24 1-2c to 25c for top grades and 23 3-4c to 24 1-4c for 38 score.

Grade A-large were in best demand on a generally quiet egg market. Prices in all divisions maintained Friday's levels. Current supplies of top grades were still small. Grades B and C eggs were inclined to move more readily, and it is expected that these grades will show further improvement if the cooler weather continues. Mediums and pullets were draggy. Graded shipments were offered at 40c for grade A-large, 38 for medium, 29c for pullets, 26c to 27c for B's and 21c to 22c for C grades.

Montreal Prices Steady to Firmer

Montreal, Oct. 24 (CP)— Prices for eggs, butter and cheese generally were steady to firmer on Montreal open produce markets last week, according to reports from the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24c to 25c a pound, and creamery solids for 23 1-2c to 24 1-4c. Receipts: 14,641 boxes.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 42c a dozen for A-large, 40c for A-medium, 30 1-2c to 31c for A-pullets, 26c to 27c for B-large, and 20 1-2c to 21c for C. Receipts: 1,335 cases, including 2,737 for export.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

The market last week acted well and although some sections of the list tended to dullness, on the whole, stocks gave a good account of themselves. The liquor issues came in for attention and moved up on the very satisfactory earnings statements issued by Distillers-Seagrams and Hiram Walker. Despite the rise, these stocks are still available at above-average yields, and in the case of Hiram Walker, rumours of a three-for-one split were heard.

A considerable amount of interest was also evinced in the newsprint stocks, and the question of 1939 contract price was the paramount topic in boardrooms. It is believed that the companies are refraining from announcing next year's price as long as possible, as the industry's position is improving steadily and the longer an announcement is delayed the better possibility will exist for maintaining the $50 price. The consensus is that no change will be announced from the prevailing quotation on newsprint, which makes the outlook for the industry for next year distinctly promising, as a good pick up in production is anticipated as a result of the improved business conditions developing across the line.

Great Britain and France continue their rearmament programmes at a rapid pace and the United States will follow suit. Consequently, the demand for the materials going into the manufacture of such items as aeroplanes, war ships, munitions, etc. should prove beneficial to the Dominion with its large output of nickel, copper, lead and zinc. We can look forward to heavy demand for these metals for some considerable time to come.

The new shares of Laura Secord are being offered to the public on a "when as and if issued" basis to yield 5.5 percent. The new stock will be placed on a 20 cents annual dividend basis, equivalent to $4 on the stock as at present outstanding, against $3.00 presently in effect. In connection with the company it is pointed out that there are no bonds or preferred stock outstanding. The Company has a long and successful record of earnings and dividends. Goodwill is carried at $1.00. Net earnings of the company for the year ended September 30th, 1938, amounted to $232,916, compared with $213,562 in the previous year.

FOUND LOITERING ON ROOF OF STORE

Three Men Held for Vagrancy and Remanded in Custody

Found loitering upon the roof of McIntosh's Department store, Front St., three men who gave Montreal as their home address, were arrested by city police last evening. When apprehended the men attempted to relate a rather dubious story about seeking a place to sleep. They were crouched down behind the store skylight when found. Appearing before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., on nominal charges of vagrancy in today's local police court, the men gave their names as Tony Kulczycki 29, Fred Politick, 21, and Leon Bergeron, 21, all of Montreal. They were remanded in custody pending subsequent investigations.

While patrolling his beat last evening, Constable Wm. T. Evans found Bergeron loitering in a shed at the rear of McIntosh's store. When questioned by the officer Bergeron could not give a good account of his actions and was escorted to the police station and held in custody. Constable Evans became suspicious of the man's efforts to lure the police away from where he had been apprehended, which prompted Evans to secure assistance from P. C. Arnott and return to the scene. Mounting a hydro pole adjacent to the building the officers climbed to the roof of McIntosh's department store where a search revealed two other men in hiding. With drawn revolvers the officers ordered the men to come out and surrender. A subsequent search proved the men to be unarmed.

"What are you men doing here on this roof?" asked P. C. Evans.

"Oh, just looking for some place to sleep," replied the man who gave his name as Kulczycki.

"Better come down to the police station, I know the Desk Sergeant will be interested in that story," returned P. C. Arnott.

"This doesn't look like a roof garden, does it?" added P. C. Evans.

A check-up of the building under the direction of Mr. Jack McIntosh revealed that no entrance had been effected, however.

Police are seeking the possible records of the men, who are being held for further investigation.

4 CARS DAMAGED AFTER 2 COLLIDE

Miss Isabel Free, of City, Bruised and Shocked from Impact

Suffering bruises and severe shock, Miss Isabel Free, 22, of 257 Bleecker Avenue, was rushed to the office of Dr. R. S. Gibson this morning after being hurled from her coupe when it became involved in an accident at the corner of Pinnacle Street and Victoria Avenue, in which four automobiles were damaged.

Miss Free, a beauty parlor operator, was enroute to her work in Campbellford when the accident happened. A car driven by A. R. Swayne of Temagami, proceeding north on Pinnacle, had reached the intersection when the Free car came down the Victoria Avenue grade. The ensuing crash spun the Free car completely around to the east side of Pinnacle Street, hurling Miss Free through the door.

The force of the impact drove the Swayne car clear across the street where it crashed into a parked car, smashing headlights and denting fenders. This car, in turn was driven backwards into the front of another car parked behind it, causing damage to headlights and bumpers.

Both the Swayne and Free cars were badly damaged, with the former being towed from the scene of the accident.

Swayne told investigating Police Constable Peter Thomson, that he had stopped outside the Hydro building, and seeing no cars in sight had moved forward when the accident occurred.

Miss Free, who has owned her car for about a month, was on the verge of hysteria after her experience. Her father rushed to the scene and escorted his daughter to the office of Dr. Gibson where the extent of her injuries was ascertained.

THEBAUD LEADS IN FOURTH RACE

In Spanking Breeze American Boat Forges Ahead on Windward Leg

By TOM HORGAN

Boston, Oct. 24 (AP)—The Gertrude L. Thebaud, American challenger for the international fishermen's trophy, wrested the lead from the Canadian defender Bluenose today, after trailing by four lengths at the first turn in the fourth race of the series.

The challenger showed surprising speed in working to windward when they first tacked and Bluenose fell about four lengths under Thebaud, an hour and ten minutes after the race started.

It was real fishermen's weather with decks awash and with spray flying from one end to the other aboard the competing vessels.

Bluenose rounded the buoy of Newcomb's Ledge, nine miles from the starting line, at 10:46.339 a.m. and Thebaud followed at 10:47.05. The vessels then began a 12-mile beat to windward.

A brisk southeasterly wind pushed the schooners along. Thebaud was first across the starting line but Bluenose, well to windward, soon took the lead. The Canadian ship leads in the series, two to one.

Police Asked To Solve Mystery Of Missing Groom

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 24.—(CP)— Walter Trealont of Windsor asked Windsor police aid today to solve the mystery of the missing bridegroom, who failed to appear at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to marry Trealmont's daughter, Ruth Trealmont.

Trealmont told Police George Warman, a Canadian oil tanker employee, had visited Ruth Trealmont every time his boat visited Windsor throughout the summer. Recently he sent her a $41 money order to pay her expenses to Sault Ste. Marie where, Trealmont said, Warman was to marry Ruth.

She went there but was unable to find Warman. She wired home yesterday saying she was stranded there without funds, and requested assistance to return to Windsor.

FISHERMEN RESET NETS FOR WHITEFISH

Local fishermen, encouraged by the present turn of weather for the worse, have again taken heart and returned to their labors in the distant reaches of the Bay of Quinte where they have for some time past been carrying on their profession without paying expenses. Many of them duing the spell of fine weather last week had "pulled" their nets waiting for colder or more unsettled weather. Reports of but one and two fish taken for a whole day's work were common daily

Bay fishing started earlier this year following reports that the whitefish were shoaling in from deep water. But with the advent of warmer weather the whitefish returned to the lake. "Something I've never seen them do before" stated one veteran fisherman.

DONALD GREGORY CAUGHT IN HOME

Charged with Breaking Entry and Theft, on Remand Till Friday

Returning home to find persons prowling about inside, Wm. J. Simpson, 31 Burton Street, summoned assistance from neighbours, who surrounded the house, while police were notifield on Saturday night. Held prisoner in the darkened house by excited residents, Donald Gregory, Belleville, was later arrested by Constable Wm. T. Evans who entered the house with drawn revolver to make the arrest.

Gregory appeared in today's local police court charged with breaking and entering two houses in that vicinity. "I understand this boy is wanted at Bowmanville," revealed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., who asked for a week's enlargement in the matter today.

Upon the arrival of P. C. Evans to Burton Street on Saturday night, the officer was informed, that some person was inside No. 31, as rays from a flashlight were seen. Being given a key, the constable entered the home and at the point of a gun ordered the prowler to raise his hands. "He came out with both hands in the air, approaching me from the stairway," added Constable Evans.

A search revealed $2.75 had been stolen from a bureau drawer. Police stated today that Gregory had been sentenced to a boys' training school at Bowmanville some months ago after being convicted in a local Juvenile Court upon charges of breaking, entering and theft.

POLICE COURT

When Albert Richer, transient, appeared in Magistrate E. J. Butler's local police court today charged with vagrancy, the charge was withdrawn, as Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K. C., preferred a greater one. Richer was again remanded, but this time on a charge of retaining in his possession certain goods, to wit a quantity of cigarettes, knowing the same to be stolen. Richer pleaded not guilty, but was remanded for one week at the request of Chief Kidd.

Four youths, all residents from outside of the city, appeared charged with disorderly conduct and engaging in a fight, which took place on October 15th in Maraskas Billiard rooms on Front St. The quartette was convicted and assessed two dollars and costs in all but one case. Ernest Lucas, 19, Thurlow, Edward Callaghan, 22, Tyendinaga, C. Clapp, 28, Thurlow, all paid the maximum fine and costs levied, while Douglas Marshall, 26, Thurlow, pleaded guilty and was assessed a lesser amount. A fifth charge was withdrawn.

"I understand there are rival gangs meeting in these places and causing disturbances," stated Crown Attorney B.C. Donnan K.C. His Worship cautioned the men regarding such practices. "You had better stay away from these places", warned the Bench.

John Fitzgerald, 27 of Milltown, was convicted of keeping a common gaming house, a charge preferred by Provincial Police following the finding of a slot machine, which dispensed slugs, contrary to the Canadian Criminal Code. "The finding of the machine is prima facie evidence under the new amendments," prompted Mr. Donnan.

Fitzgerald was ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings and the slot machine was ordered confiscated by His Worship. There was no fine levied today, however.

BOYS WIN HONOR TO REPRESENT ONTARIO JUDGING AT FAIR

As a result of signal victories at the Ontario Boys' Interclub competitions held at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph on Friday last, Stuart Uens Napanee, and Walter Thurlow Odessa, representing the junior farmers' team of Lennox-Addington counties, will represent the Province of Ontario at the dairy cattle judging at the Royal Winter Fair this year, Toronto.

A total of 266 boys fom 36 counties of the Province took part in the Guelph competition on Friday.

Others from this district who were declared winners on points were Lynn Perry and Gordon Walsh, of Napanee, while Arthur McDonnell, Stirling was third high man in the foal club competition.

In the individual judging of dairy cattle, Walter Thurlow, Napanee was second, and Grant Carman, Picton, placed third.

KINGSTON POLICEMEN TO STUDY SYSTEM OF U. S. "G-MEN"

For the purpose of studying various phases of police work, Inspector Andrew Ready, and Constable Earl McCheyne of the Kingston Police Force, will spend one week of their annual holiday period at Washington, D.C., where they will study tactics of the "G-Men" in fingerprinting, photography and the latest methods of scientific crime detecting.

$100,000 FIRE AT LUMBER MILL

750,000 Feet of Green Lumber and Number of Railway Cars Burned

Rutter, Ont., Oct. 24 (CP) — Residents of this village 30 miles south of Sudbury today viewed the ruins left by a fire that caused damage estimated at more than $100,000. The blaze early Sunday destroyed more than 750,000 feet of green lumber, two box cars, five flat cars, 2000 railway ties and a quantity of creosoted culvert timber.

Only a few days before, pumping equipment of the Ontario Forestry Branch had been withdrawn after being in service during the summer season. A fire pump was brought from Sudbury but the fire had caused its greatest damage before the necessary half-mile of hose could be laid.

Believe Fire Incendiary

Owners of the lumber were Hill, Clark and Francis, Ltd., Sudbury contracting firm. A. Rancourt, who held a contract for hauling and piling most of the lumber, said he thought the fire was incendiary. "I believe the fire was set," he said.

"The fire was first seen at the northeast corner of lumber," he added, "in just the right direction for the wind to blow the flames over the entire yard and sweep it clean."

Canadian Pacific telegraph communications were disrupted for about three hours and railway traffic was delayed for the same period. The ties and box cars were owned by the C.P.R. Six empty box cars were towed out of danger as were three carloads of ties.

Motorist Dozes Car Now a Wreck

Crashing through culverts to the lawn of a farmhouse a short distance south of where the Massassaga road joins the Belleville-Picton Highway, a car driven by Charles Jamieson, Picton, said to have gotten suddenly out of control, was seriously damaged shortly after midnight Saturday.

Jamieson, thought to have been seriously inured, was rushed by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital, but subsequent X-ray examination revealed a lacerated left eye and bruises. He was allowed to go home yesterday morning, following treatment by Dr. Ralph Bird of this city.

Jamieson was alone at the time of the accident and stated to investigating office Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien that he must have fallen asleep and lost control of the car.

The car left the highway, ploughed through a culvert into a ditch and came to rest a near-wreck on the lawn of a farmer named Way.

Investigation of the accident is being proceeded with, Provincial Police stated yesterday.

Boat Capsizes, Father Rescued by Son

While his father clung to an overturned motor boat, Norman Seward, Brighton, swam fully clothed through the rough water a distance of over a half mile, returned with a row boat and rescued him.

When the outboard motor boat in which Fred Seward and his son were cruising in Lake Ontario just off Lakeshore Beach, southeast of Brighton, the boat proved incapable of supporting both men while it drifted further from shore. Norman immediately set out for land and after a hard battle against the cold and the waves, succeeded in reaching the beach, secured a small rowboat and set off to tow the capsized boat.

Witness to the near tragedy, but unaware of it, was E. A. Simmons, of Trenton, whose summer home is near the shore. He observed the youth wading to shore and securing the boat; but thought it was a duck hunter who went into the water to secure a bird.

JUNIOR FARMERS WIN JUDGING AWARDS

At the annual livestock judging competition for junior farmers of Northumberland County held at Coldsprings on Friday, Herbert Hendey, Campbellford, was awarded the Canadian National Shield for high points. The Canada Rex Spray Company trophy was won by Herbert Stillman, also of Campbellford. Twenty-seven junior boys and one senior took part in the event. Included in the judges were A. J. Dalrymple, Picton, for dairy cattle, and H. L. Fair, Hastings County Agricultural Representative, for swine classes. C. W. Buchanan, Napanee, judged in the sheep division.

new regime would be aided and that all post-war dealings would be conducted with that regime.

Must Co-operate.

"China must co-operate with Japan and Manchoukuo (Japan's Manchurian protectorate) by eradicating Communist ideas and abolishing the old policy of pitting one barbarian (foreigner) against another,' the statement declared .

"To attain this objective it is necessary to convert the Chinese masses to pro-Japanese and anti-Communism."

Japan's intention that her sphere of domination shall cover North China, Central China, South China and Inner Mongolia was indicated in the statement.

"Japan intends to assist the organization of a joint committee linking the Peiping and Nanking governments (Japanese dominated regimes) and between the autonomous government of Inner Mongolia and other influences."

Prolonged Occupation.

The declaration said this assistance would be furthered by the presence of Japanese troops.

"Prolonged stationing of Japanese troops in China will be necessitated for ensuring peace and order," it added.

China must contribute to world peace by "establishing guarantees against recurrence of the China incident," the statement concluded. "The China incident" is the Japanese term for the 15-months-old war.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation

OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

ing. Hundreds of Chinese beggars looted shops, especially rice stores. A few corpses of looters were seen in the streetst their heads smashed.

Only a small force of Japanese, estimated at 1,500, had reached the city. The Japanese commander told the British Consul Chinese looting would be checked with the arrival of reinforcements.

Attack in Progress

Foreign advices indicated, meanwhile that the Japanese attack along the Canton River south of here still was in progress. Though it was believed Japanese soon would blast their way through the Bocca Tigris forts.

A tremendous naval armada was reported forcing its way up the river, aerial observation indicating as many as 150 vessels were participating in the drive.

Once the river is clear, the Japanese can land their main forces at Canton and continue their inland invasion. One column was reported by Japanese sources already to be advancing up the Canton-Hankow railway unopposed.

Only one Chinese soldier was seen in Canton. He was a prisoner, peacefully eating rice among the enemy troops with his face swathed in bandages.

Fires Started by Chinese

There was evidence the fires were being started by Chinese soldiers, who took off their uniforms to apply China's "scorched earth" policy which may give the Japanese a heap of ashes instead of a city.

It was reported thousands of these soldiers were swarming, disorganized and desperate, through the innumerable waterways of the Canton River delta, confiscating junks and sampans and commandeering food while the countryside was in panic under constant Japanese aerial bombardments.

The shifting flames brought relief to exhausted foreigners on Shameen Island where for 24 hours shirtless volunteers, including businessmen, naval officer and clerks, worked in relays against falling sparks and small fires.

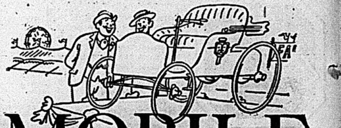
Comment on Fall

(The Hong Kong Telegraph, commenting on the fall of Canton, said it was too early to state definitely that "traitors were involved although in view of the circumstances there seems to be no other explanation."

("Never in its centuries of history," the editorial continued, "has Kwangtung's capital fallen to an invading army with such ridiculous ease and the only logical conclusion, that can be reached is that silver has been used in the greatest betrayal the world has known for 19 centuries."

(Dispatches from Hong Kong said the departure of Sir Archibald Kerr, British Ambassador, for Chungking, Chinese capital, has checked rumors he might act as mediator in the conflict, but Hong Kong newspapers continued some sort of peace negotiations to give attention to rumors that were under way).

The Story of OD and AD and the AUTOMOBILE



OD and AD were machinists many years ago. One day, at a fair, they saw a buggy with an engine in it. They saw many ways to improve it, and each decided to build an automobile. But when it came time to sell their first cars, OD and AD had different ideas.

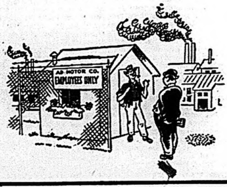
How OD Tried to Sell His First Automobile

OD invited all his friends and neighbors to his house. He drove his automobile around the block and gave them a ride. They were thrilled. They wanted to buy it. But when they learned that it cost $3,000, not one of OD's friends could pay such a high price.

How OD Finally Sold a Car

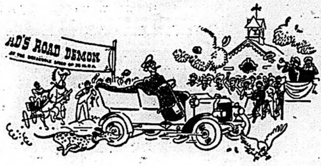
OD heard that AD had sold ten cars, so he decided to try again. When his second car was finished, it had cost him almost as much as the first. He showed it to as many people as he could see and after a long time sold it for just about what it had cost him. In the next five years OD built several more automobiles, but always by the time his cars were finished AD was making better cars for lower prices.

Why OD Gave Up Trying to Sell Automobiles



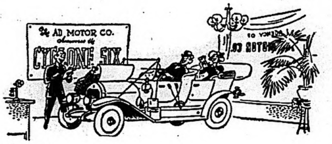
OD now saw that he could not possibly make cars at low cost by building only a few each year. Nor could he sell enough to make more by telling people about them one at a time. So he decided to go back to work as a mechanic. He applied at AD's factory and was promptly employed.

How AD Sold 10 Automobiles



AD had also spent nearly $3,000 in building his first car. He knew that only a few people could afford so high a price, and to find them he must show his car to a great many. So he advertised that he would demonstrate his car the following Saturday afternoon. People came from miles around. AD ran his car up and down the street. Afterward, ten men wanted it. AD told them that by making ten cars he could cut costs and reduce his price to $2,500. So he hired several men, rented a building, and started making more and better automobiles.

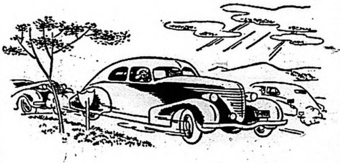
How AD Sold 10,000 Automobiles



AD decided that if he could make cars by the hundreds, he could lower the cost and add still more improvements. So he appointed agents and advertised in other cities. In this way he was able to tell the story of his car to thousands and thousands of people neither he nor his agents had ever seen. The more agents he appointed, and the more he advertised, the more people came in to try his car, and the more cars he sold. And the more cars he built, the better he built them, and the less they cost.

By 1911, AD was making such a good car for $1,500 that he sold 10,000 that year.

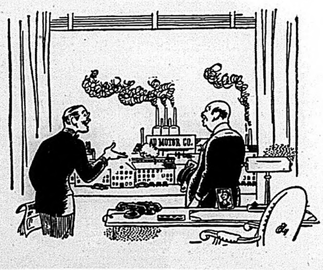
How AD Sold Millions of Automobiles



AD now realized that there were millions of people who would buy his automobiles if the prices were only lower. He also knew that if he could build hundreds of thousands of cars a year, he could make them better and at less cost. So he enlarged his factory, employed more men, and advertised to millions of people all over the country. By 1921, he was making a fine-looking car with a six-cylinder motor and a self-starter. And the price had been reduced to $1,000.

AD's profit per car was now very small. But he sold so many cars that his business was successful. And, as prices became lower and lower, millions of people who had never dreamed they could afford automobiles were able to own and enjoy them.

By 1938, AD was making the best and finest looking car he had ever built—and the price was only $750.



AD Tells OD How It Came About That So Many Families Now Have Automobiles

One day OD went into AD's office at the factory. OD said, "Remember the time we saw the horseless carriage at the fair? Who would have believed that in 30 years almost every family would have an automobile!"

AD said, "It never would have been possible without advertising. All the advances in manufacturing would have been futile without advertising to tell the story. As it helped us to sell more and more cars, we were able to make them still better and sell them at lower prices. As a result, the advantages of an automobile are now enjoyed by people of small means just as they are by the well-to-do."

"But you spend millions for advertising," said OD.

"Yes," said AD. "But we sell so many cars that our advertising costs only about $15 per car. That is not much when you remember that in 30 years the average price of a car has been reduced by more than $1,500. So, advertising has really helped to reduce prices and year after year has helped make it possible for millions of people to have better cars for less money."

NEWS ODDITIES AND BRIEFS

BABY CLOTHES STOLEN

Richmond, Va., Oct. 25 AP)—Police are looking for a suspect in three-cornered pants on whom to pin the guilt as an accessory in their latest puzzle—the "diaper case." Wesley Underhill of Petersburg reported the theft. He said 16 pairs of diapers and three baby dresses were taken from his automobile.

THIEF AIDS DETECTIVE IN SOLVING ROBBERIES

Detroit, Oct. 25 (CP)— Albert Sage probably should be rated the most obliging thief in the United States.

Detective Walter Clinton, assigned to a series of robberies and hold-ups, was puzzling over them as he drank coffee in a cafe at 4 a.m. Sage came in, Clinton said, and tried to hold-up the cafe. Clinton arrested him. Clinton gleefully related that Sage confessed 16 other thefts, many included in the list he was investigating.

SHOULD BE EASY WORK

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP)—Add to the list of duties the hired man must perform—looking after his employer. In court here a man said he took his hired man along to drive the car so that he could drink and have somebody to take care of him. "He gets paid for it."

SQUIRREL WORKS FOOD ROUTE

Fort Erie, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP)—A pet squirrel which lives in the woods, but comes to town every day is attracting a lot of attention here. He calls at different homes and where he has once been given hospitality, he never forgets to call back. Consequently he has developed a route throughout the town and is as consistent as the milkman.

Why the Weather?

Climate and skin color! The color of the skin is due probably to climate and other factors, although never fully explained. The American Indian and the Eskimo are as dark as the Arab who lives in a warm, sunny climate. The American Indian of the tropics is no darker than the Fuegian who lives on the cold Patagonian steppes. The Tasmanian is a sooty black, while the Malay is a yellow-brown, and both live under practically the same conditions of sunshine. Hindoos of Caucasian ancestry have become dark, while races of European branch have become white. It seems that color is the outcome of several environmental factors: climate, soil, diet, pursuits, and inherited character.

THE WEATHER

WEATHER N NN Osuishh?ath ONE

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP)—A deep disturbance is centred to the northward of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. with a pronounced trough extending southward across Nova Scotia, and pressure is also quite low to the northward of the western provinces, but relatively high over the greater part of the United States. The weather has been fair and comparatively mild in the Prairie Provinces but rather cool over Eastern Canada, with showers occurring in Ontario and Quebec and heavy rains, accompanied by strong winds and gales, over the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Maritime Provinces.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh westerly winds; fair. Wednesday, fresh to strong southwest to northwest winds; partly cloudy.

Manitoba—Fresh to strong winds, shifting to west and northwest; partly cloudy. Wednesday, fresh or strong westerly winds; fair; not much change in temperature.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Fair today and Wednesday; not much change in temperature; strong west and northwest winds today, decreasing on Wednesday.

CHINA METROPOLIS BEING ABANDONED WITH NO DEFENCE

Motorized Column Which Took Hwangpei, First to Enter City

RAILWAY LINE CUT

General and Madame Chiang Kai-Shek said to Have Left City

Shanghai, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Japanese army and navy commands tonight announced their forces had entered Hankow, China's provisional capital, abandoned by its defenders.

Although details were lacking, the Japanese officers said units of both services had participated in the capture of the great city on the middle Yangtse river, major goal of the Japanese conquest since Nanking fell nearly 11 months ago.

The first detachment to enter apparently was an infantry column which previously captured Hwangpei, 20 miles to the north, and then drove rapidly down the Peiping-Hankow Railway.

Domei (Japanese) News Agency dispatches arriving here were being dated "With the Japanese army in the suburbs of Hankow". Japanese dispatches also announced the capture of Kotein, 20 miles downriver from Hankow. Columns on land last night reached Yanglo, a Yangtse town 12½ miles away.

Bombing Fleets Active.

Simultaneously Japanese bombing fleets ranged across the area southwest of Hankow into which the Chinese are retreating. They reported cutting the Canton-Hankow railway about 100 miles south of Hankow and destroying two important railway bridges north of Yochow.

According to Domei, the final stages of the advance have been so rapid large contingents of Chinese troops have been hopelessly cut off in the sector northeast of Hankow. One report said as many as 30 Chinese divisions had been trapped and faced annihilation.

On the Yangtse front, the Japanese reported retreat of the Chinese troops that have been fighting an unsupported battle there. Airmen said that as many as 3,000 soldier-laden junks were proceeding upriver towards Hankow.

Clearing Up River.

Japanese warships were busy clearing the river of floating mines and naval authorities hoped to keep pace with the land forces as Hankow is occupied.

Dispatches from Hankow said complete occupation of the central China metropolis was expected within 48 hours.

General Chiang Kai-Shek and Mme. Chiang were understood to have left the city

Dispatches from the fallen capital reported thousands of Chinese fled on foot westward and southward as Japanese troops approached. At the river's edge junks and other craft were weighted down with refugees seeking safety in the upper reaches

BALANCE OF POWER IN CENTRAL EUROPE IS HELD BY POLAND

Germany at Present Holds Friendship of that Nation

AGAINST FRANCE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Warsaw, Oct. 25 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler sets out on his campaign for economic and political dominance over central Europe and the Balkans with the great asset of Polish friendship, albeit this is tempered with a highly independent attitude of watchfulness.

This is of vital importance to the Fuehrer for Poland is a force to be reckoned with, especially since many military experts figure that she holds the balance of power between Germany and Russia.

Poland had been leaning away from France and towards Germany for some five years with intervening periods of rather hard feelings between Warsaw and Berlin.

Munich Pact Caused Change.

During that time Paris worked hard to win the Poles back. The Franco-British acceptance of the German demand for annexation of Czechoslovakia territories made the scale hit the floor in favor of Germany.

The Polish people as a whole thought that France should have backed up Czechoslovakia. They held that Czechoslovakia would have adopted different policies long ago had she known that France wouldn't fight.

In explanation of their having demanded and obtained a part of Silesia from Czechoslovakia the Poles say they intervened only after the partition of Czechoslovakia had been determined upon. Warsaw admits to being practical.

Turnover In Sentiment.

These events represented a turnover in sentiment, for despite the ostensibly friendly atmosphere of the past few years, there really never has been any love lost between the Germans and the Poles. There is a history of centuries of conflict between the two peoples, and the Poles decline to forget a lot of things, including the three years of German occupation during the great war.

The Polish turn-away from France started in 1933 when Marshal Pilsudski, the benevolent dictator, is said to have advised his friends, the

Break-up of Czechoslovakia Lesser Evil Than War—Halifax

To Reach True Peace We Must Pass Through Armed Peace, Claim

RETAIN OLD FRIENDS

Edinburgh, Oct. 25 (CP)—True world peace may only be attained through a preparatory ordeal of "armed peace", Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, said here last night in explanation of Great Britain's accelerated rearmament program.

Lord Halifax, making his first statement outside parliament since the Munich accord, defended the dismemberment of Czchoslovakia as a lesser evil than a disastrous European war which could not have saved Czechoslovakia from loss of manpower and resources—losses far greater than those she had to accept without war.

A reference he made to the general desire of the British public to "see the state make a greater call upon the services of individuals" was linked by observers with reports the government planned to create some sort of national service register of available strength.

Ship's Cat Saved By Captain of Foundering Ship

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Story of a ship's cat saved by the captain, who popped it into a laundry bag and dived into the sea from a blazing schooner, was disclosed today when the rescued crew of the Pioneer arrived on the liner American Banker.

The Pioneer, a Gloucester schooner, owned by Captain Hans Milton, rocked helplessly for three days 400 miles off Halifax after last month's hurricane, and finally foundered.

With the ship taking water, the crew soaked blankets in gasoline, ignited them and ran them to the top of the mast. The schooner caught fire, and was burning brightly when the American Banker hove to on Oct. 2 and rescued the crew of five.

The last man off was Captain Milton, who dived with the cat and the ship's sextant.

HUNGARIAN GOV'T CUTS DEMANDS BY ALMOST 30 P.C.

Pressure by Three Powers Inspired Moderation of Demands

PRAGUE MIGHT REFUSE

Premier Imredi Ready to Enforce Justice by all Means Available

Budapest, Oct. 25 (AP)—Diplomatic circles said today that pressure by Germany, Italy and Poland inspired the moderation of Hungarian demands in a new offer to Czechoslovakia to compromise their territorial quarrel.

The Hungarian government cut its territorial demands by about 30 per cent in a note which the Prague government was requested to answer by tomorrow.

Premier Bela Imredi in a press statement termed the proposals "really conciliatory".

This friendlier attitude developed, diplomatic informants understood, upon the strong advice of the three governments to avoid pressing demands upon Czechoslovakia that would endanger peace.

Until yesterday Hungary had refused to decrease demands for large areas of Czechoslovakia inhabited by Magyars. The demands developed with the Munich accord of Oct. 1 by which Germany took over Czechoslovak Sudetenland. Czechoslovakia held the Hungarian proposals to be excessive.

FAILED TO GIVE CORRECT POSITION

Japanese Officials Make This Claim With Regard to Protest

Tokyo, Oct. 25 (AP)—Japanese Imperial headquarters indicated today that the British gunboat Sandpiper, damaged by Japanese bombs at Changsha yesterday, had failed to give her correct location.

"According to a British communication received just prior to departure of Japanese planes, the Sandpiper was moored about 500 metres (1,640 feet) downstream from the Hankow custom house instead of at Changsha," said the communique. Changsha is 200 miles southwest of Hankow.

The communique said shell fragments presumably hit the Sandpiper accidentally, explaining that "at 10 a.m. Monday six Japanese naval planes bombed many Chinese junks with troops aboard. Therefore, it is presumed fragments of shells may have damaged the British vessel."

LONDONERS GROPE ABOUT IN FOG

Six Greyhound Dogs Become Lost, While Racing on Track

London, Oct. 25 (CP)—Londoners groped their way to work today in fog so thick that even dogs got lost.

Road, rail, sea and air traffic was slowed to a crawl or stopped in grimy darkness that enveloped a 40-mile circle around the capital.

Six greyhounds racing at the North London track lost their way on a far curve and kennel boys had to go out to find them.

Five persons were killed in 24 hours as a direct result of the fog. Three of them were motorcyclists and the other two a young married couple from Birmingham who fell into a canal and were drowned.

Special regulations for controlling rail and highway traffic in time of fog were enforced. Trains arriving in London were several hours late.

Bucharest, Oct. 25 (AP)—Six army and aviation officers died today in storms that raged over Rumania and the Black Sea. Admiral Konstantin Negru, commander of the Naval Aviation Department, was reported drowned with two other officers when a seaplane collapsed after a forced landing on Lake Siutghiol.

TORONTO ACTRESS FOUND INJURED NEAR HER HOME

Margaret Bannerman is Noted Player in London England

LEASHES TRIP HER

Her Three Dogs Found with Her Near Her Residence

London, Oct. 25 (CP)—Mytsery concerning the injuries suffered by Margaret Bannerman, Canadian actress, in an accident last night was cleared up today when she regained consciousness.

It was explained the leads of her boisterous Great Dane and Alsation crossed while she was exercising them, causing her to trip. She fell headlong over one of the dogs and slid down a steep pathway.

Her face was badly bruised and her front teeth driven through her upper lip. Plastic surgeons hope to be able to remove the disfigurement and say she will be out of hospital in a fortnight.

Miss Bannerman was found last night in a semi-conscious state near her residence. With her were her three dogs. She was taken to the offices of Dr. A. E. Martin.

Operation About Mouth.

Dr. Martin took her to the clinic where an operation was performed about the mouth. Her front teeth had been knocked in and broken and her lips were badly cut.

The possibility she was attacked by foot-pads was at once discounted when her hand-bag was untouched. The absence of bruises on her body also dispelled the belief she might have been struck by a hit-and-run driver

Made Debut In 1915.

Miss Bannerman, who is 42, made her stage debut in London in 1915 as "Julia" in "Tina". Since then she has appeared in at least one London production every season. Among her most notable successes were "Alatiel" in "Decameron Nights", 1922; "Lacy George Grayston" in "Our Betters in 1923 and more recently as "Lady Dare Bellington" in "Conflict", 1933.

H. FORD PAINTS BRIGHT PICTURE

By DAVID J. WILKIE

Detroit, Oct. 25 (AP)—Henry Ford painted a bright picture of the business outlook in an interview yesterday, predicting a prosperous 1939 and expressing the belief there would be no major European war.

"The people have come to their senses and realize the futility of war," was his comment on threats of armed conflict in Europe.

Business, he said, already is on the upgrade and "distinctly better times are on the way."

"Next year," he said, "will be all right."

He cited "better feeling among the public generally" in support of his forecast.

Tired of 'Isms'.

"People are tired of the many 'isms' that have developed in the last few years," he said. "They are getting back to work, and work spells prosperity."

Lyle Talbot, Handsome Star, Leaps to Safety From Fire

Talbot's House Guest Franklin Parker, Also Escapes

HOUSE BURNED

Beverly Hills, Calif., Oct. 25 (AP)—Trapped by fire on the second floor of his pretentious home here, Lyle Talbot, handsome leading man of the films ,and his house guest, Franklin Parker, also an actor, leaped to safety early today.

They suffered serious burns.

Talbot's hair was burned from his scalp and Parker's back was severely burned. The house was nearly destroyed after the pair made their twenty-foot leap. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Police theorized it may have been started by a burning cigarette, left in the living room.

Togoland, Cameroons, Southwest Africa and Tanganyika Mentioned

Germany Reported Willing to Accept Other Area for Two of Them

GOERING'S MESSAGE

South Africa Reported Offered to Return to Germany

By PAUL-LOUIS BRET

London, Oct. 25 (CP-Havas)—Informed Conservative circles today said Field Marshal Hermann Goering has sent a "semi-official" memorandum to the Marquess of Londonderry containing Germany's views on its former coloniel empire. The memorandum was said to have stressed the following five points:

1. The German government, while fixing no specific date for satisfaction of its colonial demands, is not disposed to wait indefinitely inasmuch as the colonies were fraudulently taken from her and must be restored.
2. The Reich expects the British Empire, France and Belgium to return such African colonies such as Togoland, the Cameroons, Southwest Africa and Tanganyika.
3. The Reich would be disposed to accept in place of Southwest Africa and Tanganyika other colonial compensation in Africa provided the territory be equal in size and value and would comprise a single and unbroken geographical unit.
4. In exchange for Southwest Africa, including Ruanda-Urandi (former would be disposed to accept a part of the Belgian Congo and Portuguese Angola, enabling it to set up a German African colony adjacent to the Belgian territory there.
5. Germany would accept no restriction of its right to establish air, military and naval bases in these colonies as long as other nations refused to accept similar limitations.

Pirow To Visit Berlin.

Confirmation of the terms of the memorandum from Field Marshal Goering to Lord Londonderry was impossible inasmuch as it concerns a communication between personal friends.

Lord Londonderry is perhaps the foremost exponent of Anglo-German friendship and is a close friend of several of the German leaders, particularly of Joachim von Ribbentrop, the foreign minister.

It is reported a compromise settlement may be offered Chancellor Hitler when the South African Defence Minister, Oswald Pirow, visits Berlin in mid-November.

South Africa, as it has indicated on numerous occasions, is firmly opposed to the return of former German Southwest Africa or Tanganyika. Well-informed sources here said, however, that South Africa would be willing to discuss extension to Germany of an international mandate over a part of central Africa, including Ruanda-Urundi formerly part of German East Africa and now Belgian), and possibly a portion of the Belgian Congo and Portuguese East Africa, a small slice of Tanganyika, and Togoland and the Cameroons.

MAGIC SPRAY IS ANNOUNCED

Larger Flowers and New Hybrids Are Possible

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Chapel Hill, N.C., Oct. 25 (AP)—A "magic" new spray which grows larger flowers was announced to the United States Academy of Sciences here today.

The bigger flowers are only one of the spectacular results of spraying this mixture on plants. It also makes possible new hybrids—that is, crosses in breeding plants—realizing a long sought goal of agricultural scientists.

The spray is an emulsion of oil, mixed with colchicine, a standard medical remedy for gout for nearly 2,000 years. Colchicine is extracted from meadow saffron.

Heredity Governed

One year ago Dr. Albert F. Blakeslee, of the Carnegie Institution of Washington's station for experimental evolution at Cold Spring Harbor, New York, announced to the academy discovery that colchicine would cause strange changes in plants. It doubled their chromosomes, and the substances that govern heredity.

Since then the oil spray has been developed as a means of applying the colchicine and Dr. Blakeslee with E. W. Sinnott and H. E. Warmke, reported today the first practical results, obtained on more than forty species of plants.

Effects of Spraying.

The oil holds the colchicine on the plant tissues until it can penetrate. Buds or young stems are sprayed. On the sprayed parts the leaves become a deeper green. Fruits become shorter and stouter.

The flowers grow larger. In some species this bigness of blossom is so great—sometimes 25 per cent—that the spraying has immediate commercial value for floriculturists.

With spray Dr. Sinnott has produced a series of gourds and squashes unlike anything previously known. A bottle-neck squash has lost its neck and taken the shape of a bowl. Summer squashes have shortened their necks. All the changes to date are in shape and are of no known value to table qualities.

BOMB SQUADRON FOR VANCOUVER

Trenton Unit to Complete Transfer by November 15th

Ottawa, Oct. 26 (CP)—Royal Canadian Air Force officials announced today a torpedo bomber squadron of nine planes is being transferred from the station at Trenton, Ont., to the Western Air Command at Jericho Beach, near Vancouver. The move is to be completed by Nov. 15.

The squadron is equipped with Shark aircraft, fitted for the dropping of bombs or torpedoes. The squadron will operate on floats but owing to the lateness of the season and the possibility of a freeze-up on the route to the west the aircraft will be transported by rail.

Royal Air Force Planes Land Near Suez Canal

London, Oct. 25 (CP-Havas) — Four Royal Air Force bombers which will attempt to better the world's non-stop distance record in a flight from Egypt to Australia arrived today at Ismailia, Egypt, near the Suez Canal, the Air Ministry announced here.

The planes took off from Upper Heyford, Oxfordshire, yesterday. They will attempt to better the record set up by the Russian aviators who flew across the top of the globe from Moscow to California, a distance of 6,295 miles.

The distance between Ismailia, Egypt, and the Australian objective is about 1,000 miles longer than the Moscow-California jump. The flight is scheduled to take place towards the end of this week.

DEER HUNTERS MUST HAVE GUN LICENCE TO SHOOT PARTRIDGE

During the remaining six days of partridge shooting announced by the Government, deer hunters must be in possession of a gun licence, as well as a deer hunting licence, if they desire to take their quota of partridge, Inspector Herb McCabe of the Provincial Game and Fisheries Department announced in warning today. The remaining six day period for the shooting of partridge in the area north of Belleville is from November 5th to the 10th inclusive.

OFFICIALS OF KINSMEN TO MEET IN CITY

Final plans for the reception and entertainment of a large number of Eastern Ontario and Quebec officials and members of the Kinsmen Club of Canada who gather here on Saturday for their district meeting were made last night at a special meeting of the Belleville Kinsmen executive under the chairmanship of President Cleo Colling.

A reception committee of three will greet the visitors on their arrival while preceding the District Council meeting a banquet will be held in the New Queen's Hotel. A fine program of entertainment has been arranged to be held during the banquet while an impromptu get-together will follow the meeting.

High dignitaries of the Ontario and Quebec branches of the club will address the meeting at which important matters relative to club service work will be discussed.

ONE ARRESTED IS WANTED IN FALLS

Frederick Moreau, 22, Will be Charged with Theft of Car

Inspector Frank Gardner, headquarters of Provincial Police stationed at Belleville, today received information that a warrant for the arrest of Frederick Moreau, 22-year-old Niagara Falls youth, who was arrested in Napanee yesterday on a charge of the theft of gasoline from a Deseronto garage, was wanted in Niagara Falls on a charge of the theft of a motor car.

Moreau was accompanied by Boyd Englebeart, 17, and James B. Ryan, 22, also of Niagara Falls when the trio was arrested while driving into Napanee in the alleged stolen car yesterday. Motorcycle Patrolman H. Jillings apprehended the trio, later stating that Ryan was armed with a .32 calibre revolver, which the officer confiscated. It is believed by police here that the trio stole the sedan car in which they were travelling, at Niagara Falls.

Inspector Gardner notified Hamilton police of the apprehension of the three men. "In the automobile which the men were travelling in, were found four sets of Ontario motor licence plates, which may have been stolen enroute from Niagara Falls," commented Inspector Gardner today. The trio procured twelve gallons of gasoline from a Deseronto garage and sped away without paying for the same. Later they were arrested by Constable Jillings, who received information of their fleeing from the Deseronto police. Charges of the theft of gasoline and carrying fire arms will be preferred in Napanee and Deseronto, while Moreau is wanted for the car theft at Niagara Falls.

Students' Physical Condition Watched

Members of the Belleville Board of Education, stirred by the report of the death of Stewart Muirhead, 17-year-old youth, who was injured on one of the play grounds of the city while playing rugby, recalled this morning that strict watch is kept as to the physical condition of children attending the city's schools.

Some time ago, it was pointed out, at the request of physical instructor Geo. Laughlin, permission was obtained to have a complete and thorough medical examination of students before entering into competitive sport. The physical condition of nearly all the pupils was reported good following this inspection.

"In case of doubt regarding their inability to join in the more strenuous games, through heart or other condition, we take no chances, and ask the pupil whose physical condition is open to question not to take part in the more strenuous games," reported Mr. Laughlin.

Possibility Isolation Hospital Unit May Be Constructed

Aldermen Wills and Marshall Appointed as Committee

FIRE RECOMMENDATION

After Dr. G. S. Cronk, Medical Officer of Health for this city had explained to the Belleville City Council the need and desirability of a new Isolation Hospital, the council at its regular session on Monday evening passed a recommendation: "That the Board of Health be requested to take up with the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital and with the Architects preparing plans for the addition to the hospital, the question of providing for an Isolation wing or other accommodation on the basis of same being operated by the hospital and the cost of such operation being paid by the city and that if the Board of Health think fit, it be authorized to procure block plans and estimates of cost, and that a committee of this Council consisting of Aldermen Wills and Marshall be appointed to consult with the Board of Health in connection with the matter."

Addressed Council

Dr. Cronk addressed the council along with William Kerr also a member of the Board of Health. George Griffin, another member of the Board, who has assembled figures on the new wing or hospital was unable to be present due to illness. The Medical Officer of Health stated it was desirable that a new Isolation Hospital be built as the present one was both out of date and out of repair and the cost of caring for patients there was out of all proportions to the value being received. "This hospital is an extreme necessity," said Dr. Cronk. "A seriously ill patient cannot be treated properly in this hospital at present and as the Belleville Hospital is building a new wing, I think it advisable, that some arrangements be made either to build a wing or else consult the Board of Governors to include the Isolation hospital in their present plans."

Necessity Shown

"I will not outline the course you are to follow" continued the Medical Officer, "but as Medical Officer of Health for this city I can see the necessity of a better place to house Isolation patients. There are five in the hospital at present and the cost is out of all proportions to the value received." Alderman Marshall asked Dr. Cronk how many beds he thought should be provided for in the new wing or hospital and he replied twenty but sixteen would do. Mr. Kerr agreed with Dr. Cronk that an Isolation hospital was badly needed and was of the opinion a city of this size should have a decent Isolation ward. "I think the cost would be cheaper and more scientific care be given to the patients," said Mr. Kerr. Other members spoke briefly and all seemed agreed to start some movement, that would better conditions in this respect. When the recommendation was laid on the table Alderman Haig suggested that Aldermen Wills and Marshall, who are representatives of the Council on the Board of Governors for the hospital be appointed as they were familiar with the situation. Ald. Wills stated the committee would do nothing until they reported to the council and then would keep the members posted on the progress of negotiations.

Fire Recommendation

An addition to the Number One Firehall will not be made at the present time nor will the department be put under one roof as suggested by the Chairman of Fire, Alderman Laurie Lewis, in his lengthy report on conditions to the council. However, the question of housing the department under a single roof under more ideal condition than under which they are working at the present time will not be allowed to drop for the council approved a recommendation last night: "That the report of the Fire Committee in respect to the buildings now occupied by the Fire Department be received and that this Council express its appreciation of the report to the committee and its approval of the principle of locating the equipment of the department in a single building from the standpoints of efficiency and operating economy, and that it be recommended to succeeding councils that efforts be made to give effect to this principle at the earliest possible date, and that no opportunity be lost to secure a suitable and centrally located property as a site."

Allowed to Proceed

Following a complaint of a resident in the vicinity, where Mr. Fred Ward, groceryman, is reconstructing a building on West Bridge Street, who stated the building would be unsightly and not according to the general line of buildings in that district, the work on reconstruction was ordered closed by the City Engineer on Monday afternoon, but the council receiving information at their meeting last night, that Mr. Ward had not violated the Building By-Law in that district will be allowed to proceed with the work. The members agreed, that Mr. Ward was adding appearance to the street by fixing up the old building but Mayor Bone was opposed to the changes being made stating it was jutting out too far to the street and would cut off the view of those buildings situated to the immediate east. Mr. Gale also opposed the erection. The City Solicitor was called into the chamber and he stated that he could not find, where Mr. Ward was violating the building by-law for that district and with this opinion the council took no action.

Will Attend Conference

Miss Lynch, in charge of the Welfare Office will be a delegate to the Conference on Public Administration for Municipal Officers to be held in Kingston from October 25 to 28 inclusive. The Conferences will be held at Queen's University and Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Welfare will be present. Other civic officials will be on hand to listen to the discussions, which will come out of the convention. Mr. T. E. Ketcheson will be paid his regular salary till the end of the year the council recommended. 'Y' Campaign to Raise Funds Inaugurated by a Banquet

$5,000 Needed to Carry on Worthwhile Work for Year

CAPTAINS NAMED

With over sixty energetic citizens behind the issue, the 1938 financial campaign for the Y.M.C.A. saw its first guns fired at a banquet in the "Y" Building for the campaign workers last evening. With an objective of $5,000.00 to be raised within the present week, General Chairman W. B. Deacon, divided the workers into four division of two team to a division, while General Secretary J. E. Shortt explained the working principles of the campaign.

Mr. Shortt pointed out that $5,000.00 was needed to meet the required operation expenses not otherwise taken care of in the general funds of the Association. The activities of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. are not confined solely to within the four walls of the Association. For instance over 200 teen-aged boys were afforded the chance to play softball under the sponsorship of the Belleville Ki-Y league, while equally as many played hockey under the same banner and these participants are not required to be members of the "Y". Hikes and other entertainment were provided for non-members, who are unable to become members, it was announced.

Activities Outlined

Some of the 1938 activities outlined by Mr. Shortt in forcibly bringing before the "Y" financial campaign canvassers included the fact that over 1,300 or more attended monthly physical classes, received health exercise many of whom were taught to swim. Numerous social activities were introduced, handicraft and public speaking clubs were operated, while at the annual open house Hallowe'en party over 500 kiddies were given free entertainment.

During the past year a total of 109 different groups and outside organizations utilized the Y.M.C.A. for various types of meetings and gatherings, while "Y" equipment was loaned on 79 occasions. These features, which are to the benefit of the city at large are only a few of the outstanding features put into practice by the Belleville Y.M.C.A. annually in an effort to help the community to develop better citizens, service to Youth and the Community being the motto of the Y.M.C.A. world wide.

Lowering their campaign objective slightly from previous years, the Y.M.C.A. executive feel that the citizens of Belleville appreciate the work and efforts of the Y.M.C.A. in this city and will greet the canvassers cordially during the week. These campaign canvassers are giving freely of their time, money and efforts, that the fine work of the Y.M.C.A. may continue in Belleville and urge the hearty cooperation of the general public in assisting their present financial drive.

General Chairman W. B. Deacon named Mack Robertson as honorary treasurer with four 'majors' heading divisions. The 'majors' are Messrs. P. C. MacLaurin, J. B. Boyce, Jack McIntosh and R. J. E. Graham. Each 'major' has two teams headed by captains, under his charge, the team captains include— Gordon Bray, Howard Clarke, Leo B. Riggs, Fred Douglas, H. E. Fairfield, Lorne McDougall, Joe Imlah and Norm Edwards, with special captain W. H. Ackerman taking care of special collections.

Community Singing

During the opening campaign supper last evening Messrs. W. B. Deacon, J. E. Shortt, P. C. MacLaurin and Rev. Dr. James Semple spoke. Community singing was enjoyed with James Bankier delighting with a solo. A competition between the various team captains was organized to assist in stimulating interest among the canvassers. The men behind the campaign voiced enthusiasm, interest and optimism as the 1938 financial campaign of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. swung into action today. The citizens in general should realize the value of the "Y" to the community and assist the Association in meeting its required operating expenses for the current year.

Secretary Shortt announced that campaign luncheons would be served for canvassers and workers on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday in the Auditorium all during the campaign at which reports of collections will be tabulated so each team will know exactly where they stand in the campaign.

'SPORT' ONTARIO'S OLDEST DOG DIES

Black Water Spaniel Attained Age of 23 Years, Owned by Mrs. Gamble

Sport, black water-spaniel, one of the best known dogs in Belleville, and believed the oldest dog in Ontario, is dead.

He died yesterday at the age of 23 years.

Injuries received when attacked near his home, 71 Pinnacle Street, by another dog, hastened his ending.

With the death of Sport went the title gained in a recent Toronto newspaper contest to determine the oldest pet in Ontario. He was awarded first place in years among scores of other pets entered in competition.

Healthy, active, despite his advanced age, Sport, up to the time of his death, had shown little feebleness generally attributed to one of his age. His sight of later years had become dimmed, his actions slower, so that truck drivers of heavy gasoline tanks using his street watched out for him when passing the home. But he was still able to wag a friendly welcome to the tradesmen, neighbors and friends who called at or daily passed his residence.

Actuaries have agreed after careful study that Sport's age would about equal that of a man of 180 years.

Sport was known to his owner, Mrs. L. Gamble, and his scores of friends, as "the little gentleman of dogdom." His loss, according to the family, will be a well nigh irreplaceable one. He had become one of the family. His gentle, doggy ways had gained for him the respect of the whole south ward.

INQUEST ADJOURNED TILL FRIDAY NIGHT

An inquest to consider the events resulting in the death of Stewart Muirhead as the result of injuries received while engaged in a rugby scrimmage, was conducted by Dr. J.J. Robertson, Chief Coroner, at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, Monday evening.

Following identification by the deceased boy's brother Robert, the inquest was adjourned until Friday night of this week.

The coroner's jury, impanelled by Sergeant Arthur Harman, consisted of R. Arnott, foreman, Thos. Jeffery Hope McGinnis, Harry Abbott, Wm. Todd, Fred Gauthier, Wm. Vallance and W. Boyd.

Belleville Rotary Club entertained farmer friends Monday at the weekly gathering in Hotel Quinte. The attendance was large and the program one of the most interesting of many interesting Rotary gatherings. President Mack Haig occupied the chair, Past President Charlie Dolan acted as sergeant-at-arms and certainly rolled up a nice addition to the Crippled Childrn Fund from careless members. Sandy Burrows and Leo Riggs contributed snappy musical numbers and the community singing was excellent. The meeting was under the direction of the Rural-Urban Committee, Chairman Jack Hartwick. Every member was supposed to bring a farmer friend and those who did not were assessed the price of the luncheon which went to the Crippled Children Fund. The guest speaker of the day was Dr. H. Barton, Deputy Dominion Minister of Agriculture. A brief but interesting review of present and past conditions in Saskatchewan was given by Rev. A. Y. Robertson, of Yellow Grass, Sask.

Dr. Barton referred to the Belleville district as being fortunate in happy healthy conditions, deserving of congratulation. Canada is a big land and agriculture has suffered in the past from slap-dash methods and extravagance, but has gotten away from that stage and is now headed in the right direction with a better type of effort and better organization.

Unusual Things This Year

Speaking of unusual things happening this year Dr. Barton pointed to the Fraser Valley in British Columbia, a dairy and mixed farming country, which experienced a full-fledged drought, an unusual thing for that province, causing much damage. However, the fruit crop, particularly apples, was fine this year and being marketed to good advantage.

Rust And Hoppers

In the Prairie Provinces the shadow of drought of other years was supplanted by serious rust damage in Saskatchewan, unexpected. There was not enough rust-resistant wheat seed to supply the entire province, hence great loss resulted, and hopes of bumper crops after several years of failure were shattered. For next year rust-resistant seed will be available for all and no duplication of rust damage is possible. Then came the grasshopper plague, also unexpected for the hoppers generally favor a dry year and Saskatchewan had plenty of moisture. What the grasshopper plague is can hardly be described but the insects devour every green thing and come in billions, darkening the sun at noon-day. The hopper invasion came from the South, not from other provinces. Saskatchewan had another visitation, also unexpected and costly, the horse disease of long name and disastrous consequences, resembling infantile paralysis in humans.

The speaker visited Saskatchewan this summer and saw horses dead and dying from this disease every day. Not much is known about the disease as yet, but it breaks out in a group of horses and may take one or two or more, being very apt to be fatal. There are serums on the market for this disease but the speaker could not pass on their effectiveness. Southwest Ontario was also visited by this disease this year and this district may be visited next year.

Protection in Vaccination

The only protection against this dread disease is vaccination which can be had at one dollar per head.

The customary potato crop of the Maritimes was hampered this year by potato disease. Nova Scotia had a near-record apple crop which is finding a good market. Quebec's customary good agriculture production was seriously hampered by the drenching that province got at harvest time, causing serious damage and the levelling of much wheat.

Ontario Leads as Usual

A wonderful crop of clover seed distinguished Ontario this year, Western Ontario having a bumper crop, although Eastern Ontario was light. Last year the reverse was the case.

The high light of Ontario production this year was the butter situation, the production topping the previous year and the high price being the cause of the decline in cheese production.

The question of surplus production and what to do with it was discussed briefly by the speaker who thought it possible to handle this problem more efficiently, conceding that Mother Nature must always be considered in methods used. Timing the balancing of production to demand is difficult, but possible. Butter production was ten per cent up this year while cheese was ten per cent down, and there were ten million pounds of butter in storage on October 1, constituting somewhat of a problem. If the farmers will keep the milk going to the cheese factory as last year there will be no butter problem, said the speaker.

The Cheese Situation

A few years ago there was belief in some quarters that the cheese industry was on the way out, that the death knell was sounding. They were wrong. The cheese industry is experiencing new life, redevelopment, constant new vigor and life. Cheese is a rare product, with qualities not possessed by other agricultural products, principally not being perishable, and improving with age. Canadian cheese has the distinction of having the longest established position in the world's best markets, almost without direct competition, with all due respect to New Zealand cheese, which is not Canadian cheese. However, continued the speaker, Canada lost ground last year through lower quality, blamed on the heat. Ground was also lost this year in cheese quality which couldn't be blamed on the heat. This condition must and will be remedied.

Farm Bookkeeping

An interesting investigation is now under way in which the cost and returns of all dairy farms from cheese factories, creameries, cities, etc., will be tabulated and efforts made to give the farmer a simple but effective system of bookkeeping. This has heretofore been lacking, not but what the farmer is hard-headed and intelligent enough to know in a general way how his business is going, but his business accounting can be made more simple and efficient. Belleville cheese is of high quality and every effort should be made to keep up this high standard and improve quality if possible.

Dr. Barton referred to the live stock branch of farming and the wisdom of securing the best blood and breeding, with the high reputation held by this district for fine cattle, particularly Holsteins. This distinction has not been capitalized on enough, said the speaker. This district shows a good cash crop, and there is an improved quality of production generally in butter, bacon, eggs, poultry, and canned goods.

Beef Cattle Experiment

Twenty-five fine beef cattle are selected each week by the Dominion Government for shipment to the English market, and this beef is holding its own with the finest beef shown there, even on occasion topping Scotch beef. This beef is chosen from Ontario and the West and is the best the world affords.

Last year over one billion dollars in agricultural products were produced in Canada, and this will be exceeded this year. This is all created wealth, revealing the capabilities of this great country.

Rotary appreciation for the very fine, instructive and interesting address by the Deputy Minister of Agriculture was expressed by Mack Robertson and President Mac Haig.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Robin Hood"

"The Adventures of Robin Hood", a massive Technicolor melodrama, produced by Warner Bros, starring E. Flynn, and featuring Olivia de Havilland, Claude Rains, Basil Rathbone, Ian Hunter and aa supporting cast of some thousand players now playing at the Capitol.

The handsome young Irish star, Errol Flynn, who had such triumphs in "Captain Blood" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade" plays Robin. The beautiful young Olivia de Havilland, who was the heroine of those successes, is Maid Marian. This is their third picture together and is said by previewer to excel its predecessors.

This version of "The Adventures of Robin Hood" is altogether different from the great picture which Douglas Fairbanks made in silent form in 1922. It is filled with fighting—bows and arrows, quarter staffs, pikes and broad-swords being the weapons —and is played in immense and beautiful scenic settings both indoors and out.

In supporting cast are such star players as Basil Rathbone, Claude Rains, Ian Hunter, Eugene Pallette, Alan Hale, Melville Cooper, Patric Knowles, Una O'Connor, Herbert Mundin and Montagu Love.

Years of research preceded the filming of the great production. All of the vast body of "Robin Hood" literature was fine-combed by the research department of Warner Bros. in order to find out the costumes of the folks of that era, what they wore, what they ate, what kind of furniture they had, and all the other details that make for authentic movie props. A special contingent of the department worked only on medieval weapons—bows and arrows, quarter-staves, and pikes, which play a large part in the action of the picture.

The original story and the screen play were devised by Norman Reilly Raine and Seton I. Miller and has several of the well authenticated incidents contained in most of the legends surrounding England's greatest outlaw, but the bulk of the story is original in form. Four of the eleven existing Technicolor cameras in the world, each valued at $30,000, were employed throughout the making of this thrilling romance which is described as the outstanding adventure picture of the 1938 film season.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Girl Said No"

Large and delighted audiences at the McCarthy Theatre, greeted the premiere showing of musical hit "The Girl Said No", a picture of excellent dramatic appeal, blended with an excellency of splendidly sung numbers from the American Operetta "Princess Ting-Ah-Ling", proved to be screen entertainment of the finest grade, as the salvos of applause which greeted it, amply proved.

The leading roles are in the capable hands of Robert Armstrong and Irene Hervey, with Paula Stone, Ed Brophy, Harry Tyler, Richard Tucker and many others in roles that build the picture up to the highest calibre of pleasing entertainment.

The musical numbers from "Princess Ting-Ah-Ling" which is an integral part of the picture story, are excellently vocalized by William Danforth, Vera Ross, Frank Moulan and Vivian Hart, all singers of the finest quality. Their rendition of the various songs and ensembles which include "Three Little Maids from School", "The Mikado's Song", "Poor Little Buttercup", and "A Wandering Minstrel", were greeted with rapturous applause.

"The Girl Said No" is truly one of this year's smash musical hits and is in every repect, one of the finest productions to come out of Hollywood we urge you to put it on your must-see list and recommend it to every member of your family.

'Vacationing in Quintupland'

Three splendid short subjects in addition to the above feature presentation provide a splendid variety to the program and which also was thoroughly enjoyed by the audiences at the McCarthy Theatre. "Vacationing in Quintupland" a beautiful scenic of Ontario, photographed in the new Technicolor Process, is camera-eye view of our own Province in a "short" that brings to us a enlightning travelogue of interesting spots throughout Ontario.

Andy Clyde in "Jump Chump Jump" a 20 minute comedy riot and "Bluebird's Baby" a technicolor musical cartoon are also two excellent featurettes, that all will enjoy.

AT THE BELLE

"The Arkansas Traveler"
"King of Alcatraz"

Bob Burns has created the most colorful and engaging character of his career in his latest picture, "The Arkansas Traveler", at the Belle Theatre. For his heart-warming and sincere portrayal of a wandering printer and small town journalist, Burns deserves a place alongside that other great interpreter of American characters, Will Rogers.

In his new role, Burns put aside the bazooka, wise cracks and cavortings, which marked the musical comedy days of his early screen career. His latest part, reminiscent of the one he played so brilliantly least in "Wells Fargo", shows him as a lovable vagabond, never so energetic that he will court a job but never so lazy that he will hang back when there is important work to be done.

The story of 'The Arkansas Traveller' gives the star every opportunity to glorify the character he has created. It shows what happens when a happy-go-lucky vagabond gives up his wanderings for a time to help a lady in distress and becomes the editor of a newspaper in a small boss-ridden town. The lady is Fay Bainter, who turns in a sterling performance as the strong-willed widow who puts her entire fortune in the hands of an unknown wanderer.

Through a series of masterful strokes—a newspaper attack on the political machine, the reform of the mayor's wayward son, the winning of the entire community through his plain and homely philosophy and finally, the erection of a radio station with the help of a crew of his fellow-hoboes, "The Traveller" bests Miss Bainter's enemies and gives the town a new spirit of neighborliness and good will.

Alfred Santell's able direction—he recently filmed "Cocoanut Grove" and "Having Wonderful Time"—brings out all the simple humor and rugged spirit of the story. His supporting cast does an "all-star" job. It includes Jean Parker and John Beal, as the small town lovers befriended by Burns, Lyle Talbot, as the political boss, Porter Hall and that outstanding American humorist, Irvin S. Cobb.

"The Arkansas Traveler" is just what the doctor ordered for "city guy" and "country feller" alike. The former will see in it a moving panorama of an America he thought all but vanished; the latter will find it a hearty picture of life in his own home town.

"King of Alcatraz" Thrilling

A cast including such screen favorites as Gail Patrick, Lloyd Nolan, J. Carrol Naish, Porter Hall and Harry Carey will be seen in Paramount's thrill-packed 'King of Alcatraz", announced as the companion feature attraction. The film also marks the screen debut of handsome young Robert Preston star of the legitimate stage, whose performance in his first film immediately won him a contract to play the male lead in his next picture.

Don't Let Constipation Drag On!

Do you often have days when you wake up tired—when you feel dull, sunk, "all bogged down"? It's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble!

If you eat what most people do —just bread, meat, potatoes—chances are that just this fact is responsible: you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines that helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, what you need is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains "bulk" plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and see if your old sparkle doesn't come back! Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

THE LATE LORD STANLEY

Canadians have learned with sorrow of the death of Lord Stanley, descendant of a former Governor-General, whose name lingers in the minds of the older citizens and in the traditions of Canada. Lord Stanley was Secretary of State for the Dominions and the youngest of the members of the British Cabinet and was rapidly forging his way to the front in statesmanship. He was a member of the British Commons since he was 23 years of age. He was 44 when he died last week.

Lord Stanley came of an ancient British noble family, mentioned in histories in the reign of Stephen, the fourth of the Norman Kings of England. English history brings up this famous name in many places. One of the Stanley's figured in the Shakespearean drama of "King Richard the Third". It was a Lord Stanley who placed the crown on the head of Henry, Earl of Richmond, who became Henry the Seventh, one of the great English kings who developed English foreign policy and expanded English commerce.

Lord Stanley was the son of the Earl of Derby, a well-known member of the British nobility. Another of the latter's sons is President of the British Board of Trade. Edward Stanley, son of Lord Stanley, who is now 20 years of age and is heir to the House of Derby. He is the new Lord Stanley.

Only a few weeks ago the late Lord Stanley was in Toronto opening the Canadian National Exhibition. In Canada he found evidences everywhere of the love which his ancestor earned during the years he was the Queen's representative in the Dominion.

FORTIFICATIONS

Nations build Maginot and Siegfried lines in an age when the airplane is considered one of the most potent agencies in warfare. Evidences of the effectiveness of the planes have been seen in Spain and China.

But the land defence always remains one of the great factors of security, whether it be in the old style stockades and block-houses in which the pioneers in the New World faced their possible enemies or in the old lines of the Romans in their fortifications and their defences about their camp or "castra." In the last war the Belgian defences held up the Germans for a short time in their drive into France and those days probably provided the opportunity for the preparation of that defence which saved Paris and which wore out the Germans on the Western front. The Germans blasted with artillery and smashed the Belgian forts and it was held by some that forts did not suit modern warfare. The defence of these forts gave occasion for the creation of that ringing phrase which sounded the death-knell of the Germans in 1914-18: "They shall not pass."

Today after two decades the French still pin their faith to the old idea of forts, which have come down in history from the primitive wars of mankind. But the forts are modernized — they are underground cities with underground highways of communications between forts. Pictures from the Rhineland taken from the French side show the German forts of the Siegfried line, very close together. These were put up in the space of a few months with intensive operations under Hitler's orders. This line was the line he mentioned in his famous speech in early September at Nuremberg when he spoke of the thousands upon thousands of men who had been employed making the invasion of the borders of Germany impossible.

It is a mark of this age that the modern counterpart of the old fortifications of primitive man carry every sign of progress and civilization into them. Then too the modern fort is a sign of this age which thinks in masses and huge undertakings, that the defences should be gigantic. Before the great war no country would have thought of constructing such huge defences as have been constructed today along the Franco-German border. Today nations can build such immense works by the use of modern machinery, transportation, and the use of cement material, which would have been utterly impossible some generations ago. Electricity for lighting and operations in a fort of today is a factor which makes the underground military camp and castle a possibility.

TREES

Western Canada has learned the importances of trees. It has been shown that selected varieties of trees can be grown in abundance and with local benefit. In early days it was believed that trees would not thrive on the vast wild prairie. The pioneers had found few trees and these only in sheltered spots and along waterways, such as poplar and aspen. As a consequence little attention was given the native tree of the west and so for many years there were few trees planted on the western lands. Winnipeg has however shown that trees can be grown for the Manitoba capital is one of the cities of Canada with a reputation for its shade trees.

Speaking of the tree question the Montreal Star declares: "It may be that something of the old enmity to the forest lingers atavistically in our eastern dwellers on the soil. Whatever it is, governments have been compelled to spend largely and work hard to preserve and improve even what "bush-lots" the years and unthinking expolitation have spared on eastern farms. Gradually, however the tree is coming back to perform its natural function of shelter and moisture conservation in these parts of Canada where once trees stood in greater abundance and beauty. The West has something to teach us, apparently, even about trees."

TRUTH IS MIGHTY AND WILL PREVAIL, and that is the reason all efforts to discredit the City Manager system of civic government fails. Toronto is very much interested in the question now and the Globe and Mail is very favorable toward it and has given much information as to its merits in actual practise. For that reason, perhaps, the Telegram is somewhat against it, for the Tely never could agree with the Globe on any contentious question, or any other competing newspaper for that matter. However, the Globe and Mail is doing a good job letting in the light and educating citizens to demand more businesslike civic government. Belleville had a very progressive city council a couple of years ago and that council went on record, after investigating, that the City Manager form of government would be an improvement. The question was voted upon by the people and carried. Through some shennanigan or other permission to make the change was refused by the Ontario Legislature. A committee of the Legislature, composed of, apparently, all dyed in the wool politicians, threw out the bill authorizing the change. Had the change been made Belleville would have won distinction as leading the way in a wide campaign for more efficient city government. Just how and why the thing happened as it did is still a mystery to most, but certainly there was a more or less well financed undercover campaign against Belleville changing its municipal administration to the City Manager system. Considerable has been said about the experience of Chatham under City Management, and it has even been said that Chatham had abandoned the system. The following Globe and Mail editorial throws some light on the Chatham situation:

> It is something of a novelty in these parts to hear of a Mayor and an Alderman putting in a good word for the city manager system. That these elective offices have survived so "dictatorial" a regime for sixteen years in Chatham is encouraging for persons who feel there should be some better argument against it than the wail of dictatorship.
> The facts which Mayor Zink and Alderman Hubbell of that city gave Forest Hill taxpayers are, themselves, quite convincing, especially since Chatham's experience is fairly representative of most communities, large and small, where the manager system has had an honest trial.
> A 69 per cent reduction in the civic debt during the depression period 1932-37, a 1½ mills decrease in the tax rate during the same period, rank as miracles in most cities. To be debt free as Chatham has every prospect of being by 1940 is, perhaps, too much for most cities to hope for. But it does establish the fact that expenditures and revenue can be brought into balance by some other means than annual boosts in taxation.
> The moral which Forest Hill — and Toronto—taxpayers can draw from it is that business efficiency can be applied to public administration. It suggests, too, that the best means of obtaining this efficiency is to separate administration from politics and patronage.
> Forest Hill has not decided on the manager plan. Reasonably it will want to hear more of it than the experiences of a single city. But it has plenty to draw on, and, having been convinced that some change must be made in the present costly system, it is at least going about it in a sensible way. In fact citizen action is the only way in which worthwhile improvements are ever made. This is something for Toronto's taxpayers to think about.

A DIFFERENCE

W. Gallacher, the M.P. for West Fife, caused laughter in the House of Commons by referring to an occasion when Mr. G. B. Shaw had to take the oath in order to testify to the qualifications for standing bail.

"The magistrate," he stated, "said to Mr. Shaw: 'Are you worth £200?' Mr. Shaw cocked his head slightly to one side and said: 'Well, I won't say that, but I have got £200'."

When Bombs Fell on London

Prior to the Great War which began in 1914 the only people who were killed or suffered physical hurts in wartime were the soldiers in the field and the sailors in ships. There had been no thought of machines in the air that would drop bombs, other than in the fantastic mind of H. G. Wells, and later on, in the minds of advanced military experts. Even at the outset of the World War the people of London did not expect there would be such a thing as air raids on the city. It was only a year or two previously that Bleriot startled the world by flying 22 miles across the English Channel, and the idea of planes heavily loaded with bombs attacking London seemed too fantastic to believe.

Dispatches from London on Monday told how frantic preparations were in progress to protect the teeming population against air raids; arrangements were made for large numbers of the civilian population to be evacuated; trenches and shelters were being dug in gardens and gasmasks were being fitted.

Everybody in London, in many parts of the East coast of England, who is a little over 20 years of age remembers the air raids. They can never forget them and if war comes again the next raids will be a thousand times worse. Raids were made on London by day as well as night, although night was the favorite time just when people were going to bed, usually after 11 o'clock, and in the long run several thousands were killed or injured.

The first raid on English soil, which was the first time an enemy had killed an Englishman at home for hundreds of years, came a few weeks after war broke out, when the city of Southend, near the mouth of the Thames, was bombed. That attack was by a Zeppelin. A few nights later a Zeppelin dropped bombs on Shoreditch and Stoke Newington areas of London, took many lives and destroyed much property. But so large is London that the vast majority of the population knew nothing about it at the time, there being no anti-aircraft defences and therefore no firing at the raiders. Reporters rushed around to get the details but the censor quashed all newspaper reports then and on all subsequent occasions. Press Bureau statements merely said raiders had been and that the number of casualties were so-and-so. The object was not to let the Germans know where their bombs had fallen.

Later on, raids were by Zeppelins and airplanes. They came on dark cloudy night and then switched to moonlight night so that they had some idea where they were. Just prior to and for a short time after full moon. Londoners had the jitters expecting raids. The Germans on moonlight nights could follow the Thames which shone in the moonlight, and they also had an excellent landmark in the Crystal Palace which being a mountain of glass, was a bright and unmistakable object. That landmark will not exist to them now; the Crystal Palace was burned to the ground about 18 months ago. Warnings of coming raids were given by Boy Scouts who rode through the streets blowing bugles. When the raiders had gone the Scouts went out again blowing the "All Clear." All lights were turned out in homes, factories, etc.; windows had to be covered at nights with strips of black paper where the blind did not cover, and the street lamps were painted black, only a little bit at the bottom giving any light at all. A white line was painted on the edges of the curbs to let people know where they were. Tens of thousands of people crowded down into the subway stations, but most people just stayed quietly in their homes in fear and trembling. Those who were remote from the areas of attack went into the streets to watch the battles.

In course of time defences greatly improved. The defence of London started away down on the coast. The balloon system was tried then but only on a small scale and with what result the public never knew. Many planes and a few Zeppelins were brought down or driven back, and on two occasions Londoners saw Zeppelins fall in flames. Guns on motor trucks thundered through the streets; searchlights picked out the raiders, and civilians had the exciting experience of seeing shells bursting in the air and shrapnel fell around them.

It is to be hoped that anti-aircraft defences are more than a match for bigger and faster bombers.— St. Thomas Times-Journal.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

The Fighting or Defensive Forces of the Body

Nose specialists tell us that if the lining of the nose is in a healthy condition, it can prevent harmful organisms in the air from entering the body and setting up diseases. This moist or mucous lining can get rid of a group of organisms from the system and be ready for a new lot within ten minutes. Similarly other tissues in the body and the blood itself, by putting up a daily fight against various organisms gradually get the mastery over these organisms. The tissues and blood become "immune" or proof against the ailments these various organisms would set up in the body if there were no resistance to them.

"Most of the tissues of a healthy individual have an immunity or can withstand the majority of organisms and destroy them when they gain entrance to the system. Should such organisms find lodgment in the tissues, they frequently prove harmless to the individual. Even when they enter the blood stream both the organisms and the poisons they make usually are rapidly destroyed by the blood."

Prof. Myer Solis-Cohen, University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine, as guest editor of Medical World, tells us that this defensive power of the tissues and the blood may continue intact for years. This defensive power of the body may be lost when the invading organisms are excessive in number or become increased in their power to destroy tissue, or when the individual's local or general resistance is reduced or broken down completely through exposure, physical or mental fatigue, inadequate diet, bad hygiene, a new infection, or a run-down condition. Thus the organism which has been resting harmlessly in the body begins to acquire the ability to cause damage and infection, because the body's fighting or defensive forces have been weakened.

The point then is that even if we are in good condition physically, there may be certain organisms that can set up trouble in the body because our defensive forces have not had this particular organism to fight and overcome up to this time. But even should they attack us, if we are in good physical condition—heart, lungs, kidneys, and digestive system—and no other infection such as teeth, tonsils or sinus is present, we can usually put up a fight strong enough to overcome them.

LABOR STANDARDS GO INTO EFFECT

Minimum Wage Fixed and Hours of Labor Shortened

Washington, Oct. 25—(AP)—Far-reaching federal labor standards went into effect today, putting a floor under the wages and a ceiling over the hours of an estimated 11,000,000 workingmen in the United States.

This regulation of virtually all persons in interstate commerce represented the broadcast industrial legislation since the National Recovery Act was found unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

Administrator Elmer Andrews took time from cleaning up a multitude of details to tell in a broadcast address that the new program was not designed to "hound business," but should become a pillar of a sound economic system.

"Its purpose is to protect business" he said, "to guard decent employers against the ruinous competitors whose only weapon is low prices based upon low wages and long hours for those who produce their goods.

"Its further purpose, and I think its most far-reaching purpose, is to assure a steady stream of purchasing power in this country."

Major Provisions

The major provisions of the new statute follows:

1. A minimum wage of 25 cents an hour is established. This will be raised to 30 cents Oct. 24, 1939, and to 40 cents after Oct. 24, 1945.

2. The maximum work week is fixed at 44 hours, to be reduced to 42 hours after Oct. 24, 1939, and to 40 hours after Oct. 24, 1940. Employment above those levels must be compensated for in cash at time and a half rates.

3. Employment is prohibited for children under 16 in a mining or manufacturing occupation, and for children under 18 in an industry declared to be hazardous. Limited employment is permitted for children 14 to 15 in other industries.

The act exempts either in whole or in part seasonal industries, certain agricultural occupations, professional men, executives, certain agricultural occupations, professional men, executives, administrators, learners, handicapped persons and employees of companies regulated by the interstate commerce commission.

A Saint Lawrence Fairyland

Fame of the Thousand Islands is world-wide and it is thus not surprising to find the Edinburgh (Weekly) Scotsman devoting considerable space in one of its recent issues to a review of their beauties and points of interest, obviously inspirited by a tour made through the islands by some fascinated Scot. Under the caption, "Fairyland of the St. Lawrence," the article reads as follows:

When Samuel de Champlain, the great French explorer, first saw in the early part of the 17th century the Thousand Islands, or the "Garden of the Great Spirit" as the spot was called by the Indians, it is recorded that he exultantly exclaimed "Fairyland!" Today, the visitor seeing the Thousand Islands stretched like a succession of vignettes, rather than one extended picture, will appreciate Champlain's terse tribute. The forty miles of island scenery is as beautiful as any to be found in the North American continent. This group of islands actually numbering 1,692, is situated in the River St. Lawrence between Brockville and Kingston. Most of the islands are in Canadian territory, the remainder being part of the State of New York.

The region is rich in history, legend and romance. It was a favorite camping ground for the Iroquois and Algonquin Indians, and some of the most stirring annals in the War of 1812 have their locale there. One of the most alluring stories associated with the islands, is that of the "Lost Channel" referred to by Fenimore Cooper in "The Pathfinder." The story goes that in 1758 the British under Lord Amherst on their way from Oswego to Montreal were lured into it by the French and were ambushed. They emerged, however, although a small boat with coxswain and crew never found its way out, hence its name. For many years the channel was indeed lost, but about fifty years ago it was discovered from old records.

Near the "Lost Channel," is Fiddler's Elbow, one of the most beautiful spots among the islands. The name was given because of the sharp turn in the channel but the more romantic residents of the district say that on still, moon-light nights the faint sound of a violin may be heard and among the trees there can be seen on the point the form of an old fiddler, once a lighthouse keeper.

There is hardly an island among the whole group but has some story associated with it. Carleton Island, for example, was the rendesvous of Thayendanage, the ferocious Six Nations chief who fomented massacres and during the Revolutionary War of 1776 was a refuge for the Tories of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Another island named "Devil's Oven" was the home of "Bill" Johnson, the pirate of the Thousand Islands. Still another favorite is "Lost Lover Island" where an Indian maid was drowned on a fruitless search for her lover.

On Hart Island there is a great stone mansion erected by a wealthy American at a cost of over $1,000,000, now falling into decay. This huge place, with its outstanding turrets resembling a castle on the Rhine, was built by a devoted husband for his wife, who, before it was completed, died. He was so disappointed that he had neither the inclination to finish the work nor live there and it remains just as it was at the time of her death.

Many persons view the Thousand Islands in a quick sail through them on the deck of a steamer, doing much the same as restless visitors who spend fifteen mortal minutes in doing Westminster Abbey, London, St. Peter's in Rome, or in Edinburgh Castle. But whoever views them in this off-hand manner misses one of the finest experiences of a lifetime.

What is seen from the deck of a steamer is no fair criterion by which to judge these islands. To see them to advantage one should tarry with them, as it were. He should get a motor boat or canoe and go from island to island, nosing through channels that seem to have no outlet; now pushing through a course between rocks that appear to meet behind, and have no inlet, and again turning a sharp angle that discloses to view a passage which leads to a widening of the river, until a veritable lake within a river is encountered.

It is by lingering about them that their full beauty will be disclosed and the tourist may, like Ulysses on the Libyan shores, wish to sojourn there forever. —Montreal Gazette.

Finds Fish Slow Swimmers

Man confirms his mechanical superiority in speed over unassisted nature by travelling at the rate of 345 miles an hour in an automobile.

He is supreme on land and on water. In the air female deer flies are said to have made 614 miles an hour, and males 818, but this has been seriously challenged and the airplane may be the fastest of winged things. Under water, however, fish still surpass the submarine, although motor boats on the surface give man supremacy.

There is not a great deal of information on the speed of fish; the reasons are fairly obvious. Several estimates of their speed conclude, "Therefore, the fish must have been travelling at such-and-such a rate", and are not based on exact measurement.

Such is the account of the swordfish which struck a wooden ship, its sword piercing the copper sheathing, an inch of under-sheathing, a three-inch hardwood plank, twelve inches of white oak timber, two and one-half inches of hard oak ceiling, and finally entering an oil cask, where it broke off, having gone through twenty inches of wood. "Judging by the material of which the sword was composed, it was obvious that by no ordinary means could it have been forced through copper sheathing and nearly two feet of wood. The fact of clean penetration showed that the fish, at the moment of impact, must have been travelling at not less than sixty miles per hour."

This is deduction, although not rash; a fact in connection with the episode is that the broken off sword was used thereafter as a bung in the hole it made in the cask, and served the purpose well.

Frank W. Lane in Discovery recently recalled the work of the French scientist M. A. Mangan, who fixed speeds for some fish by taking motion pictures of them and computing their rates by the distances they had moved between frames on the film. Thus he found the blue shark capable of twenty-four miles an hour, the tunny of fourteen, the salmon of eleven, but these were not maxima. Mangan called flying fish among the most rapid swimmers, and another study indicated that in flight they may attain fifty miles an hour. This is in the air, less resistant than water, however.

From various sources come these approximate maxima: Tench, seven miles an hour; carp, seven; eels seven and a half; roach, ten; barbel, eleven; pike, fifteen; salmon and trout, twenty-three; blue shark, thirty; mako shark, thirty-five; tarpon and tunny, forty. These speeds cannot be maintained for long, however. Fishermen have reported marlin going between sixty and eighty miles an hour.

In general, very few fish attain speeds above twenty miles an hour, except for very short spurts, it appears.

Although fish do not go fast, they use little energy in comparison to a man swimming. It is estimated that a man swimming at four miles an hour expends as much energy in proportion to bulk as a shark going at the rate of twenty miles. A test of this was made in the Princeton swimming pool, and a 170-pound swimmer and an angler fought to a stalemate; the fisherman could not land the swimmer, but the swimmer could not get away.

Later the angler said that although the man's speed was less than that of a fish, and his surges not so violent, he made the man, with the rod use as much power to hold him as a 300-pound fish would have. Further tests showed that a man registered .3 pound pull on the line for each pound of body weight, and a shark .17 pound of pull.

Many fish owe the ease of their swimming in large part to the position of their gill clefts; the water which they exhale produces what is known as an induced stream line, overcoming friction and water resistance.

If fish are in the main slow, snakes are even slower, surprisingly so because their lithe movements give an impression of great rapidity.

Walter Mosauer held the watch on several American snakes. He found that the Western whip snake, which is the fastest of them all, crawls at a rate of three miles an hour and prowls at a rate of one-quarter mile, and that the California boa can go only one-sixteenth as fast as the whip snake.

He found that the average snake can travel little better than one mile an hour, and none of the snakes he timed could keep crawling even so slowly for any length of time, weakening after a few trials.—New York Sun.

CALL PARLIAMENT IN EARLY SESSION

Be Able to Prorogue Before King and Queen Arrive in Canada

Ottawa, Oct. 25—(CP)—Possibility that the next session of Parliament will begin within five weeks and speculation on progress of Washington's ubiquitous trade negotiations dominated the Federal political scene here yesterday.

The impression has grown in the past week that the government will call parliament before Christmas. Justice Minister Lapointe said an early session might be held in order to allow parliament to prorogue by the time the King and Queen arrive in the Dominion early next summer.

If parliament meets around the end of November, the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne might be concluded and the debate on the pending Canada-United States trade treaty revision started before adjournment for Christmas and New Year.

Progress of trade negotiations in Washington will influence the Government in calling the session. It is understood that the Canada-U. S. pact is about ready for signing but is being delayed by the negotiations still going on for conclusion of an Anglo-U. S. Treaty. The two agreements are complementary in many respects and it has been expected they would be signed at the same time.

Reports that the Anglo-U. S. negotiations have encountered grave difficulties which might lead to a stalemate are largely discounted in well-informed circles here, although there has been no official comment.

Housekeeper Killed Urge State Police To Satisfy Spiritual

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 25—(AP)—The Sheriff of Houghton County today held a man and his wife accused of killing their 19-year-old housekeeper with a flatiron at their residence in nearby Dollar Bay to satisfy a spiritual urge.

The victim was Marian Doyle. In custody are Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pichette, each 35 years old.

The slaying was discovered after the Pichettes went to a Calumet, Mich., priest and informed him that they exerted a mysterious "power" over a victim at their home. The priest notified Sheriff John G. Salmi of Houghton and he went to the Dollar Bay home, found the young woman dead and arrested the Pichettes.

Sheriff Salmi said Pichettes talked incoherently and appeared to be suffering from delusions based on the idea they possessed strange spiritual powers.

Investigators said they were informed that Pichette once paid $2,000 to some gypsies in exchange for a mystic power be believed they conferred upon him.

May Try New Type Respirator on Patient

Winnipeg. Oct. 25—(CP)—Dr. Douglas McIntyre of Winnipeg said today there is a "possibility" Miss Ines Woollam, 23-year-old Winnipeg "iron-lung" patient will be placed in a newly developed artificial respirator "if it's as good as they say it is."

The new respirator has been used successfully on Frederick B. Snite, Jr., young Chicago infantile paralysis victim. It is fashioned of aluminum and a special rubber product, and weighs only 9½ pounds in contrast with the old 900-pound iron lung.

Miss Woollam uses the respirator only about eight hours daily. Dr. McIntyre said she cannot sleep without it but otherwise does not need it.

HONOR WM. BRAY ON RETIREMENT

West Huntingdon Resident Presented with Gifts; 28 Years C. N. Sectionman

West Huntingdon—The annual convention of Sunday Schools of Huntingdon Township was held in the Bethesda United Church on Thursday, October 20. Mr. Clayton Rutter of Fuller presided over both afternoon and evening sessions, Beulah Y.P.U. conducting the worship service for afternoon session.

Address of welcome was given by Mr. Ward Holland. Mr. Rutter presented the president's report. Mrs. Frank Palmer gave the secretary treasurer's report. Rev. W. E. Tristram gave a very inspiring address on "Christianity a universal religion."

Reports were given by following superintendents: Children's Work, Mrs. John Wallace; Girls' Work, Mrs. C. S. Sills; Boys' Work, Ernest Holland; Young People's Work, Mr. Geo. Wood; Adult Work, Mrs. Emerson; Home Department, Mrs. Tristram; Teacher Training, Arthur Wood; Missionary, Miss M. Latta; Temperance, Mrs. Geo. Foster.

Following the reports the special guest speaker, the Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh led in a very helpful discussion. The appointing of resolutions and nominations committees and prayer by Rev. Tristram concluded the afternoon session.

The ladies of the convention church served lunch to the delegates.

St. Andrew's Y.P.U. had charge of the worship service in the evening. Rev. Mr. Delve and Rev. Mr. Tristram conducting the installation of the officers for 1938 as follows:

Hon. President, Mrs. McCauley, Fuller.

President, Mr. Clayton Rutter, Fuller.

Vice President, Mrs. John Wallace, of St. Andrew's.

Dept. Superintendents: Children's work, Mrs. John Wallace, of St. Andrew's; Girls' work, Mrs. J. Clements Ivanhoe; Boys' work, Mrs. Chester Sills of St. Andrew's.; Young People's work, Mr. Geo. Wood of Ivanhoe; Adult work, Mr. P. Carr, West Huntingdon; Teacher Training, Mr. Arthur Wood, Ivanhoe; Missionary, Miss M. Latta, White Lake; Temperance, Mrs. G. Foster, Moira.

Mrs. (Rev.) Delve gave an interesting address on some experiences of pioneer work in the Peace River. Special music was given by Ivanhoe quartette. Rev. Vanderburgh's subject for the evening was "Making the second best the best."

In the evening session a short time was taken to hold a memorial service to the memory of the late Mr. Hector Wood, conducted by Rev. Delve.

An extra large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Geo. Cooke on Thursday evening, when a reception party was given to Mr. and Mrs. Lee Purdy following their recent marriage.

Rev. W. R. Tristram was chairman for the evening's entertainment which consisted of community singing, solo by Mr. John B. Hagerman of Minto; duet by the Misses Muriel Thompson and Margie Haggarty; reading, Mr. Harold Ashley; solo by Miss Ruby Stapley of Stirling; speeches by a number present; harmonica selection, Carl Thompson and reading, Miss Jean Thompson.

Miss Mona Wright read following address:

West Huntingdon, Oct. 19
Mr. and Mrs. Lee Purdy,
Dear Gladys and Lee:

Friendship is a golden chain
Which binds us all together
The links are love and loyalty
So strong that none may sever.

It is indeed, with these thoughts in mind that we, your West Huntingdon friends have entered your home on this happy occasion. Gladys, although you have been away for some time it is, and always will be a pleasure to welcome you here again. Your cheery countenance and disposition have won many true friends for you. We shall miss you from our Sunday School, but we realize that our loss is another's gain. Lee, we now take this opportunity of welcoming you to our community. Hearty congratulations are extended to you on your choice. We trust your future will always be bright, your pathway be joyous and your troubles be light. We hope as you travel along life's pathway together, that God's richest blessing will ever follow you. As a slight token of our esteem, we ask you to accept these gifts and hope in days to come they will bring many happy memories. Signed on behalf of the community Mrs. Pitchett, Hilda Haggerty, Jean Thompson, C. Wright, E. Post.

The young couple were presented with two handsome occasional chairs. Mr. and Mrs. Purdy voiced their appreciation of the kindness shown them.

Retires After 28 Years Foreman on C. N. R. Track

On Friday evening a number of the section men of the Belleville Division of the C.N.R. gathered at Mr. William Bray's home on Mill St. to celebrate with him the completion of 28 years of continuous duty as section foreman. The evening was spent in recalling scenes of bygone days of section work. At the close Mr. Fred Kent called the gathering to order and read the following address:

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bray,
Gracious Me:

We your fellow workers have gathered here tonight to show our esteem for you on the occasion of your retirement from the Canadian National Railways after 28 years of continuous service.

We would like to present you with something to remind you of the good wishes that we have for you in your days of rest from railroad toil. William Bray was always thought of as being an upright and good natured man, always ready and willing to help another when in need and always ready to argue and set things right. Now that you have retired from among us, we now present you with this chair and Mrs. Bray this rug, hoping you both will enjoy them, and also good health and good things for many years to come.

Signed on behalf of foremen and section men of Belleville Division, Fred Kent, Harry Hoard.

When the golden sun is sinking
And our day of work is done,
Of the loved ones we'll be thinking
As we face the setting sun.

Although taken by surprise Mr. and Mrs. Bray made suitable replies. At the close a lunch was served.

The community of West Huntingdon join in wishing for Mr. and Mrs. Bray many years to enjoy their retirement.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bray came to this country many years ago from England and determined no matter what the difficulties were, that they would make a home for themselves and at the same time be useful and upright citizens. West Huntingdon is proud to own them as citizens. They have a beautiful home on Mill St., with a few acres of land that Mr. Bray intends to work and still be the same useful citizen he has always been.

ANGLO-ITALIAN ACCORD UNFEASIBLE NOW

Leeds, England, Oct. 25—(CP-Havas)—Ratification of the Anglo-Italian accord concluded last Easter is impossible at present, the Yorkshire Post (Conservative) said today.

"The bombing of British ships has been resumed and Premier Mussolini, while withdrawing some of his infantry, has published a telegram giving assurances to General Franco that he is with him to the end," the newspaper said.

TEN YEAR TERM IS GIVEN YOUTH

Six Charges Passed Over to Hearing at Next Assize

Sudbury, Ont., Oct. 25—(CP)—Cliff Montgomery, escaped convict, convicted of rape at the fall assizes, was sentenced to 10 years in Kingston penitentiary by Mr. Justice Charles P. McTague yesterday. Six other charges were set over for hearing at the next assizes.

The 21-year-old convict was accused of attacking the mother of a four-year-old boy in a sectionman's home at Waterfall, four miles from Burwash Reformatory, a few hours after his escape.

Other charges facing Montgomery are those of assaulting Governor W. H. O'Leary and two guards in Sudbury district jail, Sept. 30 and of escaping from Burwash.

Steve Masluk, convicted of manslaughter, was sentenced to 2½ years. He originally was charged with slaying 50-year-old Bill Burman in a beverage room brawl at Capreol, June 7, last. His Lordship ordered the conviction on the lesser charge.

Prague Chapter Votes to Bannish Jews From Czecho

Prague, Oct. 25—(AP)—The Prague Chapter of Sokol, largest patriotic organization in Czechoslovakia, yesterday approved a resolution urging strict control of Jews, including the expulsion of those who entered the country after 1914. The proposals will be presented to the government.

The Prague Sokol is the mother chapter of the organization which has branches throughout the country numbering 1,000,000 members. It voted to propose two anti-Semitic measures to the cabinet:—

Expulsion of all Jews who entered what is now Czechoslovakia since 1914 and who cannot prove they are entitled by birth to claim Czechoslovak citizenship.

Expulsion of all Jews who registered as Jews in the 1930 census, without regard to their claims to Czechoslovak nationality by birth.

Nationalist Victory Registered in France

By Taylor Henry
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Paris, Oct. 25—(AP)—The Nationalist victory in Sunday's French senatorial elections appeared today to have opened the way for Premier Edouard Daladier to shift his government majority from the Leftist parties to the Right.

Extreme Right parties gained 10 seats, winning 34 out of the 97 contested. There was a slight trend to the other extreme as well with the Socialists gaining one seat and the Republican Socialists two.

But the outstanding fact in the senatorial election — not usually considered highly significant in France — was the unmistakable shift to the Right. Daladier's supporters interpreted this as approval of his part in the Four-Power Munich conference to partition Czechoslovakia and his efforts to reach an understanding with Germany.

Report of the W.M.S. Rally which was held at West Huntingdon was given in two parts, Mrs. W. Harlow gave the report on the morning session., and Mrs. G. Pidgeon gave the report for the afternoon session.

Mrs. Aubrey Reid sang a solo which was greatly appreciated.

Mrs. C. Pitchett read a poem "With the Master.". Miss Marion McMullen gave a reading "Forest Fears" which was very interesting. Collection was received and after singing a hymn the meeting closed with prayer.

The hostess then served a very dainty lunch.

Book Fair Com. Sponsors Essay Contest in Schools

A meeting of the Essay Contest Committee of the Book Fair was held yesterday afternoon at Queen Alexandra School. Mrs. D. Bews, convener of the committee was in the chair.

It was decided that the contest would be divided into seven classes to include students from Grade 5 to Upper School Collegiates and subjects suitable for each group were carefully selected. The topics were chosen with a view to encouraging reading and a wider use of reference works.

Members of the committee include Mrs. D. W. Bews, convener, Mrs. A. C. Locke, Miss Bessie Billings, Miss Myra Cunningham, Mr. Harold Mott and Miss Kathryn Gallagher, secretary.

Tabernacle Y. P. U. Host to Groups

The Young People's Union of Tabernacle Church met last night. They invited the Y.P.U. of Holloway, the Senior Group of the C.G.I.T. and the Bible Class. There was a large gathering. Mr. W. Brennan, president, presided and Miss Marion Fisher acted as Secretary. After the business was disposed of the C.G.I.T. led by Miss Billie Chapman and Miss Peggy McLean, conducted the devotions in a very reverent and helpful manner. Miss Wishart sang two solos to the delight of all.

Rev. Mr. Herrington of Thomasburg, gave the address of the evening on "Co-operatives". The address dealt with the history of the movement, its present strength and its fundamental principles. He pointed out that the Province of Ontario was about the most backward state in the civilized world so far as co-operatives were concerned. This was accounted for by the fact that it was a movement of the poor and that Ontario was better off than many other parts of the world. Mr. Herrington very ably answered all the questions that were asked him at the close of his address.

The social committee of the Bible class, Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Lent served light refreshments. All felt that it was a profitable and enjoyable meeting.

HEAVY FOG OVER LONDON

London, Oct. 25—(CP-Havas)—Heavy fog over London's suburbs caused one death yesterday as trains, buses and private drivers were delayed. A motorcyclist was killed on the Maidstone-Wrotham Road.

In some suburbs east of London the early morning visibility was only 90 feet. Somewhat better visibility at Croydon made it possible to cintinue air services from the airport there. The air ministry reported a heavy fog over Yorkshire and South Wales.

Every day when I go to the Dafoe nursery to see the Quintuplets I am amazed by some new phase in development they have shown. I am regaled by stories of what went on the afternoon or evening before.

What zest these children take in life! They have never been outside the walls that hem them in; but in spirits, love of play and mischief they would hold their own with children who have never known such confinement. There has been no stunting of their enjoyment of life even though their entire world is a five-acre plot in the Ontario north.

A couple of days ago the girls developed a great fondness for playing hide-and-seek. I went out early one morning. They had just finished breakfast but already they were at it.

Annette was "It". Emilie was hiding behind a chair not far away. Both Marie and Yvonne were nearly obvious; from where I stood I could see them all but Cecile. Still Annette seemed to have great difficulty finding them. Several times they all got "home free". I didn't understand what it was all about so I turned to the nurse.

"Annette isn't blind; why doesn't she 'tag' one of them?" I asked.

The nurse laughed. "Annette is too soft-hearted to catch them," she explained.

Yes, that was the explanation. Annette just couldn't bear to catch her sisters. She preferred to pretend she didn't see them; to let them come screaming "Home Free".

At times Annette's refusal to catch the others was funny. Yvonne in particular must have been a problem for her to overlook, for that young lady is like an ostrich. Just so long as her head is covered she thinks no one can see her. The other girls take advantage of this but not Annette.

It did my heart good to see this trait in Annette for it showed that we are on the right track. All their lives we have tried to teach unselfishness, and it hasn't been in vain.

Unselfishness is one of the most coveted of virtues and no mother should delay in starting to teach it. It is a trait that enters into almost everything we do all our lives, and it is one of the easiest to teach. Teach your child to be unselfish and you will have really done something to mould his happiness in future life. You never find selfish, self-centred people living happy lives. Their lives are poisoned with envy of what the other fellow has. They weren't like Annette when they were young. They didn't let the other boys and girls "home free" if they could help it.

Of course I'm not advocating that all children should be taught to play hide-and-seek this way. That would be ridiculous, and I'm afraid that good old game would soon die out in popularity. All I'm doing is pointing out that Annette, although she may have been wrong in her approach, was showing that she is unselfish. I feel sure that this unselfishness will manifest itself in her conduct throughout her life.

One sometimes thinks that selfishness is often a form of that very much overworked phrase, Inferiority Complex. The child or the adult is filled with the conviction that he isn't appreciated. It may be a form of resentment, but the reaction is to take all they can get. They have never learned the golden rule: Do unto others—"

The other four members of the Quintette don't show their unselfishness in such exaggerated form perhaps, but I have seen enough generosity on their part to convince me the we have nothing to fear in this regard. Marie doesn't hesitate to give her doll to Yvonne. That is, if she is convinced that her sister really does want to cuddle the doll. But if one of them thinks the other covets her toy with a selfish motive, she is just as quick to defend her property with all her might. Unselfishness doesn't just mean giving up everything to the other fellow without rhyme or reason.

GOOD MANNERS

Graduation Party

Dear Mrs. [illegible]eckman:

1—This is [illegible]ery early to be speaking of graduation parties, but I have to begin early in order to have money enough saved to have one. This will be my first graduation party, and it will be for my sister, whom I have raised, along with two still younger sisters. (I am married, and my sisters live with me.) Will you please tell me how to make it clear that I do not intend to have the guests to bring presents? You see everyone is so kind to me as they realize that I have had a struggle, and I can't help feeling that it might seem like charity if they bring gifts.

2—There will be about sixteen guests, all girls. Is that all right?

3—How should they be seated? Should they be seated in honor places just as at a formal dinner? I plan to have one long table, decorated, and there will be two or three teachers present also.

4—Please tell me what my duties are. Should I let the girls do all the receiving and entertaining?

Barbara

1—I would like to persuade you not to feel this way about the graduation gifts that your friends and your sister's friends may wish to bring to the party. Asking friends not to bring gifts never can be done gracefully. It always sounds awkward, and seems to emphasize unattractively the expectation that gifts might have been brought. Why not just leave it to the choice of the guests. A woman of your high character and generous nature would just have to have devoted friends, and it will be taking from them a great happiness if you "forbid" them to make the generous and friendly gesture that they wish to make. Girls love to give gifts . . . . they are an important part of a party, especially at a graduation party. Receive the gifts and let your sister have the joy of receiving them in the spirit in which inevitably they will be given. They will "seem like charity" only if you allow yourself to let them seem that way.

2—Yes, a graduation party may appropriately be an all-girl party.

3—At this kind of party I think that it would be wisest not to carry out all of the usual seating formalities. You, as hostess, would sit at the head of the table, and at your right you might place one of the teachers, chosen because of age and distinction and of length of teaching service in the school. Your sister might be seated opposite you, and at her right one of the other teachers. A third teacher might sit half way down one side of the table. This seems to be a good "distribution" of the adults, but, if you prefer, you might have the other teacher at your left.

4—I suggest that you and your sister greet and welcome the guests as they arrive. After all the guests have arrived, you and the teachers might withdraw to another room, if you wish, to chat together, leaving the girls together. Then you would join the girls for the luncheon or dinner.

Knobby Knees Ruin Body Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

KNOBBY KNEES are no beauty bargains. High heels can make them that way, as spikes cause ankles to become enlarged and get out of alignment. Too much fat will bring an ugly contour. That's not nice when the bathing suit is worn. It's not nice at any time, for that matter.

Anoint the palms of the hands with cocoanut oil, place both thumbs on the top of the knee, fingers underneath, give the flesh a rousing kneading. You're out to strengthen fibres and demolish adipose tissue, so don't save on elbow grease.

Twice a day sponge the surface of the skin with a strong salt solution one teaspoonful to half a cup of water.

Women with pepper and salt hair line up at the wailing wall and make a terrible fuss. Why should they, for goodness sake? It is fixed idea. Because they've heard others bawl, they think they must set up a how-de-do.

Locks that are black and white, or brown and white, carry entrancing lights and shadows. Their hair gets snowy first at the temples, probably because the growth is thinnest there and has less resistance. Then silver ribbons appear on the crowd. The back of the hair is the last to turn white. Nearly always the process works that way.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S FORUM

Following the church service at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening a meeting of the Young People's Forum was held. Reports of the annual week-end convention of the Bay of Quinte Conference held in Perth on October 15th and 16th were given. Mrs. T. K. Franklin reported on the social activities and Miss Margery Lashbrook on the events of Saturday. Mr. Taylor Franklin gave a summary of the address given by Rev. John McKay of Ottawa. Miss Myrtle Reid told about the Sunday evening service and Mr. Gordon Finlayson reported on the various discussion groups. Two musical numbers, a vocal solo by Mr. Jack Findlay of Albert College and a piano solo by Mr. William Connor were enjoyed.

May Irwin, Broadway's toast of the 90's and one of the brightest stars of the stage at the turn of the century, died recently after a short illness. Miss Irwin, 76, first won fame as a "coon" singer, then turning to comedy roles, she appeared year after year in starring vehicles. She retired from the stage in 1922 and since then her palatial home has been a mecca for former comrades of the stage. She is reputed to have made a fortune in real estate in addition to her stage earnings.

Religious Educational Council Meets at Roslin Church

Roslin—The annual meeting of the Religious Educational Council of Tweed and Hungerford was held in Roslin United Church on Friday, October 21st.

The afternoon session opened at 2.30 p.m. with Rev. J. W. Macdonald of the Presbyterian Church taking charge of the worship period.

Mr. Edward Davidson welcomed the delegates.

The President, Mr. Harold Varty of Tweed addressed the gathering and was in charge of the remainder of the meeting.

Reports of the Department Secretaries were given Rev. H. L. Morrison, pastor of Tweed United Church read the report of the Temperance Secretary, Mrs. S. G. Way, who urged Temperance Education and advocated the use of Posters which may be secured from The Ontario Temperance Society.

Rev. W. A. Hunter, of Tweed Presbyterian church gave the report of the Missionary Secretary, Mrs. H. Countryman, who felt there was not enough being taught in the Sunday Schools of what the church is doing at home and abroad in the missionary field with the result of a falling off in interest in Missions. Though more interest might be created in the Sunday Schools, suggested a catechism on missions, using a few questions on this subject each Sunday, putting the work before the children in a manner which they could understand.

Rev. H. B. Herington, Secretary of Leadership Training reported very little being done along this line. The secretaries of the following departments were not present, and no reports were given: Young People's, Adult Dept., Home Dept., Boys' Dept.

Mrs. Albert McTaggart gave suggestions for girls work, and Mrs. H. B. Herrington, who gave the report of the Children's Department said she was very pleased to represent the children and felt this was a very important department, as it is the children who will fill the churches in years to come. Showed posters and pictures and spoke of their value in teaching young children. Stressed the worship period, and having young children separate from the main school. Answering roll call with Bible verses.

Mrs. Morrison of Tweed gave a talk on the "Art of Questioning Pupils".

Much time is spent in story telling but teachers should also know how to question. Six kinds of questions to use are Preparation Questions, Recitation Questions, Development Questions, Review Questions Examination Questions, Personal Questions. Jesus used many of this type.

A hymn was sung and Rev. Mr. Snelgrove offered a short prayer.

Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh, Provincial Representative then led a discussion at which many interesting questions were brought forward.

The nominating committee were appointed, meeting during the luncheon hour.

The Treasurer gave the financial report for the past year.

"Abide with me" was sung and Rev. W. A Hunter closed the meeting with prayer.

The ladies of Roslin United Church served a delicious supper.

The evening session was opened with a song service led by Mrs. Herrington. The worship period was conducted by Rev. H. L. Morrison of Tweed. Rev. F. C. Beazer of the Anglican Church gave a short talk.

Mr. Fred Blakley invited the convention to hold their meeting next year in Bethel United Church.

The newly elected officers were installed by Rev. Mr. Herrington and Rev. Mr. Beazer.

Past President, Mr. Harold Varty.
President, Mr. F. Howes.
Vice President, Mr. H. Cordy.
Secretary Treasurer, Mrs. C. Kleinsteuber.

Department: Children's, Mrs. H. B. Herrington; Girls', Mrs. H. L. Morrison; Boys', Mrs. O. Edgley; Young People's, Miss B. Gordon; Adult, Mrs. H. Tucker; Home Dept., Mrs. A. McTaggart; Teacher Training, Rev. H. L. Morrison; Missionary, Mrs. H. Countryman; Temperance, Mrs. S. G. Way.

Mrs. McTaggart gave the report of the Resolution Committee

The new president, Mr. F. Howes was introduced and spoke briefly.

Mrs. Herrington explained the promotion exercises which have proved very successful in Thomasburg Sunday School and which are being adopted by other Sunday Schools throughout the district.

Rev Mr. Vanderburgh again addressed the gathering, speaking of the Apostle Paul who was not allowed his first choice, but who through faith in God took the second choice and accepted the Macedonian Call and from there the Gospel spread westward and came to our ancestors. He spoke of the lives of Joseph, Phillip Brooks, and Sir Walter Scott, each of whom made a success of the second best.

The choir sang "Make me a channel of Blessing" and Rev. Mr. Herrington closed the meeting with prayer.

"I WAS THERE!"

MOIRA W. A.

Moira ladies of the W.A. held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. James Vandewater with a splendid attendance of thirty members and visitors. The ladies met in the forenoon and started the quilting of two quilts, one for Mrs. Geo. Poste and the other for Mrs. E. Harrison. A very sumptuous pot luck dinner was served by the hostesses. At 2.30 the President, Mrs. F. Emerson opened the meeting with a hymn, followed by prayer by Mrs. Chas. Ketcheson. Scripture lesson was taken by Mrs. John Morton. Mrs. J. Vanderwater then gave the minutes, secretary's report and also called the roll call.

Discussion of raising funds led to a decision to hold a Hallowe'en party. Mrs. Arthur Emerson and Miss Betty Foster then sang a pleasing duet "Alone". A reading "A bit of living" was given by Miss Lily Poste. Mrs. J. Vanderwater and Mrs. J. Williams then favored with a piano duet. An enjoyable solo "I shall not pass again this way" was given by Mrs. Nelson Welsh. This was followed by closing hymn and Lord's prayer in unison. Collection amounted to $7.70.

PRESENTATION TO NEWLYWEDS

On Friday evening, Oct. 15th, a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at Sidney Town Hall to honor a popular young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Morley Phillips, who were recently married.

Mr. S. Nicholson acted as chairman. A program was given consisting of speeches, readings and musical selections. Miss Audrey Nicholson read the following address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Phillips:

On the occasion of your recent marriage, we your friends and neighbors, have gathered here this evening to express to you our sincere best wishes and heartiest congratulations.

It is our earnest desire that as you venture out on the sea of matrimony, you may successfully weather together any necessary gales and find smooth sailing into the harbour of a happy home.

Your pleasing personality and willingness to help others has won a place in the hearts of all present.

As a slight expression of the high regards in which you are held we ask you to accept these, and we hope that in their use they may serve many times to remind you of your many friends.

It is our sincere wish that every blessing and happiness may rest on your home.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors, Mr. Harry Patrick, Mr. Roy Lockwood.

Many useful and beautiful gifts were presented to the guests of honor in a miscellaneous shower.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips will reside at Wallbridge.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Makes a Successful Marriage?

Every Husband or Wife Should Have an Outside Interest

A hobby has saved many a jittery marriage, headed for the rocks. It removes for the time one of the pro tem dictators, naggers, grouchers, fault-finders, or whatever the human cussedness of the moment may be, from the scene of action. The domestic air clears, the storm is averted. Encourage hobbies and outside interests—don't quarrel with them.

Perhaps Friend Husband or Friend Wife has none of the foregoing unpleasant traits incorporated, in his or her excellent disposition. But remember, there are times that try peoples' souls and tempers. Heaped-up worries scourge most of us into the slough of despond. It's a good thing to have an outside interest to call us away from that particular quagmire, even for a little while.

Nothing restores poise and offers a perch to the dove of peace, in wholesome outside interest or a a worry-torn household, like some hobby.

If hiking, swimming, golfing or some other hearty form of exercise appeals to the good man, please send him off with a smile. His anxieties may leave scant room for a smile, when he departs, but the exercise will put to rout his blue devils and his own particular Fear Demon, whatever it may be. Exercise, that booster to exercise, will wear down the fine edge of his ill-humour.

Of course, anxious times are as hard on women as they are on men. Perhaps even harder, for there are no minimum hours for housewives. Their day begins early and ends late, combining the functions of housekeeper, nurse, cook, laundress.

If a woman has a shred of energy left, after her multiple household jobs, it's not only humane but decent to speed her to that outside interest, whatever it may be—cards, visits, movies, music or what have you.

The dependable solution of an outside interest or hobby to grease the domestic wheels, is brought to grief so often by a jealousy as stupid as it is unreasonable. Husbands and wives are jealous of they know no what, but out it comes—the green-eyed monster.

If the husband joins his old friends for an innocent card-game, or the wife decides to belong to a lodge, club or organization where she can forget, for the time being, the long day she has left behind and the equally long day awaiting her, out comes the grouch.

When a man and a woman marry they have every right to expect pleasant evenings at home. The husband who jams on his hat as soon as he has wolfed down his supper isn't playing the game squarely. Equally unfair is the woman who spends her days gadding and returns only in time to open and warm up a can of something for the evening meal.

Presumably people marry for companionship, and they have a right to feel aggrieved if one or the other is left lonesome the greater part of the time. But equally, every man and every woman has a right to an evening out and a chance to pursue the lifesaver—an outside interest. The chief thing wrong with marriage is its possessiveness. The outside interest or hobby makes us all easier to live with, and gives us something to talk about, helps to give us our individual place in the sun.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

CHAPTER XV.

Near the club's entrance, at one end of the imitation "garden" and running almost the whole breadth of it, was a long bar. Harriet Brewster had joined the throng there with her partner. Presently Toni was aware that Niklas was heading once more for her table.

But not alone. Directly behind him was the tall figure of a man. The crowd was still so thick upon the dance floor that the man's face was not visible to Toni, but a thrilling premonition came to her.

Her heart beat fast with excitement.

Then Niklas's voice: "Marquise, may I present Mr. Halstead-Flagg? This"—with a ring of triumph—"is our star, sir."

"May I sit down?"

"Do, please." As she set her glass upon the table, her hand shook so that some of the champagne spattered on the cloth. She hoped he did not notice it.

At a sign from Niklas, Monsieur Alphonse rose, bowed, and excused himself. Niklas crossed to the bar, to Miss Brewster. Guy Halstead-Flagg and Toni were left alone.

"May I congratulate you on your beautiful voice?"

He had, she thought, a charming voice, too. Resonant. Deep and yet gentle. It caressed one.

"Thank you. I am glad you liked it."

She was nervous as a schoolgirl.

"Your rendition of the songs was perfect." He was looking directly at her. Unsmiling. It was a penetrating regard. "Also, your accent." Accent. Why had he added that?—she wondered.

She was supposed to be French. An aristocrat. Naturally, one would assume that any one with the rank of marquise would at least speak her native tongue perfectly.

"Did you," she asked, returning his look with a cool, half-bantering smile, "expect me to have a patois?" Her eyes met his directly, and held them or a long moment.

It was, he thought, more than a rebuke. A challenge. His interest increased.

Despite her bizarre make-up and the towering white wig, Guy Halstead-Flagg had recognized Toni immediately as the girl who had sat alone that night in the New Gallic Casino, the girl who had lunched with the notorious Niklas and his high-powered publicity man only a few weeks before at the Ritz-Carlton.

Moreover, he had observed her stumble on her last appearance in the revue. He had gone to the New Gallic Casino the next night, impelled, by a premonition that she might have been fired for that single instance of awkwardness.

His surmise was presumably correct. The tall, slim beauty was gone.

And here she was as the foreign star of a new night club, exhibiting an amazing talent. She had sung as one inspired.

"You are a good actress." He spoke very deliberately, choosing his words.

Surely, she thought, they had a veiled meaning.

Or was it merely her nervous imagination?

"I have to be one." She picked up her fan from the table. A perfumed trifle of painted gauze. She waved it with seeming nonchalance, staring ahead of her, half smiling.

"Doubtless," he replied.

They were fencing. Instinctively she realised it.

"Will you have a glass of champagne?"

"Thank you. And you?" He lifted the gold-labeled bottle.

"Please. Just a little." She needed fortifying.

He filled her glass and one for himself.

"Let us drink," he suggested, "to your putting it over, marquise. That is the correct toast, is it not?"

"No." She set her glass down. "Monsieur, I do not like the expression, 'putting it over!'"

"So our American slang is displeasing to you?" He shrugged. "Forgive me. I drink, then, to your grand success! That is better?"

"Certainement."

They drank.

"You remind me," he said slowly, "of some one. From the moment you appeared on the balcony, I had that impression."

"Indeed? Monseiur, that is no compliment. Unless she was ver-ree beautiful?" She smiled at him with deliberate coquetry. Their eyes challenged.

"Not nearly as lovely as you are —now." The last word seemed an afterthought.

Yet Toni knew it had some purpose. Had he recognized her as the showgirl in the New Gallic Casino?—she wondered. Or, farther back, when their gaze had met in that shaft of light?

But, even so, there was nothing, surely, of which to be afraid. He was no enemy. Or was he?

Why would he bait her, even if he had guessed her subterfuge?

Had he guessed it?—she wondered.

Even if she had appeared in the revue of the New Gallic Casino, she could still be the French blue blood, forced to earn her livelihood in newer, more profitable worlds. She would stick to Lou Steiner's story. Play her part to the limit. Defy this man whom she now felt she hated.

"Paint and powder do many things to a woman," she told him.

"To the soul, perhaps, also?"

What an extraordinary remark!

"The soul," she said deliberately, "is what you call an outworn commodity in your America, demodee. You have no room for the soul in your mad chase for money!"

"Then why are you here?" he challenged, grinning. "Madame la Marquise!"

He thought her married?. Or a widow? Or an adventuress? Most certainly the last. "As indeed I am," thought Toni.

But none of her emotion showed. She remained outwardly calm.

But he knew she was inwardly seething when she said coldly: "For your wicked dollars. What else would bring me to this so mad city?"

There was a tense pause.

"You think me rude, perhaps?"

She shrugged. "I have no particular thoughts about you, monsieur," she forced herself to answer, "except the happy reflection that in France, the gentlemen"—she emphasized the word mockingly—"show more finesse in addressing the ladies."

The barb went home.

Under his tanned skin, Guy Halstead-Flagg reddened. He had asked for it, and he had got it.

He longed to shake her, and yet she had a devilish attraction.

Who was she?—he wondered. A professional? He didn't think so. A come-on? More likely that!

The notorious Niklas and his decoy. Naturally she would have the semblance of a lady, considering the clientele he aimed at!

"When I said you reminded me of some one," he told her, faltering a little and annoyed at his confusion, "it was a painting—let me see—in the Louvre, I think."

"The Mona Lisa?" Her lovely lips curled. "Always when the gentlemen do not understand everything about a woman, they call her the Mona Lisa," she mocked him.

"Granted."

"Without a leetle mystery we are nothing! The fisherman grows bored—ennuye—when he sees clear to the bottom of the pool!"

"It is charming of you to create the mystery," he said shortly, keenly watching her face. She was an enigma. Or was she? She was putting on an act to earn a living

And such a living! He thought of his young brother, Randy, dead these past three years. A girl like this one—lovely, talented, and wicked, had destroyed him. Were he a Samson, he would tear down this night club and all it represented!

"I am no mystery. I am what I am."

"A beauty. An enchantress. I prophesy this club will have a great success." His eyes shone with the hardness of steel.

To her own amazement, she heard herself asking: "Why do you come here when you know you hate it?"

"Hate it?" He feigned surprise. "That is a hard word, marquise. I come"—he smiled sardonically—"because the study of human nature intrigues me. I am an observer."

"Like Sherlock Holmes, perhaps?"

She was fencing with him. Now he definitely knew that Niklas had instructed her beforehand. That was why he had brought him to her. Niklas suspected him, wtih reason.

He was convinced of this, when, deftly, she started to question him about his doings in New York. Niklas had brought them together so that she might pump him, find out just how much he knew or suspected, foil him on his own ground.

He lifted the bottle of champagne, started to refill her glass.

"Please, no. I have had enough, thank you." She put a slim white hand on his arm—a lovely hand, he noticed.

She was the right girl in the wrong job, obviously. Did she realize she was on the edge of a volcano?—he wondered.

"I am surprised, marquise. I had the impression that you liked playing with fire." He smiled. He had excellent white teeth.

"If you refer to yourself, monsieur, there is no fire in your heart," she said, to his amazement. "Only a piece of ice. It tnikles. Its words to me echo hollow. Pardon my frankness."

"Marquise, you are compietely wrong." But there was no ardor in the phrase. It sounded ironical.

And so did the words: "I had to meet you. You drew me like a magnet across the room."

"I did not even see you," she fibbed. And waved her fan, smiling over its perfumed gauze with deliberate challenge.

"You have the heartlessness," he grinned, "of your ancestress, the royal collector of male scalps."

"And who was that?"

"You mean to tell me you don't read the papers? All your press notices? The clever, inimitable Lou Steiner?"

He was insufferable. She told so. She rose.

He thought, reluctantly, that not even Marie Antoinette had greater dignity. Just so would she dismiss a courtier who had overstepped the bounds. He was about to apologize when he was aware of Harriet Brewster at his elbow.

"Guy, will you kindly introduce me to Madame la Marquise?"

With a sense of relief, almost of gratitude, Toni observed no hostility in the eyes of the woman. Only bright friendliness.

They shook hands.

CHAPTER XVI.

Le Chateau de la Marquise became the mecca of fashionable New York, its chatelaine the rage.

Niklas had guessed right. Park Avenue, Fifth Avenue, even hard-boiled Broadway clamored for the membership that was purely nominal, designed by Niklas and his press agent to keep out the "riff-raff," and set at a mere ten dollars.

"Nicky, we could have stung 'em for two hundred bucks and they'd have fallen for it, hook, line and sinker," regretted the astute Lou Steiner.

"I don't need the money," Niklas bit the words off short. Not even to his press agent would he reveal the manifold sources of his income.

"She's a riot, Nicky, that girl."

"She is an aristocrat. It is no lie. But you must think up new things for her, Lou. A minuet, for instance?"

"She needs no partner. She must star alone."

"True." Niklas rubbed his hands together, as was his custom when well pleased.

"I am thinking of removing her from the quiet hotel at Riverdale, and setting her up in her own apartment on Park Avenue."

The press agent stared piercingly at his boss.

He trusted few people, did Lou Steiner, and least of all, the clever Niklas.

So? A rendezvous? The wind lay in that quarter, did it?

"You are all wrong. I have no romantic intentions toward our litle Antoinette. She is much too valuable as is." She grinned sardonically, having instantly gauged Lou's suspicion.

Lou laughed.

"You don't mix business with pleasure, do you? That's wise, Nicky. Once bitten, y'know. Lola—"

Niklas's face fell. "I have learned my lesson. She—is she better, Lou? You called the sanitarium this morning, as directed?"

"She's so-so. Nicky, it sure is a stiff cure!"

Toni was amazed, then delighted, when the press agent told her of her forthcoming change of abode.

"Niklas will set you up handsomely on Park Avenue. Genuine French antique furniture. A proper setting, considering your ancestry." He winked.

At first she had hated those sly winks, the knowledge that she had lent herself to what was practically a fake. But one grew accustomed to those things.

The thought of a place of her own was charming. A place where the distinguished Guy Halstead-Flagg might see her as she really was, devoid of stagy costumes, the spotlight, the crowd.

She might even cook him a little dinner. Gone was her dislike of him. She told herself he was a real friend. Perhaps even more than a friend; who knew? Her heart rose on the thought.

Her own setting! The friendship would progress far quicker.

That night he had come to the club alone. He often came alone now, and stayed late.

Was she the magnet?—Toni wondered.

Niklas now permitted her to sit, between performances, at a tiny table against the wall. Only the favored enjoyed the privilege of stiting with her, talking to her. To her table Niklas brought the most influential of his customers, the richest and most charming men.

Guy Halstead-Flagg was, to her mind, the outstanding one.

They would talk on a wide variety of subjects. He was well-informed, a delightful companion.

Now it was two in the morning, and she was singing a new song.

Halfway down the stairs from the balcony to the dance floor, she almost missed a line, faltered, then recovered herself by a supreme effort.

For there, at her own table, staring at her boldly, a queer grin on his face, was the man who had cruelly jilted her—Brock Milbank.

Brock Milbank had come to the night club where Toni was singing! Faithless, money-loving Brock whom she had thought three thousand miles away.

What in the world had brought him here?—she wondered. Was Jessica with him?

No, he sat alone. Was it fate or deliberate intent that had guided him to the very table of the girl he had jilted?

She had made a new life here. Was even this to be taken from her?

As her eyes for a brief moment met his gaze, the last remnant of love died, and hatred took its place, so that for a mad moment she felt that she could willingly kill him.

And with that feeling came courage. She sang the last verse of her song in glorious voice. It was an enchanting trifle, set to Lul's music, which was the music of Marie Antoinette. At the end of her song, applause rang through Le Chateau de la Marquise.

She sang an encore. A gay ditty. Niklas came forward. Under the second round of applause he whispered, beaming: "Miss Brewster would like you to join her party."

Guy was at Miss Brewster's table. If only she could open her heart, tell her fears to him!

"Marquise, you have a wonderful talent," Harriet Brewster told her smilingly.

Guy set a chair for Toni between himself and the Park Avenue heiress. Only Toni's profile was visible to Brock Milbank across the room, the curve of her exquisite shoulder in its low-cut gown. He wouldn't dare to come over and speak to her. Or would he?

She drained a glass of champagne.

Courage! She would get a cab in a few minutes. It was just on the cards that Brock hadn't recognized her. It was past two in the morning, and her quick glimpse of him indicated that he had been drinking.

Befuddlement would not aid recognition, in this costume!

Impossible—so very thoroughly, thought Toni, had she covered her tracks—for Brock to have traced her to this one nigth club out of New York's teeming places of amusement, when no one in San Francisco knew of her work, not even her parents!

And neither Niklas nor his press agent would ever admit that their belle marquise had her beginnings as Toni Goddard!

There was comfort in this thought.

By turning her back on Guy and directing her talk to Harriet Brewster, her face was completely hidden from Brock.

"Marquise, I am giving a cocktail party at my house on Friday afternoon. I know that you don't go out much socially—that you have to conserve your strength for your work here—but it would please me if you would drop in, any time between five and seven," Miss Brewster told her.

"Thank you, I shall be delighted to come," Toni replied.

In the midst of her confusion over Brock, Toni wondered if this woman were really as friendly as she seemed.

That society was false, she knew. Back in San Francisco where, now, were her many so-called friends?

A vague message or two had been relayed to Toni by her parents.

Her disappearance had only caused the temporary ripple of a stone dropped to the bottom of a pool. That was all.

But Niklas wanted her to appear socially, now she was established as a singer, and a mysterious aristocrat. The very fact that he was willing and eager to set her up in her own apartment on Park Avenue, proved that he wanted her to be seen in the proper setting, to entertain in society!

The music struck up.

Toni prayed with all her heart that Guy would ask her to dance. They would have but a turn on the dance floor, and she would tell him that she was tired, and ask him to put her in a cab, and so make her escape.

On the way, there would be time for reflection.

A line of conduct toward Brock would be thought out. Morning brought wisdom. But get away quickly. Suppose Jessica came to join her husband, recognized her, and was jealous Exposure of who and what she was would doubtless follow.

The champagne-colored eyes of Harriet Brewster flicked from Toni to the handsome man beyond. "This is our dance, Guy." Her eyes carressed him.

"She's mad about him," thought Toni forlornly, deciding she would slip quickly to her dressing room, change, and be off.

As Guy and Harriet made their way to the dance floor, a young man at the table asked Toni to dance. She declined, and rose to leave.

As she did so, she was tremblingly aware that Brock Milbank stood beside her, swaying tipsily as he put a hand on her arm to stop her.

"Thish, Toni, is what you might call an unexshpected pleashuh." He grinned. "You, in New York, 'n' all dolled up like a plush horsh."

CASSEROLE OF FISH AND PEAS

2 cups cooked or canned fish, flaked
2 cups cooked peas
2 cups white sauce
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced thinly
1 tablespoon of lemon juice
Pepper and salt (if needed)

Place in layers in a greased casserole. . . . a layer of sauce, then fish, lemon juice, peas and seasonings, topping with pie crust or fine buttered bread crumbs. Chopped pickles or stuffed olives may be added if desired. Bake in a hot oven 20 to 30 minutes, or until the crust is brown and the filling is hot. Serves 6.

OVEN STEAMED FISH WITH PINEAPPLE

Place slices or fillets of fish in a well-oiled baking pan and sprinkle generously with salt. Place the pan in a moderate oven—350 to 400 deg. Fahr. —and cook until the fish is tender (about 10 minutes). The fish is cooked by the steam which is produced from the juices drawn out of the fish in cooking. Arrange the cooked fish on a hot platter and garnish with baked, broiled or fried pineapple rings and sprigs of fresh parsley.

Smythe and Irwin of Leafs Build Dynamic Young Machine To Carry Hopes of Toronto

Only Two of Old Guard Remain in Horner and Jackson

YOUTH AND SPEED

Team, However, Badly in Need of Right Winger to Replace Conacher

(This is the first of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of N.H.L. teams. Others will follow).

(By Jack Calder Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP)—Carrying along a campaign to build a dynamic young machine, Toronto Maple Leafs will enter the new National Hockey League season with but two members of their brilliant cast of 1930-31, when their star was last in the ascendancy.

Only big Red Horner, defenceman who captained the club last season, and Harvey Jackson, who has held his own at left wing despite the challenges of young players, remain of the team of eight years ago. Other members of that combination of individual stars—the Clancys, the Days and the Baileys—have passed along with the seasons.

Conacher Last to Go

Last to go was Charlie Conacher, twice the league's scoring leader and always its unluckiest player. Brittle-boned Charlie, who might have been the greatest forward of his generation but for injuries and illnesses, was sold to Detroit this fall

The best right winger to come around the bend since Conacher made his appearance, Gordie Drillon became the club's standout when ill-health forced Charlie out the middle of last winter. But Drillon's heavy attacking and opportunism which brought him league scoring title, detracted nothing from the fact the Leafs were changing from a team of stylists to a balanced, rushing unit.

Many Youngsters on Squad

Manager Conny Smythe and Coach Dick Irvin have stressed co-ordination in training sessions at Galt and Preston, Ont.—co-ordination and condition, youth and speed. Those things carried the Leafs to the league championship over Boston's favored Bruins last spring. And, though Chicago defeated the Leafs in Stanley cup finals, the critics said then: "Watch Toronto next season."

This Toronto team will bear more than watching, for it will be alert and ever-aggressive. That could hardly be helped with so many youngsters eager to gain promotion from Toronto's Syracuse farm and from amateur ranks.

Key positions will be held by third-year men, notably Drillon, Sylvanis Apps, Jimmy Fowler and Turk Broda. Apps, wine passing, his puzzling shift through the defence and his magnificent temperament helped make Drillon great. Fowler, a rushing defenceman and a game blocker, and Broda, a goalie who has risen to the heights on occasion, will be called on to carry heavier loads with the coming of rookies.

Defence Problem Ended

Smythe feels the defence problem has ended with an improvement in the play of Bingo Kampman, bumping blond whose main fault in his N.H.L. baptism last season was crudeness. If he measures up to the standard of Horner, Fowler and the hard-hitting Reg Hamilton, Smythe will let that quartet ride for the winter. Otherwise, Jack Howard or Jack Church may have to be called in from Syracuse.

Irvin says the forward lines won't be announced until the end of the week. But it is certain Bob Davidson will be a left wing on the Apps-Drillon line. His persistent checking and trailing make him a safety valve.

Bill Thoms will start at centre with Jackson, and there the certainties end for the Leafs are under-staffed at right wing. Buzz Boll and Bill Cunningham are fighting for that place on the second line and Pep Kelly seems a sure starter on the third, but none of them has started to look like a Drillon or a Conacher. Boll may draw the second-line assignment because of a big-league experience, of which Cunningham has none.

Battle For Positions

George Parsons, a pinchhitter last term, is ready to go at left wing on the third string. The battle for the centre position is between Pete Langelle and Murray Armstrong, both up from Syracuse. Both eager and confident.

Murph Chamberlain a sophomore, and Nick Metz, a veteran, are having to struggle for forward positions and one of them may be carried as a reserve. Metz's brother, Don, appears to be one of the best of the amateurs trying out and the only others still in the running are also forwards, Wally Stanowski, widely eraided member of the Dominion junior champions from St. Boniface, Man., and Bobby Laurent, quiet Toronto junior.

Picture to Trace Game of Baseball From Its Beginning

(By Gayle Talbot Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)— There are going to be some startled movie fans as soon as the National Baseball League gets its new super-special, "The National Sport," distributed around the United States.

Abraham Lincoln, it turns out, couldn't keep his mind on Civil War battles for wondering whether New York baseballers had defeated Illinois baseballers in their latest contest on the banks of the Manassas.

It practically drove General Grant nuts, because the General wanted to discuss battles, and he didn't like to have all his swiftest couriers tied up with dashing back and forth between the capital and field headquarters with the latest sporting extras for the President.

The new side of the much biographed Civil War President was disclosed to an impressed audience at the picture's preview here. Among those who saw the preview were Commissioner Kenesaw Landis, President Will Harridge of the American League and President Ford Frick of the National League.

A Big Moment

One of the biggest moments came when a lathered boy in blue burst into the tent and thrust the 6 p.m. Blue Streak Special, still damp from the presses, into Lincoln's eager hands. Quickly honest Abe rifled through it and discovered the Illinois sluggers had won. He turned on General Grant, who was eating a cigar and trying to get a word in edgewise about a battle he had in mind.

"There General," he said, "more important than winning battles is to get all these young men back home so they can play baseball."

It must be said to the credit of Ford Frick, who penned the scenario, that he did not have the President specify National League baseball.

The scene, though, is guaranteed to make any audience forget what happened to the National League's representatives in the recent world series. The picture traces the history of baseball fom the day Abner Doubieday had his "vision".

BUSHER TRIES TO TAKE OFF WEIGHT

Will Not Talk Contract Terms Till He Reaches 192 Pounds

Preston, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP)—Harvey Jackson's struggle to reduce seems to be one of the main items of interest around camp these days as Toronto Maple Leafs and Syracuse Stars prepare for their winter hockey campaigns.

Big Harvey who patrols the left boards for the Leafs in the National League weighed 197 today after eating a skimpy diet breakfast but he wants to lose at least five more before talking contract with Manager Conny Smythe. The team boss wants the Busher to do the same—so its unanimous.

Jackson doesn't relish the idea of dieting and says he can't see where he is going to take any more weight off [illegible] added "it's O.K. with me, even [illegible] do get hungry sometimes."

The rest of the boys have a keen interest in Harvey's campaign against extra weight, and Buzz Boll marked "210" on Jackson's weight chart yesterday. Coach Dick Irvin started to figure out more drastic reducing measures for the winger before Buzz confessed.

Pittsburgh Chosen As Best Football Team in U. S.

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)— The Panthers of Pittsburgh are just as good in the ballot box as they are on the field. Of 100 sportwriters who participated in the season's second Associated Press poll, 90 today chose Pittsburgh as the best college football team in the United States. Nine others picked them for second place and one for third. Pitt got 989 points, only 11 from a perfect score, to top the first 10 for the second straight week.

Minnesota, 308 points behind the Panthers, stayed ahead of California in the race for second, Texas Christian climbed from seventh to fourth and Santa Clara from sixth to fifth. Dartmouth, greatly harassed by Harvard's defence Saturday, fell from fourth to sixth, while Notre Dame dropped from fifth to seventh. Fordham and Oklahoma displaced Duke and Syracuse as the ninth and 10th teams

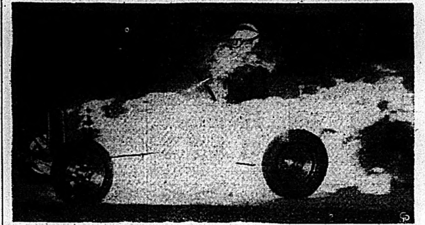
ANOTHER NEW STAR COMES OUT OF THE WEST!



This spectacular picture was taken just at the instant the midget racing car, driven by Fred Friday, burst into flames during a race in Hollywood. Remaining cool in spite of the danger, Friday swerved his car away from the infield attendants, unbuckled his safety belt, and leaped to safety. He suffered severe burns. A broken fuel line caused the fire which soon encompassed the car from end to end.

Standouts in last Saturday's football games on eastern and western fronts were Annis Stukus, LEFT, quarterback with Toronto Argonauts, and Fritz Hanson, RIGHT, fleet halfback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers. As Argonauts defeated Ottawa Rough Riders, 10-6, to take over leadership of the Big Four, Stukus scored all their points as he chalked up a touchdown, convert, field goal and single. The touchdown came when he caught a 26-yard pass and galloped 55 more over the Ottawa line. Hanson, out most of the season with a leg injury has come back with a vengeance and went over for three majors as the Bombers downed Regina, 19-6. The previous week he had scored another brace of touchdowns.

JUST FRIENDS—FOR THE MOMENT

Come Nov. 3 these two husky specimens will be extending their hands toward each other's chins instead of each other's hands. LEFT, is Ceferino Garcia, challenger for the world's welterweight title, now in possession of Henry Armstrong, the party he is shaking hands with. Nov. 3 is the date of their meeting. That left eye of Henry's looks as if it hasn't quite recovered from the fight against Lou Ambers, when the dusky sensation annexed the lightweight crown.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)— Jack Dodd, Nebraska's crack back who made the 90-yard touchdown against Minnesota, hails from Gothenburg, Neb....The point is Jack, who is strictly Irish, is about the only non-Swede in the town... Duke's 7-0 win over Wake Forest wasn't so hot, but Ted Mann, crack Duke publicist, had an answer for it....He said: "Gents, remember we still are unbeaten unscored-on and unembarrassed"....Nice going, mister.

Texas Christian Horned Frogs got a laugh out of a line in a Philadelphia paper which called them "the pride of the panhandle"—which is only 1,700 miles from home....haw! ....1939 Tulane opponents might paste this in their reference book: 19 of the 23 players used to beat Rice will be back next season.

Press agents of the National Football League naturally are not broadcasting the fact that two of its crack teams recently were spilled by the Cincinnati Bengals, a team composed largely of small college players and cast-offs....The teams dumped were Chicago Bears (17-14) and Pittsburgh Pirates (27-0) ....They ought to get those Bengals in the league or something....Look for plenty of changes on Washington Senators next season.

A bit of a change from the gridiron pictures that fill the sport pages these days is this one of Jane Lundquist, who serves as coxswain with a fraternity orwing crew at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The boys in the crew tried to keep the identity of their leader a secret, but the news leaked out and they had to practise in the dark to keep photographers away.

The annual financial campaign of the Y.M.C.A. was ushered in last evening when 60 well known and recognized business men took it upon themselves to raise $5,000.00 to assist in the required operating expenses of the "Y". Generally speaking the public does not realize how much work and efforts are put forward by the Y.M.C.A. towards the uplifting and education of our teen aged boys, who are not affiliated with the Association. There's the Ki-Y softball and hockey leagues for example, their annual open house and annual Hallowe'en party, free to all for fun and frivolity. Besides the advantages of physical and social activities, there is the swimming pool, which can be used by non-members for a very small fee. Last season there were 109 groups and organizations which held 387 meetings in the buildings, many of which were not affiliated with the Association in any manner. For the young growing boy the "Y" has much to offer—so if Johnnie hasn't a membership, dig down. If there isn't a Johnnie in your family, perhaps some other not-so-fortunate kid would get as big a kick out of a ticket for the "Y" as you will in giving him one. Try it and see how it feels.

Little known a quarter of a century ago the game of badminton has rapidly advanced in Canadian popularity and is one of the ranking games played across the Dominion during the indoor season. Jack Purcell, Toronto player, is today recognized as the world's champion and exponent of badminton. There are several badminton clubs in Belleville, the primary one being the club operating at the Armouries. Then we have the club at the O.S.D., courts at the Y.M.C.A. besides several private church courts. President Bob Brown of the Belleville Badminton Club announced today that the season's activities would get under way at the Armouries this week, most likely Thursday night. "We are planning to officially open the season with a special Hallowe'en badminton party," revealed President Brown. As the Belleville Badminton Club is limited to a certain number, which has a waiting list at present, an afternoon club is conducted for beginners and those who are in a position to play during the daytime.

First Played in India

According to the history of badminton it was first known as "Poona" and was played many centuries ago in India. It was introduced by British Army officers in England around 1870. The Duke of Beauford may be credited with holding the first tournament when he presented the sport to English society at a house party in 1873 at his residence "Badminton," in Gloucestershire, England, from where the game got its present name.

Badminton boomed so rapidly and gained such popularity from the start that an association was formed in 1896 which is now recognized as the governing organization of the sport throughout the world. The first official matches were not held until 1904 and now there are thousands of games every night during the cooler weather in Canada.

Badminton was introduced in the Dominion after the turn of the century and it is hard to realize that National champions were not recognized until sixteen years ago, although today there are thousands of players from coast to coast. The States is only starting to take a general interest in the sport but as soon as it gets better known across the border it will probably spread like wild fire.

Tougher Than Tennis

Played strenuously badminton is one of the hardest games. Ranking tennis players, who play both sports, claim that three sets of badminton are more exhausting than five sets of tennis. In tennis the rallies are not as rapid as in badminton. The flight of a tennis ball may be faster than a shuttle but the tennis ball can be taken on a bounce and generally travels a much longer distance, while the badminton bird darts around a small playing surface.

Considering that most of the badminton players learned the game as adults and that it was only played here by a few before the war it must be agreed that the sport has made more progress in a short time than any other game.

A 14-year-old junior sprinter was named as Ontario's outstanding girl athlete for 1938, Miss Isabel McKean, of Toronto, who will receive the Norman Craig Memorial Trophy as a mark of distinction for her laurels. Miss McKean's greatest effort of the year was in establishing a new Dominion record of 7.6 seconds for the junior 60-metre event.

Last week's efforts to induce local basketball enthusiasts in attending an organization meeting at the Y.M.C.A. proved rather futile, doubtless due to the exceptionally fine weather. Undaunted, however, and feeling there is plenty of available material for intermediate and junior cage teams in Belleville, all interested in playing basketball are urged to attend a meeting at the "Y" on Wednesday night for the purpose of organizing city teams to compete in the E.O.B.A. A pre-season training will get under way immediately, in the form of a city basketball league, all of which will be discussed at the "Y" tomorrow.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

Heading west to join New York Americans are a couple of the National Hockey League's most experienced travellers, Leroy Goldsworthy and Art Jackson, obtained from Boston by Manager Red Dutton in a last minute effort to strengthen before next week's schedule opening.

Goldsworthy, one of the game's prettiest skaters, was bought outright and Jackson, a brother of Harvey Jackson of Toronto Maple Leafs, was transferred on option, for at least a season. Goldsworthy has played with Montreal Canadiens, Chicago and Boston, while Jackson will be with his third club in three seasons, having gone to Boston from Toronto last year.

Dutton hopes the pair arrive at Saskatoon in time to appear in tonight's exhibition with New York Rangers. Jackson would replace the injured Lorne Carr on a line with Sweeney Schriner and Art Chapman, while Goldsworthy is expected to play on a new line with Red Beattie and Johnny Sorrell.

Alex Shibicky, who suffered a bruised hand in Saturday's mix, will not play in tonight's wheat league engagement. Manager Lester Patrick of the Rangers has so many reserves he hardly minds when a regular gets hurt, for he can give one of the youngsters a try under fire.

The Bruins' sale of Goldsworthy and Jackson means Manager Art Ross will form a new line of youngsters, none older than 24. The six candidates for the three jobs are Harry Frost, Roy Conacher, Pat McHeavy and Terry Reardon, who have signed professional contracts within the last two days, and Red Hamill and Mel Hill, recalled from Boston's former International-American League farm at Providence.

Carl Voss may be through with big time hockey after widely-travelled career. The veteran was sent home to Toronto by Chicago Black Hawks yesterday with a knee injury that may keep him out for the season. Voss' N.H.L. experience has included jobs with Toronto, New York Rangers, Detroit, Boston, the old St. Louis Flyers and Montreal Maroons, and Chicago.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP) — Stocks displayed a moderately strong tone today on the Toronto market, especially coming forward on increasing volume. Turnover crowded the 850,000 share mark. The mining indices were up at the close and other index groups were inclined to improve though all the early losses were not erased.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 25—(AP)—Stocks sparred with profit takers in today's market and managed to win at least a technical decision.

Buying orders were heavy enough at the start to put the ticker tape behind for a brief interval and gains, at the best, ran two or more points for selected aircrafts, steels, motors, utilities, rail and specialties.

ALDERMAC

In a complete analysis of the outlook and possibilities of Aldermac Copper Corporation, Bongard & Co. conclude as follows:

The big obstacles which stood in the road of Aldermac's success, after nearly 10 years of effort, seem now to have been removed. Nine or ten months should see the sulphur extraction unit installed and in operation, creating a new industry in Eastern Canada. Sulphur, an indispensable element in present day living will be an important factor. To provide an illustration of the importance of th's element, the world's largest producers of sulphur, Texas Gulf and Freeport Sulphur have paid over $100 million in common stock dividends in the past 10 years. Showing a remarkable resistance to depression, the record of earnings of these stocks suggests that under sulphur production, Aldermac may be in a fortunate position with large and steady earnings.

The public is coming to the realization that we are in a bull market, and that higher prices will materialize before the expected reaction occurs. The potential demand for securities under prevailing quotations would appear to preclude a sharp setback. The improvement in business is in great measure responsible for the consistent market.

FIRE DESTROYS CONSECON HOME

Blaze of Mysterious Origin Starts in Vacant House

Mountain View, Ont., Oct. 25—(Special)—Thought to have originated from transients or night prowlers, a large empty house in the village of Consecon, formerly occupied by the late William Van Wart, was totally destroyed by fire shortly after two o'clock this morning.

The glow of flames shooting high in the air reflected on a neighboring window, awakening the occupant of the house who quickly spread the alarm. Despite efforts of a large crowd of villagers, the flames which had made rapid headway before their arrival quickly spread through the frame structure, reducing it to mass of smouldering ruins in a short time.

Flying sparks and embers from the blaze threatened surrounding buildings, but efforts of the firefighters and the fact that the rain of the day previous had soaked roofs and walls, prevented the flames from spreading.

The fact that the kitchen door was open, windows broken, and the discovery of footprints leading from the house led investigating County Constable James Lovelace to believe that the fire had been caused by nocturnal intruders. Loss was estimated at seven hundred dollars, which was not covered by insurance as far as could be ascertained.

POSSIBILITY

cil rejected a recommendation previously passed at the committee meeting of Thursday evening. A new piece of masonry wall will be erected just north of the Bell Shirt Company at a cost of not more than $20. A by-law dealing with a conveyance of property was passed through the various stages. Those present at the meeting were Mayor Bone, Aldermen Wills, Thompson, Baragar, Logan, Haig, Kennedy, Marshall, Rollins, Howell, Cushing, Barlow, Lewis. Alderman Kennedy was chairman of the Whole and Chairman for the committee on by-laws.

'The Canadian Market'

1938 Supplement of this Research Work on Statistics Is Selling Rapidly—Its Importance in Business—Copies of Original Volume May Yet be Secured.

A year ago the research department of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association published a volume of statistics under the title of "The Canadian Market", in which the treatment of fundamentals was so simplified and symbolized by graph and "pictograph" that the book was acclaimed as one of unusual interest and distinction. It went all over the world to our own Canadian trade commissioners, to the libraries of Congress, of the House of Commons and of the House of Lords in London, and to advertisers and trade corporations on several continents. The "top line" financ'al houses found it exceptionally adapted for conveying to United States and foreign investors the potentialities of Canada in the world of money.

This research work has been continued for twelve months and the first—the 1938—supplement is now off the press and selling so rapidly in advance that its complete absorption is assured.

Those who own the parent work will require no recommendation for its first child. The supplement for 1938 carries on the original story with necessary additions and projections into the future. Its specialty is graph summaries of retail sales by provinces in the major groups of business: food, general merchandise, automotive, clothing, building material, furniture, etc. The charts should enable any merchant to apply practically a slide rule to his affairs and allow him to check his progress against that of his industry, as well as to plan his future campaign against definite potential goals.

Advance sales of the supplement have been heavy and the limited edition will probably be exhausted soon after it appears. It is being distributed at a price of one dollar postpaid by the central office of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association, 903 Excelsior Building, Toronto.

Any financial house which does not have the original volume in its library may obtain it from the same source at the original price of three dollars postpaid. The pace of recovery is accelerating and the text of these books outlines how every phase in the national economy has contributed and will continue to be a factor in the forward movement.

Medium Eggs Weaker One Cent

Toronto, Oct. 25—Easier prices were recorded by eggs to the wholesale trade on the local produce market Monday, while butter was nominally unchanged.

On slower trading, fresh receipts were ample for requirements on the egg market. This was particularly noticeable on mediums, and prices on this grade weakened 1c per dozen in all divisions. Exports to the United Kingdom last week fell sharply below a year ago, to place fall shipments for the year to date slightly behind last year, according to Dominion Department of Agriculture figures. During the week 2,575 cases were shipped compared with 5,510 cases a year ago and 3,700 cases two years ago. For the period, Sept. 1 to Oct. 22, shipments this year totalled 27,065 cases as against 29,561 cases in the same period of 1937 and 13,322 cases in 1936. Yesterday, grade A-medium eggs were reduced to 35c in the ungraded section of the market and to 41c in the retail section. Graded shipments moved at 40c for grade A-large 37c to 38c for medium, 28c to 29c for pullets, 27c for B's and 22c for C grades.

Dealers generally reported the butter market nominally unchanged. No interest could be aroused in the Ontario make, but the fact prevailing light available supplies apparently held prices up. Offerings of the Western make were ignored. Ontario solids were offered at 22 3-4c for No. 1 grades, and 22c for 38 score. Prints maintained former values.

BUTTER EASES, EGGS WEAKEN AT MONTREAL

Montreal, Oct. 24 (CP)— The butter section was quietly easier on open produce markets here Monday and dull trading weakened egg prices, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Cheese was quiet, but potatoes featured slight gains.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24c to 25c a pound and creamery solids for 23 1-2c to 24 1-2c. Receipts: 1,077 boxes.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 41c a dozen for A-large, 39c for A-medium, 30c for A-pullets, 26c to 27c for B-large, 20c to 21c for C. Receipts: 503 boxes.

John D. Hayes Now President Of Laura Secord Candy Co.

Former Belleville Boy Rises to Responsible Position in Business World

JOINED COMPANY IN '17

The announcement yesterday of the promotion of John D. Hayes, president and general manager of the Fanny Farmer Candy Shops Inc. to the joint presidency of his firm and the Laura Secord Candy Shops Limited to take the place of Senator Frank O'Connor, who recently resigned, recalls a graphic story of a former Belleville boy, who realized his life's ambition after years of diligent application and work.

The story of Mr. Hayes' rise to a position of extreme importance in the business world has a distinct Alger touch.

Born on Cedar Street, Belleville, fifty-four years ago last May, he received his early education at St. Michael's School, afterwards graduating from Belleville High School and obtaining a commercial diploma from the Ontario Business College here. Later he studied music and voice at Albert College, leaving that institution to join the Railway Postal Service as a mail clerk on the Toronto-Montreal run.

Obtaining his Civil Service examinations he steadily rose in this department. Vision and foresight on the part of the young man at this point induced him to leave the mail service in 1917 and join the staff of the Laura Secord Candy Company under Senator Frank O'Connor.

Held Minor Position

Accepting a minor position with this firm, his natural business ability, and application soon gained him promotion. Steadily he rose with his firm until a few years ago he was appointed vice-president and general manager. His acumen again brought him to the fore and he became associated with the Fanny Farmer Candy Shops, being elected president and general manager of that firm some time ago.

Both the Laura Secord Candy Shops and Fanny Farmer Candy Shops will be operated under the active direction of Mr. Hayes from the date of his promotion.

Some years ago he married Miss Cecil McKenna, daughter of a prominent Toronto physician. Mr. and Mrs. Hayes have two daughters, the Misses Mary and Cecil Hayes. The former, a brilliant student graduated from college with the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and is now assistant private secretary to her father.

Mr. Hayes is a son of Mr. Patrick Hayes, 27 Catherine Street, Belleville.

693 REGISTERED AS UNEMPLOYED

Six hundred and ninety three unemployed persons are at present registered on the files of the Employment Bureau, according to a statement released by officials today. Two-thirds of this number are males, it was stated with, the whole being a substantial increase over registrations of a year ago.

The increase, however, does not necessarily indicate an increase in unemployment in the city. It is due mainly to the fact that more people have registered with the bureau in compliance with rules laid down by the Minister of Public Welfare.

PICTON MAN DRAWS A RESIDUAL PRIZE

While Ross Hill, Picton resident did not draw a horse with that sweepstakes ticket he bought, he experienced at least a part of the thrill that comes with the news that your ticket has "clicked."

Recently he was notified that he drew one of the residual prizes amounting to some five hundred dollars, in the Cesarewitch, famous English track event, that is being run tomorrow.

of the Yangtse river.

Father Robert Jacquinot, noted French refugee worker, announced the establishment of a neutral zone embracing all the old concessions.

Gunboats Land Men.

British, United States, and Italian gunboats have each landed 100 men to police the area in which thousands were streaming to seek refuge.

The British gunboats Gnat and Tern took up positions off the Bund. The Luzon, flagship of the United States Yangtse patrol, joined the British vessels. Ashore the marines and foreign volunteers armed with rifles patrolled the free zone.

From the neighboring sections of the city loud detonations began to be heard. Valuable properties were being blown up to prevent them from being of any use to the conquerors.

The decision against defending Hankow also meant the Chinese lines would be thrown back a considerable distance and the Japanese might not push farther inland but first consolidate their gains around Hankow. This development would mean at least momentary peace.

Silver Taken From Cargo.

The Dollar Liner President Coolidge sailed today for Kobe, Japan, without a $4,000,000 cargo of silver intended for the United States. Japanese officials had refused to clear the American ship until the cargo was unloaded. They apparently considered the treasure the property of the Japanese-sponsored Shanghai government. Diplomatic negotiations were expected to determine its ownership. The silver was returned to the Shanghai office of the Chase National Bank. An undetermined amount of silver taken on at Hong Kong was not touched.

Increased Taxation Hinted

He also may have hinted at increased taxation when he stated that "for some the sacrifice will be of money, in order to provide financial resources for what we need to do."

Viscount Halifax expressed the government's faith that the four-power cooperation initiated at Munich when the heads of governments of Germany, France, Italy and Great Britain gathered around a table, could be developed toward the goal of a general understanding. Emphasizing that no opportunities must be lost in working toward this end, he declared:

"In doing so, we will not abandon old friends in search of new. But we do intend, if we can, to improve our own relations with all who are willing to improve their relations with us."

He admitted that "profound differences of thought upon many fundamental things" would place difficulties in the path of peace and branded the "gospel of force" as the "real enemy of the free growth of confidence between nations."

While Britain must rearm, he warned against adopting this gospel as her own and against "resigning ourselves for all time to nothing better than the necessary attempt to meet force by force."

Reply To Criticism.

Lord Halifax' defence of British rearmament was in reply to recent criticism to Germany ,and followed a reply made last week by Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary.

The foreign secretary said that "if this country is to play its full part with others in securing peace, it must be able to speak with equal weight. One-sided armament and one-sided disarmament are both impossible and give no help to peace."

At another point, he stressed, "it is not our custom, and it is certainly not our desire, to interfere in other people's business, as long as they do not interfere with ours."

"It may be," he said, "that just as Dante made the entry into paradise through war or purgatory, so we, if we are to reach true peace, have to pass through a stage of armed peace to get there."

AIRLINER CRASHES

Adelaide to Melbourne. It was operated by the Australian National Airways.

A store-keeper at the town of Kiorama said he heard the plane roaring through the mist.

"A few seconds later I heard an awful crash and ran out of the store," he related. "I could see the wreck not far away. It was smashed to smithereens and blazing like mad."

For an hour before the crash wireless operators at Melbourne airport attempted unsuccessfully to communicate with the airliner which was off its directional beam. At the time of the accident the summit of Mount Dandenong was enveloped in a dense cloud.

Mr. Hawker was reported enroute to Canberra for a conference with government leaders. Persistent reports had indicated he was to reenter the government in the near future.

Regret Death.

Commenting on his death, W. M. Hughes, Commonwealth Minister for External Affairs, said "At this juncture Mr. Hawker can ill be spared in the defence of the country; his advice and cooperation would have been vital."

Hawker was educated at Cambridge University and during the great war was a captain in the Somerset Light Infantry. He had been member of parliament for Wakefield, South Australia, since 1929 and was Minister of Commerce in 1932.

Other passenger victims included T. M. Hardy and Hugo Grant, two of Australia's best-known wine exporters. Members of the crew killed included the pilot, Captain Webb, and Air Hostess Hones.

BALANCE

French, to wage a preventive war against Germany, as they would have to eventually. When France rejected the idea Pilsudski, foreseeing the collapse of French influence in this part of the world, turned to Germany. The following year a non-aggression pact was signed.

Always Admired Pilsudski.

Hitler always has spoken warmly of Pilsudski, and with good reasons. It is said that it was the great Pole who learned through his secret service of the proposed coup against the Fuehrer in 1934 and warned the latter.

The historic Nazi purge followed.

Relations between the two countries were good until Uilsudski died in 1935. After that there was some rocky going, due largely to Nazi agitation in Danzig. However, in November of last year Berlin and Warsaw again got together in a pact under which it was agreed that there should be an improvement in the treatment of the German minority in Poland and of the Polish minority in Germany.

Now the Munich conference has thrown up another Polish wave of sentiment in favor of Germany. The Franco-Polish defensive alliance still exists, but many responsible Poles express the view that it is just so much paper.

HUNGARIAN GOV'T

Prague Might Refuse.

Informed persons here thought it likely Prague would reject even the compromise note. In that event, Premier Imredi said Hungary would "enforce its justice by all means available to the nation."

A half million soldiers remained at the Czechoslovak border today while the Hungarian government awaited the answer from Prague. (The cabinet was convened in Prague to draft a decision today.)

The offer, seventh to be advanced from Budapest, deals with four points:

New Terms of Note.

1. Hungarian troops without delay would occupy Czechoslovak areas over which there now is no dispute. This would be about 3,860 square miles.

2. Plebiscites would be held in disputed districts by Dec. 1.

3. Ruthenians, Slovaks (now autonomous parts of Czechoslovakia) and other nationalities of Czechoslovakia would be given the right of "self-determination", presumably by an election to determine to what country they would give allegiance.

4. If Czechoslovakia cannot accept these points, a German-Polish-Italian commission would arbitrate the dispute.

Premier Imredi said a map attached to the Hungarian note divided disputed areas into eight sections, in which plebiscites woul be held separately.

OBITUARY

LATE GEORGE JOHNSTON

The funeral of George Johnston took place this Tuesday morning Oct. 25th., from his late residence, Herchimer Avenue, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Baker, who conducted also the committal service at the grave side in St. James' Cemetery.

The bearers were Messrs. A. McDonald, F. McDonald, J. Lynch, F. Barrett, J. McMullen and William Wilson.

LATE SAMUEL W. SIMPSON

The funeral of Samuel Wallace Simpson took place Monday afternoon, October 24, from his late residence at Rednersville, Prince Edward County. The service in the home and at the graveside in Wood's Cemetery, near Brighton, Ont., was conducted by the Rev. W. H. Boomhauer.

The bearers were Messrs. Ralph Stafford, B. Redner, Roy Anderson, Gerald Anderson, I. Nightingale and W. Holmes.

STEWART MIURHEAD

As the result of internal injuries sustained accidentally while engaged in friendly rugby scrimmage with a few of his chums, Stewart Muirhead, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Muirhead, 407 Bleecker Avenue, this city, died at the Belleville General hospital on Monday afternoon, October 24. He was seventeen years of age and was born in New Toronto. About five years ago he moved with his parents from New Toronto to Belleville. He was a student in the C.P.R. Telegraph office here and in a few months' time would have completed his course. Prior to taking up telegraphy he attended the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational school and was popular with his fellow students and well liked by the members of the teaching staff.

The injuries which resulted in his death were sustained while playing with a rugby ball with a few friends on the grounds at Queen Victoria School on Pine Street. While jumping for the ball he fell and came into contact with the knee of one of the players. He was taken to his home and later removed to the hospital.

The untimely death of Stewart Muirhead has brought deep feelings of regret to all who knew him and sincere sympathy is entertained for Mr. and Mrs. Muirhead and family in their bereavement. The family attend St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving to mourn his loss besides his parents are one sister, Miss Jean Muirhead, nurse-in-training at the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto three brother, Robert Muirhead, Trenton; John Muirhead and William Muirhead, both at home.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

PRESENTATION TO REV. A. G. SINCLAIR

B. Y. P. U. Presents Pastor With Leather-Bound Hymnary

At the B.Y.P.U. meeting Monday night in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Rev. A. G. Sinclair, who next week leaves for his new pastorate in Saskatoon, was presented with a handsome leather-bound hymnary with his name inscribed thereon in gold leaf.

In making the presentation Miss Della Anderson, president of the B.Y.P.U., said: "Mr. Sinclair, words fail to express how deeply we feel on this your last regular meeting with us. But we are glad for your sake that you have this opportunity of accepting a wider field of endeavor. We feel very fortunate in having had your leadership these short four years. In addition to your successful ministry you have been a kind and sympathetic friend at all times. Your cheerful and understanding disposition has made you a welcome guest at all our social functions. I ask you now, on behalf of the B.Y.P.U. to accept this small token of our love and appreciation and I hope you will think of us often as you use it in God's service."

Visibly moved, Mr. Sinclair replied that his association with the Belleville B. Y. P. U. had been an inspiration and blessing to him and the developing of young people for Christian service had proved to be of two-fold value: in giving counsel to the B. Y. P. U. he had derived in return many worth-while points that would be of great value to him in future young people's work.

"When I am confined within the four walls of the Saskatoon B.Y.P.U. room you can certainly rest assured that my thouihts will not be confined in hat room" declared Mr. Sinclair. "I will think of you good folk in Belleville in your own B.Y.P.U. room. I thank you very much for your lovely gift"

Speaker for the evening was Miss Katherine Hogle, whose topic on "Churih Worship" was interesting and impressive. Miss Edna Jobson rendered a lovely vocal solo

Police Question Suspect After Telephone Call

Following extensive police investigations in an effort to apprehend a man, who was reported to have been calling unmarried women upon the telephone at exceptionally early hours in the morning, resulted in a local citizen being questioned at the police station relative to the matter today. The suspicions toward the man followed a telephone call, which police investigated early today, and are alleged to have traced to the man in question, despite the fact the call is said to have been made from a local pay telephone. Chief Kidd questioned the man at length, but refrained from revealing his identity. "The matter is still under our observation and investigation," commented Chief Kidd.

Twenty-eight-year - old Archie Vanalstine, 34 St. Paul St., Belleville, was taken into custody by Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard following complaints that the man had committed a serious offence in a local Front St. store. Today Vanalstine was remanded in custody on a serious charge.

Late last night police answered calls to Victoria Ave. and also to 108 Station St., where a man was said to have been acting strangely and committing rather serious offences. No trace of such a person resulted, although Constables Evans and Arnott made a thorough search of the surrounding district.

I'll Take You With Me

By Farley Faulkner

With wind and sand ruffling his hair Douglas Fairbanks Jr. met your correspondent on the Mohave Desert location of "Gunga Din" with this astounding prediction: "So you are fortunate enough to be a Canadian. One day democracy will make its last stand on this continent, and it wouldn't surprise me to see Canada playing a major part in that all important period of world history. And that day may come within the span of our lifetime."

"Just being an actor, even at $7,500.00 per week makes one feel a little puny when men like Chamberlain are doing things of real importance. Millions of people undoubtedly owe their lives to England's man-of-the-hour, and even we in these United States should feel grateful that another European calamity has been averted for at least a few months."

"Of course it is not fitting for a screen star to speak like this for publication, but I can assure you that the sentiment of the two thousand men on this location has been almost entirely with England during the crisis that has just passed. I watched them listening intently to the broadcasts and heard enough of their conversations to know that scores of our Bengal Lancers used in this picture would have volunteered immediately with the men of the British Empire, whether or not the U. S. decided to enter war.

"Do you think there is any possibility of the British Government moving to Canada as several commentators have predicted?" we inquired.

"No. Not for some time. But eventually England may have to seriously consider such a move, because of her present vulnerable position."

At this point in the interview our attention was diverted to the impressive spectacle of a battle scene sequence in which British troops were clashing with Hindu Thugs. It seems that R.K.O. has taken the Kipling ballad and embellished the story of the devoted Hindu water-carrier with a robust tale of a "three musketeers" friendship among a trio of British army sergeants—Fairbanks Jr., Cary Grant and Victor McLaglen. They have added to the tale India's ruthless organization of assassins, the Thugs, as the villains of the piece. The time of "Gunga Din" is approximately 1890 when Queen Victoria's troops were extending the sway of England's might farther into north-western India in the Khyber Pass region.

Invited to Lunch

After the battle scene sequence Fairbanks asked us to lunch with him. "Another week will see us finished here, and I'm going to take a real holiday," smiled our host over the luncheon table.

"Where to this time?" we asked.

"Well, I expect to hop to New York. From there my destination will be England."

"Is there any truth in the rumor that you may do a series of pictures something similar to those that your father used to star in?" we inquired.

"Definitely not. That would be sacrilege. No one including myself could ever hope to successfully imitate father's work on the screen, and I for one do not intend to even attempt such a feat."

"Have you enjoyed working in this picture? we queried.

"Yes. And I feel that R.K.O. deserves high praise for attempting such an ambitious and costly production at this time," concluded the star.

Martha Raye told us today, that her husband and arranger, David Rose is a model mate.

"Since our return from Ensenada, Mexico, Dave has been eating from paper plates off the mantel of our new home, which as yet is only partially furnished. And he hasn't complained a bit. Just imagine such a man if you can. Of course things will soon be settled and Dave will be able to eat sitting down. It's fun furnishing a new home though, and I think you can safely say that Dave and I are happy about the whole thing," smiled Hollywood's cooing songbird.

Ned Sparks Non-Plussed

Ned Sparks, Canada's Grouch Boy of the Texaco Star Theatre was receiving congratulations backstage after a recent broadcast. An elderly lady after some pleasant words asked him: "Tell me, Mr. Sparks, isn't there anything you like?"

Sparks looked non-plussed for once in his life.

"Madam, I don't know. I never thought much about liking anything."

Our comment is that at those prices Sparks can hardly be blamed for his grouch.

It so happens that when we first arrived in Hollywood some months ago it was Sparks who met us and first made it possible for us to arrange contacts with the right people in the various studios. From this and various other experiences with the famous dead pan comedian we can frankly state that behind the mask of the screen and radio Sparks is as fine and likeable a gentleman as you would ever care to meet.

Poesy is in the air. Free verse drips from the lips of wide-eyed starlets and doggerel decorates the backs of telephone directories in the homes of some of the best known he-men stars.

Jimmy Cagney, who would probably deny it if asked, has penned a few verses in his life. He has never suggested that any of them should be printed. Jimmy sketches, too. He admits he is a better artist than poet, a fact which didn't keep him from trying to rhyme words during spare moments on the set of "Angels With Dirty Faces."

Roland Young convulsed the film colony and much of the outside world a few years ago with his book of nursery rhymes which was plainly labeled, "Not for children." It can be found in almost every Hollywood library. Pat O'Brien makes up jingles for his two children between horse races and newspaper roles but he will chase you out of his house if you ask to see them.

Harlow Wrote Verse

The late Jean Harlow wrote verses during all the years she spent in Hollywood and many publishers bid for the right to print them in a collection. Gloria Stuart has numerous pleasing stanzas to her credit but she too, is reluctant to read them aloud or let her friends do so.

Olivia de Havilland once seriously considered devoting her life to the study of the rhyming dictionaries and the production of verse, serious mournful, October verse. She still writes regularly and perhaps, some day some of her poems will be published.

Ginger Rogers writes songs and lyrics and has had more success with them than most other young people of the film colony. Lola Lane permits her poems to be read. They have a Dorothy Parker flavor. Penny Singleton has published a book of children's verses and is busy now writing another.

Andrea Leeds is another budding poet in the brash Hollywood setting. Priscilla Lane and Gloria Dickson also suffer from the rhyming itch, as do Marie Wilson and Jane Wyman in odd moments.

Eddie Albert, who came from the New York stage to play the role of Bing in "Brother Rat" is one of the few male players who admits that he writes poetry. But he offers no samples.

Perhaps the most unexpected poet in the film colony is Leo Gorcey, the toughest acting member of the "Dead End Boys". He wrote a poem about the other members of his gang, while on location at Indio, California, recently. It was almost as hot as the weather there. But he, like most of the others, takes his "art seriously and will provide romantic verses for almost any occasion.

Crawford in Skate Act

Losing no time in learning a new accomplishment for her latest picture, Joan Crawford strapped on a pair of skates and stepped out on the ice at the party which followed the premiere of the "Ice Follies" show at the Pan Pacific Auditorium, Los Angeles. Though she has done almost no skating since she was a youngster in Kansas City, Joan hopes to pick up the tricks of the trade in short order from Bess Ehrhardt, featured figure skater of the "Ice Follies" troupe. As star of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film by the same title, Miss Crawford must be able to perform a few figures, though her role is that of a girl who wins film success through her voice, after she has failed as an ice attraction.

Joan had plenty of company on the ice following the troupe's performance. With her were such other notables as Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, Jack Oakie, Charles Farrell, Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable, Ceasar Romero, Eddie Cantor and Harold Lloyd's two young daughters. Watching their exhibition were Virginia Bruce, Elona Massey, Edward G. Robinson, Gene Pallette and many others. Finally Harry Rapf, who is producing the "Ice Follies" film, was persuaded to try out a pair of skates, and toured the rink with Frances Mary Claudet, Canadian champion and coach of the ice ballet.

THE GREAT WAR

I WAS THERE!

The Most Vital War Book Ever Produced

UNDYING MEMORIES OF 1914-1918

Edited by Sir John Hammerton, editor of "World War" and creator of the famous film, "Forgotten Men."

This magnificent new work is the first and only authentic record of the outstanding events of the historic years of 1914-18—told by those who survived; no greater human document has been completed throughout the ages.

"I WAS THERE" brings together in compact form the most vivid, the most poignant, the most human experiences of those who took part—no matter how humble a part—in those world-shaking events of more than twenty years ago.

This is not just another war book; it is the ONE book that brings home to everyone the real meaning of war. Only a book written by those who experienced war in all its phases could do this; the contributors to "I WAS THERE" are men who KNOW.

The illustrations to this unique publication include some of the most remarkable action photographs of war ever taken, in addition to many hundreds of photographic studies of war areas as they were in 1914-1918 and as they are today.

Roses

By MARCIA DINSMORE

"Well, do you find Rayville changed?" The satisfaction in Carrie's tone bordered on smugness. She was greeting an old friend.

Amelia turned to give her a curious look. The little railroad station seemed suddenly drearier than ever. Had people, then forgotten so easily? Did Carrie really think that the little girl who had been turned so piteously from the town, sent to the cold comfort of an orphan asylum, could forget, even after all these years?

"You know I lived here only a few months," she replied tonelessly.

"Oh, of course." Carrie was uncomfortable. "You were about ten, weren't you."

"And I'm thirty-five now."

"And rich," commented Carrie enviously.

"And widowed," replied Amelia quietly. A short silence fell, while Carrie searched wildly for platitudes. The door opened, bringing with it a gust of rain from the night. Amelia stared at the newcomer, a little wizened woman dressed in black and bedecked with pink roses, made of paper.

" 'All about my gala hat I wear a wreath of roses'." It was the cynical voice of the sophisticated woman who spoke, but Amelia's heart beat wildly.

"What? Oh, her." Carrie's tone was tinged with contempt.

"Mad Mary, we call her. She's not really mad, of course. If it weren't for those ridiculous paper roses she'd be thought sane enough."

"Does she always wear them?" Amelia's voice was a whisper.

"Always."

"I think I'll stay in Rayville after all, ever night," Amelia said irrelevantly. "Do come and tell me more about this Mad Mary, as you call her."

As they rose Amelia came face to face with the little withered woman decked in paper roses. They eyed each other for a long, tense moment, then Amelia turned abruptly away. She heard small, pattering feet hurrying after her, and when she emerged into the darkness outside she found a pink paper rose clutched tightly in her gloved fingers. She thrust it hastily out of Carrie's sight, but her brow puckered in puzzled thought. Roses! Pink roses!

"Since Mad Mary is the only thing in this town you've deigned to be interested in," began Carrie, sinking back in the limousine in some annoyance, "I'll tell you what I know.

"She came here aout 20 years ago, I should say, and settled for no reason at all in the old Carter mansion on the hill. All alone, you understand, and no one dares go near her."

Amelia caught her breath sharply, and leaning forward, spoke to the chauffeur. "The old Carter mansion," she repeated slowly. "Can you possibly have forgotten, Carrie, that that was my home?"

Carrie flushed. "Oh, but that was years ago," she said, with a dismissing gesture.

"I lived there less than a year, Carrie. When my parents were—drowned—in a double catastrophe, shortly after our arrival in town, I was allowed to stay in the Carter house—till I was found to be penniless. Then I was shipped to an orphan asylum. Rayville refused responsibility."

"Oh, no!" Carrie gasped. What had happened to Amelia? Why rake up the past?

"Probably you all knew then what I have learned recently—that my parents were not drowned."

Carrie sat up. "Not drowned!"

"No. My father reached a crisis in his life. He couldn't go on as he was. But it was June and life was sweet. So he just—disappeared."

"And your mother—she deserted you?"

"It was a bitter choice he forced on her, to go with him or stay with me. Of course, she went. He came first with her always." The clear voice faltered. "I wouldn't have understood then. I do now."

"Why are you telling me all this?" Carrie was rigid with horror.

"Because I want you and Rayville to know it."

"Where—where are they now?"

"My father died shortly after."

The car stopped. "We've circled around a bit," said Amelia. "The chauffeur will take you home." She stepped out quickly in front of the Carter mansion and shut the car door.

The front door was unlocked, she found, the light switch where she remembered it. Familiar furniture leaped into radiance, pictures bedizened with the bright pink of June roses.

A rustling sound came from the next room. Frightened, hesitating footsteps approached the door.

"Who—who is it?" quavered a voice, and a small, wrinkled face came into view.

Amelia tossed off her hat. June! Time of roses! Her fingers trembled as she ran them through her hair, feigning calmness.

"It's Amelia, mother" she said gently. "I've come home."

GIRL GRABS THUGMAN TO SAVE FATHER'S LIFE

Detroit, Oct. 26 (CP)—Police today credited Bella Fineman, 17-year-old college freshman here, with saving her father's life yesterday when a thug attacked him with an axe handle as they entered their garage.

The girl grabbed the thug and kept him from hitting her father and her screams brought help. The father, Louis Fineman, is in hospital in serious condition. Robert Jones is held charged with assault with intent to kill.

CHAUFFEUR AND JEWELS MISSING

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Police of eight states today searched for George Fleming, a chauffeur whose wealthy employer reported he was missing with $200,000 in jewels.

The employer, Edward H. Townsend, Jr., an investment broker living at Syosset, Long Island, said Fleming, 38, disappeared after leaving in a family car yesterday to take the jewels to a Manhattan hotel for Mrs. Townsend, visiting her mother there.

Townsend said he did not suspect Fleming of absconding with the jewels.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

An American storm! The furious and destructive tornado is more distinctly American than any other storm. That is, tornadoes are more frequent here than in any other part of the world. They are the most violent storms known. They are a spring and early summer phenomenon athough they may occur at other seasons. The characteristics are: a dark funnel-shaped cloud, high humidity, hail, rain, lightning, loud roaring noises, and winds with speeds as high as 300 miles per hour. They usually occur in groups or families in the southeastern or eastern part of our traveling cyclones and usually in the afternoon.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP) — The weather has been fair in nearly all parts of the Dominion, mild in the Western Provinces and comparatively cool over the greater part of eastern Canada. An extremely deep disturbance is centred over Davis straits with a trough extending southwestward across James Bay and the lake region to the Mississippi valley, and pressure is falling rapidly on the British Columbia coast, while the barometer is relatively high over the Northwest Territories, the Western and Atlantic States and the Maritime Provinces.

Lake Superior — Fresh or strong west and northwest winds; partly cloudy with light scattered showers. Thursday — Fresh westerly winds, mostly fair; not much change in temperature.

Manitoba—Fresh or strong northwest and west winds; fair. Thursday, fair, not much change in temperature.

Saskatchewan — Fair today and Thursday; not much change in temperature.

Alberta—Fair and mild today and part of Thursday; probably followed by scattered showers.

PRIVY COUNCIL TO HAVE KING GEORGE PRESIDING OFFICER

Most Impressive Gathering of Canadian Statesmen In History To Meet

WILL VISIT QUINTS

Their Majesties Expect To Stay In Canada Three Weeks

Ottawa, Oct. 26 (CP)—The most impressive gathering of Canadian statesmen in the history of the Dominion will be held here early next summer when the king presides over a privy council meeting.

Leaders of government for the past 42 years will assemble probably in the senate chamber or the railway committee room of the House of Commons for the unprecedented council, it was disclosed here yesterday.

There are ninety privy councillors, ranging from Sir William Mulock, former Chief Justice of Ontario, to youthful cabinet ministers of the present administration. Both Conservatives and Liberals will attend to take counsel with the monarch, sitting for the first time at the head of the long council table as King of Canada.

To Visit Quints.

Later as guardian of the quintuplets, the king will travel with his queen and royal party to Callander, Ont., where they will visit the Dionne quintuplets and the five little girls, who share the honors as the empire's most famous children with the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, will pay homage to their Majesties in their own home. The princesses will not make the trip to Canada.

The country doctor who brought the quints into the world, Dr. A. R. Dafoe, will be at the nursery to tell the king and queen personally of one of modern medicine's great events.

Three Weeks In Canada.

It was learned that their Majesties will be away from England more than six weeks, three of which will be spent in Canada. Several days will be devoted to a trip to several United States cities and the rest of the time will be spent on the Atlantic.

The regal party probably will land at Halifax after crossing the ocean on a British warship or a specially chartered liner. A tour of the Maritimes likely will follow and then their Majesties will come to central Canada via Quebec and Montreal. In Ottawa, the king will unveil the National War Memorial dominating the beautiful new downtown plaza which will be completed in the spring.

The royal party will remain in the capital for several days—possibly a week—and during that time the king will preside over the privy council. The regular privy council room in the east block with its famous round table, used for council meetings for the past fifty years, will be too small to accommodate a

TWO VEHICLES CRASH HEAD-ON

Morris Chapman, Deseronto, Sustains Fractured Ribs In Crash

Madoc, Oct. 26— (Special)—Morris Chapman, Deseronto, sustained fractured ribs and other minor injuries when the motor car in which he was riding as a passenger collided with another motor car four miles north of th's village early last evening. Chapman was brought to Madoc for medical attention and later taken to Eldorado to the home of friends.

Chapman was riding in an automobile driven by Charles Derry, Madoc, and with Dan Ault, another passenger in the vehicle when the automobile was in a head-on collision with another vehicle, being driven in the opposite direction by Norman York, Eldorado, who was proceeding southerly. The two vehicles broke over a sharp knoll when the left front fenders collided and the vehicles crashed.

Both automobiles were badly damaged during the impact, Provincial Constable Wm. McBrien, Belleville announced after investigations. No charges had been preferred today, however.

David Lloyd George States 'Bad Peace Is No Peace At All'

SAYS RESPECT LOST

'Totalitarian States Would Have Been Crushed Like Egg-Shell'

London, Oct. 26 (AP) — David Lloyd George broke his silence on the peace of Munich today to warn Prime Minister Chamberlain it would end in a "war without friends" for Great Britain.

The Great War statesman delivered his grim prediction while the present prime minister and his cabinet met for 2¼ hours to review vital matters ranging from defence of home shores to the cost in colonies of really satisfying Germany. The cabinet announced no decisions.

In his first speech since the Munich pact saved peace at the price of Czechoslovakia's dismembership Mr. Lloyd George declared the peace

C. VANDERWATER TRENTON, KILLED AS TRUCK UPSETS

Machine Driven By J. Vance, Bancroft, Fails To Make Curve

INQUEST ORDERED

When the truck in which he was a passenger failed to negotiate a curve in the road, three miles north of Madoc, Carman Vanderwater, 28-year-old Trenton plumber, was instantly killed early last evening. John Vance, driver of the truck, and his wife, Mrs. M. Vance, both of Bancroft, escaped practically unscathed, Vance sustaining only minor abrasions and bruises after the vehicle hurtled down a six-foot embankment.

Dr. Nickle of Eldorado attended the scene of the accident and ordered an inquest to be held in Madoc today. Chief Constable J. Danforth, of Madoc, who assisted in the investigation of the accident, stated today that no outward signs of injuries were visible on Vanderwater's body, but he had died instantly as the result of the accident. An autopsy was ordered by Coroner Dr. Nickle, it being believed that Vanderwater sustained a fatal fracture, however.

Vanderwater, a former resident of Bancroft and life-long friend of the Vance family, had secured passage in Mr. Vance's truck from Trenton to Bancroft, where Vanderwater was working at the in-

Deputation Given Hearing By Minister of Highways

Appeal Made To Have Belleville-Whitney Road Taken Over By Government—Less Than Fifty Miles Would Need To Be Improved—Natural Attractions of Scenery And Animal Life Would Appeal To Tourists—Mr. McQuesten States Appeal Would Be Given Every Consideration

Vision of a trunk line highway between the new International Bridge at Ivy Lea and the city of North Bay between Belleville, Madoc, Bancroft, Whitney and Algonquin Park was brought nearer realization yesterday when a deputation composed of representatives of the municipalities along the proposed entire route presented an appeal to the Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways, at his Queen's Park office.

An association which in future will be known as the Belleville-North Bay Highway Improvement Association, dedicated to the task of furthering the completion of this road, was formed at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, just previous to the meeting with the Hon. T. B. McQuesten. Its officers are: Mayor Jamieson Bone, Belleville, president; Mayor R. Rowe, North Bay, first vice-president; Mayor H. E. Rice, Huntsville, second vice-president; J. O. Herity, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, named secretary.

A most sympathetic hearing to the delegation was given by the Ontario Minister of Highways, it was reported by members this morning. A thorough acquaintance with the locality to be traversed and served by the new highway, and the entire problem of better communication was displayed by Mr. McQuesten through his questions.

Britain Acclaims Appointment Of Kent as Governor-General

Duke Will Go To Australia The Latter Part of 1939

IMPORTANT MOVE

London, Oct. 26 (CP)—Great Britain today acclaimed the appointment by the king of his younger brother, the Duke of Kent, as Governor-General of Australia.

Newspaper editorials coupled the appointment with the announcement the king and queen will visit Canada next summer as "further proof of the deep reality of the ties which bind every part of the empire to the reigning house"—in the words of the Times (Independent).

The duke, 35 years old, accompanied by the duchess, the former Princess Marina of Greece, will go to Australia in November of next year to succeed Lord Gowrie. Their two children, Prince Edward and Princess Alexandra, probably will accompany them.

The official announcement said: "The king has been graciously pleased to approve of the appointment of His Royal Highness, the Duke of Kent, as Governor-General of the Commonwealth of Australia in succession to Lord Gowrie."

The appointment was made Monday after the king had received in audience Stanley Bruce, High Commissioner for Australia. It marked the first time a member of the royal family has been appointed a governor-general of any dominion since the Statute of Westminster in 1931 made the dominions equal partners with the United Kingdom in the Empire

It was understood Australia asked that the Duke of Kent be named when Lord Gowrie decided he wished to give up the post he took over

Coroner's Jury Finds Wrong Drug is Given

Ottawa, Oct. 26 (CP)—A coroner's jury at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Abraham Azar, 33, found last night that she died "in Ottawa Civic Hospital on Oct. 21, through the administration of a wrong drug in a wrong way."

The Ottawa woman entered the hospital a week ago Monday for an operation. Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier said further investigation will be undertaken before any consideration is given to taking criminal action.

Bingo Ruled Legal If Held Occasionally For Religion, Charity

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP) — Bingo games, when held occasionally by charitable or religious organizations and where all the proceeds are used for a benefit of a charitable or religious object are legal, Crown Attorney J. W. MacFadden has ruled.

The definition of "occasionally" will be left to the courts, it was intimated. Police said that games operated as a racket, in which the operator pocketed most of the proceeds would feel the full force of the law.

The new ruling was welcomed by churches, clubs, and military organizations which have sponsored bingo games in the past. Most of these stopped operating games after police raids last spring.

GERMAN LINER CHARRED BY FIRE PLODS TO PORT

591 Passengers And 392 of Crew Endangered For Some Hours

SHIPS STAND BY

Captain And Crew Battle Two Hours Before Blaze Controlled

New York, Oct. 26 (AP) — Fire aboard ship in perilous, gale whipped seas of the North Atlantic remained a nightmarish memory today to 591 passengers and 392 crew members on the Deutschland as the German liner plodded toward port with her insides charred by flames.

An electrifying "SOS" flashed through the air early last night when fire broke out in the ship's No. 2 hold, after an explosion of unexplained nature.

"Assistance necessary urgently," crackled over the radio waves. "Fire in room (hold) No. 2."

Quiet Period Ordered.

A "quiet period" quickly was ordered on the seas and observed by ships far and near.

Ships' wirelesses closed transmitters and bent their ears toward the position 200 miles southeast of Cape Race, Newfoundland, where the flame-perilled Deutschland was rolling in mountainous seas.

"Danger—help necessary," said the frantic, repeated calls from the German liner.

Its location was broadcast time after time, and ships within range turned off course in a mad race to help.

Land bases and ships received and intercepted and relayed a maze of alarming reports.

"Assistance necessary urgently," drummed into the ears of radio operators.

Controlled In Two Hours.

After a winning two-hour battle with the flames, Captain Karl Steincke, master of the ill-starred veteran of four other mishaps at sea, radioed to the New York office of The Associated Press, at 8:29 p.m. E.S.T.:

"Fire under control!"

Hours later, the home office of the Deutschland in Hamburg was advised by the master that the fire was controlled. Ship and passengers were no longer in danger.

Most passengers retired in the early morning hours to safe but troubled slumbers.

The middle-sized 15-year-old ship, pride of the post-war German Republic when it was launched with great fanfare by the then President Ebert, left Hamburg last Thursday and was due in New York next Friday.

Gale Increases Danger.

It is of 21,046 tons and is similar to

CESAREWITCH WON BY CONTREVENT OVER LARGE FIELD

Starting At 100 To 7 Winner Finished 2¼ Mile Race 1½ Lengths Ahead

DUBONNET SECOND

Newmarket, England, Oct. 26 (CP)—Princesse De Faucigny-Lucinge's French-bred Contrevent today won the Cesarewitch stakes. J. P. Hornung's Dubonnet was second and Edward Benson's Fet, the winner two years ago, third.

Dubonnet started also at 100 to 7 won by 1½ lengths.

Dubonnet started also at 100 to 7 and Fet at 9 to 1.

It was a great triumph or France, as a French mare, Helleniqua, won the Cambridgeshire, first event of the "Autumn Double", two weeks ago. A French-bred colt, Bois Roussel, won the Epsom Derby.

Tough Little Stayer.

Contrevent, described before the race by the owner as "a tough little stayer whose stamina is assured," took a clear lead a little less than a mile from home and held off a strong challenge by Dubonnet to cover the 2¼ miles in three minutes, 55 1-5 seconds.

Black Speck and Solonaise, joint favorites at 8 to 1, finished fourth and eighth respectively.

Owing to overcast sky it had been difficult to distinguish the competing colors in the far side of New-

Countries Not Hostile To Trade With Germany Fearful of Vassalage

No Great Power Yet Has Championed Little Countries

NATIONS SEEK TRADE

Sweeping Economic Control To Overlordship Is Feared

(By DeWitt MacKenzie Associated Press Foreign Staff)).

Budapest, Oct. 26 (AP)—Countries of Central and Southeastern Europe which lie in the path of Fuehrer Hitler's politico-economic march to the Black Sea are in a state of nerves and in some instances dread.

Having seen German troops goosestepping into dismembered Czechoslovakia these small states are fearful lest their own sovereignty may be in danger ultimately, not through annexation but because of fierce political control which would in effect make them vassals of the Reich.

No Great Power As Champion

This feeling is due larely to the fact no great power has announced its championship of little countries living on the sunrise side of Germany. France and Great Britain have withdrawn behind the Rhine so to speak, and the Russian Bear is quiet.

It isn't that small countries are hostile to Germany. They are friendly enough speaking in general terms, but they don't want to lose their independence. The fate of Czechoslovakia casts a heavy shadow across lands from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

So far as the economic angle is concerned all these nations want to trade extensively with Germany. As a matter of fact they would have to even if they did not want to. They are too small to buy each other's products which are largely agricultural and their only big customer is Germany on which they depend for absorption or a great percentage of their output.

Barter System

The quid pro quo is that they buy German goods. Actually, Naziland trades a great deal on the barter system—motorcars for wheat, for example

This whole setup gives rise to the general expectation that Hitler will try to form customs unions with all countries in question. That is, there would be trade pacts providing for favored nation treatment to the virtual exclusion of outside countries.

It would be but a step from such sweeping economic control to political overlordship, and that is what small countries are shivering over. They realize Hitler can apply tremendous pessure if he sees fit. Hungary is particularly anxious, lying as she does up against the Reich.

AIRCRAFTSMAN KILLED BY TRAIN

G. Taylor of Camp Borden Riding Alone Near Alliston

Alliston, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP)—G. Taylor, 25, of Winnipeg, was killed at 12.30 a.m. today when the car he was driving was struck by the Canadian Pacific Railway Toronto to Winnipeg flier at a level crossing here.

Taylor was employed as an aircraftsman at the Camp Borden aviation base near here.

Chief Constable W. Morrison was standing a block away from the crossing when he heard the crash. He found the Taylor car demolished. The engine was thrown 36 feet clear of the wreckage.

After tracing the strewn wreckage of the car 100 feet up the track from the crossing he found Taylor's body in a ditch near the track. Death was attributed to a broken neck and internal injuries.

BLUENOSE AHEAD

Boston, Oct. 26 (CP)—Bluenose, weather-beaten Lunenburg saltbanker, held a 10-lengths lead over the Gertrude L. Thebaud of Gloucester, after two hours sailing today in the fifth and deciding race of the series for the international fishermen's schooner trophy.

Mackenzie King In Political Life For Thirty Years

Ottawa, Oct. 26 (CP) — Today marks the 30th anniversary of the entry into Canadian political life of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, now on holiday at Kingston, Jamaica. On Oct. 26, 1908, Mr. King was elected Liberal member for North Waterloo. He was immediately taken into the cabinet of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Prior to his engaging actively in politics, the prime minister had occupied the position of Deputy Minister of Labor.

360,000 TROOPS USED BY GERMANY

Army Backed By Similar Number In Occupation of Sudetenland

Berlin, Oct. 26 (AP)—Germany used about 360,000 troops in occupying Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland, it was disclosed today by the Army High Command.

The figure was kept so secret during the occupation Oct. 1-10 that best estimates were less than half the actual number.

There were 10 Army Corps with 30 Divisions. A German Division has 12,000 men.

Furthermore this army was backed up by a force of similar strength standing ready to plunge into Sudetenland should the peaceful invasion take another turn.

Major Hasso Von Wedel, the High Command press officer, said 500 airplanes were sent to Sudetenland but "these were but a small fraction of the number prepared, which in case of warlike developments could have been sent immediately into action."

Anti-aircraft defences, Major Von Wedel said, were so thickly placed around Czechoslovakia's borders that "it can be stated without exaggeration that Czechoslovak or Russian bombers coming from Czechoslovakia could hardly have succeeded in flying over German soil.

Brakeman Killed At Peterboro

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP)—Joseph Meagher, 50, died in hospital here last night shortly after he was injured when a locomotive and a truck collided at a street crossing.

A brakeman, Meagher was believed to have been standing on the footboard of the engine, travelling in reverse. He suffered amputation of both legs. The truck was driven by Alfred Hudson, Lakefield second-hand goods dealer.

PARENTS REPORT BOY MISSING

Leamington, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP)—Police sought James Collison, 13, today after his parents reported the boy disappeared from his home Sunday after he was spanked. The boy threatened to catch a freight train after his father spanked him for fighting with another boy about two cents.

Leamington is 33 miles southeast of Windsor.

TO LEAVE FOR BRAZIL TO ENTER PRIESTHOOD

When an ocean liner sails from New York for Sao Paulo, Brazil on Saturday, one of its passengers will be John Voss, of Cressy, Prince Edward County, who is leaving for the South American country to study for a priesthood in the Order of St. Benedict.

Mr. Voss will join his brother, who is a priest in the Order, at Sao Paulo. Preparatory studies will take eight years, at the end of which Mr. Voss hopes to be ordained.

COUNTY OFFICIALS ATTEND MUNICIPAL SCHOOL AT KINGSTON

County Clerk Eric Denyes, County Treasurer, James Haggerty, and representatives of several municipalities of the county left yesterday for Kingston where they are in attendance at the School for Municipal Officers of Ontario being conducted by members of the faculty of Queen's University.

Warden Henry Larkin, who is in Toronto as a member of the delegation waiting on the Minister of Highways with regard to the taking over of the Belleville-Whitney highway by the Department of Highways, is expected to return today and will leave immediately for Kingston to attend the Municipal School.

WHITEFISH REPORTED MORE PLENTIFUL

White fish have commenced "shoaling" again in the Bay of Quinte. Fishermen of the district, puzzled and bewildered over the actions of the fish this season received this news yesterday with the statement that the first heaviest lifts of the season are now being made in the vicinity of the Long Reach. One local fisherman reported a catch yesterday of 95 pounds in contrast to but two or three single fish for a day's work last week.

LATE FALL GRAZING HELP TO FARMERS

Pastures in the district at the present time are better than they have been in years at this late date, it was reported in local agricultural offices this morning. Fine weather and the open season with frosts not sufficiently severe as yet to nip the tender grasses have all combined to create almost perfect agricultural conditions in the entire area, it was reported. Ordinarily farmers with livestock have been forced to resort to barn feeding at about the end of October. But this season, in spite of the fact that plenty of fodder is on hand, hay mows have scarcely been touched.

COUNTY TO OFFER 189 LOTS FOR SALE

One hundred and eighty-nine lots in the County of Hastings will go under the auctioneers hammer at Shire Hall early in November when the annual Treasurer's Sale of Lands for Taxes will get under way a statement from the office of County Treasurer James Haggerty revealed today.

Lots not disposed of at this sale will be offered at an adjourned sale to be held in the same place in December.

The number of lots offered is greatly reduced to that of a year ago when four hundred were offered for sale under similar conditions.

FIREMEN TO HOLD ANNUAL TAG DAY FOR CHILDREN'S FUND

In an effort to bring their Christmas Children's and Poor Families Fund up to the point where sufficient finances will be available to bring Christmas Cheer to the large number on their lists, members of the Belleville Fire Department will hold their Annual Tag-Day on Saturday of this week.

"The proceeds from the Firemen's Ball fell short of our expectations and needs" Fire Chief Lynch stated this morning, "and as the number of families and underprivileged children on our lists have substantially increased this year, we are again asking the general public to give us that fine response that has greeted us in former years in our Tag-Day efforts."

Boomhauer, pastor of Centre United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. M. Giles, P. Townsend, H. Redner, C. Young, W. Howell and W. Coulter.

MRS. NICHOLAS PANOS

Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 25th., the funeral of Mrs. Nicholas Panos took place from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. D. T. McClintock, pastor of the Tabernacle United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Stewart Blain, Clarence Clapp, Samuel Orr, Harry Boyle, all of Belleville, and Nicholas Speal and George Palavos, both of Kingston.

EDWARD GIBSON Rochester N. Y.

Information received in the city yesterday brought the news of the death in Rochester N. Y. of Edward Gibson, former resident of this city, and in his youth one of the outstanding baseball players of his day.

He was a star catcher with the Belleville Wideawake baseball club and will be remembered by fans of thirty-five years ago as a fine sportsman and an outstanding athlete.

The late Mr. Gibson married Miss Gertrude Byrne of this city prior to his removal to the United States. Mrs. Gibson is the only immediate survivor, there being no children. Mrs. Fred Byrne, East Moira Street is a sister-in-law of the deceased. Two brothers also reside in Rochester.

The funeral will be held from the late residence at 231 Driving Park Avenue, Rochester on Friday of this week.

Members of Women's Canadian Club Given Broader Vision

90 CLUBS IN CANADA

Clearer understanding of the aims of the Women's Canadian Club was brought to members yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. G. G. Wright addressed a meeting on this subject and also reported the 22nd conference of the Association of Canadian Clubs which she recently attended as delegate.

Mrs. Wright in a most interesting manner gave her hearers a picture of the Canadian Club as a national institution, stressing its true purpose which was in danger of becoming obscured by routine program planning. Mrs. Wright interpreted the addresses of conference speakers with rare insight and members were greatly indebted to her for this broader vision of the Canadian Club.

Promote Welfare

The Canadian Club pledges its best efforts, the speaker pointed out in discussing the club's ideal, to promote the welfare of the country and to do its part in cultivating a spirit of unity among people of all sections, creeds, and races of the Dominion. Its aims and ideals are recommended to the Canadian people in the hope that this truly national and patriotic movement may be the means of bringing the citizens of Canada together in a way that can be accomplished by no other organization.

The purpose of the Canadian Club is that of Confederation, as phrased by one of its fathers when he said it was to "Lift us above the petty politics of the past, and present us high purposes and great interests that may well call for all the intellectual ability and all the energy and enterprise to be found among us."

Details Given

Mrs. Wright gave a detailed account of the sessions held in Windsor Hotel, Montreal. The friendly atmosphere that prevailed among the delegates made the meetings most enjoyable and the addresses by brilliant speakers added to the success of the gathering.

Of particular interest were the words of Hon. Robert A. E. Greenshields of the Supreme Court whose eloquence and charm captivated his hearers. He felt the Canadian Club could do a great work by interesting the youth; the danger to democracy comes not alone from the propaganda of agitators but from the indifference of its citizens.

The report of the executive committee showed 90 Canadian Clubs in Canada with 20,000 members. Mrs. Wheeler's description of the hunger of the Western audience for Canadian Club programs made others more fortunately placed realize the opportunities which they undervalue.

Sir Hugh Roberton Speaker

One of the outstanding speakers of the session was Sir Hugh Roberton who had just completed adjudication of music festivals throughout the Dominion and who thrilled and touched his audience with his sincere praise of the young singers he had encountered. Song is uniting Canada as can no other force. So high is the standard of singing that choirs in England and Wales were overshadowed.

The delegates were met with lavish hospitality which included luncheon on the Mount Royal Roof Garden, a sail on the "Sir Hugh Allan" and tea, poured from the unique tea service of the line. Luncheon in the chalet on Mount Royal and finally a trip to Quebec City.

Appreciation of the splendid report was expressed by Mrs. C. E. Argue, vice-president, who was in the chair. Afternoon tea was served, with Mrs. A. E. McColl pouring tea. The meeting took place in Bridge Street Church ladies' parlour.

Five Police Officers Sent to Port Colborne

Drafted for special police patrolling in the strike area at Port Colborne, five constables from Provincial Police District No. 8, headquarters at Belleville, were dispatched post haste to Port Colborne late yesterday.

Inspector Frank Gardner, in charge of O.P.P. district No. 8, Belleville headquarters, received instructions from Provincial Police headquarters in Toronto yesterday to send five constables and included Constables W. E. Smith, D. Carruthers, A. A. Starke, Belleville, A. Dymond, Madoc and Gordon Campbell, Campbellford, in the detachment.

Trouble arose in Port Colborne yesterday when strike-breakers attempted to enter a factory where strikers were picketting. Police swung batons yesterday in an effort to quell the trouble and reinforcements were immediately dispatched from all parts of the province to assist in the maintenance of peace and order.

Christ Church Men's Club Entertains

Entertaining their lady friends, the Men's Club of Christ Church held its inaugural meeting of the autumn semester in the church Parish Hall last evening. Upwards of 60 persons enoyed the evening's program prepared by the members of the Men's Club. The initial part of the evening was enjoyed at euchre, luncheon and a short period of social activities and dancing concluded the evening. The Men's Club of Christ Church opened their current indoor season with the customary social and ladies' evening, during which it was announced that the annual club banquet would be held in the middle of November, at which time Professor Campbell of Queen's University would be the special speaker.

PLAYGROUNDS IS SUBJECT OF TALK

William Bowerman, Supervisor, Gives Timely Suggestions

Timely suggestions, which will be acted upon before another opening of the Kiwanis playgrounds, were given members of the local club at their weekly luncheon by William Bowerman, supervisor of the West Hill playgrounds during the past summer.

The speaker gave a progressive picture of the work done by the Kiwanis Club at these two playgrounds being introduced by Harold Seldon and Kiwanian appreciation being expressed by Fred Whyte, chairman of Boys' work. Albert Boynton presided at the meeting with Ross Stiver as sergeant at arms and Fred Whyte as song leader, Leo B. Riggs being at the piano.

The thanks of the club was extended by the president to all, who had in any way contributed to the success of the Karnival, which netted a little over $1,000 in profit, which will be used for furtherance of Kiwanis projects in this district. The ladies were especially thanked for their work on the Hope Chest, while Mrs. Boynton as chairman of that committee expressed her thanks through her husband as president of the club. The Rotary, Kinsmen, and Y's Men were especially thanked for their cooperation and help, while Lieut. Col. A. B. Gribble and his officers were thanked for the use of the Armouries. Frank Domenico, chairman of the general committee of the Karnival also added his word of praise and Fire Chief Bill Lynch was especially thanked for his work in cleaning up after the affair was over.

Carmen Guest Booster

Carmen Guest, manager of the Metropolitan Store, was booster of the day with James Cowan, A. B. Collins, K.C. and Len Fozard as the lucky winners. Harold Seldon told of his visit to a Detroit Club while in that city and brought greetings from Joe Prance a member, supposed to be the founder of that particular club and also of Kiwanis. Mr. Bowerman stated that in the month of August the attendance was good and the handicraft hour well attended with the workmanship excellent. The supervisor told of the trips the boys made to the lake, which were much enjoyed and the baseball season one of the best experienced. He told of organizing a bantam league for boys under eight years old, which was one of the best loops of the playgrounds. Some changes were made in the Field Day grading of ages, with the result more entries were received and keener competition witnessed.

Mr. Bowerman praised the work of the woman supervisor and advised the members to visit the playgrounds occasionally. The speaker told of storing the equipment, but reminded the members that some of it would need replacing in the coming year. Mr. Bowerman asked the question what is your work and the results you are getting? He told of easing boys into the leadership of the various gangs, the boys that will provide leadership in the years to come. It was suggested by the speaker that a handicraft display be given at the Kiwanis Karnival with members individually sponsoring a certain section, that lights be placed on the playgrounds, that children should be taught to swim and that a hockey cushion be provided at each of the playgrounds.

Police Blotter

Said to have assaulted a Bleecker Avenue resident, a transient, who gave his name as Cecil Howard, was arrested yesterday and held in custody, appearing before H. B. Wilson, local Justice of the Peace, today on a charge of intoxication. Howard was remanded in custody until Friday.

The accused was apprehended by Constable Jerome, of the Canadian National Railway police, following complaints from Clayton Provins, 421 Bleecker Avenue to the effect that Howard and another transient had assaulted him. Howard was apprehended while trespassing on railway property and later turned over to the city authorities, who preferred the charge.

Two bicycles which were reported stolen in Belleville yesterday, were recovered by police today. One was found abandoned in the city, while the other was discovered in Cobourg.

Fender and radiator damage resulted to two motor cars at the intersection of Front and Bridge Streets last evening, but no injuries sustained. P.C. Ellis investigated following which the matter was amicably settled between the parties concerned. Mr. E. Moynes, 31 Bridge Street, and Miss M. M. Reid, Ivanhoe, were the drivers of the cars implicated. No charges were deemed necessary owing to the small amount of damage resulting.

Kingston police reported the theft of a Packard sedan bearing Ontario licence plates number 58-Z-34 last night.

Thomas Thorne, custodian of the city dog pound, is in possession of a fine brown and white colored female terrier dog, which was found wandering at large and without a proper dog tag displayed. The animal will be destroyed this evening unless claimed by the owner.

Chemical Works Explosion At British Chemical Plant Recalled After 20 Years

Scenes of Confusion in Trenton On Night of Fire And Explosion Retold

NO ONE INJURED

Twenty years ago this month on the night of the fourteenth occurred a series of explosions at the British Chemical Works at Trenton which rocked that town. The shocks were felt in Belleville and for a radius of fifty miles. The miracle of the disaster was that not a life was lost, not a person hurt, though the material loss ran into many hundreds of thousands of dollars. For the escape of everyone during the disaster, the magnitude of the explosions and the wild scenes of confusion which followed through the night and well on into the afternoon of the next day and early evening, and for the lack of definite information for some hours, the explosion at the British Chemical plant will be remembered while there is one person living who remembers that night not only in Trenton but in the countryside and in Belleville and adjacent towns.

Nine explosions in all occurred at the works. News of impending explosions would again and again startle the excited people who would make a rush for points which they deemed far enough away to assure safety.

First Explosion

It was Thanksgiving Day evening. People of Trenton had got up from their supper tables only a short time when about seven ten o'clock the siren blew at the works of the British Explosives Limited. Workmen in the huge plant which had been making explosives for the British and allied armies knew what that sound meant. Fire had broken out when a vat overflowed, and in a short space of time the flames had caught on to one of the large buildings, after a brave fight had been put up by the workmen and staff to extinguish them. It was then the order was given to sound the siren which was a warning to seek safety. In fifteen minutes the expected happened—a terrific explosion. By this time a thousand or more men employed at the plant had had opportunity to reach places of safety. The workroll numbered from 2,500 to 3,000 men on three shifts. In the flight from the plant, some of the workmen ran in directions opposite to where their homes and places of residence lay and it was hours before they could arrive by roundabout ways at home and assure their families and friends that they were safe.

Trenton was badly shaken by the first explosion and the people had in another minute's time to hear and feel a second explosion. The sky was lighted up for miles, the flames rolling upward in a huge ball of fire, which seemed to many persons a quarter of a mile high. A few minutes later brought a third detonation. The sky was almost as light as day and newspapers could be read by the glow of the heavens. A series of blasts occurred ten minutes later and lasted for four or five seconds. Explosions followed and in all eight large explosions took place in the early evening.

Scenes of Excitement and Disaster

Trenton folk had jumped to their feet at the first blast. Some ran to the streets and others to their garages to get their cars out or to barns and stables to get horses and vehicles. In the early evening remarkable scenes were to be noticed by the aid of the lurid sky on the highways leading out of Trenton, there were hundreds of people in cars and buggies or walking along the way to Carrying Place or in the direction of Frankford or Belleville and Brighton. Even in the early afternoon of the following day were to be seen men, women wearily trudging eastward with belongings drawn in little carts or wagons, while others wheeled babies in carriages. Scenes such as these were graphic reminders of fugitive populations in France and Belgium in the early days of the war.

In such a situation rumor stalked up and down. There was often heard the rumor, "Another explosion is coming," or "the worst is yet to come." A newspaperman witnessed one of such evidences of mob fear on Tuesday morning, October 15th about eleven o'clock when a crowd of people rushed down the street swept by on their way to the western limits of the town. As they hurried along numbers joined them as they heard the cry that another explosion was feared.

Most of the "T.N.T." had been shipped out the day before the disaster, the storehouses were cleared every day and the output of the day of the disaster was said to have been two or three carloads of the explosive. During the fire and explosions some men actually removed from the path of the explosions a quantity of T.N.T.

Ready to Give Aid

In the first shock of the disaster, no one knew how many if any had been killed or injured. Soldiers were rushed from Belleville to the scene to assist in guarding the works and in the preservation of order, while a party of nurses was held in readiness at Kingston to go to the scene in case they were required. Fortunately there was no one injured and their services were not required.

During the night the electric service was off for a short time in both east and west sides and left these portions of the town in darkness. Trenton fire brigade labored at the works all the night and during the next day, assisting the fire staff of the plant.

The Chemical Works had been built two miles from the business section on 400 acres of land and far enough away to protect the residents and dwellings from injury or damage. The fact is that it was behind a hill, as its ruins testify to this day. These can be seen from passing trains or from the roads. The plant was said to have been worth millions of dollars and had been in operation for about three years. The west side of the river suffered from shattering of windows in stores and dwellings. On one street for hundreds of feet at a stretch there was not an unbroken plate glass or window pane.

Houses Without Glass in Windows

In the confusion and excitement of the night of the explosions, many left their homes, sick persons were moved to homes at a distance. Late at night others went back to their homes and made the best of the chilly quarters as the windows were broken. Blankets, quilts, sheet iron, and artificial board material were used to block the open windows and prevent draughts.

Next morning just after dawn another blast occurred which roused people from their uneasy beds. It was a terrific blast of a nitrate tank. That was the last. Three hundred persons were reported to have spent the night on the mountain west of the river.

Debris from the blasts were found hundreds of feet from the explosions.

Highways bore a congestion of traffic not seen before or since that night. How no one was hurt in the mass of people using the road seems a miracle. Belleville motorists drove to Trenton and picked up friends there and brought them to their homes here. Hotels in Belleville, the Y.M.C.A. and other buildings were crowded with persons who had fled the scene.

Refugees from the area were lodged overnight as far away as Wellington, Picton, Frankford and Brighton.

One of the lamentable features of the disaster was the case of the sick. The influenza had begun to make itself felt that autumn and some persons ill had been moved from their homes.

Among the scenes on the road was that of a fleeing girl who gave out walking and was carried on a blanket for two miles by two men. One boy walked eight miles in his bare feet with his mother.

Public Reassured

C. N. Barclay, superintendent of the Explosives Limited, remained at the post of duty during the fire and at the time of the explosions. He was in constant touch with the various departments and the operations to prevent the spread of the fire and to safeguard life and limb. W. H. Ireland, mayor of Trenton in that year did his best to maintain order in the town and to curb the excitement and kept issuing bulletins which were posted up. These were of a reassuring nature and were given him by Mr. Barclay, who said that he believed the worst was passed. His faith was justified as no more blasts occurred after Tuesday at dawn.

The British Explosives Ltd. works had grown step by step until there were, it is said scores of them making up the plant. The explosions played strange pranks—it broke windows in the workers' bunks and it left stovepipes standing.

West Side Suffers

The west side of Trenton suffered most. The hill on the east side, behind which the explosives plant was built, appears to have protected East Trenton and the force of the blasts followed the bed of the River Trent with the result that on the west side the plate glass windows and small panes of glass were shattered on many streets.

About half of the $3,500,000 plant was destroyed, the TNT buildings and the gun cotton plant; the other divisions, such as the acid plant and the smokeless powder works escaping the resisting fire. The conflagration did not extend outside of the explosives works.

The disaster was more than a nine-days wonder. While excitement died down after a few days from its excessive form of the hours immediately following the explosions, those who lived in the vicinity did not cease to talk of the blast. A good part of the plant was in ruins, and the people had to set to work to undo some of the damage to their homes. As there was a scarcity of glass, there was delay in meeting the unprecedented demands on the supply, but shipments from outside soon remedied the needs for the dwellings and it was not long before the store fronts were restored. But even to this day people speak of the miraculous escape from death and injury of everyone on the night of Thanksgiving Day, Oct. 14, 1918.

Those were days long to be remembered for other reasons. Four weeks later to a day, the armistice was signed which ended the fifty-two months of struggle. At this same time influenza was raging all over Canada, taking a heavy toll of life.

By covering 869 miles in 3 days, 20 hours, 54 minutes, Mrs. Lillian Dredge made a new women's cycling record.

The cost of changing to the "keep to the right" rule of the road in Vienna, Austria, is stated to be about $200,000.

LOCAL CHINESE WORRIED BY FALL OF CANTON

Many Have Close Relatives and Friends in City Just Captured

MAIL IS IRREGULAR

Over the thousands of miles of water and land that separate them from their homeland, thoughts of Belleville Chinese have ranged this week back to their native Canton where events as mysterious as the flight from Canton, itself, have occurred within recent days.

Thoughts for the safety of those who have been left behind, mothers and fathers and brothers, have been uppermost in the minds of Chinese who at present reside in Belleville, but the bewilderment which has followed the announcement of the ease with which their proverbial foe, the Japanese took Canton city is expressed in their brief comments.

Ninety per cent of the Chinese in Canada have come from Canton district, it was pointed out by Lee Mack, local laundryman. Their former homes were in the Canton sector, and it is in this section that their relatives live, directly in the path of the invading Japanese armies.

Little is known locally of what actually happened in Canton district lately. Mail from the Orient has been infrequent during past weeks. During the early part of the war letters were frequent; letters that assured friends and relatives in Belleville and elsewhere that things were as good as could be expected, and that China was carrying on, despite the war and the invading forces. So all that is known of the taking of Canton is the bare fact received from Canadian newspapers read to those who have not as yet mastered the printed word of this country by interpreters of their race.

That no resistance has been made by the soldiers of China against the Japanese prior to the taking of Canton remains a mystery among the local residents. In the liberal translation of the statement of Lee Mack this morning "the whole thing just didn't make sense."

Motorist traffic across the English Channel from Britain to Calais, France has jumped 49 per cent in two months.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

LYRIC CHOIR'S GIFTS IN SONG PLEASE HEARERS

Baptist Brotherhood Brings Noted Organization And Fine Assisting Artists From Toronto To Present Unique Program

Baptist Brotherhood of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, in bringing to Belleville the Lyric Male Choir of Toronto, Frederic C. Thomas, conductor, Miss Elizabeth M. Beale, elocutionist and Miss Ruth McJanet, violinist, and Winnifred L. Thomas, pianist and accompanist, set a high standard of art for the opening of the season of 1938-39 last evening at the Collegiate Auditorium. Mr. Gordon Bray, president of the Brotherhood, explained that the organization sought to make a definite contribution to the life of the community, such as the visit of the Lyric Choir and the assisting artists.

The choir, a body of twenty-five men, presented numbers which occupy a great place in the literature of song. "The Creation Hymn" by Beethoven; Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring"; Wagner's "Pilgrims' Chorus"; Sullivan's "Lost Chord", and "The Long Day Closes; DeRille's "Martyrs of the Arena"; a negro spiritual, "Steal Away"; Handel's "Where'er You Walk"; Harwood's "The Road to the Isles"; "The Ashgrove" by F. G. Thomas' arrangement; Sibelius' "Dear Land of Home"; Maunders' "Border Ballet"; Muller's "Spring Delight"; Linder's "Liza Lady" and Adura's "Torpedo and the Whale" arranged by W. E. Thomas. This body of songs and choruses as interpreted by the Lyric Choir made one of the finest entertainments of music ever heard here. The numbers were many of them well-known to the members of the audience, who accordingly could devote all attention to the beauty of the conception of the rendition and the high quality of the choir's vocalization. Deeply impressive were the first numbers which formed a fitting introduction to the program. The selections ranged through many schools and ages of music and covered a wide field, which permitted the fullest expression of the choir's gifts as developed and drawn out by the conductor. The interpretations were apt, the rhythm was perfect, shading of tone was remarkably successful, and these with the perfect balance of the parts and restraint of the singers carried the numbers into the hearts of the hearers. There was an entire absence of effort or strain, and every feature indicated the lyric quality as paramount. Mr. Thomas' conduct of the choir was as appealing and successful as the program, Mr. Thomas' direction being of that type which is of the very web of the total effect.

Winnifred L. Thomas at the piano had the deft skill of the accompanist whose playing is a component part of the rendition by the choir.

Miss Elizabeth M. Beale, reader, in her fine sense of characterization, her perfect enunciation, her exquisite dramatic sense, won immediate attention as she recited "The Life Boat." She went on with "The Judgment Day", "Ninety and Nine" and some other numbers including an Irish number. Her excellent voice, responsive to every variation of thought and emotion, and her gestures, established her at the head of visiting entertainers heard here in many years. True actress, she knew her audience and chose numbers which pleased.

Miss Ruth McJanet, a young violinist, played a number of classical selections, Gluck's "Lento", Farmer's "Let Us Cherish", and Dvorak's "Humoresque" with fine tone and feeling.

A Belleville singer, Mr. Frank Whittle, sang with the choir, to which he had belonged for some years, while resident in Toronto. It was he who introduced the conductor, Mr. Thomas, and the choir to the audience.

The members of the choir and the assisting artists were entertained at six o'clock in the basement of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, by the Brotherhood members, Mr. Gordon Bray presiding. Rev. A. G. Sinclair spoke a few words of welcome. Brief addresses were given by some of the visitors, and the artists contributed numbers.

Belleville Collegiate Band directed by Mr. Ross Hunter, played several numbers with excellence of performance before the opening of the evening program at the Collegiate Auditorium and during the intermission. They also were associated with the choir and audience in the rendition of "God Save the King." The band played a wide range of music. After the concert, the band, the visiting choir and the other artists were again entertained at the church and contributed numbers.

MAKERS OF WHOLESOME LAUGHTER

Those who strive to please and entertain on the stage, on platform, in the novel and short story, in the motion picture and over the radio deserve credit for keeping the spirit of men and women undaunted particularly in this era. There once was a period, known as the Gay Nineties to which May Irwin, queen of comedy, lent the power of her artistry. An ever effervescent spirit, she kept people gay with wholesome laughter. Today is a sadder day than the nineties and it would deserve such an artist as May was. Marie Dressler, her contemporary, "achieved a second career with an Indian summer in the movies" according to the New York Times. May Irwin began in pink stockings and pantalettes at 12 and remained true to the stage for 47 years. She rose to the royal ranks of Augustin Daly's company and was in the rest of the company of theatrical nobility, such as the Barrymores, Otis Skinner, Ada Rehan. Her death occurred this week.

While she did not care much for sentiment, one of the first songs to bring her success was "After the Ball", which the writer defines as a "sad, and almost dismal one", whose nostalgic strains are heard even today over the radio. But by her comic songs she was best known, the ditties she nursed into popularity. President Wilson in the war days named her "Secretary of Laughter".

Those who make people laugh with good wholesome mirth are benefactors. They lift the burden from the minds of the people and make them forget themselves.

More and more such would be a blessing to the people.

THIS WEATHER

For a brief space of time October changed its note but again it has returned with continued gifts of fine weather. This year the month has been making man and woman and child so pleased with life but some day colder weather will arrive and begin the dread reign of winter in real earnest. But the people want nothing better than such autumn weather with a smiling sun even if the trees are largely divested of their colored foliage and most of the leaves have found resting places in corners or in holes in the ground or lodgement against some post or bush. Even yet of course in the lawns of some who cultivated late flowers, salvia flings its dash of color upon the landscape. With temperature in the seventies at times, the weather seems unusually warm, especially as men know that Hallowe'en is not far off now. Hallowe'en is often later than the first autumn snowstorm, but today it looks as if the frolicsome night when goblins ride, according to the old legends, may come and go without any of the heralds of winter, the first snowflakes.

Men hope that Indian summer is far off yet, even if in some autumns it seems to have almost been absent. Man always wants more of good things and Indian Summer is one of these.

Frost's blackening influence on late plants has not yet descended.

AN OLD NAME CHOSEN

A writer points to the fact that Hitler chose a non-German name for his western defence line—he used the Latin word "limes" which carries out the phrase used by the Romans of old, who drew a line between the Roman Empire and the German tribes, the "Limes Germanicus." The Romans placed this limit on their empire of their own free will. It meant the limit beyond which the Romans had no intention of going. The English word "limit" comes from the word "limes" and has something of the same meaning, a limitation line. Today men use the word in the same sense when we speak of the city "limits".

Whether Hitler in so naming the border as "limes" was merely paying a tribute to Mussolini's race, the Italian descendants of the ancient Romans, is not sure. Or it may be that he used the words in the same sense as the Romans, of limits beyond which he would not go. Anyway since that time he has said something about peace with France and about German satisfaction with her western boundaries. A New York writer wonders if Hitler thinks of those on the western side of the "limes" as the Romans thought of the old German tribes, who were barbarians to the Romans and his guess is that to Hitler, the Belgians, French and British may seem so with their free democratic institutions which Germany cannot understand because she thinks them disorderly—anything opposite of the German sense of order, discipline and regimentation. That writer also thought that Mussolini might feel hurt by seeing how much farther the old Roman Empire went than the modern Roman Empire of Italy is likely to go.

Anyway perhaps Hitler wants to show as he pointed out in Rome the continuity of history. He links up with the old Roman Empire who had many struggles with the Germans. The old Roman Empire has been much in the minds of the Germans and is a means to show the antiquity of historic interest in the German peoples. The Old Limes Germanicus is not where it is now, for the Germans are far beyond it. All south Germany including Munich and Vienna and Nuremberg was within this famous limit. The Italians are far south of the 'limes'. The Romans set this line and not the Germans. Today the Germans make the "limes Germanicus".

ANOTHER EVIDENCE THAT THE EFFORTS OF THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER TO PRESERVE PEACE met with world-wide appreciation appears in the telegram received at the headquarters of Rotary International in Chicago from the President of that body, George C. Hagar, dated 30th September from Zurich. Switzerland, which read as follows:

TO ALL FOUR STATESMEN WHO MET AT MUNICH, I HAVE, AS PRESIDENT OF ROTARY INTERNATIONAL, CONVEYED THE GRATEFUL APPRECIATION OF 200,000 ROTARIANS FOR RESTORING, THROUGH THE CONFERENCE, CONFIDENCE AND PEACE.

FOR THOSE WHO THINK THAT SERVICE CLUBS MEET JUST TO SING AND SHOUT and have a good time it might be interesting to note that last week's crippled children work of the Belleville Rotary Club included the beginning of specialist treatment for a girl, who is faced with the possibility of losing her eyesight, in an effort to save her from blindness. Another girl who has looked out on life from crutches, was taken to Toronto for specialist treatment with every hope that she may be able in the not distant future to discard the crutches. Other cases are under treatment and there never has been a time since the beginning of this work for crippled children that cases have not been under treatment financed by the Rotary Club of Belleville. Other service clubs are doing good work in other directions and demonstrating how much unselfishness there is in the world.

COURAGE IS A TERM LOOSELY APPLIED AT TIMES but the courage of those Canadians living on farms in Saskatchewan is in a class by itself. Rev. A. Y. Robertson, of Yellow Grass, Saskatchewan, a recent visitor to Belleville, gave a graphic picture of the trials and tribulations of these people who are engaged in the building of the West. For several years the crops have been a failure, but this year high hopes were entertained for a bumper crop and all indications encouraged the hope. Then the grasshoppers came from the South in millions and devoured the growing crop, every green thing was destroyed. Grasshopper visitations generally occur in dry seasons and as Saskatchewan had had plenty of moisture no fear was felt of grasshoppers—but they came in such swarms as to darken the sun at noonday and being unexpected no preparation had been made to fight them. That was not enough, apparently, for the rust came and as not enough rust-resistent seed had been available the rust carried on where the grasshopper left off in destruction. For next year a sufficient quantity of rust-resistent seed will be available for all Saskatchewan. Then the disease among horses struck and caused heavy losses to farmers already staggering under overheavy loads of misfortune. What a high degree of courage is necessary for those farmers of Saskatchewan looking back on several years of variations of the plagues of Egypt from drouth, to hoppers, to rust, to horse disease, and looking forward to a new year which may be a repitition of disaster or a year of abundant promise fulfilled and a start upon debt paying and providing the foundation for a comfortable future. General sympathy will go forth to our neighbors in Saskatchewan whose faith and courage must be strained to the breaking point.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 26TH, 1918

Day light saving time in Canada ends with today. It has been in force since last April.

The Minister of Agriculture, the Hon. G. S. Henry, has written Col. Ponton of the Belleville Board of Trade, that he will be here on Nov. 15th and will look into the road problems as well as other public matters of interest.

The horse, harness and buggy which were stolen recently from Mr. William Way's barn have been recovered in a drive shed at Shannonville.

Many citizens were inoculated today with influenza preventtative vaccine by Dr. Yeomans, Medical Officer of Health, at the Y.M.C.A.

30 YEARS AGO

OCT. 26TH, 1908

Elections are taking place today throughout Canada for representatives to the eleventh parliament. In Belleville it was one of the quietest election days on record. The heavy rain made conditions anything but ideal. Election officials, however, state that a good-sized vote was polled.

Prof. Denmark and his excellent band of musicians will give a grand concert at Holloway Street Methodist Church next Tuesday evening.

Tomorrow evening in Convocation Hall, Toronto, Lord Milner of South Africa is to give an address. The President of the Belleville Canadian Club, Judge Deroche will attend the lecture.

On Sunday Bridge Street Methodist Church Sunday School celebrated its 86th anniversary. A former pastor, the Rev. J. P. Wilson of Lindsay was the special preacher for the day.

40 YEARS AGO

OCT. 26TH, 1898

Messrs Alford and Lear have been awarded the contract to build the skating rink on Pinnacle Street.

The second performance of "Side Tracked" drew a small but appreciative audience at the opera house last evening.

The Donnelly Wrecking Company has closed a contract with the Rathbun Company, Deseronto, to raise the barge, Puritan, sunk in the channel abreast of Capt. John's Island in the Bay of Quinte.

Mr. Harry Parker has left for St. Paul, Minn., after visiting his parents here.

The schooner Blake, owned by Thomas Mills, banker of Kingston, was burned while ashore off Duck Island, south of the Manitoulin Islands. Capt. Sidley of Belleville was in command of the schooner. She was valued at $3,000.00 and was light at the time of the fire.

Messrs. W. Deshane, F. Rutherford and C. G. Row will leave tomorrow to spend some time hunting in the northern part of the county.

50 YEARS AGO

OCT. 26TH, 1888

The cow constable reports that since April 3rd, of this year to the present date, he has impounded 366 head of cattle, 140 geese, 35 horses and six pigs, making a total of 546. The impounded stock were distributed in the four pounds in different parts of the city. From the above it will be seen that the constable has performed his duties in a creditable manner.

The city streets are very muddy.

Messrs. C. O. Pettet and Company, founders, of this city, are preparing a 3000 pound waterwheel for the Grass Mills at Plainfield.

Mr. Samuel Mills, formerly with the Grand Trunk Railway here, is now with the Eastern Railway in Minnesota.

Ald. J. H. Starling and Ald. W. S. Reeves occupied the bench at the Police court this morning owing to the absence of the magistrate.

The city is gradually filling up; many houses which were vacant a few weeks ago are now occupied.

Diet For Constipation Due to Lazy Bowel—Atonic Constipation

The first thought in constipation aside from drugs, is to use 'rough' foods, as rough foods irritate the lining of the intestine and thus cause its muscles to work and push wastes downward. And this treatment is wise except in that form of constipation where the individual is of the nervous or emotional type and the lower bowel contracts in some parts and expands in others, making it look like an old inner automobile tube. If rough foods are used in these cases they irritate the lining of the bowel too much and cause inflammation—colitis.

In the ordinary type of constipation where the lower bowel is lazy and has lost its tone (atonic) the foods used are (a) laxative foods such as figs, apples, rhubarb, apricots (b;) those foods which contain large amounts of cellulose and other indigestible skins, pits, and fibres such as bran, whole grain cereals, all green vegetables such as spinach, carrots, cabbage, asparagus, onions, tomatoes, parsnips, celery, turnips, beets, lettuce; the legumes such as string bean and pea, and all nuts; (c) foods which contain sugar and organic acids such as prunes, figs, raisins, rhubarb, plums, grapes, peaches, apples, pears, raspberries, currants strawberries, pineapples, and oranges; and (d) fats which are useful lubricants.

Breakfast—Stewed prunes; oatmeal, cream 20 per cent; sugar 2 teaspoons; 2 slices whole wheat bread; orange marmalade; coffee with cream and sugar.

Lunch— Vegetable soup; salad—cottage cheese, tomato, lettuce, mayonnaise; whole wheat bread; butter; baked apple with skin; coffee with cream and sugar.

Supper—Roast beef, plenty of fat on it; baked potato with skin; boiled spinach; salad— almond, raisins, lettuce mayonnaise; whole wheat bread, butter; stewed figs; tea.

Breakfast—Melon; cooked whole wheat cereal with cream and sugar whole wheat toast with butter; coffee with cream and sugar.

Lunch—Vegetable and beef soup; fresh asparagus salad; whole wheat muffins; butter; marmalade; sliced orange and banana; coffee with cream and sugar.

Supper—Liver with mushroom sauce; baked potato with skin; buttered celery; cabbage, grape and pineapple salad; whole wheat bread, butter; stewed fig; tea with cream and sugar.

Plan Drive For Collective Security

To carry out the program on behalf of collective security proclaimed by Senator Cairine Wilson, President of the League of Nations Society in Canada, three organizing and speaking tours are being planned. In the photograph are: Top, LEFT to RIGHT, Constance Hayward, graduate of Acadia University and post-graduate student at the London School of Economics and Political Science, who spent the summer in Europe as Canadian representative at several conferences and as a member of the staff of the League of Nations Secretariat during the 1938 Assembly, who will travel as far west as Brandon, Manitoba; F. E. Figgures of London, England, secretary-general-elect of the International Federation of League of Nations, a member of the bar of Great Britain, who arrives in Quebec on November 3 for a tour that will extend through Ontario, Quebec and the maritime provinces; Muriel Jacobson, a graduate of McMaster University, a delegate of the society to the British Commonwealth Peace Conference, Glasgow and a representative of the society in an exploration of refugee and relief conditions in Czechoslovakia, who returned on October 23 and is speaking in Ontario. Bottom row, LEFT to RIGHT: Dr. H. M. Tory, former president of the University of Alberta, who is chairman of the society's national finance committee and is participating in the drive; Dr. T. H. Leggett, formerly president of the Canadian Medical Association, now chairman of the national executive committee of the League of Nations Society; and Senator Cairine R. Wilson, president of the society.

The Law Takes To Scooters In Interesting Experiment

Patrolmen of Inglewood, Calif., won't get sore feet pounding the pavement if an experiment now being tried out in that city proves successful. Police are being equipped with scooters to take over various beats in the downtown section. The tiny motor scooters can cruise at thirty miles an hour and get 130 miles on a gallon of gas. Not only do they save wear and tear on the feet of the patrolmen, but make for efficiency in directing and controlling traffic, according to Inglewood police officials.

A squad of the newly-formed women's auxiliary service is pictured at Chelsea, England, undergoing drill at the Duke of York's headquarters. They will take regular army drill, except that the regulation army step of 30 inches has been shortened to 27 inches to suit the female stride.

Tweed

Tweed—Capt. C. Banar of the Salvation Army is attending the Army's annual congress in Toronto this week.

Mr. J. G. Frost has been appointed Clerk of the Division Court of Tweed Village, succeeding Mr. Geo. Clark who recently resigned.

Mr. Chas. Both of Denbigh and his grandson Jack Both of Napanee have returned home after spending several months in Germany and England.

The 89th anniversary of Tweed United Church was observed on Sunday, October 23rd. Rev. W. W. McNairn of St. Paul's Eastern Church, Ottawa, one of the foremost ministers of the Capital City was the special speaker at both services, and delivered two fine addresses. Large congregations were in attendance both morning and evening.

Special music was rendered by the choir under the direction of Mr. S. H. Connor with Miss Lois Richardson as organist. At the morning service it consisted of an anthem "Ten thousand times ten thousand" (Gaved) with solo by Mrs. M. G. Dales; a solo "Come ye blessed" by Mrs. F. E. Houston of Bridge Street United Church choir, Belleville and a male quartette "I have heard of a land" contributed by Messrs Dales, Wilson, Connor and Morris. At the evening service the choir sang "Glory to thee, my God, this night" (Gounod). Reg Wilson sang the solos. A trio "Grant us thy peace, O Lord" (Hamblen) by Mesdames Dales, Connor and Grier and a four part ladies' chorus "The prayer perfect" (Stenson) were exceptionally well rendered.

The speaker, Rev. W. W. McNairn in his morning address referred to the organization of a methodist congregation in Tweed in 1849. The period which has passed since that date has been marked by great developments until today the present magnificent stone edifice stands as a monument to previous generations. "It is always an inspiring thing to look back over the records of the past," said the speaker. "Anniversaries are new rallying points for something higher and are important milestones in the life of a person or a church or other organization.

"For many years," said the speaker, in his evening address, "men have argued and debated what God is—His mind, His nature, His purpose, His will. We have travelled a long way since then in our conception of God. Today our minds are concerned with the question "What is man?" To the Greek man's greatness was in proportion to his knowledge; to the Roman, his possessions. Three marks of a man's greatness stand out—his humility, his mastery of himself and his usefulness. These three are the measure of a man."

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Gordon entertained the United Church choir at their home on Sunday evening following the anniversary services. Remarks complimentary to the choir and the excellence of the musical numbers given at the services were made by Rev. W. W. McNairn and Mr. Gordon. Mr. S. H. Connor, choir leader expressed the choir's appreciation of the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon.

The Women's Association of Sulphide United Church was entertained at the home of Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Morrison on Thursday evening.

Dr. M. G. Dales, assisted by Mrs. Elwood Gordon, R.N., visited Tweed Consolidated School on Friday afternoon and administered the third inoculation of scarlet fever serum to a number of children of Miss Moran's and Miss Gunning's rooms.

Mr. Elmer Wager who is a patient in Belleville General Hospital following an appendix operation is improving in health and will soon be able to return to his home.

Mrs. F. E. Houston and Mr. Dorland Houston of Belleville assisted the choir of Tweed United Church at the anniversary services on Sunday.

Rev. H. Lloyd Morrison preached in St. Paul's Eastern Church, Ottawa, on Sunday.

Mr. Philip Harrison, a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, is reported to be improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pyne and Miss Doris Pyne, Picton, visited Mr. and Mrs. Anson Jordan, Moira Street East, over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Naylor of Colborne and Mr. and Mrs. Dennison of Napanee, were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Andrews, Charles Street.

The staff of the Artistic Ladies' Wear entertained Mrs. Lee Purdy (nee Gladys Cooke) at dinner at the Queen's Hotel on Thursday night last. After dinner a theatre party was arranged and Mrs. Purdy was presented with a beautiful gift which bespoke the high esteem in which she was held by the entire staff.

The following nurses attended the annual meeting of District No. 6, R.N.A.O. held in Nichol's hospital, Peterboro, Monday evening —Miss R. Thompson, Miss H. Collier, Miss S. Byers, Miss M. Youmans, Helen Fitzgerald, R. Fitzgerald, Florence Fitzgerald, N. Brown, A. Wright, M. Bonter, M. Hutson, L. Smith, R. Peacock, M. Beaumont.

Mrs. Arthur Andrews has been visiting her daughter-in-law, Mrs. B. Andrew, Charles Street, who was in a motor accident recently. The accident happened between Havelock and Peterborough. Both Mr. and Mrs. Andrews had a narrow escape. They were badly shaken up and bruised, and were given medical treatment in Havelock Hospital.

The St. Andrew's Presbyterian Y.P.S. enjoyed a delightful Hallowe'en party on Monday evening, October 24, a large crowd attending. The hall was decorated in the proverbial fashion— orange and black. Prizes were given for the following—Fancy dress won by Thelma Bowman and Dick Hart; Get-acquainted contest won by Jessie Cunningham; nut contest won by Rubyn Ruttan; Guessing contest won by Bernice Saunders, Bob Aman, Jack Carson and Lenna Ewenson. An amusing event was the Ghost Walk when everytning pertraining to the supernatural was encountered. This was immediately followed by a Ghost Story which was voted by all a real thriller. Miss Bernice Saunders was guest pianist for the evening. A buffet luncheon was served and was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. J. C. Kay Ball of Montreal who has been visiting in Western Canada and United States for the last two years, is visiting at the home of Mrs. E. S. Kew of Charles Street.

Weddings

SUTHERLAND — THOMPSON

A quiet, but pretty wedding took place on Tuesday evening, October 25, at the Colborne Street United Church parsonage, Kingston, when Rev. B. W. Thompson united in marriage Susie Beatrice Thompson, Belleville, and David Allen Sutherland, Sidney.

The bride was lovely in a costume of skipper blue with navy accessories. After the honeymoon the young couple will reside in Gananoque, Ont.

Miss L. Bertram Heads Nurses' Organization

A meeting of Chapter A. District 6 of the R.N.A.O., was held at Nurses' Residence, Belleville, last evening. A large number attended. The officers for 1939 were elected as follows:

1st Vice President—Miss B. Beaumont.

Secretary-Treasurer — Miss H. Cryan.

Nurse Education — Miss M. Thompson.

Membership Convener—Miss Olive Fulton.

Public Health Convener—Miss E. Earshman

Private Duty Convener — Miss Helen Fitzgerald.

Reporter to Canadian Nurse and History Convener—Miss Florence Fitzgerald.

Flower Convener— Miss Ruby Windsor.

Enrolment Officer — Miss Eva Meeks.

BABY NEED NOT GET YOU UP

YOU and your baby both need sleep. There is a sure and easy way to get it. Let Mrs. B—, Jr., of Winona, Ontario, tell you in her own words: "Night after night, as soon as we would get settled in bed, 'Baby' would start crying. . . . Baby's Own Tablets changed all this. What a blessed relief."

In no sense are these "sleeping" tablets. But they promote healthful sleep by promptly making the ill baby well. The well baby always sleeps soundly.

Absolutely harmless. Contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. Each package gives an analyst's report. As easy to take as candy. Sweet-tasting and quick in their action.

Baby's Own Tablets bring quick relief from most of "baby's" ills. Teething troubles, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds all disappear when Baby's Own Tablets are given. If they are not effective, your druggist will refund your money. 25 cents.

Growing children should early be taught the habit of industry.

I thought of this the other day when I made my morning visit to the nursery, looked through the open door of the dining room, and saw the Dionne Quintuplets having breakfast. I saw four little girls and their nurse sitting at the table, eagerly but politely giving their individed attention to the food placed before them.

I say I saw four seated because Emilie was waiting on the table for that meal, and she was making a mighty good job of it, too. You know, during every meal one of the children has the privilege—not the duty—of waiting on her sisters. I stress the world "privilege" because nothing is ever done in the nursery that would make work appear menial. You cannot start too early to train young people to place the proper value on the essential things that go to make up everyday life.

We are all creatures of habit, and being industrious is just as much a habit as brushing your teeth or smoking or putting away clothes in the right closet, on the proper hook. I always feel that when we've started the children off on a good habit we have headed off a bad one. Certainly if everyone in the world were industrious, if all hands were busy, then Satan would have a pretty tough time making his way in the world.

But to get back to the scene in the breakfast room. I hadn't been there more than a moment when they caught sight of me, and all waved and called, "Bon jour, Docteur Dapoe" (you see, they don't pronounce "F" very plainly yet). I waved back at them but didn't linger. Interruptions at mealtime are bad, we think, so I left them with their nurse. She sat there, eating, and being included in their chatter of conversation as they planned the days doings. Gently and without appearing to do so, she directed their conduct.

Mealtime conduct is most important. You people who have seen a meal ruined for everyone because on spoiled child could not be controlled don't need to be reminded of this. I sometimes think that more children are spoiled at mealtime than during any other period of the day. Yet there is no place where good training is more apparent or more appreciated. What is more, carelessness here usually indicates carelessness in other things.

The Quints' table manners are excellent. There are no scenes during meals. The nurse never raises her voice and says: "Cecile, if you don't eat your potatoes I'll—" If one of the girls objects to an article of food placed before her, it is removed without comment. What is more, it stays removed. She simply goes without. You would be surprised how little trouble we experience in this regard. Our rules are like the food, simple, but the girls very quickly learn that rules are not to be broken; they quickly come to understand the reasoning behind the rule and they cheerfully obey.

When it comes to table deportment, we adults are on the spot. If children are to have good table manners, they must learn them from parents? Well, I'm afraid that too often Father looks on mealtime as time for him to read the sport page, and Mother is too busy getting dinner served. This leaves the children free to feed themselves in any way they like. There isn't anything deliberate about it it's just carelessness. But so far as it goes, discipline breaks down and the whole fabric of the child's training is affected.

So, mother and dad, if you expect Bill and Mary to sit quietly at the table, ask that the bread be passed instead of reaching for it; so that they should not criticize food placed before them, you must show them the example. Just telling them what is right isn't enough.

GOOD MANNERS

Acknowledging an Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There is a friend of mine whom I have known for a few years. He has always sent me Christmas cards and has always been very nice to me when I have seen him. He has just opened up an office (he is now a doctor) and has sent me an announcement card of the opening of his office.

Please tell me if it is correct for me to write to him, acknowledging receipt of his notice, and to wish him success and so forth. If this is proper, kindly tell me what to write, and just how to word it?

Betty

Yes, by all means do write this note of good wishes to your friend on this important milestone of his life. It will be a delight and inspiration to him to have the spirit of friendship and well-wishing in your note. Perhaps somewhat like this.

Dear Bob:

I am rejoicing with you that the "great moment" has arrived, and that now you are 'Doctor Robert Allen" with a fine new office of your own. I was so happy to receive your announcement, so proud of you for your splendid accomplishment. Congratulations to you, Bob and every high wish for your happiness and success.

I hope to see you soon, to hear all about your new life, and in the meantime and always, my friendliest greetings.

Very sincerely,
Betty Graham

Processional and Recessional

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

1—I am to be married and I am going to have six bridesmaids, including the maid of honor. How should I enter the church?

2—What is the order to follow when leaving the church?

3—I have a stepfather. Is it permissible to have him give me in marriage?

4—The wedding is to take place at the church at eleven thirty in the morning. How should the bridesmaids be dressed? What colors would you suggest?

Mary

1—First in the processional come the ushers, walking together, two by two, the shortest leading; the next the bridesmaids, walking together, two by two, the shortest leading; then the maid of honor, walking alone; last, you and your stepfather.

I am a bit indefinite about your statement that you are to 'have six bridesmaids, including the maid of honor". Since the bridesmaids walk in pairs in both the processional and recessional), you should, if possible, plan to have an even number of bridemaids. This balances the processional and recessional.

2—In the recessional, you and your husband walk first; then the maid of honor, walking alone; next the bridesmaids, walking two by two and last the ushers, walking together two by two.

The best man does not usually take part in the recessional, but sometimes, if the bride and groom wish, he walks with the maid of honor. The best plan, however, is for the bride and bridegroom to be the only "couple" in the recessional.

3—If you have a brother, you may wish to have him present you in marriage. If not, and you have an uncle to whom you are especially devoted, you may invite him to give you in marriage. It is thoroughly correct for you to have your stepfather have this honor.

4—For your morning wedding you should plan to have the dresses of your attendants on the side of simplicity. In materials this season you will find glorious shades of red especially in burgundy and wine shades), of blue (especially in the paler shades), and interesting shades of rose-beige, lime and chartreuse green, and, of course, the fashionable fuschia and mauve violet. Usually the bridesmaids are dressed in the same color, with the maid of honor in a harmonizing shade.

CARMEL Y.P.U.

The regular meeting of the Carmel Y.P.U. opened with quiet music. Scripture was read by Mildred Jones, Worship service was taken by Hazel Hicks. Instrumental by Ruby Howes. Hymn 12 was sung, followed by prayer. The topic was "Co-operative Movement and Christianity" which was taken in parts by Misses Marion Waddell, Ruby Howes, Kathleen Brownson, Hazel Hicks and Mr. Jack McCabe.

Hymn 245 was sung follwoed by the Mizpah Benediction.

DR. R. MITCHELL SPECIAL SPEAKER

Missionary from Honan China, is Anniversary Preacher

3rd Sidney—"Israel doth not know—my people doth not consider"—Isaiah 1-3, was the text chosen by Rev. Dr. Robert A. Mitchell of Honan, China, for his morning sermon at Aiken's anniversary services on Sunday. "Do we know," Dr. Mitchell asked, "as we live in the security of our Ontario homes, the work that is going on in China, in the foreign fields the work of the home missionaries in the mining camps, in the hospitals in the north, and in the Church of all Nations in the larger cities?"

Speaking to an audience of W. M. S. Workers he urged that the men, too, do know, by reading and studying our United Church literature. He announced with regret, and deep concern that so few men candidates are entering the field. In China, Dr. Mitchell stated the missionaries have gripped the hearts of the people because they have "stood by" during the Japanese war invasions, and he read extracts from a letter received from his son, who is stationed within that area.

At the evening service Dr. Mitchell spoke more fully on conditions of today in China.

The Pastor, Rev. H. B. Johnson was fortunate in securing Dr. Mitchell as speaker to begin the 10 week membership crusade for a quarter of a million church members.

The choir rendered appropriate music at both services and the church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with a profusion of cut flowers, ferns and plants.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Outwater of Hastings attended Aiken's anniversary and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Carman Grills.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Rush and family of Bayside spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Murney Jeffrey after attending Aiken's Church.

Mr. Wilkie Orr and Mr. Clarence Ketcheson spent a few days last week in Ottawa.

The Misses Kathleen and Mary McPherson, Mrs. Jas. McPherson and Master Jimmy were guests on Sunday of Miss Irene Grills.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Miss Eileen McMullen of Mt. Pleasant, Rawdon, attended Aiken's Church on Sunday and visited their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Leon McMullen.

Mr. Norman Wheeler of Orangeville, spent the week end with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wheeler.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Coon, 4th line, and Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. S. Westover.

Mrs. Chas. Turner of Colborne has been visiting her sister Mrs. Edwin Adams.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. David Sutherland, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sutherland, 3rd line, who was married on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nobes, Wallbridge, Mr. T. A. Hinchcliffe and Mr. John Gregory of Toronto spent the dinner hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Hubble and family.

Several ladies motored to Stirling on Thursday and held their W. A. Meeting at the home of a former member, Mrs. Roy Duffin.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Finkle, North Front St., Belleville, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Irwin.

The warm rain on Monday was deeply appreciated by farmers in this district as it was becoming dry for finishing fall plowing. Most farmers have their roots and apples in. There is a great cause for gratitude for the bountiful crops and gardens during the past season.

AIKENS' W. A.

Mrs. Roy Duffin, Stirling, a former member of the society, opened her home on Thursday for the October meeting of the Woman's Association of Aikens' United Church. Ideal weather conditions and the spirit of friendly hospitality in this home added to the enjoyment of the ladies who were privileged to attend this gathering.

An appetizing dinner was served at noon, and at 2.30 the President, Mrs. Fred Moon opened the meeting using the theme song, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The devotional period opened with singing the hymn "For the Beauty of the Earth" and an earnest prayer by Mrs. A. H. Finkle of Belleville, who was present. The Scripture was read by Mrs. Sam Marshall, and "Be ye also ready". Comments on the lesson was given by Mrs. S. Westover.

A solo "Evening Prayer" by Mrs. Leon McMullen, and a piano duet "Autumn Days" by Mrs. Lee Grills and Mrs. Harley Hamilton was appreciated by all present. Readings were given by Mrs. Cyril McMullen "The Plant of Gratitude"; Mrs. Gerald Brickman, "Thanksgiving"; "Only one life" by Mrs. Ken Bush and "The land of beginning again" by Mrs. S. Spafford.

The treasurer's report was given and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction, after which Mrs. C. McMullen conducted an amusing contest, the winners being Mrs. Gerald Brickman and Mrs. Ken Bush.

Carriage Is An Asset to Beauty

DOROTHY DAYTON

Knows a proper carriage is a beauty aid

By HELEN FOLLETT

ROUND shoulders may be due to some illness in childhood, but more often they are the penalty one pays for sloppy carriage of the body. The spinal column has not fulfilled the purpose for which it was intended. It just doesn't do anything. It's a time and beauty killer.

The spinal column has 34 neat little joints or hinges that make for grace and supple movement. It is packed over and around with innumerable muscles which remain strong when the body is held correctly. With chest caved in arms thrown forward, fibres lose elasticity. The neat, lovely, inward curve at the waistline disappears, the upper back portion of the torso becomes cushiony and full.

Make it a practice to stretch yourself at the waistline whenever you think of it. You can do that while in a sitting position (a hint to the lazy girls). Place your hands on your hips, lift the head, chest, ribs—all of you that grows above the waistline. That practice strengthens fibres, restores resiliency.

When walking keep the tummy flat. You won't show an awkwardly lined back, and body balance will prevail.

Some girls fret over tiny white spots on their finger nails but there's no reason why they should. They are not permanent fixtures. Nails grow fairly rapidly; in a short time they are gone.

It is believed that the cause of these blemishes is some light pressure or injury on the matrix, the soft substance at the nail root under the flesh that produces the new claw. So avoid steel instruments.

West Lake

West Lake—Mr. and Mrs. Guss Turpin returned form their honeymoon trip on Thursday and were royally charivaried the same evening at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. D. Maitland. The young couple have taken up residence in Picton where Mr. Turpin is a valued employee at the Grinrod garage.

Mr. Robert Rose continues very poorly.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Furze and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McConnell spent Saturday in Kingston.

There was a nice attendance at the afternoon service on Sunday.

Mrs. White visited her sister Mrs. Fred Haycock on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo Kleinsteuber were Sunday visitors at D. Jackson's.

Miss Wood, who has been spending the summer with her sister, Mrs. Will Rose and Mr. Rose, has returned to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Rose spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wood in Picton.

Picton

Picton—Mr. L. J. Langan, I.S.S. of Toronto paid an official to St. John's School on Tuesday last.

Miss Janet Thompson is critically ill in P. E. C. Hospital.

Messrs Clarence Jones, Nick Welsh, Walter Pope, Ralph Warren, Bill Rorke of Picton and Bill Carson of Toronto were among those who journeyed to Amherst Island for the pheasant shoot on Friday. They reported the birds very scarce, Bill Carson bagging two pheasants, the others none at all.

Mrs. Arthur McKenna of Black Creek spent a few days last week in Belleville, in attendance at the W. I. convention, while in the city she was the guest of Mrs. Lou Dutton and family, Elmer St.

The young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Young of Picton has developed scarlet fever and the home was quarantined on Saturday. All children in the Mary St. School suffering from either colds or sore throats were sent home for observation on Monday.

The H. and S. Club held a very successful rummage sale on Saturday, realizing a splendid sum for their milk fund.

I. G. Hefkey is Re-elected Head of Red-Cross Branch

Annual Meeting of Society Held At Y.M.C.A. Tuesday

OFFICERS NAMED

Belleville's whole hearted support of Red Cross activities as evidenced by the remarkable success of the annual campaign was a source of deep satisfaction to the committee in charge, officers stressed at the annual meeting yesterday of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society. Meeting in the Y.M.C.A. members yesterday heard reports of the past year and elected officers.

Mr. I. G. Hefkey was unanimously re-elected president, and the others members of the executive who were returned to office were:—Vice President—Mrs. Stuart Lazier; Secretary-Treasurer— Mrs. E. A. Geen; Campaign Chairman: Mr. Howard J. Clarke; Campaign Treasurer: Mr. J. W. Imlah. An executive committee will be named later.

Reports Read

With the president in the chair, the report of the work room and Child Welfare was presented by the convener, Mrs. Stuart Lazier as follows:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I beg to present the report of the Work Depot as well as that of the Child Welfare Department of this branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society. The following organizations have continued this sewing and knitting most faithfully during the past year. The Red Cross Sewing group supervised by Mrs. C. A. Cameron, Miss Dwyer's Collegiate group, Mrs. Hunter's United Church group, Queen Alexandra Home and School Club, the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E., The St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E., the Leisure Club under the direction of Miss Templeton, as well as several individuals. Again 2,000 garments included knitted articles, worn clothing, bedding, etc., have been distributed through the various city societies, churches, schools, Relief Board, V.O.N. and responsible individuals.

This past year, the matter of Child Welfare has received more attention. Working in conjunction with Miss Earshman, the school nurse and Miss Lynch, the Relief Board officer, the Society has supplied 26 families with 1,600 quarts of milk, as well as cod liver oil to school children. Needy school children have been given 75 pairs bloomers, 50 pairs mittens as well as many garments made by mothers attending the Queen Alexandra Home and School Clubs—the Red Cross Society, supplying the materials. As far as possible, a policy of self-help has been pursued and to this end, 355 yards of flannelette as well as yarn have been given to mothers to make garments for their children.

The Convener of this Department wishes to thank all those who have contributed their time and their donations to this work. The result of the Campaign last May has been most gratifying and is proof of the fact that the citizens of this city give most generously to a worthy cause.

May the writer express her appreciation and thanks for the cooperation and loyalty of all those who have in any way contributed to the year's work of this branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

Respectfully submitted
Florence W. Lazier
Convener
Work Depot.

October, 1938.

Junior Red Cross

There were eighteen Red Cross Groups in the schools, reported Miss E. Earshman, convener of this part of the local branch work. The membership approximated 700 pupils, whose contributions to the organization amounted to $20. Several Junior Clubs in the schools contributed to the local Red Cross during Campaign week.

In May 1938, a lovely doll in native costume was received from Juniors in Latvia and Queen Alexandra School sent in return a splendid scrap book to Latvia. Other groups made scrap books for sick children.

Financial Statement

The Secretary-Treasurer gave the financial statement. Subscriptions and memberships brought in the sum of $1,050. The campaign chairman, Mr. Clarke, and Treasurer, Mr. Imlah, both expressed appreciation to citizens of Belleville for their generous help and support which would enable the Red Cross to carry on this year better than ever before. Sincere thanks were extended the collectors for their fine work.

It was decided by the committee to get in touch with the Red Cross dietitian in Toronto, to have her come to the city to confer with various organization heads regarding the forming of a nutrition class for needy families.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, October 26

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A MEMORABLE day, in which the practical affairs of a workaday life as well as sentimental or emotional adventures may be under highly exciting pressure, is forecast. In general affairs a static condition may give way to constructive activity, tending toward progress and prosperity. In the social, domestic or artistic side of life, there may be romance or dramatic episodes not soon forgotten.

If It is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of happy and prosperous experiences, in which much of importance may transpire both in the business and private lives. Stagnations or congestions may be broken up, making way for substantial progress. In the private life romance, adventure and thrilling experiences may culminate in marriage or in favors or gifts from those in high places.

A child born on this day may have great capacity for a happy and prosperous life. It may be a general favorite and marry young and successfully.

For Thursday, October 27

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

ALTHOUGH there are auguries of some drgree of success, expansion and financial advantage on this day, according to the planetary configurations, there also are signs of danger, distrust and possible disaster. It might also be advisable to be alert to plots and schemes, or other forms of subtlety or intrigue.

Those whose birthday it is are under the rule of a rather contradictory state of affairs. There is presage of gain, expansion and satisfaction. At the same time, there is a menace of loss, accident or harm to person or property. Subtle, undercover and sinister machinations also call for vigilance.

A child born on this day may be keen, alert, fairly ambitious and enterprising, but it also may be subject to certain phases of defeat through subtle enmities, intrigues or because of bodily perils. It may be interested in occult or mystical studies and investigation.

Queen Mary's Visit to Exhibition

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

In Love With Friend's Mother

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My friend's mother isn't a bit good-looking like some fellows' mothers. Still, I've fallen in love with her because she's so understanding. My own family know nothing of my ambitions, my hopes my dreams.

But I can talk to this lady by the hour, and she is always sympathetic. She has no idea that I'm in love with her. She's a widow. Would you advise me to tell her? Her son, who is my chum, is a year older than I am.

Uncertain

Nearly every boy begins his romantic life by falling in love with an older woman who is homely, and not a bit flirtatious. Conceal your romantic interest for your friend's mother, which would very likely put an end to these pleasant confidences on your part. This kind of love is very apt to go up in smoke the first time an adolescent meets a pretty girl of his own age.

Her Hopes Are Fading

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 32, and I always hoped to meet the right man, have a home, husband and children. Now I've got to face the fact that I do not attract men and as all my hope and ambition centered around a dometic idea, I find life disappointing. I'm not a prude, neither am I of the sporting, drinking, necking type.

Now that I've made up my mind I shall never marry, I should like to cultivate some new interests. I have a very tiny little income, just enough to get by on with managing.

You're very wise to find some new interest in life. Take up some fad or hobby that appeal to you, and don't let your thoughts wander to the Prince Charming who never came. If you become sufficiently absorbed in some work or vocation, this new interest in life will give you new contacts and friends and who knows what may happen.

Shanghaied Him Into An Engagement

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I didn't want to become engaged to this girl for a lot of reasons. My salary was small. I had to help out with a younger brother's education, and well—I didn't want to settle down so soon. I suppose you will think I'm a fool when I tell you I was shanghaied into an engagement. But that's just what happened.

Then I had to give her a ring, which I'm still paying for, but she would be welcome to the ring if she would let me off. Mother has been wonderful about this. But it has changed her plans entirely and she has given up our very pleasant home in the expectation I would be married and couldn't help her to keep it.

Restless

When a young man finds himself in the predicament you are, if he's sensible he makes a break for liberty. I'm glad you're willing to let the young lady keep the ring, which will help ease the parting.

Your grandfather would have had to keep in with this engagement or be regarded as lacking in honor. The modern young man has much to be thankful for.

An Undecided Young Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When "A" comes over to our house, he pay more attention to my sister than he does to me. But when we go out together, he acts as if I'm the only girl in the world. I don't know what to think. Do you think he cares for me as much as he says? If he loves my sister, and he certainly acts as if he does, why can't he decide which one of us he wants?

Bertha

It looks to me as if this young man is what is called "a honey-sipping-at-every-flower" type, in which case it would be well if neither of you girls took him seriously. Honey-sippers are usually charming, but seldom dependable.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

CHAPTER XVII

She stared at him speechlessly.

The young man who had asked her to dance stared, too. He whispered to Toni: "Do you know this fellow? Or shall I get rid of him?"

Brock's grin slid off. With the swift change of mood of the intoxicated, he became nasty, truculent.

"I'll thank you to mind your own bushinesh. How dare you in'fere with ol' frien' of mine! Come. Toni, I wanna talk to you. Come 'way from this blighter—all the blighters—" His grip on her arm became viselike.

"I'm tired. I'm going home," she said, hoping to avoid a scene.

"Home? Thash a good word! You and I would've had a home together, if it wasn't for Jessica — blast her!"

"Hush." She spoke sharply, because of her terrible fear. If this kept up, exposure was imminent. Get him away from this table, away from the listening young man who was a friend of Harriet Brewster's!

With a lift of the eyebrows, indicating that she herself would take care of this old acquaintance who had imbibed too freely, she guided Brock to the narrow passage behind the orchestra, fortunately deserted at the moment.

"What we doing here? Wanna go back and dance with you, Toni. But firsht of all, a kiss!"

A kiss? The final insult!

With her free arm she pushed him so violently he staggered against the wall.

"How dare you speak to me?" The cry came from her heart. Useless to pretend she was not Toni Goddard. Drunk as he was, he had recognised her.

"Why shouldn't I shpeak to you, considering what we were to each other?" He was blinking at her resentfully.

"Then not here. Wait for me. We'll talk outside."

She raced up the stairs to her dressing room. Was conscious that his stumbling steps were following her.

Should she send for Niklas?—she wondered. Have him forcibly put out?

But a brawl would lower her prestige. More, the appearance of Brock would convince the night-club owner that she had lied about having no acquaintances in the city. Thinking her role too risky, Niklas might renege on the new apartment, her very job itself.

And it mattered terribly to Toni, this new life she had made. Not only for its glamour, its financial independence, its work that helped to erase the painful memory of Brock, but because of her budding friendship with Guy Halstead-Flagg.

True, he may have suspected her imposture in the beginning, but that impression had surely been removed. To lose this friend now was unthinkable, a challenge. She'd go down fighting, and she'd use any weapon to disarm Brock Milbank!

"Honey, if you'll wait just a minute I'll be with you and we'll talk and dance till dawn! But not here! I'm a professional, see? Her voice, her look caressed him. For a swift second, her hand touched his cheek. "If we go back to the floor I'll be compelled to dance with the others. It's my job to be agreeable to everybody. And so we'll sneak out together—"

A burning look of anticipation came into his befuddled eyes. He said thickly. "You'll come to my hotel, Toni? You promise? We'll make up—we'll forget what happened? Tonight we'll be together."

Keep the hatred out of her voice. Fool him. Placate him. "Where's Jessica?" she asked.

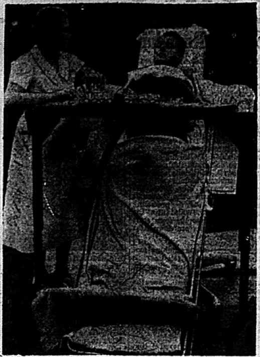
"Forget about Jessica. She's in Reno, divorcing me, and I'm darn glad of it."

It was half past six on the evening following Brock Milbank's discovery of Le Chateau de la Marquise. Toni considerably disturbed, was eating an early dinner at a table set behind a screen of palms at one side of the orchestra dais.

Though not open at the cocktail hour, now was the time when the club opened its doors to members.

Would Brock appear tonight?—she wondered.

By a ruse of promising everything—or seeming to do so—she had cajoled him out of the club and back to his hotel at three a.m. and with the assistance of a bellhop had got him to bed, and so away to her quiet inn at Riverdale-on-Hudson.



Frederick B. Snite, Jr., who has lived in an "iron lung" for more than two years is shown in a newly invented respirator. The new machine fits the patient's torso, leaving the arms, legs, neck and head completely free. The new respirator only weighs nine and one-half pounds, the old "iron lung" weighed nine hundred pounds. The new respirator takes its power from ordinary storage batteries, which will enable Snite to travel by airplane instead of pullman coaches.

But not to sleep.

She had tossed till long after dawn streaked the December sky.

Why had this painful ghost arisen, to rake up wretched memory? Hadn't she worked hard? Put herself, body and soul, into her new life.

It was shattering to know that Brock Milbank had the power to break the bubble—for her role, alas, was nothing but a bubble, a fragile iridescence that would vanish at a touch.

It was not, she reflected, Brock, sober, she was afraid of, but a drinking Brock.

And whatever had happened between him and Jessica had set him drinking excessively. Hadn't the desk clerk told her he had "been on a bender" for the past week?

Over and over during her hours of sleeplessness, she weighed the thought of quitting the club.

That would solve the impasse. Be the easiest way out of the situation.

But, she told herself, cowardly!

And it would mean removing herself from the orbit of Guy Halstead-Flagg. That frightened her.

On the other hand, if Brock exposed her, mightn't she lose Guy's friendship, anyway?

Whichever way one looked at it, it was like dancing on the edge of a volcano!

Bits of conversation between herself and the handsome man from Kentucky floated through her mind.

He had quizzed her about Paris. Her family. Surely she had relatives in the gay capital of France? Why, he was almost certain he had seen her at the Crillon, Les Ambassadeurs, or was it the Ritz? His voice was ironical.

Boldly, daringly, she had met him on his own ground.

"All three, no doubt. But I don't care for Paris, really. I was much more attached to my old chateau on the Loire."

"Came down through the generations in your family, marquise?" he had challenged her.

His dark eyes had flicked her. There was an icy coolness in them. It had angered her. Anger, mixed with the role she had to play, wove a neat tissue of fibs.

"Now I have it," he said triumphantly. "The first time I saw you was at the Duchess de Nemours's ball. She's a charming French-woman, isn't she? I'm referring to the young duchess, naturally."

"A charming Frenchwoman," repeated Toni, fencing.

His dark eyes widened. An amused, ironical gleam lay in their depths. "She's American, as a matter of fact. Born Peggy Watson. A sweet girl."

"I was thinking of her mother-in-law," said Toni quickly. He was trying to trap her into error. She wished with all her heart that she were more used to this sort of thing. She added quietly, and with a certain dignity he could not but admire: "For the past several years, I have led a ver-ree quiet life, monsieur. I am the last of my family. And quite without money to attend the gay parties of Paris, or mingle with the rich Americans, such as yourself."

He thought: "She had courage. Maybe there is some truth in her story? Maybe that vile Niklas did find her abroad?"

But, sooner or later, he veered round to quizzing her on subjects that a French marquise, however poor, would surely be acquainted with, if she were the real article.

Toni learned how to parry these. "I have passed most of my life in the convent, monsieur."

"Perhaps you thought you had a vocation? Forgive me, but for anyone as charming, as lovely, that would surely be a mistake."

The ironical note again. He had not really meant to flatter her, though the words sounded like that.

"I was at school, monsieur, absorbed in my studies."

"Until recently?"

"Yes. The times you think you saw me in the fashionable hotels of Paris, I was with my aunt. She wished that I stay with her during my holidays from the convent."

"Then, surely," he baited, "you stayed at school considerably longer than most pupils."

A flush arose under her delicate make-up.

"I am only twenty-two. Or is twenty-two old in your America?"

"No. Nor is twenty-five."

He had guessed her age. But Niklas had insisted on lopping at least three years from it. She returned his look with the challenge: "Is it considered polite to discuss a lady's age in your South?"

He laughed. Apologized.

"You see, marquise, everything about you interests me. You lead such a fascinating life."

Again those innuendoes! How much had he really found out?—she wondered.

"Your old chateau on the Loire—is it sold?"

"Naturellement. Have I not told you that my family lost everything? So how could I, just out of the convent and trained for no profession but that of singing, keep up a place that required repairs, servants, constant expense?"

"I see."

"You see nothing, monsieur, beyond your own fortunate existence." She was angry. "I am surprised that anyone so—shall I say, lucky?—would waste his valuable time in talking, questioning some one who is now nothing but a night-club entertainer."

He bowed. "I deserve the rebuke. I was unwarrantedly impertinent. But the fact remains that you interest me enormously."

"To what end?"

The moment she had said that, she regretted the words. Might he not take a variety of meaning from them? The most obvious, that she would like to know his intentions toward her?

As if to counteract this impression, she gave a nonchalant shrug.

Had she been able to read his mind at this moment, she would have been considerably surprised. Astounded in fact.

N. Y. Rangers Will Combine Youth and Experience in Hopes of Taking Stanley Cup

Have Distinct Improvement In Polish, Rhythm And Finesse

AVERAGE 25⅓ YEARS

Murray And Lynn Patrick To Play Hockey For Their Dad

(This is the second of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of National Hockey League teams. Others will follow).

Winnipeg, Oct. 26 (CP)—A New York Ranger team combining youth and experience in what appear to be ideal proportions will carry Lester Patrick's 1938-39 bid for the Stanley Cup.

In the words of no-less-informed person than Lester himself, the Rangers will go into the approaching National Hockey League campaign with "distinct improvement in polish, rhythm and finesse."

Patrick, while definitely pleased with his outfit, makes no wild predictions and even concedes the Rangers may possibly miss winning the Stanley Cup. But, even should such a catastrophe occur, he declares the Broadway Blues will "continue to be a speedy, colorful aggregation, certain to please the fans with their wide-open style of daring hockey."

Dillon Senior Member

Senior member of the Rangers both in age and length of service is Cecil Dillon, the stylist who last played as an amateur with Owen Sound Greys and has been a bright star since breaking into the N.H.L. in 1930. Dillon, only 30, will be foxing at his usual right-wing post on a forward line pivoted by Clint Smith and with speedy Lynn Patrick at left wing.

Though the Rangers will be the youngest team in the revamped seven-team league in the point of average age—25 1-3 years— there will be "green" hands at only three spots. One will be Dutch Hiller at left wing on a forward line with Phil Watson and Bryan Hextall. The others will be Murray Patrick, son of Lester and younger and bigger brother of Lynn, and Larry Molyneaux who gained defence posts.

Gains Defence Post

Murray, who answers more readily to "Muss," gained the Ranger defence berth beside Art Coulter which was open after Joe Cooper's demotion to the International-American League Ramblers. Molyneaux becomes the fifth defenceman. The others being Ott Heller and Babe Pratt.

Patrick says he regards young Hiller as the most improved player on the entire team and adds he plans no "first string" forward lines or defence combination on the 1938-39 Rangers.

"I have the same confidence in every combination because every player has measured up to the standards set for him," says the Ranger pilot.

Boys Play For Dad

The fact two Patricks will be playing for their dad gives the Blueshirts their third brother combination since the club broke into the league in 1926. The first was formed by the renowned Bill and Bun Cook, now successful minor league pilots, and the second by Neil and Mac Colville who team with Alex Shibicky to form a fast and always-dangerous attacking line.

Hiller was brought up from the amateur New York Rovers, third link in the Ranger farm system, toward the end of last season. He replaces Bobby Kirk, who with Cooper and Butch Keeling has been shipped to Philadelphia. Keeling, veteran "minute-man" from Owen Sound, was considered too old at 33 to step with the youngsters, but in line with Patrick policy was kept in the organization.

Boucher to Coach

Frank Boucher, pivot man for the Cook brothers, also will start the season with a new job. Boucher has been put in full-time charge of the Rovers, who until this year struggled along on a part-time coaching by Patrick. Boucher was assistant coach of the Blueshirts last winter.

To round out the Rangers, there is dappy little Davey Kerr in goal. Kerr has been one of the league's leading goalies since Rangers acquired him from Montreal Maroons.

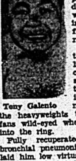
2-Ton Tony's On The Way Back

By ANTHONY J. PUGLIESE

Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York, Oct. 25—Returning to the fistic wars after being temporarily floored by "Kid Pneumonia," Two Ton Tony Galento, Orange, N.J., bar room proprietor, today is hard at work rounding into shape for further ring conquests.



Tony Galento

Colorful to the limit, but lacking finesse cut himself a associated with top-flight boxing, Tony has niche among the heavyweights that has the fans wild-eyed whenever he steps into the ring.

Fully recuperated from the bronchial pneumonia attack which laid him low virtually on the eve of his scheduled bout in Philadelphia with Light-Heavyweight Champion John Henry Lewis, Galento is once again working out in an Orange gymnasium. Tony is seeking to regain the zip in his "mule-kick" punches and rebuild his mammoth legs, grown flabby by illness.

Depending upon how rapidly he responds to training routine, Tony will lay definite plans for his future boxing campaign. It appears likely Galento will engage in some warm-up bouts in December and January, preparatory to his scheduled fight with Lewis in Atlantic City late in February.

Baer Offered Bout

Word came recently from Philadelphia that Promoter Herman Taylor had offered Max Baer $100,000 to tackle Galento in the Quaker City in May. At any rate Galento, after a summer of rest in the invigorating Pocono Mountains, plans to re-enter the ring under Taylor's promotion next month against an opponent not yet selected.

It will be recalled that Galento, one of the best liked of the current crop of heavyweights, was stricken just as he was about to cash in on his first "big time" gate with Lewis. For several days he hovered near death in an oxygen tent, and even in delirious moments reiterated his ability to "lick this bum pneumonia just as I will lick those other bums (leading heavyweights, including Champion Joe Louis)."

What "Two-Ton" Tony lacks in polish and boxing ability, he makes up in confidence in himself. He backs up his contentions with death-dealing rights, brought up from the floor into the face of his startled opponent.

Galento's many friends in boxing and the sports crowd in general await his return to the ring, for his colorful manner adds something to boxing which has been missing these past several months.

WALK-UP START IN SPECIAL RACE

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 26 (CP)—The mighty War Admiral and Seabiscuit were scheduled to go out on the Pimlico strip for speed trials today, completely obvious of the not-so-civil war their coming match race is causing among racing folk.

The main argument naturally whirls around their speed and their records, all pointed at an attempt to decide who will be in front at the end of their 1 3-16 mile duel next Tuesday. But fuel to fire the differences of opinion also is found in their blood relations, or lack of it, whether Seabiscuit has the right to be on the same track as the Admiral after bowing twice in his last three starts, and whether there actually is any point in staging the race at all.

The race will be known as "the Pimlico special" and $15,000 and a trophy will go to the owner of the winner—be it Samuel D. Riddle, whose silks ride aboard the Admiral, or A. S. Howard, who is proud to see his colors carried by the Biscuit.

Each horse will run under 120 pounds and a walkup start will be used instead of a standing break from a barrier. If a neutral umpire, who will examine the racing strip at 8.30 a.m. E.S.T. the day of the race, decides it is not fast the battle will be postponed until Nov. 3.

The Biscuit is five years old, or one year the Admiral's senior.

VETERAN JOCKEY RECALLS DAYS OF SPIRITED RACING

Norman 'Dude' Foden Admits 50 Years But Still Booting 'Em

54 WINNERS THIS YEAR

Closed Season At Dufferin Saturday With Four Winning Mounts

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP)—Old Norman (Dude) Foden, who admits he is nearly 50 and has been riding for 32 years, recalled today some of the races in a career that has made him a favorite on Canadian, United States and Mexican tracks and the dean of the continent's jockeys.

He told of the day at Toronto's Dufferin Park when he rode five winners and a third. Arrowpoint, Lady Binmore, Dr. Zab, Rovanna and Walter Murnbow were the winners and Dr. Shafter showed.

Then there was the meet at Delorimier Park, Montreal, about 10 years ago, when the Dude was up on 12 horses and 11 of them won. Nine of the winners were owned or trained by Bill Campbell, for whom Foden rode 83 winners in 1927.

That same year was the best in the Dude's career, for he led the continent's riders with a winning percentage of .32 after trailing Laverne Factor by two points for the title the previous year. In 1934 Foden scored 80 victories in 312 rides.

Not Ready to Give Up

A lot of horses have run in 32 years and a lot of money has gone through the mutuels, but the Dude isn't ready to give up yet.

He showed the youngsters at Dufferin Park last Saturday, the closing day of the Canadian season, when he rode four winners to bring his year's total to 54.

He recalls riding Conny Smythe's Rare Jewel at Toronto's Woodbine Park when she won the Coronation Stakes in 1930 and paid $214.40 for a $2 ticket. And he tells of the time he rode a 100-to-1 shot at Niagara Falls to beat a 1 to 4 favorite. The judges suspended him, but one of them came around to his house that night and knocked on the door.

"Does Mr. Foden live here?" he asked. "Tell him he's riding tomorrow."

The judges had been so surprised at the result they decided to suspend the Duke on general principles until they investigated.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

When the 'swan song' of last season's O.H.A. campaign was sounded a juvenile hockey team was organized in Belleville and entered in the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association. The primary idea was to encourage hockey among the teen aged kids and stimulate interest for another year's junior O.H.A. campaign. The success of the little team is now history. Organized on the spur of the moment, something like 12 players were signed and the kids eliminated Cobourg, Kingston and Peterborough juveniles before being taken out of competition in a sudden death game by the Oshawa juveniles in a game played in Oshawa. The Motor City kids won the next round and the O.J.H.A. championship, which speaks highly of Coach "Toots" Holway's Belleville squad also.

The latest reports emanating from Oshawa are to the effect that last year's Oshawa juvenile champions are being elevated, bag and baggage up to the junior "B" group of the O.H.A. and another city juvenile league organized for the coming puck season. This Oshawa movement gave us an idea, which might prove a boom to hockey in Belleville. Generally speaking the O.H.A. schedules do not get under way until along in January, therefore why not organize a four-teamed juvenile city hockey league in Belleville to conclude its schedule before O.H.A. season commences? Such a proposed league, if four sponsors could be found, would prove a splendid training ground for two junior O.H.A. teams in Belleville.

From the four proposed teams in action a junior "B" team could be selected for the O.H.A. season, while from the remainder another junior team might be fostered and entered in the junior "C" series, thus really giving anxious and ambitious Belleville boys an opportunity to play Canada's national game. In years past city leagues have created wide interest and there is no reason why such should not be the case again. By dividing the city into four zones and having a team sponsored from each zone, inter-city rivalry would result and more interest would be taken. Of course the primary idea behind the movement would be to encourage more boys to play hockey and produce our own made-in-Belleville hockey material.

Do you remember the days of the old junior city leagues when the "Wharf Rats," College Hill, the Station 'Bums', the "Sawdust Flats" and all the rest had their respective kid teams? It was from these section teams that Belleville's better class hockey-players came. Billie Pepper, Sammy Symons, the Whalen boys, the Arnott boys, Pat Boland, the Holways, Al Wardhaugh, the Goyer boys and dozens of others we could name in a list as long as this column, were all the products of a junior city league or its likes. Of course in those days Belleville had scrub managers who were willing to give the time and effort towards hockey. Their reward came later when the kids they had once sponsored on a scrub team made a name for themselves and whittled a niche in the hall of Belleville hockey fame, now long-since only a fond memory. There is no reason why those leagues cannot flourish once again. All that is needed are a half dozen willing young, or old men to start the ball rolling. The results will not only be gratifying but prolific.

Whether or not Coach Eddie Schrieder intends getting into Saturday's game versus the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" here or not it is quite problematical at this early date, but we do know that Eddie was punting the ball around in grand style at last night's practice. As a matter of fact Belleville's forgotten backfielder Eddie Schrieder who used to thrill the stands with his broken field running previous to sustaining a major injury last season, was actually working out with the regular squad versus the alternates and doing the squad's punting. Of course after last season's injury it would be unfair to expect Schrieder to take further chances on the gridiron, but with Eddie in there booting the pigskin next Saturday the "Flyers" would have something to worry about.

Saturday's game here is highly important to the Panthers, as a win over the "Airmen" would keep them out of the cellar position. Coach Duffield has a scrappy band of youngsters playing football for Belleville even after having lost three games. A little less fumbling and the Panthers could have easily won over the "Flyers" in their first meeting, so with some airtight ball coupled with an improvement in the kicking, aside from Pat Blaker's fine placements, and the Panthers may be the surprise team of this week end. Remember Peterboro?

Baseball sticks with us despite the fact that basketball has been out-drawing the diamond pastime in the U.S.A. for the past two years. Tony Lazzeri who went from the Yankees to the Cubs last year after receiving his unconditional release as ten year man, is again a free agent. Lazzeri asked for his release from the Cub management, no doubt being disappointed at the turn of matters when Gabby Hartnett was appointed to the helm of the Cubs. It was rumoured at the time Lazzeri went to the Cubs that his next step would be to the managerial post of the Bruins. "I hope to do some more playing" was "Poosh 'Em up Tony's" sole comment.

The veteran Connie Mack suggests mid-summer vacations for ball players who slip into baseball batting slumps. "Too much baseball is like too much candy for a kid, even a youngster gets tired of it." Perhaps when the veteran Mister Mack goes barnstorming around the country this winter in the interests of baseball he will try to convince his banquet audiences that his American League Athletics were a better club" than the National League Chicago Cubs. The Athletics finished in the cellar in the American loop while the Cubs topped the National League, but there's still a difference. Connie Mack's argument might bring out the fact that his lowly Athletics beat the Yankees five times in the 1938 baseball campaign which is five more than the Cubs won from Rupert's Rifles.

The decks are being cleared for a great fight next week when Henry Armstrong meets Ceferino Garcia in New York. Fight fans are looking for a real scrap here.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

National Hockey League clubs may set a modern low mark for accepting amateurs into their ranks without minor league tryouts this season. Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks have shown no intentions of putting amateurs into their starting lineups and will send their most promising candidates to minor league clubs.

Detroit Red Wings are considering Harvey Teno for a goaltending job, but he has to beat out the veteran Normie Smith. Toronto Maple Leafs have only three amateurs left in camp—Wally Stanowski, Don Metz and Bobby Laurent—and all three may be sent to the Leafs' Syracuse farm.

New York Americans expect Pat Egan, a defenceman, will make good in his first season in the big show, while Boston Bruins, despite a successful 1937-38 showing, may be the only team to start with more than one man just up from amateur ranks. Pat Mcreavy, Harry Frost, Roy Conacher and Terry Reardon, who signed pro contracts last week end, are being considered for places on Bruins' third forward line.

New York Rangers handed Americans a 7-1 licking last night at Saskatoon. The win was the third straight for the Broadway Blueshirts in the six-game series. The young third line of Phil Watson, Bryan Hextall and Dutch Hiller figured in five of the seven goals.

The New York squads continue their wheat league games tomorrow night at Edmonton, where that city's great junior line of 1934 probably will be reunited. Bill Carse, a member of Rangers' Philadelphia farm, played on a line with Neil and Mac Colville for Edmonton Athletic Club, and Manager Lester Patrick is expected to put the three of them together for the home folks

Teno is a worry to Manager Jack Adams at Detroit. Adams wants to give the young goalie a chance in Red Wings' exhibitions with other pro organizations but would have to sign him to a professional contract. If Teno didn't show ability under fire the contract would be a nuisance to both Adams and the goalie.

Hugh O'Leary, another of the amateurs, showed independence in Montreal Canadiens' quarters. The Habitants offered him a place with their New Haven farm, but Hugh said he would rather play amateur hockey at Port Arthur, Ont. So he went home and Canadiens can only hope that he will report again next fall.

Canadiens split into two squads last night at Valleyfield, Que., and the "Whites" trimmed the "Reds" 13-7, Jimmy Ward leading the way with three goals. Gus Mancuso scored three times for the losers.

When the "Whites" walloped the "Blues" 17-4 in Toronto Maple Leafs' workout at Galt, Ont., Pep Kelly bagged three goals and three assists for the winners. Turk Broda, Leafs' regular goaltender, was the target for the White's barrage.

Sports Roundup

(By Drew Middleton Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Well, slap my saddle....You can actually buy Army-Notre Dame football tickets right out in public this year....Army is putting a big batch, nearly 100, on sale today at a paltry $4.40 a throw....In other years the game always was sold out a month or so beforehand....There also are some real throwaways, box seats at $6.60, available....With one of them you can go down and rub shoulders with Generals, politicians and such ....The subway alumni are just as worked up as ever about the game....Over on the campus (Times Square) they're practicing songs and yells....Wait till the guys that buy those 100 seats start to yell....The seats are down near the end zone.

Tony Lazzeri has the itching foot again....Last time he felt like this the Yankees released him and he landed with the Cubs....Now the gossips say he's headed for the Browns....Where he'll be pretty valuable; he knows the American League better than President Will Harridge....Ace Parker, the Brooklyn footballer, is right worried over the Duke Blue Devils' attack .... "They got a line all right," says the ace—who has shaved that moustache—"but you can't win many games if you don't score."

Turk Edwards, that 260-pound tackle of the Washington Redskins, admits his full name is Albert Glen Edwards but says no one has called him that since he was a sophomore at Washington State....Turk says Bronko Nagurski was the hardest running back he ever met— "Just like a locomotive."

Henry Armstrong isn't worried about the 'bolo' punch Ceferino Garcia throws...."How's he gonna hit me with it," asked Henry, "when I'll be inside working on him."....Gossip on cauliflower row gives Henry another year on top at the most; the boys think his terrific pace will overtake him then .... "He'll go back as fast as he came up" said one.

Lou Little got talking about his star passer Sid Luckman...."What do you think of him, Lou" someone asked...."Why, I'm very kindly disposed toward him," returned the maestro.

CHAMPIONS' COACH

CHAMPION'S COACH oF

Full of the old ginger but relieved of an appendix, Bill Stewart, above, coach of Chicago Black Hawks, whom most people have forgotten won the Stanley Cup last spring, is back on the job of getting his men into shape for the coming N.H.L. campaign. He has quite a "miracle man" reputation to uphold, has William.

Theatres

AT THE BELLE

"Time Out For Murder"

"Time Out For Murder", first of 20th Century-Fox's new Roving Reporters series, comes to the Belle Theatre with Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen and Chick Chandler featured.

Here's a baffling big-town mystery with a brand new clue angle that detective-story fans will love. Death strikes and the telephone company's time-signal becomes a killer's perfect alibi.

The film introduces a new pair of amateur sleuths, known as the Roving Reporters, who risk their necks for news to solve a big Manhattan case. Michael Whalen and Chick Chandler, reporter and photographer respectively, are accompanied by pretty Gloria Stuart in their investigation and the trio in turn is accompanied by plenty of exciting action.

"Hold That Co-ed" Funny

When folks see what hilarious fun campaigning for election can be, the whole town will be running for office on John Barrymore's formula which he uses with convulsing results in "Hold That Co-ed", the 20th Century-Fox comedy which is the companion feature attraction. As a co-ed-chasing, budget-bouncing governor in the film, Barrymore improved upon the medicine-show electioneering tacts and ties up his sentorial campaign with the fall season's biggest mass attraction—football.

Joan Davis enlivens the gridiron sequences of the comedy, as the world's only girl football player. George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver, and Jack Haley are splendid in the featured roles. Although the film is not strictly a musical, the producers have liberally punctuated the hilarious proceedings with many lively new song hits.

"Recording Modern Science" an unusual featurette will be presented on the same program.

A Smart Show

A lovely story, warm with tenderness, romance and homespun humor is "The Arkansas Traveller" featuring Bob Burns in the role you always wanted him to play with Fay Bainter, John Beal, Jean Parker, Irvin S. Cobb and Lyle Talbot in leading roles. "King of Alcatraz", an action-packed romantic drama featuring Gail Patrick, Lloyd Nolan and Harry Carey is the added feature offering. The Belle News of the Day will also be exhibited on this program that will be presented for the last times tonight.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Invisible Menace"

For a long and profitable period on New York's Broadway, a mystery-melodrama called "Without Warning" ran as a stage play. Now "The Invisible Menace," a Warner Bros. picture production, with Boris Karloff as its star, based upon the play comes to the McCarthy Theatre. The name Karloff mustn't conjure up the idea that this is a horror show of the type that Boris so frequently makes. It isn't. He wears no outlandish makeup, and appears not as a monster of any sort, but as a civil engineer of middle age.

The picture is described as far superior to the stage-play, successful as the latter was. Besides being a mystery, it is also a comedy, with the humorous and romantic atmosphere carried by Eddie Craven, who plays the same part that he did on Broadway, and long-lashed Marie Wilson, portrayer of "dumb blondes."

The story begins on an eastern island used by the army as an ordinance arsenal. An officer has been slain. Several are suspected, including the mild-mannered Karloff. This is because he has had trouble, years previously, in Haiti with the murdered man.

There are a number of cut-back scenes at this point, illustrating what happened between the two men in Haiti. These scenes include a negro revolution and some weird mystic voodoo rites.

Not until the very end of the picture is the real murderer discovered and dealt with, in a smashing and surprising climax.

Excellent Featurettes

A carefully arranged program of select short subjects will precede "The Invisible Menace" at each performance, matinee and evening, including Leon Errol in a twenty-minute comedy riot entitled "Berth Quakes", the Stanley Twins, Joan Merrill and Frank Libuse in a musical treat entitled "Waiting Around" "Fistic Fun" a splendid sport subject, a clever musical cartoon, "The Horse on the Merry-Go-Round" and another thrilling chapter of "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok."

"The Girl Said No"

Irene Hervey and Robert Armstrong in the musical fun hit, "The Girl Said No" will be presented tonight in addition to "Vacationing In Quintupland," an excellent technicolor travelogue of Ontario, an Andy Clyde comedy and a musical cartoon entitled "Bluebird's Baby".

AT THE CAPITOL

"Robin Hood"

Of all the heroes of fact and fiction, there's none so beloved or dashing as Robin Hood,—the outlaw of Sherwood Forest. Celebrated in song and story, in opera and in the silent movies, Robin now appears in brand new guise in Warner Bros.' Technicolor production "The Adventures of Robin Hood," at the Capitol.

Errol Flynn, a veritable reincarnation of the legendary Robin, plays the title role. Handsome, young and adventurous, Flynn makes the perfect Robin Hood. Sharing honors with him is the demurely lovely Olivia de Havilland (who was his heroine in "Captain Blood" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade") portraying his lady-love, Maid Marian. And they prove that medieval romance was even more thrilling than the modern variety.

Norman Reilly Raine and Seton I. Miller, who wrote the screenplay, took the choicest of the yarns and legends that have been written about Robin and his merry men, who robbed the rich to feed the poor, added their own original touches and came out with something entirely new. The current story is altogether different from the one which Douglas Fairbanks, Wally Beery and the rest of those old valiants gave us 16 years ago.

Action and plenty of it is rampant throughout—from the jousting tournament at Nottingham Castle—to the wedding of Robin Hood and Maid Marian at the end. Fighting with bows and arrows, quarter staves, pikes and broad swords, Robin Hood and his merry men wage a constant war against the Norman forces. The climactic duel to the death between Robin and Sir Guy of Gisbourne (Basil Rathbone) is more thrilling than the duel these two had in "Captain Blood."

Sherwood Forest, Nottingham Castle, and the countryside of medieval England are faithfully reproduced in vast sets, breath-taking in their beauty and opulence. Warner Bros., makers of huge-scale productions like "A Midsummer's Night Dream" and "The Charge of the Light Brigade," have again put all their resources to work to make "The Adventures of Robin Hood" a masterpiece of film entertainment.

A superb musical score by Erich Wolfgang Korngold, who made musical history with his score for the "Dream," weaves a magical background of sound for the gorgeous Technicolor scenes.

Besides Flynn, Miss de Havilland and Rathbone, the splendid cast includes Claude Rains, Ian Hunter, Patric Knowles, Eugene Pallette, Alan Hale (who played in the original Fairbanks version), Melville Cooper, Una O'Connor, Herbert Mundin, Montague Love, the present world's champion archer Howard Hill, with a roster of "extra" players running into thousands.

DEPUTATION

J. O. Herity is Speaker

On behalf of the delegates, Mr. J. O. Herity presented the appeal of the various municipalities that the work should be commenced, and with the aid of maps showing routes of the proposed highway revealed the importance of this route which will run from Ivy Lea to North Bay, a distance of 350 miles. It was also shown that the Province had already assumed over 300 miles of this road on the proposed trunk line, leaving less than fifty miles to be taken over by the department. There are just two comparatively short sections to link up it was shown, the first section being between the villages of Foxboro and Madoc, a distance of 19.6 miles. Of this distance eight miles of road have already been paved, eighteen feet wide. The remaining section would not mean expensive reconstruction, but for the most part merely resurfacing, it was shown.

The second section of this road not taken over as yet is a stretch of 28.2 miles between the villages of Maynooth and Whitney. These two villages are at present connected with a good country road, which has been considerably improved recently. The expense of new construction on this stretch would also not be excessive owing to the fact there are few or no natural obstacles to overcome.

Mr. Herity drew attention to the enormous traffic possibilities on the part of prospective tourists coming into Ontario and this section from the Atlantic seaboard. The State of New York, it was shown has alone a population of more than the entire population of Canada, while from the Atlantic States a total of fifty million people also reside. Owing to the fact that New York and all of the larger cities are east of Belleville this new route will appreciably shorten other routes more commonly used in the past for entering Canada. New York City, it was shown by the charts and maps which accompanied the delegation, is 200 miles further east than Belleville; the City of Philadelphia is 140 miles further east; Washington, D.C., twenty miles further east than this city.

Expense Would Not Be Great

"The completion of this road, this new trunk highway, would mean the expenditure of only a few thousand dollars, while tourists who would visit this section of Ontario through the new highway will in the course of time bring in tens of millions of dollars" it was emphasized by Mr. Herity, spokesman.

Attention was further drawn by him to the natural advantages offered by Algonquin Park, a state game reserve where Canada's wild life may be seen on constant display by tourists from the roadside, living their daily natural life unafraid of the cars and visitors passing by. There, in the unspoiled section of this Province lies the photographer's paradise. The personal experience of seeing ten deer in the park during a short drive through the southern part this year was cited by Mr. Herity, a photograph showing beaver at work in daylight less than fifty feet from the present road which would be assumed by the government as a trunk highway, was also produced by Mr. Herity for evidence of the appeal of natural life here.

Shorter Route to Callander

"Added to that we have the natural attraction of Callander and the Dionne Quintuplets whom thousands will visit during the next year or so from the United States. This new trunk road will be the shortest route to Callander from the eastern division of No. 2 Highway, shorter by twenty-one miles than by way of Belleville, Whitney and Orillia as at present", it was further emphasized by the speaker in his appeal to Mr. McQuesten. "We have the further attractions of hunting, fishing and camping in the unspoiled areas of North Hastings as an added inducement to tourists," he added. "All that is needed is the completion of this road which will be safe, comfortable and of universal appeal".

The value of the new road would also be enhanced by opening up new mineral reserves in the north which have vast potentialities, and also to sections where vast timber resources are also to be found. It would further serve residents in Hastings County in the opposite direction, over the same route now in existence, a route which was laid out in 1858 and designated as the Hastings Road, it was pointed out.

Compliments Highway Department

During the hearing the Minister of Highways and his department were complimented by the local and North Bay and Huntsville delegation for the work already carried out in developing the route through the continued construction of the Faulkner Highway, declared a "splendid new road of easy grades, gentle curves and width sufficient for the heaviest traffic".

Brief addresses in support of the proposal of the trunk highway were made by Mayor R. Rowe of North Bay, Mayor H. E. Rice of Huntsville, R. D. Arnott, K.C., M.P.P., of Belleville, Dr. H. E. Welsh, M.P.P., for East Hastings, Warden Henry Larkin of Hastings County. A message of regret at his inability to be present was read from Mr. C. A. Cameron, K.C., M.P., for South Hasting.

The Hon. T. B. McQuesten, following the hearing, assured those present of his full sympathy with the development of better communication in this area, the importance of which he fully realized and appreciated. He had visited Algonquin Park this year and had traversed most of the route along which the proposed trunk highway would run. North Hastings was a familiar territory to him, he revealed, through his fondness for summer vacationing in the area.

Many demands had been made upon his department for expenditures on highways in various sections of Ontario, and these would have to be considered in the order of their relative importance, it was shown by him. Full assurance was given, however, that the local appeal would receive the fullest consideration.

These Who Attended

Among those who represented the various municipalities were—Belleville City Council— Mayor Bone, and Aldermen Cliff Barragar; J. E. Logan and Laurie Lewis.

Belleville Chamber of Commerce —President J. A. McIntosh; former president, H. W. Ackerman and Manager J. O. Herity.

Hastings County—R. D. Arnott, K.C., M.P.P., and Dr. H. E. Welsh, M.P.P.

Hastings County Council—Warden Henry Larkin and the Committee of Roads and Bridges, Chairman Jas. Moore, Reeve of Elzevir; Geo. Bush, Reeve of Sidney; Thos. E. Fleming, Reeve of Huntingdon; Dr. S. S. Lumb, Reeve of Bancroft; John Bell, Reeve of Marmora and Lake and Geo. West, Reeve of Madoc Village.

North Bay City Council— Mayor R. Rowe and Alderman A. Beattie.

North Bay Board of Trade—Secretary E. L. Banner, W. J. Moreland and C J. Rock.

Village of Huntsville—Mayor H. E. Rice and Councillor C. A. Malloy.

Huntsville Board of Trade—Mr. A. Staples, president.

Mr. B W. Moore was present in the interests of Algonquin Park.

A motion to form the Belleville-North Bay Highway Improvement Association was made by Reeve Geo. West of Madoc Village.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation

OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

BRITAIN ACCLAIMS

in 1936.

The customary term for a Governor-General is five years but it was intimated the Duke might serve only two or three years as his absence from the United Kingdom will throw a heavy burden upon the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester who now are spending a vacation in Kenya.

Strengthen Ties.

In some quarters the announcement was regarded as of particular importance in the light of world conditions. A strengthening of the imperial ties at a time when Japan has blocked British interests in China and Germany is pressing for return of war-lost colonies could not be over-estimated, these quarters argued.

Appointment of a member of the Royal Family as Governor-General is unusual but not unprecedented. The Duke of Connaught, son of Queen Victoria, was Governor-General of Canada from 1911 to 1916 during the reign of his Nephew, George V, while the late Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of the Duke of Connaught, and the Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary, both served as Governors-General of the Union of South Africa.

The Duke and Duchess have many months to complete their plans for their departure. It was regarded as almost certain they would close their London home, which they lease from Lady Juliet Duff. Their country home, "The Coppins" at Iver, Bucks, will be retained, since it was left to the Duke by his aunt, Princess Victoria.

Newspapers uniformly welcomed the appointment.

DIVORCES BOSSY HUSBAND

Detroit, Oct. 26 (CP)—Mrs. Florence V. Dayne related in divorce court here how her purchase of a 93-cent dress 13 days after her wedding broke up her marriage. She told the court her husband ordered her to consult him on all purchases, even though she spent money she earned herself. They separated after the quarrel last February Mrs. Dayne got her divorce decree.

"And They Lived Happily—"

By LOUISE HILL

Wednesday, Dec. 27.

Dick and I have been engaged just a year this Christmas. Thinking back, I visualized the unfolding (nice dramatic word) of our love for each other since that jolly Christmas vacation when Robert brought him home for the holidays. I truly think I loved Dick the instant I saw him. Lovableness simply emanates from him. Everyone loves him, including Robert, whose love is not generously spattered and who rooms with him — greater test hath no man.

Dick's big, huge, as 'twere—six feet four inches, and the best speed swater McGill has (I quote, this not being proud love speaking). I can hardly wait for Thursday and Dick. The carnival races will be over then, and he can spend the rest of his vacation here. Hurray for vacations and brothers with nice roommates, I say!

Thursday, Dec. 28.

Oh, bitter blow! Woe is me! Alas! Alas! My heart is broken. No more does my soul sing nor my feet dance. My happiness is blighted and I am a wretched woman. Received a telegram from Dick this morning saying that the ice not being ice, due to warm weather, the races are postponed until Saturday. That means he'll not arrive until Tuesday, and there'll be no one to take me to the costume party Saturday nigh.

Friday, Dec. 29.

The Campbells are coming hurray, hurray! Meaning I can go to the ball after all. Stan Ericson dropped in this afternoon to chat with Robert about old times (they haven't seen much of each other since high school, Stanley having chosen Yale to be his alma mamma), and what do you think, O diary, receiver of my aches and pains? He asked me to go with him tomorrow night. I'll admit I wasn't over reticent about letting him know I had no escort. Anyway, he fell for my simulated sobs and moans, asked for my company, and here am I, unlike Atlas, sitting on top of the world and singing "God's in His heaven, all's right with the dance."

Saturday or rather
Sunday morning,
"After the Ball."

Sweet grandmother! We danced —and how! Never—if I live to be as old as an elephant's godfather—will I have a jollier evening than I've just spent with Stan. That boy is funny—riotously, gloriously, funningly funny, and good looking, and considerate, and has cash.

Sunday, Dec. 31.

I'm worried! All day I've mentally arranged Dick and Stanley side by side and truly I can't see but that Stan is as pleasing in every way as Dick. Stan called this afternoon and displayed much interest in future dates, so the attraction isn't all on one side, 'twould seem.

What shall I do? Do I really love Dick? Do I like Stanley better? Should I permit him to come, so we can get better acquainted or should I squelch any attention? I wonder—is Dick the man for me? Will we get along together always as well as possibly, Stan and I might? Surely, Dick and I never spent a more enjoyable evening than Stan and I did last night. Oh, dear! Maybe I'm forgetting the ecstasies of our first being engaged, but I'm sure I'd enjoy being engaged to Stanley.

Oh rats! My head's in a whirl and I don't know which end of it I'm standing on. Perhaps I'd better discuss things with Jean. She's a broadminded and close-mouthed sister-in-law, and is always willing to talk about a problem. Dick arrives Tuesday so I'd better decide P. D. J. whether I'm going to cherish, honor, and disobey him for the rest of my natural life, or give some other man—Stan, maybe, who knows?—a chance to make his life miserable.

Monday, Jan. 1.

Well, it's all over! The debating and the turmoil dies, the worryings and the doubts depart. I presented my problem to Jean this morning, and after much arguing about it, we drew up the great decision and, rain or shine, Christmas or Easter, I'm going to abide by it.

It really isn't my decision, it's Jean's. She claims it's an old, old problem ever new (original statement), that she spent the entire two years of her engagement wondering about it and that now, after four years of being married, her bag of decision still holds water.

Jean says there are a great many fine, lovable men in the world, that all this raving about the one great love in a person's life is bunk. A girl can love one splendid man as well as another—really love, she says she means, not just a mixture of admiration, respect and tolerance —and that a contented, loving life is just a case of picking your man and sticking to him.

Toronto Butter Drifts Lower

Toronto, Oct. 26.—Butter drifted ¼c per pound lower during yesterday's session of the local produce market. An easier trend appeared in eggs.

Values were reduced on the butter market as trading maintained a slow pace. Although fresh receipts are showing a noticeable decrease in view of the seasonal decline in production, the light arrivals were difficult to move. Ontario solids were quoted at 22¼c for No. 1 grades, 21¾c for 38 score and 21c for 37 score. Prints eased in sympathy, top grades selling at 24¼c to 24¾c and 38 score at 23½c to 24c.

While shipments of top grades were still light on the egg market, slower demand, particularly on mediums, resulted in downward revisions on these grades in all sections. The ultimate consumer is apparently switching to the undergrades with the much lower prices. Ungraded eggs fell 1c per dozen on A-large and medium to 37c and 34c respectively, and this drop was passed along to the retail division of the market. Graded shipments sold at 39c to 40c for grade A-large, 37c for medium, 28c to 29c for pullets, 26c to 27c for B's and 22c for C grades.

Montreal, Oct. 26 (CP)—Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24c to 24½c a pound and creamery solids for 23½c to 24c.

Cheese sold at 13¾c to 14c a pound for Ontario white, 14c to 14¼c for Ontario colored.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were sold at 40c a dozen for A-large, 38c for A-medium, 30c for A-pullets, 26c to 27c for B-large, and 20c to 21c for C.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

The Trader in Barron's states that although the market looked "tired", as the phrase goes, in the inability of standard stocks to push through with any degree of vigor the level at which the tremendous public buying splurge occurred just before noon on October 13, it could be said with equal accuracy that pressure of offerings quickly ebbed following the mid-week reaction. Floor brokers are already beginning to make the comment so frequently repeated in the dull days of May and early June, viz., "no stock comes in." Whether the comparative stability of stocks that prevailed last week, on top of the rebound from the war scare, is deceptive or denotes the absence of a menacingly heavy speculative position ought to be clear in a week or two.

America will find a new and greater prosperity if world peace continues, Roger Babson, economist and statistican stated recently. "If American business will forget Hitler for the next six months, I predict a speed up in the recovery movement," he declared at the closing session of the twenty-fifth annual National Business Conference. "If peace can be maintained, there is every possibility of a period of activity beyond anything the world has seen for many years." Mr. Babson predicted peace for at least six months but a European war within the next "two or three years," possibly localized in eastern Europe, with Germany and Russia the main contestants. England, France and America will do their best to stay out of it, he said.

HIRAM-WALKER

From New York comes the information that the common stock of the Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts is to be split. Earnings for August 31st fiscal year was $8.04 a share, against $8.29 a year earlier; final quarter this year $1.46 a share against $1.48 in May 31st quarter. Current business is good.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Stock prices slipped a cog today after the market machine had rolled forward for five sessions in a row.

As the final period neared, however, the set-backs of fractions to three points, and in a few cases more, had been accomplished on relatively slow turnover. Turnover was about 1,660,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP)—Traders helped themselves to the junior and medium-price golds in today's session of the Toronto Exchange and prices were scaled up for a number of the most active while senior golds and industrials displayed general strength. Base metal issues were inclined to ease off a little and the Western boarded no worthwhile changes. Volume was sizeable at about 835,000 shares.

In the absence of leadership from outside traders turned to the junior golds on Toronto Exchange today and these changed hands in volume at better prices. Among the strong traders were, Naybob, Bidgood-Kirkland, St. Anthony and Dorval-Siscoe.

McIntyre featured the senior golds by advancing to a record high at 53 1-2 and Lake Shore, Hollinger and Dome picked up. Preston was a strong spot in the medium-price list.

Food, steel, paper and utility shares were steady to strong and liquor stocks weakened slightly. Base metal issues showed little change and the western oils were mainly unchanged. Akaita improved a few cents. Homestead was strong and active at 23 1-2.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 26— (CP)—Cattle trade was slow on a plain quality supply on Toronto Livestock Market today with prices generally steady. Calves, sheep and lambs traded at former levels while no hog price was set by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Tuesday was 800 head, mostly stockers.

Receipts reported by Dominion Livestock branch were: Cattle 680; calves 240; hog 1,400; sheep and lambs 720.

Good butcher cattle sold at $5 to $5.25 with common downward to $3.50. A few weighty steers brought $5 to $5.60. Butcher cows were $2.75 to $4.25, canners and cutters $2.25 to $2.50.

Some good bulls went between $3.75 and $4.25, bolognas mostly going at $3.50. Fed calves ranged from $5.50 to $8.50. Stockers moved slowly at $3.50 to $5.

Good veal calves were priced at $9.50 to $10, common heavies at $5. Grass calves brought $4.50 to $4.75.

Previous close on off-truck bacon hogs was $7.50 to $7.60.

Good ewe and wether lambs delivered by rail made $7.75 and by truck $7.50. Other grades made $6 to $6.75. Sheep ranged from $2 to $4 cwt.

Montreal, Oct 26.—(CP)— Trading was dull and prices mostly unchanged on Montreal Livestock markets today, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. There was not enough early cattle sales to establish a market.

Receipts cattle 207; calves 91; hogs 75; sheep and lambs 499.

Calves—veals $7 to $9; grassers $3.75 to $4.

Sheep and lambs: —Good ewes and wethers $7.75, heavies $6.75; culls $5.75; sheep $2 to $3.50.

Hogs— Bacons fed and watered $7.75; truck hogs $7.90; selects drew $1 per hog premium with the usual cuts on off grades. Hogs sold on rail grade brought $10.60 cold weight.

CELEBRATED 96TH BIRTHDAY SUNDAY

The proud possessor of the distinction of being "half" of the longest married couple in Canada, Mr. P. A. Maybee, Bloomfield, on Sunday last celebrated his 96th birthday. In fine mental and physical health, Mr. Maybee accepted the congratulations of a number of friends, in the quietness of his modest home.

On March 15th next, Mr. and Mrs. Maybee will celebrate the 76th anniversary of their wedding. They have one son, who lives in Williamsburg, Penn.

FINANCE COMMITTEE TO MEET EARLIER

Due to pressure of engagements on the part of members of the County of Hastings Finance Committee, the special meeting called for Nov. 2nd in which discussion of the disposal of outstanding indigent hospitalization accounts will be the feature, has been brought forward to Friday, Oct. 28th.

Payment of other accounts and special business pertaining to the finances of the county will be dealt with in an effort to get matters in a position to facilitate the winding up of all accounts prior to the annual December session of the County Council.

ROSS TRIMBLE
Ottawa Rough Riders

With Hamilton Tigers and Montreal Cubs already fallen by the wayside the Big Four Interprovincial Rugby Union race has again resolved itself into a battle between Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders. Attempting to "out-mastermind" each other are the two club coaches Lew Hayman of the champion Argos, and Ross Trimble of the Rough Riders. Lew gained a 3-1 verdict in last year's games and is one up so far this season. Whether Trimble's tanks can down Hayman's hipper-dippers remains to be seen. They meet again this coming Saturday.

PRIVY COUNCIL

meeting of nearly ninety so the senate chamber or the railway committee room of the commons likely will be chosen.

Men in public life eligible for the privy council have been appointed over the years as they became members of the Dominion government or were made ministers abroad.

The complete council has never been called together in Canada's history. The cabinet is actually a committee of the privy council and its orders are approved by the governor-general-in-council.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Conservative Leader Manion and Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, former Conservative leader, will sit at council together for the first time. Non-controversial matters will be discussed.

Besides the galaxy of Canadian public men, Earl Baldwin, former British Prime Minister, will be invited to attend. He was made a Canadian privy councillor during his visit to Canada with the Prince of Wales in 1927.

The king and queen will live at Rideau Hall during their stay in Ottawa and a formal court might be held. From Ottawa, the trip will be made to Callander and from there to Western Canada. On the return east, Toronto and other cities missed on the westward journey will be included in the itinerary. Every province in the Dominion will be visited.

Preparations for the tour are under way already and a national advisory committee might be established when the prime minister returns from his West Indies holiday. Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Scotland Yard will guard their Majesties during the journey across the Dominion.

District Deputy Grand Patriarch Visits Encampment

Last night the regular meeting of Moira Encampment No. 59, I.O.O.F. held in the I.O.O.F. Temple was of special interest, it being the first official visit of the newly-elected District Deputy Grand Patriarch, L. W. Pollitt.

A number of Patriarchs from Trenton Encampment were present and addressed those present relative to Patriarchal Oddfellowship.

After the close of the business all repaired to the Guild Restaurant for a social time.

The new officers are looking forward to a prosperous year.

Belleville City Hall Erected in 1873 Judges Find

The judges, Messrs. H. B. Stock, City Treasurer; F. G. Chamberlain, City Auditor, and Mr. Charles A. Mott, City Engineer, appointed to consider the answers as to the date of erection of the Belleville City Hall, have decided after considering all the evidence submitted, that the building was erected in 1873. This information was obtained from newspapers and other sources.

There were three contestants, namely, Miss Patricia Holland, Miss Margaret Winters and Master Ronald Walmsley who gave the date 1873. There were six contestants who gave the dates 1872 and 1873. Twelve contestants gave the dates 1871 and 1872. One contestant gave the date 1870 and 1871, another 1874, another 1877 and another 1878.

The three prizes of $2.00 each, donated by His Worship Mayor Bone, Mr. C. A. Cameron, K.C., M.P., and Mr. R. D. Arnott, K.C., M.P.P., were awarded by the judges to the first three above-named contestants. The remaining eighteen contestants, who included other dates with the date 1873, were awarded two tickets each to one of the local theatres. These were donated by the managers of the Belle, Capitol and McCarthy theatres.

The eighteen contestants to receive two theatre tickets each are as follows:

Grace Delong, Dorcas Bird, Betty Vesterfelt, Jean Fraser, Gordon Dulyea, Phyllis Barlow, Wilma Clarke, Douglas Rushnell, Shirley Clarke, John O'Flynn, Marie Chapelle, John Bernard Dell, Bruce Doolittle, Ronald Doolittle, Shirley Mathews, Arnold Eves, Colleen Terry and Tacky Laskaris.

The three $2.00 prizes can be obtained from Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., at his office in the Court House, and the theatre tickets from Mr. Charles A. Mott at the City Hall.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., wishes to express his appreciation of the keen interest taken in this contest by the school children of Belleville.

CESAREWITCH WON

market Heath until the field was a mile from home, when there was little to choose between Ranfield, Solonaise, Contrevent, Fairing, and Snake Lightning, with Stainless Stephen, Dubonnet, and Malkowicze prominent just behind.

Carried Low Weight.

At the bushes Contrevent went to the front, with Fet and Dubonnet following up and Earthstopper, Snake Lightning and Black Speck passing several beaten horses. Dubonnet took second place a furlong from home and made a strong challenge over the climb to the post.

As was the case with Helleniqua in the Cambridgeshire, Contrevent was low weight at 92 pounds.

Earthstopper was fifth, Malkowicze sixth, Gyppo seventh, Sirtam ninth, Snipe Wood tenth, and Ranfield eleventh. Tapageur was last.

Twenty-two-year-old Jockey Tucker, who was born in England, said Contrevent was practically last until reaching the straight. "I did not think I would win until 100 yards from home when victory became apparent," Tucker said.

Two Canadians Win

Toronto, Oct. 26.—(CP)— Two Canadians, one of them a Strathroy, Ont., beauty-parlor operator, won prizes of $150,000 each today when Contrevent won the historic Cesarewitch at Newmarket, England.

Holding tickets on the winner in the Irish Free State Hospitals sweepstakes were Miss Dora Smith of Strathroy, and an unknown Canadian. The lucky tickets were PD 29146, on which was written the nom-de-plume "Black Cat", and ZA78080, "Golden Rule".

When Dubonnet came second at Newmarket, three Saskatoon nurses won $75,000 in the sweepstakes. They are Laura Reynolds, Margaret McCardle and Edna Graham. Their ticket was AX 21701 and on it they used the pseudonym "Triplets."

Three on Fet

Three Canadians held separate tickets on Fet, which placed third. Each ticket is worth $50,000. "Four girls two boys" was the non-de-plume on ticket No. BD 92695 on Fet. "Clicked at Last" was on ticket No. PK 22805 and "Konora" was on ticket No. DK 57869. None of the $50,000 winners had been identified prior to the race.

Total Canadian winnings in the hospital sweeps swelled to $808,448 with six collecting on the horses placing first, second and third.

Winnings Reach High Total

One hundred and four ticket-holders collected $2,187 on non-starting horses or starters placing back on the first three. An additional 116 won $500 residuary prizes.

Winnings reached the largest total that ever came to Canada in the Irish Sweepstakes. They have fluctuated from around $500,000 to $600,000 in the last two years.

U. S. Holders Lucky

New York, Oct. 26—(AP)—Ticket holders in the United States won $3,489,162 as a result of the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes which was concluded today with the 100th running of the Cesarewitch race at Newmarket, England.

Seven tickets on Contrevent winner of the race, were held in the United States and paid $150,000 each for a total of $1,050,000.

Americans held seven tickets on Dubonnet, second place winner, gaining $75,000 each for another $525,000, and four tickets on the third horse, Fet, winning $50,000 each for $200,000 more.

Five hundreds and ninety-nine other American held tickets worth $2,187.50 on non-winning horses for a total of $1,310,412.

Prizes already awarded to Americans included 25 residual awards of $530 each for $13,250 and 781 consolation awards of $500 each for $390,500.

Six on One Ticket

Toronto, Oct. 26—(CP) Fet, who finished third in the historic Cesarewitch at Newmarket, England, today, brought $50,000 to six Toronto persons, two Hungarian men and four Finnish girls who split a ticket. The group each will receive $8,333.

In addition, Alec Polczer, one of the two men, will receive an additional award of $1,500 for selling the ticket. A $20-a-week longshoreman, he plans to buy a Norfolk County tobacco farm and bring his family—a wife and three children—to Canada from Gyor, Hungary, with the winnings.

The other man who shared the winnings with Polczer was Steve Gretz, an upholsterer. Each of the six persons who bought part of the ticket contributed 42 cents.

A total of $80,000 will come to Toronto as a result of the Sweepstakes draw. Six Toronto tickets were held on starter by citizens or group of citizens but only the Polczeh Syndicate clicked. Six other Toronto ticket-holders who drew non-starters will receive $2,185 each.

First thing Polczer did on hearing the results of the race was to cable his family. "Whatever we have lost in life, we will make up now," the message read.

Brantford, Ont., Oct 26.—(CP)—Ross Moyer, youthful Echo Place husband, will be able now to build that home for his pretty bride of a year and a half.

Moyer, holder of an Irish Sweepstakes' ticket on Miss Windsor, won more than $4,000 on today's running of the Cesarewitch at Newmarket, Eng. Miss Windsor was not among the leaders, but Moyer had sold a half interest in his ticket to a New York City syndicate for $3,000 and he will split the $2,185 awarded holders of, tickets on horses failing to show.

The "Windfall" would provide Ross with a "comfortable nest-egg" to start housekeeping, a family spokesman said. The younger Mr. and Mrs. Moyer have been living with the elder Meyers since their marriage a year and a half ago. Moyer sold the half interest in his ticket Tuesday at Buffalo, where he met Sidney Freeman, head of a New York syndicate.

GERMAN LINER

three other ships built by the Hamburg American for the trans-Atlantic service—the Hansa, the New York and the Hamburg.

The southeasterly gale and rain sweeping the Newfoundland Banks increased the Deutschland's peril while the fire was raging in the hold.

Fear was felt that the rescuers would be unable to reach the liner in time to take off passengers or that the gale would whip the flames beyond control should they leap out of the hold.

The rough seas added also to the danger of abandoning ship in life boats and on rafts.

Passengers were at dinner, dancing or in the cocktail lounges when the dread cry of "fire" swept the ship. First efforts to confine the blaze apparently were futile but the flames did not disable the radio.

Turn Ships Back.

Finally quelling the immediate danger, Captain Steincke and his radio operator set to the task of turning back all but three of the ships racing to help.

Some had been deemed too far away to help in any case, but several large and small craft kept bearing toward the ship long after it was out of immediate danger.

The Canadian government salvage tug, the "Foundation Franklin", put out from Port Hawkesbury, N.S. with full seagoing fire-fighting equipment aboard, but was turned back by the captain's reiterated insistence the situation was in hand.

Vessels which proceeded to stand by in case of further need were the American Traveller, the S. S. Collamer and the Norwegian ship Europe.. Besides the trans-Atlantic ships, others going to the rescue included the United States coast guard vessels from Boston and New England.

At many times while the terrific race was on, ships advised their bases that the Deutschland "did not say anything about the fire being under control yet".

The alarm-dispelling radio to The Associated Press, received at 8:29 o'clock, was followed at 11:35 p.m. by a message intercepted by the New York Coast Guard.

Young Women's Guild Hold Monthly Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Young Women's Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Archibald, Dufferin Ave., on Monday night, with Mrs. Mills in the chair. There was a large attendance of members and a number of visitors.

Miss D. Kerr conducted the worship service, her subject being "The Good Samaritan." Miss O. Elson read the report of the program committee, announcing the discussions for the next three months. The November meeting is to deal with the Racial Question. The December meeting is to be a slight departure from the regular meetings. It is planned to have a play under the direction of Mrs. C. Read. January's meeting promises to be very interesting. "Voluntary Parenthood" will be the topic for discussion.

Miss Templeton had charge of the discussion. "Can a Nation be Christian in its Foreign Policy?" Before starting the discussion, Mrs. D. Bews gave a very interesting history of Britain's Foreign Policy. Looking back a few years, we can see that this has been a policy of surrender to the blackmail of Fascist Dictators.

1932—Japan invaded Manchuria.
1933—Re-armament of Germany.
1935—Italy's attack on Abyssinia.
1936—Occupation of the Rhineland by Germany.
1938 —German annexation of Austria.
1938—Czechoslovakia.

By their hesitation to take risks in maintaining collective security, the Peaceful Powers have forfeited important strategic advantages.

Miss Templeton then went on to tell of "The New Technique of Aggression." How the Governments of Germany, Italy and Japan are engaged in a determined, subtle and yet desperate attempt to conquer the world. This new technique of aggression takes two main forms. First the Fascist powers try to organzie and subsidize a party of discontent. In cases where there are no Fascist groups, they organize their own nationals living in the country which they wish to penetrate. This party makes moderate demands at first to attract supporters and the demands grow. They then create civil strife and disorders.

So long as the Fascist powers know that we recede from a show of force, so long will they continue their aggression.

It was agreed by the members that being a Christian was not necessarily being a Pacifist. Only through the teachings of Jesus and the principals of Christian Fellowship can the world live in peace and safety.—(Contributed).

FORECASTS WAR

"was a bad peace, and a bad peace is no peace at all".

War and War Without Friends.

Then he pronounced this judgment:

"I will tell you what we shall find, and I am speaking now as one who has taken a great part in the affairs of this country at the most critical moment in the whole of its history:

"We shall have forfeited honor: we shall have lost the respect of the world, and what is still worse, we shall have lost our own self-respect. And in the end there will be no peace. There will be war, and war without friends."

Mr. Lloyd George declared that in making the Munich accord "we handed over a little democratic state in central Europe, wrapped in the Union Jack and the tricolor, to a ruthless dictator who will deny freedom to both Czechs and Germans alike."

Answering questions following the speech, he said he believed "the totalitarian nations would have been crushed like an eggshell" had there been war, despite Great Britain's defence weaknesses.

"I know something about armaments," he explained. "The French army is today the best army in Europe and the Rusisan army is the greatest army in the world so far as numbers are concerned and so far as its air force is concerned."

The statesman, one of the authors of the postwar settlement which created Czechoslovakia, spoke at the City Temple to the London Free Church Federation Club.

Referring to the wars in China, Ethiopia and Spain and the partitioning of Czechoslovakia, Mr. Lloyd George said:

Down the Ladder of Dishonor.

"We have descended during these years the ladder of dishonor rung by rung. Are we going—can we go—any lower?

"We all shared in a sort of thrill of relief which passed through this country when we realized we were to be spared at any rate for some time the horror and squalor of war.

"But that relief is now beginning to be suffused with the sense of shame that we purchase peace at the price of conscience and honor.

"Alas! That is only one of a series of episodes of the same kind that have occurred, especially during the last seven years, where we have subordinated honor to the quiet life.

"We have lost honor but we have not gained tranquillity."

Chancellor Hitler, he said, "wanted to get rid of a democratic and free country (Czechoslovakia), contiguous to his own, where principles of liberty, equality and justice were freely administered to Sudeten Germans and Czechs alike.

Declaring Great Britain's defences were in a "ghastly muddle", Mr. Lloyd George went on:

Weaker Nations Pleading.

"We were not even ready to defend ourselves, let alone rescue others but is incompetence a justification for bad faith?

"Instead of 58 nations, you wouldn't get two to follow us today.

"I tell you what we shall find. We shall have forfeited honor; we shall have lost the respect of the world, and what is still worse, we shall have lost our own self-respect. And in the end there will be no peace. There will be war, and war without friends."

Mr. Lloyd George said the weaker nations of Europe were going to Hitler instead of to Great Britain and France and "pleading for mercy".

"We have had a transient peace which risregards conscience, which has trampled on good faith and honor," he said. "And we have turned a deaf ear to the cry of the oppressed.

"That is a bad peace, and a bad peace is no peace at all."

stallation of plumbing, his trade. Mr. and Mrs. Vance and Vanderwater were riding in the cab of the truck, owned and driven by Vance when they came upon a sharp curve in the road, known as Frank's curve, near the home of Michael Frank, three miles north of Madoc on the Bancroft Highway. In some unknown manner the truck failed to negotiate the curve and crashed sideways down a six foot embankment. A front wheel of the truck was torn off the chassis as the vehicle hurtled down the embankment, while the cab of the truck was badly damaged. The occupants were hurled around the cab, as the vehicle turned over, but only Vanderwater sustained serious and fatal injuries.

Motorcycle Patrolman T. Hatch, Marmora, and Chief Constable J. Danforth, Madoc, investigated. No charges had been preferred in the matter early today, investigating police revealed.

The inquest looking into the death of the late Carman Vanderwater opened at Tuft's funeral parlor in Madoc this morning and following identification, adjourned until 2.00 p.m. on Thursday, when the hearing will resume before Coroner Dr. F. J. Nickle.

The coroner's jury impannelled included Richard Boney, Robert McCoy, John Devolin, Wm. Percival, T. Belcher, J. Kincaid, Fred Hill, Don Whytock and Tom Caverly, foreman.

An autopsy was ordered, the result of which will be learned tomorrow, police revealed today.

LIONS TO TRAIN DOGS TO AID THE BLIND

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP)—Detroit members of the Lions service club have started a movement to train Doberman Pinschers to lead blind persons, Jack Little of the Detroit group told a service club here last night. He said as soon as possible, some of the newly trained dogs will be sent to Canada.

Little said the dog training course would require four months for each dog and would cost $300 instead of the $500 to $600 cost of dogs training at the Seeing-Eye School at Morristown, N.S.

Dust of the air! The housewife with her vacuum sweeper may pick up on cleaning day from her oriental rugs dust that has very recently been added to the air and also dust of pre-historic origin. More and more attention is being given to methods of its prevention and to its effect on human health. Dust in the air is due to natural processes of weathering erosion, volcanoes, attrition, wind action on plants, and also to human agencies including all mechanical and chemical actions, industrial operations and human movements. Chemical actions include, of course, fires of all kinds, but some fires are due to natural agencies also.

U. S. TO STIFFEN FOREIGN POLICY SAYS ROOSEVELT

Bluntly Told Tokyo "Open Door" In China Must Be Maintained

AGAINST DICTATORS

Unless All Dictators Willing To Take Definite Step For Peace

By ANDRUE BERDING
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Oct.27—(CP)—President Roosevelt indicated a stiffened foreign policy for the United States today while the State Department was warning Japan against crippling American interests in China.

The note to Tokio called bluntly for protection of the open door policy in China and was one of the most comprehensive sent to Japan during its conflict in the Far East.

President Roosevelt's radio address last night, in the opinion of students of world affairs here, again threw the administration against the dictatorships.

Mr. Roosevelt gave an indication that his government does not quarrel with dictatorships, as such and does not seek to proselytize them to the ranks of democracy. Its quarrel, he said, is with governments which rely on force in pursuit of policy. The fact the dictatorships have been relying on force, as in the case of Italy in Ethiopia and Japan in China, or threat of it, as in the case of Germany in Czechoslovakia, makes the two ideas coincide.

Part Indictment of Germany

There were many in Washington who regarded part of the President's speech as an indictment of Germany. They read into his statements about "There can be no peace"—references to the Czech crisis, Jewish refugees, the German campaign against Protestant and Catholic churches, and Nazi economic principles.

In declaring there could be no peace if economic resources were turned from reconstruction to an arms race, Mr. Roosevelt was believed referring to Germany's system of economic autarchy designed to enable her to procure raw materials for rearmament.

This has disturbed United States officials because it led to the German system of barter and artificial currencies which State Secretary Cordell Hull has said runs diametrically contrary to the American system of trade.

Oppose Dictators Unless

A generally accepted conclusion from the President's speech was that he will oppose the dictatorships unless they are willing to take definite steps toward a permanent peace. During the recent German-Czech crisis the President sought to maintain a neutral position, appealing from an objective vantage point to both the democratic and the dic-

Queen Bequeathed Diamonds By Her Mother

London, Oct. 27—(AP)—Queen Elizabeth was bequeathed the diamonds of her mother, the Countess of Strathmore, in a will made public today.

Among other things, the Countess left to her youngest daughter, the Queen, "My diamond snake bracelet and my yellow diamond cross."

The King received two miniatures of his wife. The bulk of the £11,000 ($55,000) estate of the Countess, who died June 23, was left to two younger sons.

SIX ARRESTED AFTER ROBBERY

$85,000 Worth of Jewellery Taken From Lady Davis In June

Paris, Oct. 27.—(CP-Havas) —A daring $85,000 daylight jewel robbery last June from the home of Lady Henrietta Davis, first wife of the late Sir Mortimer Davis of Montreal, was declared solved last night with six arrests by the Surette Nationale.

The actual thief, police declared, was Francis Marek, 28, Polish domestic formerly in Lady Henrietta's employ. They said he confessed selling several of the gems, including an emerald ring valued at more than $25,000 to three receivers of stolen goods.

It was the 21-carat emerald that trapped him and five others. The prisoners, besides Marek, and the charges which they face are:—

Pierre Marechal, 27, a Prussian, and two Russians, Gaperin, 46, and Sloucheman, 54, dealing in stolen goods; Sonia Rasofski 38, receiver of a stolen gem allegedly given her by Marek, who is her brother-in-law; and Yvonne Fech, 36, a maid in Marek's hotel, accessory after the fact.

FIVE KILLED ON LEVEL CROSSING AT STONEY POINT

Three Generations of Old Family Wiped Out In Crash

DID NOT SEE TRAIN

Stoney Point, Ont., Oct. 27—(CP)—The intensity of Leo Ranger's gaze upon an automobile he was following while approaching a railway crossing in another machine was thought today to have been the direct cause of a crash that took five lives in this west Essex county village.

Ranger, 21, died in the crash with three other members of his family and a friend while driving to a church meeting last night. His father, 50-year-old Gilbert Ranger, only survivor of the accident, was taken to hospital in Windsor, 25 miles west of here, in critical condition.

Others killed were Mrs. Lucia Ranger, 48; Jean Ranger, 18-year-old sister of Leo; Arthur Masse, 83, Leo's grandfather, and Mrs. Julia Godin, 72. Mrs. Godin came from her home in Windsor to visit the Rangers, residents of Stoney Point almost all their lives.

Driving Behind Car

The car was struck by a Wabash railway freight train. Witnesses said young Ranger, driving the car, could not have seen the train as he made no effort to speed or slow the machine. "Leo was driving behind another car," said Dr. H. G. Emerson, village coroner. "Apparently he was watching the other car rather than looking out for a train."

HUNGARY'S NOTE TO THE CZECHS SEVERE IN TONE

Will Demand Occupation of Areas In Slovakia At Once

CZECHS TO ARBITRATE

Budapest, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Hungarian Cabinet decided today to send a new note to Czechoslovakia on Hungary's territorial claims, and observers predicted the message would be severe in its terms.

It was believed the Cabinet, which met to consider Prague's acceptance of the Hungarian plan to let Germany and Italy mediate their territorial dispute, would demand occupation of undisputed areas in Slovakia at once. Such occupation would be by easy stages.

Official circles regarded this as necessary because Hungary is afraid the Czechs may take with them too much material which, Hungarians maintain, Hungarian minorities paid for and should therefore remain in the relinquished districts.

Czechoslovak acceptance of the principle of arbitration was made known last night in a reply to Hungarian proposals of Monday. The answer was considered as showing some progress which might form the basis for further peaceful negotiations, but secondary differences remained.

Among the outstanding points were, a Foreign Office spokesman said, Czechoslovak insistence that Hungarian occupation of purely Magyar regions await German and Italian decisions on procedure; plebiscites in eight disputed districts; Hungarian demands for plebiscites in newly-autonomous Ruthenia and Slovakia to determine the people's desires to join Hungary.

Fails To Fulfill Request

The Czechoslovak answer failed to fulfill the Hungarian request for the Ruthenian-Slovak plebiscites and demanded that Rumania be an arbitrator if Poland were so named.

It was learned Hungary would refuse to accept Rumania as a mediator because, one official said, "We are sick of Little Entente intrigues." (Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia are members of the Little Entente.)

Lt. Col. Drew Most Likely Winner At Present Time

Toronto, Oct. 27.—(CP)—Leopold Macaulay, opposition leader in the Ontario Legislature, announced today he would not be a candidate for leader of the Ontario Conservative Party at the December convention.

Mr. Macaulay, nominated at a Party meeting here recently, said in a statement issued at Queen's Park: "I greatly regret the necessity of altering my decision". His withdrawal leaves only one certain candidate, Lieut.- Col. George A. Drew, author and soldier.

December 8 and 9 are the convention dates.

Four Mentioned

But also mentioned are Ashton Douglas, K.C., of London, Hammett P. Hill, K.C., of Ottawa, and possibly W. J. Stewart, M.P.P. elect for Parkdale.

It has been suggested in informed quarters that none of these four would fight the other but would unite behind the strongest of them to oppose Col. Drew.

Mr. Macaulay refused to discuss any of these possibilities insisting that his retirement had no relation to any of the other aspirants for the party chieftainship and was purely "in my own financial interests. I have a job to do."

Statement Given

"At the request of many loyal friends and supporters, I consented to allow my name to be put in nomination for leader of the Conservative party of Ontario at the December convention. On mature consideration I realise that the elected leader after the convention must devote every moment of his time and energy to the advancement and needs of the people of the province.

"Unfortunately, it is impossible for me to do this by reason of the simple necessity of earning a living in my chosen profession. In consequence, I greatly regret the necessity of altering my decision and saying to my friends that I find it impossible to undertake the work of the leader of the Conservative Party, if I should be fortunate enough to be elected to that position. I deeply appreciate the messages of confidence and goodwill communicated to me by many of the people of the province and I extend to them my sincere thanks. I also wish to thank the press of this province for their fairness and courtesy to me."

Macaulay's retirement came shortly after he had announced he was "in the fight to the bitter end."

Halifax Urges Nations Sharing Same Ideals Should Think Together

British Government Seeks To Enlist Co-operation of United States

AVERAGE MAN'S VIEW

Peace Must Be Worked For Declares Sir Thomas Inskip

By J. F. Sanderson
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 27.—(CP Cable) — Earl Stanhope was appointed First Lord of the Admiralty today to succeed Alfred Duff Cooper.

Earl de la Warr will replace Lord Stanhope as president of the Board of Education.

Prime Minister Chamberlain made only one change in his Cabinet today a successor to the late Lord Stanley in the Dominions office not being announced.

The Admiralty was vacated October 1, by Mr. Duff Cooper, who resigned when he could not support the Munich agreement.

Both Lord de Warr and Lord Stanhope already were in the Cabinet. Mr. Chamberlain, therefore, still has two vacancies to fill, the Dominions office and the Privy Seal portfolio.

It was understood, however, that Malcolm MacDonald, Colonial Secretary, would combine the Dominions Secretaryship with his own portfolio for the time being.

Delay in Appointments

Delay in making the new Cabinet appointments had been attributed by reliable, although unofficial, political quarters to the Prime Minister's indecision whether a projected armaments speed-up calls for new ministries to direct it. Separate departments have been suggested for supplies and national service.

London, Oct. 27 — (CP) — The British Government, urgently seeking means of promoting peace, today sought to enlist the United States co-operation. At the same time it moved toward clearing up its differences with Italy.

Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary, sounded the call to the United States in the early hours of the morning. He timed his message, urging that "nations sharing the same ideals should think together", so that it could be heard by the audience of the New York Herald Tribune's Forum last night.

Average Man

He said there was "little real difference in the attitude of the average man and woman in Britain and America regarding the turbulent currents sweeping Europe."

The Association between the two peoples were close and there was a mutual desire for true peace based upon agreement "that law and not force shall rule the world," he said.

Woman Makes Career Destroying Sham of Manners

Detroit, Oct. 27—(CP)—Miss Elsa Maxwell, a middle-aged woman who has shattered all the copy book rules about how to make a success of life, was in Detroit today prepared to lecture against the "sham of good manners."

Miss Maxwell who makes a remunerative business of giving parties for the social elite from New York to Hollywood is lecturing on how to give a successful party.

"There is nothing like laughter," Miss Maxwell said. "Laughter cures everything, my dear, everything. That is my message."

"How do you go about arranging a party?" reporters asked.

"Laughter is the panacea," said Elsa. "I was once depressed. Felt the world was going to pieces. So what did I do?"

A Good Party

"What makes a good party," repeated the reporter.

"I got a banana, and I peeled the banana," Elsa continued. "I put the banana skin on the floor. And I deliberately stepped on it, my dear."

"About the party . . ." the reporter reiterated.

Poland and Hungary Desire To Make a Common Frontier

Chief Barrier To Proposal Is Narrow Strip of Czech Land Between Them

WOULD AID DEFENSE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Warsaw, Oct. 27—(AP)—There is far more than the minority issue involved in the Hungarian claim to Czechoslovakia's Ruthenia. The chief reason for this claim is the desire of Hungary and Poland, who are great friends, to make a common frontier for the two countries, separated by this narrow Czechoslovak tail.

That would create a barrier of defence against possible German aggression. In other words, crushing of Czechoslovakia by Germany has sent the rest of the countries in this part of the world scurrying about to see how they can protect themselves if Hitler tries similar tactics on any.

This does not mean they don't intend to cooperate with the Fuehrer. Economically they do, and one good reason—as has been frankly stated in well informed quarters not only in Poland and Hungary but elsewhere—is that it would be extremely difficult to evade cooperation with the Nazi chieftain even if they wanted to. He is admittedly the big man in eastern Europe and the Balkans.

ROOSEVELT'S WORDS TARGET FOR FASCISTS

Rome, Oct. 27 (AP)—President Roosevelt's condemnation of practices usually associated with totalitarian regimes was seen by observers today as a likely new target for Italian press attacks against the United States.

Persons in high Fascist quarters said little notice had been taken of the President's broadcast last night since they were concerned with "more important problems." However, the Fascist press for days has been denouncing the rearmament plans of the United States and other democracies as threats of aggression against totalitarian states.

MISSILES FALL IN WATER

Valencia, Spain, Oct. 27—(CP-Havas)—Bombs fell between the British freighters Neath Abbey and Stanleigh in port here today as five planes from Mallorca made a raid, dropping some 50 projectiles. Most of the missiles fell into the water.

The vessels, unloading coal, grain and general cargo, were not damaged. In July and again in August the Stanleigh was damaged during Insurgent raids on Valencia.

GIRL TO SURVIVE ATTACK BY BEAR

Was Sketching 600-Pound Beast At Cleveland Zoo At Time

Cleveland, Oct. 27—(AP)—Slender Julia Zemnick, 21, will survive a vicious attack by a polar bear in a Brookside Zoo cage, doctors said today, but it may be necessary to remove her left eye.

Pronounced in critical condition from loss of blood and multiple injuries, the attractive federal art project worker rallied after a blood transfusion.

Perched on a ledge overlooking the cage, Miss Zemnick yesterday was sketching the 600-pound beast, called "Silver" when she tumbled or was pulled into the cage by the female bear. For nearly 20 minutes "Silver" clawed and mauled the girl.

One eye gouged, her scalp lacerated and wounded about the face and neck, the semi-conscious Miss Zemnick was rescued by Curley Wilson, zoo superintendent, and two aides.

Baldwin Raps Public Dinners And Speaking

London, Oct. 27—(CP Cable) — Earl Baldwin in one of his rare, formal appearances in public since he resigned as Prime Minister, last night made a few blunt remarks about public dinners.

He told the Worcestershire Association, at whose dinner he presided here, that they were "the most tiring functions there are."

"I was a fine, healthy man when I first took office and I leave it a wreck," he said. "I think public speaking is at the bottom of it."

Lord Baldwin said: "I am never going to any more public dinners except the county association's."

Sluggish Minds, Thick Ankles Result of Swing Dancing

Opinion Given By Past President of The Association

SHOULD TEST HEART

Detroit, Oct. 27—(CP)—Dancing to swing music causes sluggish minds and thick ankles, warned Dr. E.A. Ward, immediate Past President of the American Osteopathic Association in an interview. Dr. Ward was here today attending the Michigan convention of the association.

"The hysteria for swing music and the hopping, grimacing dances that go with it," Dr. Ward warned, "will pay its adherents with thick ankles, broken maladjusted feet, and an exhausted nervous system, unless they recognize its dangers.

"The big apple uses many different muscles, putting them to a stress and strain for which, in most cases, they are not prepared, these dances are violent exercise and require as much training and as good physical condition as tennis, basketball, swimming, golf and similar sports."

If a person wished to dance the big apple Dr. Ward advised, the heart should be tested, muscles should be gradually conditioned, and regular care given to the body. He said the dances are throwbacks to the war and religious dances of primitive tribes.

Farmer is Killed By Touching Cow Already Electrocuted

Alliston, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP)—Howard Gauley, Essa Township farmer, was electrocuted yesterday when he touched one of his cows that had been killed by a high tension wire. Driving his cattle to water he noticed one of the animals in trouble in a ditch. He went to its aid and received a jolt from nearly 6,400 volts that had already killed the cow. A tree had fallen, birnging down the wire, concealed by high grass in the ditch.

MAN'S ARM INJURED WHILE STARTING OUTBOARD MOTOR

Victim of an unusual accident, W. J. Langmuir, buttermaker of the Riverside Dairy, Trenton, is this week recovering from a painful injury.

Visiting a North Hastings lake near St. Ola last week, Mr. Langmuir was attempting to start his outboard motor. In some manner after the motor started, the starting cord tangled in the head of the machine and was whipped toward him with considerable force. The knotted end of the cord penetrated the muscles of his left arm deeply.

Driven to Trenton by a friend, Mr. Langmuir was treated by Dr. Farley.

SMALL MARKET

Little activity marked the city market today where a slim offering of produce was offered for sale. only a few vendors were on hand to display winter apples and staple vegetables. Prices noted no change from week-end quotations. Eggs were offered at forty cents per dozen with a few pickerel and mullets quoted at eighteen cents per pound, and three for twenty-five cents respectively.

D.-P. Y. T. PROGRAM TO BE CONTINUED

Several courses, aimed to alleviate unemployment in the ranks of the youth of the country, have been outlined by the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training program for the winter season. H. F. Irwin, of the Department of Labor, Toronto who paused in the city for a few minutes today, told a newspaperman.

Mr. Irwin, who was enroute to Picton where he addresses the Kiwanis Club of that town today, added that the new activities of the program have been undertaken through pressure of popular demand.

Placements made last year, of youths trained under the program have in the greater majority of cases been a success. Employers generally have been well satisfied with the progress made by boys and girls trained by this method, Mr. Irwin stated, adding that courses will be started in the near future.

KIDDIES DEMAND NEW-TYPE MASKS

Effect of the popular comic-strip characters on the youth of the city and district is seen in the demand for Hallowe'en masks, a Front Street department store manager stated today. Commenting on the fact that Hallowe'en business so far has been the best in years, the store official added that children generally are "passing up" the usual hobgoblin, and "old Witch" masks for the Popeye, Jiggs and other famous comic-strip characters.

MARMORA STORE ENTERED, ROBBED

Goods To Value of $100 Taken From F. N. Marett's Store

Gaining entrance through a rear door, robbers entered the premises of the F. N. Marett and Company general store at Marmora last night and stole merchandise valued at over $100.00, it was discovered by Fred R. Wells, one of the firm's associates, when Mr. Wells opened the business today.

The robbers bored two large holes in the rear wooden door and apparently reached inside to remove the large iron bar, which secured the door. Upon gaining entrance the robbers stole sox, shirts, sweaters, windbreakers and shoes valued at well over $100.00 It is believed by investigating police that an automobile was used to transport the stolen goods out of Marmora. No undue noises or disturbances were heard by residents of the village during the night.

County Constable Percy Gray, assisted by Sergeant H. Thompson and Constable Wm. McBrien of the Ontario Provincial Police, investigated the robbery.

WORKERS COLLECT 1-3 OF OBJECTIVE

"Y" Campaign To Raise $5,000 Off To Good Start

With one-third of their objective reached the canvassers of the current Y.M.C.A. financial campaign reported optimistically when the initial reports of the campaign, now in progress, were received yesterday.

Secretary J. E. Shortt announced there had been a slight improvement in the first day's campaign over a similiar period of last year. During the first day of the campaign a total of 130 subscriptions were received for a value of $1,662.50, with $675.50 cash receipts on hand.

The current financial campaign to aid the Y.M.C.A. in meeting its necessary financial obligations for the operating year fired its first guns on Tuesday with a minimum objective of $5,000.00, need to meet the operating expenses not included in the general income of the Association.

For the first day's drive Captain H. W. Ackerman's team of special names led the campaign individually, with Major R. J. E. Graham's divisions second and Major J. B. Boyce's team in third position for the team race for campaign honors.

The Y.M.C.A. financial campaign workers are extremely optimistic and reported favourable reception to their approaches by the citizens in general. Further reports will be made today and Friday. Over 60 of Belleville's business men are assisting in the campaign of which Mr. W. B. Deacon is general chairman.

Local Resident Recalls Stirring Victory of 'Bluenose' Over Rival In First of the Schooner Races

The successful defence of the huge trophy emblematic of the schooner championship of the North Atlantic, by that Canadian "Queen of the Banks" and the pride of the Lunenburg fishing fleet, the "Bluenose" recalls to one resident of this city the exciting events that marked the first International Fishing Schooner race the Bluenose participated in just seventeen years ago when she defeated the "Elsie" pride of the American bankers off Halifax.

Pre-race enthusiasm had heightened public interest to a point that bordered well-nigh on a slight mania. Days previous to the race the waterfront was lined with spectators admiring the trim craft as they lay at their moorings. Speculation was rife as to whether the trim Bluenose, fresh from her "cradle" at Lunenburg could outfoot the speedy Gloucesterman. In her trial runs she had shown amazing speed, and loyal Lunenburgers and Haligonians were loud in their praise of the new banker built to uphold the splendid traditions of the Nova Scotian fishing fleet.

Three landlubber newspapermen, and a naval lieutenant-commander in addition to nineteen of a racing crew that included the famous skipper Captain Angus Walters, fiery Lunenburger, and veteran of the fishing banks, were on board the trim schooner as she shoved her one hundred and five foot length into the stream preparatory to heading for the starting line.

With the cheers of thousands of people ringing in their ears. the crews moved their vessels out into the water. Fickle winds in the harbor made jockeying a serious job, but two seconds after the opening gun the "Elsie" flashed across the starting line on the first leg of the triangular thirty-mile course that would take her well out into the Atlantic Ocean. A minute later the doughty Walters drove his handsome schooner, with the Autumn sun reflecting a white brilliancy from her brand new spread of canvas, across the line, and exactly six minutes later he flashed past the Gloucesterman to take a lead he never relinquished.

Positions of Races Unknown To Crowd

Hours later, as the time for the reappearance of the racing schooners drew near, the city became agog with excitement. There were no radios in those days, and little news, mostly speculative filtered through regarding the positions of the vessels. Crowds of people lined Point Pleasant Park. Citadel Hill was a mass of excited humanity. Newspaper offices were besieged with requests for latest news.

Then in the distances of Halifax Harbor, heeled over to a spanking breeze, the white topsails of the Bluenose flashed in the sunlight. A roar of cheers swept in the air from the massed crowds. Gradually the beautiful lines of the pride of Lunenburg with the now famous Bluenose "bone in her teeth" sending white sprays of foam against her sleek black bow, rounded the outer point of McNabs Island.

Whistles shrieked from berthed ocean liners and steamers. Tugs, with plumes of steam arching from shrilling whistles dashed across the harbor. Small craft dotted the area surrounding the finish. And while an excited Nova Scotian population cheered itself hoarse, the "Bluenose" drove across the finish line a quarter mile ahead of "Elsie" to annex the first race for the championship of the North Atlantic, a title she has held ever since. The second race of the International series held the following day saw a repetition of the first race, and the Bluenose was officially crowned as "Queen of the Bankers" and International schooner champion. Captain Walters and his gallant crew were formally presented with the cash prizes and the handsome trophy given by Senator William Dennis of the Halifax Herald at a banquet at which the rival skippers and crews were the guests of honor.

Makes Sporting Offer

A highlight of this affair, the landlubber member of the crew now living in Belleville, stated, was the offer of the Gloucester skipper, Captain Ben Pine, to race the "Bluenose" to Gloucester and back for a purse of $1,000.

All eyes turned to Captain Walters as the offer was made.

Slowly he rose to his feet, a smile illuminating his youthful features.

"If Captain Pine really wants to race" he said, "I'll make him a proposition. For a purse of $5,000, we will start from Halifax, go to Turks Island, load salt for Buenos Aires and return here. And as inducement, I will give Captain Pine a week's start.

Cheers broke out as the Lunenburg skipper sat down. Slowly a smile replaced the astonished look on Captain Pine's face, and he slowly shook his head.

Splendid photographs of the "Bluenose" driving through Halifax Harbor in the van of the "Elsie" can be seen in the windows of the Ed. Thomas Tobacco Store, Front Street.

OBITUARY

LATE ROYAL MASON
(Cannifton)

The funeral of Royal Mason took place Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 26th., from his late residence at Cannifton. The service in the home and at the graveside in Elmwood Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. A. Armstrong, pastor of the United Church at Cannifton.

The bearers were Messrs. B. Peacock, E. Shorey, W. Thomas, B. Bedell, W. Ackerman and G. Ketcheson.

JOHN LOWERY
(Thurlow)

John Lowery passed away suddenly at his residence in the 8th. concession of Thurlow Township on Wednesday, Oct. 26th.

The late Mr. Lowery, who was in his 83rd year, was born at Carrying Place, Prince Edward County, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lowery. When age and health permitted he was engaged in farming and lived for some time in Sidney Township. For the past thirty nine years he made his home in Thurlow Township. In the community he was well known and highly esteemed. Fraternally Mr. Lowery was a member of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 251, Holloway, and in religion he was a member of the Anglican Church at Roslin.

Surviving him are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Rebecca Kelly; one son, Mr. Henry Lowery, Madoc, and one sister, Mrs. Lydia Duckworth, Toronto.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

MRS. JAMES R. GOODMAN
(Toronto)

The death occurred suddenly at the Toronto Western Hospital on Wednesday, October 26th., of Maud Stella Graves, wife of Mr. James R. Goodman, 89 Tenth Street, New Toronto, in her 58th year. She was the mother of Mrs. D. Patrick, Mrs. J. Hollwell and Mrs. A. McCutcheon, all of New Toronto. Friends in Belleville will regret to learn of her death.

The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon, October 29th., from the Hogle Funeral Home, 63 Mimico Avenue, Mimico, Ont.

MRS. GENEVIEVE HENDRICK
(Sidney)

After a brief illness Mrs. Genevieve Hendrick passed away at the residence of her nephew, Col. R. Vanderwater, in Sidney Township, early this Thursday morning, Oct. 27th.

The late Mrs. Hendrick was the widow of Col. M. J. Hendrick at one time United States Consul in this city. Thirty years ago Col. Hendrick and Mrs. Hendrick left here for Moncton, N.B., to which place he was transferred in the Consular Service. Later he was made Consul General in the Diplomatic Service of the United States and served at Christiania, Norway, and Plauen, Germany. In the year 1917 Col. Hendrick and Mrs. Hendrick returned to Canada and he became United States Consul at Windsor, Ont. He died in that city in September 1923. Upon his death Mrs. Hendrick returned to Belleville and took up residence with her nephew, Col. R. Vanderwater in Sidney Township.

The late Mrs. Hendrick was born on the old Yates homestead in the 2nd. concession of Sidney Township. Her parents were the late William Sidney Yates and his wife Madora Vandervoort. Mrs. Hendrick possessed many fine traits of character and was held in high regard by all who knew her. Old friends will regret to learn of her death.

Surviving her are one sister Mrs. George S. Bonter, Carrying Place, Prince Edward County, and one nephew, Col. R. Vanderwater, Sidney Township.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

REFUSAL OF YOUTH TO TAKE FARM JOB ANNOYS MAYOR

Is Getting 'Fed Up' With Some of City's Unemployed Who Refuse Work

Quick action on the part of the city's Chief Magistrate is guaranteed local malingerers, or those who confessedly are anxious for work, yet are choosey about the job.

Mayor Bone announced this morning he is "getting a bit fed up" with some of the city's unemployed who are loud in their declaration of the need for work, yet refuse bona fide employment when offered.

This morning one youthful out-of-work applied at the mayoralty office for assistance.

"I want a job, gotta have one", he told the Mayor with finality.

"So you want a job. Have you looked for one", asked the Mayor of the youth who has been a frequent visitor to the office.

"Sure, I've looked."

"Will you take a farm job, a good one I've got for you."

"Nothin' doin'. I dont' want a job on a farm."

"You get out of this office, and don't come back," snapped the Mayor. "You're just looking for an excuse to have the city keep you."

Little help can be expected this coming winter from the city for those who have been passing up these harder jobs in hopes of a softer berth, it was announced by Mayor Bone today.

Some of the unemployed have had plenty of chances this summer, but have shown an exceeding reluctance to tackle some of the jobs offered, it was added.

Announcement by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn that provision was being made for single able unemployed, does not apply at the local relief office, it was stated by Alderman J. W. Barlow, chairman of the Relief Committee, this morning. "We have had no advice or instructions on the matter at all", it was reported by him.

Police Blotter

A transient, who police say gave the name of George Murray, was arrested on a charge of intoxication yesterday. Murray's apprehension came following complaints from motorists who informed the authorities a man was panhandling along Front Street and molesting occupants of motor cars. The accused was remanded until Friday for trial.

Charles Walters, Front St., tailor, reported the loss of his motor car to the police last evening. The vehicle bearing licence plates No. 9-J-800 was left parked at the rear of Mr. Walter's premises. Later it was found abandoned on Pinnacle St., however.

Police today are investigating the theft of a gold watch, the property of P. C. MacLaurin, Dundas Street.

The advent of colder weather has resulted in a general influx of transients seeking warm sleeping quarters these chilly nights at the police station. Last evening fifteen transients were billetted in the cell block.

Canadian Artist And His Paintings

An exhibition of paintings in oil and watercolor being held at Hotel Quinte by Mr. Edward R. Glen of London, Ont., well-known throughout Canada and the United States where he has sold many of his works, gives lovers of pictorial art an opportunity to see work by an outstanding Canadian painter, who has devoted his entire life to the art. His inspiration was inborn for he was brought up in the atmosphere of art, his father, while not a professional artist, having done much fine work with the brush. Early in life Mr. Glen began the study and practice of art and has made a career in his pictorial presentation of the facts and experiences of life. He has visited many parts of the world, and in his travels, he has been inspired to many works which carry a deep appeal in their sense of light and color, their fine drawing, their drama, or their human interest. Some of his paintings were made on the sands of North Africa, in such places as Biskra, in Algeria, and in out-of-the-way as well as famous places in other parts of Africa and Europe. During these travels he has come in contact with the other artists and has seen their method of approach to subjects for canvas or watercolor.

His Canadian and other works manifest a wholesome attitude towards conception and execution. He has drawn many scenes from the vast panorama of nature to be seen in Canada. In these as in his foreign subjects his theory of art, his sense of light and color are manifest. A look about the paintings on exhibition shows the truth of this unity of conception and execution. As a true artist he has his theory of light and color and subject, which is stamped upon everything he does. This is the mark of originality which makes the artist.

A number of the paintings shown here were on view at the Canadian National Exhibition in August and September.

TRAINS FIGURED IN 6 FATALITIES

Child In Whitby Wanders From Home And Hit By Train

(By the Canadian Press)

Investigations into the deaths of 11 persons, two of them children, were under way in six central and western Ontario municipalities today, aftermath of accidents yesterday in which trains figured in six of the fatalities. Traffic mishaps took two lives while a child was drowned in a creek.

The day's worst accident occurred at Stoney Point, 25 miles west of Windsor. There, five persons were killed when an automobile was struck at a crossing by a Wabash railway freight train when the driver of the car apparently failed to see the oncoming locomotive. Three generations of an old Stoney Point family died in the crash.

Mrs. Lucia Ranger, 48; her son, Leo, 21, and 18-year-old daughter, Jean; Arthur Masse, Mrs. Ranger's 83-year-old father, and Mrs. Julia Godin, 72, were killed. Gilbert Ranger, the husband of Mrs. Ranger, was taken to hospital in Windsor in critical condition. He suffered fractures of both legs and other injuries.

Hit Parked Truck

Mrs. H. Thomas Randle of Meaford, died in a Collingwood hospital as a result of injuries suffered in a motor car crash near Camperdown, on Highway No. 26, several miles east of Thornbury. The car, driven by her husband, crashed into the side of a parked truck. The two doors of the car were torn, the wheel on the right side was bent double and the axle twisted. The seat they were riding in was forced back three feet.

A level-crossing crash also resulted in the death of G. Taylor, 25-year-old aircraftsman at the Camp Borden Aviation Base. Taylor was killed when an automobile he was driving was struck by a Canadian Pacific railway train at Alliston, 50 miles north of Toronto.

Child Wanders from Home

Particularly tragic was the death of 18-months-old Joan Holliday. The child wandered from her home at Whitby and reached C. P. R. tracks running between her father's home and the barn on his little farm. She was struck by a freight train as her mother raced to pull her to safety.

Two-year-old Edmond Jamieson was drowned in a shallow creek near his home at Harburg, in the Simcoe district, when he tumbled into the water while playing. At Cobalt, Edmond Bastien, 75, was killed when struck by a car driven by 17-year-old Arthur Lemire. Reginald James, 26-year-old farm worker, died in Orillia hospital after being struck by a truck while walking along a highway.

Admits Forging 30 Cheques in Name Of a Dying Woman

Vancouver, Oct. 27—(CP)—A 19-year-old girl told an assize court jury grouped around her hospital bed yesterday she had forged 30 cheques in the name of a dying woman and that a cheap wedding ring had been substituted for the woman's own ring after she died.

Mr. Justice Denis Murphy, jurymen and counsel listened for four hours to the testimony of Lillian Crawley, crown witness in the trial of Andrew and Violet Goulding charged with conspiracy to steal from Mrs. Eva Platt Huntington. Mrs. Huntington died last May in a Vancouver nursing home operated by the Gouldings.

Miss Crawley, former nurse in the nursing home, originally was charged with the Gouldings but pleaded guilty and was given suspended sentence.

Purchased New Car

The girl said the day Mrs. Huntington died Mrs. Goulding returned from a trip and took her (Miss Crawley) to an automobile company where a new car was purchased. The sum of $325 was paid by cheque on Mrs Huntington's bank account.

"This cheque was signed by me, using Mrs. Huntington's name and I was introduced by Mrs. Goulding as Miss Huntington," the witness said.

The girl said she had "signed the will Mrs. Huntington made April 28 as a witness with the name Gertrude L. Whiting." The will bequeathed Mrs. Huntington's entire estate to Mrs. Goulding.

Miss Crawley later identified a wedding ring as having been given to her by Mrs. Goulding to substitute for Mrs. Huntington's own ring after the woman had died. The trial is continuing.

POLICE SEEK CLUES

Trenton, Oct. 27.—(Special) — Local police officers are today working on a number of clues in an effort to identify and track down one or more thieves, who some time during last night entered the premises of the Trenton Auto Wreckers on Front Street, and made away with a quantity of automotive supplies valued at $170 by the proprietor, Earl Baker. Entry was made by breaking a window at the rear of the building and forcing a door, and apparently the thieves worked coolly for Mr. Baker stated that the entire stock had been well looked over before any choice was made. Among the missing articles were a number of gallons of motor oil, fog lights, tires new and used, motor parts, a radiator grill, transmission parts, gaskets, and a great many more articles evidently chosen for a specific reason. Evidently the thieves, who probably numbered two drove a car into an adjoining lot at the rear and calmly borrowed a neighbour's ladder to scale a high board fence and enter the Baker property. Then they looked over the stock and casually carried the loot out to their car. It is estimated that the robbery took place at about 2.30 in the morning, and several bits of evidence make police quite hopeful of identifying the men.

Trenton's last robbery took place almost two months ago when three new mantel radios were stolen from the Goodsell Motors showroom on Elgin Street, later being recovered in a car abandoned on a sideroad near Brantford, a police check of all automotive sales places will be made in an effort to spot any of the stolen goods if they are offered for sale.

Advance Party Leaves

Today the advance party of No. 6 Torpedo Bombing Squadron leave Trenton for Vancouver, British Columbia, and within a week the remaining members of the squadron will vacate quarters both at the R.C.A.F. station and in town and will begin the long journey to the Pacific coast. No. 6 T. B. Squadron has been a much-discussed group, and for some time it was almost certain that during the tense European situation they would be sent to Dartmouth near Halifax. However, the latest move is one, that has been contemplated for almost two years and on the whole members of the group are very well pleased with the change. Included in the squadron are nearly one hundred officers and men, and about fifteen families will be leaving Trenton. Among the equipment shipped are five Blackburn Shark torpedo bombers, brought here from England a year ago, while a sixth, damaged in an attempted landing on the Bay of Quinte a few weeks ago, will be repaired and sent along as soon as possible.

A number of empty quarters are now in evidence at the Air Station, and some conjecture is afloat as to the imminence of the arrival of new recruits to fill the vacancies.

Chicken Supper Enjoyed

A large number of local men attended the annual chicken supper at Albury church on Tuesday night when ladies of the congregation entertained. A guest speaker was brought from Toronto for the occasion by George Hardy, well known locally as a Toronto racing enthusiast.

Autumn race charts at Long Branch and Dufferin have attracted a number of local people, and some excellent races have been run. Friday racegoers included Dr. and Mrs. J. Farley and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dempsey of Albury.

Walls of new stores under construction on Dundas Street have been built and workmen are going ahead rapidly with completion of the new buildings. Owners W. H. Ireland and G. J. Aziz are on the scene daily, and both structures are bound to improve the appearance of the business section.

Members of the R.C.A.F. gridiron team yesterday welcomed back from Ottawa Lawrence Gibson, last year's star fullback, who may get into the game this season for the Airmen. Gibson has just completed a month's leave spent at his home in Ottawa, and while there turned out for practices with Ottawa's stellar Roughriders.

Also included in the list of arrivals back at the Air Station after an absence is Louis LeCompte who is convalescing from an appendix operation a short time ago. Until then he had been performing in fine fashion for the Flyers, and his absence has been very noticeable with Ripley taking over the kicking chore.

EXHAUSTED WILD GEESE ALIGHT ON LANDING FIELD

Alexander, Wis., Oct. 27 (CP) —A large squadron of flyers, apparently running short of fuel, circled the city again and again in the darkness before lights were turned on at the Alexander airport and a safe landing was effected. The flyers—a flock of an estimated 1,000 exhausted geese alighted on the landing field while attendants, who had switched on the lights as a joke, gaped. The birds rested until morning.

WHEN HIS MAJESTY COMES TO CANADA

When His Majesty King George Sixth holds Privy Council meeting at Ottawa on the occasion of his forthcoming visit to Canada in the early summer of 1939, there will be established a precedent in Canada with the King presiding over an assembly of this kind in which former ministers of the Crown and members of the Government will be gathered before the Throne and consider matters of a non-political nature. This will rivet attention upon the fact that there is unity of all classes of opinion under the Kingship.

This will be a memorable event for Canada and a due reward for those who have been advisers to His Majesty to sit in the same august assembly of the Privy Council under the King. This will make history, a history which will spell the close ties which bind the people and the Throne. It will bring Canada before the Throne, it means the Kingdom of Canada is a fact.

The visit of the King and Queen cannot but make Canadians think along more imperial lines, meditate upon their priceless heritage of liberty and freedom under the democratic King. It will reveal to the Empire how powerful is the imperial link of democracy.

Canadians will be brought more close to one another as they realize they are all looking to the welfare and development of Canada and all the Dominions and the Motherland. It will enlarge the view of Canadians and will make them realize with pride that they are the inheritors of a place in a world democracy and that nothing matters but that the best interests of the Motherland, Canada and the other Dominions are served at all times. Canada must feel an added sense of her full nationhood when her ruling Sovereign and his Queen will pay a visit to every one of the nine provinces, a nationhood in which there is unity with the Empire and unity with every part of Canada.

THE DUKE OF KENT'S APPOINTMENT

The appointment of His Royal Highness, the Duke of Kent as the next Governor-General for Australia has been acclaimed through out the Empire and Australia feels the honor which has been shown her as King George Sixth's brother is chosen for the post.

No royal line has ever so occupied the minds and thoughts of Britain's subjects in all parts of vast empire as the House of Windsor. His late Majesty King George Fifth built on a very human basis the love which British people everywhere bear for the members of this House. It was in the days of King George Fifth that his uncle H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, brother of the late King Edward Seventh, was sent to Canada. The royal Duke and the Duchess of Connaught possessed the love and devotion of the Canadian subjects of the King. This week's appointment brings close to one of the great Dominions the Royal Family in the naming of a brother of the King as His Majesty's representative.

The Duke of Kent, brilliant and keenly interested in the problems of this age, has had a good training for such an office not only in the days of his father when he filled many engagements on behalf of the King but in the years since the death of King George Fifth he has been of much help to the Sovereign. With him will go the Duchess of Kent, who since her marriage to the royal Duke in Westminster Abbey, to which the Empire and the world listened over radio, has been one of the most popular members of Britain's royal house.

Onerous duties devolve upon the King and his brothers in these days and it is a tribute to Australia as well as a sign of the development of the Statute of Westminster that the King's brother should go to act as Governor-General. While the Duke of Connaught was Canada's viceroy in 1911-1914 and the late Prince Arthur of Connaught, son of the Duke of Connaught and the Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary, were Governors-General of the Union of South Africa, since the passage in 1931 of the Statute of Westminster which raises to national status the Dominions, this is the first appointment of a royal prince. The Duke and Duchess who will go out to Australia late in 1939 will stay possibly less than the usual period of five years, possibly two or three years and then return to England where many duties will call for his cooperation with the King and his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, who will be bearing a heavy burden during the absence of the Duke of Kent in the governor-generalship.

The selection of a royal representative will mean much to the strengthening of the ties between Australia and the Motherland, especially in the light of the trend of world affairs.

Motherland and Dominions will join in acclaiming the appointment and in congratulating the Commonwealth of Australia.

A world without a Sabbath would be like a man without a smile, like a summer without flowers and like a homestead without a garden. It is the joyous day of the whole week.—Henry Ward Beecher.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE IT WOULD MAKE

"If I knew you and you knew me,
'Tis seldom we would disagree
But never having yet clasped hands,
Both often fail to understand,
That each intends to do what's right,
And treat each other "honor bright.'
How little to complain there'd be,
If I knew you and you knew me.

"Whenever we ship you by mistake,
Or in your bills some error make,
From irritation you'd be free,
If I knew you and you knew me.
Or when checks do not come on time,
And customers say nary a line,
We would wait without anxiety,
If I knew you and yuo knew me.

"Or when some goods you fire back,
Or make a kick on this or that,
We'd take it in good part and see,
If I knew you and you knew me.
With customers, thousands strong,
Occasionally things will go wrong,
Sometimes our fault, sometimes theirs,
Forbearance would decrease all cares.
Kind friend, how pleasant it would be,
If I knew you and you knew me."

FROM HOLLYWOOD COMES APPRECIATION OF THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER'S ACTION in preventing war during the recent European crisis, as reported by Farley Faulkner, correspondent columnist:

With wind and sand ruffling his hair Douglas Fairbanks Jr. met your correspondent on the Mohave Desert location of "Gunga Din" with this astounding prediction: So you are fortunate enough to be a Canadian. One day democracy will make its last stand on this continent, and it wouldn't surprise me to See Canada playing a major part in that all important period of world history. And that day may come within the span of our lifetime."

"Just being an actor, even at $7,500.00 per week makes one feel a little puny when men like Chamberlain are doing things of real importance. Millions of people undoubtedly owe their lives to England's man-of-the-hour, and even we in these United States should feel grateful that another European calamity has been averted for at least a few months."

"Of course it is not fitting for a screen star to speak like this for publication, but I can assure you that the sentiment of the two thousand men on this location has been almost entirely with England during the crisis that has just passed. I watched them listening intently to the broadcasts and heard enough of their conversations to know that scores of our Bengal Lancers used in this picture would have volunteered immediately with the men of the British Empire, whether or not the U.S. decided to enter war.

HOLLYWOOD STARS WHO WRITE VERSE, good, bad and indifferent, are numerous, according to Farley Faulkner, of Belleville, a newspaperman now investigating the workings of Hollywood, and writing about it. Farley has a weakness for verse himself and that probably led to the discovery of other culprits in the movie colony. Perhaps they just naturally gravitate together on the principle that misery likes company, or somepin All and sundry, however, will have to go some to emulate Edward Arnold's verses on how to boil a turkey for the table. Arnold recited the turkey verses over the air recently in between the acts of a radio presentation of "Babbit" in which he took the part of the blustering big hearted real estate operator, George Babbitt, for Cecil B. DeMille, and there was not a dry mouth in the house when he finished with that boiled turkey. Farley has made some interesting discoveries since transferring his journalistic talents to Hollywood where anything can happen and his copy makes peppy reading.

WHEN AN EDITOR MIXES HIS DRINKS TROUBLE IS LIKELY TO FOLLOW. Hence when the well-known McAree, ace-columnist of the Toronto Globe and Mail, wrote a column on whiskey made and consumed in the United States under familiar Canadian names also the type of Scotch Whiskey obtainable in the land of Uncle Sam, he found what many another has found, who has tarried o'er long with various brands of whiskey, that trouble and double trouble is likely to ensue. McAree can console himself with the thought that if his column wasn't so widely read there would be no argument.

In the Dominion elections yesterday Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his party were returned to power for another term in office; defeating the Conservative party led by Mr. R. L. Borden. At mid-night last night there were 125 Liberals and 86 Conservatives elected. Seven constituencies will vote later. As we go to press this afternoon the figures show a Liberal majority of 39. Laurier had a majority of 66 when Parliament was dissolved. Mr. E. Guss Porter, Conservative, was elected in West Hastings and Mr. W. B. Northrup, Conservative, was elected in East Hastings, both had large majorities. Mr. J. K. McCargar was the Liberal candidate in East Hastings and Mr. Jesse Funnell was the Liberal candidate in West Hastings.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

The Liver Makes Bile Bile Helps Make Blood

It is with difficulty that I prevent myself writing about the liver which is rightly called the 'king of the organs'. It is, as has been stated so often, the largest organ in the body, holds one quarter of the blood of the body, stores away sugar for future use, manufactures bile to digest fats, prevent constipation, kill harmul organisms and help make blood.

Notwithstanding that some bile must go down the intestine for purposes above mentioned, Nature considers bile so precious that when it has done its work of digesting foods in the first part of the small intestine, much of it is carried back immediately to the liver to help form coloring and haemoglobin for the blood.

A recent editorial in the Journal of The American Medical Association speaks of the work done on bile by Dr. W. R. Hawkins and associates at University of Rochester. These research workers found that when large amounts of bile were removed from the system, the haemoglobin or iron in the blood was reduced in amount, thus causing thin blood—anaemia.

The experiments showed that when the bile had been removed. the body was unable to absorb as much iron from the food eaten as when there was the normal or proper amount of bile in the system The experiments showed further that the giving of bile by mouth could not make up for the loss of bile and the anaemia or thin blood still persisted.

The conclusions were:

A constant manufacture of bile and its absorption from the intestine is necessary for a normal rate of iron manufacture in the blood.

The lack of enough bile in the circulation cannot be made up by taking bile by mouth.

What can be done to keep plenty of bile circulating in the system?

The lesson for all of us is that bile will be manufactured, squeezed out of the liver, and more completely used if exercise is taken. Exercise, particularly bending exercises, increases the manufacture, circulation, and absorption of bile in the system with the result that with the eating of plenty of protein foods—meat, eggs, fish, cereals—there should always be plenty of iron available to keep the blood rich in haemoglobin.

'Popeye' Forsakes Spinach for Cheese

"Canadian cheese is better than me spinach."

A cardboard Popeye, with a disarming twinkle in his one good eye, holding aloft in one gnarled hand a section of Central Ontario made cheddar cheese instead of the proverbial can of spinach. with the above lettering on his pasteboard mounting, has been one of the latest entrants in the Ontario-wide contest for school children who have entered the slogan competition announced by J. L. Irwin, Dominion dairy grader of the local office to stimulate interest in Ontario cheese.

The competition which is being held to stimulate interest also in the British Empire Cheese Exhibition being staged by the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association, November 28-29-30, has for its first prize $10 cash, and a second prize of $5. All children up to and including entrance classes in Ontario schools are eligible to compete. All entries may be addressed the office at 173 Front Street.

ILLEGAL LOTTERY SALE IS CHARGED

Thirteen Arrested As Month Old Probe Develops Quickly

London, Ont., Oct. 27—(CP)—Result of a widespread investigation into an allegedly illegal lottery conducted by the "National Transportation Mutual Association," 13 men arrested during the night will face charges in Magistrate's Court here.

The month-old probe developed quickly as men were apprehended in Stratford, Guelph, St. Thomas, Orangeville, Toronto and London, in addition to two men arrested here Tuesday. It is expected some of them will appear in court here today on charges of selling or handling lottery tickets.

Arrests made last night resulted from information gathered when Adoph Kamann of London and Louis Kamann of Tecumseh were arrested and charged in Magistrate's Court with selling lottery tickets.

Although London police declined to reveal names of those arrested, in Toronto police announced three men, Robert Bluett, John Blain and James E. Howe, had been taken into custody. They will be taken to London today.

Toronto police reported finding 75 books of tickets in Bluett's home, marked "Do not use in the mails." Sixteen books were seized at Howe's. They were said to have been shipped from North Bay where they were received from London.

Sheets purporting to bear news of awards for September were also seized. Police said awards totalling $5,000 went to 155 subscribers in Ontario and Quebec. The tickets are sold at a nominal fee and the pool divided monthly.

Workers in Two Car Part Plants Head Back to Work

Oshawa, Ont., Oct. 27.—(CP)—Workers in two automobile parts plants, here and in Windsor, Ont., were headed back to work today as a result of strike settlements announced here last night by Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario Department of Labor.

The 15-day strike of 70 employees of the Ontario Steel Products Company here ended when a meeting of the United Automobile Workers of America agreed to accept terms arrived at by company and union repesentatives, meeting with Fine.

About 25 employees of the Duplate Glass Company, Windsor, Ont., will also return to work after a 10-day strike following negotiations here between A. M. Phillips, Company President, and J. L. Cohen, counsel to the U.A.W.A., with Louis Fine.

In both cases previously existing conditions will be maintained, subject to minor adjustments to be arranged between representatives. In case of disagreement, Mr. Fine will be arbitrator.

The Oshawa Strike centred on claims by the Union that the company was not living up to its agreement with the men. In the other case, improved working conditions were sought.

TO RECEIVE TRAINING

New York, Oct. 27—(AP)—The Dionne Quintuplets shortly will receive training in the graces required in Royal presence.

The reason, said Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician, is the expected visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to the Quintuplets when their Majesties visit Canada next year.

"If this is so," Dr. Dafoe said, "it will be a case of the King and Queen calling upon their official wards, and they in return will 'receive' their Sovereigns."

Personals

The friends of Mrs. L. Bruce will be sorry to learn she is a patient in the Belleville General hospital.

Miss Mabel McDonnell is spending a ew days in Napanee, the guest of Miss Vivian McLaughlin.

Edward Gibson, a former resident of Belleville, who died in Rochester, N.Y., on Tuesday, was a cousin of Miss Geraldine Geary, Mr. William Britton and Mr. John Fahey of this city. He is survived by three sisters, the Misses Bessie, Helen and Jeanette Gibson, also three brothers, Messrs. George, Daniel and Fred Gibson. For some years he was associated with his brothers in the plumbing and heating business.

On Tuesday evening, between seven and seven-thirty on the city streets many oddly dressed and masked figures were seen wending their way to the home of Mrs. E. R. Logie, Queen Street, where the weekly meeting of the St. Thomas' Church C.G.I.T. took place, under lighted pumpkins and orange and black streamers in the form of a Hallowe'en party. Many games were enjoyed with the lucky ones winning prizes. A vote was taken on the costumes. Later an apple ducking contest was in progress during which many got quite wet. After a spooky game of "murder" a delightful and tasty lunch was served with everyone finding paper hats before partaking. A peanut race was then run off. The guests then departed after thanking Mrs. Logie for her kindness in opening her home, Mrs. Jack Watson, joint hostess for helping with the games, the refreshment, decoration and games committee for a lovely evening.

Weddings

SPARKS—SHANNON

A pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized at St. Michael's on Wednesday morning, October 26th., at nine-thirty o'clock by the Rev. Father Baker, when Annie Veronica, (Vera), second youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shannon of Latta, became the bride of Frances Elmer Sparks, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sparks, Belleville.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father looked charming in a navy blue sheer dress trimmed with white with navy accessories and carried a bouquet of Hollywood roses, baby's breath and maiden hair fern.

Miss Bernice Lattone of Belleville, was bridesmaid and wore a becoming frock of wine alpaca crepe with wine accessories and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and baby's breath.

Mr. Albert Ewens of Belleville, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lattone, Station Street. Mrs. James Shannon, mother of the bride received with the bride and groom and was gowned in wine crepe with matching accessories and wore a corsage of roses and, was assisted by Mrs. Frank Sparks, mother of the groom, who wore black crepe with a corsage of roses.

Later the bridal party motored to the New Queen's hotel where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served to the immediate relatives of the families. The rooms being decorated in pink and white for the occasion.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver; to the bridesmaid a gold compact and to the groomsman a cigarette lighter.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes the happy couple left for an extended wedding trip to Toronto and Hamilton returning via Rochester, Watertown and the new Ivy Lea International Bridge, the bride travelling in a rust crepe dress with navy blue coat and matching rust accessories.

Among the guests present were the bride's grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. James McWilliams of Shannonville.

Today's Menu

By BETSY NEWMAN

Tomato Juice Cheese Crackers
Cold Sliced Meat
Swedish Potato Cakes
Pepper Hash
Cold Cucumber Pickles
Jelly Jam Rolls
Apple and Peach Pie
Cheese Coffee

Pepper Hash—One dozen green peppers, one dozen red peppers, one dozen onions. Remove seeds from peppers, grind or chop fine and cover with boiling water. Chop onions. Drain peppers and put in kettle with onions, add one pound brown sugar, one pint vinegar, salt to taste—try one tablespoon and taste to see if it is enough. Boil one hour, seal in jars or jelly glasses.

Cold Cucumber Pickles—One gallon best cider vinegar, one cup dry mustard, one cup sugar, one cup salt. Mix thoroughly and pour over small cucumbers which have been thoroughly scrubbed. Store in open crock.

Swedish Potato Cakes—Two cups cold boiled potatoes, one egg, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half cup milk, one cup flour, salt and pepper. Mash potatoes or put through ricer or sieve. Beat all ingredients well and drop from spoon on well-greased griddle. Cook slowly, browning on both sides.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

I like to think as I sit in my office here in Callander, seeing the thousands of American cars stream out to the nursery where the Quintuplets live, that those five little girls have done as much as anything in recent years to cement the friendly relationship between Canada and the United States.

This feeling is even more strong of recent months when the papers are so full of trouble in Europe. I sometimes think that if some miracle like the Quints had happened in Czechoslovakia, bringing millions of good German citizens flocking in to see it, perhaps, then, Europe's crisis might have been lessened or even avoided.

After all, what is the difference between American and Canadian? We speak the same language; play the same games; have, to a great extent, the same likes and dislikes. The past few years nearly a million Americans have come here to Callander to see the Quintuplets. Many of them have stayed a week or more and have gone away convinced that the border between the two countries is really just an imaginary line.

I can never forget how the public, particularly the American public, helped us save the lives of the Dionne quintuplets.

Never will I forget what newspapers did for us then. I don't just mean that they printed stories about what we were doing. That they were bound to do for it was news. I mean the way they saw to it that we received the supplies that kept the children alive.

Take the Chicago American and the New York Journal-American for instance. Charlie Blake, a writer was sent up to cover the story. But he wasn't sent empty handed. They told him to bring with him an incubator such as hospitals use for premature babies.

Modern electric incubators were common enough. He could have brought any number of these. But there was no electric power in the little cabin where the five tots were struggling for life. Dr. Bundesen, President of Chicago's Board of Health, helped Charlie, and between them they found an old-fashioned, water-heated incubator. In model it was a true antique but it was the most welcome thing I had seen in many a long day. It was a great and important factor in keeping the children alive.

I only mention this as an example of how the public took us and our struggles to their heart. The fact that it was a warm heart helped as much as anything to keep the children alive. Certainly it put heart into us many times when everything seemed hopeless.

Death was never more than a few seconds away and facing death over the incubators that contained those five tiny forms was a strain. But, as I have said, just when we were discouraged, sure enough from some source or other would come just the encouragement we needed to keep us going.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

When to Use Titles

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When should a woman address a man as "sir" or another woman as "madam"? Should a girl student call a man-teacher "sir" and a woman teacher "madam"? Should a girl employed in an office or department store use "sir" or "madam" when addressing her employer or superiors?

2—When a waiter seats a woman and helps her with her wrap, is it proper for her to thank him?

3—When a waiter or domestic servant serves one or offers a dish from which one helps oneself, should he or she be thanked?

4—When a couple enter a restaurant where there is no head-waiter or a church where there is no usher, does the man or woman walk first?

S.

1—In general, and whenever possible, we address grown persons by name. "Madam" is never used, except in circumstances of service where this is appropriate. "Sir", however, has retained some of its honored dignity and note of respect, and it is not incorrect to use this when we wish to suggest these qualities. But in general we say "Mr. Smith".

The well-bred child, as you know, is taught either to add the "sir" to any monosyllabic reply. . . "Yes, sir", "No sir", ...or the gentleman's name, "Yes, Mr. Smith", "No, Mr. Smith". But both boys and girls do not use "Madam" (or "ma'am") when addressing a woman. Instead they use her name, "Yes, Mrs. Graham", "No, Miss Robinson".

The well-trained servant in answering a bell says "Did you ring, sir?", or, when a direction is given, "Very good sir,", or "Yes, sir". And, to the mistress of the house, "You rang for me, Mrs. Allen?' or "Yes, madam', or, in the third person, "Would madam like to have me do the packing now?"

It is correct for a boy student to use the "sir" . . . . "Yes, sir" . . . but a girl student says "Yes, Mr Forsyth", rather than "Yes, sir". When either a boy or a girl is addressing a woman teacher, the teacher's name is added to the reply, "Yes, Miss Ford," or "I shall be glad to, Miss Wells". "Madam" is not used by either a boy or a girl.

It is correct for the girl to use either the "sir', or, really better, add the name . . . "Yes, Mr. Forbes". When addressing a woman employer she would not use "madam" but the last name instead.

2—Yes, it is always proper to thank a person who does us a service. A well-bred person is generous in expressions of thanks.

3—Yes.

4—The rule is this: when there are places to be "found" in the church or restaurant, the man goes first.

Giving Cash as Wedding Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My nephew is to be married and I have planned to give him money as a wedding gift. Will I have to mail it before the wedding, or is it correct to give it to the bride the day of the wedding after the ceremony? Should I send money or a check?

Aunt

It is better to send a check rather than money. And since all wedding presents are sent to the bride-elect, the check should be made out in her name. With your check it is appropriate to send a note, explaining that, since you are such a close and such a devoted relative of John, you are taking the privilege of sending a check for "John's bride to buy some wished-for item for the new home".

PLAINFIELD W.M.S.

The October meeting of Plainfield W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Marshall. The president opened the meeting. Mrs. H. Harrison led in prayer.

Some business items were discussed including a quilting, a peace program and thank-offering service.

Owing to illness Mrs. H. McCreary the delegate was unable to be present and Mrs. C. Beatty read the report from the Sectional Rally which was very fully given. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. McCreary for her report.

Mrs. Palmer then took charge. Opened with a hymn. Solo by Mrs. Moore and readings by Mrs. Fred Prindle, Mrs. C. Hall, Mrs. Ralph Wilder and Mrs. H. Palmer.

Mrs. W. Hall gave a reading on Christian Stewardship. Collection was received amounting to $3.55. A donation from a member of $1. Attendance 21. Mrs. E. Denyes closed with a brief prayer. Lunch was served and a social half hour spent.

Use Leisure Time Wisely If Life Keeps You on Run

MARIE BURTON
Uses her leisure time to improve her beauty

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

IS LIFE keeping you on the gallop? Are you a career girl who is counting every minute, and on the job early and working until it is time to race home to dinner? Well, anyhow, you have Saturday afternoons and you can't put the hours to better use than fighting Old Man Time at his mean game of putting on birthday notations.

When you have your shampoo and finger wave, don't let the operator put you through in a hurry. Find a shop where you'll have a bit of a scalp mauling before your head is chucked over the shampoo bowl. Be fussy about the finger wave and insist on flat curls being wound tightly they'll last longer. Don't tolerate a heavy setting lotion that makes tresses feel starched or that leave a grey deposit. If your hair is excessively dry, have a little brilliantine sprayed on before the lotion is applied.

Find time for a brisk walk to or from work, or at the luncheon hour. Before your morning bath do a few exercises. If you are a desk worker, you'll want to avoid the spread amidship and it can't be done without muscle toning.

Red noses are no beauty bargains. How do they get that way? Heavy eaters have them so, sometimes, the wrong diet is the cause. A thin, sensitive skin is subject to the rosy glow.

Try ointment of zinc oxide, applying every night after the face-washing ritual. Have the skin surface as dry as a bone. If the redness appears in blotches, don't try home treatment. Seek the services of a medical man who specializes in diseases of the skin. The condition may be a forerunner of some stubborn infection.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Abusive Letter Her Only Thanks

Dear Miss Fairfax:

This is my sister's story about which I'm writing. She is confidential secretary to the president of an important firm and is a very fine girl, 26 years of age. The family could never discover what she saw in the man to whom she become engaged, but she was crazy about him.

He persuaded her to lend him the money to go through medical school. She gave him half her salary and went without the necessaries of life to do this. He lived in another city and when he came to see Sister, didn't impress the family as being in love with her.

Finally, he never wrote unless to demand money. Sister always sent him cash, as he said it wouldn't look well to get checks cashed. When I heard he had been paying devoted attention to a girl in his university town, I persuaded sister to ask for an accounting. He wrote her an abusive and violent letter, said she lacked generosity and was a female Shylock. Please bear in mind, Miss Fairfax, that these remittances were made on the understanding that the money would be returned.

I think his brutal letter opened my sister's eyes, but she has absolutely nothing to show for it, and of course she is completely disillusioned and would not marry this man under any circumstances.

Confidant

This young man, who was so careful to cover his tracks by declining to accept checks which would be a receipt for the money advanced, stopped being clever when he wrote the abusive letter.

And your sister would be most unjust to herself if she did not put the letter in a lawyer's hands and have him deal with this per-Advice to lovelorn

Parents Just Can't Give Her Up

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Our daughter, an only child, was married in the early spring and went to her huband's home in a city 250 miles away. Her husband is a young lawyer, well established in his profession in his home city but we want him to bring our girl back here and live with us.

We're desperately lonely. She was our joy, our life, all we had. And while we live in a much smaller place than our son-in-law, my husband is well thought of, and I believe his introduction would bring our daughter's husband all the legal work he could take care of.

The trouble is that, while my daughter would be glad to come back and live in her old home with her parents and among her schoolmates and friends, her husband is bitterly opposed to doing this. He says he's established in his profession and if our daughter felt this way about living with her parents she should have told him this before she was married.

Worried Mother

It seems to me, as long as you have asked for my opinion, that it would be the greatest mistake for the young couple to make their home under your roof. The young man is established in his profession in a larger city, and very naturally he wants to make his own home and take care of his wife. This arrangement would be decidedly hazardous in the beginning of marriage.

How to Write a "Bread-and-Butter" Letter

Dear Miss Fairfax:

While I'm not exactly engaged to a certain young man, still I felt I knew him well enough to visit his father and mother, who have a delightful home. I'm a sort of backwoodsy girl, and don't know much about the ways of people whose station in life is above mine.

When I was saying good-bye to my friend's mother, she said to me as she put her arm round my shoulder "Now you'll have to write me a 'bread-and-butter' letter. That'll start our correspondence, and I want to hear from you regularly."

I didn't know what to say, because I didn't know what a bread-and-butter letter was. Can you tell me about it, and how to write it?

Dumb Dora

You may kid yourself into that signature, my dear, but you must be a very charming young girl or you would not have made such an agreeable impression on your Prince Charming's mother.

A bread-and- butter letter is one written to the hostess after a visit has been paid. It would be difficult for another person to tell you what to say in your letter, without knowing what some of the high lights of the visit happened to be. Did you go motoring? Did she take you to the Country Club? Did they have their friends in to meet you? After referring to her hospitality, mention something particularly pleasant during the visit.

WOMEN WHO SUFFER

WOMEN who suffer in silence often pay a double penalty for wearing this gag of unselfishness or silly pride. Painful periods are nature's warning that something is wrong and needs immediate attention. Growing girls as well as women often are sufferers from female irregularities. They find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a dependable tonic. Read what Mrs. E. Etheridge, Gleichen, Alta., said: "In my opinion there is no better medicine for women and girls than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Change Your Furniture Around

By ELEANOR ROSS

HAVE YOU ever felt that you just had to have something new for your home, something lovely and charming and very fresh looking, something that would perk up the entire living room? Well, fall is the time for all good housewives to come to the aid of their homes, and here we are, ready to help you with some new ideas and notions.

Don't be heartbroken if friend husband doesn't suggest that you go out and splurge gloriously by purchasing a whole new houseful of furniture, for there are plenty of ways and means to create a completely new effect without actually changing a stick of furniture in the place. Why not benefit from the interesting game of playing house with your own house and, at the same time, show how clever you are? Believe me, you will have more satisfaction from your own efforts than you would from just going out and buying new things.

Change It Around

For instance, if you are a bit bored with the living room as it is, change it around so that it's no longer same old living room. You might re-cover some chairs or get a set of new slip covers. You might treat the windows to new drapes, or use the dining room drapes in the living room, if the windows permit the exchange. Switching rugs around, changing pictures, maybe a new mirror, or the re-arranging of knick-knacks are but a few of the surprises you can pull from your bag of tricks.

One of the most important of these tricks lies in changing the outlook of your lamps. It is really surprising how many women overlook the possibilities that can be achieved by paying a little attention to the articles that provide room illumination. Just like so many other pieces of furniture in your home, your lamp bases need shifting round, too. Take that lamp that's been in the study or spare room for years—nobody even notices it any more. Yet, it would look entirely different in Junior's room if it were provided with a suitable shade. Then there's the living room lamp, with the tear in the shade turned carefuly towards the wall. With a bright new shade on it, it would be good in the place of the lamp that is now doing duty in the guest room.

Make Own Shades

As we so often suggest in this department, try making your own lamp shades. Lamp shade making is a very simple and interesting handicraft that doesn't require any special knack in order to produce really outstanding results. With the help and guidance of the instructresses in the art needlework departments of the department stores, the task is still simpler. So arm yourself with a pencil and paper and take stock of the lamp shade situation.

First of all, you might decide which bases need new shades. Then examine each lamp and shade with an unbiased eye and decide whether they are properly co-ordinated. If they are not, make a sketch of the base needing a new wire frame, noting height and width at the narrowest and widest points. Now, armed with frames or sketches and a vague idea of what you want to do with your room, visit the needlework department of the nearest department store and just rummage through the lamp shade fabrics and trimmings. Look at the new and unusual fabrics. They'll give you ideas.

Why Not Get Butterfly an Umbrella?

Goodnight Stories

By MAX TRELL

POOR KNARF! He felt very disappointed. It was a rainy day and he had gone out into the meadow to do a good deed. He wanted to invite all the creatures who were out in the rain to come and stay under the back steps of the house, where it was nice and dry.

But none of them would come. The frog liked the rain, and the beetle thought rainy days were the best days of all.

"Nobody wants to come under the steps and keep dry," the shadow boy told himself in a sad voice. "I guess I'll go back home." From the garden wall he could see into the playroom where the two children—Frank and Dinah—were sitting by the window with their faces pressed against the glass. They were just watching the rain, wishing it would stop so they could get out and play.

Wings Are Wet

Knarf was just starting down the garden patch, which was dotted with rain-puddles, when all at once he heard a faint little voice saying: "Oh! . . . . . How wet my wings are! I'll never be able to fly again." Knarf looked under the hedge. And there, clinging to the underside of a leaf, was a butterfly. The rain was dripping on it through a hole in the leaf, and its beautiful yellow and black wings were damp and wrinkled.

"Just see how wet my wings are," it said to Knarf. "If only I could find a dry spot to stand in."

He Knows Place

"I know a place where it's dry. It's under the back steps of the house." Then Knarf picked up the butterfly and put it carefully under his coat and ran with it as fast as he could until he reached the place under the steps. Then he opened his coat and put it on a little dry stone.

Little by little her wings dried. Then all at once the rain stopped and the sun came out. The rain drops on the leaves shone like diamonds. "My wings are dry!" the butterfly cried joyfully. "Thank you! You've saved my life!" Then she waved goodby to Knarf and flew out into the sunshine. And when the children saw her they smiled to each other. "The storm is over," they said. "We just saw a butterfly! Now we can go out and play!"

Tasty Sauces Improve Foods

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

IT IS worthwhile taking a little trouble to prepare a good sauce which will make a simple dish attractive, an elaborate dish even richer. There are, of course, certain basic recipes, but, by varying the flavor, infinite variety can be obtained. Knowing that nearly every woman has a pet sauce recipe, we asked a group of our readers to give us theirs.

One reader dresses up puddings with a nice pineapple sauce. It is made by boiling a half cup of sugar and same amount of water together for five minutes. Add a small can of crushed pineapple, mix well together and cool. When quite cold, add one or two drops of peppermint essence. The same reader comes through with a delicious cocoanut sauce. This needs an ounce of butter, an ounce of flour, teaspoon of shredded cocoanut one-half pint of milk, one-half pint cold water and two tablespoons of sugar. Melt butter in a pan. Stir in the flour and beat until smooth. Add the water and milk, mixed, but adding only half at a time. Now stir in the cocoanut and sugar, then bring to a boil.

Fudge Sauce

Fudge sauce is always a favorite, and here is an excellent recipe for it. Ingredients include one-half cup each light corn syrup and sugar, one-quarter cup cocoa, two tablespoons cold water, one tablespoon each cornstarch and butter, sauce and vanilla. Cook corn syrup and sugar and cocoa for five minutes. Mix cold water and cornstarch. Add to the hot mixture. Cook five minutes. Add butter and flavoring. Serve hot or cold.

Butterscotch sauce is another old timer that is still performing wonders when it comes to dressing up a plain pudding. This recipe requires one and one-half cups brown sugar, two-thirds cup corn syrup, four tablespoons butter, three-eighths cup heavy cream and three-eighths cup milk. Put sugar, corn syrup and butter in saucepan, bring to boiling point and boil to 250 F. or until a soft ball may be formed when tried in cold water. Add the cream and milk.

Orange sauce is an elaborate sauce, one that is worth all that is put into it. Ingredients include grated rind of one-half orange, juice one-half lemon, one-half cup orange juice, one-third cup sugar, few grains salt, two egg yolks, two egg whites and one teaspoon vanilla. Mix grated rind, fruit juices, sugar, salt and egg yolks, beaten slightly. Put on flame and stir constantly until mixture thickens. Add gradually, while beating constantly, two egg whites, beaten until stiff.

Wife Who Cares Enough for Her Husband To Be Scared Of Another Gal Cares Too Much To Be Cagey in Handling Situation

opyright, 1938 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

It's a case of my husband accusing me of jealousy when it's not that at all, but rather hurt pride and vanity. A couple of our friends go out with us a great deal and the wife is a born vamp. I like her but can see plainly that men are the centre of her thoughts and conversation. She has lost many of her women friends on this account and wonders why. I know that as a rule these vampish women don't care for the men they aim at but merely like to test their charm. I am sure that this is the case with my friend. But what can I say to her that will show her I don't like her ways?

M. S.

ANSWER:

Sister, you've discovered that it's impossible for you to control your irritation with the woman who's cute and kittenish with your husband. You've discovered that he can't resist her wiles. Neither can she leave off the flirtatious ways. That's her weakness.

Now you can have words with her which will put you in a ridiculous light and you can continue to scold your husband for responding to her 'howdy' but when all is said and done you won't have accomplished anything. To break up that little game you will have to do what the other women have done whose husbands were falling for the flattery of her flirtatious ways: ease out of friendship with her and make the occasions of your getting together few and far between.

Every woman who reads your letter will sympathize with you and wish she could help you pull that other gal's hair. Every woman knows that no wife can endure the sight of another gal's making over her husband, and the explanation is also known: animal instinct warns a wife of the potential danger; observations (and maybe experience) have taught her that a man cannot resist playing with the fire of another gal's blandishments; feminine vanity revolts at the suggestion of a rival for her husband's ears, eyes, interest. God made her that way.

Of course the cagey course would be to hide her feelings and wean the husband away from the other gal's charms by employing her best wifely wiles. If papa is about to be tempted, that's her one chance to save him. If he's merely teasing he eases up when he fails to get a rise out of mama. But where, oh where is the wife that can be cagey when she's scared of another gal? If she cares enough to be scared, she cares too much to be cagey.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

NOTES IN THE DIARY OF A FASHION MODEL

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

I'M HOME again, and, believe me, the old town never looked so good before. The journey home was uneventful. Consuelo and I spent much of the time resting and reading. We both have a busy time ahead of us, and we both knew that the boat trip would be the only chance to rest.

Eileen went to Southampton with us, so did my doctor friend. We found nice cables from home in our stateroom. My folks cabled me, and so did Madame and Howard. Several of the firms with whom Madame does business sent us lovely gifts to the boat, so we had books galore, some lovely perfume and other things.

Consuelo spent some time studying her role, and I acted as prompter. A well-known pianist was on board, and he offered to act as her accompanist so that she could rehearse her songs. The music of the new show is entrancing, and I am sure it will make a huge hit. The scene of the play is laid in Hungary, and there are some grand gypsy songs and tunes.

Lost Four Pounds

I had made up my mind to diet while on board, and I did, too, despite the marvelous food. I did this by having breakfast and luncheon in the stateroom, which meant that I didn't have to look at the menu and test my will power. I had fruit for breakfast and a big salad for luncheon so that I could eat a good dinner. Not only did I not gain, but I lost four pounds coming back, which gives me a good idea of how I must have been eating while I was in Europe. Of course, I spent plenty of time in the gym and also in the baths, and that helped, too.

The new clothes demand a new line, and so there is need for new slips if one wants to look right in the latest frocks. Here is one of the lovely new slips with the high camisole top that is seen on evening gowns. The entire camisole is of ecru lace. An elastic ring through the bottom draws it up high under the bust. The lace terminates in a V back, the narrow shoulder straps criss-crossing in back to meet it. The fabric is egg-shell crepe.

Inflammation Protective Process

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THIS WEEK we have agreed to study the fundamental tissue changes that occur in the body in diseased states. These fundamental processes are inflammation, embolism, hemorrhage, degeneration, hypertrophy, atrophy, immunity and tumor formation.

The process which occurs most often is inflammation. You never scratch your finger, bang your shin against a chair, suffer the bite of a mosquito, burn your skin even so much as an area the size of the head of a pin, or have a pimple, a boil, a cut or a drop of carbolic on you, but what inflammation sets in. You probably never say "ouch" that the same thing doesn't occur.

Please also regard the process of inflammation with favor and gratitude. It is your best friend. All the aids, like poultices and hot water bottles and antiseptics and salves, are simply aids to make it more efficient. If you had no process of inflammation in your system, they would not do a bit of good. Without it you would be a kind of Humpty-Dumpty person and any injury would be your last.

Sum of Processes

Inflammation is generally defined as the sum of the processes occurring after injury or insult to the tissues. Insult includes invasion of bacteria. As any one can see on his own person, the symptoms of inflammation are pain, swelling, redness and heat.

The cause of these symptoms is easy to understand when we know the actions that the different tissue cells undergo in the process. As soon as any injury or infection occurs to any tissue, the blood vessels in the immediate neighborhood begin to enlarge. Why this should be no one knows. It is one of the most fascinating and mysterious adjustments of Nature. No pharmacologist with any of his drugs could make them do that. And, thank heaven, no pharmacologist with any of his drugs can stop them for very long.

It is one of the beneficent acts of Nature, because those dilated vessels bring cells to kill off the invaders and cells to mend the breach. The dilated vessels also cause the pain, but even this is a good thing, because it keeps the part still and allows the process to go on in peace.

Kill Off Bacteria

These friendly cells soon leave the dilated blood vessels and go out into the tissue spaces around the injury. There they kill off bacteria if any are present, or begin to throw out strands to bridge the gap. Some carry away debris. The thing is carried out with all the efficiency of an engineering construction.

I have described a very simple kind of inflammation, but the more complicated ones are simply elaborations of this.

Is there anything that can be done to aid the process? Yes, a few things. Rest of the part is the most important. If you had a bridge under construction, you wouldn't expect a few earthquakes in the neighborhood to help. Keeping a superficial wound covered and using antiseptics are helpful. Heat or cold, either one, are comforting and do not interfere with the process. Whether a hot water bag or an ice cap makes no difference. Their physiological action is the same.

H. ARMSTRONG IS READY FOR GARCIA

Defends His Welterweight Crown Wednesday In New York

(By Alan Randal Canadian Press Staff Writer).

New York, Oct. 27 (CP)—Despite the fact ticket sales have been none too brisk to date, it should be quite a meeting in Madison Square Garden next Wednesday night when Henry Armstrong defends his welterweight championship over the 15-round route against hard-hitting Ceferino Garcia.

Win, lose or draw—of course Henry can't see anything but a win—it should be Armstrong's hardest fight. And, as the record books show, the dusky hammerer has had quite a few battles in the past 15 months or so.

His handlers say he's at his peak after a long rest since winning the lightweight crown from Lou Ambers last August; that he's hitting well and is full of zest. But at the same time Garcia looks in great trim and has been regarded as possessing heavier artillery than hurricane Hank.

Garcia Heavy Puncher

For instance there is Garcia's "bolo" punch, allegedly developed while using a bolo knife in the sugar cane and bamboo fields of the Philippines. Even if Ceferino never saw a bolo knife, his punch is a nifty; a sort of high-flung right-handed chop which, with his left hook, belongs in the museum of fistic specialties.

Garcia had Barney Ross on the floor three times and though Cef didn't win, he is generally credited with having left the former welter ruler pretty much open at the seams and in none too good shape to withstand Armstrong's successful challenge last May.

Armstrong's 36 knockouts in 39 bouts have come in for considerable publicity but nobody can overlook the fact Garcia is quite a sleep-maker himself.

Fritzie Hanson, Galloping Ghost of Canadian Gridirons, In Stride Again!

And How He's Making up for His Early Season Absence!

By SCOTT YOUNG

Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Winnipeg, Oct. 26—Fritzie Hanson, the Golden Ghost of Canadian football for three seasons starting with 1935, lost to Winnipeg Blue Bombers for most of this season due to a spring training ankle injury, is back, and his touchdowns come just as easy as they ever did.

Hanson tore some tendons in his ankle in an exhibition game with North Dakota State All-Stars last May, and limped all summer. For some time it was feared the here-he-comes-there-he-goes man of Western football would never step on a gridiron again. Early this fall, Hanson himself was the only man in Western Canada who would state definitely that he'd be back. He was right.

During the late summer and fall, Hanson played tennis and walked miles every day, trying to get his ankle in shape. Late in September and into October he ran around Winnipeg's Osborne Stadium, miles every day. His ankle improved rapidly and Oct. 8 he surprised 5,000 Calgary fans by hopping from the Winnipeg bench into the game against Carl Cronin's Bronks.

Getting the Feel

Hanson was in that game only a few minutes, just long enough to re-familiarize himself with the feel of a competitive gridiron beneath his cleats. Two days later in Edmonton, he only saw about 15 minutes action in the game with the Elks, but he was in long enough to score a touchdown and kick the convert for another one.

Then came the real test. It was Saturday, Oct. 15, and Winnipeg injury-riddled, travelled to Regina for a game with Dean Griffing's rough and tough Roughriders. Art Stevenson, star triple threat quarterback, was on the injured list. So was Wayne Sheley. Eddie James, injured in the Edmonton game, was believed by doctors to be finished with football for good. Russ Rebholz was suffering two or three minor injuries, and was far from being in top shape.

So Coach Reg. Threlfall gambled. He gambled heavily on Fritzie Hanson, on the hope that Hanson's fleet football ability had fully returned. He started Fritzie and played him 60 minutes.

The result? One so unexpected that Winnipeg fans went wild with mingled joy and surprise at the result. Winnipeg won, 14-6, and Fritzie Hanson, the plague of the prairies, scored both touchdowns. Not only that, but he handled Winnipeg passing duties, and threw four completed passes. Regina fans had been so confident the Roughies would walk over the much-weakened Winnipegs that they stayed away from the game in droves. Only a bare 3,000 saw Hanson hold a rookie backfield together and drive them forward to victory.

Proof Positive

That game stamped the flashy halfback as the Hanson of old, but if any proof was needed the next game provided it. The same each other in Winnipeg and in front of the home town crowd, the winged-footed halfback raced to three touchdowns! More than enough to send the Roughriders tumbling to another defeat, this time by a 19-6 count.

So Hanson is away again, and teams left in playoff contention are frantically devising defences against the famed Hanson attack. The possibility that they will succeed in stopping Hanson is remote. They have been trying for years.

In 1935, Hanson's first year in Canadian football, he scored seven touchdowns, including a history-making 75 yard runback of a Hamilton Tiger kick in the Dominion final at Hamilton. That touchdown was the margin that finally sent the Tigers to defeat. In 1936 Hanson scored only four touchdowns, due to a mid-season injury that kept him out of western competition fully one-half of the schedule. Again in 1937, injuries kept Hanson on the sidelines a large part of the season, but he scored 16 points to rank third among scorers in the Western conference.

This year, in about two and a half games of Western conference 30 points. What will the total be by mid-December?

Conacher and Confidence May Be All Red Wings Need To Get Back into Running

Detroit Fell Apart And Never Was Able To Get Going

FEW ADDITIONS MADE

Adams Has Four Sound Defencemen And Four Sturdy Lines

(This is the third of a series on pre-season prospects of National Hockey League teams. Others will follow.)

Detroit, Oct. 27 (CP)—Confidence that slipped when Detroit Red Wings skidded to the depths of the National Hockey League last winter may be restored by the advent of Charlie Conacher from Toronto.

Conacher and confidence may be all the Wings need this season, for the nucleus of the great team that won the league championship and the Stanley Cup in 1935-36 and 1936-37 is still young. Hockey clubs can fall apart fast but they can be put together again too.

Next week's schedule opening marks a fresh start for Manager Jack Adams, who in the deluge of 1937-38 shifted his lineup, called in reserves from the Pittsburgh farm, grabbed Alex Motter from Boston, administered all sorts of lectures and still couldn't get the united response he had learned to expect.

There's still a chance that Conacher's health which forced him to retire the middle of last season, will not hold up. But Adams says the big fellow never has been in better health. Charlie avers he is ready to go.

Working With Great Pair

If Conacher is ready to go—and to maintain the pace he set to lead the league in scoring twice — the prospects of a comeback for him and for the club are bright. On a forward line with Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis, a couple of veteran playmakers, he should received gobs of those passes that he can drive like no other man in the game.

Jimmy Franks, who came up from Pittsburgh to replace the injured Normie Smith in goal in the Stanley Cup series of 1937, has been after Smith's job again. Harvey Teno, Windsor netminder who has been on several of Canada's best amateur units, has made a bold bid.

Defences Intact

The dreadnaught defence of the title campaigns is intact, but already the injury jinx that struck it repeatedly last season has returned. Doug Young injured in a leg in the first practice of the fall and has not returned to the ice. Eddie Bush, a youngster from Guelph, Ont., played in his place beside Bucko McDonald in an exhibition last night and may open the schedule there. Scotty Bowman and Ebbie Goodfellow form the other blueline combination.

Hec Kilrea, veteran forward who can play on either wing, seems destined for a utility role and Pete Bessone, who came from the Michigan-Ontario league to play defence last season, is expected to stick. Johnny Sherf, Michigan University product, is still trying to get a permanent boost from Pittsburgh and Gus Giesbrecht, another M.-O. League graduate, has impressed in training.

Playing a good game at outside wing for Balmy Beach in the O.R.F.U., is Glen Salter, above, who gained a measure of undying fame in the Thanksgiving Day game against Sarnia Imperials when he intercepted a pass and started running the wrong way! The Beacher's opposition should not count on this happening every game however....not if they want to win.

COLLEGIATE TEAM EASILY DEFEATS ALBERT BY 12-1

"Archie Clare" Paces Squad To Victory Which Evens Series

FUMBLES HURT ALBERT

Stewart Best Plunger, His Thrusts Gaining Many Yards

Paced by their fleetfooted backfielder, Ross "Archie" Clare, the Belleville Collegiate football squad gained sweet revenge and tied their 1938 rugby series with their ancient Albert College grid enemies when they rolled rough-shod over the Alberts to win an exhibition interscholastic football tussle by the score of 12 to 1 at the Fair Grounds yesterday.

The squads had played a tie game while Albert College had a victory over the B.C.I. & V.S. squad previous to yesterday's clash, result of which again sees the two schools deadlocked, with a victory each and one tie this season. A stiff west wind helped the punters in one direction, but proved a stumbling block on the return when Wooley and Clare, the respective booters, seldom employed the aerial route, unless behind the favorable wind

The lighter Collegians experienced little difficulty in penetrating the more huskier Albert line of scrimmage, while the latter was repeatedly guilty of costly fumbles, one of which resulted in a subsequent B.C.I. touchdown during the last minute of play.

Clare Shows Speed

"Arch" Clare, with his speed and pivot plays off ends, was a continued thorn in the side of the Alberts—Ed Muir and Jack Stewart being the other two more prolific ball carriers for the winners. Lougheed was the only player on the Beachled squad, who could successfully penetrate the Collegians' line, although Freeman and Downing got through for several surprise attacks. Smith, Carson, Zufelt and Bockus all made their presence known along the B.C.I. line however as they held superbly and several times tore holes for their team mates to carry through.

Appearing in conspicious and nondescript uniforms the Collegians were forced to the defensive in the opening period as Albert used the advantage of a tall wind and Wooley booted to the deadline for a single point. Early in the second period, however, the speedy Collegians swung into action to run around ends for substantial gains, as Stewart plunged through to Albert's three yard line and Clare hurtled over for a try, which the latter converted making the score 6-1 at the halfway mark.

Albert Fumbles Badly

Albert fumbled badly in the third stanza as Clare booted for a single point, but Coach [illegible] made fine gains. B.C.I. [illegible] and later an Albert fumble on their own two yard line was recovered by Bockus, who made a nice play to put the ball in position for Stewart to carry over for the final scoring, that made the count 12 to 1 for the B.C.I. Ed Muir sustained a leg inury and was removed from the game in this period.

The lineups:

Albert College: Snap, Partridge; insides, Allen, Downing; middles, Lougheed, Gerow; ends, Maidens, Freeman; quarter, Wooley; halves, Moulden, Blackburn, Harrison and Loveys; alternates, Crouch, Watson, Burrows and Byrons.

Belleville Collegiate Institute: Snap, Zufelt; insides, Smith, Stewart; middles, Cavanagh, Mulholland; ends, Burns, Pidgen; quarter, Dickens; halves, Clare, Muir, Lancaster and Carson; alternates Weller, Bockus, Goodwin, Haffey, Watson.

Referee: Art Cole. Umpire, Dave Tobe. Head linesman, Bert Noakes.

Referees Attacked In Ottawa Game

Ottawa, Oct. 27 (CP)—Several players and about 50 supporters of University of Ottawa juniors attacked referee-in-chief Hap Shouldice and umpire Gerry Boucher here last night following a junior interscholastic football league game with Ottawa Glebe collegiate. Glebe won 8-1.

Boucher, nephew of Frankie Boucher, coach of the New York Rovers hockey team, and Shouldice, also a Big Four official were punched about the head in the melee but neither was seriously injured. They reported the incident to league officials. The attack took place following the final whistle.

Sports Roundup

(By Sid Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 27 (AP)—Note to Tony Lazzeri, San Francisco: Is it the Brownies or an American Association sport you have your eyes on?....And can it be you're just a leetle bit sorry about turning down Ossie Vitt's offer of a job with the Indians last season.

That's quite a trick the Minnesota coaches use for finding out when a groggy player should come out of a ball game....They ask him, so the story goes "who's your coach?"...If he answers "Bernie Bierman" he stays in....If he says "Ben Bernie," they yank him pronto....Col. Eddie Brietz has taken an indefinite leave of absence from this corner.

Cornell's Carl Snavely is so perturbed about those reports he'll be coaching football on the Pacific Coast next year that he's issuing an official denial....But his contract at Ithaca is up next March; U.C.L.A. is rumored looking for a new boss—so-o-o-o....Minnesota is grooming a sprint candidate for the 1940 Olympics in Bob Johnson, snappy stepper from Sioux Falls, S.D.

Eddie Mead sounds serious about kicking over the traces with Mike Jacobs' promotion so he can give Henry Armstrong more action..He wants the little colored man with the big fists to go to the post about once a month so he can keep in tiptop shape....What's this about Marshall College putting a standing offer of 10 G's on the line if West Virginia is willing to tangle with 'em this football season or next?

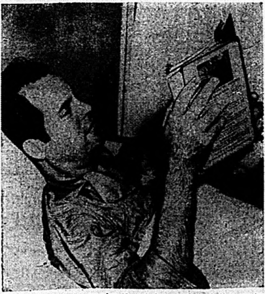
RALPH GULDAHL STUDIES GOLF



"Let's see now .... wonder if you'd use a No. 5 iron on a shot like that? M-m-m-m-m." Believe it or don't, the fellow reading the book on golf is Ralph Guldahl, who happens to be a pretty fair hand at the game himself. He has just held the U.S. open for the past two years and the western open for the past three—in addition to other assorted honors. But he still believes there's plenty to learn about the game. Ralph underwent a minor operation in a Miami hospital and was caught catching up on his reading while recuperating.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

When people started to talk about the hockey ability of Phil Stein, goalie with Toronto Maple Leafs, Syracuse farm club, Turk Broda sat up and looked to his job as the Leafs' regular net-minder.

Broda let 17 goals by Tuesday when the Whites defeated the Blues in an intra-club workout at Galt, Ont., but yesterday he scored a shutout when the Blues stopped the Whites 3-0. Still, though the critics are talking about Stein's great showing in every practice.

Sylvanus Apps, the Leaf's star centre, was guest of honor with his bride of a few months at a reception tendered last night by the Friendship Class of the Baptist Church in Apps' home town, Paris. And darned if Syl didn't show up with a front tooth missing and his lower lip cut by somebody's hockey stick.

Toronto's search for a right wingman may lead to Gus Marker of the defunct Montreal Maroons. Tommy Gorman, who managed the Maroons, says the Leafs have first call on Marker, who still has a lot of hockey left in him and is skating every day at Montreal. Allan Shields and Dave Trottier of the big red team are still on the market, too, Gorman said.

Nine of Montreal Canadiens' candidates were turned over to their International - American League farm at New Haven last night. They were Goalie Paul Gauthier; defencemen Des Smith, Armand Raymond and Wilf Hoch; and forwards Don Willson, Bill Summerhill, Gus Mancuso, George Brown and Marcel Tremblay, an acquisition from Flin Flon, Man. The Eagles will get another Canadien cast-off, likely either Louis Trudel or Armand Mondou.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Rumours are circulating up and down the local main stem relative to the possible future of hockey at the Hume Arena this coming winter. We have heard that Frank Lowrey, who made the plays for the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" when they won the intermediate "A" title in 1936-37 as their ace playmaker and centre-ice star is to return to local hockey wars and play for the Belleville Redmen. Frank has been seen locally on several occasions lately, having been taking in the various fall fairs around the district with a wheel of fortune concession. If such rumours can be confirmed and will result in a subsequent reality, Lowrey's appearance in a Redmen's uniform would prove a boom to the local hockey club's cause. Belleville fans will always remember Lowrey's pivot plays against the Point Edward sextette in the O.H.A. finals, when the shifty Lowrey stick-handling through the Tunnel Town team for the winning goal to give the "Flyers" their first major hockey title. Lowrey would prove a guiding influence to the youthful Redmen, besides being a proven play-maker. Of course we have no proof of these statements, but there are continued rumours. Where there's smoke there is usually some fire.

Ernie McNeeley who was transferred by the R.C.A.F. to Ottawa some months ago, is working out with the Ottawa Senators, of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, that includes even Springfield, Mass, and a Boston amateur squad sponsored by the Bruins this year. Favourable reports are emanating from the Capital City regarding McNeeley's right wing patrolling, we hear. We also understand that twin brother Eric McNeeley has applied for a transfer in the Air Force also, while Johnnie Lalonde may also requisition for a similar transfer if he fails to click with the Canadiens, where little mention of his efforts have been heard. Reports from the Airport hockey citadel, however, are not as black as it would appear. Three of the betclass pucksters from the crack Camp Borden team of last year are today reported to be in the Trenton R.C.A.F. camp and will lineup with the "Flyers" this winter. The Trenton "Flyers" will be headed by Flying Officer Carling-Kelly, who coached the "Airmen" for the past two seasons, when they take to the ice next month. In the meantime no news regarding the Kingston pre-season league has been heard from.

After taking a gander at the last two Belleville Collegiate-Albert College football games we are firmly convinced Belleville can turn out just as good gridiron stars today as ever before. The unfortunate part of the picture is the fact the kids at the B.C.I. do not get an opportunity to show their football wares where such football ability would reap the most benefit. We do not presume for one moment Jimmie Folwell would be at O.A.C. or Wally Hilton at Western today had their football ability at the B.C.I. not have been heralded and recognized in league competition and versus strong opposition in previous interscholastic campaigns.

In Ross "Arch" Clare the B.C.I. has one of the speediest broken field ball carriers we have seen out of the local seat of secondary school of knowledge in quite some time, but unless players the type of Clare obtain primary football education with their secondary schools, how can they be expected to jump into senior Intercollegiate, a la Hilton, Johnson and numerous others all over the province. It just can't be done, that's all.

Coach Laughlin had several promising looking kids out yesterday when the Collegiate trounced a heavier Albert College suqad 12 to 1, If these kids are learning the fundamentals of football through the newly instituted six-man game, then by all means continue the six-man football, but in order to prepare secondary school football players for the zenith of their football aspirations, Intercollegiate rugby, a senior C.O.S.S.A. squad should be sponsored and maintained at the B.C.I. Coach Laughlin has several fine line prospects, all kids well under 18 and this ability should not be wasted. Glancing over the roster of the Peterboro Orfuns we find the majority of the players are formerly Peterboro, Lindsay and Oshawa collegiate players from the old Lake Shore C.O.S.S.A. group. And there in lies the whole story.

A suggestion to Pete Beach's Albert College squad: "Hit that line as if you meant business. Faint heart ne'er won any football game." Incidentally the Alberts boast of a strong sturdy line, but there isn't enough "umph" in it. One can't spare the feelings of others in football and unless the Alberts get a little more punch in their line of scrimmage, they can't expect much success at the hands of Peterboro Collegiate.

During yesterday's international discourse and office arguments, relative to the world conditions, we came to bat with a statement which brought quick response from the office copy boy. "Say, that fellow Herr Hitler sure has something on the ball," we jokingly sugegsted. "He should have; he's the pitcher and the umpire both at the same time," snapped back the copy boy disgustingly.

Harvey Teno, who was in the goal for the Windsor-Walkerville Technical School when his club nosed out Les Shiels' Belleville Collegiate pucksters in the provincial interscholastic finals about four years ago, has been signed by the Detroit Red Wings. Teno will guard the twine for the Pittsburg Hornets, the Detroit minor league farm unit this year. Speaking of past B.C.I. puck-chasing teams brings back old memories. We hope to see the day when the collegiate will return to the C.O.S.S.A. sports wars for it was from the Collegiate Belleville was latterly given some fine football and hockey material in past years.

"Beat the Airport" has been the cry heard in and around the Panthers' scrimmage practices all week. Saturday's R.C.A.F. at Belleville gridiron spectacle is the final football game of the season to be played in Belleville and should see a goodly crowd of spectators on hand. There has always been a keen rivalry between these two squads and Saturday will be no exception to the general trend of things.

scrimmage yesterday Queen's University won over the Garrison by a five point margin....We hear "Bud" Johnson sustained a minor knee injury and may not start versus McGill Saturday....Baseball is with us yet, believe it or not, the O.B.A. playdowns are still in progress....Yesterday Tilbury evened their intermediate "B" series playdowns with Aylmer...."James, the overshoes and ear muffs, we're headed for the last ball game"....The experts are not going out on the limb for the Henry Armstrong-Garcia go.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

CHAPTER XVIII.

"To what end?" he was thinking ironically. Yes, the probabilities were that she would be included in the haul. No girl as intelligent as she, could be at this club nightly without knowing its true character.

Or was she the unsuspecting tool of Niklas? No, that was impossible.

But the next day he sent her a magnificent spray of white orchids, as though to make amends. His card with a line of apology in French, and his good wishes, lay in the big square box awaiting her arrival at the club.

After a moment's indecision, she had worn the orchids. They curled in waxed beauty under her ear.

But before the evening was over, she removed them. It was as though something sinister lurked beneath the flowers.

Now, as she sat in the club eating her dinner, it was not the donor of the orchids she was hating, but Brock Milbank.

The head waiter, Diaz, came round the corner of the palms.

"Madame la Marquise, the doorkeeper informs me there is a gentleman to see you. Here is his card. I informed him that you can not be disturbed, but he still waits."

Before even glancing at the card, Toni sensed that it was Brock.

"Send him in, Diaz," she said. "I'll see him."

Best to have it out now.

A somewhat shamefaced Brock appeared.

"It's awfuly decent of you receiving me, Toni. I know I must have made a nuisance of myself last night, though I don't remember the half of it, honest!"

"Sit down." Her voice was toneless.

"How did you happen to come here last night?" she demanded. She asked the question, even though she doubted he would tell the truth.

"I've been making the rounds for the past week, ever since I hit the city." He grinned sheepishly. "Had a bit of a smack in the eye out West, y'understand. Jessica leaving me so suddenly, and all."

Jessica? Dragging her name in was in atrocious taste. He meant that he had really cared for Jessica? But, of course, it was her money! That was what hurt.

"We quarreled. She's mighty hard to get along with, Toni. Not half as sweet as you were. Gosh, I've been a cad!"

Toni remained silent.

"Things were too stirred up in San Francisco, the gossip and all so I beat it to New York."

"Just as I did," Toni thought, ironically. "But our manner of meeting our humiliations was somewhat different, that's all. Brock gets drunk, while I wear out shoe leather, job hunting. Now when I've landed something good, he comes here to spoil it! But he shan't! I won't let him!"

Brock was talking again. As Toni watched his pallid face, his near-set eyes that avoided looking directly at her for more than a brief moment at a time, it came to her with complete wonderment how she had ever been so blind as to think she loved this weakling.

"I asked the clerk at my hotel about the liveliets spot in town. You wouldn't blame me, Toni, if you knew what a time I've passed through. Among others he told me of this club, and so last night I dropped in."

"How," she inquired icily, "did you get past the doorman? Only members are admitted."

Some of the old swagger came back to him as he grinned: "Oh I pushed in with the crowd. There was only one empty table. I headed for it."

She thought ironically: "My table!"

"I was clean bowled over when I spotted you in that fancy rig-out. You're sure smart, Toni. Don't you thnik we'd make a good team here in New York? Er, what?"

"I do not." Color flooded her face. Had his effrontery no limit?

"Gosh, you look lovely when you're mad. And I like your new blond hair. Your jaunt has improved you, Toni."

Jaunt? Her grief, humiliation, endless search for work, loneliness—a jaunt!

"A penny for your thoughts."

"I was thinking what an astonishing cad you are," Toni answered in a level voice.

"Oh, come, now. I know I acted in a beastly fashion, but I'd been nagged to death about our engagement, for you know my dad has been pretty badly pinched financially, though not as badly as your father. Still and all, I was fond of you, old girl."

"You certainly had a charming way of showing it."

"You don't think I wanted to marry Jessica, do you?"—in an injured tone. "And you can surely understand how I couldn't face you, Toni, to tell you I had to marry her because of our mutual changed finances. You and I couldn't live on sentiment, could we?"

"You mean you were too cowardly to face me? To tell me that money meant so much more to you than"—her lip curled—"what you call love?"

"Don't rub it in, old girl. I'm not as bad as you imagine. You'll understand when I tell you I considered it the correct thing to marry Jessica."

"What on earth do you mean?" This conversation was pure torture to Toni. Yet, even so, she wanted to know the reasons for his jilting her.

"You're not such a child that you don't understand! Come, come. You've been around."

She half rose from the table, trembling from head to foot. "You while you were engaged to be married to me—" dare to tell me that you—Jessica—

He said quickly, alarmed at her emootion: "Don't take it so hard, Toni. You know—"

"Get out!"

What would have happened betweeen them had not Niklas appeared at that moment, Toni was often to wonder.

It was necessary, of course, to present Brock to the nightclub owner. She thanked Heaven that he was sober, and would have the presence of mind to presume to no old friendship in the past.

"Your premises are charming," Brock said in his most agreeable manner to Niklas, who was bowing suavely. "I was just saying that I would like to join the club. May I tender my subscription?"

Niklas naturally complied. Toni was thankful that he was immediately called away.

But it was disturbing to know that Brock was going to be a member of the club.

What was his motive?—she wondered.

She was soon to know.

He leaned over the table toward her and said ingratiatingly: "I'm hoping, Toni, that you're going to let bygones be bygones, that we're going to be good friends. And why not? Aren't we more or less up against it—in the same boat? Believe it or not—and I admit I've been a card—I've a mighty soft spot in my heart for you, and I always shall. Don't you think we'd be a good team?"

A good team? Was this a renewed marriage offer?—she wondered. A sick feeling swept over her—part of the old pain, and a kind of nausea at his effrontery.

She stared at him silently.

"Ladies must live, you know," he said lightly, "and so most unlucky chaps like me who find themselves minus the needful! I was let out of the firm in San Francisco, you see. Jessica's done the fading-out act. My father's lost his money. Here I am. What are we going to do about it?"

"You mean," said Toni with dry lips, "that gentlemen must live—in the style they've been accustomed to?"

A bold look came into his brown flecked eyes.

"A bit crude, aren't you? You wouldnt' have said a thing like that three months ago, even though there was some truth to it. Toni, you've—well, hardened."

She said swiftly, vehemently:

"Thank Heaven for that!"

He bit his lip, for the moment nonplussed.

Then: "I'm afraid I'm responsible for the change. Am I, Toni? Egad! If I'd known how things would turn out—the mess they'd be—wild horses wouldn't have dragged me to the altar with that woman."

"Let's leave her name out of this, please."

"I can see where you don't like to hear of it, naturally. Toni, admit she made a play for me?"

His caddishness was so apparent that the old pain seemed to slip forever from her at that moment. It was as though she were talking with a stranger.

"What with my people's nagging, as I said before, and——"

She lifted a hand to silence him.

"Oh, I known I'm no good, but if you knew what I've gone through, you'd forgive me."

A pause.

He changed his tack.

"You're in a far better position than I am, Toni. You've bluffed them beautifully."

"How so?" But she knew what was coming.

"That clever tarradiddle about being a French aristocrat. The marquise line! The whole town's talking about the mysterious beauty. I dropped in at my club to lunch with a friend and he put me wise."

"And did you put him wise, too?"

The extraordinary answer came: "D'you think I'd cut off my nose to spite my face? That would be a fool stunt, old girl."

Before she could put two and two together, he continued: "There isn't any reason, is there, why I shouldnt' get a cut-in?"

"On what?"

Blackmail?—she wondered. His silence at a price?

CHAPTER XIX.

"Don't look so thunderstruck, Toni. I'm not putting any screws on you, if that's what you're thinking! I haven't fallen as low as that! But, as I've said, we men must live. You're doing very well for yourself. And you're meeting the right people. That's where I come in, if you don't mind. I know hardly anybody of importance in New York. Hardly any moneyed, influential people. In my present financial position, I need to get in with the right crowd."

She snapped: "So as to make another rich marriage?"

He took that humbly, rebukingly.

"Toni, you've grown so hard! I wouldn't know you for the same girl!"

"I'm not the same girl, Brock. Get that straight."

"And you're lovelier than ever. You're making money. You're successful. I can but admire you for your cleverness, even though you are cruel."

"You are worse than cruel, Brock. You'd like to have me on the end of a pin, like a broken butterfly. But I am out of your collection. I have flown. Everything is finished."

"But not friendship?" he ventured.

His gaze traveled over her clothes, her face, her blond hair. He said, very softly, but an unpleasant insinuation lay behind the words: "You wouldn't want us to be enemies, Toni? Co-operation. That's the idea."

And because he knew so much, she knew she had to yield to some kind of truce between them.

She hated it!

"What exactly do you wish me to do?" she inquired in an icy voice.

"To introduce me to people who can help me find a job. That Halstead-Flagg fellow has barrels of money and influence. I saw him mooning over you last night. You're smart! At the same time," he added boldly, "I should like to meet Miss Harriet Brewster. You know her, too."

Up and down Park Avenue—indeed, wherever the gay world assembled—Miss Harriet Brewster's parties were famed. For their dash. Their "difference." The excellence of the food and drink.

Nor were people indiscriminately bidden to these gatherings. In one way or another, almost all her guests were celebrated.

Society. The stage. The screen. The international set. Above all, visiting titles. The smart polo crowd.

Nobody boresome was invited, unless the name was so old, so socially important, that it was known the world over.

Invitations then, were eagerly besought by all the climbers to Miss Brewster's home. She circumvented them all.

For a certain ruthlessness lay in the character of the rich, orphaned girl who queened it on Park Avenue.

She had invited Toni Goddard—now Madame la Marquise—for two excellent reasons to her cocktail party. First, because she was, at the moment, the toast of the town in the night-club going set. And infinitely more important, because she had a shrewd suspicion that Guy Halstead-Flagg was interested in the new, mysterious beauty! She must keep her eye on that! For the thirty-two-year-old society girl had set her cap for the handsome bachelor from Kentucky.

"Time," thought Miss Brewster, "for marriage." Not that she would ever "settle down." Oh, no!

She was a restless product of the twentieth century. She was, utterly, of the smart, pleasure-seeking set.

But now it was time for marriage, she had decided.

Not that she hadn't had her chances. The society columns were constantly hinting of international alliances for her. But failing a titled nobleman, a handsome, wealthy man from home would do.

Guy Halstead-Flagg was the man with whom she could fall in love!

Things were going very nicely between them, except for his rather quaint interest in this girl of the night-club world.

Not that that meant anything, even if she was a French marquise, of which Miss Brewster was not at all assured. But determined to find out. She'd trace her. Already she had set wheels moving.

As she stood at the head of the stairs in her smart town house on Park Avenue, awaiting her guests, Miss Brewster made a handsome, though rather square-set figure in her dress of American Beauty velvet.

American Beauty roses, sent by Guy Halstead-Flagg, rose in glory from a great vase on the landing behind her. A vivid contrast to her inky hair, her olive skin, her champagne-colored eyes, they filled the air with rich fragrance.

Dear Guy! At times so sweet, so easy to get along with. And again quite heartless, thought she, and cruel, even!

But she understood those moods. Something in herself rose to them, enjoyed a combat. Something hard, unyielding, ruthless.

Together, they could achieve all.

It was disappointing that, though she had particularly asked Guy to come early, he had not yet put in an appearance, and it was five-thirty.

U. S. TO STIFFEN

The President's speech, on the 8he President's speech, on the other hand, extended the administration's good neighbor policy to the world—but warned the "other fellow" to be a good neighbor too.

One of the obligations, he said, is to make necessary political changes peacefully; another is respect for the sanctity of treaties; third is avoidance of policies arousing fear.

Many persons here saw in the President's speech another hint of heavy demand for armaments appropriations at the next session of congress. The United States, he made clear, is not disposed to limit armaments unless there are actual discussions among nations for a disarmament agreement.

In other words, the United States will continue its arms expansion program until the big powers actually have sat down at a disarmament conference table and are ready to sign on the dotted line.

Protect Western Hemisphere

The President, in his speech to the New York Herald Tribune forum on current problems, served notice on the world that the United States would protect the Western Hemisphere from foreign interference. It was his first pronouncement on American foreign policy since the Czechoslovakian crisis.

He said the governments of foreign nations "must not threaten the world with the disaster of war" and asserted no useful purpose is served to suggest "either to the American people or the peoples of other nations that the American government in its policies, its practices and its servants are actuated by motives of dishonor or corruption.

"To do so," he said, "is of necessity, an attack on the American system of constitutional representative government itself."

The President's address followed others by his predecessor, Herbert Hoover, who urged the United States to initiate resumption of world economic conferences as a vital step towards peace, and Viscount Halifax, the British Foreign Minister who urged the United States to join hands with Great Britain in establishing world peace.

No Peace Until

Without mentioning either the Munich conference which averted war over the partitioning of Czechoslovakia or measures taken against racial groups in certain European countries, the President arraigned conditions under which there can "be no peace."

"It is becoming increasingly clear," he said, "that peace by fear has no higher or more enduring quality than peace by the sword.

"There can be no peace if the reign of law is to be replaced by a recurrent sanctification of sheer force.

"There can be no peace if national policy adopts as a deliberate instrument the threat of war.

"There can be no peace if national policy adopts as a deliberate instrument the dispersion all over the world of millions of helpless and persecuted wanderers with no place to lay their head.

"There can be no peace if humble men and women are not free to think their own thoughts, to express their own feelings, to worship God.

"There can be no peace if economic resources that ought to be devoted to social and economic reconstruction are to be diverted to an intensified competition in armaments which will merely heighten the suspicions and fears and threaten the economic prosperity of each and every nation."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 27 (CP)—Industrial and base metal listings on Toronto Exchange today were up moderately at noon on comparatively light volume while the golds held unchanged from the last close and the western oils weakened slightly on news of a further cut in the allowable production.

Junior golds moved in volume at steady to strong prices and the medium-price issues showed only minor variations. McWatters, Naybob, St. Anthony and Lebel Oro were up on good volume.

Senior base metals, including Noranda, Smelters, Hudson Bay and Nickel posted minor gains and in the industrial section the steel, paper, bank and utilities displayed a firming tendency. Liquor stocks and the senior oils showed a narrow balance on the up side.

Homestead Oil and Gas featured the junior oil trading, firming 3 cents to 27 on good volume. Okalta registered a minor gain and Calgary-Edmonton dropped 7 cents.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, Oct. 27 (AP)—Steels, aircrafts and rails tilted upward in today's Stock Market while most other groups experienced difficulties in overcoming profit-taking handicaps.

Early gains running to a point or so were reduced around noon. There was a subsequent come-back and near the final hour quotations were not far from best levels of the day. Transfers were about 1,800,000 shares.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford
By Financial Service

The strength in International Paper in New York found reflection in local newsprint stocks yesterday. The matter of a price for 1938 contracts has not yet been set, but the opinion is general that it will remain at $50 a ton. In connection with the newsprint stocks, the most important factor surrounding the industry is the improvement in United States business, which is considerably more important to the companies than a betterment in Canadian conditions, as most of our newsprint is exported across the border. Several quarters in the Street favor the "newsprints" for a moderate hold.

Gypsum Lime was another strong feature yesterday, several good-sized blocks changing hands. Although results for this company for the past year will not be impressive, the outlook for next year is interesting, particularly if, as expected, a pick-up materializes in the building trades. Although entirely unofficial, a report was recently heard that a new process had been developed whereby sulphur and other products could be extracted from gypsum, which would lend speculative flavour to the security.

New York sources point out that International Nickel has not, as yet, fully participated in the market rise and the shares are highly regarded across the line.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, Oct. 27 —(CP) — Dressedweight bacon-hog prices advanced 25 cents at Stratford and Kitchener today while liveweights were up 10 cents at Brantford. Other markets were steady.

Liveweights: Brantford $7.35; Chatham $7; Hull $7.25; Peterborough $7.40.

Dressedweights: Barrie $10.10; Chatham $9.55; Hull $9.90; Kitchener $9.75; Stratford $9.75; London $9.50; Peterborough $9.85.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 27—(CP)—Calves, sheep and lambs sold at steady prices on Toronto Livestock Market today. Hogs were firm. Cattle trade was slow. Cattle holdover from Wednesday was 400 head.

Receipts reported by Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 60; calves 90; hogs 390; sheep and lambs 130.

No good killing cattle were offered. A few butcher cows brought $2.75 to $4. Bulls were $3.25 to $4. Stockers moved slowly at $3.75 to $4.75.

Choice veal calves were priced at $9.50 to $10 with some common downward to $4.75.

Off-truck bacon hogs went at $7.75.

Good ewe and wether lambs made $7.75 delivered by rail and $7.50 by truck. A few sheep ranged from $2 to $4.

BLOODHOUNDS LIKE CONVICT

Transfer of Prisoner To Be Arranged For Sake of Reunion

New York, Oct. 27—(CP)—The bloodhounds of Huntsville, Tex., penitentiary are going to have their old pal, Jim Berry, back among them again, as soon as his transfer from Sing Sing can be arranged, police revealed yesterday.

Jim, an old cow hand with a love for dogs and horses, was doing a stretch down at Huntsville in 1927 and the warden hearing of his leanings gave him charge of the kennels of 87 bloodhounds. The dogs got to love their new master. Then one day Jim got to craving the wide open spaces and went over the wall.

The warden set the hounds on Jim. They caught up with their old keeper after a few miles and joyful was the reunion. They romped with him all day, running ahead and barking back playfully until night came on and Jim, embarrassed by their happy howling, ordered them home. Home they went.

The warden, still peeved about the whole thing, insists Jim return to serve his unexpired term at Huntsville.

JAPANESE PAPERS WILL NOT PUBLISH UNITED STATES NOTE

TOKYO, Oct. 27. — (AP) — The United States note demanding that "unwarranted interference" with the American rights in China be stopped will not be published in Japan.

The note was delivered to the Japanese government by the United States Ambassador, Joseph Grew, October 6, but was published in Washington only today. Although the note specifically requested a prompt reply, the Japanese Foreign office said no definite date for answering it had been set.

STORE PARK BENCHES

Parks Board employees today were engaged in storing summer equipment of the parks for the cold season just ahead. Seats and benches on Victoria Park were being placed under cover, while buildings were also fastened tight against the coming snows.

Only Empty Seat Struck

Baltimore, Oct. 27—(AP)—There were 200 seats in the hall where Rep. Ambrose J. Kennedy was speaking and 199 were occupied. Suddenly, a 12-pound globe crashed down from a ceiling light. It landed in the lone vacant seat.

Cheese Exports Continue Heavy

Toronto, Oct. 27—For the second successive week exports of cheese from Canada have been heavier than a year ago, but shipments for the current season to date are still over 9,000,000 pounds behind 1937, it was shown in the weekly report issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Butter shipped abroad during the period May 1 to Oct. 22 totals 2,960,048 pounds and compare with 1,900,976 pounds in the like period of last year.

Number of boxes of cheese exported last week were reported at 26,041, up 4,695 over the 21,346 shipped in the corresponding week of 1937. Total shipments during the period May 1 to Oct. 22 aggregated 632,039 boxes as against 740,287 boxes in the same period of last year, a decrease of 108,248 boxes, or approximately 9.2 million pounds.

Prices were a shade easier for butter on the local produce market yesterday, while eggs were generally steady.

Continued lack of interest again depressed prices on the butter market. The floating supply remains light, however, and there is no accumulation of any account. Ontario solids were quoted at 22 1-4 to 22 1-2c for No. 1 grades and 21 1-2c to 21 3-4c for 38 score.

Some accumulation was reported in medium grades on the egg market and prices were reduced in the graded division. Other grades were clearing satisfactorily at steady levels. Graded shipments moved at 39c to 40c for grade A-large, 35c to 36c for medium, 28c to 29c for pullets, 26c to 27c for B's and 22c for C grades.

Montreal, Oct. 27 (CP)—Eggs, and butter remained quiet but steady.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 24c to 24 1-2c a pound and creamery solids for 23 1-2c to 24c.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were sold at 40c a dozen for A-large, 37c for A-medium, 30c for A-pullets, 26c to 27c for B-large, 20 1-2c to 21c for C.

MONTHLY DINNER ATTRACTS MANY

A number of city and rural residents were loud in their praise today of the inaugural monthly dinner given at the home of Mrs. Fred Denyes, Bayside, under the auspices of the Women's Association of Wesley United Church.

Delicious chicken and the trimmins' formed the nucleus of the splendid repast with many availing themselves of a fine dinner served in hospitable country style.

The dinners will be held on the last Thursday of every month and no doubt will attract a good many urban and rural residents to the fine homes in that district.

COULD NOT GIVE

Gives Strong Denial

In his statement today he denied he was withdrawing in favor of any one candidate for the party leadership, and added he was not retiring from public life "so long as my constituents in South York want me to represent them."

The convention decided upon at a meeting of the Ontario Conservative Association executive here October 6, will choose a leader to succeed Hon. Earl Rowe, who resigned the leadership early last summer. Rowe is member of parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe.

Besides Col. Drew, Cecil G. Frost, association president, is mentioned as a possible candidate for leadership.

Drew Still in Running He Says

Ottawa, Oct. 27.—(CP)— Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, candidate for the Ontario Conservative leadership, received the news of Leopold Macaulay's withdrawal from the race as he attended the Bren gun inquiry today.

"I am still definitely in the field for the leadership and this morning's development does not alter my plans," he said.

"I appreciate the reason given by Mr. Macaulay for his decision. I wish him every success in his profession and sincerely hope he will still be able to give the people the advantage of the experience he gained in the many responsible positions he has occupied.

"As House Leader for the Conservative Party he has given valuable service to the people of Ontario for which he deserves recognition from all parties in this province".

World Temperance Sunday to be Observed By Clergy and Laity

Churches and the clergy in Belleville and the rest of the world will unite on Sunday next to give due recognition to the World Temperance Sunday, a day which will be observed by the church and the laity throughout the civilized world as such. Sunday is the day set apart by the international committee of Christian workers to give the opportunity to Christian leaders and teachers to "challenge and expose" the institution of intemperance. Its onslaught will be dealt with in the international Sunday School lesson studies by 55,000 persons in Canada, current issue of the Temperance Advocate points out.

FIRE DESTROYS HUDSON FARMHOUSE

Believed to have ignited by sparks from a chimney, fire which burned out of control yesterday afternoon destroyed the two-storey farm home and part of the contents owned by John Hudson on the Deserosto Road west of Napanee. Through the efforts of neighbors, much of the downstairs furniture was saved, though flames had gained such headway, little could be done to protect the home. Due to the efforts of volunteer fire fighters who kept the roof dampened by buckets of water, the large frame barn was saved, with season's crop. Alarm was first given the family by passersby who noted the back portion of the home ablaze. Loss is estimated at $2,500 part of which will be covered by insurance

NAME SHOULD HAVE BEEN C. VANDERVOORT

In the account of a fatal motor accident, which occurred three miles north of Madoc on Tuesday and appeared in yesterday's issue of this newspaper, the man to receive fatal injuries was Carman Vandervoort, 33-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vandervoort, of the third concession of Sidney. Young Vandervoort sustained fatal injuries when a truck in which he was riding turned over into the ditch north of Madoc. Vandervoort was killed instantly. In the original account the name was given as Carman Vanderwater, which was in error. An inquest is being held at Madoc today.

HALIFAX URGES

"The only foundation for such a peace is understanding, and the first stage on that road is that nations who share the same ideals should be prepared to think together".

Lord Halifax' address came a few hours after the Cabinet was understood to have decided in a 2 1-2 hour meeting to place the Anglo-Italian Agreement in effect about the middle of November after parliament which approved the agreement last Spring, has an opportunity of discussing it again. Questions of British rearmament and Colonies were also understood to have been discussed at the session, authoritatively stated to have unanimously backed Prime Minister Chamberlain's determination to find peaceful methods of settling Europe's problems.

Other Views Expressed

Other British voices were heard. Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for Defence Co-ordination, told an audience at Stubbington, Hampshire, that the peace of Munich was a foundation, not an edifice. "It was the beginning of a policy, not a single act".

Peace must be worked for, he said. There was one ingredient in the recipe for peace "which you must not overlook."

"We must have the support of the country behind us because if we do not have that support our effort will be weak and vacillating until we give up office to those who are stronger and better supported than we were", he said.

Sir Thomas indicated establishment of National Service in Great Britain would soon be announced.

"The Prime Minister has given assurances that there will be no conscription under his term of office", said Sir Thomas. "There will be no compulsion for service, and I think that undertaking is more acceptable to people because they know that at the present time no compulsion is necessary to secure the public service that the country needs."

Ask Your DEALERS

The local merchant is the connecting link between producer and consumer.

His contact with the buying public is direct, intimate and personal. He knows his customers, their likes and dislikes; why they buy one product and refuse another; why one brand sells more rapidly than others.

It may be assumed, therefore, the retail merchant knows the best way to produce immediate sales in his locality, and it is significant that his basic advertising medium is the local daily newspaper.

In the first four months of this year the Canadian daily newspapers carried more than 40,000,000 lines of retail advertising—striking evidence of nationwide confidence in the value of the daily newspapers in Canada, as productive advertising media.

Dee's Diamond

By BETTY ABBOTT

The 12 members of the club were enjoying their regular Monday afternoon bridge. A non-stop conversation was on and the bidding was becoming a bit desultory.

At a table in the corner with the light of a bridge lamp shining full on her crown of blonde waves, sat Dee Mansfield, the prettiest and latest member of the club. She wore a severe gown of navy blue satin. In contrast to her simple attire, her left hand literally blazed with diamonds in the golden light.

Her partner obtained the bid.

"Since I'm dummy, I'll run upstairs and get my kerchief, if you don't mind, Mary."

"Go on and then you can't criticize my play," answered the amiable Mary.

No sooner had Dee's lithe figure made its way among the tables to the hall, than the substitute at her table leaned forward breathlessly. "Wha gorgeous rings!"

"Yes, aren't they marvelous! She's had three since she was married. Her husband gives her one every anniversory. That's four, counting her engagement ring," supplied Elinor, loquaciously.

"They must have money," suggested the sub.

"But my dear, they haven't. Have they, Mary?"

"I should say not. Dee's worn that dress all winter, and their apartment is so small we have to put a table in the hall when we meet there."

At this instant there was one of those lulls which fall upon a buzzing roomful and simultaneously Dee appeared through the dining room door, to avoid pushing past the tables again.

And embarrassed silence lay upon the group in the corner.

Things were very quiet from then on. Only the munching of a mint, or comment on the plays was audible.

However, even an afternoon bridge ends and Dee could scarcely wait to get home to give vent to her pent-up emotions.

"Those horrid girls — and they seemed so friendly!" Floods of tears streamed down angrily flushed cheeks, and the determined chin quivered pitifully.

"And the worst of it is, I can't tell them now. Oh! Why did I do such a foolish thing?"

Her tempestuous weeping having spent itself to the sniffle stage, Dee fled to the kitchenette, for men must eat, even if women must weep.

The front door clicked and she was in Roy's arms.

"What's for dinner? Have a good time? What's the matter? Tell your daddy."

"I wasn't going to tell you, but I must or I shall die," wailed Dee.

"What happened — get the booby prize?"

"Don't. It's terrible. We are disgraced."

"Yeh? Let's have it," soothed Roy.

"It's Aunt Millie's rings," she began unsteadily.

"No cause for tears, I'll say. Some legacy. Say, you haven't lost them?" he broke off.

"No; but I wish I had never seen them. You see, the first time I went to the club all the girls were telling about what their husbands bought them and what they were always giving them, and, of course, I know you can't give me anything because it costs us so much to live and all, but I know we love each other twice as much as those others do—and it made me unhappy to hear them go on. Then one of the girls admired my rings and asked me if you gave them to me, and it flashed into my mind that the girls would think you were crazy about me and gave me wonderful things if I said, 'Yes', so I told them you gave me one every anniversary."

"For crying out loud!" ejaculated her fond husband. "I didn't think you were in that deep."

"Oh Roy, here is the awful part. I left the room and they talked about me. They said I had a set chin and that you had to slave to get the rings and wear a shabby overcoat to satisfy my passion for diamonds."

A ringing laugh met this outburst.

"What shall we do?" quavered Dee.

"We might eat."

"Don't you despise me?"

"Not much; but," he added with mock severity, "I am afraid you will have to suffer the penalty of being misunderstood to pay for your folly. I'll tell you what I will do, though," he went on, with a mischievous glance at her downcast face, "I'll buy a new overcoat!"

JOE, I WANT TO TALK TO YOU ABOUT A NEW RUG FOR THE LIVING ROOM
WHAT'S THAT YOU SAY? I CAN'T HEAR
I SAY, I WANT TO TALK TO YOU —
WHY DON'T YOU TURN OFF THAT RADIO?
I SAW TWO RUGS DOWN TOWN TODAY — ONE I THOUGHT, WAS A LITTLE EXPENSIVE —
WHAT'S THAT YOU SAY?
I'D LIKE TO LISTEN TO THIS BRAHMS SYMPHONY, IF YOU DON'T MIND
I'LL LISTEN TO YOU OR BRAHMS, BUT NOT TO BOTH OF YOU. TURN IT OFF IF YOU WANT TO TALK

TAKE A LAST LOOK AT MY HAIR, MUMSY—I'M HAVING THE HAIRDRESSER PUT IT DOWN TODAY
GOOD LANDS, TILLIE—YOU CAN'T DO THAT. IT'S THE STYLE TO WEAR IT UP NOW
I DON'T KNOW WHAT'S GOT INTO TILLIE—SHE'S GOING TO HAVE HER HAIR DOWN TODAY—YOU MUST STOP HER, MAC
BUT, ELMER, I MUST SEE THE BOSS—I HAVE TO GET PERMISSION TO GO TO THE HAIRDRESSER'S
SORRY, TILLIE, BUT HE'S IN CONFERENCE AND MUST NOT BE DISTURBED

GENTLEMEN, THE QUESTION IS, WILL IT JEOPARDIZE OUR BUSINESS INTERESTS IF TILLIE PUTS HER HAIR DOWN AFTER SHE HAS BEEN WEARING IT UP?
IF TILLIE PUTS HER HAIR DOWN, WE'LL HAVE TO PUT OUR PRICES DOWN
IT DOESN'T SOUND LOGICAL, BUT YOU SEEM CONVINCING
I KINDA LIKE SEEIN' THE BACKS OF THE WOMEN'S EARS AGAIN
MAC LIKES TILLIE'S HAIR DOWN BUT HE WON'T ADMIT IT IS YOUR WIFE WEARIN' HER HAIR UP OR DOWN?
HOW SHOULD I KNOW? I NEVER SEE HER

OH GIRLS! YOU KNOW HOW I USED TO COMPLAIN ABOUT MY CONSTIPATION
FORGET IT, MAMIE, YOU'RE ONE OF THE "REGULARS" NOW
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

WHY NOT JOIN THE "REGULARS"?

If you are troubled with common constipation, here's some common-sense advice. This difficulty is usually due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. So instead of seeking temporary relief, why not get at the cause of the trouble? Instead of emergency medicines, eat a natural laxative food. Eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted cereal contains the "bulk" you need. And All-Bran is one of the richest of all common foods in Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1. Eat All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont. Sold by grocers. Served by restaurants.

FARMHAND SENT TO REFORMATORY

Said He Burned Barns Because He "Got a Kick Out of It"

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP)—John Jenkins, 16-year-old Bowmanville farmhand, who confessed he burned barns because he "got a kick out of it," was sentenced yesterday to two years less a day in reformatory and one year indeterminate for arson.

In a statement produced by the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department Jenkins admitted burning the barns of Norman Holder of Eldon township last July and Melville Wright, Menvers township, in August. Jenkins worked at the two farms and formerly was a ward of the Children's Aid Society.

Play Ball with Hitler

However, while all are signifying intentions of playing ball with Hitler they also are showing a disposition to have a hand in making the rules of the game. This mutual desire among small countries to safeguard their independence is understood to explain largely the visit of Poland's Foreign Minister, Joseph Beck, to Rumania and that of his chief assistant, Count Michael Lubiensky, to Budapest.

No Display of Antagonism

In speaking of such defensive measures as are involved in the establishment of a common Polish Hungarian frontier it should be emphasized that these are purely precautionary thus far and relate to the future. They do not mean a display of antagonism to Germany. Poland is friendly to Germany but is bent on playing safe.

Junction between Poland and Hungary would serve another prime purpose. It would greatly increase Poland's access to the Balkans for trade purposes and would give Hungary a direct northern trade route not passing through German-dominated territory.

As regards Budapest's claims against Prague the Hungarian army and a large section of the public have been dissatisfied because the government did not occupy the territory in question instead of negotiating.

This feeling in exceptionally strong form accounted for the amazing invasion of Czechoslovakia by an Hungarian army captain and some 200 men who engaged in combat with Czechs and lost 17 killed. The Hungarian government had to get these wildmen out of Czechoslovakia post haste and the captain is said to be awaiting a verdict on his escapade.

Despite strong sentiment for extreme action, Regent Admiral Horthy has insisted on handling claims by negotiations rather than by force.

SNYDER DRINKING STATES WITNESS

Inquest Adjourned After 13 Witnesses Had Been Examined

Toronto, Oct. 27—(CP)—Inquest into the death of Reginald Clements, killed soon after midnight Oct. 2 when knocked from his bicycle by an automobile driven by Dr. Warren Snyder, Coroner of Mimico and former University of Toronto football star, was adjourned last night until Friday after 13 witnesses had testified.

Edward J. McLaughlin told of pursuing Snyder's car after the accident until he pulled to a stop a block beyond the scene. He said Snyder had been drinking "but was not intoxicated." Snyder is charged with manslaughter.

JAPANESE TROOPS PUSHING AHEAD

Intend To Occupy 685 Miles of Railway To Link Canton, Hankow

Shanghai, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Japanese conquerors of Canton and Hankow pushed ahead today with three objectives.

One was to disperse Chinese troops retreating from Hankow, erstwhile provisional capital which fell Tuesday, before they could consolidate new positions.

Another was to occupy 685 miles of railway linking Canton, conquered last week, and Hankow.

The third called for the penetration of intervening areas in Kwangtung (Canton), Kiangsi, Hunan and Hupeh (Hankow) provinces.

General Chiang Kai-Shek's armies were taking up positions southwest of Hankow and claimed to have repulsed Japanese attacks designed to cut the railway north of Sienning.

Pushing from the north and the south, the Japanese concentrated efforts on slicing off 50 miles of rails at each end of the Canton-Hankow line. Occupation of the remaining 585 miles was scheduled to be followed by drives on Yochow, a strategic position controlling both the railroad and the Yangtse River 150 miles upriver from Hankow, and Changsh, 230 miles from Hankow.

Nearly 100 foreign missionaries are stationed along the railroad.

Dispatches announced the complete Japanese occupation of Hankow and its sister cities, Wuchang and Hanyang, last night without major Chinese resistance. Formal entry was scheduled for Nov. 3, birthday of the late Japanese Emperor Meiji, grandfather of Emperior Hirohito.

BLUENOSE HEADS FOR HOME PORT

Captain Walters Stated He Would Not Race Again In U. S.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct 27—(AP)—The big salt banker Bluenose, successful defender of her sailing championship of the North Atlantic headed for Canada today with every prospect it would carry the title into history.

Motors virtually have plucked clean the white wings of the fishing fleets and Captain Ben Pine, managing-owner of the Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud said he would not challenge again for the International Fishermen's trophy.

The skippers of the Thebaud, beaten in the final race yesterday, and Captain Angus Walters of the Canadian Cup Defender expressed their displeasure with the series. Walters said he would race in Canada but never again in the United States.

Captains Pine and Cecil Moulton, of the Thebaud, charged Captain Charles Lyons, head of the race committee kept the schooners in port when there was a good sailing breeze and sent them out when it wasn't blowing.

There was a light wind yesterday when Bluenose, her championship depending on the outcome of the race, took the lead shortly after the start and held it over the 35 1-2 mile triangular course.

FIVE KILLED

The motor-car was travelling north on a sideroad while the train, an extra freight of nine cars, was proceeding westward. The car wreckage was carried 400 yards on the pilot of the engine before the train could be brought to a stop. The train was in charge of conductor R. Wilson, St. Thomas, with engineer William Chaters, also of St. Thomas.

Attempted to Aid Injured

Gilbert Ranger, who suffered fractures of both legs and other injuries, was able to sit up and talk while awaiting arrival of an ambulance. Despite his injuries he attempted to aid rescuers extricate the bodies from the wreckage. Hospital authorities in Windsor said he had a chance of surviving.

The bodies were taken to the Stoney Point railway station, not far from the crossing, where Coroner Emerson empanelled an inquest jury. After adjournment of the inquest, the bodies were taken to an undertaking establishment in Tilbury, seven miles south of Stoney Point.

Heard of News in Church

Mrs. Josephine Masse, wife of Arthur Masse, heard of the accident while attending church service in Stoney Point. She and her husband attended mass Tuesday, when the Priest urged them to prepare for after-life. Mrs. Masse said that before he left on the fatal drive she chided her husband for failing to change from his work clothes.

"Without giving it a serious thought I told him he wouldn't look nice if he got in an accident," she sobbed.

The Stars Say

For Friday, October 28

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

CONFLICTING planetary influences are noted among the major operations, some favorable and others offering disagreeable and detrimental situations. The latter call for hesitation, discrimination and careful manoeuvring, especially in dealing with strangers or strange propositions, where funds are at stake. Shun strife and impulsive moves.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of conflicting experiences. Employers, superiors, close friends and social contacts should prove helpful and trustworthy, while strangers may be detrimental and cause loss of funds or provoke quarrels.

A child born on this day may be constructive, practical and enterprising, but at the same time, tempestuous, impulsive and reckless, possibly because of a highly stimulated state of mind or excitable nervous mechanism. Yet, it should be gracious, friendly and in demand socially.

AT THE McCARTHY

"INVISIBLE MENACE"

A combination of thrills and laughs and romance is the Warner Bros. mystery melodrama "The Invisible Menace" featuring Boris Karloff and now current on the McCarthy Theatre screen as the week end feature presentation.

"The Invisible Menace" is an ideal vehicle for Boris Karloff, yet don't expect it to be another "Frankenstein" screen thriller, as the plot leans heavily on comedy, with Marie Wilson and Eddie Craven cast opposite Karloff in romantic-comedy roles.

"The Invisible Menace" made from the successful Broadway stage play of the same name — deals with a murder in a government arsenal and brings to the screen for the first time Boris Karloff in an entirely different character than he has ever portrayed before. Regis Toomey, Cy Kendall and Frank Faylen in support of the main characters turn in excellent performances, that makes "The Invisible Menace" one of the most entertaining mystery-thrillers, combined with romance and comedy enjoyment, ever presented in Belleville.

Leon Errol Comedy

The McCarthy Theatre featurettes in addition to "The Invisible Menace" include Leon Errol in a fast and funny twenty minute comedy entitled "Berth Quakes", a musical treat featuring a Broadway stage favorite Frank Libuse with Jimmie Shea and Guy Raymond, Margo Brander, The Stanley Twins and Joan Merril, in tap dancing, singing, and other novelty numbers entitled "Waiting Around", a clever musical cartoon that is sure to please all entitled "The Horse on the Merry-Go-Round", a sport subject entitled "Fistic Fun", and another chapter of the thrilling serial featuring Gordon Elliott, "The Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok", will be presented at each performance daily.

AT THE BELLE

"HOLD THAT CO-ED"
"TIME OUT FOR MURDER"

If you can imagine John Barrymore as a budget-bouncing, co-ed-chasing governor who mixes good football with bad statecraft, you will begin to get a rough idea of the uproarious goings-on at the Belle Theatre, where "Hold That Co-ed" opened yesterday, with George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver, Joan Davis and Jack Haley all contributing generously to what is probably the funniest comedy of recent months.

Although they don't call it a musical, 20th Century-Fox has liberally punctuated the hilarious proceedings with several lively new songs. For those who take their football seriously there are some of the most exciting gridiron sequences ever screened. And for those who don't there is Joan Davis—who turns out to be the world's best goal-kicker and, as far as we know, the only female fullback in existence.

If "Hold That Co-ed" may be considered as an example of what the studios mean when they say "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment", there can be no argument whatever with the industry's current slogan. Played to the hilt by as fine a cast of entertainers as you could ask for it is a mischievously conceived film, half satire and half farce, that skips along light-heartedly from start to finish.

Director George Marshall has done a splendid job with the screen play by Karl Tunberg, Don Ettlinger and Jack Yellen. Darryl F. Zanuck was in charge of production and David Hempstead was associate producer.

Besides those mentioned, the cast includes George Barbier, Ruth Terry, Donald Meek and Johnny Downs—all excellent in supporting roles. Music and lyrics were provided by Hollywood's ace song writers, including Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, Lew Brown and Lew Pollack, Sidney Clare, Jule Styne and Nick Castle.

The film is one of the Movie Quiz $250,000.00 prize contest pictures.

"Time Out for Murder"

If you like your mysteries plausible as well as thrilling (and don't we all?) you really ought to take time out to see "Time Out For Murder", first 20th Century-Fox's new Roving Reporter series, announced as the added feature offering with Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen and Chick Chandler featured in a fine cast.

It's a swell picture from start to finish; cleverly concocted, racy in its action, hard-hitting with its suspense and final dramatic impact. And although you probably won't be able to solve the mystery all the important clues are included—not the least of which is in the title itself.

For it is Time, so to speak, that gives the murderer the idea for the perfect alibi—and its source in this cast is the New York telephone operator who answers when you call Meridian 7-1212 and who announces the time at quarter-minute intervals. Remember that because it wouldn't be fair to explain just how the guilty one uses the telephone company to establish his whereabouts far from the scene of the crime. Suffice it to say that the spectator will think it was about the most ingenious alibi they'd ever heard of, either in fiction or in actual crime.

Others in the cast of "Time Out For Murder" include Douglas Fowley as a rather likable gangster, Robert Kellard as the suspect, Jean Rogers as his pretty sweetheart and Jane Darwell as a telephone company supervisor.

The film is one of the Movie Quiz $250,000 contest pictures.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

The ocean in November! If you cross the Atlantic in November, the chances are that you will experience some stormy weather. The winter type of storm has set in, and sometimes one of the severest storms of the cold-weather season occurs during the month. The stormiest weather as a rule, is found north of the 45th parallel, and decreases in severity southward. Fogs have decreased in area and frequency over northern and western waters. In the southern waters of the Atlantic the weather is seldom stormy this month. In November the West Indian hurricanes have a frequency of only one in two years.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 28—(CP)—A disturbance of moderate intensity is centred of the Middle Atlantic Coast, another depression is moving eastward across Hudson Bay, while pressure is high over the Northwest Territories, the Western Provinces and Rocky Mountain States and a ridge of high pressure extends from the Gulf of St. Lawrence southwestward across Quebec and southern Ontario to the Mississippi Valley. The weather is now fair and comparatively cool in nearly all parts of the Dominion.

Lake Superior:—Fresh southwest to northwest winds; partly cloudy with light scattered showers; cool tonight. Saturday — Fresh northwesterly winds; fair and cool.

Western Provinces:—Fair today and Saturday; quite cool tonight.

Prime Minister King Sails for Havana

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 28—(CP Cable)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada sailed for Havana yesterday, aboard the liner Rotterdam after a four-day stay in Jamaica.

While his plans were not known officially, it was believed he would stay in Havana only one day and then leave for Miami, Fla., where he would entrain for New York on his way back to Canada.

He declined to comment on the Canada-West Indies trade treaty. "That is a matter for the Canadian Parliament,' he said.

He told reporters he had enjoyed "every minute" of his vacation trip to Jamaica and had formed the "most delightful" impressions of the island.

BRANTFORD CHOIR ESCAPES UNHURT FROM BLAZING BUS

Most of Members Asleep In Vehicle When Fire Discovered

DRIVER INJURED

Delaware Water Gap, Pa., Oct. 28—(AP)—Thirty-six members of the Canadian Choir, of Brantford, Ont., escaped unharmed early today when a (Greyhound) bus caught fire while climbing a steep grade near Cherry Creek.

Most of the singers were asleep but the driver, Mark Golonski, of New York, awakened them and assisted them in escaping. Then he, assisted by the volunteer fire department from a nearby garage, extinguished the fire, confining the damage to the front of the bus. Golonski suffered minor burns of the hands.

The choir, travelling in two buses, was en route to New York for a recital at Town Hall tonight.

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 28—(CP)—The Canadian Choir of Brantford, under founder-conductor Frederick Lord, left Brantford yesterday morning for New York.

They are scheduled to present a concert in New York's Town Hall tonight. They will be guests Sunday at a reception tendered by the Canadian Club of New York. They were to return here late Monday.

Fireman on Rope Saves Patient

Held by Legs

New York, Oct. 28—(AP)—A fireman swinging precariously at the end of a rope today held Marie Clamens, 35-year-old patient at the Regent Nursing Home by the legs for 20 minutes while other firemen cut through a fourth floor casement window to pull her to safety.

Somehow the woman had become wedged in the window, and was slowly slipping out of the narrow aperture when rescued.

OPPOSE BY FORCE ANY "DEAL" TO RESTORE COLONIES

English and Afrikaans of Southwest Africa Bitterly Opposed

LEAGUE HEARS PLEDGE

Resolution Demands Tanganyika Remain Under British Rule

Windhoek, Southwest Africa, Oct. 28—(CP—Reuters)—A wide section of the population of Southwest Africa, including both English and Afrikaans, is believed determined to resist any move that might be made to return the Territory to Germany.

Canvass of opinion amongst South Africans indicates this section is ready to oppose by force any such colonial "deal."

It is recalled that spokesmen of the Union of South Africa government have made repeated statements that the future of the territory is inalienably bound with the Union. Oswald Pirow, South African Defence Minister, has declared the Union would fight for Southwest Africa if necessary.

Southwest Africa is administered by the Union under a League of Nations mandate.

Economically Bound

Opponents of transfer of the territory to Germany feel that economically and strategically Southwest Africa is bound up with the Union of South Africa. It is realized that, unlike Czechoslovakia, South Africa would not have to face demands from Germany, backed up by force of arms on its boundaries.

But the Anti-German section is uneasy at the possibility of Germany applying pressure in the form of an economic boycott to persuade South Africa to give up the territory.

Inquiries indicate many South Africans would leave Southwest Africa if it actually was turned over to Germany. They believe Germany wants the territory merely as a stepping-stone towards Germanization of the whole Union.

40 P. C. Against Transfer

It is estimated that 40 per cent of the German-speaking South Africans are opposed to transfer of Southwest Africa to the Reich. Most of them are naturalized British subjects, either automatically or by application.

The remaining 60 per cent of the Germans are mostly unnaturalized and comprise chiefly recent immigrants and the younger generation. They include some rather lukewarm supporters of National Socialism who derive satisfaction from Germany's growth into a first-class power again.

Pledge Read at Meeting

Berlin, Oct. 28—(CP—Reuters)—A pledge to strive for return of Germany's colonies was read at a meeting of the Berlin branch of the Reich Colonial League while the entire audience remained standing.

The pledge, composed by General Franz von Epp, head of the Colonial League, follows:—

Correct Eating Equals Heredity In Ability to Resist Disease

Mineral Salts In Food Essential As Vitamins, Says Scientist

TESTS ARE REPORTED

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 28—(AP)—A Rockefeller Foundation scientist declared today that correct eating is as important as heredity in the ability of a person to resist disease.

Many persons have a natural resistance to infection acquired from their parents, said Dr. Chas. Church, director of the Foundation's Nutrition Fund. While others succumb readily to tuberculosis, colds, measles, diphtheria, pneumonia, and a host of other diseases.

It is becoming apparent, however, that the right diet for both mother and child is just as important as, if not more so, than, the factor of heredity in building up disease resistance, Dr. Church told the American Public Health Association.

In a series of experiments on mice infected with the bacteria Salmonella Enteritidis, which causes food poisoning, it was

Counter-Offensive Carried on by Chinese

Hong Kong, Oct. 28—(AP)—Chinese reported today a general counter-offensive was developing northeast of Canton, occupied by Japanese last week.

The Chinese were said to be attacking the invaders near Tsungfa and Lungmoon, respectively 40 and 80 miles to the northeast.

Severe fighting was reported at Leunghow, near Tsungfa, and the Chinese said the Japanese were retreating and facing defeat unless reinforcements arrived.

A high military official, believed to be General Ho Yingchin, was reported en route to Kwangtung Province to direct operations against the Japanese.

'SKY-BALL' MORENO DIES

Hollywood, Oct. 28 —(AP) — Friends of the film world tomorrow will join in funeral services for Thomas B. Moreno, 48, who was "Skyball" Moreno to motion picture old-timers and fans of the silent screen days.

Tomb of 'Unknown Warrior' May Be Altered Shortly

London, Oct. 28 (CP Cable)—The quiet tomb of the Empire's Unknown Warrior lying near the west door in the lofty beamed nave of Westminster Abbey may be altered by Armistice Day, 1939.

Already an experimental model carried out in wood has been put in place. The model, on the plain lines of the present granite slab, is an oblong box with a pillow headpiece, the suggestion being to use the present commemorative slab as a top piece monument with provision for a niche from which would burn a perpetual flame.

Canon F. L. Donaldson, Archdeacon of Westminster, said the decision on alterations was taken when it was found that thoughtless, unobservant abbey visitors trod on the slab, which is flush with the floor.

"The grave itself will not be moved," he said. "There will be simply an alteration of the tomb."

However, before a definite decision the Abbey authorities will exchange views with Sir Fabian Ware and other representatives of the Imperial War Graves Commission.

A Times writer suggested the simplest course would be erection of a guard railing, leaving the slab undisturbed.

The Star commented elaboration of the tomb should be carefully considered. "We doubt whether it would be received with general approval," the paper said. "Noble simplicity has been felt to be most fitting in all that has touched this humble reminder of the fate of British lives. If we make changes now why should not others be made later? Surely this is one place where restlessness should hold its hand."

HEPBURN REFUSES TO GRANT REQUEST

Police To Stay As Long As There Is Any Lawlessness

Toronto, Oct. 28 (CP)—Hon. N. O. Hipel, Ontario Minister of Labor, sought today to effect a peaceful settlement in the Humberstone Shoe Company strike at Port Colborne, where for the past week the labor dispute has been marked by sporadic outbreaks of fighting.

Premier Hepburn announced the Minister's intervention in the strike last night after refusing a request of a delegation of Humberstone strikers that Provincial Police be withdrawn from the area. He said that "as long as there is any lawlessness, they will stay."

Some 200 of the Company's 400 employees went on strike when the plant re-opened recently after a shutdown. The strikers seek union recognition. Several persons have been injured and a number of pickets have been arrested during melees before the factory this week.

"The proper authorities" will conduct an investigation into conditions in the strike area, Mr. Hepburn said in warning the strikers not to attempt further interference with those entering and leaving the factory. He denied charges voiced by the delegiaton that police "manhandled" the pickets.

HERBERT HOLLAND DIES SUDDENLY

Death of Well-Known Citizen Is Shock To His Friends

Many friends in this city of Herbert H. Holland, 191 Bleecker Ave., were shocked and grieved when it became known that he had died suddenly as the result of a heart seizure while engaged in his work this morning at the plant of Belleville-Sargent Company on Pinnacle Street. When he commenced work this morning he apparently was in his usual state of good health. For many years Herbert Holland was employed with the old Belleville Hardware Company and later with the new firm of the Belleville-Sargent Company. He was an expert and reliable workman and was foreman of the finishing department. By his fellow employees and the management he was well liked and respected.

Resident for 35 Years

The late Herbert Harry Holland was well known and highly popular with a large circle of friends in Belleville. He was an enthusiastic member of the Lawn Bowling Club and when curling was popular here he took a keen interest in the sport. For thirty-five years he made his home in Belleville and prior to that time he resided in Windsor, Ont. He was born in England and came to this country at an early age.

In religion Mr. Holland was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and fraternally he was a life member of Moira Lodge No. 11 A. F. and A. M.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Jane White; three daughters, Mrs. G. W. French, Montreal; Mrs. Chester Smith, Belleville, and Miss Jean Holland, Belleville; one son, Mr. Harry Holland of Windsor, Ont.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

TWO KILLED IN HEAD-ON CRASH

Tillsonburg Farmer And Detroit Doctor Victims of Accident

Tillsonburg, Ont., Oct. 28—(CP)—Provincial Police today probed a head-on automobile crash on No. 3 Highway in which a Tillsonburg district farmer and a Detroit doctor were killed and another farmer was injured seriously.

Dr. Jarritt Warnshuis of Detroit was dead when removed from the wreckage of his car after it collided last night with one in which Dwight Moody, Tillsonburg district farmer, and Harold Booth of Goshen were riding. Moody died a few minutes after midnight today and Booth is in serious condition in hospital here.

Provincial Constable James Allen said a preliminary investigation indicated Dr. Warnshuis' car pulled out from behind a truck a mile south of here and collided with the farmers' vehicle head-on.

Star of Silent Films Weds

New York, Oct. 28—(AP)—Doris Kenyon, star of the films in the days of silent motion pictures, was married today to Albert Lasker, Chicago business man.

The bride's former husband, the late Milton Sills, was a star of the silent movies and a onetime Professor of Philosophy at the University of Chicago.

DALADIER'S PARTY BELIEVED SPLIT

Premier Voices Attack Against Communists In Opening Speech

Marseille, Oct. 28—(AP)—Political observers said today the leadership of Premier Edouard Daladier's radical Socialist Party had split over his violent attack against Communists in his keynote speech before the Party's National Convention.

These observers said although the convention shouted and cheered for the Premier, a strong group of party leaders—including members of his Cabinet—were alarmed by the bitterness with which Daladier changed the direction of the party's political front.

Among this group were mentioned such cabinet ministers as Naval Minister Cesar Campinchi, Education Minister Jean Zay and Interior Minister Albert Sarraut, besides Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies.

One observer said Herriot, meeting Daladier outside the Convention Hall after the speech yesterday, demanded, in effect: "Have you any idea of what you have done?"

Two reasons were cited for the fears aroused by Daladier's attacks,—one was political.

While the 8,000 convention delegates undoubtedly gave Daladier a warm welcome, radical Socialist Deputies were faced with the political fact that 66 per cent of them owe their seats in the Chamber to hundreds of thousands of Communist and Socialist votes under the Peoples' front single-candidate agreement

There was little in the Premier's speech to cause rejoicing among Socialists because his attack was directed at Marxism as well as Communism. And while Daladier studiously avoided a reference to Socialists, they, too, are Marxist.

The second reason was diplomatic.

Italy And Germany To Receive Some Form of 'Compensation'

Tokyo, Oct. 28.—(AP) — The newspaper Asahi said today the Japanese Government considered "unsuitable" the United States' insistence on a continued open door to trade in China.

A new situation existed in the Far East because of Japanese advances in China, said the large Independent-Liberal newspaper. It predicted Japan would seek to induce the United States government to accept this thesis.

A 3,000-word protest against "unwarranted interference" with American rights in China, made public in Washington yesterday, was not published here but Asahi, nevertheless, dealt with the subject of the open door policy generally.

Inspired View

The statement by Asahi said in informed quarters to be an official view, set forth:—

"Japan will no doubt fully respect the powers' rights and interests in China. But in the light of the fact that the new situation resulting from the fall of the regime of general Chiang Kai-Shek of the China government and the birth of a new Chinese regime, had modified the nine-power pact system the American Government's insistence on an open door and equal opportunity in China on the basis of the former status in the Far East is unsuitable in the present situation."

The paper predicted the government would attempt to "induce the United States Government correctly to recognize the new Far Eastern situation and acquire a thorough understanding of Japan's real intentions."

An authoritative spokesman disclosed Japan had made a new protest to Paris against continued importation of munitions to the Chinese through French Indo-China.

Premier Prince Konoye invited Charles Arsene Henry, the French Ambassador to Tokyo, to discuss this further. A spokesman asserted France agreed to halt the flow of munitions by October but did not do so.

'Grant' to Italy, Germany?

(Possibly connected with the turn of events on the China open door, Reuters News Agency quoted Japanese newspapers that the government was considering a grant of "some sort of political compensation" to Germany and Italy. This would be in return for the consistent good will of those two nations, Japan's allies in the anti-Communist pact, during the China war.)

Authoritative sources, meanwhile, looking toward the prospects of peace, said only the resignation of

'Dark Secret' is Now Told, Bluenose Captain is Engaged

Mildred Butler, Fiancee, 'Gets Seasick Every Time I Step Off Land'

DATE IS NOT SET

DARK SECRET etc ,%.% owd

Halifax, Oct. 28—(CP)—Dark-eyed Mildred Butler, to whom fiery Captain Angus Walters said he is engaged, gets "sea-sick every time I step off land—that's the reason I have only made one trip on the Bluenose since I met Angus."

Captain Walters, skipper of the North Atlantic racing queen, Bluenose, announced he was engaged to Miss Butler while speaking at a Chamber of Commerce dinner given in his honor at Boston.

Miss Butler said they have been engaged for the past four months, but it was supposed to have been kept a "dark secret" until Captain Walters returned from the schooner races with the United States vessel, the Gertrude L. Thebaud. Miss Butler said they plan to marry this fall, but the day hasn't been set yet.

They will make their home in Lunenburg—home of the Bluenose—which she thinks is "a very pretty place."

Heavy Timbers and Ties Stacked for Four Miles On C. N. Railway Track

Powerful Headlight Reveals Obstructions In Time

POLES AT INTERVALS

Train Strikes Two or Three Ties Before Stopping Without Damage

Cochrane, Ont., Oct. 28—(CP)—Provincial, town and railway police pressed investigation today into a thorough attempt to wreck a westbound Canadian National Railway train east of here Wednesday. Police said heavy timbers and ties had been stacked for a distance of four miles along the tracks.

The train, out of Quebec City, first struck an obstruction four miles from the town limits. The crew found heavy poles stretched across the tracks and investigation disclosed several other piles of poles at various intervals along the tracks.

There were 50 passengers on the train, which operates daily between Quebec and Cochrane via Montreal.

Discovery Made in Time

Police Chief Walter Secord said a former employee of the railway was being questioned in connection with the attempted wreck, "but we have not been able to get anything out of him."

Engineer Donald McKinnon of Cochrane said he saw the obstruction in time to avoid a serious accident.

"The train apparently struck two or three ties before stopping. The train could push two or three ahead of it but it would not have been so fortunate if it had run into the series of obstructions on the track."

The train was due at Cochrane at 5.30 a.m. The obstructions were bared by the train's powerful headlight.

Inexperienced Man's Job Believed

McKinnon explained that in some spots there was only one tie on the track but in spots there was a whole row of them. One angle iron was stuck in the roadbed between the rails but while it stood two feet above the track it was only six inches into the gravel and the train probably could have pushed it over.

"The person who did it, didn't understand the 'art' of train wrecking," McKinnon said.

CZECHS TO CEDE LAND TO HUNGARY

Budapest, Oct.28—(AP)—Hungary and Czechoslovakia appeared today to be on the way to a peaceful settlement of their long-standing and often-threatening territorial dispute.

The Budapest government in a note last night accepted the Czechoslovak offer to cede to Hungary about 3,860 square miles of land with predominantly Hungarian population.

Mother Saves Two Sick Children As House Burns

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 28—(CP) — Two sick children it was learned today were rescued from a burning house near Kinmount by their mother, Mrs. E. Trembley, Wednesday night. The mother rushed into the smoke-filled upstairs to effect the rescue. She wrapped the two children in blankets and carried them to an adjoining farm. The house was destroyed.

FRANCE DENIES SHIPMENTS TO CHINA

Paris, Oct. 28—(AP)—A Japanese protest to France against alleged shipments of arms to China through French Indo-China today brought a denial that such a traffic existed.

The foreign office expressed "surprise" Japan again should protest. When Tokyo made similar accusations early this year, a spokesman said, it "was unable to substantiate them"

Brockville Druggist Robbed of $75

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 28.—(CP)—Entering the drug store of Hugh Cameron at King and Buell Streets at 11.15 o'clock last night, a man held up the clerk, George Walsh, as he was about to close the premises for the night and with a threat of "hand it over or I'll let you have it," he made off with $75 in cash, lying on the counter of the dispensary. He missed $80 Walsh had in his pocket.

The bandit was disturbed by a customer, Charles Riddell, who entered the shop while the hold-up was in progress. Unaware a robbery was taking place, Riddell examined magazines on a rack. When the bandit departed with additional threats, Walsh and Riddell pursued him but lost him in some back yards.

BRIDE 10 YRS. OLD RECORDS SHOW

Rosie Is 15, Says Mother Who Obtains Licence For Wedding

Prestonsburg, Ky., Oct. 28 (AP)—Rosie Columbus has changed her child plaything for a husband.

Dr. L. B. Sheppard, Johnson County Health Officer, said today records in his office showed the girl is 10 years old. She was married Monday to 34-year-old Fleming Tackett, a widowed coal miner.

The marriage licence was obtained at the Floyd County Courthouse here by the girl's mother, Mrs. Grace Columbus, who gave Rosie's age as 15. At Paintsville, Dr. Sheppard said health office records showed the girl was born in Johnson County Feb. 12, 1928.

The Rev. W. G. Ratliff, employed as a coal mine blacksmith, said he pronounced the marriage vows in a simple hill country ceremony in front of a newly-constructed log cabin near here where the couple will live. Coal-blackened miners attended the ceremony.

The two-room cabin is located on Abbott Creek three miles north of Prestonsburg in an isolated section of rugged western Kentucky mountain country.

GERMAN FIRM QUOTES LOW PRICES ON PARTS FOR WATCH REPAIRING

Unsettled times in the German Reich at the present time have not affected efforts of manufacturers of that country in attempting to capture some of the lost business on the North American Continent, it was revealed in a communication received from Germany this week by a local watch maker and jeweler.

In the communication prices on watch repair parts were quoted the local man far below that of competing firms. But even this attraction, it was reported, has not induced the Belleville jeweler to place an order.

RESIDENTS REQUESTED TO RAKE LEAVES IN PILES AT CURBSIDE

Tons of leaves shed from trees over lawns and boulevards on residential streets in the city during the past week or so will be hauled free by trucks of the department of public works this week, it was stated by the department Thursday morning. Residents are requested to rake their leaves into neat piles at the curb where they may be loaded on the trucks. Requests for truck loads of the leaves by those desiring them will be filled, providing the haul is not too far, it was stated. Of late glared in parting thrust, then strode lawn and flower bed fertilizer.

Next week, leaves raked to the curb by householders will be drawn away, but the expense will be charged to the property concerned.

DONATIONS OF WARM CLOTHING WANTED

With wintry appearing clouds covering the district yesterday morning first appeals were being made at the local relief office for warmer clothing. But stocks of clothes on hand are low and an appeal is made by the office for donations from residents. All donations will be called for upon receipt of a phone call. One family is also badly in need of a stove.

MAYOR INVITED TO SPEAK AT TORONTO

Invitation was received yesterday by Mayor Jamieson Bone to be guest speaker at the meeting of members of the Property Owners' Association of Toronto in Jarvis Collegiate auditorium, on the evening of November 7. Whether acceptance will be made will depend upon what arrangements are possible that evening, it was stated. On that same evening the Hon. Dr. J. L. Simpson, Ontario Minister of Education, will be guest of the Belleville Board of Education at a dinner here, and there will also be a regular meeting of city council.

HORN BLASTS FROM TRUCK ANNOYS PORTLY GENTLEMAN

The light truck which sounded its horn raucously and long, and gave every indication of darting at high speed across the sidewalk from the alley into the open street, was blocked effectively and irresistibly on Front Street.

Annoyed by the sudden scare given by the truck which gave no indication of pausing in its speed across the walk, the portly gentleman with umbrella, halted directly in its path. With upraised arm he stood, an immovable figure who glared at the squirming youthful driver in fullsome fashion which needed no words to convey feelings outraged and stern.

Satisfied that the truck had stopped, that no pedestrians wished to cross in front of the quivering truck, and that he himself had vindicated the law, the portly gentleman lowered arm and umbrella, glared in parting thrust, then strode on with the air of one who had accomplished his good deed for the day.

SEVERING OF CABLE BY FREIGHTER HOLDS UP BRIDGE TRAFFIC

While long lines of cars waited on the bay bridge road leading into Belleville and on the Picton highway on the Prince Edward County side for nearly three quarters of an hour late yesterday afternoon, bay bridge employees struggled to close the bridge gap again after it had been rendered inoperative earlier by the severing of the electric cable by the coal carrier, Henry C. Darryaw. The carrier, en route to Trenton with a consignment of coal, had taken the wrong channel through the bridge, severing the heavy cable. It was the second time this season that this mishap has occurred at the bridge, caused by different craft.

Though bridge tenders were able to partially close the gap with the aid of hand winches, it became necessary to borrow heavy pulleys and tackle from the government steamer Grenville and employ the use of two heavy trucks before the complete closing of the bridge was effected. In the meanwhile impatient motorists waited.

OPENING MEETING OF A.Y.P.A. HELD

The opening meeting of Christ Church A.Y.P.A. was held last evening in the Parish Hall with the President Lionel Blaker in the chair. A large number of new members attended and extensive plans were made for the coming season.

A Hallowe'en party is being arranged for next Wednesday at which new members and their friends will be the guests of last year's A.Y.P.A. group.

A nominating committee was appointed to draw up a slate of officers and elections are scheduled for Wednesday, November 9th.

TIMBER CUT WILL LIKELY BE SMALL

A survey made by the Hon. Peter Heenan, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, reveals that one of the smallest timber cuts in years will be experienced by the larger lumber companies of Northern Ontario. There will be a fair amount of lumber cut in this section during the winter, but it is believed the Hubbell and Haindock mills, two of the largest in the northern section of Hastings and Peterborough counties may curtail operations somewhat owing to the fact that a great portion of the lumber cut by them last year is still piled in the yards.

The report by Mr. Heenan states that a survey of the timber areas showed that pulp and paper companies and lumber mills had over-cut far beyond their needs last year, and as a result their yards are filled, in some cases with enough timber to last the entire winter. "The market dropped off the past year, both in pulpwood and lumber, and left them with a heavy surplus," the report notes.

OBITUARY

LATE STEWART MUIRHEAD

The funeral of Stewart Muirhead, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Muirhead, 407 Bleecker Avenue, took place Thursday afternoon, Oct. 27th, from the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church Street, and was largely attended. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. W. J. Walker, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Many students from the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School were present and eighteen of them—members of the basketball and rugby teams—acted as bearers of the floral tributes which were beautiful and many in number.

The bearers were Ted Clarke, Frank O'Neil, Jack Moon, Bob Seymour, Gordon Seymour and Jack Sheridan.

LITTLE BOY'S PLEA OF FLOWERS FOR ILL MOTHER IS GRANTED

He was a tousle-headed ragged little urchin, and there was a wistful look in his eyes as he stood in a Front Street Department store gazing at bunches of artificial flowers that stood in vases on a counter.

A store official gruffly ordered him to move on. But still he lingered. "I wonder how much the flowers are Mister?" he queried as the official again bore down on him. "Fifteen cents a bunch. Do you want some?"

A glint of a tear showed in the boy's eyes. "Yes, sir I did, but I only have a nickle. Mother is sick, and my sister and I thought we could get her some flowers" he said.

The official studied the boy's face for a moment. Then turning he plucked a bunch of the flowers from a vase and handed them to the youngster. A smile came over the grimy young face, and he hurried outside to the sidewalk.

"Gee, sis, I got 'em and the man wouldn't take a nickle for 'em" he grinned to a small girl who apparently was awaiting his arrival.

"Alright" she smiled, "let's hurry home." And as they disappeared in the early morning crowd on Front Street, a store official who had followed the boy to the entrance, turned away, a smile wreathing his hitherto stern countenance.

MAY. BONE REPLIES TO PRESIDENT OF TEACHERS' ASSOC.

States Figures On Teachers' Salaries Taken From Gov't Blue Book

OPINIONS UPHELD

Exception is taken by Mayor Jamieson Bone to the statement by J. W. Noseworthy, president of the Ontario Secondary Schoolteachers' Association of Toronto during an address in this city on Saturday last in which he declared that Mayor Bone's figures on secondary education were "all wrong."

"I was much interested in reading Mr. Noseworthy's remarks in the Daily Ontario Intelligencer," declared Mayor Bone this morning. "Apparently as president of the Secondary Schoolteachers' Association, and since the surrounding country is only district No. 10, it must be quite an organization, and he must be a good president, a much more important person than any such as I.

"I think in his remarks he must have meant me, but maybe it was a couple of other fellows he was so voluble about. As a propagandist, he can certainly show results, but then I have been after him only about ten months, and he has many years start on me. I think, however, that in one more year I could catch up on him—him and his whole organization no matter how many districts he controls. I am going to try, and the betting is even money."

No Comment Needed

"He says the figures I quote are all wrong, and that one school I mention is the highest paid of all the schools. No comment needed here. I quoted the Government blue book. He says some of those men and women have been teaching for 20 years! Some of the people here losing their property have been working harder than any high school teacher for 40 years, and do they get $1700. to $3500.? (Belleville High School salaries). Indeed they do not. And if they did they wouldn't gouge it out of the taxpayer. He asks me to quote the salaries of the highest paid doctors, lawyers, etc., but I am not interested and he can quote them himself.

"He tries to show that secondary education will make our sons and daughters healthy, wealthy and wise, but you and I know it is not doing it. We have 240,000 of them in Canada looking for jobs ever since 1929. An advertisement in a Toronto paper for one stenographer the other day drew 600 replies. To me this is disgusting and calls for drastic action and so far as I am able, I am going to advocate it. He says we must provide more "educational opportunities for the children" but I am sure boys and girls, now as always, will soon fit themselves if we provide the jobs. I am not going to stand for boys and girls going around full of Latin, Greek, Art and Agriculture wearing out shoe leather looking for jobs as plumbers, carpenters and clerks and other jobs that don't exist, while the rest of us go broke.

"I could go on at considerable length and tear all his arguments to shreds, but I have not the time. My only interest in being mayor is to stop this "watching and waiting" for something to turn up, and to force the hand of all governments to action, and I am certainly going to do it, unless the citizens of Belleville prefer some soft soaping politician who will promise everything and do nothing.

Banker's Views Concur with Mayor's

"One of our leading banks, which sends out a monthly business report, has this month seen fit to reprint at considerable cost, and send out a speech "A Layman's View of Education" by the President of a very large American industry. In this address he shows the futility of all this secondary education craze, and every thinking person should read it. Furthermore a Toronto paper has a long editorial Wednesday refuting Mr. Noseworthy's arguments, so this saves me a lot of trouble, except that I want to again point out for the hundredth time, that I have no complaint whatever about our primary schools or their teachers' salaries. My great complaint is that Secondary School costs in Canada and here only, are charged to the municipal taxpayer, which is outrageous.

"Now as regards railways, I have no complaint about men receiving good salaries, but it is quite apparent to everyone that our railway situation in Canada must be put on a stable basis. Some of the higher-up frills will have to be cut out, so that railways can compete with other forms of transportation. I am opposed to any man losing his job, and the "lower-downs" if one might use that expression, are certainly not overpaid, but their jobs as things are, are certainly insecure. The C. N. R. must be freed from political interference, and put on its feet. It seems awfully strange that no one will speak out on the subject, or do anything about it. A sensible system of municipal taxation would immediately start building. This would at once be reflected in increased railway earnings and employment, as well as in lowered relief costs and higher public spending power. Unprofitable sections could be closed up, and the men employed fixing the other sections. With the use of brains we could transport lumber, pulpwood, eastern and western coal and other materials to a market somewhere. In the meantime we have these materials as well as our own local vegetables rotting in the ground while people go hungry. I cannot feel otherwise than that we have a wonderful country, under exceedingly bad management, and from now on I am going to fight instead of talk, so that the boys and girls may have jobs as well as the bricklayers, carpenters and labourers, and so that our people may have a dollar to spend on something other than taxes. The powers that be have commenced to sit up and pay some attention. For Heaven's sake don't let them lie down again," concluded the mayor.

New Dairying Director Speaks at Kingston

Enroute to Toronto following his visit to the Kingston and Kemptville districts yesterday, Mr. C. E. Lackner, newly appointed Director of Dairying for the Province of Ontario, was expected to pay a visit to the Belleville district today to investigate local dairying conditions.

Last evening approximately twenty-five officials of the dairying industry in Belleville and district paid a visit to Kingston where Mr. Lackner was special speaker at a banquet held in the Oddfellows' Hall. Mr. Lackner cited the visit as one which would be merely introductory on his part during his brief address, and in his remarks referred to sectional problems of the dairying industry of the province. He reviewed the industry briefly and declared his intention of offering every assistance to the industry through his office.

Chairman of the evening was Professor A. L. Gibson of the Eastern Ontario Dairying School, while welcome to the visitors was expressed by President R. Willet of the Eastern Association. Presentation of prizes to cheese and buttermakers of eastern factories during the past season was made during the evening by Mr. J. L. Baker, chief creamery instructor of the Eastern School.

Included among those from Belleville present were: Howard Clarke, Roy Jose, Charles Edwards, J. L. Irwin, Dominion dairy grader, Chas. Kennedy of the local Dominion office Lyall Hunter, and others from the district.

Hatred and Grasping Greed Two Causes of World Unrest Masonic Grand Master States

Masons of Prince Edward District Greet Head of Lodge In City

300 IN ATTENDANCE

Presentation Made To Grand Master By District Members

"Hatred and grasping greed are two of the chief causes of world unrest today. Nations are being taught to hate other nations because they do not hold the same viewpoint, while they are trying to grasp those things that other nations possess. Why can't mankind practice those great fundamentals of Masonry, brotherly love and truth. If every Mason causes these great things to function within his own little circle, he will be doing his bit to overcome this hatred and greed," Most Wor. Bro. W. J. Dunlop, B.A., B. Pead., Toronto, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario, told three hundred Masons of the Prince Edward District A.F. & A.M. at a complimentary banquet tendered him in the Sunday School auditorium of Bridge Street United Church last night.

In simple oratory the distinguished speaker pointed out the position of Masonry in the life of the world. He interspersed his address with a keen humor, bringing out his many points with story and humorous anecdote.

"There has been much criticism of Masonry by people who do not understand, and who do not want to understand Masonry," he declared. "The Grand Lodges of the United Kingdom have drawn up a statement for publication of what Free Masonry stands for in the world today. It has been printed in the newspapers, and will in time be printed here." He urged all to read it carefully. "Embodied in this statement are the three points, first, that every Mason must believe in the Supreme Being; second, every Mason must be a loyal subject of the government of his country, and third, that in Masonic Lodges political and secular questions are never discussed."

Make Stand Clear

"It is necessary for every Mason to make his stand clear by devoting himself to the principles as never before," Mr. Dunlop said. "I have strong belief in every man planning his own acts. Masons should be men who work out their own destiny, plan their own work and decide their method of living. It is so easy to be sluggish and a slave of circumstance."

The main objective in life is not the accumulation of wealth or the acquisition of fame, the speaker declared. "In all ages the real objective is for a man to lead a happy life, to get as much happiness as he can out of life, and in my mind the only way to obtain this is for men to march along a path of their own carving and securing happiness in this way," he added.

A Niche to Fill

A general failing among men, M. Wor. Bro. Dunlop told his listeners is to 'monkey' around and not give a thought to what they are doing. "Every man has a niche to fill in this world, and the man who fills his niche is the man who accomplishes most, and leads a happy and cheerful life. If this is not done, he becomes a grumbler and a misfit. It is highly important that every man finds his own place in the world, does his own work and not envy the man who apparently has an easier time than he has."

"If we Masons do that, then we are accomplishing that great design of being happy and communicating that happiness to others. This will make us the type of men Masonry intended us to be and in so doing we are not doing something selfish but making a real contribution to life," the speaker declared.

Advises Young Masons

Urging the "young Masons" to attend their lodge meetings, Most Wor. Bro. Dunlop told them never to say "too busy" to attend. "I dropped the word 'busy' from my vocabulary years ago,' he said, "because it was getting to mean 'fussy'. People who are too busy are never too busy to tell you how busy they are," he said.

In spite of his busyness the young Mason should make it a point to attend his lodge meetings. He can make himself one of the most valued members of the lodge, and should get the most out of the friendship that is there awaiting him. He should train himself to ask questions, for this does not display ignorance but rather an anxiety to learn and to be observing, the speaker advised.

He advocated the reading of Masonic books to all members. "The history of Masonry has a distinctive charm, and its path down through the centuries holds an absorbing interest for all," he said.

Masonry Optimistic

"Masons looking on the condition of the world today may gather the opinion that it is a seriously troubled one. I cannot see how Masons can be pessimistic over world affairs for they believe in the Supreme Being, and as such cannot be anything else but an optimist, for the Great Architect of the Universe will bring order out of world chaos in His own good time."

World Unrest

"Two chief causes of world unrest today" declared the speaker, "are hatred and grasping greed. Men of nations are being taught to hate other nations because they do not hold the same viewpoint. In their greed, nations are trying to grasp those things that other nations possess. Why can't mankind practice those great fundamentals of Masonry, brotherly love and truth? If every Mason causes these great things to function within his own little circle, he will be doing his bit to overcome this hatred and greed that is trying to envelop the world."

Bulwarks of Civilization

The three great bulwarks of our western civilization are the home, the church and the school, the speaker pointed out. "In certain parts of Europe, civilization has disappeared. Homes have gone to supply cannon-fodder, the churches have been suppressed and the schools have been made the media for propaganda. Children are being taught what the dictators want them to believe," he said.

"Our homes here are places of cheerfulness and harmony, our schools are not the media for 'isms' propaganda, and our churches are not downtrodden. Masony asks no man what church he belongs to, but expects him to do his duty towards it, by attending regularly."

"There are so many things in life that Masonry can study, think of and reason." Most Wor. Bro. Dunlop concluded, "but the great thing is to use our intellectual equipment to the greatest advantage. We all prefer to be better Masons but it cannot be accomplished by being the slaves of circumstances instead of letting circumstances serve us. If we study Masonry and get all the benefits there are to be derived from it, then we are going to make this old world better for ourselves and for coming generations."

Other Speakers

Prior to the principal speaker's address Rt. Wor. Bro. Clem H. Ketcheson, D.D.G.M., chairman for the evening, in a brief address told the gathering of the fine reception he had received from the various lodges in the district and of the splendid state of affairs that existed in all.

The toast to the Grand Lodge was proposed by Wor. Bro. V. P. Carswell, Trenton, in which he paid tribute to the many officials of the lodge. Of P.G.M. Col. W. N. Ponton, he said, "a keen active mind functioned in a frail body, but by his very life he has set a standard to which we in Prince Edward District should always be striving."

"Our Grand Master carries the torch thrown to him by these fine men," he said, "However, his work and Masonic achievements rank him with the highest. His personal charm and geniality has endeared him to thousands of Masons in the jurisdiction. With men of qualities like these, Masonry cannot help but flourish."

Other addresses were given by Most Wor. Bro. W. S. Herrington, M.A., K.C.; Rt. Wor. Bro. R. D. Adams; Rt. Wor. Bro. E. G. Dixon and Rt. Wor. Bro. E. A. Carleton, M.D.

At the head table with the distinguished guests were seated: Wor. Bro. V. P. Carswell, Trenton; Rev. Dr. James Semple; D.D.G.M. Clem H. Ketcheson; Most Wor. Bro. W. S. Herrington, M.A., K.C.; Rt. Wor. Bro. R. D. Adams, J.P., D.D.G.M.; Rt. Wor. Bro. E. A. Carleton, M.D. P.D.D.G.M.; J. H. Rutter, Wellington; W. H. Morton, Lake; Roy B. Duffin, Stirling; T. E. Lark, Tweed; Arthur Sweet, Marmora; P.W. Geen, Belleville; A. S. Allison, Napanee; Roy O. Dulmage, Picton; L. A. Kells, Belleville; H. C. McElrath, Belleville.

Fine Musical Program

An outstanding feature of the banquet was the splendid musical program provided. Several selections by the Belleville Masonic Orchestra under the baton of Walter Asselstine received well-merited applause. The fine tenor of James Bankier was heard in "Long Live the King" while Arthur Brookers' fine bass voice was heard in "Bells of the Sea." The Belleville Male Quartette gave several selections with Leo Riggs at the piano.

"Sandy" Burrows led the assembly in community singing.

During the evening a letter was read by J. Owen Herity bringing greetings to his fellow Masons from Col. W. N. Ponton.

Prior to the close of the meeting, Rt. Wor. Bro. E. A. Carleton presented the guest of honor with a pair of handsome Hudson Bay blankets. Most Wor. Bro. Dunlop expressed appreciation in a brief response.

"Y" CAMPAIGN SHOWS PROGRESS

Fifty Percent. of Objective Yet To Be Realized, Says Officials

With their objective over fifty per cent realized the canvassers collecting in the current Y.M.C.A. financial campaign levelled their aims at the full amount of $5,000. today in a final drive towards the amount of the campaign, needed to meet the necessary operations of the Association.

Campaign canvassers report amicable reception at the hands of the citizens for this worthy cause of assisting the Y.M.C.A. Secretary J. E. Shortt today reported that with one-third of the subscription cards collected, the result produced fifty percent of the campaign objective, a higher return than from an equal number of cards last year.

In the first two days of the campaign 245 cards were reported upon, with 475 yet to be heard from. Canvassers have collected 245 subscriptions for a promised sum of $2,434.00 with cash subscriptions amounting to $1,042.00 having been received, General Chairman W. B. Deacon announced today.

Again 'special names' Captain H. W. Ackerman's team is leading the campaign race with 43 subscriptions, and having collected the largest quota of cash. Major J. B. Boyce's division was reported second and Major R.J.E. Graham's division in third place in the campaign race.

Citizens in general agree that the work and influence of the Y.M.C.A. is a guiding influence in any community.

The work of the "Y" in building Canadian youth has long since been recognized as one of the paramount organizations in the development of young men and boys to prepare them in the work of God and man and assist in the general uplifting of the community. The citizens are urged to help the Y.M.C.A. in its current financial campaign.

Collegiate News

On Tuesday afternoon, we had an interesting lecture on the continent of South America by Mr. Storey, a returned missionary from that country. The speaker made particular mention of the Andes Mountains, which he said are larger than the Rockies. These mountains are rich in mineral wealth, but owing to the lack of transportation and the scarcity of harbours, exportation has been somewhat hindered. The lowest railway built across them is seven thousand feet above sea-level. As the mountains are a hindrance to travelling the aeroplane is playing a great part in the life of the people. The radio assists members of political parties during their campaigns. The region around the Amazon River is so dense and matted with undergrowth that it is almost impenetrable. Oranges are so plentiful that in exchange for one apple you receive one hundred and eighty oranges. The price of one apple is twenty-five cents. Mr. Storey believes that sometime in the future, emigrants from Europe will go to South America rather than North America.

On Thursday afternoon Mr. Storey gave us the second part of his lecture which was illustrated with slides. These slides showed us the beautiful city of Buenos Aires, which has very modern buildings and underground tunnels. We were also interested in the struggle between a snake and an alligator. Snakes are a menace to South America. They twist themselves around their prey, smother them, and then devour them. Interesting pictures of sugar-cane fields, flocks of sheep, and hay-wagons were also shown. The students of the Belleville Collegiate Institute hope they may again have the pleasure of hearing Mr. Storey.—J. H.

At the Hallowe'en Tea Dance last Friday, our wandering reporter noticed some interesting features. In one corner of the appropriately-decorated Gym, 'Punch' was served (non-alcoholic) by several girls; the booth was liberally patronized.

A grand march, one of the first events was exceptionally riotous. The spotlight dance following was won by Noreen Duesbury and Evelyn Parks. A draw of the numbered slips presented on entering resulted in Grenville ("Fuzz") Thorne and Betty Duesbury being presented with handsome (?) Hallowe'en hats. Dances such as the Lambeth Walk, the Paul Jones, and the Big Apple were popular while those unable to dance them struggled gamely along at simple waltzes. Various Tag dances were held during which young gentlemen firmly grasped the desired partner and presented a lemon to the dancer thus robbed of his partner.—M.E.C.C.

On Wednesday the Red Cross Club, under the leadership of Miss Dwyer, held its first organization meeting of this year. About forty members were present, and we are looking forward to a good year of industrious work for the Red Cross.

The club is divided into four groups of ten members under Jean Cook, Phyllis Barlow, Catherine Hogle, and Loretta Stark. Most of the meeting was spent in the humble activity of winding wool and assignments of wool were made.

B. C. I. RUGBY

Monday: In the first game 10D won an easy victory over 10Jr. by a score of 22-0. In the second game "O.A.C." won over "R.M.C." by a close score of 11-7. S. Wonnacott starred for the winners.

Tuesday: In the first game 9D won a hard fought victory over 9E by a score of 13-10. In the second game 10E won over 10B, 16-0.

Wednesday: On Wednesday afternoon B.C.I. played Albert College at the Exhibition Grounds. For the first quarter B.C.I. faced a strong head wind which made kicking and passing difficult for them; but they held the score 1-0 in favour of Albert. For the remainder of the game B. C. I. ploughed through for gain after gain. Much credit should be given to the line and to "R. C." Clare and Jack Stewart for their bucking. On Stewart's 12-yard gain Clare went over the line for the first touch and converted himself making the score 6-1. In the third quarter Clare got the only point by a long kick over the deadline:

Again in the last quarter the B.C.I. proved themselves superior to the Albert and Stewart after many gains scored the last 5 points by a buck. The final score was 12-1 for the B.C.I.

Thursday: In the first game "McMaster" defeated "R.M.C." by a score of 12-5, putting them in first place in the Third Form League. In the second game 10F defeated 10G by a score of 10-6.

STATESMAN'S BURDENS

A despatch from London, England, told yesterday of Earl Baldwin's rare appearances in public since his retirement from the post of Prime Minister and of his attack on "the most tiring of functions", public dinners, at which public men have to appear, to dine, and to speak. It is not one public dinner but the endless continuance of them that he doubtless hits at, for he says that he will go to no more except one, that of the county association. He declares that when he first took public office, "I was a fine healthy man and I leave it a wreck".

Little do people who invite public men to such an endless round of gatherings at which they are expected to speak, and to put in so many appearances week after week, appear to realize how they are ill-treating good nature and actually wearing the life out of their public men. Leading figures in a country's life have enough anxieties to wear down and fray the edges of the nerves in the performance of regular duties without the worry of the after-dinner speech, cropping up evening after evening, and those other rounds of social duties imposed on them.

The public man deserves privacy, the right to his "Englishman's home" which is his castle. There he can restore his weary mind and body in the presence of his family and his circle of friends without added strain, but if he has incessantly to appear at public functions, he misses the relaxation which means health and happiness and efficiency.

Dinners in themselves are not to blame. Public men learn to be moderate in their eating but such gatherings are endless in their length, the speaker of the evening is under a strain all the time, before he speaks and during his speech and at the close he is worn out. A few such gatherings would be natural but they should not become a nightmare to the man who is trying to serve his country with the best he can give. Who can estimate the strain in sitting through gatherings of this kind and being called upon on top of a rather late meal to discuss political problems, tickle the fancy and wit of the gathering with flashes of wit and humor, and after his own speech to sit out speeches by others, and then finally to go home worn out? There may be the long drive home to another city, with the next day's work disturbed by the ordeal of the night before and future days' performance weakened. Loss of rest, too much absorption in one line of thought, and natural anxiety to say something worth while at last demand their price in weakened health.

Perhaps the sacrifice might be found to have some excuse if these utterances all re bounded to the progress and culture of the nation, but who believes such is the result?

The thing that Earl Baldwin complains about is of course only one factor which weighs upon the public man. He calls it the worst. Modern life has made it possible for so many invasions on the man's own time and rest, even his sleep is not sacred from some inquiry or intrusion which could easily wait for the morning or the day after. With modern means of locomotion a man may be able to appear at many functions in an evening.

All in all, the public man deserves more consideration, especially as he is subject to so much question on his ability, on his fairness and sometimes it may be even on his integrity. No public man deserves to be so harrassed. It is time he should cal la halt and stop the imposition.

Such a load of burdens often breaks down the public man who has to retire from the active life of serving his country long before his time because his people could not see that by overloading him with invitations to this and that, they are destroying his total effectiveness as a servant of the state. What people should see to is that their statesmen and leaders should not be so overtasked and so prevented from their highest performance.

SOILED DOLLAR BILLS

Vernon News speaks of filthy lucre or "dirty dollar bills" and suggests washing and cleaning of the bills by banks before they are sent out after having passed through the hands of the public into the banks.

Where are bills not kept? In empty boxes, never or rarely cleaned, in tills which have held thousands of them, in pockets which are not always clean, in all sorts of hands they are found. How the bills could escape contamination with germs is difficult to see. Yet few people think of washing their hands after handling bills.

Old bills are not so crisp. and are hence more easily take on "dirt" than the bill which has not been much creased, but some bills look like a map with an infinite number of folds or lines providing plenty of places for germs.

The Vernon News says:—"Filthy lucre, it is well named. It is rather astonishing when one thinks of it that, in this scientific age, money should be such filthy stuff. Stand at a bank window and watch the teller hand it out. Other paper in such a dirty, ragged condition, would be carted off to the garbage cans or would be burnt. No self-respecting house-wife would permit it to enter her home. No man could be persuaded to carry such filthy stuff in his pockets. Nor would he handle it unless wearing gloves. People will handle dirty money and then sit down to eat their meals. If they handled other paper in so dirty a condition they would not think to approach the table until they had washed and they would make such faces about it as indicated their repulsion. It should not be difficult, nor expensive, for the banks to wash and iron dirty bills as they come in, and to hand out nice, clean, fresh money. This is done in some of the more modern hotels."

THESE SHALL PERSIST

Whether I wake on earth,
  Or the earth wakes over me,
Bringing flower and fruit to birth
  After I cease to be,
Courage shall hold its worth,
  Truth shall make men free
Whether I sleep upon the earth
  Or the earth sleeps over me.

Whether I tread the grass

MODERN MIRACLES MADE BY ADVERTISING amaze some people, others take it in their stride as just another manifestation of this age of speed and wonders and expect it. Very little is said about it in the press for when the unusual becomes usual it ceases to be news, we are told. Great newspapers have been built up into million dollar properties from the insignificant looking little cent to five cents a word want adv. on what is called the Classified Page. This would not be possible if that page was not read as carefully, or more so, as any news page. Every day the Classified Page of this Great Family Newspaper is rendering a splendid service in finding owners for things found, finding finders of lost articles and such; besides finding suitable apartments or houses for renters; selling houses, in fact bringing buyers and sellers together for all manner of things. Here's an instance from the Lost and Found Department Thursday. One Lost adv. was cancelled, also one Found adv. one insertion having resulted favorably. In one a pup dog lost two weeks was advertised for in Wednesday's paper. The owner had his choice of three dogs that night, one of the three being his own lost one. Another advertised a valuable ring found—this was identified by the owner next day. Everybody happy. These are but samples of everyday happenings in the Classified Advertisement Department of this newspaper; similar ones could be published every day were it not that the hard-boiled newspaper writer considers them so usual as not to be news. Some day we hope to turn a novice loose and let him or her tell the world some of the many miracles for which the modern newspaper is responsible.

ONE GOOD THING RESULTED FROM THE RECENT WAR CRISIS: it woke up the sleepers. Great Britain and other great powers are mending their fences and arming themselves to ensure world peace. Canada, peacefully sleeping secure in the protection of the British navy and army, has had a nightmare and now demands a strengthening of what defenses we have, and a beginning of a real program of national defense. This has been demonstrated by the admission of the Dominion Minister of Defence that Canada's present defences are neglible and a great deal more will have to be undertaken to make any kind of a showing against the possibilities of modern warfare which could not help but affect this country. Ontario's Premier, Mitchell Hepburn, is the latest public man to demand real national defence, admitting that he has been converted from a previous negative opinion. Better not wait until the bombs begin dropping before beginning an adequate national defence.

The call for a stove and fuel to supply heat to a family all members of which are ill with influenza and no heat in the house, was speedily taken care of by a donation of $50.00 from a well known citizen. There were more workers yesterday and a large quantity of broth was delivered to sick persons.

A number of stockholders in Cobalt-Frontenac Mining Company visited their property at Flinton. They were greatly pleased with the progress being made and are optimistic for the future of the enterprise.

Belleville school children to the number of 947, have on deposit in the Penny Bank, conducted under the auspices of the Department of Education, the sum of $3,597.77. Queen Victoria School leads with 397 accounts and $1,611.87; Queen Mary pupils 283 accounts amounting to $1,023.73; Queen Alexandra pupils have on deposit $962.17 in 267 accounts. The total for Ontario is $387,754.56 in 72,013 accounts.

Further returns in the Dominion elections give Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal party a majority of 49. The majority in West Hastings for Mr. E. Guss Porter, Conservative, over Mr. Jesse Funnell, Liberal, as far as heard from is 1178; this will probably be increased. The majority for Mr. W. B. Northrup, Conservative in East Hastings, over Mr. J. K. McCargar, Liberal, was 1419.

Will the ward by law carry in the next municipal election? Most people seem to look at it this way; if it is hard to get ten aldermen to suit us, will it be any easier to get 21?

Last night the Mock Parliament met in the council chamber at Shire Hall with Speaker Scott in the chair. A large number of new members was introduced. The Hon. C. E. Lyons, Minister of Justice, introduced his bill to establish a divorce court in Canada. The bill went to committee and passed through the three readings, every member of the Government side of the House voting for it, but J. Earl Halliwell, the member for Prince Edward. The sponsor of the bill was ably supported by A. H. Wallbridge, the member for Lennox. Among the notices of bills were one by the Minister of Militia to bring the North-west Mounted Police under military regulations and one by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to regulate our wreckage laws. Hon. J. F. Wills, member for Carleton, has been chosen leader of the Opposition. A large number of spectators was present, many of whom were ladies.

Capt. Henderson, proprietor of the Henderson House on Front Street, is having the store formerly occupied by T. L. Bayeur, shoe merchant, which adjoins his hotel, altered and improved so as to be used as the hotel office.

Golf, A Ridiculous Game

Golf is a ridiculous game any way you look at it. It is time-consuming and expensive, and in all my life I never met anybody who had a good time at it. It is physically dangerous—almost every day I hear of somebody dropping dead for no better reason than he missed a putt or drove his ball into a pond. Even those sturdy enough to withstand the strain it puts upon the arteries often collapse morally. I have known gangsters — tough men, stern men, fellows ever ready to shoot or be shot at — so decline in fibre and be so softened by their passion for this absured game of golf that they would be late for a bank robbery just to sink the putt that won them a two-bit cumulative syndicate.

But what vexes me most about golf is the design of the links (that's what a golf course was called in the consulship of Plancus, and we played with a hard ball called a Vardon flyer, and the sticks had names instead of the coldly mechanical numbers they now bear. We played with implements that had poetry in their nomenclature, such as "bulger" and "baffy" and "cran" — an iron head with a wood face.

The design of golf courses is upside down. The great majority of courses are laid out for the great majority of players.

The playing of golf requires leisure and cash, and few people have much of either until they have passed the prime of life. A man is not really ripened for golf until he is tired of problems and his arches have flattened, his eyes have dimmed and his midriff has the contour of a friend of mine who complains that when he stands close enough to the ball to hit it he cannot see it; and when he stands far enough away to see it he cannot reach it.

The man whose checkbook supports the golf courses is short on stamina and puffs on the hills. Even with a brisk following wind he can't drive much over 175 yards, and if there is a trap (they were bunkers in my day) in the way, he has to go around. Nine holes is often all the golf he wants to play, and is usually all he ought to play. But what does he get for the annual assessment he so meekly pays?

He gets a course laid out to challenge the skill and fortitude of a superman. The longer it is, the more ponds that infest it, the more tanglefoots and traps it has and the more impenetrable its thickets and rough, the prouder he is told he should be.

The rigours of such a course may be softened a little for the gentler sex by shortening the trees and providing a route that avoids major hazards, but will the old codger who can't possibly, drive as far as the adolescent daughter use her tees? Certainly not! This would be beneath his dignity. So he uses the tees designed for Bobbie Jones and college sophomores, and spends most of the afternoon, when he is supposed to be having fun, miserably trying to extricate himself from trouble.

The funny part of it is that suckers like these are practically always economic royalists, firmly convinced that the country will go to pot if they aren't allowed to run it.

In my opinion they shouldn't be allowed to lay a finger on the country until they have shown some sense about their golf courses.—H. V. O'Brien in Chicago Daily News.

Influenza May Damage the Heart

Physicians watching the hearts of their patients during the flu epidemic of 1918 will not forget the changes that occurred in the rhythm and regularity in some fatal cases and in cases which recovered very slowly. So destructive was the infection that physicians were able to foretell the fatal cases 24 to 48 hours before death occurred. It is believed that some of these hearts were months and even years returning to normal and that some hearts were permanently damaged.

Dr. Walter Wile Hamburger, Chicago, in Medical Clinics of North America, speaking of the heart in an attack of influenza says:

"During the height of the infection or during convalescence, certain irregularities of the pulse appear. The patient may be totally unaware of these heart disturbances or may complain of palpitation, pain over the heart or under breast bone, thumps or twists in his chest, or breathlessness."

"In the days and weeks—rarely months and years—following the acute attack of influenza, profound exhaustion, easy fatigue, breathlessness, palpitation, and the vise-like pain in the chest, may continue as distressing complaints. Dizziness, collapse, and unexpected death occur more rarely."

Generally speaking, if an attack of influenza has caused real damage to the heart, months or years may be needed for recovery.

Dr. Hamburger's advice as to treatment is the same as that of all physicians in treating an acute infection.

"Prompt recognition of the nature of the acute infection and immediate rest in bed are important. If evidence or suspicion of heart involvement should arise—very rapid or very slow heart beat, irregularity breathlessness, chest pain or pressure, increase in heart size—complete bed rest should be prolonged until all such evidence or suspicion has disappeared."

The lesson then is that not only during an attack of influenza should rest in bed be the first thought in treatment but that for some days or even weeks afterwards bed rest may be necessary. And when there has been damage to the heart from a previous attack of influenza, another attack of influenza or other acute ailment, then immediate rest in bed is the most important part of the treatment.

The New 1939 McLaughlin-Buick

BEAUTY AND EASE OF OPERATION ARE EMPHASIZED

In a body entirely re-styled along striking yet distinguished lines, the 1939 McLaughlin-Buick offers many improvements, for the safety and convenience of the motorist. Illustrated above is the sedan of the 44 Series, with 120-inch wheelbase. Lower left shows the new gearshifting device on the steering column; while at the lower right is the illuminated direction indicator on the rear of the car, which warns following traffic when the driver is about to make a turn. An improved valve-in-head eight cylinder engine, scientific fuel conditioning, combination starting pedal and "fatigue-free" accelerator are other new features.

Women of Moose Chapter 435 Mark Mooseheart Day

The Moose Auditorium had a cheerful appearance yesterday afternoon with its decorations of red and purple when the ladies of Chapter 435, Women of the Moose were at home to their friends to commemorate Mooseheart Day in honor of Hon. James J. Davis, founder and builder of Mooseheart, Moosehaven and the "Women of the Moose". A large crowd attended and enjoyed the program, afternoon tea being served. A number enjoyed cards.

A home-cooking table was in progress and the good things to eat were readily disposed of. The proceeds were very gratifying and will be turned over to be used in all committee work. The program was under the direction of Mrs. Jessie Chapman and much credit is given her for the capable manner in which it was carried out.

The home-making committee was in charge of the home-cooking table. Those assisting were Mrs. White, Mrs. Connell, Mrs. McGinnis, Mrs. Cooke, Mrs. Allison, Mrs. Jeffries, Mrs. Mossman, Mrs. Yorke.

Facial Acrobatics Etch More Horrid Lines Than Years

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT IS surprising what funny little tricks a woman can do with her lips. She will purse and pucker them when expressing disdain. She bites them when she is nervous and leaves a nice ragged fringe. Or she may moisten them with her tongue, which isn't a pretty habit, either. It's all to dramatize her conversation and make people mad at her.

It is a mistake to lift and lower the eyebrows too often. It makes railroad tracks across the forehead from temple to temple. They're hard to erase after they are established. You must apply a heavy massage cream, run fingers crosswise of the line, use a rotary movement.

Facial acrobatics will put more lines in the human face than an accumulation of years. Watch some women talk. They talk all over, make faces that don't help them along the beauty route. Observe the squinters and what happens to them; sun rays round their pretty orbs. Bad girls!

There are head nodders and head shakers, there are silly girls who tilt their noses. There's the doleful dame who pulls down her lip ends and draws in her chin; she's in for an old-looking neck before she gets into the forties. Serves her right.

HARRIET HADDON

Makes it a habit to avoid facial acrobatics

Don't add ammonia to your shampoo medium if you are a home head washer. It has a devastating effect upon the hair shafts drying them and causing them to break at the touch of the comb. If the hair is extremely oily, a tiny pinch of borax can be used, but even that must be measured out carefully.

With a first class high-grade soap, melted and allowed to stand for several days before using, any head of hair can be made beautifully clean. Properly soaped and rinsed several times, every hair will be alive and silky, carrying a lovely gloss.

Before giving the shampoo, friction the scalp, brush tresses vigorously. That treatment removes surface dust.

FRIENDS HONOR RAWDON NATIVES

Party Takes Form of Dinner Party, Five Guests Aggregating 400 Years

Stirling (Special)—About twenty guests were present at the home of Mrs. George E. Green near Stirling on Wednesday afternoon at a party given in honour of Mrs. Green's mother, Mrs. Mary Vandervoort Sine, aged eighty-two, and the latter's cousin, Mr. Geo. Rombough of Bonarlaw, who on the day previous marked his eightieth birthday. A unique feature of the happy event was the presence of five friends of the honoured guests whose ages totalled over four hundred years. Each of the five guests were past their eightieth year and included Mrs. J. Wilson; Mrs. Robt. Girdwood; Mrs. E. Desent; Mr. Thos. Montgomery Sr; and Mr. Jos. Reid.

The party was in the form of a dinner party with the gaily decorated table featuring the two large birthday cakes. Mrs. Sine, who was the recipient of many lovely gifts and messages of good wishes from all parts of the continent was born in Rawdon Township on the property, which is now known as the Bateman farm. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wilson. The only other surviving member of her immediate family is a brother, Dr. George H. Wilson, of Union, Mich. At the conclusion of a happy day filled with activity, more joy was added to those already experienced, when the Ladies Friendship Community Circle of St. Paul's W.M.S. called in a group to add their good wishes and make a presentation to the honoured guest of a large gift box of choice fruits. Mrs. Sine is widely known throughout the district as one of the oldest residents of Rawdon Township.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Transporting Guests

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A few days ago I celebrated my twentieth birthday, but because practically all my friends were then away on holidays, I am leaving the "real" celebration until later on in the season.

At that time I am planning to entertain about eight couples at supper and dancing at one of the larger hotels. I have never entertained in this manner before and I would like a little advice.

1—I am having a coffee party first at my home. Do I have to look after the transportation of my guests, or does each one look after his or her own? Several of the boys have cars. Is it permissible to ask the to call for the girls, some of whom they do not know?

2—My party is to be formal. How should the invitations be given, and, if written, how should the be worded?

T.

1—Although you would not be expected to arrange for the transportation of your guests, it would be generous and thoughtful of you to provide for this, since it apparently is so convenient for you to do it. The young men will be delighted to "be of service" with their cars. And since you will notify the girls that they are to be called for, the fact that they don't know the boys doesn't make any difference. They can quickly make self-introductions.

2—Your plans for your party seem to me to be delightfully informal, and since you know these friends so intimately, I suggest that you write cordial little notes rather than send "formal" invitations. Something like this, perhaps:

Dear Mary,

You will make me very happy if you will come to my birthday party . . . postponed from my "real" birthday . . on Friday, the first of November. We will meet at my house first, at eight o'clock, and then go on to the Grand Hotel, for supper and dancing.

If you can come (and I must have your 'yes'!) I'll arrange to have one of the boys call for you in his car.

I'm looking forward to seeing you on the first, and I'm sending you my dearest love.

Affectionately, —

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My girl friend is to be married very soon and although she is not having a wedding, she has asked me to help serve at her trousseau tea. Is it not proper to have the groom's mother present, and should she be asked to assist or just act as hostess with the bride's mother?

2—Is it necessary for the bride and bridesmaid to wear hats at an informal house wedding?

3—I have also been asked to assist at an informal house wedding. Does the bride tell her assistants what she would like them to wear?

A.

1—It is customary and gracious for the bride-to-be and her mother to invite the groom-elect's mother to the trousseau tea. And it is more appropriate to ask her to be co-hostess, or to receive with the bride's mother, rathen than to ask her to "assist".

2—No, it is not necessary for the bride and her bridesmaid to wear hats at an informal house wedding. This is according to the bride's choice, depending usually on whether or not the costumes seem to call for hats to complete the ensemble.

3—Yes, the assistants would properly consult with the bride as to the general type of costumes that she would prefer.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

No Time to Meet People

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl's mother wanted to rush us into matrimony, without having any nest egg put by for a rainy day. So we had to break up. The girl is now married to someone her mother thought she should take. But the girl thinks otherwise.

All this has put me in a very depressed state for the past year. Now I have a good position, but my hours make it almost impossible for me to have social contacts. I work from four o'clock in the afternoon till midnight. Have every Tuesday off, which gives me little chance to belong to clubs.

I'd really like to meet some nice girls, Am 23 and not bad looking.

A. C.

Why not consult the "Y" and see if they have any suggestions to make as to social contacts. There are several good clubs and schools in the city from which you write me.

In No Position to Marry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been going with a girl for about a year. While I'm very fond of her, I feel on account of my extreme youth, that I am not in a position to marry. She seems to be very much in love with me, and on the point of suggesting an engagement. Her mother I know, would be very pleased to have us marry. She is helping her daughter toward this end.

I've tried several times to break up with this young lady, but to no avail. She is so persistent.

Desperate Romeo

When a young man can't afford to marry, he should summon sufficient courage to tell the girl it is impossible. Much better to do this now than when he is swamped with bills and sees no way of paying them. Come out with the truth that you can't afford to marry, and it would be unfair to her to become engaged.

A Girl's Views on Fifty-Fifty Dates

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please let me have a word on the subject of these 50-50 parties for girls and men. I've pinched quarters so long that they look like nickles to me. For several years I've been going out with young men who draw smaller pay checks than I do, but whenever I suggest going 50-50, these same young gentlemen are very much upset.

One young man in particular, who is roaming the city jobless, has broken our friendship because he can't afford to take me places which count. I really miss him.

I realize that better times can be found without spending much money. People depend too much on canned entertainments, such as night clubs.

Am I wrong?

This correspondent's letter is published for the benefit of readers who insist that all modern young men want to go places of amusement on the 50-50 plan. Her experience has been different.

BONNAR—KENRICK

Chrysanthemums, oak leaves and palms decorated St. Matthias Church, Montreal, Wednesday evening for the wedding at six o'clock of Marjorie Eleanor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cranmer E. Kenrick to Mr. William Bonnar, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bonnar. Rev. Gilbert Oliver performed the ceremony.

Mr. Kenrick gave his daughter in marriage and she was attended by her sister, Mrs. Lionel Parker, as matron-of-honor, while Mrs. Norman E. Kenrick, Miss Elizabeth McKergow and Miss Nancy Bonnar were her other attendants. Mr. J. Austin Henderson was best man and Mr. Norman E. Kenrick, Mr. R. Lionel Parker and Mr. John Davidson were ushers.

The bride wore a gown of white bridal satin with shirred waistline, the skirt ending in a fan-shaped train. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet headdress to the hem of her train and she carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley. All four bridal attendants were in frocks of turquoise crepe with short trains with which they wore matching doll hats of tulle and ostrich feathers and carry red Briarcliff roses.

The bridegroom being an officer of the Royal Montreal Regiment, a guard of honor was formed by his fellow officers as the bridal party left the church.

Chrysanthemums with Autumn leaves and palms decorated the rooms at the home of the bride's parents on Lansdowne avenue, where the reception was held. Mrs. Kenrick, the bride's mother, wore a gown of black lace with black hat and corsage bouquet of red roses; Mrs. Bonnar, mother of the bridegroom, being in royal blue crepe with matching accessories and wearing Better Times roses. The bridal couple sailed on the Lady Rodney for Bermuda, where the honeymoon will be spent, the bride travelling in a blue crepe dress and hat, with back accessories and a red fox coat, the gift of the groom. Upon their return Mr. anl Mrs. William Bonnar, Jr., will reside in the Clanranald Apartments.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included—Mrs. N. W. Phillips, grandmother of the bride, and Miss Lenore Stafford, of Belleville, Ont.; Mrs. S. A. Hammond, of New York City; Mr. and Mrs J. Daly, of Mamaroneck, N.Y.; Miss Ethel Kenrick of Hamilton, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kenrick, of Toronto.

GOVERNMENT VICTORIOUS

Oxford, Oct. 28 (CP)—The Government, emerging victorious, but with a reduced majority, from the first of a series of by-elections, today prepared to battle in six more tests of popular reaction to the peace of Munich.

Quintin Hogg, who said "it is not my victory, it is Mr. Chamberlain's victory," won the by-election here yesterday made necessary by the death of Captain R. C. Bourne, Conservative.

Who Gets Student Ready For College?

WHO IS getting the student ready for college, or the boy or girl who will go to boarding school?

Suppose you are going to enter college this fall. How much responsibility have you been taking for preparing and assembling your equipment and for purchasing and assembling your clothing?

You and I know some faithful, self-reliant and self-respecting sons and daughters who will work hard in house or field up to the hour they leave for college. Perhaps they have worked and helped their family all summer. Some of my readers have been among those who have done so.

But there is a much larger group, it seems, who have let their parents, particularly their mothers, assume the major responsibility of getting their things ready for college.

It stirs up my ire, I must confess, when I think of the many able-bodied youths loafing about or running about by day and night spending their parents' money on pleasure, while their weary mothers mend, clean, launder, press and pack their clothes. Some of these mothers sit up late at night, after a long, hard day of work, maybe slowly withering under illness, and so tired when they do go to bed they can't sleep, while the thoughtless, thankless and dependent son or daughter gaily gads about. Perhaps the fathers of these children have been laboring at the office, factory, market or farm in order to earn the money to finance the college education, sometimes at great self-sacrifice and with deep anxiety.

Who Does Work?

College student and to-be-college student: Who does the shopping for your clothes and other equipment? Who will get your boxes off to the shipping station? When you go, who will buy your ticket at the station? Who will check your baggage? During the week after your arrival at college, will you long-distance, wire or write home for the things you left behind?

How you answer these questions depends on how nearly you are grown up, how self-reliant, therefore, you have grown to be. If, after you have taken stock of your character equipment, you believe you do not measure up to what you ought to be you might resolve, even at this late date, to prove from now on that you are no longer a helpless and dependent child. Here is hoping you have the stuff of character to carry out such a resolve. However, don't expect to make yourself over all at once. Centre your efforts on a few things. Succeeding at them, you can attack others. Not how far you are now from the crib in your character development, but how surely you are moving from it, is the measure of your progress.

USES BOTH HANDS TO WRITE

Letter From a Man of 90

He asks us to excuse his writing. We do more than that—we congratulate him on being able to write at all at his age, especially as he has been suffering from rheumatism. This is what he says in his letter:—

"Three years ago I was in bed for six weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. Since that time I have been taking Kruschen Salts, and have not had another attack. But the complaint left me with inflamed feet, and it hurt me to walk. My hands were also somewhat stiff. I took Kruschen every morning before breakfast, and shall continue to do so, because I am sure they have kept me in good shape for three years. Excuse this writing, as I am ninety years old, and use both hands to write."—J.R.G.

The pain and stiffness of rheumatism are often caused by uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen helps to dissolve and remove excess uric acid in a gentle way through the natural channels. Renewed health and vigour is the result.

"BUICK'S THE BEAUTY"

SARNIA IMPERIALS HAVE HAD GAME WITH NATIONALS

Ormond Beach, Killed In Explosion Missed On Defence

ARGOS MEET OTTAWA

Rough Riders Liable To Turn Tables On Toronto Team

(By Sydney Gruson Canadian Press Staff Writer).

The impression is gaining ground in eastern football circles that Sarnia Imperials, the unconquerables of the Ontario Rugby Football Union for seven years have slipped to such an extent they finally will meet a master within the Union's ranks this season.

Beaten and tied in their last two games, the men of Massucci have shown only flashes of the form that brought them seven successive O.R.F.U. championships and two national titles. The giant Ormond Beach, killed in an explosion at Sarnia before the season opened, is being missed.

Loss of the offensive and defensive ace, who passed, plunged and held together the secondary defence, shifted practically all the burden to Hugh (Bummer) Stirling and the opposition is stopping the Bummer by smothering his protection. Peterborough Orfuns blocked two kicks on his last week, leading to a 3-2 upset victory over the champions.

Hoddy Foster's Montreal Nationals, who meet Imperials at Montreal in one of the section's feature games tomorrow, may be the squad to overthrow Imperials. Holding a two-point edge at the top of the Union standing, and still undefeated, Johnny Ferraro and company would just about clinch one of the two playoff spots with a victory.

Bright Spot in Schedule

The Imperial-National clash is only one of the bright spots on this week's schedule. Each league, with the exception of the O.R.F.U., will have the teams playing return games from last week.

A capacity crowd of 11,000 is assured for Toronto Argonauts' invasion of Ottawa, where the burly Rough Riders will attempt to avenge last week's 10-6 defeat. Coach Ross Trimble has stressed pass defence in practice while Lew Hayman continues attempts to speed up the Argo end run, from which blossomed their touchdown pass.

The remainder of the Big Four and O.R.F.U. schedules has Hamilton Tigers at Montreal, with Tigers favored to defeat the Cubs again, and Peterborough at Toronto Balmy Beach. Despite the victory over Sarnia, Orfuns will start as underdogs against the luckless Beaches, who beat them 19-2 at Peterborough.

This is the week, also, when Queen's must beat McGill or give up their Intercollegiate championship. The odds are all against Ted Reeve's tricolor who haven't won a game this season and who provided little more than a brisk workout for the undefeated, united Redmen last week at Montreal.

University of Toronto Blues, crippled but still confident, will take on University of Western Ontario at home. Another loss would all but end Toronto's hopes for a playoff position. Mustangs won 3-2 at London last week.

CARR OUT MONTH

Ching Johnson And Happy Day Will Not Play This Year

(This is the fourth of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of National Hockey League teams. Others will follow).

Saskatoon, Oct. 28 (CP)—Acquisition of two forwards and a young defenceman to blend with his "keep punching" veterans has made Manager Mervyn (Red) Dutton confident his New York Americans will be "much stronger" in the coming National Hockey League campaign.

"We'll give any team in the league all they can handle," he said today with a conviction that was contagious.

The vibrant manager who considers wasting time a cardinal sin, already has worked the two new forwards into the A's lineup. Art Jackson, 22, brother of the famous "Busher" of Toronto Maple Leaf fame and youngest player to join the Star-Spangled squad since Dave Schriner reported four seasons ago, will replace the injured Lorne Carr at right wing on the first-string line with Art Chapman and Schriner.

Goldsworthy With Amerks

Leroy Goldsworthy, who learned his hockey in Edmonton and who is only 31 in spite of nine years big league service, will flank Red Beattie on the third line with Johnny Sorrell holding down the other wing.

Both forwards were acquired from Boston Bruins—Jackson on option for one season and Goldsworthy in an outright purchase. The other newcomer to the roster is Willie Field of Trail, B.C. The husky defence rookie, last with Seattle of the Pacific Coast League, will pair with Johnny Gallagher. The other back-line combination consists of the Amerks' heavy-duty standbys, little Al Murray and big Joe Jerwa. Earl Robinson, so vital a factor in carrying the Amerks to last season's Stanley cup semi-finals, again will be in goal.

Hooley Smith Utility

The second string forward line also remains unchanged, with veteran Nels Stewart as centre for Tommy Anderson and Eddie Wiseman. Hooley Smith, play-maker last year for Sorrell and Beattie, will be the utility man, filling in on attack or defence.

Dutton admits, that it will take players like Stewart, Chapman, Sorrell and Beattie some time to work into condition. "But once they do," he adds, "we'll be tough to beat."

Carr's ankle injury, suffered in an exhibition game with New York Rangers last week, was a blow since the able little forward, a hero of the Amerk Stanley cup stand last winter, has put on needed weight and was in fine shape.

Day and Johnson Missing

Only veterans of the 1937-38 squad who will be missing when the A's open their campaign Nov. 3 at Chicago against the Stanley cup defending Black Hawks will be Ching Johnson, now a manager in his own right with Minneapolis of the American Association, and Happy Day, who may be a N.H.L. referee this season.

Because Dutton is handling an "orphan" club, under direction of the league since getting into financial difficulties, he has been hampered somewhat in going into the open market for new talent. However, the Amerks now have a working arrangement with the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League and Red looks on the future with more confidence.

"We have a better chance to develop replacements for veterans under the arrangement with Seattle" he said. "Such an agreement is essential for success in these days of well-established farm systems."

NOTRE DAME AND ARMY TO CLASH

New York, Oct. 28—(AP)—One of the most peculiar things about the United States college football season is the annual game between Notre Dame and the Army, the 25th of which will be played tomorrow at Yankee stadium before about 80,000 "alumni" of the two institutions.

The game is unique because of this terrific outpouring of the "old grads," most of whom bought their tickets back in August. Otherwise the contest is not particularly distinguished, because Notre Dame usually wins and national honors seldom are in the balance.

The 80,000 alumni who scheme and scrap for the privileges of paying $4.40 to see the game are not to be confused with the calmer type of alumnus who actually attended classes at one of the two institutions. The latter is comparatively rare and has become scattered all over the world, while the Notre Dame football alumni is concentrated right here in New York.

There are estimated to be about 300,000 of them in the greater city, men who for years have suffered agonies every time the Army threatened to score on their alma mater. In other words New York as a whole has adopted the Irish.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

It may be that Detroit Red Wings have drawn the year's best group of young amateur players. At any rate the Wings are sending to their International-American League farm at Pittsburgh a big group of able youngsters who, in their first season as professionals, are subject to an immediate summons to the National League.

When Pittsburgh defeated the Red Wings 5-2 in an exhibition at Detroit last night, the newcomers scored all Hornets' goals. Gus Giesbrecht got two and Kenny Kilrea, brother of the Red Wings' Hec Kilrea, contributed a goal and two assists. Both played with Pontiac of the Michigan-Ontario amateur league last winter.

Syd Abel and Conny Brown, centres from Melville, Sask., and Cornwall, Ont., were impressive again in the Pittsburgh lineup and Pete Bessone, who came up from Pontiac to play defence for the Red Wings in the middle of the last campaign, scored one of their goals.

The exhibition schedule will be in full swing tomorrow night when Chicago Black Hawks play Cleveland Barons of the International-American Leaue at Cleveland. Toronto Maple Leafs will split the 31 candidates for places on the [illegible] team and the Syracuse farm into two teams for an exhibition tonight that will open the new arena at Owen Sound, Ont.

Johnny Gottselig led a blue squad to a 5-4 victory over a Red squad in Black Hawks' camp at Champaign, Ill., yesterday. He scored two goals, the same number as Doc Romnes of the Reds, while Joffre Desilets just about clinched the right wing spot on the Hawk third forward line by giving two assists.

Jack Markle, Owen Sound native, will perform a [illegible] Syracuse forward line with Eddie Convey and Bummer Doran before the home folk tonight. The Leafs will move back to Galt, Ont., where they have drilled, for an exhibition tomorrow. Other games in their practice string will be at Syracuse Sunday, at Toronto Monday and at Midland, Ont., Tuesday.

New York Americans, with a penchant for buying veterans from other organizations, got one of the best when they nabbed Leroy Goldsworthy from Boston. The stylish wingman scored twice last night, though Americans were beaten by New York Rangers for the fourth straight time, 8-4 at Edmonton.

It appears Roy Conacher, brother of two of the greatest players in National League history, will get a place with Boston Bruins in his first year as a pro. Conacher likely will line up on a string with Mel Hill, up from Providence, and Pat McReavy, who played with the great Copper Cliff, Ont., junior team a few seasons back. Sent to Hershey with Terry Reardon and Happy Frost was Red Hamill, who played with McReavy at Copper Cliff and with Hill at Providence last winter. Johnny Shewchuck, another Copper Cliff product, went to Providence last night

DOMINION BIRTHS INCREASE

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (CP)—Deaths and marriages in Canada in September were lower than in September, 1937, but births increased, according to a Dominion Bureau of Statistics report today. Births registered in 67 cities and towns totalled 7,284 against 6,911; deaths 4,036 against 4,061 and marriages 4,751 against 4,803.

NEW PLUM DEVELOPED

Vancouver, Oct. 28 (CP)—A new variety of huge plums, developed by an Italian resident of Nelson, B.C., who refused to let the secret go out o the British Empire even at the request of Premier Mussolini, will soon grow in England. Three hundred young trees will be airmailed across the continent for speedy shipment to Lyons, England.

The trees bear a plum of great size, exceptional sweetness and firm texture, with a small stone. They were developed by Carmine Maglio, 75, and are named for him.

The latest rumours around the district football griddle are to the effect that Gord Meikle, star triple threat man of the Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" will be with the Queen's University "tri color" next season. The news came via the "grape vine" route and doubtless has some foundation. The Ottawa Rough Riders were hot foot after Meikle early this fall, but it would appear as though the Cobourg star kicking and running halfback has eyes for an education rather than outright football honor and glory.

Injected with the spirit of determination to win, the Belleville Panthers expect to chalk up their initial win of the current football season at the expense of the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" at the Fair Grounds tomorrow. The Panthers may be augmented by a brace of speedy youngsters from the Collegiate grid squad, who should make matters really interesting for Flying Officer Davenport's "air-minded gridders." This is the final home game for the locals and should attract a large following, as the rivalry between the Flyers and the Panthers has reached its peak when these two squads met on the R.C.A.F. aerodrome recently feelings ran high and plenty of hard rugged tackling and plunging was seen. As a matter of fact it was the most strenuous game of the current season. Tomorrow's return game will doubtless see plenty of spirited action and should not be missed.

Of all sports clubs we know of in this district, perhaps the Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" deserve more credit than any other similar organization for downright courage. About 1935 Cobourg entered the intermediate O.R.F.U. and that year lost eight consecutive games. Their second season of Provincial football operation saw the Cobourg squad lose four straight, bringing their losses to an even dozen in succession. Were Skipper Dufton and his merry men taking a walk-out powder? no. Instead they invaded Belleville for their 13th game and handed the Belleville "Checks" as the locals were called then, a defeat, that knocked the props out from beneath the Belleville squad, who at that time were in the thick of the season's grid scramble. From that game on the Cobourg team made history. The next year they finished in their group and continued on to win the intermediate "B" championship of the O.R.F.U. and now five years later the "Galloping Ghosts" are casting covetous glances towards an intermediate "A" football title. Here was a pure case of persistence and the heart to carry on regardless as to the surrounding circumstances. It is too bad that some local players were not blessed with the same heart. All teams can't be titlists and in any game one side must lose.

All week long the Peterboro scrivener has been gloating over the Orfuns' unexpected victory over Sarnia. A week ago he said the "Orfuns" MIGHT win over the Imperials, sure and the Cubs' 'might have won over the Yankees. Now the Liftlock City scribe would have us believe he called his shot on the game, but he refused to call the winner outright. In a recent football note, penned by Red Barnett in his widely-read rugby column in the Toronto Star, the Queen City football expert really sounded the gong with the following sport comment. Red says: "The Peterboro sports scribe says he gets a great laugh out of our drivel. Well, we're pleased to find that he can read. Says he picked his town's team to beat Sarnia before Saturday's big upset....All we can say is they should send him along a medal for bravery.. Reminds us of a guy named "Angel's Kiss," who always bets the long shots.' This lad becomes a regular Clem McCarthy when he clicks, but seldom mentions his losses."

After last week's football upsets we approach the weekly prognostications rather timidly, but in the Interprovincial it's Ottawa to beat Argos, the latter being slightly lucky last week; Hamilton to beat Montreal Cubs; in the senior O.R.F.U. the highly heralded Peterboro Orfuns will think they really are 'orphans' when Balmy Beach get through trouncing them. Smarting under last week's defeat we'll select Sarnia Imperials to hand the Montreal Nationals their first defeat of the season. Shifting over to the Intercollegiate where the upsets are expected from this corner, we'll sting along with Western to beat Varsity at Toronto. (Don't ask us why because i's only a hunch). Down at Kingston the fans should see the best game of the week end, when the undefeated McGill Redmen clash with Ted Reeves' Queen's Tri-color clan. This one looks tough, but if Herbie Westman continues to boot 'em in his prolific manner—it's "old McGill" to win. Don't say we didn't tell you.

Three years ago when the hockey moguls were formulating plans whereby there might be more goals scored, we suggested at the time that the goals in ice hockey should be enlarged and all their troubles would be over. Other systems and plans were devised and given thorough trials, with little or no satisfaction towards the remedying of the lack of goals. Today, however, the Pacific Coast League has made drastic changes in order to build up scoring records—How? The West coast moguls are enlarging the goal mouth for this season's hockey campaign.

Naturally the Coast loop goaltenders will have to work much harder for shutouts under the new set-up. The goal mouth is to be four inches higher and six inches wider, an addition of sufficient open territory to give the hockey sharp-shooters a much larger target and naturally should result in more goals being scored. In the old days a goalie could not flop to the ice, but had to remain standing. With the innovation of postrate goalies, the goal mouths should have been enlarged years ago. Chalk one up for the Coast loop in the advancement of hockey.

HODGE PODGE — Local badminton club plans to shove off Saturday in the gloamin'....Which recalls the fact that Jack Purcell, world champion badminton player, may have to defend those laurels against another Canadian this season, Douglas Grant of Winnipeg. ....Today is the final day for the "Y" financial campaign dig deep and kick in to help a real worthy cause, the Y.M.C.A... "Bullet Joe" Simpson, old New York American puckster of years ago, is coaching a hockey team in Miami, Fla. .... Fifty two players are to be given employment in the "Sunshine Hockey League" of Florida.... George Boucher, former Ottawa Senator hockey player, will coach the Noranda "Copper Kings" this winter.. The Oshawa "Generals" are gunning for Memorial cup honors this season, having had a nibble at the bait last spring.

R.C.A.F. Meet Local Gridders In Final Home Stand

NEW PLAYERS OUT

Possibility Promising B.C.I. Stars May Join The Local Entry

Determined to evacuate the cellar position in their O.R.F.U. group, the Belleville Panthers vowed vengance before Coaches Duffield and Schrieder last night, promising their mentors to chalk up their first victory of the 1938 football season at the expense of the R.C.A.F. "Flyers", who make their lone rugby appearance in Belleville on Saturday.

The Panthers can climb out of their present cellar standing with a victory over the "Airmen". In their first meeting the Panthers were leading the "Winged Gridders" late in the second half, when a series of fumbles proved costly and resulted in an 18 to 7 win for the Flyers. The Panthers promised to reverse matters on Saturday on the home gridiron however.

The Panthers expect to draft at least two new faces from the speedy Belleville Collegiate squad to bolster their cause, while at least two veteran players are expected to return to the fold to complete the football season in a blaze of glory. Belleville boasts of the youngest squad of intermediate football players in the intermediate O.R.F.U. ranks and the game is rapidly gaining firm footholds in Belleville.

Coach Eddie Schrieder has been working out with the Panthers all week and has been punting with the dexterity of which he was noted some years ago. The Belleville squad is a purely homebrew team, composed of players residing throughout this district.

Sports Roundup

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)— They say Dana Bible sewed up 99 football players (or thereabouts) for future university of Texas use by using 'em in the first Longhorn freshman game this fall....Seems there's a Southwest Conference rule that if a frosh plays even one minute for one school down there, he can't be accepted by another... So Dana (according to the story) just wanted insurance.

Tony Canzoneri wasn't any too fast in outpointing Howie Scott in Jersey City the other night .... But insists that'll all be fixed with another half-dozen starts under his belt.... Frank Milani, touted by scouts as a successor to Lou Gehrig in the not-too-distant future, takes the first step up the Yankees' farm chair next year, moving from Wenatchee (Wash.) to the class "A" Binghampton Club .... Maurice Strickland, the New Zealand heavy, sails from London tomorrow to try for a crack at Joe Louis here.

Marquette overlooked a bet when it let Vern Miller, 230-pound tackle from Milwaukee, escape to Harvard ....He's going great for the classy Crimson frosh....It's costing Al Jolson's radio show 10 grand to move to New York for next week's broadcast, so that the Mammy Man can take in the Armstrong-Garcia welterweight party.

CORRECT EATING

found that an optimum diet would protect both the mother mouse and her children to a high degree, even to the third and fourth generations if the diet was continued, he reported.

"The protection thus afforded lasted at least until maturity was reached in all the experiments, and progressive improvement took place for at least three generations on the same diet," Dr. Church said. He added that "the influence of diet upon resistance may thus be on a par with the influence of heredity."

Inclusion of mineral salts in the diet is apparently just as important as including vitamins, he added. When the quantity of these elements was reduced to one-fourth the normal in one group of mice the number of deaths increased four times. And when the amount of calcium, the essential element for forming bones and teeth and promoting body metabolism was reduced to one-fifth of normal the fatality rate increased five times when exposed to infection.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, October 29.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A VERY active state of affairs is forecast for this day, with probably extremely surprising and unexpected events occurring. There may be revolutionary change, dramatic experience, romance or adventure of an unexpected nature. Or it might be a surprising intellectual adventure. But there may also be an estrangement, a bereavement, sorrow or illness.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves engulfed in a year of sudden events of a surprising or revolutionary character. Dramatic and thrilling occurrences of far-reaching effect on the destiny may be expected. At the same time, estrangements, bereavements, sorrow or affiliation are foreshadowed.

A child born on this day may be talented in out-of-the-ordinary ways being adventurous, romantic and original, as well as independent in thought and action. It may have a spectacular career.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Stewart Muirhead wish to thank their friends for all the kindnesses shown them during their recent bereavement. o28-1t

General Chiang Kai-Shek, dissolution of his government and demobilization of all Chinese forces would bring an end to hostilities.

Imperial headquarters in a new statement on damage by Japanese bombs to British gunboat Sandpiper at Changsha Monday denied the damage was deliberate.

Sienning Captured

Shanghai, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Japanese troops captured Sienning, 50 miles south of fallen Hankow, today and established a spearhead for an advance down the Hankow-Canton railway toward strategic Yochow.

The invaders thus followed up their conquest of Hankow by slashing off a vest swamp area south of that former capital, and asserted they had trapped large numbers of disorganized and fleeing Chinese troops.

Japanese reports said their planes and field guns exacted an "inestimable toll" from the Chinese in their "strategic" retreat from Hankow. The army command estimated 130 Chinese divisions were withdrawing westward from the Hankow area.

McGill's Football Famine Appears To Be At An End

Coach Kerr's Crew Favorites to Cop College Crown After Getting Away to a Rousing Start — System Plus Westman Does it.

By GUS GARBER
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Montreal, Oct. 28—After 10 long years of waiting and hoping, it looks as if McGill gridders are finally going to bring home the bacon this year and the college lads and lassies are going ahead with plans for a monster victory shin-dig.

It was back in 1928 that the Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning—McGill university's corporate name—last won a senior college football title. That was the year McGill was coached by a graduate board consisting of such grid luminaries as Dr. Cyril "Flin" Flannagan, Dr. L. C. "Monty" Montgomery, Tommy Hall and Don Bailey. Montgomery was chairman of the board and "Flin" Flannagan was head coach.

Since that time McGill gridders have been coached by a score or more of mentors, including such notable names as Frank "Shag" Shaughnessy, Art Burridge, George Draper, Joe O'Brien, Hoddy Foster, Freddy Wigle and Major D. Stuart Forbes, director of athletics at the college. Experienced as they were, these men had indifferent success with McGill football machines.

Enter "Pop" Kerr

Then, in 1935, Douglas "Pop" Kerr came to McGill from Westward A. A. A., where he had a string of successes. Three disappointing seasons rolled by and this fall things didn't look any too bright. Then suddenly the McGill stock zoomed sky-high as announcement was made that Herbie Westman, absent for two years, was returning to college.

Came the start of the current season on Oct. 8 and McGill fans stood up and took notice as the Redmen defeated the highly-touted University of Western Ontario squad. On the crest of Herbie Westman's educated toe they got by Varsity in Toronto the following week and made it three in a row by upsetting Queen's at Montreal. Westman's hefty hoofing played an important part in all these victories, but it wasn't a one-man team — definitely not. There were 11 other red-clad college boys on the field and they weren't statues. Each one executed his chores in extremely workmanlike manner.

If McGill should cop top honors this year, and the betting is 2-1 that they do, it won't be mere chance. It will be the result of a four-year plan carefully mapped out by "Pop" Kerr when he assumed the role of freshman coach in 1935.

Looking Ahead

He didn't have to employ charts or graphs. Kerr figured things out and came to the conclusion that by starting out with the freshman team he could build up a strong senior squad in four years and the current McGill team is the result of this planning. With the exception of those boys who have been coming up from the freshman ranks each year the present senior squad has been personally trained by Kerr for four years.

Today he is ready to reap the reward of his long campaign. With McGill scheduled to meet each team in the union once more starting with Queen's in Kingston on Saturday, then followed by Varsity and Western, the chips are on the red team to come through. And they're doing it for "Pop" Kerr.

"POP" KERR

.....he's even beginning to smile after seeing the 1938 edition of his McGill team in action so far this season.

OPPOSE BY FORCE

"We promise the Fuehrer to use the same energy as displayed by our historical forerunners to regain the colonial possessions which they acquired in order that our national humiliation may be removed."

Looking to Britain

Meanwhile Chancellor Hitler, it is learned here, looks to Great Britain to put forward proposals for settlement of the colonial question. No demand is expected from the German side as the Fuehrer is regarded as having made his request when he told Prime Minister Chamberlain at Godesberg:

"There is one awkward question, the colonies, but that is not a matter for war . . . there will be no mobilization about that."

German circles declared grave difficulties are likely to be created if the subject is prejudiced, before negotiations have been started, by statements by South African ministers and others, which are circulated throughout the International Press that the return of Southwest Africa and Tanganyika cannot be entertained.

Foolish to Consider

Colombo, Ceylon, Oct. 28—(CP—Reuters)—"Nobody could be so foolish as even to consider a partial restoration of colonies held by the British alone," said Sir Edward Cunningham, veteran Australian journalist, referring to the German claim for the colonies in an interview here.

"It would be absurd to restore New Guinea to Germany while Japan held mandates over the neighboring islands," he said.

Mombasa, Kanya, Oct. 28—(CP—Havas)—A resolution demanding Tanganyika remain under British mandate was voted here yesterday by an assembly of more than 6,000 Europeans, Indians, Arabs and Swahilis.

Addresses by various speakers affirmed the people's loyalty to the crown.

Deseronto

Deseronto—Another card party was held at the Parish Hall Thursday evening. After the cards lunch was served by the committee in charge, followed by dancing for a short time with Messrs. Clayton and Arthur John supplying the music. Both euchre and bridge were played and the winners were as follows: euchre, Miss Nora Fox and Miss Mary Hunt and in bridge, Mrs. M. Detlor.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kitchen and Bobby of Belleville spent Sunday with the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. David Edwards.

Mrs. Lawrence Spriggs who spent the summer months in Deseronto returned to Toronto this week.

Mrs. John Lunn is confined to her bed through illness.

Mrs. Fred Powley had the misfortune to injure her foot at her home recently.

Rev. E. M. Leacy who has been pastor of St. Vincent De Paul church for the past ten years leaves this week for Napanee where he will succeed the late Monsignor McDonald.

Rev. W. P. Healey of Napanee is temporarily in charge of the parish in Deseronto. The departure of Fr. Leacy from Deseronto is felt with genuine regret by his many friends here and he will be greatly missed by all. His friends here wish him every success in his new post at Napanee. On Sunday, after mass, he was presented with a purse from his parishioners. Leo G. Therrien read the address and Frank McNeil presented him with the purse. Fr. Leacy in his very capable manner heartily thanked the people for their kindness. He was also presented with a lovely chair and lamp by the members of E. W. L.

Ross Therrien of Toronto spent the week end with his grand mother Mrs. A. Therrien, Sr.

Rev. Mr. Douglas was in Madoc one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Adams of Toronto spent the week end with the latter's sister, Mrs. John Gartland.

Mrs. Thomas Sweanor spent a day recently in Kingston visiting with relatives.

Mrs. H. T. Eade was delegate to the Women's Institute Convention held in Belleville last week.

A number from here attended the dance in Marysville Parish Hall on Tuesday night.

Michael Burns of Toronto is home owing to the illness of his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. James Burns.

Mrs. Black visited recently with relatives in Marlbank.

Mrs. J. C. Hughes was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walker in Newburgh.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Hugh Perry in the death of her mother, Mrs. Arthur Fraser of Odessa who recently passed away.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 28—(AP)—Quiet strength in rails, selected utilities and specialties provided a bulwark against selling in other parts of today's stock market.

Steels, motors, aircrafts and other recent climbers fell fractions to two points at the start, many subsequently reduced losses. While the list steadied somewhat, numerous issues were under water near the final hour.

Dealings were relatively slow throughout, transfers were about 1,500,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 28 (CP)—The Toronto stock market was not feeling especially vigorous today and as the session advanced price weakened moderately, giving all index groupings minor losses for the day. Action appeared chiefly in the penny golds and some of these were bid up narrowly. Bobjo featured the junior group with turnover of more than 100,000 shares and a gain of a cent or two. Aggregate turnover was around the week's high at about 900,000 shares.

Under the influence of early New York weakness, industrials and golds slipped back moderately while base metal shares held up to show a minor index gain at noon. The western oil share market was a bit heavy.

Trading was fairly heavy in the first two hours, mainly because of activity in a group of the penny golds. Bobjo stood out in the action, trading about 100,000 shares in the morning session on a gain of a cent or two on news of favorable drilling results on their Uchi district property.

McIntyre dropped about a point and MacLeod-Cockshutt, Uchi, Chesterville and Macassa weakened 5 to 10 cents. Senior base metal held steady to strong and Sherritt backed up to 1.50.

Strength in the industrial section was centred mainly in the steels, foods and miscellaneous issues.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford
By Financial Service

Conservative opinion in the U.S. anticipates continued recovery but at a more moderate pace than in recent weeks. Commitments at this time should be made with careful attention to the outlook for the individual security selected and also with an eye to a rapid change of policy should events so dictate. If Eurpoe avoids further crises of world shaking character and provided government and labor do nothing to disturb the course of industry in United States, circumstances favor a period of constructive progress on this continent.

The large turnover in the newsprint stocks yesterday was most impressive. The buying was much better than the selling and appeared to be emanating from strong financial interests. The expectation is general that the contract price for 1939 newsprint will remain at $50 a ton, and with the better outlook for business across the line, the prospects for the industry for next year are distinctly more promising than in some time.

Noranda Mines Limited

The continued strength in Noranda may be attributed to the following reasons:—

1. The deal recently consummated with the Government of the Province of Quebec, whereby Noranda will receive a considerable amount of cash besides a contract for about 20,000 horse power at an attractive price.

3. As the owner of 1,870,113 and a higher price for the metal.

3. As the owner of 1,870,133 shares of Waite Amulet, which has a market valuation of $15,400,000 which in itself is equivalent to $7.00 a share on Noranda. The developments at the Waite property are exceptionally good.

4. Pamour is a more important mine than the directors ever believed it would be.

5. Hallnor and Kerr-Addison are also very promising.

6.Lifting of restrictions on world output of copper is looked upon as a constructive development for Noranda.

7. Semi-annual dividend declaration will be made in a few months.

These are the reasons why very wealthy Belgium people are buying Noranda.

$50 Per Ton For Newsprint

The market action of the International Paper Stocks on the New York Stock Exchange is forecasting the announcement that the price of newsprint will be $50 a ton for the first six months of 1939, at least. With this matter settled, the ticker could then go ahead and discount the possibility of an increase in the capacities of the various plants.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, Oct. 28.—(CP)— Bacon-hog prices advanced 25 to 35 cents at London and Chatham today while other reporting markets were steady.

Bears Cowards, Will Run From Man Says Hunter

Sadowa, Ont., Oct. 28 (CP)—Fred Griggs, oldest hunter of this Victoria County village, celebrated his 89th birthday today with the declaration that "bears are cowardly creatures."

"They are mortally afraid of humans and I have never seen one that would not run away unless cornered," he said.

Mr. Grigg recalled former days when he sat in his Dalton Township home and watched deer and bear wander up to the house. He can recall shooting at least 10 huge black bears with an old muzzle-loading gun.

Struck Silent By 'Apparition' Of Emperor

Tokyo. Oct. 28—(CP—Havas)—Crowds celebrating the fall of Hankow were awestruck today when an erect figure on a snow-white horse rode slowly to the centre of the Nijubashi bridge spanning the moat of the Imperial Palace. There he stood, frozen into statue-like immobility.

"It is the Emperor!" the whisper rustled through the crowd, struck silent by the apparition.

Emperor Hirohito thus broke a precedent of the Japanese Royal House by emerging from the Palace without previous announcement to acknowledge personally the banzais and bows of the celebrating people.

CHILD DIES BEFORE FATHER ARRIVES HOME

Death won a race against time early this week when Keith Munro, of Wellington, member of the crew of a lake freighter, raced to his home from Chicago on receipt of the news of the dangerous illness of his two-year-old child.

Munro, however, was too late to see his daughter alive, the child succumbing to its illness a few hours before his arrival.

Prices Unchanged Except A-Medium Eggs

Toronto, Oct. 28—With the exception of easier prices in grade A-medium eggs, all lines held previous quotations during yesterday's session of the local produce market.

Receipts arrived in heavier volume on the egg market, with the best demand for C grades. Grades A-large and B met fair trading, but mediums continued draggy, and some accumulation was in evidence in this grade, with prices off 1c per dozen in all divisions. Ungraded shipments of mediums dropped to 33c. Graded eggs were offered at 39c to 40c for A-large, 35c for medium, 28c to 29c for pullets, 26c to 27c for B's and 22c to 23c for C grades.

Little change occurred on the butter market. Sales were too few to establish a definite price basis, but dealers quoted the market nominally unchanged. While holders are not as yet cutting storage stocks and supplies of fresh Ontario butter and extremely light. Ontario creamery solids remained at 22 1-4c to 22 1-2c for No. 1 grades and 21 1-2c to 21 3-4c for 38 score.

Eggs Slightly Lower at Montreal

Montreal, Oct. 28 (CP)—Prices generally held steady on open produce markets Thursday, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. The butter market was quiet, and first-grade eggs dipped slightly, but other sections remained mostly at Wednesday's levels.

Creamery solids for 23 1-4c to 24. Western butter delivered in Montreal was offered at 23c.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 39c to 40c a dozen for A-large, 36c to 37c for A-medium, 29c to 30c for A-pullets, 26c to 27c for B-large, and 20 1-2c to 21c for C. Receipts: 586 boxes including 13 for export.

Skunk Outwits Owner of Home

For a number of years an East Dundas Street resident has been greeted every Autumn with a visit from that striped species of "cat" with a high-powered sense of advertising. Annually the cellar of her residence, at this time of the year, gave forth evidence of the presence of the unwelcome visitor.

A rigid investigation last year of possible entrances revealed several openings that were promptly sealed with cement. Every possible precaution was taken to guard against a repetition of the visits of the animals.

But all to no avail. Descending into the cellar the other day, the fumes of the striped "kitty" were again wafted to he nostrils of the elderly lady. Investigation revealed no trace of the intruder, but the evidence that it had been present was irrefutable.

How, and where the animal gains entrance to the cellar is still a mystery, as a recent examination of the outside of the property reveals no apparent method of entry.

VICTIM OF ELECTRIC BURNS RETURNS HOME

Successfully recovered from his burns and injuries suffered during his near fatal electrocution at Stirling last week, Frank Sprentall, superintendent of the Stirling Hydro Electric Commission, has returned to his home at Stirling from the Belleville General Hospital. He will be confined to his home for some days yet.

PETERBOROUGH POLICE REPORT CAR STOLEN

Peterborough police today requested the assistance of local police in the possible recovery of a motor car stolen in that city last night. The vehicle was a 1937 model green colored Chevrolet coach, bearing Ontario license plates number D 2710. Otherwise activities in and around local police circles were quiet and serene during the past 24 hours.

MOTOR VESSEL LOSES FOUR MEN OVERBOARD

St. Pierre, Miquelon, Oct. 28 —(CP Cable)—Fred Walsh, engineer of the Tyee, guided the motor vessel into port here last night and reported the four other members of the crew were washed over board during a storm Tuesday.

Exhausted by the short trip from Point Platte, where the storm struck, Walsh said the men were drowned when heavy waves battered the Newfoundland-registered vessel and swept the wheel house into the sea.

Missing were James Collins, Clyde King, Maurice and Randall Flemming, all of Lamaline, Nfld.

Walsh said he worked throughout Tuesday night, pumping out the flooded engine room and repairing the motor, and got the ship underway the next day. Heavy weather, however, impeded progress.

CHIEF JUSTICE HANLTAIN RETIRES

80-Year-Old Veteran of Bench Announces Retirement

Regina, Oct. 28—(CP)—Sir Frederick Haultain, for more than 50 years a leading figure in western Canada public life, will resign as Chief Justice of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal on Oct. 31. The 80-year-old veteran of the bench will thus quit a post he has held since 1912.

Sir Frederick announced his resignation at a dinner tendered him by the Regina Bar Association. He said that with Lady Haultain he would leave Regina at the end of next week to take up residence in Montreal, Lady Haultain, formerly Mrs. B. Gilmour of Montreal, married Sir Frederick Sept 8th of this year.

Before announcing his resignation Sir Frederick humorously referred to "aspiring members of the bar who are looking for vacancies on the bench at this particular season." Present were men whose names had been mentioned for judiciary appointments.

Sir Frederick was born in Woolwich England Nov. 25 1857 and came to Canada as a boy. He received his high school education in Montreal and at Peterborough Ont., graduating from the University of Toronto with his B. A. degree in 1879.

CANVASSERS ENJOY SOCIAL EVENING

The Every Member canvass of Tabernacle United Church was completed yesterday. The canvassers reported at the parsonage last night. They were accompanied with their wives and the members of the committee who provided the lunch for the opening of the campaign. A happy time was spent with music and games. Miss F. Davis presided at the piano. Mrs. C. Lent and Mrs. G. Wishart were the committee assisting Mrs. McClintock, in serving light refreshments. At the close Mr. R. Goodfellow, chairman of the canvassers announced that the canvass had been very thorough and successful.

DATES ARE ANNOUNCED FOR AGRIC. COURSES

Dates for the short courses being held for residents of Hastings County in Agriculture and Home Economics at Stirling, have been announced by County Agricultural Representative Lynn Fair, for November 22nd, 1938, to February 24th, 1939.

In the three months' study of agriculture and economics, the sciences will be treated in a practical way by a staff of instructors of the Department of Agriculture. Only five counties this year will be favored with these courses. Hastings, Bruce, Halton, Peterborough and Wentworth it is announced. The courses will be free except for a deposit of fifty cents which will be used for materials used. Diplomas will be awarded successful students.

POLICE COURT

SEVERAL GIVEN TERMS IN COURT

Defence Counsel Pleads For Leniency For Their Clients

When counsel for the defence moved the court with pleas of clemency and introduced the forthcoming great Christian season, Christmas, as the basis of their pleas on behalf of clients in today's local police court, held before His Worship Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., the pleading of counsel proved most fruitful when leniency was exercised in the name of Justice throughout the entire proceedings.

On three separate occasions counsel waxed eloquent to move the feelings of the court by pleading their client's cases and requesting mitigation in sentence in order to bring convicted persons in close communion with friends and relatives during the Christmas festivities.

Frank Simpson, Belleville, was sentenced to serve two months in the common jail after being convicted of the theft of angle bars and metal tie plates, the property of the Canadian Pacific railway.

Gordon Robertson, local barrister appearing for the accused, approached the court relative to the mitigation of sentence "As you no doubt are acquainted with my client's past record, I might point out however, that his offences have always been trivial ones. Personally I feel that employment, rather than imprisonment would do this young man more good and ultimately meet the desired ends of justice," stated Mr. Robertson as he assured the court drink had been Simpson's downfall and counsel urged leniency. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., merely introduced the accused man's record in prosecution.

Young Man Given Chance

"I will give this young man a chance this time, but he need not expect further concessions from this court," warned His Worship as he sentenced the accused to two months, to date from the time of his arrest.

Leonard Maracle, Tyendinaga youth, pleaded guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident and also of failing to produce a driver's licence, contrary to the H.T.A.

"This lad is not a fit person to be driving a motor car on the highways and should not have been given a beginner's permit in the first place," prompted Mr. Donnan.

"I will recommend to the Department that no permit be granted this boy," added His Worship as he enlarged the matter sine die.

Harry Mattis and Thomas Matthews, both of Belleville, were sentenced to serve one month in the common jail after being convicted of the theft of two turkeys.

"This is a minor offence. Your Worship, and as the Christmas festive season is rapidly approaching I would recommend a jail term which would permit these young men to be with their families during that recognized season," pleaded Mr. Goodman.

Robert Pringle, co-prosecutor with Mr. Donnan and representing Col. W. N. Ponton K.C., from whom the turkeys were stolen, informed the court that some protection should be afforded farmers in the face of so much poultry stealing. The 30 day sentence followed. This case was presented by the Provincial police.

Changed Plea

When Albert Richer, Hamilton youth, appeared on a charge of retaining in his possession stolen goods, to wit, a quantity of cigarettes, the accused changed his plea from innocence to that of guilty and was given one month at hard labour.

"Previous counsel have delivered eloquent and prolific speeches on behalf of clients here today with the result the court has registered lenient sentences. My client has a family in Hamilton and also would like to be with them at Christmas time," urged Robert Pringle, barrister appearing on Richer's behalf. His address also moved the court towards clemency.

A panhandling transient named Murray was given fourteen days after being convicted of intoxication, while another transient, Cecil Howard received a similar term on the same charge. "I have to go to the hospital, could you let me go now?" asked Howard of the Bench.

"I'm sorry, but the L.C.A. does not permit suspended sentences, but you can take your case up with the department," replied His Worship.

INQUEST ADJOURNED FOR TWO WEEKS

Inquest into the death of Carman Vandervoort of Trenton, was adjourned yesterday for two weeks after medical evidence and identification.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan asked for the adjournment so that "police can make a more complete investigation. This is a rather serious matter from the public point of view."

Vandervoort was a passenger in a truck driven by John Vance, Bancroft, which overturned three miles north of Madoc Tuesday night. Mrs. Vance was not hurt, but Vance suffered painful burns from acid when a storage battery in the truck was smashed.

Potatoes Held in Storage Affected by Blight-Rot

One of Six Hundred Bags Held Here Ordered Destroyed

NO EXTERNAL SIGN

Late season wet weather may be responsible for heavy losses among potato growers of this and other sections of the Province, it was revealed by the local office of the Dominion Department of Agriculture this morning, following an examination of potatoes which have been afflicted with an as yet unnamed potato blight-rot.

Reports of trouble received from outlying districts this week have been tracked down by Mr. C. T. Stevenson local inspector of the fruits and vegetables branch of the department and specimens of the affected potatoes have been sent to Ottawa for examination and classification of the disease it was reported. According to local examination the disease can be classed neither as common bacterial rot, which was feared in the district following discovery of shipments of United States potatoes affected nor the common blight.

"We haven't named it yet" stated Mr. Stevenson.

An examination of six hundred bags of potatoes in one local institution this week by the local inspector proved that the complete crop in storage had been affected. Advice for the removal and destruction of the potatoes was given.

Plainly Discernible When Cut

To all outward appearances the potatoes affected show no signs of the disease. Many of them appear healthy and sound. When cut however the disease is plainly discovered.

"Those I examined in the institution smelled 'high'," stated Mr. Stevenson. "The smell would drive you out. Yet many of them showed no outward sign."

One manner in which the infection has spread has been through the storing of healthy potatoes with the affected ones. It is believed that the disease is communicated from the bad to the good by spores.

"I had a customer in here the other day who has considerable supply of potatoes on hand. He told me if he could guarantee them from blight or rot, he could sell all he had at Kingston at 90 cents a bag. But he can't give this guarantee," stated Mr. Charles Bishop, this morning, citing just one instance of loss that will be felt locally.

WORKMEN DISMANTLE BALCONY BELLEVILLE CLUB BUILDING

Workmen were busy this morning on the first work connected with the dismantling and removal of the balcony on the Pinnacle Street side of the Belleville Club. Permit has been issued for the removal of this balcony and the repair of the west side of the block.

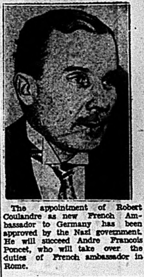
The present season, one of the best from the construction viewpoint, has resulted in keeping numbers of men at work during the past several weeks in new construction. Fine weather, plus an added interest on the part of residents in new building this month will result in one of the heaviest construction months for years past, it was indicated by building permits issued at the city hall.

Several new buildings are in course of construction in the city this week, among which are a one-storey addition to the Canadian Hotel on east Dundas Street, and a modern double house at 209 Foster Avenue at a cost of $4,500 for which a permit has been issued E. G. Rowsome.

STUDENTS INVITED TO DISCUSSION OF 'FOREIGN' WAR

Quebec, Oct. 28—(CP)—Organizers of a student meeting here Nov. 5 to discuss Canada's participation in a "foreign" war announced today students from the Universities of Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and McGill and Queen's have been invited to take part in the discussion.

Officers of the student body of old Laval University sponsoring the meeting declared the discussions were not intended to be and "will not be anti this or that" but "pro-Canadian."



The appointment of Robert Coulandre as new French Ambassador to Germany has been approved by the Nazi government. He will succeed Andre Francois Poncet, who will take over the duties of French ambassador in Rome.

SHOOTING PIGEONS FROM TOP OF BARN NOT GOOD FOR ROOF

A Tyendinaga Township farmer will think twice next time before shooting of pigeons is allowed on his barn, believe residents of his section who are at present enjoying the incident.

The story was told in Belleville this morning by a neighbor who related that two local squirrel or rabbit hunters who had been tramping through the woods near Read this week without finding even a sparrow to shoot at came upon the farm in question where dozens of pigeons were sunning themselves on the roof of the barn.

Anxious to fire at least one shot before returning to Belleville, the local men sized up the innocent pigeons.

"Mister, we'll give you half a dollar for just one pop at those birds" offered one of the men.

"You're on," agreed the farmer. "One shot apiece."

Guns blazed and several pigeons fell limp. They were collected and the men departed.

Now the farmer is conscious of the fact that considerable work will be necessary before his roofing paper roof is fit for heavy weather service again.

Merchants Asked To Close Stores Until 1 P.M. Nov. 11

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Belleville Branch, of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, held in the Y.M.C.A. parlors Friday morning it was decided to request the members to close their places of business on the morning of Remembrance Day Friday, November 11, until one o'clock in order to permit proprietors and staff to take part in the veterans' parade and attend the services at the cenotaph in honor of those who gave their lives in the Great War.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Including three of the guests who were present at the nuptials of fifty years ago, a large crowd of relatives, neighbors and friends, filled the modest home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Love, popular, and highly esteemed couple of Black Creek, Prince Edward County, this week where they tendered their felicitations on the attainment of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

Golden wedding bells with the dates 1888-1938, and a huge basket of red roses that decorated the table at the banquet tendered the bride and groom of fifty years was a feature of the celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Love have resided all their married lives at their present home, and although the former was a schoolteacher in his youth, he has been a prominent agriculturist since his marriage.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

Not a great number of people arrived. For at New York cocktail parties the fashionable come late, and linger far beyond the limit of invitation.

Presently, she knew, the butler would have a hard time coping with the entrees.

So charming had Guy been here beside her, receiving, at the head of the stairs!

That would have made grand copy for the newspaper columnists. They'd have been as good as engaged by tomorrow. How the town would gossip!

He had circumvented that. But understanding him well—or thinking that she did—she was not particularly annoyed. She had no use for easy capture.

More people arrived.

There was a bar on each of the two principal floors.

How delightfully ill-bred, thought she, were so many of her friends heading straight for the lower bar, when they knew perfectly well that it was her custom to greet them at the head of the stairs. She understood their greed to get a couple of "stiff ones" downed before even bothering to greet their hostess, for she would have done the same thing as a guest. When it came to her own comfort, her desires, she was a past mistress at rudeness!

Practically all of them were.

But not the pretty, rather shy marquise.

With inimitable grace she was coming up the wide stairs. Behind her was a young man. The night before, at the club, she had diffidently asked permission to bring him to the party.

In view of her own interest in Guy Halstead-Flagg, Harriet Brewster had accepted.

A nice titbit to tell Guy!

How agreeable to say to him, casually: "The little singing girl of Le Chateau de la Marquise has brought her best beau to the party. Probably another French emigre in disguise! Who knows?"

That would serve two purposes. The hint of something phony, and the idea of the girl having a sweetheart.

Miss Brewster was shrewd.

"My dear, I'm delighted to see you. And your charming friend!"

Toni made the introduction. She hated bringing Brock Milbank to this party. Hated the thought of him meeting Miss Brewster, Guy Halsead-Flagg, and others who had been nice to her and encouraged her at the club.

But Brock had insisted. In fact, had demanded that she bring him to this party. If she antagonized Brock in his present desperate mood who knew what might happen?

For it wasn't merely Jessica's divorcing him, nor his father's losing a great deal of money, that was eating him. It was something he had withheld from Toni—a discreditable something she had come upon that very morning in a back copy of a San Francisco paper.

He had been let out of his firm because of a crooked business deal!

That was the reason why he did not show his face in Wall Street. And sooner or later, if he lingered here and contrived to wedge an entry into New York society, his record in all likelihood would leak out.

The fact that it was she who had vouched for him among these people would be held against her. And yet she had to do it, because she, herself, was pretending to be something that she wasn't.

Leaving Brock to her hostess, she passed into the drawing-room beyond.

There were mirrors everywhere. Big family portraits of more or less homely but blue-blooded men and women. Small silhouettes. Expensive bric-a-brac. Palms.

A sudden wistful longing came to Toni to dwell in beautiful surroundings. To have a charming apartment—where Guy might come.

CHAPTER XX.

Reflected in one of the great mirrors she saw Guy greet his hostess on the landing.

At sight of him, color sprang to her cheeks. Her heart beat fast.

She stood as if rooted to the spot.

Miss Brewster's joy in seeing him was evident. Their right hands clasped in greeting, she put her left hand on his arm. They turned to the great sheaf of roses. He was smiling his rare smile. Miss Brewster released her hold, lifted a long stemmed bloom from the vase, snapped it off short and fastened it in his lapel.

"Look, a thorn!" She turned up her palm. "Symbolic of a gift from you, isn't it?" Her face was close to his. She pouted provocatively.

Over and beyond Miss Brewster's shoulder, he saw Toni in the glass. She felt that she was spying, and moved hastily on to the bar, where a few people had already gathered.

Several of them greeted her, and the young man who had suggested getting rid of Brock at the night club, came up to her at once.

"You look lovely, marquise. You disappeared so quickly the other evening—or almost dawning, wasn't it?—that I was afraid that somewhat tight admirer of yours had kidnaped you. In fact, I was so worried I went to look for you, but you'd vanished!"

She thought: "And Brock's here!"

She said: "Oh, he's really a quite charming fellow, usually. We all celebrate at times."

With a quizzical lift of his brow, the youth asked what he might get for her. A dry Martini? A glass of sherry? A champagne cocktail?

She told him she would have a champagne cocktail.

He brought it to her. They drank.

Odd how he brought the conversation back to Brock—thought Toni. Every word that Brock had uttered in front of them came back to her, including the reckless statement: "You and I should have had a home together, if it wasn't for Jessica—blast her!"

Had the youth repeated this to Harriet Brewster?—she wondered.

And would he recognize, in the smartly attired, sober Brock who might appear at any moment, the befuddled Brock who had stumbled over to their table at the night club? And, perhaps, by plying him with drinks, would he probe further, either on his own or Harriet Brewster's behalf?

But Brock had sworn he wouldn't drink at this party. Wanting to make a hit with Harriet Brewster, it behooved him to be careful.

Before Toni had time to find him, Brock himself walked into the bar, and came up to them.

She introduced them. At the same time she gave a warning pressure to Brock's foot. He said blithely: "Haven't I run into you somewhere before?"

"At Le Chateau de la Marquise. You took this charming lady from me. Don't you remember?"

"Yes, perfectly, now. Accept my apologies!"

"You have known each other for some time? You are old friends?"

Again that warning sign from Toni. Brock responded to it. He was debonair.

But his reply alarmed her. He said, airily: :"I've known Antoinette abroad for years. I visited her father's chateau when she was a little girl in pigtails. We played together. Then she went into the convent, and I to school in Paris. We were separated for a long time, but after we were grown up we met again."

"Like Peter Ibbetson in the play with his Duchess of Towers!" suggested the listener, his tone faintly ironical.

"Precisely."

"Except," said Toni desperately, "That Brock and I—we have never been in love. Just friends."

"So? I am surprised."

Then he remembered everything that Brock had said! "We are just old friends," she repeated.

"Well," said the youth lightly, "let's hope the story has a happier ending than the play. Here's to keeping out of quod!" He raised his glass.

Brock stiffened. Was this smart-Aleck trying to get at him over his deal in San Francisco?

Toni said quickly: "He's referring to poor Peter in the play, who ended his days in jail."

Brock chuckled. It had a hollow sound, "Let's drink." A waiter was passing. "A Scotch and soda, please."

"Now you promised to keep on the wagon," reproached Toni, pretending to be playful, but already worried. If Brock got tight again—And here, of all places!

Some one was approaching them. She turned. It was Guy Halstead-Flagg. "May I join your party, marquise?" he asked in his well-bred, charming voice.

The orchestra was playing a waltz from "The Pink Lady." Guy Halstead-Flagg claimed Toni for the dance and they moved off toward the ballroom.

She thought: "What does Brock matter? What does anything in the world matter, but this?"

He held her lightly, though firmly. They moved as one.

The ballroom was long and cool and fragrant with flowers. There were few couples on the floor, most of the guests congregating at the two bars.

"You dance very beautifully, marquise."

"And you, also, monsieur." She was divinely happy, all her cares forgotten.

"You love music?"

"Completely. You, too?"

"With a beautiful girl."

Her heart throbbed.

He had not only a marvelous speaking voice, deep and resonant, but he could sing as well. Very softly, thrillingly—he held her so close that she felt his warm breath on her cheek—he sang a verse from the famous old waltz, to the last soft, caressing line: " 'Come' come, beautiful lady, to paradise!' "

The music stopped.

She said, in a breathless murmur: "That was lovely. Thank you, Mr. Halstead-Flagg."

He smiled down on her. Flushed, eyes shining as though with some inner radiance, she was vividly beautiful at that moment.

"Don't you think we know each other well enough for you to call me 'Guy'?"

"If I may."

There was something humble, something so utterly sweet and girlish in the way she looked and spoke to him that, for a time, he forgot all his doubts and suspicions of her. Indeed, for a mad moment, he had the impulse to kiss the lovely curve of her mouth that was like a bright flower, seize and crush her tantalizing beauty.

He took her arm.

"I want to talk to you. I want to be alone with you. Come." At the far end of the room a velvet portiere hid a door. He opened it, and they were in a smaller room, littered with books and magazines. Facing them was a narrow, curving staircase. "Up here."

He was so close behind her he almost touched her as she climbed to a narrow balcony running round three sides of the room. "Open that door, dear. Go right ahead."

The "dear" fell on her senses happily.

He followed her into a small, enchanting salon with pale yellow moire-silk walls. The effect was of floods of sunshine.

She gave a quick exclamation. "Where are we?" she asked.

The salon was exquisitely furnished. Tiny porcelain urns. Delicately tinted etchings. Everything dainty and pale-toned. "Where are we?" she repeated.

"In paradise."

She gave a happy little laugh. Flung out her arms. "I love it! See the tiny Dresden china shepherdess. And isn't that a Sevres pierrot? And, oh—look at the fat little marquetry commodes!"

He thought, struggling to control the hot feeling that threatened to submerge him and his better judgment: "Always the actress!"

"When we were dancing, you heard my song? But you didn't think I'd meant it so literally, did you?"

She raised puzzled eyes.

He hummed, half cynically, half smiling: " 'Come, come, beautiful lady, to paradise.' I'm a magician!"

She laughed again. Somewhat nervously. This being alone together had a touch of, not exactly fear, but strangeness. With any other man, she would be in command of the situation, but not with some one as forceful as Guy Halstead-Flagg.

"It seems—well, awfully private. Ought we to be in here?"

He ignored the question.

"I brought you here because, ever since I met you, we have never been alone. You are always among a crowd."

She moved over to the Dresden china shepherdess that stood upon the mantelpiece, and said nervously:

"Isn't she lovely?"

"She looks just like you in your costume at the club."

"Flatterer!" She thought: "He's coming up behind me. I must not let him kiss me, must not—"

But even as she thought this, knowing that her whole being cried out for the touch of him, she felt his arms gently, masterfully, go about her, turning her to him, his head lowering to hers.

"No. No."

He looked into her eyes.

She was gone then, helpless, with a delicious sinking feeling, as though warm waves lapping over her drew her down, down, into ecstatic depths.

Then his lips came down on hers, and it seemed to Toni that he was drawing the very soul out of her.

Never in all her life had she felt such a sensation of heavenly rapture. Time itself stood still.

Then she was conscious that his arms were loosening about her. He drew back.

He seemed to give a long sigh. He walked over to a window, raised it a few inches, so that a cool current of air swept into the room.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Invisible Menace"

"The Invisible Menace" starring Boris Karloff, with Marie Wilson, Eddie Craven, Regis Toomey and an excellent supporting cast, opened at the McCarthy Theatre yesterday, and if you like mysteries this will grab your interest at the start and hold it until fadeout.

The finish is a smashing revelation of the killer (yes, it's a murder mystery, to be sure), and he turns out to be an individual that not one out of a hundred in the audience has even suspected. That's the way all movie mysteries should turn out.

Up until the very last moment of the picture the real killer is free and generally unsuspected, but sudden and complete justice is done in the end.

Splendid performances done by Mr. Karloff, who shows that he doesn't need horror roles and complicated make-up to do a fine acting job; by the fresh and youthful Mr. Craven, and by the sparkling comedienne, Marie Wilson, make the film an outstanding one in the realm of movie mysteries.

"The Invisible Menace" was recommended by the Clue Club as the outstanding mystery of the month. Plan now to see it.

Excellent Short Subjects

In addition to the feature presentation a highly entertaining assortment of excellent short subjects are presented, Leon Errol in "Berth Quakes" is truly a riot of fun from beginning to end, as is "Waiting Around," the musical comedy hit with an all star cast of funmakers and entertainers. A clever all technicolor cartoon entitled "The Horse on the Merry-Go-Round" and a splendid sport subject of special interest to boxing fans entitled "Fistic Fun" are two more very pleasing presentations and last but not least the program includes another chapter of "The Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok" that is sure to please.

AT THE BELLE

Marx Bros. "Room Service"

Let the maniacal Marx Brothers run amuck in a sumptuous hotel; let Groucho become a shoestring producer who stages extravagant shows without a penny; let Harpo and Chico become his semi-insane aides in hilarity; let there be a lovely blonde and a gorgeous brunette and you have the dizzy, daft, goofy Marx Brothers in their gayest, side-splitting fun-fest to date, "Room Service"—a solid hour and a half of gala gags and sparkling comedy which comes to the Belle Theatre.

Adhering closely to the Broadway success from which it is smartly adapted, "Room Service" has the Marx Brothers step into three principal roles in a ready-made comedy and carry it to unprecedented uproarious heights. In their traditional peculiarities of costume and make-up the maestros of mad merriment are madder than ever, more bewildering than ever, and funnier than ever!

In the side-splitting plot, Groucho Marx, a theatrical producer without a cent, endeavors to maintain himself and his cast at a Broadway hotel on credit while looking for a backer for his play. Through his brother-in-law, the hotel manager, he accomplishes this successfully—until one of the hotel's higher executives finds him owing $1,200 just as a backer appears on the Marxian horizon.

The ensuing ruses and complications to hold show and stomach together at the expense of others are perpetrated by Groucho, Chico and Harpo as only the mad Marxes can. They provide a steady flow of laugh-crammed situations which sometimes come so fast that they left this reviewer limp.

Top-notch is the best description of the comic trio's laugh-making. Ann Miller and Frank Albertson supply the romantic interest in excellent style, while Lucille Ball plays the other feminine lead with the caustic gag-hurling comedy brilliance she displayed in "Stage Door."

With the added principal performances of six members of the original cast, the deft direction of William A. Seiter, Morrie Ryskind's superb scenario, and the handsome production by Pandro S. Berman, "Room Service" zooms across the screen as one of the most hilarious comedy smashes ever shown. It's a real treat for the fans....a genuine, honest-to-goodness "must-be-seen."

"Smashing the Rackets"

Chester Morris, noted for his strong dramatic screen portrayals, has one of the most compelling roles of his career in RKO Radio's "Smashing the Rackets", vivid drama of gangster lords and their defeat in a large metropolitan city, announced as the added feature attraction.

A favorite with film-goers since his early triumphs in "The Big House" and "The Bat Whispers," Morris has recently won additional honors with his work in such pictures as "Sky Giant", "Law of the Underworld" and "Flight From Glory."

In his current vehicle, most of which is based on recent actual happenings in a big eastern metropolis, Morris plays a G-man chief whose relentless war on the underworld wins him an appointment in a district attorney's office, and later as a special prosecutor for the grand jury. How the determined young man virtually conducts a one-man crusade against vice and racketeering, and cleverly hurdles official red tape in obtaining his evidence against the higher-ups in the vicious ring, forms the basis of the dramatic plot.

NEWS ODDITIES AND BRIEFS

LEGHORN LAYS LARGE EGG

Ottawa, Oct. 29 (CP)—Mrs. W. N. Monney's amazing white leghorn hen laid an egg yesterday 8 3-4 inches long and 6 1-2 inches around. Inside the large egg was a perfectly formed one of natural size. Last summer the same hen was in the news with an egg eight inches long and six inches around.

FIREMEN CALLED TO PUT OUT CIGARETTE BUTT

Edmonton, Oct. 29 (CP)—Edmonton's firemen did a lot of rushing around last night—and wound up putting out a cigarette butt. At the General Hospital someone dropped a cigarette butt into a hole in the floor. The firemen arrived in time to put it out.

FOOD TASTES ARE UNCHANGED

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 29 (AP)—About the only thing that hasn't changed in the past 32 years is the public appetite says Durris Crane, a hotel food chef. The public still wants: Ham and eggs for breakfast.

Chicken pot pie for lunch,

Steak for dinner.

Here for a convention, Crane said "salads and tomato juice," are the only notable food developments in the last three decades.

USES SNAKE FOR NECKTIE

Pittsburgh, Oct. 29 (AP)—Police confiscated a three-foot snake after horrified residents phoned that a man was wearing it as a necktie. The man with the snake said he bought it for 25 cents. Sergeant Clifford Blackburn sent the reptile to the Zoo.

HOUSEWIVES EXPLAIN THIS

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Here's one for housewives to explain: The United States Census Bureau said today that the demand for brooms declined 14 per cent between 1935 and 1937.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Weather and clothes! Clothes are not always worn for protection against the weather. The aborigine of warm countries will often cover himself in deference to the prejudices of the white man but not from choice, nor even because of the severity of the weather. One traveller tells of having five blankets to cover himself at night while the natives would lie unclothed on a single blanket, and this while the temperature fell below freezing. They prefer not to be burdened during the warm days with the extra weight, it seems. They also will wear covering rather against the wet than against the cold, as the former affects their health more than the latter.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 29 (CP)—Pressure is high over the central portion of the continent, but is falling fairly rapidly over the Prairie Provinces while the disturbance which was near the Middle Atlantic coast yesterday morning has remained almost stationary. The weather has been fair with moderate temperature in nearly all districts from Alberta eastward to the Maritime Provinces.

Lake Superior—Moderate northerly winds; fair and cool. Sunday, fresh southeast and south winds; partly cloudy and somewhat milder.

Manitoba — Fresh southeasterly winds; fair and becoming somewhat milder. Sunday, fresh to strong winds; partly cloudy; probably light scattered showers; not much change in temperature.

Saskatchewan — Strong southerly winds; mostly fair and comparatively mild. Sunday, fresh to strong winds; partly cloudy; probably scattered showers; cool in northern districts.

Alberta — Mostly cloudy tonight and Sunday; probably scattered showers; cool in northern districts.

GENERAL VON EPP HITLER'S DEPUTY GIVES STATEMENT

Will Never Attempt To Solve Colonial Problem By Force

REICH OPENS SCHOOL

Future Relations Depend On Willingness of Powers To Co-operate

Ladeburg, Germany, Oct. 29 (AP)—Germany demands the return of all her colonies, without exception, taken from her by the Versailles Treaty, General Franz von Epp, Governor of Bavaria and Chancellor Hitler's Deputy for Colonial Matters declared today.

He spoke at the opening of the Reich's colonial school.

Future relations with other great European powers, von Epp indicated, depended on their willingness to disgorge the property which Germany regards as stolen.

(Besides her former African colonies — the Cameroons, Togoland, German Southwest Africa and German East Africa, now divided among mandates to France, Great Britain, Belgium and the Union of South Africa—Germany's pre-war overseas possessions included the Caroline and Marshall Islands in the Pacific now under Japanese mandate, New Guinea now mandated to Australia, German Samoa now a New Zealand mandate, and Kiaochow, a German colony in China.)

The leader of Germany's colonial movement declared, however, that "we will never attempt to solve the colonial problem by military force."

The colonial school opened today aims at the training of colonial leaders ready for "der tag" (the day) when Germany re-enters upon possession of her former overseas territories.

SPEECHLESS FROM FEAR

San Francisco, Oct. 29—(AP)—An Alcatraz convict, James Lucas, reportedly speechless from fear, was ordered on trial Monday for the murder of a prison guard in a vain escape attempt.

Lucas, 26, Texas robber, appeared in Federal court yesterday when Dr. Joseph Catton, San Francisco psychiatrist, said Lucas was "scared speechless but is not insane."

Defence attorneys seeking a delay, said they could not prepare their case because Lucas would not speak to them.

FOG HAMPERS TRAFFIC

London, Oct. 29 (AP)—Fog hampered traffic in various parts of England today, particularly the London suburbs, Lincolnshire, and the Manchester region.

BURNS CAUSE DEATH

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 29—(CP)—Douglas McRae, young mechanic, burned last Sunday while at work in the garage of W. J Neddo died here last night.

McRae had most of the clothing burned from his body when a can of gasoline fell from a shelf, exploded and caught fire. His home was in the neighborhood of Spencerville, [illegible] County.

Quebec to Float Large Bond Loan

Montreal, Oct. 29 (CP)—The Gazette said this morning "a strong syndicate" of Canadian banks and investment dealers, headed by the Bank of Montreal, "is offering to institutions today and will offer to the general public Monday, a new issue of $30,000,000 Province of Quebec short-term and long-term bonds."

The Gazette said it was understood the fund would be used in part for the matured and maturing obligations, in part for the general purposes of the province.

"The public offering will cover: $5,000,000 3-year 2's at 99¼ to yield 2.26 per cent; $5,000,000 5-year 2½'s at 99¼ to yield 2.66 per cent, and $20,000,000 9-year 3's at 98.06 to yield 3.25 per cent. The issue will meet with a good reception."

POLISH JEWS HELD AS GOVERNMENTS DEBATE MEANING

1,100 Rounded Up In Night And Placed In Concentration Camps

Berlin, Oct. 29 (AP)—Thousands of Polish Jews were held at German concentration points awaiting possible deportation to their homeland today while the Warsaw and Berlin governments debated the meaning of a new Polish citizenship law.

Polish police estimated 1,100 Jews, rounded up in swift night raids, already had been shipped to Poland through Schneidemuehl. An unrevealed number was kept at Neu-Bentschen, another border town, by secret police. Additional thousands in secret police custody elsewhere were ready to be evicted if Polish-German negotiations should fail.

Poland has ordered that Nationals living abroad must have their passports certified by consular offices or lose their right to re-enter Poland. Polish Jews believed the law, effective tomorrow, might be an attempt to deprive Polish Jews abroad of their passports. Informed quarters said Germany feared many Poles would become public charges if refused revalidation stamps.

The government estimated that 150,000 Poles live in Germany, of whom only a fraction are Jews.

("Energetic Polish intervention" against the deportations was announced by Poland. Warsaw reported negotiations were under way to stop the deportations from Germany and to allow those already expelled to take their property with them. The Nazi drive was called a "misunderstanding" in authoritative Warsaw circles.)

The thousands of male Jews, routed from their homes in the night throughout Germany and confined to barracks and border stations pinned their hopes to the negotiations, scheduled to continue today.

Roundups continued in Vienna where black-uniformed Elite Guards as the executive organ of the secret police, resumed combing the city's Jewish districts. The number taken into custody was estimated to exceed 2,000, about 500 of whom were Hungarian and Rumanian Jews. They were released later.

British and U. S. Interests To Present a Solid Front

Resist Japanese Efforts To Monopolize Chinese Trade

MUST CORRECT ABUSES

Shanghai, Oct. 29 (AP) — The British and American Chambers of Commerce in Shanghai met jointly today to discuss a united front against Japanese efforts to monopolize Chinese trade.

The move came as the Chinese press reported Japanese firms rapidly were establishing sales offices in all conquered cities and towns to handle all kinds of goods while foreign trade is blocked by the Japanese military.

A statement issued by the Shanghai American Association in conjunction with the Shanghai American Chamber of Commerce said that unless such a reply was forthcoming soon they hoped the United States would "promptly bring pressure on Japan to insure cessation of Japanese discrimination against American trade and cultural efforts in China."

Money Found in Discarded Book

Boston, Oct. 29 (AP) — Aching back muscles troubled an entire Brighton family today after a hunt through 75,000 discarded telephone books for $1,500 in $100 bills carelessly hidden in one of them—but they had the money to salve their pains.

The story goes back to last Saturday when Joseph Harkins came home with receipts from his jewelry store. He slipped the money into the telephone book for a hiding place.

On Monday a telephone employee delivered a new directory and carried off the old one—and the money.

Harkins, his sister, her husband and a couple of nephews took turns poring over a pile of 100,000 discarded phone books, one by one, night and day. Last night, after they had turned over three-quarters of the pile, the money fluttered out.

4 WOMEN DROWN IN LACHINE CANAL

Car In Which They Were Riding Plunges Over Canal Bank

Montreal, Oct. 29 (CP)—Police today probed deaths of four women who were drowned in Lachine Canal last night when the automobile in which they were riding plunged over the canal bank and dropped ten feet to the water.

J. Morris Hunter, driver of the car and a resident of Huntingdon, Que., was the only occupant of the vehicle to escape. Night Watchman Albert Dumouchel pulled him from the water after he had managed to crawl through a window as the car sank.

The dead: Mrs. Morris Hunter, Mrs. Greta Hunter, 53, Hunter's mother, Mrs. Louise Kelly, 8, and Mrs. H. G. Gessner, 63, his aunts. Mrs. Gessner was from New York City, the others from Huntingdon.

The bodies of the four women were found huddled in the car when it was raised from the canal bottom.

Hunter could throw little light on the accident. He remembered trying to open a car door as the vehicle sank, and of crawling through an open window when the door remained jammed.

It was believed Hunter failed to make a left turn to get parallel to the canal bank again after buildings had forced him to turn right toward the bank.

ATTEMPT TO STOP TRAIN ADMITTED

16-Year-Old Farm Boy Will Likely Appear In Court For Offence

Cochrane, Ont., Oct. 29 (CP)—A crude attempt to wreck a Canadian National Railways train carrying 50 persons will bring a 16-year-old farm boy into court today. Arrested last night, the lad is said by police to have readily admitted the attempt, but no charge was laid immediately.

Parents of the boy expressed belief that reading too much "western and blood-and-thunder literature" led to his action. They think he may have been trying to re-enact something he read when he placed ties and other obstructions across the rail line.

Engineer Donald McKinnon spotted the obstructions and stopped the train in the nick of time. The engine struck a signboard and switch light without damage, but a mile and a half farther down the track two 12-foot poles and half a dozen ties were heaped in a more formidable obstacle.

Railway and district police investigated the theory a gang of transients put off C.N.R. trains may have engineered the attempted wrecking as revenge. A former railway employe also was questioned before the trail turned to the farm boy. He was located at his home in Brower Township near Abitibi and jailed.

56 KNOWN DEAD IN PARIS FIRE

Troops Wtih Fixed Bayonets Guard Ruins To Prevent Looting

Marseille, Oct. 29 (AP)—The official death list from last night's fire mounted to 56 today and it was feared the toll might reach 100.

Besides those known to be dead, many others were missing, particularly in the Nouvelles Galleries de Paris Department Store where the blaze started. Firemen said there were "heaps" of bodies at the bottom of a stairway which collapsed. Thirty-five persons were being treated in hospitals.

Some of the missing, ironically, were workmen constructing a fireproof cellar to protect employees against air-raid fires in the five-storey building. The floors of the department store collapsed less than 20 minutes after the fire was discovered.

Troops with fixed bayonets stood guard throughout the night around the smoking ruins to stop looting which started when thieves pillaged guests' rooms of three large hotels, ruined by fire and water.

Thousands of firemen from towns as far away as Lyons, 220 miles to the north, battled the flames which swept across wide boulevards under the force of winds of almost gale strength

DOCTOR BLAMED FOR MAN'S DEATH

Warren Snyder, Former Football Star, Named By Coroner's Jury

Toronto, Oct. 29 (CP)—Football star of a decade ago, Dr. Warren Snyder was blamed by a coroner's jury today for the death of Reginal Clements, 49-year-old Toronto salesman, killed when knocked from a bicycle by Snyder's automobile Oct. 2.

An inquest was concluded early today with a jury's verdict declaring that "from the evidence, we hold Dr. Snyder responsible for the death." Witnesses told of seeing Clements' body hurled beneath a parked car at a mid-city intersection.

Snyder, whose name was known across Canada when he played on the University of Toronto's half-line was arrested near the scene of the fatality and charged with manslaughter. The following day he was suspended by Attorney-General Gordon Conant as Coroner of suburban Mimico.

Dr. Frankish testified that a blood test soon after the accident revealed 3.75 parts of alcohol to 1,000 parts of blood in Snyder's body and said: "A man with that much liquor in his blood would be bleary-eyed drunk."

CONFIDENCE VOTE GIVEN DALADIER BY THE CONGRESS

Must Defend Democratic Liberties of Press, Speech, Religion Claimed

DEFEND RIGHTS

Herriott Makes Impassioned Plea Before Vote Is Taken

Marseille, France, Oct. 29 (CP-Havas)—The French Republic will go the way of Austria, Czechoslovakia, Spain, and China unless it firmly defends the democratic liberties of the press, of speech, and of religion, Edouard Herriot, President of the Chamber of Deputies, said in a speech at the Radical-Socialist party congress here today.

Herriot indirectly warned Premier Edouard Daladier not to drive a wedge between the workers and other classes in France, declaring the united forces of the nation were needed if France was to stand firm as the protector of democracy in Europe.

After Herriot's impassioned speech the congress adopted a motion of confidence in the foreign policy of the Daladier government. Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet earlier had re-affirmed the validity of the Franco-Russian Mutual Assistance Pact.

"Do you not remember the fate of the Austrian Republic, the Czechoslovak Republic, the Spanish Republic, the Chinese Republic?" Herriot asked the congress. "How many examples do you require to make you think?

Speaker Asks Question.

"Are you going to abandon liberty and the regime based upon it?" the former premier asked.

"You have to defend all forms of liberty, especially the freedom of the press. You have also to defend religious liberty, the freedom of conscience, the right to be born Jew or Christian.

"We have to struggle against the racial ideas which reduce us to the level of animals .

"We have to defend the human person, human rights, the right of a man to stand alone against all which might oppress him. It is we who have to defend the human equality proclaimed by the revolution, the rights of men of color which may perhaps tomorrow be brought into question when the colonial issue is raised.

"All Frenchmen have to defend France, but we Radicals also have to defend the democratic ideal. It is on this basis that we shall establish the unanimity of my party, faithful to its traditions and conscious of its destinies."

Norwich, England, Oct. 29 (CP-Havas)—The king and queen were cheered today when they arrived by automobile from Sandringham to inaugurate a new town hall. After the ceremonies the king attended a football match.

Composite Craft Quadruples Range of Single Airplane

Capt. Bennett of 'Mercury' Says Potentialities Tremendous

FUEL BILL LOW

London, Oct. 29—(CP)— Mid-air launching has convinced Captain Donald Bennett, pilot of Mercury, upper component of the Mayo composite aircraft, that 5,000-mile non-stop flights will be considered "hops" in the future.

After establishing a long-range South Africa distance of 6,045 miles—the pilot declared the completion of a flight of such magnitude proved the principle of composite aircraft "holds tremendous potentialities for the future."

He said the Mercury unaided would possess a range not much more than 1,500 miles but in conjunction with Maia, the lower half, that could be quadrupled. If necessary, he said, it could carry twice the normal load for double the distance which could be achieved by any ordinary aircraft.

Captain Bennett mentioned that on the recent flight of the Mercury from Southampton to Montreal the fuel bill could not have been much in excess of $500 for 2,900 miles.

TO KEEP SCHOOLS OPEN

Dayton, O., Oct. 29.—(AP) — Judge Null Hodapp today issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting the Dayton Board of Education from closing the city's schools to 34,000 students.

The board was ordered to open its doors as usual Monday and to continue operations pending a hearing on a permanent injunction to prevent closing. The petition was filed by Richard Withrow, the only dissenting member of the Board which ordered the closing because of a bare treasury and a $61,000 deficit.

Withrow said the closing order "is unnecessary at this time".

Manifesto Says Britain Must Give Lead To Remove Grievances

By J. F. SANDERSON

London, Oct. 29 (CP)—The Labor party came out definitely last night for Ministries of Defence and Supply in a pre-session manifesto which assailed the government's foreign and domestic policies.

Here are some of the major policies expounded by the National Executive of the Labor party:

1. Provision of such arms as are necessary to defend the country and to fulfil its obligations as a member of the League of Nations and of the British Commonwealth.

2. The country must be made safe from air attack.

3. The resources of the country in scientific knowledge and manpower must be organized, including use of the unemployed, but there must be no conscription for the armed forces, or for passive defence or industry.

4. Ministries of defence and supply must be created.

5. Sacrifices must be made on the part of those best able to bear them, with heavier taxation on large incomes and the great fortunes.

6. Home production and storage of food must be increased greatly.

7. National control and ownership of key industries, finance, investment, foreign exchange, food production, foreign trade, coal, power, and arms manufacture must be instituted.

8. Trade must be extended with the British Commonwealth, the United States, and other democratic, friendly countries.

9. Increased use must be made of export credits and imports control.

10. The colonial question — evidently a reference to German demands—must not be solved by redistributing territories among competing powers, but by applying to all colonies not ripe for self-government the principle of international trusteeship in the interests of the colonial peoples and of the world.

Government Is Accused.

The party manifesto accused the government of reducing the League of Nations to impotence, or shattering collective security, and of bringing the country to the brink of war. By its actions the government had placed Germany, in a position to dominate Europe from the North Sea to the Mediterranean.

Great Britain's standing in the world had been damaged gravely, the manifesto continued. Aggression by the military dictatorships went unchecked. British ships and seamen were bombed with impunity. British interests in Europe, the Med-

SETTLEMENT IMMINENT

Port Colborne, Ont., Oct. 30 (CP)—Settlement of the stormy Humberstone Shoe Company strike was imminent today as the outcome of the personal efforts last night of Ontario's new Minister of Labor, Hon. Norman O. Hipel.

In a five-hour conference with representatives of the company and the strikers, which ended past midnight, Mr. Hipel later announced "definite progress" had been made. A final agreement would be discussed at another meeting today, he said.

IMPORTANT PEACE TIME PARLIAMENT TO OPEN NOV. 8

King George Will Officiate With Time Honored Pageantry

2 ISSUES UPPERMOST

By J. F. SANDERSON

London, Oct. 29 (CP)—One of the most momentous peace time sessions of parliament in Great Britain's modern history will be opened Nov. 8 by the King with all the time-honored pageantry.

Parliament actually will meet Nov. 1 to wind up the business of the present session, sitting two or three days before proroguing. In both the short and long sessions, two topics will overshadow all others—defence and foreign affairs.

The Munich agreement will be discussed in the light of the final delineation of Czechoslovakia's boundaries and Germany's economic drive down the Danube.

Dormant Since April.

The government is expected to set a date sometime between the middle and end of November on which the Anglo-Italian Treaty will come into operation, and then invite discussion on it. The agreement has lain dormant since April pending withdrawal of a sufficient number of Italian troops from Spain to be regarded as a "settlement' 'in Spain as far as Anglo-Italian relations are affected.

Another topic of debate—it may overshadow many others—will be Germany's demand for the return of war-lost colonies. On this subject, complicated because Australia, New Zealand and South Africa as well as Great Britain hold mandates over former German colonies, there are two sharply divided opinions.

Some members of parliament, cutting across political lines, believe Germany has the moral right to the return of colonies essential to an expanding European nation as sources of supply.

Many Oppose Return.

Others oppose the return of African and Pacific Ocean colonies for economic as well as military reasons. They fear Germany might develop naval stations which would endanger Empire commercial communications.

New defence measures on a voluntary basis are expected to be announced by the government at the short session. They will be designed to fill the gaps revealed when the country went on a modified war footing during the Czechoslovak-German crisis of September.

It was considered a strong possibility that Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will present Britain's first £1,000,000,000 budget next April when he tables the annual financial statement.

CITY STAND PIPE DRAINED, CLEANED IN SHORT TIME

265,000 Gallons of Water Let Out Through New Piping In Drains—Operation of Cleaning Simplified And Shortened With New Equipment—Pipe Is Refilled

Two hundred and fifty thousand gallons of water flowed into the Moira River today as workmen of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission drained the one hundred and twenty foot standpipe at the rear of Tabernacle United Church.

Water from the towering metal structure that measures twenty-five feet in diameter flowed through a new system of piping recently installed to offset the usual procedure of draining the tank through the inlet mains. By this procedure any accumulation that may exist in the tank is drained through the new outlets instead of being forced through the mains.

Officials of the Public Utilities were highly elated today with the results of the drainage. While a twelve inch depth of muck was apparent at the bottom of the huge pipe there were no signs of accumulation or verdigris on the inside walls of the pipe. This in consideration of the fact that the pipe has not been drained for a number of years speaks highly of the quality of the water here.

No Odors to Standpipe

There were no odors apparent in the inside of the pipe, while the residue taken from the bottom was free from vegetation and solid matter. It was a free-flowing fairly dense muck that as one official puts it "was as sweet as a nut."

With the new facilities for drainage working satisfactorily, drainage of the pipe will be undertaken at regular intervals Mr. O. H. Scott, manager of the Public Utilities Commission stated this morning.

Built fifty years ago, the large structure shows little of the ravages of time. Erected on a solid foundation that extends in a circle for some distance from the actual base, the pipe is in perfect plumb, and shows no evidence of leaning, or effects of weather conditions.

Drainage of the tank occurred without incident. Started shortly after midnight the work of draining and cleaning was completed at approximately eleven o'clock this morning. Powerful streams of water were used to flush the bottom of the tank after all residue had been removed.

Water flowed through the new pipe that connects the overflow pipe from the main entry. The large flow-control valves are closed preventing water from flowing back into mains; and piping systems.

"The new system worked without a hitch", Mr. Scott stated "and is a decided improvement from all angles over the system used previous to installation of the new one."

Water flowed back into the standpipe shortly after eleven o'clock today.

CONSERVATIVES MEET IN MARMORA

Three Definitely In Field As Candidate For Riding

Marmora, historic seat of many a heated political battle will again echo to the sounds of pre-election battle-cries on November 2nd, when stalwarts of Hastings-Peterborough Conservatives converge on the Hastings County village to select a candidate to contest the riding in the next Federal election.

The Hon. Earle Lawson, K. C., M.P., will be the guest speaker while Dr. Harold Welsh, M.P.P., R. D. Arnott, K.C.M.P.P., and other prominent speakers will be heard.

An authoritative source reveals that three candidates are definitely in the field. T. P. Lancaster, Ex-M.P.P., well-known newspaperman, George Thompson, Reeve of Rawdon Township and George White, barrister of Madoc, have signified their intention of entering the field, while Dr. Embury, ex-member and Dr. J. J. Lumb, Reeve of Bancroft are named as probable entries.

Mr. Lancaster and Dr. Embury are the only ones with any previous parliamentary experience, the former having sat in the Ontario Legislature for eight years, while Dr. Embury represented the riding from 1925 until his defeat by the present member Rorke Ferguson in 1935. Dr. Lumb and Mr. Thompson are members of the Hastings County Council, while Mr. White has been a party organizer and supporter for some time.

The dual riding is composed of all that portion of Hastings County from the middle of the village of Stirling to its northern boundary and that section of Peterboro County including Belmont and Methuen, Havelock, Norwood, Asphodel, Dummer, Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos.

While it is not probable that a general election will be held before the autumn of next year, with the number of candidates in the field the forthcoming convention will in all likelihood be a lively one.

CAMPAIGN DRIVE IS $1,600 SHORT

'Y' Officials Expect Full Sum Will Be Realized

With only fifty per cent of their issued subscription cards having been accounted for the Belleville Y.M.C.A. fell short over $1600 of their current financial campaign drive, which was conducted this week. The drive was to collect the sum of $5,000.00 urgently needed to meet the necessary operating expenses of the "Y".

Association officials announced this morning they were anticipating sufficient returns from their outstanding subscription cards, yet to be heard from, and from which they hoped to reach their objective.

At the conclusion of the campaign drive a total of 377 subscriptions had been received for a promised value of $3313.50, while the actual sum collected had been $1404.50. An additional $1687.00 is needed to meet the requirements of the drive and to assure the operating expenses of the Y.M.C.A. for the next year.

Again special names captain H. W. Ackerman's team led the campaign with a total of 61 subscriptions for a total of $1,446.00 of which $545.00 was cash. Captain Leo Riggs was next in subscriptions, followed by Norm Edwards and Lorne McDougall. General Chairman W. B. Deacon revealed there were still some 400 subscription cards upon which no report has been received.

"We hope the citizens in possession of the remaining 400 subscription cards will respond to the need of the Y.M.C.A. and help us realize our objective," stated General Secretary J. E. Shortt today as he urged public assistance in the campaign.

Brighton Man Takes Two Chances To Win Money

Maynard Johnson, resident of Brighton, jingling forty-five hundred dollars in his pocket, is chuckling quietly to himself these days.

For he took two chances to win money, and while the first one "clicked" when the ticket he bought in the recent Irish Sweepstakes drew a horse, the half interest he sold for $3500 to a New York syndicate, paradoxically did not turn out so well—for the syndicate, yet it brought Johnson more money than he would have had, had he refused to sell.

"Ranfield" the nag on whose not-so-flying hoofs Maynard's chances of winning one hundred and fifty thousand dollars lay, is running yet as far as Maynard is concerned. His failure to get into the coveted "money circle" cost the New York chance-takers a cool thirty-five hundred dollars while their return on their investment was one-half of $2,185, the money won by Johnson's ticket, on account of "Ranfield" lingering too long to look at the scenery while encircling the track.

Dairymen's Trophies Awarded to Winners

At the annual combined banquet of the Bay of Quinte and Frontenac Buttermakers' Clubs held in Kingston on Thursday evening, and attended by well over three hundred officials, buttermakers, factory salesmen and guests prizes were awarded the following for high scores made during the past year.

Cherry-Burrell grand championship trophy and C. V. Parchment trophy, won by Wilfred Gurnsey, Kingston Creameries; Rodway-Ganton butter scoring trophy for one year, J. O. Cliff, Price's Dairy; Quinte Creamery, men's trophy and prize, Donald Silver, Kingston Creameries; H. T. Chisholm trophy, Roy Jose, Glenroy Creamery of Belleville.

Other awards were: S. F. Lawrason Company prize, G. L. Balfour, Napanee Creameries; Canadian Vegetable Parchment Company prize, R. A. Willett, Hemlock Park Dairy; Walker-Wallace prize, W. Revelle, Tamworth Creamery.

S. F. Lawrason Company prize, E. J. Latimer, Price's Dairy; Canadian Vegetable Parchment Company, second prize, Frank Plue, Sydenham Dairy; Walker-Wallace prize, Robert Barclay, Sydenham Dairy; Canadian Vegetable Parchment Company, T. V. Mallette, Swift Canadian Company, Belleville.

Other prize winners were E. V. Stephens, Trent Valley Creameries, Campbellford; J. W. Hill, Sydenham Dairy; R. Westfall, Citizen's Dairy, Belleville; F. C. McGuin, Citizen's Dairy, Belleville; Jack Motley, Citizen's Dairy, Belleville; Mac Seeley, Prince Edward Dairy, Picton; Fred McGuin, Citizen's Dairy, Belleville.

Guest speaker of the evening was Mr. C. E. Lackner, newly appointed director of dairying for the Province of Ontario. Chairman was Dr. A. L. Gibson, of the Eastern Ontario Dairying School.

When you may be led, by the familiar "bait" advertising methods, to expect glasses of high quality at "moderate prices," "low cost", etc., just demand a maker's CERTIFICATE. You are entitled to it, and if the lenses are of the best type, the issuer will gladly comply. Depend upon it, if you are not furnished a protection certificate you are being grossly overcharged for inferior quality. Shop around and satisfy yourself.

Squirrels Migrating In Southerly Direction

What may or may not be a sign of a hard winter is seen in the migration of squirrels in the vicinity of Glenora, a resident of that district in the city today told a representative of the Ontario Intelligencer.

Several years ago, they were to be seen crossing the bay from Glenora, but this year the direction has been reversed.

With tails sticking straight up out of the water, numerous specimens of the black squirrel family have been seen swimming southward across the bay at this point. Many fail to reach the Glenora side, as evidenced in the bodies found washed on the shore.

Operators on the Glenora ferry noticing the animals swimming in the water have attempted to rescue them, but on each occasion the squirrels have turned "tail" and swam in the opposite direction.

No one, according to the Glenora resident, has been able to fully discover why or what causes the squirrels to move in this fashion.

Car Allegedly Fails To Negotiate Curve

A dual honeymoon party was abruptly halted two miles west of Deseronto at midnight last night, when the automobile in which the nuptial parties were travelling left the highway and crashed into a guard rail. Only one occupant, Mrs. Edgar Goulet, Thedford Mines, Que., sustained injuries, Mrs. Goulet being treated at the Belleville General Hospital for facial injuries. A stitch was needed to close a lip cut, while Mrs. Goulet also suffered severe nose lacerations, the result of flying glass.

Mr. and Mrs. Goulet were returning home from a honeymoon journey to Detroit, accompanied by Mr. Goulet's sister Mrs. P. Bourett and her husband, who were also in Detroit. Goulet was driving, when the vehicle failed to negotiate a curve two miles west of Deseronto. The vehicle broke off four guard rail posts before coming to a halt. Provincial Constables Barrett, Napanee, and Wm. McBrien, Belleville, investigated. Dr. G. S. Cronk attended the injured woman at the Belleville General Hospital.

Police Blotter

John Jackson, transient, was arrested on Pinnacle Street yesterday charged with intoxication. On the person of the accused was found a bottle of native wine. Jackson was said to have been causing a disturbance which resulted in the summoning of the police.

A parked bicycle, owned by Robert Ashley, 21 North Front Street, was somewhat damaged when struck by a motor car driven by Wm. Storms, 41 South Front Street, yesterday afternoon. Young Ashley parked his bike on Front Street, Storms apparently failing to observe the bike when parking. Storms reported the accident to P. C. Thomson.

The store front of Charles Walters' tailor shop narrowly escaped being badly damaged yesterday afternoon when a parked automobile was struck and bounded across the sidewalk to collide with the store front. Fortunately the parked vehicle was in gear at the time, which diminished its speed after the impact.

Wm. Cook, 165 Ann Street, was proceeding northerly on Front St., when he was crowded to the east side of the pavement. Cook's front bumper struck the rear of a parked car, owned by N. Karis, Toronto, with the result the latter vehicle hurtled the curb and advanced until it struck the front of Walters' store. Fortunately no pedestrians were passing at the time, however. Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard investigated.

TRUCK DRIVERS JUST PAYING DEBT

Pair Causes Considerable Merriment On Main Street of Picton

Life on Picton's Main Street pursued the even tenor of its way yesterday afternoon. Shoppers sauntered into stores and shops while motor traffic chugged along at its accustomed rate of speed. Everything appeared to be normal, until a commotion at the lower end of the thoroughfare caused pedestrian and motorist alike to raise curious eyebrows.

Far down the street came a strange parade. On the sidewalk a laughing jostling crowd of small boys and grownups moved slowly along, keeping time to something that moved along the street, and filling the afternoon air with their merriment.

Behind the large form of Chief of Police Biddle, who waved oncoming traffic to the curb, came a baby perambulator. Jammed in its small interior, with limbs sticking outward at awkward angles was the body of a husky uniformed truck-driver. Behind him, and supplying the propellant power, was another trucker, hot of brow and red, very red of face.

Down Main Street the strange equipage passed. At the east end of the thoroughfare, the "passenger" disembarked and thanked his "chauffeur".

There was no harm done, in fact both truck drivers, employees of the Burford Transport Co., were only taking part in the payment of a bet.

REV. A. G. SINCLAIR BID FAREWELL BY CONGREGATION

Popular Young Pastor Honored By Devoted Membership

PRESENT GIFTS

Members and adherents of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church gathered at a farewell party Thursday night in the church basement to honor Rev. A. G. Sinclair, his mother, and Miss Smith, his aunt, who leave Belleville for Saskatoon next week. Mr. Sinclair was presented with a purse of money, Mrs. Sinclair received a lovely cut-glass vase and Miss Smith a beautiful hand-painted picture.

Deacon A. Lounsberry opened the meeting with prayer after which a splendid period of entertainment was provided with vocal solos by Miss Phyllis May, Mr. Crossman and Mr. Frank Whittle, two rollicking raedings by Miss Mildred Lloyd and two fine selections on the cornet by Mr. Albert Wonnacott.

Gordon Bray Chairman

Mr. G. H. Bray, who was chairman for the evening, addressed Mr. Sinclair as follows: "This is an occasion of sadness but also of gladness; sad because we must part with such a good friend and glad because you are privileged to enter a field of greater scope. Through the passage of years friends must come and go. If, in the coming and the going we can accomplish things, then the passing has been worth while. Our association with you in this church has enriched us to great extent; there is no doubt whatever that the ministry of the past four years has made us much better. Please accept this token of our love and esteem. Our sincere wishes are that you may accomplish great things in the new field to which you are about to enter and may God's blessing be with you always."

Expressions of appreciation were heard from representatives of the various departments of the church. Mr. Stanley May, chairman of the Deacons Board, said that no man could have accomplished more than did Mr. Sinclair during the four years of his ministry. Mr. E. C. Moynes choir leader, stated that Mr. Sinclair was always ready to say an appreciative word about the work of the choir. Miss Ethel Nurse, on behalf of the Sunday School, thanked Mr. Sinclair for his co-operation and interest in the Sunday School. Miss Della Anderson, president of the senior B.Y.P.U., stated that through Mr. Sinclair's influence, many of the young people had made the greatest decision of their lives, that of accepting Jesus Christ as the Lord of their lives. Miss Doris Whittle, president of the Intermediate B. Y. P. U., deeply appreciated the kind help of Mr. Sinclair in founding the intermediate young folk's group. It had shown remarkable growth since its inception a few months ago.

Touched By Devotion

Touched by the general evidence of deep devotion Mr. Sinclair expressed his sincere appreciation of the kind things said about him. "It is very gracious of you to arrange this farewell for us this evening," he said. "You have said many kind things about my ministry here. If my ministry has been, with God's guidance, a blessing to you I can assure you that your faithfulness, your kindness and splendid co-operation has been a blessing to me and my household. In this lovely way God co-operates with us. If success has been achieved during the past four years it is due to our co-operative effort. You have played a very definite part.

I had an ambition when I came to Belleville, in the hands of God, to place this church on the power level—not of myself but used of God. We have accomplished much together and we are in a position to carry on splendidly; you, here, under a new leadership and I in another field of service. I had a feeling that God had something for me to do. To God be all the praise and glory. My aim has been to help young people find a place with Christ. I am happy that so many young men and women are holding places of leadership. I shall carry away many happy memories and it is a comfort to be able to sever connections under these very happy circumstances. May God guide you and bless you in the coming days."

Gifts to Mrs. Sinclair and Miss Smith were presented by Mrs. Fred Cook, who in a few well-chosen words spoke of the quiet dignity and sweet kindness with which these ladies had assisted in all functions of the church. They had played a very important part in the ministry of the church, stated Mrs. Cook.

A dainty lunch was served during which splendid fellowship was indicated on all sides. At the close, Mr. Sinclair pronounced the benediction.

BLUE RASPBERRIES STILL BEING GROWN

Large luscious blue raspberries equalling in size and flavor those grown in the balmy days of summer are at present blooming on the canes of Clarence Moy, R.R.7 Belleville.

Mr. Moy presented a cluster of the fruit to a city resident today with the statement that many of his canes are bearing fruit, with green buds giving evidence of further berries to come.

OBITUARY

JEAN KELLAR (Crookston)

The death occurred at the General Hospital in Kingston, on Friday, October 28th, of Jean Kellar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kellar of Crookston, Ontario. She had been ill for some time.

The late Miss Kellar was in her 16th year and was born near Crookston. She was a member of the United Church.

Surviving to mourn her loss besides her parents are four sisters, Faye, Ruby, Fern and Erline, all at home; five brothers, Carman, Herbert, Kinnear, Hillard and Bruce.

The family will receive the sympathy of their friends in their bereavement.

LATE JOHN LOWERY
(Thurlow)

The funeral of John Lowery took place Friday afternoon, October 28, from his late residence in the 8th concession of Thurlow Township to St. Paul's Anglican Church in Roslin, where the burial office was conducted by the rector, the Rev. F. C. Beazer, assisted by the Rev. E. N. Grant, rector of St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Wellington. The same ministers conducted the committal service at the graveside in the Anglican Cemetery at Roslin.

The late Mr. Lowery was a member of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 251 at Holloway and the last rites of the Order were conducted at the graveside by Wor. Master Lee Ketcheson, Chaplain Harry Smith, Director of Ceremonies Fred Carter and Dep. Master Harold Elliott.

The bearers were Messrs. C. Kelly, C. Elliott, B. Morgan, M. Morgan, B. McMullen and H. Kelly.

STORMY ELECTION LIKELY AT TWEED

Ratepayers Expect Exciting Nomination Meeting As Result of Council Quarrels

With municipal nomination less than a month away, residents of Tweed are looking forward with more interest than usual to what has the earmarks of a highly interesting election. Nominations will be held on the last Monday in November with the election held one week later.

Councillor C. H. Kerr, who is serving his first year on the Municipal board has announced his intention of contesting the Reeveship. Reeve Sayers who has held the post for seven years states that he has no intention of giving up his seat without a fight.

According to the Tweed News, this year has been somewhat of a stormy one in municipal circles, particularly at certain times. Many ratepayers expect the forthcoming nomination to be productive of fireworks, and reverberations of the council meetings may reach a climax at the nomination meeting.

Other members of the Council are Messrs. C. Edward Way, Tracy Quinn, and E. Myles, all of whom have expressed the desire to retire from municipal life, but who may be prevailed upon to return for another term at least.

Names suggested as possible candidates for the Board of Village Fathers include, T. C. Graham, Dr. W. A. Paul, A. J. Maynes, Wilfred Lesage, Ray Quinn, S. A. McCarey, W. A. Beatty, Edgar Jones, Edward Rath, J. L. McGowan, S. B. Rollins and H. A. Grier.

Trustees for School Section No. 2

School Section No. 2 extending as it does from the City of Belleville to the town of Trenton, undoubtedly enjoys the unique distinction of being one of the oldest if not the oldest school section in the Province of Ontario. Along its entire length, the section overlooks one of the most picturesque bodies of water in the Dominion (the Bay of Quinte) and to those who travel through this section, there immediately unfolds before the eye a panorama of indescribable beauty.

No. 2 Highway as it winds in and out along the shore line, is adorned on either side by beautiful homes, well kept gardens and lawns, heavily laden fruit orchards, and highly cultivated farm lands that bring forth fruit an hundred fold. Here, Nature stands revealed in all her glory and implants indelibly in the hearts of the countless numbers who pass this way, a feeling of peace and of utter content.

General Outline

S.S. No. 2 is ten miles in length and comprises all the land in the first concession from Trenton to Belleville and also includes that portion of the 2nd Concession from lot 30 to the township line, between Sidney and the City of Belleville.

It contains approximately 10,000 acres and has an assessed value of well over a half million dollars.

Running through the section from east to west are two lines of railway. The old Grand Trunk, now "Canadian National" built in 1857, with double track completed in 1890 and the Canadian Pacific built in 1912. The Canadian Northern Railway built a line through the section in 1910, but this line was abandoned a few years ago, when a number of railways were amalgamated, and brought under government supervision. There are seven improved gravel roads running from north to south through the section that make for rapid transportation in the marketing of various farm commodities.

Schools

The section has at the present time three up-to-date school buildings of brick construction.

AVONDALE SCHOOL—

Avondale School was erected in the year 1910 and is situated on Lot 35, immediately west of the Ontario School for the Deaf. This building is of fine architectural design and is pleasantly located. The heating, ventilating and sanitary equipment is up-to-date and the building is lighted with electricity. The school is also used as a community centre, Sunday School being held in the class room each Sunday and entertainments periodically.

The trustees who supervised the construction of this school in 1910 were: Mr. Geo. Heagle, now of Wellman's Corners and the late F. W. Wilson and N. B. Gilbert.

A record of teachers who have taught in this school since 1910 are as follows:

Sept. 1910-12 — Miss Myrtle C. Melburn.
1912-14—Miss Eva Parker.
1914-17—Miss Maude Gibson.
1917-19—Miss Lena R. Roblin.
1919-22—Miss Elizabeth Hogg, now Mrs. Arnold Mitchell of R. R. 6, Belleville.
1922-24—Miss I. M. Anderson.
1924-25—Miss Viola Valleau.
1925-27—Miss Nellie Finkle, now Mrs. Arnold Campbell of Belleville. Mrs. Campbell was a pupil at Bayside No. 2 and is a descendant of the old U.E. Loyalist Finkle family.
1927-28—Miss Gussie Blakely.
1928 to Jan. 31—Miss Mae Totton.
1931 to Sept. 35—Miss Lurene Smith.

Since 1935 the school has been capably managed by Miss T. Hansler, who holds a first class certificate and whose contribution to community service is a matter for commendation.

The school opened with an attendance of 12, but has steadily increased until at present there are 54 enrolled. There is also a garden in connection with the school where the pupils are taught the fundamentals of agriculture.

QUINTE VIEW SCHOOL—

Quinte View School was erected on land purchased from Messrs. James and Walter Harry in 1923.

The building was in use for a period of nine years and was then purchased together with the land, by the Department of National Defence for air station purposes. The Trustees in charge were: H. R. Hunt, A. A. Stickle and Geo. W. Bush, present Reeve of Sidney.

In the year 1932 the present Quinte View School was built, situated on lot 8 and facing on the township road leading to the bay, it is a building of pleasing design and centrally located. The class room is spacious and well ventilated and is lighted with electricity.

Heating and sanitary equipment was installed at the time of building and everything necessary in a well regulated and up-to-date school is at the teacher's hand.

There is a splendid school garden and its play ground is one of which the pupils may well be proud.

The trustees in 1932 were: A. A. Stickle, P. R. Boulton and Fred Denyes.

Following are the names of those who have taught in this school since 1923:

1923-25—Miss K. McPherson, now teaching in Belleville.
1925-28—Miss Viola Valleau.
1928-29—Miss Clara Adams, now teaching in Toronto.
1929-31—Miss Carrie Davis. Miss Davis lost her life in a drowing accident while on vacation at her home at Carp, Ont.
1931-34—Miss Grace MacDonald.
1934-35—Miss Vivian Olde.

Since 1935 Miss Marjorie Stauffer of London, Ont., has been in charge and has given excellent service.

Miss Stauffer has a 1st class certificate and the pupils under her direction have made steady progress. The average attendance at the school is 25.

BAYSIDE SCHOOL—Original No. 2—

The history of this school, now known as the Bayside School, dates back to early pioneer days.

In order to get a proper conception of the formation of S. S. No. 2 Sidney, we quote from the minutes of council for the District of Victoria.

"At the Court House in Belleville the 8th day of February in the year of our Lord 1842 and in the fifth year of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, the District Council of the District of Victoria met."

At this meeting Mr. Wm. Hutten was appointed Warden of the District and among the ten councillors appointed was Caleb Gilbert of the Front of Sidney. On motion of Mr. Gilbert the following school sections were formed and their boundaries defined as follows:

S. S. No. 1—Commencing on the west side of Block A and extending east as far as between lots 10 and 11 in the first concession.

There was a log school in this section situated on lot 7 and was no doubt erected many years before the section was actually formed. This building was abandoned in 1865 when the section was absorbed by No. 2.

S. S. No. 2—Commencing between lots 10 and 11 and to extend east as far as between lots 30 and 31.

S. S. No. 3—Commencing between lots 30 and 31 and to extend east as far as the township line between Sidney and Thurlow and also including the second concession from the said lots Nos. 30 and 31 to the said township line and also the rear of lot 29 in the first concession.

There was a log school in this section and was built in the early years of 1800. This building served its purpose until 1863 when its use was discontinued owing to amalgamation with No. 2.

No. 2 has remained as one section since 1865 and is governed by one controlling board of three trustees.

Members of the present board are: Mr. A. A. Stickle, Mr. Fred Denyes and Mr. J. Fred Wilson, who is as well one of the leading members of Sidney Township Council.

School Land-Origin

S. S. No. 2 is perhaps the only section in the province that has in connection a farm. Situated at lot 19, it consists of 300 acres of choice land and extends the full length of the first concession.

Prior to 1796 the original settlers of this district, applied for a grant of land for the purpose of establishing a school. The application for this grant was carried to Toronto (known then as York) by Daniel Ostrom, who travelled through the forest on foot—a distance of one hundred and ten miles each way—a journey fraught with danger from animals and roving bands of hostile Indians.

This request was favorably acted upon and a grant of 300 acres was made. The patent was issued August 2nd, 1831, in the names of Daniel Ostrom, Elijah Ketcheson and Jacob Finkle in trust for school purposes for the Township of Sidney.

When the common school system was established by law, the grant was placed under the control of the elected trustees of S.S. No. 2 by a special act of the Provincial Legislature. Mr. Ketchum Graham who attended school at No. 2, became Reeve of Sidney in 1865 and also had the honor of being the first member of the provincial legislature for South Hastings.

Mr. Graham was chiefly responsible for the special act, placing this grant of lands under the control of S. S. No. 2. Mrs. Geo. Bush, (nee Ella Ostrom) is a great, great granddaughter of the old pioneer Daniel Ostrom.

The school lands front on the Bay of Quinte and are divided into two farms, upon each of which is a complete set of farm buildings. Rentals from these farms are used in defraying school expenses. In connection with the school is a two acre plot of ground, upon which is erected a spacious dwelling and which was used by successive teachers for many years. A portion of this ground is used as a demonstration garden in the teaching of agriculture.

The first school in this section was of log construction and was in use by the early settlers, until an increase in population demanded larger quarters, when a larger building of frame was erected. This building was crude in architecture, inadequately lighted, the seats and desks being of home manufacture.

This school was in use for a long period of years and although it was primarily intended to care for the educational needs of the section, it was also attended by many pupils from other parts of the county where schools had not yet been established.

From this hall of learning a large number of men and women were sent forth, well equipped to give service in this new land, many of whom became prominent as leaders in various fields of public activity.

According to early records, Mr. James Ford, who settled at Port-of-Trent—now Trenton, was the first school teacher on the Front of Sidney, taking up his duties in the year 1802.

He was paid (in addition to a generous amount of adverse criticism) a very meagre allowance, which was collected from the settlers as their circumstances would fairly warrant. It is therefore evident that these sturdy pioneers were providing education for their offsprings nearly forty years before S. S. No. 2 was formed and officially brought into being.

Having served its usefulness this old building was replaced by a brick structure in the year 1858. After school sections Nos. 1 and 3 were added to and became a part of S. S. No. 2, the building was remodelled and a second room added to accommodate the increased attendance. This condition prevailed until the year 1923 when the school was again remodelled and converted into a spacious one roomed building.

The school of today is a silent tribute to the skill and masterly workmanship of its builders and is one of the best equipped schools in the County: Every modern necessity is incorporated. Situated on a rise of ground overlooking the Bay of Quinte and shaded on either side by majestic maples, the view from its portals is one of unexcelled beauty and charm.

The teacher of this school is Mr. Charles Elliott of Latta, Ont. Holding a 1st class certificate, he is a young man of exceptional ability and apart from general school duties, he is a leader in community work.

School Inspectors

Previous to the establishment of the public school system, the District of Victoria provided a Board of School Examiners and Mr. Wm. Hutten (referred to in a previous chapter) was the examiner for this particular part of the district in the years 1840-41. He was succeeded by Mr. Fred Rouse who was Examiner until the year 1872. Under the requirements of public school system, ments of the public school system, school inspectors were then appointed and Mr. John Johnson who was a pupil at No. 2 and who afterward taught here in 1859 was the first Public School Inspector appointed in the Inspectorate of South Hastings. He held this office from 1872 until 1907, a period of 35 years.

Mr. H. J. Clarke, B.A., the present Inspector, has filled this important position for the past 31 years and has been instrumental in raising the standard of education in this inspectorate to a marked degree.

The school buildings in the Inspectorate are in keeping with the requirements of the Department of Education and the teachers highly qualified.

The people of South Hastings owe a debt of gratitude to Inspector Clarke for his long years of faithful public service.

Teachers At S. S. No. 2

It is tragic to note, that when the school was remodelled in 1923, all the old records, dating back for well over a century were destroyed by workmen who knew nothing of their worth.

It is therefore impossible on the part of the writer, to record the names of those who taught here in the early days.

There is however, a fairly accurate record since the year 1859 and those who have had the honor to teach in this historic school since that date are as follows:

John Johnson, Abel Gilbert, Miss Fralick, Jas. Mun, Gilbert Parker, obtained 2nd class certificate at Ottawa Normal 1877 at age of 17. Taught here and at Marsh Hill between 1878 and 1884. Went to Australia in 1885 and from thence to England; at the time of his death in 1932, he was Canada's most distinguished literary expatriate. He was honored with three doctors' degrees, a knighthood, a baronetcy and elected to both the House of Commons of the United Kingdom and Privy Council, serving for 18 years; Percy White, afterwards, barrister, Buffalo, N.Y.; Miss Wilson; O. S. Hicks, 1880 to 1904; Mr. Fraser, April to June 1904; W. H. Nobes, Aug. 1904 to Aug. 1909, afterwards conducted a general store at Wallbridge and was appointed Clerk of Sidney Township in the year 1917, which office he has filled with distinction ever since. From 1909, E. B. Lott; H. M. Brown; Wm. Gordon; Mrs. Haines; Mrs. A. L. Burke; Rev. F. Joblin; G. Bailey; Miss C. Hess; Miss H. Grills; Miss I. Sutton; Miss Gladys Rollins; Miss M. Varty and the present teacher.

Scholars Prominent In Country's Service

Scattered throughout the world are hundreds of men and women whose educational foundation was laid here and who were destined to play a leading part, not only in the service of this Dominion, but in many fields of usefulness in other lands as well.

To record the names of all those who have tread the corridors of this famous old school would be an impossibility. Many have long since passed on, many are rapidly passing the remaining milestones along life's highway and those who remain, are diligently carrying on the traditions handed down to them by their noble forbears of a distant day.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell was a scholar here in the early years. He became printer's apprentice in the office of Belleville Intelligencer in 1833 and later became editor and proprietor. In 1867 he was elected to the House of Commons for the riding of North Hastings and served until 1892. He was a member of the Macdonald, Abbott and Thompson administrations and held successively the portfolios of Minister of Customs, Militia and Trade and Commerce. He also was a member of the Senate and Prime Minister of Canada from 1894 to 1896.

The pages of history are illuminated with the names of many men and women who left this famous old school and whose contribution in the service of their fellowmen has been one of outstanding achievement.

First Settlers of S. S. No. 2 U. E. Loyalists

The first concession of Sidney, from the proximity of the waters of the Bay of Quinte became of necessity the scene of the earliest settlement.

The original U. E. Loyalists who came to these shores in the year 1787 were: Capt. Marsh, Capt. John Walter Meyers and his four sons, John Scott, George Smith, Abel Gilbert, Chrysdale and Ostrom.

At a slightly later date these were followed by offshoots of U. E. Loyalists from elsewhere. At this period we find the names of Zwick, Vandervoort, White, Bonisteel, Simmons, Kelley, Finkle Graham, Jones, Lawrence, Elijah Ketcheson and others along the bay shore.

In Dr. Canniff's "History of the Settlement of Canada" Capt. Meyers is referred to as having been the actual pioneer settler.

Capt. Meyers was of Dutch descent and came from the State of New York. His aptness of thought and keen business ability brought him to the fore as a leader in the affairs of the settlement and it was largely through his enterprising efforts that the settlement grew and flourished.

Capt. Meyers was given a grant of land consisting of 800 acres immediately east of the town of Trenton and here, descendants of his sons and daughters reside at the present time.

He built a grist mill on a stream on his land as early as 1790 and erected grist and saw mills at Meyer's Creek (now Belleville) in 1802. He also erected the first brick house in Upper Canada in the year 1794 and the bricks used in its construction were baked on his farm in school section No. 2, Sidney.

One of the essential services for which the pioneer settlers at once made provision, was the establishment of schools and in this undertaking the settlers were spurred on by the indomitable will of this splendid old warrior.

Mr. Charles B. Meyers who resides on the Ketchum Graham homestead on the Front of Sidney is a direct descendant of the old pioneer and like his forbear has played a prominent part in the ever-changing activities of his native township.

Mr. Meyers received his early education at S.S. No. 2 and has spent his entire life along the shores of the Bay of Quinte, where his ancestors first landed.

One can scarcely visualize the trying anxiety that pervaded the minds of the first U. E. Loyalists who set foot in this section, coming as they did, almost empty handed, lacking in a large measure even the bare necessities of life, knowing naught of what lay ahead—homeless children in the hands of nature. Imbued with the will to conquer and with a deep rooted faith in God, they fought back the forest, erected their crude little log cabins, cleared the land and seeded their piteously small acreage in preparation for a harvest.

There were disappointments and hardships, joys and sorrows, but there was also a song on their lips and a fulness of thanksgiving in their hearts—they had found a home.

"Sweet are the thoughts that savour of content;
The quiet mind is richer than a Crown."

Thus was the foundation of School Section No. 2 begun, a foundation that was well and truly laid.

Old Records of Sidney Township

The records of this pioneer township have been carefully preserved and zealously safe-guarded throughout the years and are among the oldest in the province.

The first town meeting in Sidney Township was held in School Section No. 2.

We quote from the original minutes:

May 15, 1790 (Upper Canada).

"Pursuant to an act of the Legislature of the Province of Upper Canada, in such case made and provided, the first annual meeting of the inhabitants of the Township of Sidney, was held at the dwelling house of Aaron Rose, in Sidney aforesaid, on May the 15th, 1790 and from thence adjourned to the dwelling house of Stephen Gilbert Esq., and to be held on the first Tuesday of May ensuing.

"May 15th—The inhabitants of Sidney being assembled as aforesaid, to act upon town business, have nominated and appointed for town officers the following persons, viz:

"Moderator, John W. Meyers; Town Clerk, Leonard Soper; Constable, David Simmons; Pathmasters to lay out roads, George Meyers and Caleb Gilbert; Fence Viewers, Nathaniel Marsh and William Lounsbury.

In order to show how marriages were performed in those early days before the advent of the Clergy we reproduce a certificate issued by one of the Sidney Magistrates in 1819:

"Whereas——, and——, both being of the Township of Sidney, are desirous of intermarrying with each other, and have presented a written licence for that purpose. Now, these are to certify that I, Solomon Hazelton, one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace, have this day married the said——, and—— together in marriage and they are become contracted to each other in marriage.

'Sidney, May 19th 1819"

Solomon Hazelton, J. P.

U. E. Loyalist Burial Ground

That this section should at one time become a garden of Eden, a land flowing with milk and honey, was, no doubt the thought uppermost in the minds of those sturdy pioneers, as they bravely battled toward a realization of their dreams.

In the U. E. Loyalist burial ground (now known as White's Cemetery) situated at lot 10 along highway No. 2 and high above the bay shore, lie those energetic empire builders of a primitive day.

Appropriate in its choice, this sacred spot, that marks the last resting place of a noble people, commands an extended view of the upper and lower reaches of the Bay of Quinte and many miles of a smiling countryside.

Gone are the primitive forests, that covered these shores, the Indian brave and his wigwam, the little log cabins that gave sanctuary and brought peace at the close of day—all have disappeared in the shadowy gulf of bygone things.

Along highway No. 2 swift automobiles pass this historic ground in countless numbers, while high over head, saluting as it were the memorable deeds of those valiant pioneers, can be seen the ships of the air as they flit in and out among the clouds at their daily manoeuvres. Here in a land cloaked in loveliness, along the same shores upon which they first landed, rests those undaunted men and women who came, who saw and who conquered and who, through their self sacrificing efforts made possible this beautiful land of which School Section No. 2 is part.

BLUENOSE CHAMPION

Canada's Bluenose is still the fisherman's champion. The Nova Scotian craft with Canadian skipper, Captain Angus Walters and his crew has proven superiority over the Thebaud and the skipper and the crew of the Canadian vessel have been praised by the American skipper and men for their craftsmanship and sportsmanship in a hard-fought contest.

What nobler contests than these, between big men of different nations who know sportsmanship and are skilled in handling craft on the sea! Pity it is that some nations of Europe did not spend more time on such noble sport and rivalry instead of their constant agitation for new "isms", which become a substitute for religion. And a pity it is that in what international events there are, the sportsmanlike spirit which knows no frontiers is not carried into the lives of peoples and their national outlooks.

THE COLONIES

Today Germany is unofficially pressing in her own way and in her new diplomacy for the return of colonies lost during the Great War and afterwards delivered under mandate to Allied nations. Germany's early "demand" for the colonies—Germany would not call it a demand, as she has officially made no demand yet—shows how anxious the Nazi regime is to strike while the iron remains hot. There is talk of the creation of a new German colony to substitute for the colonies lost to Germany — as a form of satisfaction to German colonial pride. Italy has made an "empire" and Germany must have hers it seems.

Germany says she needs colonies for raw materials and yet some of the people of erstwhile German lands have expressed themselves very strongly—they do not want to go back to German control. That stand has been taken by groups in the mandated colonies which were handed over to Britain to administer.

There no doubt will be opinion expressed in Britain against the return and Germany seems very anxious to get some settlement of the matter before opinion has been aroused in the press of the democratic countries.

In Africa British interests stretch from the Mediterranean to the Cape of Good Hope. Position of the colonies, British and former German colonies, count for a great deal in the present world of aviation. There is the colony of Tanganyika which is in a strategic position in a part of the British territories which stretch down the Dark Continent.

One writer speaks of the possibility of menace if former German colonies were returned. It is pointed out that the setting up of an Italian Empire in Ethiopia brought Johannesburg within range of bombing planes from Italy and the famous Rand gold mines in the Transvaal within two days' flying and Rhodesia would be but 24 hours away in event of trouble. Writers see dangers to the British lines of communications from Cairo to the Cape not only of air attack but of land attack should control be changed. They also see possibility of naval dangers in the South Eastern seas. There are the islands under mandate to Japan, Australia and New Zealand which create a problem from the standpoint of Australia and New Zealand. The food question is also raised for Britain imports two thirds of her needs.

Such colonies as Germany owned and then lost in the World War did not then bear the significance to even that militant nation than they do today, because of new means of communication by long-range airplanes and powerful navies.

The colonial question will offer many knotty problems for statesmen to deal with.

DEATH OF GREAT SINGER

One of the world's greatest singers who left the operatic and concert stage to devote herself to her home life with her husband and family has passed—Alma Gluck, who died Thursday at the age of 54 years after a long illness. Her husband, Efrem Zimbalist, is one great violinist of the world.

Alma Gluck made a large fortune with her voice and large as were her earnings on the stage and platform, she made far more with her phonograph records. In the years 1914 to 1919, her revenue from records alone totalled $600,000 and one of her songs "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny" sold a million records. Millions of men and women who had never heard her sing knew her by the voice on the phonograph record.

She was Rumanian by birth but at the age of 3 years she was brought to America and spent the rest of her life on this continent.

Though she had long left the stage, her fame has lingered and will linger for years to come.

Success in life is a matter not so much of talent or opportunity, as of concentration and perseverance.—Wendte.

TWENTY YEARS AGO THIS MONTH THE GREAT TRENTON MUNITION PLANT EXPLOSION TOOK PLACE. That sure made news, big news, following so closely as it did, the Halifax explosion disaster, accompanied unfortunately by a large loss of life. The Trenton explosion, retold in Wednesday's issue, made interesting reading at the time (Wartime) and makes interesting reading today.

X

A newspaperman gravitating from a Toronto newspaper to Belleville in wartime had two assignments given him before he left Toronto — to protect his former paper in case of explosion at the Trenton munitions plant, (expected); the other, to also protect the paper in the event of the death of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Canada's Grand Old Man, then over ninety years of age and still going strong and serving his country well in the Senate of Canada, besides taking transcontinental journeys between sessions.

X

To get back to the Trenton explosion — the story was well told in Wednesday's issue. Some of the highlights of that story from a newspaperman's standpoint centred in the little sidelights, perhaps unnoticed at the time by many.

X

The terror which inspired some automobile owners to drive furiously away from the threatened danger, resulting in four motor cars being found in Jones' Creek next morning.

X

Women pushing baby carriages along the highway in the direction of Belleville . . . passenger train halted between Belleville and Trenton the night of the explosion, conductor deeming safety first best policy . . .

x

Chaps sitting nonchalantly on box cars at Trenton Junction far enough away from the munition works to be safe . . . smoking their pipes and discoursing learnedly on explosives . . . scatteration when a railway yard man told them the four cars they were sitting on contained TNT . . .

x

Noon panic when hundreds of residents alarmed by story that the biggest explosion was imminent, one which would level Trenton, hurriedly gathered up movables and rushed on foot and in motor cars for the open country . . . newspapermen swept along by the panic for a couple of miles remembered his calling and hailed a taxicab which had been busy taking people from the danger zone and was returning light for another load . . . returning to the centre of Trenton to find that a false alarm had been given, which had started the panic.

X

Everybody was keyed up and nervous, strained to the breaking point.

X

A newspaperman wiring a Toronto paper from Belleville upon getting first news of the explosion, before leaving to gather first hand news on the spot, said that it was estimated that two hundred were dead as the result of the explosion and many injured . . .miraculously there were no casualties, because the officials were on the job and evacuated the plant in time, after first trying to extinguish the flames.

X

Newspapermen from Belleville and Toronto swarmed all over the plant with a seeming reckless disregard of TNT and the higher explosives . . .

X

Trenton was all of a twitter and had every right to be, with the known destructive power of the explosives made at the huge plant where nearly three thousand souls worked every day.

x

Manager Barclay, an Englishman representing the British War Office, was certainly the right man in the right place, cool and efficient, who knew just the right thing to do and did not hesitate to do it . . . backed up by a completely disciplined staff who knew his capabilities and relied implicitly upon his judgment, having the beautiful English army habit of implicitly obeying superiors without stopping to argue the reason why . . and that was the real reason why the Trenton explosion produced no casualties.

DISCOURAGING

"I would like to meet you again," he murmured, as they glided through the waltz. "What about letting me have your telephone number?"

"It's in the book," she told him.

"Good! That's your name?"

"You'll find that in the book also," she said.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 29TH, 1918

Just nineteen years ago Belleville's volunteers with Canada's First Contingent for South Africa sailed from Quebec and were accompanied down the St. Lawrence by the officers of the 15th Battalion A. L. I. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Mr. J. W. Johnson, M. P. P., and other citizens. This date is a milestone in Imperial progress and Imperial Unity. Belleville boys wear the medal and clasps of Parrdeberg, Blomfontein, Pretoria, Ladysmith and other battles, winning imperishable honor for themselves and Canada in this the first great participation of the Dominion in the Empire's forces overseas. None can ever forget the farewell given to our soldier sons sailing for the Southern Cross. Extracts from orders of the day by Col. Ponton, then C. O. of the 15th Battalion, make interesting reading at this time. "Details of duties for week commencing 3 th inst. Orderly Officer Lieut. Hawkins; Next for duty, Captain Stewart. (1) The commanding officer congratulates the various companies of the Battalion upon the very creditable parade of the 23rd inst. The honor thus paid to the representatives of the Battalion who volunteered for the South Africa Contingent was due to them and was appreciated by each and all of them. (2) The following members of the 15th Battalion, A.L.I. were duly examined, accepted, and enlisted in the Special Service Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment and on the 30th inst. they sailed from Quebec via S. S. Sardinian under convoy of H.M.S. Crescent for South Africa: Lieut. Glencoe G. Hulme, Sergt. Walter Mills, Col.-Sergt. J. McNair, Lance Sergt. E. Fry, Private George Phillips, Private Frank Lynn, Private A. Bolyea, Private Charles Gibson, Private A. S. Large, Private H. H. Jones, Private R. Cunningham, Private R. McCoy and Private George Tilley and Private M. M. Stewart, ex members of the battalion. (4) Each volunteer received from the City of Belleville £4 Sterling in gold and the commanding officer deposited with Major Rogers, commanding D. Company, R.C.R., a draft for £30 for a sick and wounded fund for the members of this battalion to be drawn on in case of casualty (5) The commanding officer voices the feelings of all ranks of the battalion and of all citizens in thus recording the splendid spirit displayed by those who volunteered for the Special Imperial Service, thus enabling this battalion on this historical occasion to contribute to the Royal Canadian Regiment a quota of efficient men, larger in proportion than any other city of this size in Canada, and the commanding officer desires for the information of all ranks to record how much our comrades were touched by the enthusiastic farewell received in Belleville, and the personal Godspeed which it was the privilege of the O.C. and several officers representing the whole battalion to give them at the historic citadel of Quebec. By order, Robert A. McGuinness, Capt., Acting Adjt. 15th Battalion A.L.I." Subseqently in December 1899, Brigade Sergt.-Major W. H. H. Ponton, Corporal John W. Miller and Private Horace Gillespie enlisted from the 15th Battalion in the 2nd Royal Canadian Regiment for service in South Africa. Also at other dates Major (now General) J. Lyons. Biggar (Red Cross Commissioner in South Africa), Sergt. Instructor Albert Beattie (who died at Blomfontein), E. T. Austin and the late Edgar Geen, making 21 in all.

That Body of Yours

Treating Pneumonia at Home and in Hospital

We were taught, as medical students, that pneumonia patients should not be moved that it was better to allow the patient to remain at home than to disturb him, cause his heart and lungs to exert more effort, and have him shaken up by the ride in the ambulance or other method of transport. Also the fact that the patient was in his own bed, with his loved ones about him instead of in the hospital with its 'strangeness' was rightly believed to be of great help in the treatment.

However pneumonia is not just the pneumonia that was taught years ago as there are different types of pneumonia (about 32 types in all) although the organism the pneumococcus is believed to be responsible for about 95 per cent of all cases.

Investigators are now trying to develop a serum or anti-serum to fight the special type (1 to 11) present. At present there have been only three of these serums discovered but two of these types (1 and 11) make up about half the total number of cases of pneumonia.

To find out just which type is present the physician or a nearby laboratory examine a small portion of the sputum coughed up by the patient. When the type is discovered the serum for that particular type is administered. The test should be made not later than 96 hours after the beginning of the illness.

Now why should a patient go to hospital if he can be typed and receive the antiserum at home?

Pneumonia patients usually need a great amount of care—oxygen tent, sugar solutions to maintain the strength of the body, salt solutions to maintain the circulation of the blood—all of which are always on hand in the modern hospital.

The modern ambulance with its compete equipment causes very little disturbance in transporting the patient from the home to the hospital.

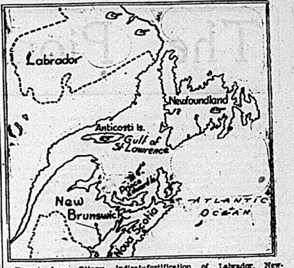
The thought then is that if pneumonia enters your home, your physician will weigh the chances of the patient as to whether the home or the hospital is best suited for its particular needs. You would be wise therefore to follow his advice whether or not its suits your own wishes.

POLICE AND PRESS

"That is a principle of public service which was again recognized by the Association of Police and Fire Chiefs in convention at Sherbrooke recently. Furthermore, the delegates noted with enthusiasm the excellent relations which unite newspapers and police organizations. Both render reciprocal services from which the public benefits. The police and the press represent two forces in their respective domains.

"In reality the journalist reveals to the public, through police information, the wrongdoings of criminals in order that it may be on guard against them; it informs the public of the improvements and the advances made by their police and fire services.

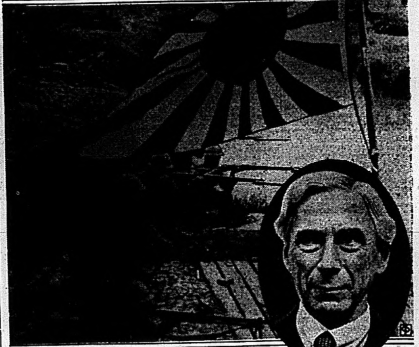
"The newspaper may go further in aiding the police in their campaign against crime. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation in the United States, bears witness to this. "The happy application of the law rests upon the co-operation of the press in its reaction upon public opinion. In general, the press does magnificent work; by publishing the doings of our police it fills malefactors with fright who tremble to their inmost being at the rigour of the law.' The newspapers and the police always get on well together; public interest demands that they should. Conscientiously they carry out their task and so make evident their great public spirit." — Le Soleil, Que.



Reports from Ottawa indicate that Canada and the United States are planning to co-operate in the matter of coastal defence. Present rumors indicate that the fortification of Labrador, Newfoundland and Anticosti is planned along the same lines of military precautions now being taken on the Pacific coast.

England Can Cope With Europe Let U. S. Watch Out For Japan, Warns Author Bertrand Russell

The Ominous Danger to the United States Lies in the Ruthless Rise of Japan, Says Noted Author.



"The ominous danger to the United States does not lie in Europe, it appears to me, but more so in the ruthless rise of the Japanese sun over the Oriental horizon."

Lord Bertrand Russell

By WILLIAM A. RUTLEDGE III
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Keep aloof and alert, but don't become so engrossed in European affairs that the Japanese menace is overlooked or minimazed, was Lord Bertrand Russell's prophetic counsel to the United States in an exclusive interview here.

"The most prudent course for the United States is isolation as long as it is possible," the English author and philosopher advised. "A great and prolonged war in Europe would inevitably draw America into it. However, with support, the British can cope with the European situation. The ominous danger to the United States does not lie in Europe, it appears to me, but more so in the ruthless rise of the Japanese sun over the Oriental horizon.

No Justification

"What is happening in China is far more terrible and far less justified than anything Germany has or will do in Czechoslovakia," Russell commented with emphasis. "There is a defence for the German annexation for Sudetenland and some grounds for her cry for the restoration of the colonies lost under the terms of the Versailles Treaty. There is no such justification for the bloody subjugation of China by Japanese might. Europe would never bring war aggressively to the United States. America would have to step in to get into battle across the Atlantic. That is not true of the situation with respect to Japan."

Just as the defeat of Kaiser Wilhelm paved the way for the sterner dictatorship of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, so would the crushing of Hitler open the door for an even more desperate dictatorship, Russel ventured to reason. "It is inconceivable that the German people can be kept down forever. The Allies made their tragic mistake in not being more liberal and considerate of the Germans during the days of their post-war republic.

"The Germans could not be forever kept in an iron ring of alliances. They were forced into the position where they were willing to risk disaster to gain what they felt were their justifiable ends," Russell declared. "I am doubtful that Germany would have given way under the pressure of a more vigorous policy. I think that Mr. Chamberlain judged rightly in dealing with Hitler."

Alliance Smatshed

Russell explained his interpretation of the British move at Munich. The keg of dynamite was the French-Russian alliance, he pointed out and the objective of Chamberlain's diplomacy was to break that alliance, which he has succeeded in doing.

The British also calculate, Russell asserted, that with adequate armament, Hitler can be dissuaded from promoting any ambitions to the west. Hand in hand with the French, Russell estimated, the British keep Hitler hemmed in on the western frontier. His only alternative is to expand to the east, where he cannot avoid running smack into Russia. A major war between the two would bring the collapse of both the Hitler and Stalin governments, Russell predicted.

As to the future danger from Hitler militarism, Russell gently reminded that individual men do not live forever. "No one in the Nazi party can command the fanatic loyalty that Hitler enjoys. His death will bring to an end the current movement in Germany, and by application of fair dealing and justice the allied nations can prevail upon the nation to become peaceful."

Approves Armament

The armament factor was included in Russell's estimate of the situation. "An accelerated armament race can only weaken Germany. Hitler has armed to the hilt, as much as his country can economically endure. Shortage of food, now being felt there, is an unpopular thing."

Prime Minister Chamberlain, if left to himself, would hand back to Germany the colonies she lost as a consequence of the world war, Russell declared. "Germany is particularly anxious to regain possession of her African colonies. Chamberlain would just as soon place them in Hitler's lap. The reason that he won't and that he can't is that the Union of South Africa will not stand for it. How much in colonial territories will be conceded to the German chancellor in a matter of conjecture."

Describing himself as "personally and privately a pacifist" Russell enlarged upon his views to reiterate vigorously, "War is not a means of accomplishing anything.. We waged the last war to save democracy and there is less of it today than there was then. We waged war to crush dictators and there are more of them today than ever before. We went to war to defeat the imperialistic German government and it is more dangerous today than ever before.

Worse Than Nazism

"A great war in Europe would be worse than Nazi domination. After a major war, Europe would be in a worse condition than it would be to yield to the Hitler demands. Chamberlain was motivated in his official conduct in respect to the Czech crisis by his sheer horror of war. In all circumstances, a great war is to be avoided."

The next war, and pacifist Russell conceded that war under all conditions could not be averted, will serve to determine the supremacy of the air, he said. England has and does rule the seas, and as far as her navy is concerned is ready for war at all times. It was the German aerial strength, raining bombs down on London and other cities, that she feared. The potency of the Russian government will be determined largely by the prowess of her air force, numerically the world's largest, Russell commented.

Entomologists Conclude Season's Activities Against Spruce Saw-Fly

Entomologists of the local Dominion entomological and parasitical bureau on east Dundas Street have about concluded this year's campaign against the destructive European spruce saw-fly.

Since late Spring more than 185,000,000 microplectron or saw-fly parasites have been distributed from the Belleville laboratory through the standing timber reserves of the Canadian Maritimes where the steady spread of the destructive saw-fly has threatened millions of dollars worth of forest. The greater part of this huge shipment has during the season being placed in New Brunswick to battle the plague of pests sweeping south from the ravaged forests of Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula.

Bred at the Belleville laboratory, the microplectron upon whom the salvation of Canada's last timber stands rest, were packed in neat shipments under constant cold temperatures and shipped by rapid express and airplane to the menaced sections of the east. Entomologists of the department, provincial forestry service employees, game wardens and employees of companies in the sections concerned were all pressed into service to assist in the liberation of the tiny-winged helpers bred here, who will attack the saw-fly which has been found the hereditary foe of this special species.

Although the number of parasites to be used in this year's campaign was set at about only 45 or 50 millions earlier in the season, the local laboratory through dilligent application through the season was enabled to almost double this number. The last shipments received in the east were a new specie of parasite from Japan.

Encouraging reports have been received at the local office that the sawfly was less numerous in many parts of northern New Brunswick this year than last. But the pest is believed increased in numbers in the southern section of this province. "Considerable time must elapse, however, before the parasites spread to a uniform density of population in spruce stands of the province", it is reported.

Farmer, Who Does Not Hunt, Reports Deer Feed With His Cows

Though he has lived on his 300-acre farm at Muslow, in North Hastings for the past thirty years and more, with the bush reaching almost from his back door, Jesse Carr, well known farmer of Muslow, and former resident of Belleville, has yet to fire a shot from a gun or rifle.

"He just hasn't the inclination or the time to go hunting", he told local friends.

Deer are plentiful in North Hastings this year, so plentiful that small herds of them grazing with cattle are a more or less common sight in some sections of North Hastings. Only last week while milking some of his own herd in pasture, he observed three or four deer mixing with his own animals.

Wolves have become a problem there this year, and the loss of sheep from these animals lately has been considerable, it is reported.

Conscience Eased By Cigars and $50

London, Ont., Oct. 29—(CP) — Lloyd Cook, of Warwick village, visited London today, richer by $50, a pocketful of cigars and a lot of "durn good" fire-wood because somebody cut down his old locust tree.

Cook awoke the other morning to find his 10-year-old shade tree cut down. Upon investigation he found a publicity man for a nationally-known tobacco company had dropped the tree in its tracks because its foliage partially hid from view the company's cigarette sign.

Cook wrote the firm and an official was despatched to make good the damage. Salved by a goodly number of the company's best cigars and a polite representative who promised a sapling and a $50 cheque, Mr. Cook agreed to the bargain.

Kyle House to be Dismantled To Make Way for Gas Station

Was Formerly One of Best Known Hotels In Eastern Ontario

BUILT 49 YEARS AGO

Forty years ago it was the hub of the city's social and business life, a focal point around which the industrial and agricultural pursuits of the entire district revolved.

Statesmen, leaders of Belleville society, grain and cattle and timber buyers from the east trod its broad halls and corridors and tenanted its spacious suites.

Then as now it was known as The Kyle House. Of recent years altered into a large apartment house, two decades ago it was recognized as one of the most up-to-date and commodious hostelries between Toronto and the east.

Soon this sturdy building of brick and stone at 357 Front Street, constructed as only builders of an earlier decade knew, with its decorative facade and balconies, and one of the more familiar landmarks of older Belleville is to disappear. Another link with the early bustling days of Belleville will be severed.

Permit for the demolition of this building, and for the construction of a modern, up-to-date gasoline service station on this site has been issued by the local office of the building inspector to the Conger Coal Company of Toronto. Work of tearing down the Kyle House is expected to be started at about the first of December. Construction of the new service station will commence immediately after the site is cleared.

Forty-nine years ago the Kyle House, largest building then to be erected in Belleville as a private enterprise, rose imposingly from the ashes of the former Willard House, the site upon which it now stands. Owned then by Samuel Kyle, one of the pioneers of Belleville district, who came from Stirling section to Belleville to put the hotel business in this city on par with that of the larger cities, the Willard House had been his first start in a public venture. It had been eminently successful as a hostelry, and at the time it was destroyed by fire, Samuel Kyle was then situated well enough to retire.

Insisted on Re-building

It was because of this fact that he met the strong objections of his family when the subject of building a bigger and better hotel was broached. But, inspired through the success of the previous hostel, and confident he would not be happy away from the business, orders for the builder to proceed were given.

"None of us wanted my father to stay in the hotel business after the Willard House burned down", recalls Mrs. I. M. GGribble, 241 John Street, who was one of the daughters born in the Willard House, one the site where the present Kyle House now stands, and present owner who has just successfully negotiated the sale of this building. "But he was determined and went ahead".

It was a splendid edifice when finished. It arose brick by brick, head and shoulders above anything that had been built of private nature in Belleville before. And when finished, the Kyle House became the last word in hotels in this central area. Residents from far and near drove miles to view Belleville's new hostel.

It contained approximately forty rooms and suites, together with broad halls and the glittering decorations of hotels of the earlier days. It catered to an exclusive patronage, became a "family hotel" with such names on the register as Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Warrington, of Belleville, leaders of local society forty years ago; Beverly Robinson, son of the Lieutenant-Governor, and others whose names are still preserved in the hotel register. During the winter many local families locked up their homes in Belleville, took quarters in this well appointed hotel.

Samuel Kyle saw this vision of better hotel keeping in Belleville realized for a period of seven years after the construction of the Kyle House. After his death the business was taken over by the family, which some time after leased it to the Munns of Toronto. After brief management, William Smith, also a well known hotel man of Belleville succeeded the Munns, and for a period of five years or so conducted a highly successful business. Then followed after an interval, Luffman and Rooney of Napanee.

During the war which affected hotel business as it affected many other lines of trade, the Kyle House was turned into a large apartment house and since has been managed as such by Mrs. Gribble.

Earl Stanhope, president of the board of education in England, has been named First Lord of the Admiralty to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Alfred Duff Cooper.

Stirling

Stirling—The Ladies' Adult Bible Class of St. Paul's United Church met at the home of Mrs. W. Barker on Wednesday evening, Oct. 26th, for the purpose of re-organization. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn and prayer by Mrs. Rodgers. Mrs. G. W. Hockey, president of the organization, was in charge. During the period set aside for the election of officers for the coming year it was unanimously decided that Mrs. Hockey continue as chief executive and that Mrs. G. White and Mrs. W. Martin, Secretary and Treasurer respectively, continue to officiate in their respective offices.

Throughout the past ten years, the group has been led in Biblical study in a most capable and efficient manner, by Mrs. Heath, with Mrs. J. J. Wilson acting as assistant for the past four years. Mrs. Heath thanked the ladies for their kind co-operation in the past and expressed an earnest desire to resign as leader in favour of her assistant, Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Wilson in accepting the leadership promised to hold the office until the appointment of another teacher to fill the vacancy created by Mrs. Heath's resignation. This part of the meeting was brought to a close with the singing of a hymn and prayer by Mrs. Heath. A very enjoyable social period followed the meeting with Mrs. Barker serving a delicious luncheon. A hearty vote of thanks on behalf of the group was extended to the hostess for her kindly hospitality by Mrs. Heath.

Friends of Mr. Frank Sprintell will be glad to learn that he has returned to his home from Belleville General Hospital and is progressing quite favorably along the road to complete recovery from his recent accident a little more than a week ago he narrowly escaped death when he came in contact with a live wire while at work on the Stirling Hydro Electric lines.

Mr. Fred Houchin attended the Provincial Rally of A.Y.P.A. held recently in Peterboro representing the St. John's A.Y.P.A. of Stirling. Mr. Houchin attended all sessions and special features of the Annual event which surpassed any previous conference. Activities began with a rally service at All Saints' Church conducted by Rev. A. H. O'Neil, B.A.B.D., with the sermon by the Very Rev. R. H. Waterman, Dean of Niagara. Reception to the delegates was held in the Parish Hall and addresses of welcome were delivered by the following: His Grace, Most Rev. D. T. Owen, Primate of all Canada; Very Rev. Dean Waterman of Hamilton; His Worship James Hamilton of Peterborough; Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson, Rector of All Saints' Church; Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson, Rector of St. John's Church; and Miss Clemena Long, President of Peterboro District Council. Sessions included outstanding address by such Church leaders as the Archbishop of Toronto and Judge H. C. Mott of Toronto. Discussion groups, forums, etc. set forth constructive thought for future activity. Banquets, social gatherings and sightseeing tours all had their part in making this 7th Annual Conference one of the most successful in the history of the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Linn Fair are spending this week visiting friends and relatives in Kincardine, Ontario.

Miss Mildred Richardson, Reg. N., Peterboro, is spending a few days visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson, Church St.

Miss Patricia Shea of Toronto is spending a few weeks' holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Shea.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ketcheson of Prince Edward County were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Mason, Stirling.

A group of workmen and linesmen of the Bell Telephone Co., are making their headquarters in Stirling for the next few weeks as the operation of moving the lines from the right of way of the No. 14 Highway is being completed. With the paving and re-construction work on this stretch of road between Marmora and Stirling nearing completion the general widening of the road at various points makes the removal of some hundred and fifty telephone poles necessary.

Miss Elsie Ashby spent last week end visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ashby of Wooler.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new building project recently undertaken by the congregation of Gospel Tabernacle. The new edifice which is situated on west Front St. near the Community Service Building will not only be a splendid addition to the village but will take the place of one of the older buildings on the Street, thus adding to the general appearance of the village.

Mrs. Howard Munro of Sudbury is spending a few days visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Church St.

Rev. Mr. Douglas of Deseronto was a week end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery and occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling and West Huntingdon last Sunday.

ACCUMULATIONS OF GAS IS BLAMED

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—An explosion and fire aboard the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland which sent three freighters racing to her rescue was blamed today by her Master, Captain Karl Steincke, on an accumulation of gases in the ship's hold.

As the ship docked last night, its 591 passengers—laughing and joking—told anew of Tuesday's heroic nine-hour struggle by the 369 crew members to control the blaze.

Scouting the possibility of sabotage, Captain Steincke said no estimate of damage could be made until insurance surveyors inspected the burned cargo today. There was no visible damage to the ship's exterior.

The captain was fervent in praise of his crew, 22 of whom were overcome by intense heat before the fire was smothered by pumping live steam and 50 ranks of carbon dioxide into the smouldering hold.

The commander declared the passengers could see the smoke pouring from the bulkheads, but behaved with remarkable calmness.

BOY IS INJURED WHILE AT PLAY JURY'S VERDICT

No Blame Whatever Attached In Death of Stuart Muirhead

STATEMENT READ

Death from the result of injuries accidentally received while at play was the coroner's jury verdict at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of the late Stewart Muirhead, 17-year-old student, who died last Monday, when the proceedings concluded at the Police Court rooms before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson last evening.

Dr. G. S. Cronk, was the first witness introduced by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., who conducted the investigation. Dr. Cronk told of the cause of death, namely an injury to the large bowel, shock and hemorrhage.

"I was called to the home of the deceased on Sunday night and found him suffering from abdominal pains and vomitting. He told me he had been injured when playing football. I immediately ordered Stewart to the hospital, where an abdominal operation proved he was suffering from internal hemmorrhages and a severe injury to the large bowel. Stewart was a normal youth and in good health. Undoubtedly this was an unfortunate accident," testified Dr. Cronk in answer to questions tendered by Mr. Donnan.

Playmate Testifies

John Moon, 19-year-old neighbour of the deceased and a friend of long standing, stated a group of boys were playing "touch rugby" on Queen Victoria School grounds after lunch on Sunday.

"What happened?" asked the Crown.

"I jumped into the air to intercept a pass and while coming down my knee struck Stewart in the stomach," replied Moon.

"Was it an accident?" continued Mr. Donnan.

"Yes, sir, at first we thought his wind had been knocked out, but later he commenced to vomit and Frank O'Neill took him home," replied Moon.

"Was there any rough play?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"No, sir, it was the same "touch rugby" game we always play. We had just started," added Moon.

Testimony Corroborated

Frank O'Neill, Stan Amo and Thomas Peets, all neighbour boys and friends of the deceased youth, who were engaged in the same game corroborated Moon's testimony.

At this point Mr. Donnan interrupted the proceedings and turning to the jury remarked,

"Today Mr. Muirhead, father of Stewart, was in my office and tendered me this memorandum"—which I will read to you:

"I asked Stewart who hurt him, he replied Jack Moon, but it was not his fault as we were both in the air'.

"I imagine this signed statement will help you gentlemen arrive at your verdict," concluded Mr. Donnan.

That Stewart Muirhead came to his death in the Belleville General Hospital on October 24th as the result of personal injuries accidentally received while at play on the Queen Victoria School grounds on October 23rd, was the verdict submitted by the jury.

The coroner's jury, impanelled by Sergeant Arthur Harman, consisted of R. Arnott, foreman, Thos. Jeffery, Hope McGinnis, Harry Abbott, Wm. Todd, Fred Gauthier, Wm. Vallance and W. Boyd.

PREMIER HEPBURN CHANGES POLICY

Believes Dominion Should Immediately Rearm To Protect Interests

Wiarton, Ont., Oct. 29 (CP) — Premier Hepburn of Ontario has changed his opinions on Canada's defence policy, "through force of necessity". He now believes the Dominion should undertake immediately a national rearmament program to "preserve that freedom we hold so dear".

Such a program should be on a scale large enough to meet aggression without assistance, he told the Bruce Peninsula Resore Association here last night. "We can't hide under the paw of the British lion or the wings of the American eagle," he said. "This is something we must face ourselves."

As a member of the House of Commons, the premier "was one of those who strenuously opposed any major armament policy in Canada". Today, "through force of necessity, I have changed my mind," he added. "There is no need to blind ourselves to the dangers that confront us if we are not prepared.

"There is a considered drive on the part of three great nations now to conquer and divide the world. We had better wake up before it is too late and we find ourselves in the same position as Ethiopia, Manchoukuo and those other conquered nations."

Turning to domestic questions, Mr. Hepburn said it was "unfortunate" that talk of disunity should pay more attention to the problems of Ontario. Some other method of raising revenue besides tariffs should be evolved. Tariffs "work hardships on the western farmers".

BRITISH AND U.S.

Shanghai, Oct. 29 (AP) — The British and American Chambers of Commerce in Shanghai met jointly today to discuss a united front against Japanese efforts to monopolize Chinese trade.

Must Correct Abuses.

"Failure now to secure correction of Japanese abuses of long-established treaty rights in China is likely to encourage the Japanese to further monopolistic encroachments and eventually bring conflict with the United States," the statement said.

(The United States protest to Tokyo warned against closing the "open door" and charged "unwarranted" interference with American rights. In Tokyo, the newspaper Asahi predicted the Japanese government would attempt "to induce the United States government correctly to recognize the new Far Eastern situation," which, it said, had modified the nine-power system. The nine-power pact, among other things, provided for equal opportunity for the commerce and industry of all nations in China.)

Shanghai Americans said Japan "already is implementing a program designed to oust American business from China".

Meanwhile, Japanese forces in the Hankow area were engaged in mopping up operations while advance detachments drove deeper into the interior.

MARRIAGE NOTICE

MACKENZIE—WALLBRIDGE — In the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton, on Wednesday, October 12th., 1938, by the Rev. Cecil Winter, Margaret Doris Wallbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Wallbridge of Huff's Island to John Irven Mackenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Mackenzie, Belleville, Ont.

Miss E. Hamilton returned home Saturday after spending a week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hicks.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church choir remained after practise last night for a social hour. Hallowe'en delicacies were very graciously served by Mrs. McBrien and her assistants in the Ladies' Parlour.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. A. Stewart, Turnbull Street, were Mr. McClung, Cayuga; Mr. and Mrs. Dave Cox, Misses Naida and Dephane Drew and Master Raye Drew, Mr. and Mrs. E. Godfrey and Miss Mabel Godfrey, Mr. Bert Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Barr, Mrs. Victor Peterson and baby, Carl, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Barr, Erma and Cyril of Mountain Grove and Mrs. Julia Fox, Mr. and Mrs. William Fox of Prince Edward.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Barr of Mountain Grove, are in the city this week visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A Stewart, Turnbull Street.

Miss Margaret St. Charles and Miss Dorothy Grant are in Toronto, today attending the bridge and fashion show sponsored by the Loretto Alumnae Association held in Simpson's Arcadian Court this afternoon. Six hundred were guests of the Association of which Miss Helene St. Charles is president.

A delightful afternoon tea and bridge party took place at the summer home, Rossmore of Mrs. Ashley Vandewater on Wednesday, under the auspices of Minerva Chapter No. 138, O.E.S. Winners at bridge were Mrs. Frank Correll and Mrs. E. Storrey.

Miss Shirley McCabe, 46 Moira St., West, was hostess last evening, to sixteen of her young school friends at a delightfully arranged Hallowe'en party. The house was very tastefully decorated with Hallowe'en novelties. The evening was spent in games and dancing. After lunch was served, prizes were given for the best costumes. First prize for girls went to Miss Monique Laporte, who was dressed as a Highland lassie, Bob Jenkins winning first prize for boys, dressed as an R.C.M.P. First prize for funniest girls' costume went to Miss Pat Holland and for funniest boys', first prize was given to John Doyle. They contributed much of the fun of the evening with their funny antics and witty sayings. On leaving the young guests voted Shirley an ideal hostess.

Banquet and Masquerade by Minerva Chapter

Last evening, Minerva Chapter O.E.S. No. 138, entertained at a get-together banquet and Hallowe'en party. The tables were beautiful with Autumn flowers and Hallowe'en favors. Members and their families were present and a delicious hot roast beef supper was served.

Mr. Albert E. Wonnacott acted as toast master for the interesting toast list which was as follows:

Toast to the King proposed by Mr. James Lazenby; Toast to Grand Chapter proposed by Mr. Harvey Stewart, the response being made by Mrs. Ruby Fleming, D.D.G.M.; the toast to the visitors proposed by Mrs. Laura Hyde, the response being made by Mr. Fred Jobson.

Following the banquet, the regular chapter meeting was held before the Hallowe'en masquerade began. The many lovely costumes of the guests made the hall most attractive. Prize winners were as follows: Mrs. McCaw, Mrs. W. Lawrence, who were dressed as Maggie and Jiggs; Mrs. Wm. Cooke as an old fashioned lady and Miss Edna Jobson as a Shepherdess. The door prize was won by Miss Queenie Bridge.

Mrs. Reg Hinchey and Mrs. J. Ingram were conveners of the successful function.

Wieners	Hot Potato Salad
Rye Bread	Dill Pickles
Currant Jelly	Dutch Apple Pie
Coffee	Cheese

Hot Potato Salad—Pare six or eight large potatoes and boil in salted water until tender, but not mushy, then slice thin while hot. Peel and cut up three large onions into small bits and mix with potatoes. Cut half a dozen slices of bacon into small pieces, fry until light brown, remove bacon from fat and mix with potato and onion. Into the fat in the pan stir three tablespoons vinegar, mix well, and pour over potato mixture, mix lightly and serve hot. This amount will serve six.

How to Help Child Cure Shyness

Trick Is Getting Him To Forget Himself, Writes Lisa Grenelle

By LISA GRENELLE

Randolph was one of those painfully shy children. A roomful of people never failed to terrify him. It made no difference whether they were strangers, parents friends or children of his own age, most of whom he knew. He always was terrified.

"Why don't you speak to Billy and Dick?" Mother would say. "Have you had a fight or something?"

Randolph only shook his head and crept farther into his corner. Shyness also affects the larynx.

It was getting beyond the joking stage. Every year Randy grew worse. Mother reasoned and father kidded, all to no avail.

"Anybody not knowing you, dear, wouldn't realize you were just shy," Mother said. "They'd think you didn't have any manners, and were just rude."

Father Critical

Father said: "Randy, you act as if you expected everyone to take a nip out of you as they went by."

When she and father were alone, mother said she thought Randy needed practice, getting used to having people around and more parties.

So Randy was driven out to more parties. More parties were given in his honor at home.

Mother encouraged Randy by praising his appearance. "You look so handsome tonight, Randy. Those long pants make you look so grown up."

Mother brought people up to Randy, started gay conversations. Father took him by the arm and pulled him over to a group.

But the agonized expression never left Randy's face. He hardly spoke, and when he spoke he stammered.

Then Aunt Maimie came up. She looked in trouble. She did not seem to notice Randy's troubles. She had never spoken of his shyness, never pitied him, scolded him or tried to reason him out of his self-consciousness.

Different Attitude

Aunt Maimie behaved as if Randy wasn't shy at all. At the moment she needed his help. She told Randy she had some young people on her hands, two girls and a boy, all of them strangers, and smitten with shyness. "We've got to help them," she said.

Randy looked over at Aunt Maimie's proteges and saw his own agony printed on their faces. With sympathy and understanding for their predicament, Randy forgot his own shyness, and followed Aunt Maimie to the rescue, to become the life and booster of the group.

Charming Voice Should Be Goal Of Every Beauty

JANE BRYAN
Her voice reflects her charming personality

(By HELEN FOLLETT)

IT IS JUST as well, if not better, for the sprinter after beauty laurels to remember that the world has ears as well as eyes. She must pay heed to her voice. A charming voice has the romantic, compelling qualities of lovely music and sweet perfumes.

Avoid bad speaking habits, slurring words, letting sentences run one into another. People don't like that. It makes listening a tough job. One longs for ear muffs. No matter how fair the speaker may be to the eye, she is not a restful companion. Excitement and tension are contagious.

The shouter lacks breeding. You can't get away from that fact. Ladies don't yell. You'll find families of shouters; their nervous systems are haywire, and they don't know why.

Nasal tones are a matter of habit. Attention to enunciation will correct that.

Men are susceptible to pleasing speech, soft, low voices. The voice reflects personality. Why shouldn't it? A nice person has a nice voice. The fighty one has a fighty voice. Note the commanding tones of the feminine boss.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Small Afternoon Tea

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Is it proper to use a large silver tray with silver teapot, water kettle, sugar bowl and cream pitcher in the living room when one has only three callers? They are distinguished people, and while I want to impress, I do not want to overdo. I know that it is done at large teas, but this is just an informal call of three.

2—What shall I serve with hot tea and iced coffee? Shall I also offer wine.

L.

1—I do hope tht you will use your handsome silver tea service when you serve tea to your three distinguished visitors. You are fortunate to have such a lovely treasure, and so by all means enjoy it and use it, whether you are serving for many or for a few. There is no reason in the world why it should be reserved for special occasions.

2—Unless the day is really warm, serve only hot tea . . . . not the iced coffee. And, if I were you, I would not also offer wine, for this might be considered "over-doing" the occasion.

It would be better taste to concentrate on giving your tea-party such a beautiful background as you can give it with your service, and on the perfection of your tea-accessories. Serve simple accessories such as daintily-made finger-shape sandwiches with carefully-chosen fillings. You might like to have a few of the sandwiches made of raisin or nut or date bread. Or you might like to serve hot tiny baking powder biscuits, opened and buttered. Or cinnamon toast, or toasted raisin bread, or nut bread and cream cheese sandwiches, or rolled sandwiches, plain or toasted, of white bread (if toasted, brush them with melted butter and toast them in the oven). And for the "sweet" course, little tea cakes, plain or delicately frosted; or cookies, preferably home-made; or slices of nut cake or fruit cake.

Who Goes First?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Who goes first when a man and woman descend or ascend stairs or enter a room?

2—When and in what places should rest room attendants be tipped, and how much? Is it necessary to tip an attendant when no special service has been rendered?

S.

1—Nowadays a woman usually precedes a man, both in going up and in coming down stairs. I say "nowadays", for, as you know, "when Mother was a girl" a lady would not think it "proper" to allow a man to follow her up a stairway. And even now there are many men who abide by this rule and take the lead going upstairs. A man should always lead the way upstairs when there is a question of being of assistance to a woman or when the stairs are unfamiliar or rickety or dark or when they are very steep or slippery.

2—An attendant in a rest room is customarily tipped when she does some service for us such as supplying us with a hand-towel or powder. Ten cents is the usual tip; five cents sometimes; a quarter if the type of place and the amount and kind of service suggest this. It is not necessary to give a tip if no special service has been given.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Makes a Successful Marriage?

Money and the Marriage

When you two lovers make what you believe to be the necessary plans for your married life don't take it for granted that everything is settled once you have agreed on the wallpaper patterns and decided how much or how little you are going to see of each other's relatives.

No, you'll have to go deeper than that.

Surely if you have thought about marriage at all you will have realized the almost alarmingly important part that money plays in the family happiness.

I don't mean merely, that it's better to have much money than little. Nor am I even sure that that is true. As I see it, the important points are: First, who supplies the money; second, who decides how it is to be spent; third, who does the actual spending.

You'll all heard of the old-fashioned type of family, if you haven't actually seen it, where the husband and father seemed swollen to gigantic size because of the unnatural power that he had over his wife and children. This was because he retained absolute control of every penny of the family income. Nor was the home atmosphere much healthier when a nonproductive man married a well-to-do wife, who thereby became the family dictator.

It is not likely that, in marrying a modern husband will seek to make himself a man of mystery, financially speaking; that he will conceal the actual amount of his income and skimpily dole out dollars to his bride, one or two at a time. I suspect the wife would laugh at him if he even dreamed of such a thing so greatly have marriage customs improved in a generation or so.

What is the wise system then, for a young couple to follow?

In the first place, both husband and wife must have enough good sense to be capable of making out a budget: So much for household expenses, so much for clothes, so much for amusements, and so on. They must have character enough to stick to the budget, once it is made.

Let us assume, as is usually the case, that Jack is the only breadwinner and that Jill takes charge of the home. Now, one of two arrangements may be made: Jack may give Jill a monthly allowance to cover the sums that both together have decided on as reasonable for household outlay and for Jill's personal expenses, including clothes. At the end of the month, Jill should produce a statement of the items for which she has spent her money. And so should Jack. Then, if Jack's income increases or diminishes, both together can decide which expenses are to be curtailed or made more liberal.

According to the second method, Jack will bank his salary as fast as he receives it, and he and Jill will have a joint account.

For an inexperienced young pair, however, I recommend the first method. It encourages a sense of partnership. If Jill overspends her allowance, it's her own fault, and the same is true of Jack. There's no excuse for hurt feelings, fault-finding or quarrelling. There's no excuse for Jill's trying to wheedle extra money out of Jack or for Jack to attempt to conceal secret expenditures he'd rather not confess to. With the money situation all open and above board, and each seriously trying to be fair and square with the other, a married pair should be happy as kings.

It goes without saying that selfishness in a husband or wastefulness in a wife can throw the best of systems out of gear. But we will take it for granted that Jack and Jill are superior to such faults.

SEEN ALONG FIFTH AVENUE

EVENING SILHOUETTES are varied, but, despite that last year's gown seems definitely out of the style picture. Skirts are very very narrow or extravagantly wide, but bound midriffs appear on all types. Lovely dinner gowns of velvet are already in the shops. One model is cut wide and open through the front decollete with broadening shirred sleeves. The skirt is slender, and there is a tiny train.

Put a Taboo On Matters Of Health

It's One Subject Child Should Be Taught To Avoid Before Guests

(By LISA GRENELLE)

FREDDY WAS only three, but he already had been trained to regular health habits. Fired by the praise and encouragement of mother and grandmother, he had grown extremely proud of his continued good performance. So proud, indeed, was he that he became boastful, bragging of his prowess to Father and Uncle John, who received the news with enough enthusiasm to convince Freddy of the subject's general importance and interest.

It promptly became Freddy's chief topic of conversation. Politely he would greet guests with an outreached hand and formal bow, then would launch into his favorite subject. After discussing at some length his own accomplishments, he would inquire about the guests. Had they been equally diligent that day, equally conscientious?

And when a guest seemed modest or shy, Freddy would raise his voice and repeat the question, quoting Mother's words as to the importance of the affair. He even scolded guests, as Mother had scolded him in the beginning, for lack of diligence. He then would say that tomorrow he would expect a better answer.

Freddy found this a delightful game. It made him look forward to guests as never before, and caused him to lose his shyness and feeling of inferiority. He had found a topic of conversation. He had found, also something at which he was better than these grown-ups, something he could feel superior about.

Unwise Procedure

Of course, the simple way to put an end to such a matter would be to fill the child with shame on this subject. But that's not altogether wise and the results are often harmful to the child. Also, it is mentally very destructive to give a child a sense of shame about anything—his own body, his habits, etc. I believe you will find that most psychologist agree with that.

A child is born without shame, and he should be kept so as long as possible. If he never learns to blush, so much the better.

On the other hand, you can't have him embarrassing guests, can you? And for the sake of the conventions, he must learn, as he gets older, to keep his body adequately covered.

It's best, I think, to foresee the result of Freddy's situation, because almost any child is likely to react as he did. Explain to your Jimmie and Janie that they must never discuss health habits with guests, because it might hurt and embarrass their guests, whose health records might be less good, than Jimmie's or Janie's. Tell them why one must never run any risk of hurting visitors' feelings, and that trying to appear superior to them is the height of bad manners.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 30

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a decidedly auspicious one for affairs of church and state, as well as all philanthropic, mystical and cultural activities. It is a most propitious time for dealing with superiors and those in power, as well as for progress in spiritual or occult studies, or in writing, poetry, music and art.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a very propitious and productive year, with much stirring to advance the fortunes as well as personal prestige and popularity. Contacts with those in power, as well as with political, diplomatic or fraternal organizations, will prove profitable, bringing some surprising benefits and much gratification.

A child born on this day may be subtle, efficient and ambitious, and may make its mark through political or diplomatic talents. It should be popular and influential with the public and in its private or fraternal affiliations.

For Monday, October 31

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for an extremely lively and enterprising day, with all affairs moving under high gear. While generally constructive forces reign there also are some hints of double-dealing, chaotic or perplexing situations, or loopholes for legal entanglements. Gain through application, hard work and practical initiative is seen.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and constructive year, with the spirit of enterprise and initiative under high tension. New projects may be successfully launched, but be alert to petty deceptions and misconstructions which might lead to confusion or litigation. Private associations should be pleasant and profitable.

A child born on this day may be energetic, resourceful, practical and productive, making decisive success by its sturdy application and resolution, as well as by its personal popularity and good nature.

Fashion Flashes

(By ALICE ALDEN)

It isn't easy to find a new idea for wraps but Paquin has done it. This house presents an evening wrap with skirt of black velvet and top of ermine cut on the same lines as a man's cutaway coat. The bodice fastens on one shoulder and at the waist with huge rhinestone buttons.

Dining out and feeling smart wearing a tailored lace dinner dress. A smart model is of black lace with a cross-bar design in gold thread. Sleeves are short, bodice is slim and skirt is very full.

Late afternoon finds a diversity of very dressy street-length frocks. A typical model is a shirt-waist dress of supple gold lame with tucked bosom and tiny jewel-tone studs and links.

Shoulders rise from beautiful strapless bodices. A charming evening frock is a strapless model of black net over taffeta, the lower part of the skirt and the front draping of the moulded bodice marked by tiny rose pink velvet roses.

One smart woman depends on four plain sheath-slips to see her through the evening season. One is black taffeta, another is black crepe, one is silver lame and the fourth is of gold lame. Over these sheaths she poses a whole wardrobe of dresses, jackets and capes and always looks lovely on a reasonable outlay.

CHATTERTON W. M. S.

The October meeting of the Chatterton W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. F. Campbell. The meeting opened with quiet music by the organist, Mrs. F. Campbell. Hymn 578 was followed with prayer by Rev. Cooke. Psalm 107 was read responsively. 14 members answered the roll call. It was decided to ask Mrs. Meale, press secretary to make a scrap book of interesting events of W.M.S. meetings for the balance of the year. Mrs. F. Finkle gave a devotional leaflet "Our Father". A reading "A Prayer" was given by Eileen Mitts and a solo "Stranger of Galilee" by Mrs. G. Frederick. A reading was contributed by Mrs. W. Lough "Litany of Thanksgiving."

The president, Mrs. B. Bleecker, gave a splendid report of sectional Rally held at West Huntingdon. A duet by Mrs. F. Campbell and Mrs. A. Hamblin and readings by Mrs. F. Lough and Mrs. Cooke followed. The president made a strong appeal for a peace offering in thankfulness for peace.

After hymn 662 the meeting closed with benediction by the president.

Mrs. Kate Moog Busch testified at the New York spy trial that she had been offered money and other inducements to open a lavish home in Washington, where she could entertain officers and politicians of the U.S. in an effort to obtain information from them for Germany. Mrs. Busch claimed that the offers had been made to her by officials of the German foreign office.

Eliminate Poisons
By keeping the kidney action regular

The human machine in the process of digestion forms poisons which are eliminated through the lungs, the kidneys, the bowels and by perspiration.

The kidneys are the natural filters of the blood and on them is thrown the work of eliminating the poisons from all we eat and drink, especially the latter. If the quantity of poisons is greater than the capacity of the kidneys can look after, we experience pain and serious disease.

The secret of avoiding trouble of this kind is found in the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills because they arouse the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels and promptly eliminate the poisons from the system. The kidneys are relieved of overwork and regain health and vigor. Pains, aches and tired feelings disappear and serious disease is prevented.

Young People's Union Rally At Bethel—Rawdon Church

Rawdon—The annual rally of the Belleville and South Hastings' Young People's Union was held on Wednesday, October 26th in Bethel United Church on the Rawdon circuit with a good attendance.

The President Mr. Donald Williams occupied the chair and the afternoon session opened with a Worship Service in charge of King Street Young People's Union, Trenton.

Rev. James E. Beckel, pastor of Rawdon circuit, graciously welcomed the guests and the president replied.

Roll call followed with most of the twenty-five unions represented. Rev. W. J. Scott, Miss Marjorie Hagerman and Miss Eileen MacMullen were appointed as Courtesy Committee. Mr. George Greer, president of Belleville Presbytery Y.P.U. gave the highlights of the recent conference held at Perth. Miss Irene Tucker and Mrs. Walter Warren sang a duet with Miss Laura Tucker as accompanist.

Mr. Robert Smithrim was in charge of directed Recreation and all enjoyed a variety of group games.

The young people divided into five groups where they discussed their own particular department as follows:—Christian culture in charge of Mr. Charles Tupper and Rev. S. Osborne; Christian Fellowship—Mrs. W. Sine; Christian Missions—Rev. Armstrong and Mrs. H. Bates; Christian Citizenship—Miss Myrtle Read, Mr. Robert Smithrim; Dramatics — Miss Frances Fenwick.

The Nominating Committee was appointed as follows—the old executive; the ministers and the presidents of unions who were in attendance.

The Bethel Young People served an appetizing supper to which all did justice.

Evening Session

Rev. S. Osborne led the gathering in a song service which all thoroughly enjoyed. Rev. Osborne and his wife are leaving next week for a new position in Toronto and they will be greatly missed in the Belleville District.

Holloway Street Y.P.U., Belleville conducted the evening Worship Service based on Faith. Miss Phyllis May sang very effectively, "My Heavenly Father Watches Over Me" and the service concluded with a story "The Man who Loved the Lillies".

The Missionary offering of the Y.P.U. goes to the support of Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Morgan, West China.

Subscriptions to the Quinte Broadcast are to be forwarded to Mr. Gordon W. Finlayson, 17 Bridge Street East, Belleville, and material for the broadcast is to be forwarded to Miss Polly Nelson, Trenton.

The 1939 Rally will be held in Holloway Street, Belleville.

The president gave a report of the Executive meetings held throughout the year which included a skating party at Stirling and a picnic at Cannifton. He also visited most of the unions. He thanked all for their co-operation especially the executive for their willing assistance.

The Nominating Committee bought in their report and after the election the new slate of officers were solemnly installed by Rev. V. Roblins as follows:—

President—Mr. Robert Smithrim, Trenton.

Vice-President — Mrs. Clayton Ritz, Corbyville.

Secretary-Treasurer — Miss Margaret Reynolds, Corbyville.

Christian Fellowship—Miss Muriel Milligan, Foxboro.

Christian Missions — Miss Doris Williams, Bridge Street, Belleville.

Christian Culture —Mr. Ralph Campbell, Foxboro.

Christian Citizenship—Miss Irene Tucker, Bethel-Rawdon.

Dramatics— Miss Mary Lockhart, Bridge Street, Belleville.

Recreation—Miss Mildred Bonter, Holloway Street, Belleville.

Publications—Mr. Charles Tupper, Bethel-Madoc.

Leadership Training— [illegible] H. B. Herrington, Thomasburg.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the retiring president, Mr. Don Williams for his splendid efforts during his two year term.

The new president Mr. Robert Smithrim took the chair and in a brief address thanked the large gathering for their confidence in giving him so great an honour.

Miss Marjorie Hagerman presented the report of the Courtesy Committee and the offering was received.

Rev. Manson Doyle

The guest speaker, Rev. Manson Doyle of Toronto, opened his address with a comment on the fellowship of service and the wonderful opportunities open to the youth of today. He felt the sessions had been very profitable.

He stressed what had been said in the afternoon that "we can never do anything about peace until we are confirmed followers of Jesus. When you have your Christians it will not be hard to spread the flame of right living."

He glowingly referred to the allied youth movement across the border and the splendid way that these people have united in the Temperance movement. On New Year's eve those young people demonstrated that the Dry Life was the Sporting Life as well as the Christian Life.

Dr. Doyle outlined several areas of human living which the youth of today could claim for Christ if they wished. Among these areas is that of Science where there are poorly paid workers the area of human sobriety, the commercialized amusements, the field of moving pictures, the industrial life of the Anglo-Saxon people.

The Christian youth of today must seize these areas for Christ and build up our land for the good of all.

Today the Christian Church needs men and women who will give their lives in service for the uplifting of humanity.

Rev. H. B. Herrington, Thomasburg, closed this inspirational rally with prayer.

At the evening service the church was filled with young men and women and older youth who are all interested workers in the various Young People's unions of South Hastings.

Burnbrae, Oct. 21, 1938

Dear Marion:

We the members of Burnbrae Y. P. S. desire to express to you our keen sense of loss as a result of your removing from our immediate presence, and in some way to gratefully acknowledge your past services. As a member of our Society you were always earnestly active in its life and progress, and as a recognition of your personal devotion the Y.P.S. chose and elected you as their President for the year 1936. During that period of office, your services and efforts were so entirely acceptable, that you were re-elected for the following year.

We are anxious that in some tangible way we may express to you our sincere appreciation of the efforts which you put forth and for the services you have rendered our Society.

We therefore ask you to accept these gifts (a handsome mirror and vase presented by Misses Helen Murray and Annie Fry respectively) and extend to you our best wishes and God's blessing in your future home.

Signed on behalf of Burnbrae Y. P. S., President Bill Craighead, Secretary Doreen Pollock.

In regard to the miscellaneous shower of linen, crystal, silver and various gifts the following address was read:

Dear Marion and Don:

We your friends and neighbors have gathered here this evening, to express to you in a tangible way, the esteem in which you are held in our community. As you sit in our midst, the centre of attention, the spirit of the community offers you the glad hand wishing you all the happiness and good luck that is fitting of greatest friendship and goodwill.

Now as we think of your marriage, we wish you both a happy and successful life together. It has often been said "Life is what we make it", so we are assured that if you carry with you into the future the same cheerful disposition expressed by you both in all your past associations, then your home will be centre of gladness and joy. Marion you were always willing to help in all our church activities and also in the community work. We will miss you but we know you will carry on in your new home and community. We are all happy that you have found for your life partner one whom we esteem so highly and we feel that he is to be congratulated in his good fortune.

When we realize that our loss is another's gain, we can overlook Don's intrusion into our neighborhood and taking one of our most popular young ladies.

Marion and Don: There will always be a welcome awaiting you both in our community as often as you are able to join us.

We ask you to accept these gifts as a slight token of our regard for you both and may they ever be of useful service to you and at the same time remind you of your many friends here tonight.

"When you take an inventory of your friends both new and old,
When you are adding up the joy of life which cannot be bought with gold ,
When you feel the need of someone
Who will stand through thick and thin
We shall count ourselves most happy
If you only count us in."

On behalf of your many friends we heartily join in wishing you health, happiness and a long prosperous wedded life, and may God's richest blessing crown you both.

Thelma Wallace, Clara Thain, Florence Hay, Charles Carter.

The bride and groom thanked the guests most heartily for their numerous gifts and inviting them to visit them when they are settled in their new home near Harold. Among the gifts were displayed a set of kitchen ivory enamel containers with red trim from the Seymour East Women's Institute Branch. Marion and Don have been very popular in their neighborhood and it looks as if they have received every attention due them even to Charivaris, and we wish for them a happy prosperous wedded life.

More important than the "cow catcher" as an obstacle remover for Palestine trains is this "suicide car." Manned by a picked band of daredevils it precedes trains looking for land mines, weakened bridges and barricaded tracks. The work is extremely dangerous as mining of railroads is a favorite trick of the Arab terrorists.

In preference to attending a formal opening of the new block of the Great Ormond Street Children's hospital in London, the King and Queen made a tour of the hospital, chatting with the small inmates. Across the Years

By HAZEL R. LANGDALE

Ardis Chapin sat in a deep wicker chair, holding an unopened letter in fingers that trembled. Should she read the missive?

The warm Indian summer sun, shining through the clematis vine, turned to a burnished gold her lovely hair, so that its few silver threads were invisible. There was a strange expression in her eyes, which were as still as when young Bob Curtis had likened them to fringed gentians under water.

The carpenters had been repairing the porch and had taken down the old letter box beside the door. Between it and the woodwork, they had found the letter Ardis was now steeling herself to read.

It was addressed to her in a large, irregular hand, the ink somewhat faded. It was dated 15 years ago.

Well, to be sure, it was 15 years ago that she and Bob had danced that last memorable waltz in each other's arms and he had whispered at its close, "I'm sending you a letter tonight with something in it that I can't say here."

Here was the letter now, after 15 years. Running a slender finger beneath the flap, she drew a deep breath and took out the folded sheet.

"Darling Ardis: I am being transferred to the Praesidio tomorrow. But before I go, I want to tell you I love you. I want you to have time to think it over because it would break my heart to have you promise to marry me and then find it was a mistake. You are so desirable—and so desired!

"If I don't hear from you—and perhaps that would be the kindest way—I will know that I must be satisfied to keep just the memory of you with me always.

"BOB".

An ardent, boyish letr. A letter from one who feared to know his fate.

Of course, owing to the letter's being hidden all these years, he had never heard from her.

She hadn't known much about his life since he left the day after the hop. She knew he had gone to a western post from the Praesidio and then across to France.

Ardis rose swiftly and went in to her resk in the sunny living room, got out her note paper and rapidly penned a letter to the war department at Washington.

"Can you locate for me Captain Robert Custis, West Point, 1909. He served with the Forty-fifth Engineers, A.E.F., and I believe he is still in the army. Sincerely yours.

"ARDIS CHAPIN."

She took it down to the post office immediately and mailed it with a special delivery stamp. Then she settled down to what she foresaw as a week or so of nervous suspense.

She was pushing her chair back from the table when the doorbell rang.

Alga, she knew, was like the maid in the Mother Goose rhyme, out in the garden hanging up the clothes, so she answered it herself.

Then she stepped back, her hand at her throat.

There, like a figure come to life out of a dream, stood Bob. Tall lean, brown a little older-looking. but the same dear Bob.

"Bob!" was all she could say.

"I came as soon as I heard of your letter" he said simply. "The girl in the office happened to know that Ihad run in from Fort Humphreys this morning, and she told me about it.

"I came by airplane. You see. after 15 years, even an airplane isn't any too quick to bring one to the woman one hasn't forgotten for a single hour".

"You—you haven't married,"

"Married? After my telling you that, how could you think I had married?" he reproached her. Then, "Have you?" he demanded.

She shook her head. "No, I—I—"

But she got no further, for she found herself taken hungrily into his arms.

8 TEAMS CANNOT AFFORD TO LOSE TODAY'S MATCHES

Queens Must Win From McGill To Stand Outside Chance

IMPERIALS ON SPOT

Argos, McGill and Nationals Can Afford To Drop Their Games

As each week passes the east's football games become more critical until such a week-end as this when no less than eight of the twelve teams can't afford to lose.

The possibilities of today's program are plentiful. These are some of the things that may happen:

If Queen's Tricolor lose to the highly-favored McGill Redmen, the Intercollegiate Union will be assured of a new champion. For Queen's have lost three straight, including a 17-5 setback by McGill last Saturday, and they would have no chance at all with another defeat.

University of Toronto Blues, who have won three championships and been in three playoffs in the past six years, will be all but through if they lose to Western's Wild Mustangs, who beat them 3-2 at London. Yet no matter who wins, one of them will have to beat McGill later on if there is to be a playoff in the college circuit at all.

Over in the Ontario Union even the one-time mighty Sarnia Imperials are on the spot. If they lose in Montreal to Hoddy Foster's Nationals and Toronto Balmy Beach defeat Peterborough Orfuns, the seven time champions of the Union will be in third place. And only two play off in the O.R.F.U.

Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts feature the Interprovincial Union schedule and they've about clinched the "money" spots from Montreal's winless Cubs and Hamilton Tigers, who have won once—from the Cubs—and are favored to eliminate them in Montreal this afternoon.

That's the way it is in eastern football. It's a short run for the weak—four weeks after the season opens only Riders, Argos, McGill and Nationals can afford to finish on the wrong side.

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Grapevine says Pitt is "going" all out for Fordham this afternoon as it hasn't for years. . . . Goldberg and Co. are rarin' to scramble those goose-eggs once and for all. . . . Sammy Baugh, farmed to Sacramento in the Cardinals' baseball chain for 1939, isn't too sure yet whether he'll make the trip to the coast—figures if it's a good football year (with money in the bank) he may give up baseball.

Japan has decided to send only a small team to the '40 Olympics, mostly swimmers . . . can't afford a full squad, and doesn't want to make too big a splurge after cancelling the games in Tokyo. . . . Fred Hill, the old six-day bike racer, held a $75,000 ticket on Dubonnet in this week's sweepstakes.

There's plenty of "foot" in the Michigan-Illinois football series. . . . In the last five years, it's taken a field goal or extra point to decide every game. They don't come any more regular than the fans in Huntingdon, W. Va. . . . Even though Marshall's footballers dropped an upset decision to Toledo last week, thousands of the home folks lined the streets for blocks to welcome the boys home with cheers.

HENRY LEWIS IS WINNER OF BOUT

Retains Light Heavyweight Title By Defeating Al Gainer

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 29 (AP)—John Henry Lewis today is "the winner and still champion" of the world's light heavyweights—but he doesn't know what to do with the title.

The Phoenix, Ariz. negro weak from making 174 pounds, successfully withstood the serious challenge of Al Gainer, New Haven Black Panther, four pounds lighter, in a 15-round title bout here last night. He unleashed a vicious attack in the final five rounds to win the unanimous decision of the two judges and referee Dave Fitzgerald.

The bout attracted a crowd of only 2,278 that paid a net gate of $7,085.

In the dressing room after the battle, Lewis said it was a "good scientific fight" but "I don't know what to do with the title. There doesn't seem to be any money in it and hasn't been any since I've had it. I had some trouble making the weight and what I got for risking the title tonight and going through a good tough fight certainly wasn't worth it."

ARMY AND IRISH BIG GAME OF DAY

Fordham-Pitt And North-Western-Minnesota Top Ranking Matches

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Three or four games overshadow the rest of the great United States college football program today as leading teams from coast to coast hook up in knock-down, drag-out battles with sectional and conference titles at stake nearly everywhere.

There are Army-Notre Dame, Pitt-Fordham and Northwestern-Minnesota for the topmost attractions and Duke-North Carolina and Texas Christian-Baylor running close behind.

There's nothing quite like an Army-Notre Dame game, not even the Army-Navy classic, so far as public interest is concerned. And it's a natural this year with the Irish unbeaten and Army only nosed out by Columbia.

The Pitt-Fordham battle of the naughts—three successive scoreless ties—seems due to produce some scoring fireworks this time as two of the greatest teams come together. Minnesota, ranking power of the mighty Western Conference, runs up against Northwestern, which hasn't been scored on and which usually gives the Gophers their hardest struggle.

Between them, North Carolina and Duke should settle the Southern Conference race, for they outclass the rest of the league. If any team is to stop the mighty men of T.C.U. this season, Baylor's Bears look like the best candidates.

Capt. Walters Proposes Race to Bermuda For Purse of $5,000

Boston, Oct. 29 (CP)—Two rival fishermen skippers stood figuratively toe-to-toe today and hurled in each other's weather-scarred faces challenges for a race to end all races for the sailing championship of the North Atlantic.

Captain Cecil Moulton, who skippered the Glousterman Gertrude L. Thebaud in a losing best-of-five series of races with Captain Angus Walters' salt-banker Bluenose a few days ago when he proposed a series off Massachusetts with each skipper putting up $500.

When the verbal firing ended last night, Walters had raised the ante to $5,000 and suggested a "real race".

No more of this merry-go-round stuff over a triangular course for Cap'n Angus of Lunenburg, N.S. This time he want to high-tail it down to Bermuda from Boston and back to Halifax. And he is willing to wager $5,000 the fleet Bluenose will race home first.

Walters Quite Indignant.

The Gloucester skipper added zest to his challenge for a race off Massachusetts over a course of Captain Walters' choosing with the words "put up or shut up".

Peppery Captain Walters is hardly a man to let such words go unchallenged. He held his counsel for 48 hours. And then he let Captain Moulton have it, terming the proposed $500 stakes nothing but "poker money".

"Five hundred dollars, bah!" snapped Cap'n Angus as he hurled his counter-challenge. "That's only poker money those Gloucester people are talking about.

"Let's get this thing settled once and for all. Let's race for $5,000 from Boston to Bermuda, around the island and back to Halifax, winner take all. Let them think that over instead of spouting about chicken feed."

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

Montreal Canadiens will send a group of veterans and promising youngsters to their International-American League farm club at New Haven, but the relegated hockeyists aim to make it tough for the National League regulars to hold their places. It all adds up to a favorable situation for Manager Cecil Hart, who can call up an eager Int-Am player any time someone starts to slip.

Canadiens took on New Haven last night in an exhibition at Cornwall, Ont., and just managed to scrape out with a 2-1 victory over the scrappy Eagles. Defenceman Walter Buswell snapped in the winning goal halfway through the final period after two sessions in which the minor leaguers held their own in both scoring and roughing.

Red Doran of Eagles and Toe Blake of the Habitants swung fists in the rousing third period and the players of both teams joined in. Johnny Gagnon nicked Canadiens' first goal in the first few minutes but Don Willson, who was with the big team last winter and aims to get there again, tied the count in twenty seconds.

Detroit Red Wings tried out a new officiating idea in their 8-3 win over Cleveland Barons of the Int-Am at Windsor, Ont. Instead of placing a single linesman on the ice, the officials put two in the seats in line with the blue line, like linesmen in tennis. The referee handled the game from the ice and the linesmen called offsides.

Bert (Butch) Foote, a Michigan-Ontario League referee who acted as linesman, said afterward that he thought the plan should be adopted generally, for "there is no way we could make a mistake about an off-side play." Referee Rabbit McVeigh echoed his approval, with the reservation that the linesman in the stands might have trouble exerting his authority in a hotly contested game.

Red Wings had to struggle for two periods to hold Bill Cook's Barons level 2-2. After that Defenceman Ebbie Goodfellow and the line of Eddie Wares, Carl Liscombe and Alex Motter turned on enough heat to score five straight goals.

Toronto Maple Leafs and their Syracuse farmhands formed two teams for an exhibition in the new Owen Sound, Ont., arena. Bill Thoms' goal, with 5 seconds to play and with Jack Fox of the opposition in the penalty box, gave the Blues a 3-2 decision over the Whites.

Red Horner, also of the Blues, scored once and he and Thoms got an assist apiece. The White line of Murph Chamberlain and the Metz brothers, Nick and Don, was flying again and contributed a goal through Chamberlain.

The Leafs go back to Galt, Ont., where they trained, for an exhibition tonight, while Chicago Black Hawks will move over to Cleveland for a game with the Barons. New York Rangers will seek a fifth straight victory over the New York Americans at Edmonton. Tomorrow night Canadiens will battle New Haven again at Shawinigan Falls, Que., and the Leafs will stage an exhibition at Syracuse, N.Y.

BOMBERS FACING DIFFICULT TASK

Must Defeat Regina To Get In Play-off For Western Title

Winnipeg, Oct. 29 (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers today face one of the toughest assignments ever presented a football club. Having beaten Regina Roughriders in the last three meetings between the two western Interprovincial Football Union clubs, Bombers this afternoon must whip the Ruffies for the fourth straight time to retain a chance of defending their Western Canada championship.

In all of the west's football history, it is doubtful if Roughriders ever dropped four straight games, let alone four in a row to one club. And Regina this year has one of the best teams ever to wear their red and black colors.

Winnipeg fans pinned their hopes on a little blond flash, scarcely five feet six inches in height but undoubtedly one of all-time greats of Canadian football. He is Fritz Hanson who will lead Winnipegs in the Western senior semi-final, winner of which meets Calgary Bronks in a home-and-home, total points series for the championship.

First Feminine Trophy Nominations

FIRST FEMININE ETC. gt

First feminine nominations for this year's Lou Marsh Memorial trophy, awarded each year to the Canadian athlete deemed outstanding in the country, were all golfers. TOP (inset), Miss Ada Mackenzie, medallist in this year's Canadian women's open, and champion of many past seasons. LOWER (inset), Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, who took the Canadian crown at Ottawa by defeating Miss Clary Tiernan, British Curtis Cup player in the finals. RIGHT, Mrs. E. H. Gooderham, Ontario titleholder. The trophy is awarded each January for the preceding year.

Outstanding brother act put on on Canadian gridirons is that of the Stukuses, Annis, Bill and Frank, with Toronto Argonauts in the Big Four. Not only do all three play, but they're all important cogs in the Argonaut machine, this year attempting to make it two Dominion football titles in a row. Annis, the eldest, and Bill, next in the age line, share the team's quarter-backing duties, handle the passing and kick placements. Frank, youngest and latest to join the team, lines up at outside wing when the Scullers take the field. Annis easily retains his No. 1 rating in the family so far this season after his sensational performance in the first "crooshal" game against Ottawa Rough Riders, when he scored all his team's points, including a 55-yard touchdown run after receiving a pass. Here is the trio, Annis, LEFT; Bill, CENTRE, and Frank, RIGHT.

After moving back into the shadows immediately after the world series, baseball is slowly emerging with an off-season deal here and there, and many more predicted. Biggest one thus far was engineered by the thrice world champion Yankees and the St. Louis Browns. Myril Hoag, LEFT, one of the Yanks' surplus outfielders, and Joe Glenn, RIGHT, second string catcher, will be in the Brownies' line-up next year in place of Oral Hildebrand, CENtre, southpaw hurler, and Buster Mills, outfielder. Both ex-Yankees should strengthen the St. Louis team, while Hildebrand and Mills will probably be juggled around in the Yankee system somewhere, as McCarthy makes room for his rising Newark stars, outfielder Charlie Keller and catcher Buddy Rosar.

Whenever veteran baseball or hockey players convene to reminisce the old timers scoff at the modern athlete. "Modern hockey players aren't in the same class with those of two decades ago or more. Why in those days we really had hockey players, who would put to shame these present-day pampered pups of the ice lanes," the old timers state in unison. But let's analyze these bold statements. There is one player of the old school, who recently came out flat footed in favour of modern hockey and its exponents. That man is none other than Bill Cook, former New York Ranger scoring ace and native son of Kingston.

"Hockey today is faster, better and more exciting that it was 15 years ago, when the old Western Canada League was at its zenith and in full swing. Why we are turning back to the amateur ranks today players who would have gone great guns in professional hockey 15 or 20 years ago," openly stated the manager of the Cleveland 'Barons,' of the International League, when he was forced to turn back a number of promising looking rookies because of so many veteran players on hand recently at Windsor, where Cook's Cleveland Barons are training.

"Amateur players who are not quite ready for the professional game of today would have been outstanding 15 years ago. Today play is much faster. Every player has to be a specialist and a sprinter with this three-man line system of attack. In the old days practically every one was a marathon player. Of course we look back on those days through a pleasant haze but I've no doubt at all fans now seen a better brand of hockey today," openly stated Bill Cook. Perhaps Manager Cook knows whereof he speaks, he should, he played both styles of hockey, the old and the new.

Did you know that the supposedly hard hitting New York Giants of the past season led the National League in shutouts. Terry's ballsters were blanked 12 times, while the weaker Boston Bees noly suffered eight doses of the whitewash brush this past season.

Perhaps the ideal place to act as a sports official is in the land of Mussolini. In Italy a football referee has the power of a policeman and even a court judge. If the Italian football players become unruly and displease or attack the referee of the day, the official has the power to arrest the whole team concerned, lock stock and barrel, tossing the whole shebang into the cooler. The Italian referees' power included not only the authority to arrest, but also to try the misdemeanors. Recently an Italian referee in a game at Lecce, exercised his law-enforcing rights following an attack upon him. The home team was tried in court held by the official along the sidelines, as the game was held up. Later the captain of the home team wanted to know why the visiting team had remained out of the altercations. "Oh, I suppose they read the papers," replied the official, but he forgot to add that the captain of the visiting team was his own cousin.

Ridiculing talk that the Yankees, by their super-excellence, are ruining baseball, Dan Parker, sports editor of the New York Mirror, says that nothing strikes him as quite so silly aside from those experts who picked the Cubs to win the World's Series

"Drivel like this is inspired by miserly magnates who believe that, like a gold mine, a ball club exists for the purpose of having everything taken out of it and nothing put back," writes Parker. "If it's wrong to strive always to improve, let's take good old Buck O'Neill's advice and tear up the Constitution. What baseball needs is more Colonel Rupperts and more Tom Yawkeys to build up more ball clubs like the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox. The only healthy way to equalise the situation is not to dismantle the Yanks but to bring the other clubs up to the Yankee standard."

This is one told by Mrs. McCarthy, wife of the Yankee manager recently:-

Joe chews gum incessantly on the bench. Nervousness. One afternoon Lefty Gomez walked up and down the dugout, as he does, and Joe got upset.

"Come here, Lefty," said Joe. "Sit down by me and calm yourself."

Gomez sat next to the boss. Under the bench he felt a wad of something sticking to the seat. He hauled it out. It was a gigantic hunk of chicle.

"Yes, that's some of your bases on balls," shouted Marse Joe, as Gomez got up and left.

Coach Jack Doran's St. Michael's Academy juniors swung into rugby football prominence locally with a 17 to 0 victory over the West Hill "All-Stars" at the Fair Grounds yesterday. The "Irish" ran around the West Hill kids for three touchdowns, two of which were converted. The scoring was evenly divided with McDougal, Hart and Ciceri carrying the oval over for major scores. These teen-aged kids are taking to the autumn classic like the proverbial ducks to water and they show keen interest in copying the efforts of the big time players. Whether or not yesterday's win for the "Irish" is any indication of the possible result of today's Notre Dame at Army game of course remains to be seen. The St. Mikes juniors clash with the Albert College kids next week in another exhibition grid tilt.

Marmora Team Scores Victory Over Tweed

Marmora High School Rugby Team won the second victory over Tweed High School team this season in a home game played at Deloro on Friday with the score 36-0.

At the beginning of the first quarter W. Reynolds scored the opening touchdown for Marmora but failed to convert. E. Reynolds followed shortly with another touchdown. This was converted and made the score 11-0 at the end of the first quarter.

The second quarter was fairly equal play by the teams and no touches were secured. Marmora obtained one point during the quarter, making the score 12-0. A Marmora player secured a touchdown at the opening of the 3rd quarter, and it was converted. Leonard made a spectacular run down the length of the gridiron and made a touch. This was also converted and the score obtained the point 24-0.

During the fourth quarter Marmora succeeded in getting two touchdowns. McInroy secured the first; Harris bucked it over, and Gale obtained the second and it was converted. The game ended with the score 36-0.

Marmora will meet Madoc team next week in the final game of the season. Both of these teams have lost 1 game, so this forthcoming game should prove to be worth while witnessing.

Madoc Gridders are Assured of Play-Off

Madoc, Oct. 29 (Special)—By winning from Stirling High School by the score of 10 to 1, Madoc High School won a play-off berth in the northern football league. Ending the season with four wins, a tie and a loss, the local school team can do no worse than a first place tie with Marmora High School. Madoc was the better team and deserved their clean-cut win. Munro and Stewart were outstanding for the winners, each scoring a touch.

The line-up:

Madoc—Snap, N. Kincaid; insides, M. Bassett and B. McBain; middles, G. McAvoy, T. Hawthorne; outsides, B. Hawthorne, J. Naylor; flying wing, J. Thompson; quarter, Munro; halves, Stewart, Moon, Harris; subs, White, Foster.

Stirling—Snap, Bailey; insides, Lancaster, West; middles, Morton, Brooks; outsides, Armstrong, McGown; flying wing, R. Richardson; quarter, Pyear; halves, Beckel, Woods, D. Richardson; subs, Thomson, Scott, Jandrew.

BRITISH PARTY

iterranean, and the Far East had been sacrificed without heed to the consequences. The result was a series of shattering defeats for British diplomacy and a loss of faith in democracy.

War was averted not by Prime Minister Chamberlain, the document asserted, but by Eduard Benes, who as Czechoslovakia's President "accepted under the pressure of brutal threats the cruel sacrifices demanded by Hitler."

After a series of diplomatic defeats, starting at the time of the invasion of Manchuria by Japan, it charged, Great Britain "abandoned her historic position of champion of freedom and of the rights of small nations and thereby threw away the respect and support of many nations and peoples." The world now was back where it was in 1914.

"If Spain now were to be sacrificed with the connivance of Mr. Chamberlain to the predatory aggression of Hitler and Mussolini, not only would democracy once more have been betrayed but France would be encircled and the security of the British commonwealth exposed to new and grim perils."

Armaments

The document dealt with the responsibility of the National Government in the domain of armaments "In October 1936", it said, "it (the Labor Party) warned the government 'the armed strength of the powers loyal to the League of Nations must be conditioned by the armed strength of potential aggressors.' "

Emphasizing lack of anti-air guns and the "confusion" in the passive defence organization, the manifesto contended that British military aviation "has been far outstripped in every respect by that of Germany."

"The defences of our country have been criminally neglected," the manifesto continued. "The recent crisis found us in a state of appalling unpreparedness. The shortage of anti-aircraft guns is a public scandal.

"The confusion and inadequacy of arrangements was notorious. The food supply, a vital element of national defence, has not been made secure either by increased home production nor by substantial food storage.

"Enormous sums have been voted by parliament for national defence. The nation has no value for its money. The industrial strength of our country is being allowed to decline because of the same indecision and ineptitude which the government displayed in foreign affairs.

Loss of Markets

"It will be further intensified by the loss of markets to Germany and Japan as these countries extend their economic penetration even beyond the large areas of Europe and Asia which successful aggression and democratic weakness have given them."

Passing to discussion of air raid defence measures the document said:

"No effort must be spared to make our country as far as possible safe from air attack. The air raids precautions must be regarded as of equal importance with the other three defence departments and made thorougly efficient.

"The resources of the nation in scientific knowledge and in manpower must be reorganized. We must absorb large numbers of unemployed in this work of vital national importance.

"Powerful and effective defence by anti-aircraft guns and a balloon barrage must be provided for all our crowded centres of population. The relative weakness of our air force must be remedied as speedily as possible and the number of fighters greatly increased.

Ministries of Defence and Supply

"A ministry of defence must be created to co-ordinate our defence service and a ministry of supply to ensure prompt and orderly supplies to meet their requirements.

"We must organize our manpower, but we unhesitatingly reject compulsion which is equally unnecessary for the armed forces and for passive defence, as for industry.

"Let the people be told the truth and what is expected of them by a government of their trust. The Trades Unions must be fully consulted on all questions affecting Labor supply and conditions. Sacrifices must be made by those best able to bear them. There must be no profiteering, especially on work connected with national defence.

"There must be heavier taxation of large incomes and great fortunes."

The Labor Party stressed that current social services must be maintained and that the buying power of the working-class must not be reduced.

"The basis of a nation's strength must be sufficient food for all," the manifesto continued. "Whether in war or peace, stores of food are better than stores of gold."

Food Production

Consequently, the document said, measures must be taken for a serious intensification of food production and creation of system of stock reserves designed to prevent speculation during war.

It also recommended maximum utilization of national resources based on socialist principles, such as nationalization of essential industries; national control of finance, foreign trade and agricultural production and national control over geographic redistribution of new factories to meet the following two-fold purpose

1. Facilitate their defence against air attack in event of war.
2. Aid in return of normal business recovery in the so-called distressed areas.

(The Trades Union Congress, in a memorandum made public tonight demanded creation of a ministry charged with the geographic redistribution of new plants thru'out Great Britain in order to give all regions a chance to share in the benefits resulting from the development of domestic industry and at the same time give them adequate air raid protection by removing them from heavily crowded centres.)

Trade Extension

"The government must actively promote the extension of our trade, particularly with members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, the United States and other democratic and friendly people the manifesto went on.

"New treaties must be made with all countries willing to do more trade with us on a fair basis."

The manifesto asked establishment of the system of peace on new foundations.

"The postwar settlement has been shattered," it said. "Force now rules in the world. The nation is full of fear but war is not inevitable. Recent events have shown how deep is the desire for peace among all peoples, who are waiting for a lead.

Ask for Lead Towards Peace

"The British people must give it. Instead of seeking to gain a brief respite for feverish rearmament by making further concessions to aggressive militarism, Britain must be prepared now to enter into discussions with all nations, whatever may be their systems of government, to remove genuine grievances.

"But such discussions must not be conducted under threat of armed force. The British Commonwealth of Nations is a working example of the co-operation of free peoples. The government of our country, acting in close accord with the Dominions, can give the lead required.

MENUHIN SQUALL OVER 'PURE ART'

Father of Youthful Violinist And Artists Enter Into Dispute

Los Gatos, Calif., Oct. 29 (AP)—The artistic squall over whether Yehudi Menuhin will join a musician's union blew from all points of the compass today, with the latest gust coming from the noted violinist's father and secretary, Moshe Menuhin.

Moshe said it was a question of conscientious objections on the part of his son, and the "defence of pure art".

The senior Menuhin said Yehudi was all packed to go to Los Angeles to carry out his contract for two concerts with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, Nov. 3 and 4.

In Los Angeles, Ted Carr, assistant executive of the American Guild of Musical Artists, said he had a contract on his conscience, too—that unless Yehudi joined the A. G. M. A., then that organization could not live up to the contract it made two years ago with the orchestra.

'Doesn't Understand.'

New York officials of the Guild added their word by saying that Yehudi had recently publicly announced his sympathy with organized labor, but "he evidently feels that such a statement of sympathy is as far as he wants to go".

In Chicago, Lawrence Tibbett, operatic baritone and president of the Guild, said he believed Yehudi simply didn't understand and offered to call him by long-distance telephone to "get things put right".

Moshe Menuhin stated:

"Yehudi Menuhin honestly feels and believes (and his observations and conclusions are based on the past ugly history of A.G.M.A.'s playing dirty politics with the famous or infamous Dickstein Bill in Congress to exclude foreign artists, as well as A.G.M.A.' unscrupulous ways and means of forcing American and foreign artists to join them, using contradictory arguments to force and coax them into A.G.M.A.) that A. G. M. A. has one wish: to dictate to, control, approve and disapprove every artistic or professional step of the free lance independent solo concert artist."

ELECTORS GET A BREAK

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP) — Spellbinders couldn't believe what they didn't hear from nearby Maryland today—a political campaign with no oratory. The fight is spirited, but democrats and Republicans of Montgomery county have decided to replace "old-fashioned oratory" with "handshaking festivals."

Melrose

Melrose—There was a good attendance on Tuesday evening at Melrose United Church when the Official Board of Shannonville Circuit and also members were visited by the Presbytery Committee of visitation composed of Rev. A. A. Waite, Deseronto, chairman; Rev. R. E. Newman Belleville and Layman, Mr. Hudgins, a member of the committee. The questionnaire review concerning the work of the church proved instructive, interesting and profitable.

Among those from here who attended the Women's Institute convention at Belleville were Mrs. R. C. English, Mrs. G. McLaren, Miss L. Weese and Mrs. G. Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Sherman visited Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. F. Wilson's, Lime Lake.

Miss Muriel Allison, Belleville, is spending a few holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. English.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lazier were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. Stuart, Port Hope.

Mrs. J. Sager, Mrs. McGee and Mr. McGee, Napanee were Tuesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Young.

Mrs. Bruce Sherman accompanied by her sister Mrs. J. Haight and Mr. Haight recently motored to Watertown, N.Y., via the International Bridge.

Mr. Ernie and Vincent Pascoe and other friends made a trip via the new International Bridge and also on the American side during the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Sills, Corbyville, Mr. and Mrs. E. Simpkins, Mr. and Mrs. G. Lazier and Mr. J. Lazier were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. C. Haight.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Badgley visited relatives at Napanee on Sunday.

Mrs. A. Masters has returned home after spending a few weeks at Port Hope.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Badgley, Campbellford, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. J. Milligan.

The Young People's Union executive met at the home of the President Mr. C. Young on Thursday evening to arrange for the annual Hallowe'en social and other meetings.

Mrs. Chas. Young, Bath, is a guest this week of her son Mr. Young and Mrs. Young.

There will be service in the United Church on Sunday evening with the pastor, Rev. W. D. Craig in charge.

Mrs. R. McMeachan has returned home from a visit with relatives at Peterboro and Madoc.

A committee meeting met at the home of Mr. R. Macfarlane to arrange for the chicken supper.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 29 AP)—Traders pulled their punches in today's stock market and leading issues shifted from one foot to the other in an exceedingly narrow range.

While fractional losses predominated at the close, numerous stocks were unchanged and a scattering managed to emerge with modest advances.

Somewhat droopy throughout were North American, Commonwealth and Southern, American Water Works, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, American Can, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, Montgomery Ward, Standard Oil of N. J. and General Electric.

Westinghouse was supported, along with Pathe Film, Dow Chemical, U. S. Rubber common and preferred, Stone and Webster, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio and Texas Corp.

Most Canadian shares tipped back although Hiram Walker gained a major fraction. Losers included Dome, McIntyre Porcupine and Lake Shore.

TORONTO STOCKS
(Close)

Toronto, Oct. 29 (CP)—The Toronto Stock Market concluded the week with a mild display of softness and sluggish trading. Turnover was down to 350,000 shares or less and the penny issues accounted for a large proportion of the aggregate. Steel and base metal groups were the strongest of the list.

The McColl-Frontenac stocks registered a moderate comeback from Friday's sell-off on the passing of the dividend. The Preferred recovered about 1 1-2 and the Common 1-4. British American Oil and Imperial Oil closed with minor losses.

Strong spots in the steel list were National Steel Car, Canadian Car Pfd. and Dominion Steel while Page-Hersey was off a point and Car Common 1-2. Utilities leaned to the down side in slow action. Losses were showing for B. C. Power A, Montreal Power and Shawinigan. Liquor issues held practically unchanged.

A steady market ruled for the senior base metals but the cheaper issues firmed moderately, Waite-Amulet, Sudbury Basin and Sherritt posting gains of 4 to 10 cents. Quiet action ruled in the silver list.

Interest in the golds was concentrated chiefly in the penny list, particularly Bobjo, St. Anthony, Howey, Augite and Fontana and these showed more gains than losses.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

The market is acting well and those hoping for a sizeable setback have so far been disappointed. The newsprint stocks have had several false starts, but one of these days, when the realization of the improvement facing the industry becomes felt, the group should break through its recent high and move into new territory. Fundamental factors underlying the market are making for strength and higher quotations are confidently anticipated over the immediate months.

Those of a cynical turn of mind may be inclined to regard the current bullish opinion as a danger signal, but in view of recent business developments, it is difficult to visualize anything more than intermediary reactions of a comparatively minor nature at the present time. Industrial activity is increasing, plant facilities are being extended, armament orders continue to maintain factory operations at high levels, further aircraft orders are in the offing, commodity prices have been gradually improving, and unemployment figures report declines.

Butter and Egg Prices Unchanged

Toronto, Oct. 29—Generally unchanged prices prevailed during yesterday's session of the local produce market.

Some points reported slightly better sales on the butter market, but trading maintained a slow place with the continued light arrivals of fresh receipts sufficient for the demand. The product was available on spot locally at 22¾c. Business passed in Ontario creamery solids in the range of 22¼c to 22½c for No. 1 grades, 21½c to 21¾c for 38 score. Buyers offered the former values of 21c to 22c for No. 1 grade churning cream (country truck prices.)

Trading in grade A-medium lagged on the egg market, while other grades cleared fairly well. Grade C eggs in particular met with good reception. Offerings were not heavy. Graded shipments were quoted at 39c for grade A-large, 35c for medium, 28c to 29c for pullets, 26c to 27c for B's and 22c to 23c for C grades.

Butter Firmer at Montreal

Montreal, Oct. 28—Butter prices were firmer and the cheese mart was somewhat steadier on open produce markets here today, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Eggs remained unchanged.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 23½c to 24¼c a pound and creamery solids for 23c to 23¼c.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 39c to 40c a dozen for A-large; 36c to 37c for A-medium; 29c to 30c for A-pullets; 26c to 27c for B-large, and 20½c to 21c for C. Receipts: 2315 boxes, including 2075 for export.

Belleville Cheese Board Asked to Consider Changing Saturday Meeting to Midweek

Belleville Cheese Board after meeting nearly every Saturday for its regular boarding for the past half century, may be asked in common with other boards of the Province to change their date of trading from Saturday to midweek, according to a suggestion by the Montreal Provision Trades Association in a letter received and read at Saturday's meeting.

The Montreal Provision Trades Association which is a branch of the Montreal Board of Trade, points out that cheese received from country boards during the past season have been subject to considerable complaint due to their arrival in Montreal in a "warm and some cases, heated condition."

"The cause of these complaints lies in the fact that as the country boards are held each Saturday, the cheese do not arrive in Montreal until the following Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday, but mostly on Wednesday and Thursday," the letter points out. With moats sailing on Fridays of each week, sufficient time is not allowed for proper cooling.

"The Department of Agriculture has already indicated that it is seriously considering the adoption of a regulation, which would stipulate a definite temperature for cheese at the time of loading aboard steamships at Montreal, but such action on the part of the department would probably prove unnecessary if the cheese boards in Central and Eastern Ontario would meet not later than Thursday all on the same day in each week," it was further added.

"Apart from the question of maintenance of quality, the late arrival of cheese in Montreal necessities, under the Quebec Fair Wage Act, the payment of overtime wages to handlers as there is not sufficient time during regular working hours to handle all the cheese. This change cannot be passed on to the importers in Great Britain as the competition with New Zealand cheese on that market is steadily increasing," it was pointed out.

On motion of Mr. W. H. Beddell, salesman, it was decided to lay the matter over until the view of other central boards is given on the question of changing boarding day.

CHEESE BOARD

A total of 2060 white, 48 colored and 402 assorted cheese were offered on the regular Saturday boarding of the Belleville Cheese Board. EVENTUAL UNION OF CHURCHES SEEN

Platform Adopted For Merger of Episcopalians And Presbyterians

New York, Oct 29 (AP)—Prospects for the eventual union of the Protestant Episcopal and Presbyterian Churches in the United States assumed a brighter hue today as result of the adoption of a platform for the merger by commissions representing the two denominations.

As another step in the first official efforts in a half century at organic unity, the commissions adopted a platform which with a few minor changes is the same as that approved by the Presbyterian and the Church of England (Episcopalian) in unification conferences from 1932 to 1934.

Hopeful Note Struck.

The commissions, which concluded a two-day session yesterday, also approved a concordat, supplementing the general platform, as an instrument for unification of specific Episcopal and Presbyterian congregations. It struck a hopeful note in asserting that "the primary difficulty lies in the differing views of the ministry. But there is large agreement."

The platform and concordat will be considered by the Presbyterian general assembly in Cleveland in May and by the triennial convention of the Episcopal Church in Kansas City in 1940. A church with 3,100,000 members and 5,800,000 adherents would be created by the merger, members of the commission said.

Mooney Still Hopes For His Freedom

San Francisco, Oct 29.—(AP) — Thomas Mooney changed his mind and asked his lawyers to continue their fight before the United States Supreme Court to win for him freedom from San Quentin prison.

The court, in a ruling October 10, refused to review the Mooney case. After the refusal Mooney said he would abandon his 20-year court fight for freedom and would pin his hope on the chance California voters might elect a governor who would pardon him.

Mooney, convicted in 1917 of participating in the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day parade bombing, has contended he was convicted on perjured testimony.

Huntsville Publisher Writes Story Of Deputation's Conference With Mr. McQuesten on Highway Proposal

As a member of the Belleville-North Bay-Huntsville delegation which approached the Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways in his Queen's Park Office, Tuesday last, requesting that the Belleville-Whitney Highway be proceeded with and taken over as a trunk highway, by the Province, Mayor H. E. Rice, editor and publisher of the Huntsville Forester, writes as follows regarding the meeting at Toronto.

Mayor Rice was named second vice-president of the Belleville-North Bay Highway Improvement Association, which organization will be dedicated to the task of furthering this project

"A large deputation representing the cities of Belleville and North Bay, the town of Huntsville and several municipalities in Renfrew County, waited upon the Hon. T. B. McQuesten at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto, on Tuesday last. The object was to discuss with the Highways Minister the importance of government recognition of the claims of the proposed new provincial highway leading from Belleville to Whitney," Mayor Rice wrote in his publication.

"The Minister received the deputation at 12.45 when Mr. Herity, manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, presented in general outline the request of the deputation. The proposed road has two unconnected portions of comparatively short mileage between the City of Belleville and Algonquin Park. This route used by American tourists crossing the new St. Lawrence Bridge would reduce the distance from Huntsville to Belleville by approximately 70 miles. It would relieve the congestion on Highway No. 2 and give tourists very direct contact with the central lake regions of Ontario.

"Maps were produced by Mr. Herity showing the advantages of the new route. Other brief addresses were made by members of Parliament for East and West Hastings and by the mayors of North Bay and Huntsville.

"In his reply, Mr. McQuesten pointed out that already heavy commitments had been made throughout Ontario. These included the North Bay-Soo Highway; the completion of No. 11 north of North Bay, both of which were referred to as expensive projects. In the course of his remarks, Mr. T. B. McQuesten mentioned his recent visit to Muskoka and referred to the urgency of the reconstruction program on Highway No. 11 from Severn north. "This important highway is in a very unsatisfactory condition," said Mr. McQuesten, "and its convenience for getting tourists into Muskoka and the northern regions of Ontario makes it imperative that improvements be not delayed."

"Mr. McQuesten recognized the importance of the Belleville-Whitney highway and stated that he had driven over this road recently and considered that it had great possibilities in developing additional traffic through Algonquin Park and the Muskoka regions. He referred to the unexpectedly large traffic over the new international bridge at Ivy Lee, and stated that some relief for the congestion on No. 2 highway will become an early necessity. He appreciated the value of the tourist business and was proud that Ontario was attracting increasing numbers from year to year. "Our lake regions are the finest on the continent," he said, "and it is the policy of the government to so direct its highway program as to take care of the growing demands for tourist transportation."

"Mr. McQuesten stated that he had full knowledge of the importance of the Belleville-Whitney highway connection and encouraged the deputation to believe that some progress will be made with the undertaking at an early date.

"Before the deputation met the minister it was decided to form the Belleville-North Bay Association. These officers will be assisted by an active executive committee representing the various municipalities along the route."

AUTUMN PRODUCE FEATURES DISPLAY ON CITY MARKET

Variable Offering of Post-Harvest Produce Greets Shoppers

Perfect Autumn weather greeted a fairly large number of farmers and growers of the district today on the city market where a typical post-harvest display of farm, garden and dairy produce was offered to Saturday morning shoppers.

Winter apples predominated in a fruit display that lacked the usual Saturday morning variety. Northern Spies of choice quality struck a new price level for tree-picked fruit as vendors quoted stocks at $1.25 and $1.50 per bushel. Windfalls, slightly bruised were offered at one dollar for the same quantity. Tolman Sweets were offered at from $1.75 per hamper-lot upwards.

Vegetables in bushel lots featured this offering with beets at seventy-five cents; onions at one dollar; carrots at fifty cents parsnips at fifty cents and turnips at sixty cents rounding out a fine display. Potatoes moved slowly at 90 cents per bag.

Celery, Chinese cabbage, home-grown cabbage and cauliflower moved briskly at five and ten cent quotations.

Little Change in Egg Prices

Egg prices showed little or no change from quotations of a week ago. Vendors offered "A" selects at forty cents per dozen generally although lower prices were available in some quarters. Mediums and some ungraded stocks were quoted at thirty-seven and thirty-eight cents per dozen. Chicken was fairly plentiful although the quality appeared to be lower than usual. Young birds were offered at from $1.50 per pair with fowl and yearling hens selling at from sixty-five cents upwards. A few ducks were offered today selling at from ninety cents to one dollar each.

Fresh whitefish and lake trout selling at twenty cents per pound, with a slight additional charge for filleting and cleaning, headed a variable fish display.

Fresh lake herring was quoted at four for twenty-cents with mullets selling at three for the same price. A few mudcats were in evidence at two pounds for twenty-five cents while some choice pickerel moved well at eighteen cents per pound.

Blight-Rot of Potatoes Considered Serious By District Farmers

Approximately fifty per cent of the potato crop of this district will be a total loss through dry blight rot, a survey of growers and vendors on the city market revealed today.

Farmers residing at Foxboro, Stirling, Durham County, Brighton, Prince Edward and other parts of the district told the same story. Practically the entire crop is affected with potatoes grown in low-lying land showing the most results from the blight.

One farmer in Durham who planted five acres of potatoes in low swampy land, dug approximately five bushels, then ploughed the remainder under. A Foxboro resident dug 238 bushels, placed them in his cellar and yesterday attempted to retrieve some for market.

"The entire lot was affected," he said, "and the odor nearly drove us out of the cellar. Our entire crop is affected and if the blight continues we won't have a spud to our name."

Other farmers reported the same story. A visitor from the Guelph district told The Ontario Intelligencer that thousands of bushels in that area are affected with the blight.

A resident of the district north of Brighton, stated that in all his years of potato growing, his crops had never been affected by any disease, rot or blight, but this year he will suffer a severe loss.

Vendors on the market today prophesied prices to reach high level by spring.

NEWLY WEDS ARE TENDERED SHOWER

Mr. and Mrs. David Sutherland Recipients of Many Gifts

Tangible evidence of the respect and esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. David Sutherland (nee Susie Thompson) are held was shown at the Aajulaa Club on Wednesday night when upwards of one hundred relatives and friends tendered the bride and groom of recent date a miscellaneous shower.

Entering the hall to the strains of "Here Comes the Bride" the happy couple were escorted through showers of confetti, to a card table prettily decorated in pink and white, where they officially started the euchre, that comprised part of the evening's entertainment.

During the course of the evening the following address was read to Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland by Gerald Vance: "Dear Susie and David. On this happy occasion we, your friends and relatives, have assembled here to extend to you our very best wishes for a long and happily wedded life and it is our sincere desire:

"That your future will always be bright,
Your pathway be joyous and your troubles be little ones.
Now on this occasion we have brought you tonight,
A shower of gifts, which we hope you will like.
Just accept these small gifts as a token we pray,
Of the love and esteem we shall bear you alway."

Many lovely gifts which expressed in themselves the love and esteem in which the young couple are held were then presented to Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland. A dainty lunch was then served and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing.

TURKEY PAYS KAMAL TRIBUTE

Observes 15th Anniversary of Founding of His Regime

Ankara, Oct. 29—(AP)— Turkey paid tribute to its ailing president Kamal Ataturk today on the 15th anniversary of the founding of his regime. The three-day celebration was planned originally to commemorate Turkey's political westernization but it turned out to be a national tribute to Ataturk, confined to his bed with a liver complaint.

Guns on fortresses and warships saluted the anniversary. Infantry, cavalry, artillery, and motor units paraded as a prelude to long processions of civilians. In the military display was the famous female cavalry unit.

The demonstrations, while scores of airplanes flew overhead, emphasized how much Turkey has been transformed since the wrecking of the Ottoman Empire. Ataturk first smashed the theory that there was anything spiritual about the temporal rule of the land. Next he removed the veils from the faces of Turkish women, ended polygamy, and westernized the nation's dress.

ROGERS STRESSES REDUCED DEFICIT

Labor Minister Reviews King Government Record

Brandon, Man., Oct. 9—(CP)—Hon. Norman Rogers, Dominion Minister of Labor, told a political meeting here last night as he reviewed the Liberal government's record that the administration had reduced the former Conservative government's deficit of $160,000,000 to $17,000,000.

Mr. Rogers who spoke in behalf of J. E. Matthews, Liberal candidate in the Nov. 14 Federal by-election in Brandon riding, said that apart from the two per cent sales tax, changes made in taxation had been downward.

The trade agreement with the United States, now under discussion, was described by Mr. Rogers as a "beacon light of economic sanity" and a possible cornerstone of freer trade between Great Britain, United States, Canada and Australia.

Unity Cure for Unrest

In a reference to talk of unrest in the Dominion, he said that only by compromise between the various sections could unity be achieved. The prosperity of industrial sections depended more than all else on the prosperity of Western Canada and agriculture in particular.

Efforts of the Dominion government to fight unemployment were recited by the Minister who told his listeners of the administration's home improvement plan, Dominion housing loan, the municipal assistance act and assistance to the mining industry. The government also had eliminated the sales tax on building materials. Unemployed numbers were reduced from 206,000 to 115,000 on Sept. 1.

DOMINIONS OFFICE IS NOT YET FILLED

No Present Plan To Abolish Office Is Considered By Government

By J. F. Sanderson
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 29.—(CP Cable)—Prime Minister Chamberlain's delay in appointing a successor to the late Lord Stanley has revived a report which springs up periodically that the government intends abolishing the Dominions' office or merging it with the Foreign office or the Colonial ministry.

It is understood the reports again are incorrect and that the government has no intention of abolishing the office at this time. One reason for not filling it at present is the complete knowledge of the office possessed by Malcolm MacDonald, particularly in relation to Anglo-Irish affairs. Mr. MacDonald has temporarily assumed direction of the Dominions office in addition to his regular duties as Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Time Inopportune

The Dominions' office would not be abolished without the consent of the four Dominions and so far there has been no approach along this line. It is also believed this would be an inopportune time in view of the dangerous international situation and the necessity of retaining intra-Empire solidarity. It is being taken for granted that at least some of the Dominions would oppose any more to abolish or merge the office.

It is believed that if the Dominions' office is to be merged eventually it will be with the Foreign office rather than the Colonial Ministry. Its trade functions would be given to the Board of Trade. Political functions would be embodied in a Foreign office section under a full staff.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

CHAPTER XXI.

The sound of traffic, dimmed before, honked up to them, breaking the spell. Guy drew a deep breath and ran a finger inside his collar, as though it constricted him.

Two opposing selves were now struggling within him. Was this beautiful girl real?—he wondered. Or was her allure deliberately assumed?

Had Niklas guessed the reason for his frequent visits to the club and set this girl to be a Delilah shearing the power of Samson, who might pull down the very walls of Le Chateau de la Marquise?

Not even to himself would he admit that it was the girl herself who drew him every night now. And she would go down with the others to destruction!

An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth! The blood ebbed from his heart as he thought of his brother Randy, cut off in the flower of life!

As against this powerful vengeance, his other self longed to take her in his arms again. The clamor of the senses would not be stilled.

There was a third self, too—the highest self of all—that remembered she was a woman, and, as such to be revered. Even if she had deliberately allied herself with Niklas, wasn't it his duty to set her feet back on the straight and narrow path?

Intensely chivalrous, he loathed the role he had set himself to play. The part of watchdog! Spy! It was detestable!

Even if she were a woman rogue, she had charm, beauty, distinction. Who knew what wretched luck had been hers? Who was he to judge? Had his own past been so stainless?

He heard her voice, speaking with quiet dignity:: "I think it would be best if we got away from here. Please, won't you come?"

He wheeled around from the window where he had been standing, lost in reverie.

"Just one minute, Antoinette. May I call you that?"

The question was put with humility. For, maybe all his suspicions about her were wrong. Maybe to the best of her knowledge, she was trying to earn a straight living, far from home.

She hesitated, walked over to a golden sofa against the wall, and sat down.

He dropped down beside her, held her hand in his. It was a slim, patrician hand.

His eyes upon it, he said gently: "Don't you think the good Creator has been very lavish with his gifts to you, my dear? I mean, the gifts of beauty, charm, intelligence. I'm wondering—don't think me prudish—if you ever looked upon them as a kind of trust?"

"A—trust?" Her lips fell apart.

Stifling his impulse to kiss her again and again he nodded seriously. "Gifts that you could use wisely. As a power, my child, for good."

She was amazed.

"Am I doing anything wrong?" she asked quickly, so naturally, that he was sure her response must be real.

Or was it just part of her subtlety?—he wondered.

He tried to harden his heart, but could not.

"Don't you know that a girl like you should have nothing to do with a place like Le Chateau de la Marquise?"

Color flew into her face. She said hotly. "Why it's a lovely place! I adore being there. I've made a success with my singing. You wouldn't want me to give it all up!"

"I want just that."

Did he mean marriage?—Toni wondered. Was he jealous of the admiration she attracted? She waited, tense, expectant.

"Won't you explain?"

"I—can't. I just want you to get away from it all."

"You mean you don't like my appearing in public?"

"It isn't that."

Her heart sank.

"Then what?"

A long pause. He was still holding her hand, but not so tightly.

Suddenly he let go of it and said sharply: "Surely you don't take me for a fool! You know what I mean."

A burning red blazed into her face. Because she had let him kiss her, responded to his seeming ardor, he was judging her as a girl who would let any man kiss her.

She drew away from him, rigid with anger. "Do you realize that you are insulting me? In my opinion, I have done nothing to deserve it, except by agreeing to come here with you, which I now very much regret."

He reddened.

"Oh, don't take it that way, please. You misunderstand. I was thinking only of the dangers you're running."

"From men?"—with superb disdain.

"Not," he stammered. "in the sense you're thinking, although it distresses me to know you have to meet all sorts, when a girl like you should know only the best. I mean something more dangerous, something hidden, something quite horrible and destructive."

Toni was alarmed. But still so angry, that her voice was cold as she said ironically: "Sounds like a kidnaping!"

His reply was earnest: "Perhaps even that!"

She laughed.

"You overestimate my fascination to the opposite sex, if that's what you mean." In her excitement she had forgotten the assumed French accent, the broken diction.

Nor did he notice it.

"I'm not joking. Anything might happen. I can't explain, but do be warned."

She rose. "If you don't mind, I think we'll return to the others." She added, relenting a little, because he seemed so deadly serious: "I'll bear your warning in mind."

They danced together again after that queer session in the salon upstairs.

Guy was so magnetic, so insistent, that the memory of the quarrel faded, and she had a marvelous time at the party.

Next morning they rode in the Park together.

And the next day. And the next.

Luckily for these meetings, Harriet Brewster was not only a late sleeper but a poor horsewoman who seldom took a canter. So the "friendship" between Guy and Toni had no interruption.

Essentially an outdoor girl, Toni was at her best during those morning rides. The presence of Guy brought an added physical glow, a new radiance to her ever-increasing beauty. For love is a great tonic.

She did not wish to admit it to herself, but he was constantly in her mind. When he was near her, everything became more alive and vibrant. She was falling deeper and deeper in love—with a REAL man. Did he reciprocate?

His changes of mood often puzzled her, but he usually showed to a great advantage during their morning rides. Whatever bitterness lay in his soul was washed away in the cold, clean air of morning that was not only a stimulant but a sort of purification.

Or so it seemed to Toni. She said one day:

"This is ever so much nicer than sitting around the Chateau de la Marquise, is it not?"

He gave her one of his quick searching looks. "I'm glad," he commented briefly, "that you feel that way about it."

"A sign of my regeneration?" she teased. "You know I'm not really such a bad sort when you get to know me. Am I, Guy?"

He moved his horse nearer hers.

"You're an enigma, Antoinette. Sometimes I think you're half-a-dozen women rolled in one."

"I assure you I'm not at all complex. I wish I were.'

"Why so?"

"Because then I'd be much more—fascinating," she laughed.

She was even learning to flirt with him!

"Don't look so awfully serious. Isn't it just grand being alive? D'you know I often think, Guy, that you'd be so much happier if you'd just loosen up a little to the lighter side of life? D'you understand?"

"Don't you think I'm happy enough, here with you? Perhaps—" he deprecated—"too happy? Too content?"

Always when she seemed to make headway with him came those modifications. One moment progressing in their friendship, he would renege the next.

At first this had disturbed her. But she now put it down to the fact that he had been a bachelor so long.

He wouldn't yield to his feelings easily. Men liked their freedom. Besides, with his good looks, charm and money, he must have had loads of women pursuing him.

She told herself she didn't like an easy conquest.

"Life's lovely," she philosophized, "if you take it as it comes."

"You can really say that, after the loss of all your money and your people and your home?"

Was it her fancy, or was there a sceptical look in his dark eyes? The fabrication of the old chateau, her title and her background had been seen through, by this man? He was not taken in by them at all?

With all her heart, Toni regretted that she had not confided in him during that wonderful session together in the little upstairs salon of Harriet Brewster's house.

She could have relied, then, on his feeling for her. Could have thrown herself on his chivalry not to expose her story.

But she was too deep in it now.

She was afraid she might lose this wonderful new friendship if she confided in him completely.

Weave a warmer spell about him, if that were in her power! Get matters advanced. Once he was really and truly in love with her—once she was necessary to him and his happiness—she would dare to confess what, after all, was not such a discreditable ruse.

But he did know something. She was almost sure of it. A man as powerful as he was, could find ways and means of investigating most people's lives.

CHAPTER XXII.

Was it possible that Harriet, via Brock Milbank, had dug up a story and told it to Guy?

Brock sober would be safe, but Brock, on the other hand, drank plenty, these uncertain days in town. He was garrulous when drinking, and was liable to say anything, particularly in the hands of an unscrupulous woman like Harriet, who had her own axe to grind in unmasking a rival.

Harriet was crazy about Guy!

Still unmarried at thirty-four or thirty-five years old she would probably let nothing stand in her path where an eligible party like Guy was concerned!

"The loss of my money" said Toni deliberately as they walked their horses, side by side, "was naturally a blow, and yet, I believe I am happier now that I am earning my own living. Does that seem strange?"

Again one of his penetrating glances. He was silent.

She was annoyed.

"Why don't you answer me?" she persisted. "Can it be that you, a man-of-the-world, are a snob at heart? Or is it just that you are terribly old-fashioned in your views about women? Which is it?"

"Neither the one nor the other," said Guy.

"Yet you obviously disapprove of the fact that I take satisfaction in my success at the club?"

"Is it necessary to go into that again? Why spoil a lovely morning?" he answered.

"You'd really admire me more if I were a social parasite? If I—what is the word?—sponged on my friends?"

She drew her horse to a halt. "Will you kindly explain yourself?" she snapped.

He halted his own horse, gave her a long, level look from his handsome dark eyes. His jaw was set obstinately. It seemed squarer than ever. The little scar on his cheek seemed to stand out belligerently, like a sign of battle.

"What do my opinions matter? You'll go your own way anyhow."

"Do you know you're the most obstinate man I've ever known? Why don't you tell me what's on your mind and be done with it?"

She was beautiful and patrician in her sudden spurt of anger. With a twinge at the heart he realized this.

Was he mistaken in her? Was she really as honest and above-board as she often seemed?

What about the luxurious flat Niklas had provided for her? Why had he done so? Surely she knew it was with tainted money?

"A girl with your beauty and talent," he said guardedly, "could go far."

"But not in my present milieu? Is that it? Don't you know one has to creep before one learns to walk?"

"Creep," he thought, was a very apt word!

"Or stoop to conquer, you would say," she flashed, "as a matter of fact, I consider myself lucky that I can earn my independence."

"You've certainly earned it" came the cryptic answer.

"I honestly have."

"Honestly?" he thought. Or was he on the wrong track?

"It is not for me to dictate to you," he said quietly, half placatingly, "let's be moving along."

As though to make amends to her, he was very nice thereafter regaling her with stories of his experiences big-game hunting in Central America.

"How I'd love to go there!" Her eyes shone.

"Perhaps we shall—you and I? Why not?"

Her heart rose.

Was a declaration coming? He had plans about her future? Life was wonderful when he spoke in that vein.

One morning she was there before him and set out from the stables alone. She was eager for a cantor on this bracing morning, knowing that Guy would soon follow her.

She rode a distance. Very few people were in the Park at this hour. She meditated on her amazing luck in knowing Guy, in making good professionally in New York, and with a good salary.

She corresponded regularly with her parents. They understood she was having success on the concert stage. They would like a man like Guy, would appreciate his fine points. Perhaps one day.....things were shaping towards it......Guy and she would go home together!

Time was passing. What happened to him? Better go back and meet him now. She wheeled her horse about, and set him at a trot, her mind full of happy meditations.

Suddenly, from some bushes, a ragged old man limped directly across the bridle path. She was almost on him when she saw him, and pulled her horse up sharply, just as he slipped and fell, lying in a forlorn heap on the soft mold.

Toni jumped off, tying her reins to a nearby tree. She hurried to the old man. "What's the matter? Not hurt, are you?"

He opened dazed eyes. "I'm just out of hospital, miss. Thank you, miss." She helped him to his feet.

"It seems to me as if you ought to go back to the hospital. You look ill."

"It's my heart miss. I'm subject to heart attacks. I seen a taxi over there on the road. If you could get me to it, miss, I'll drive to the hospital. I feel terrible bad, miss," he whined.

"Certainly I'll put you in it and I'll pay the driver. He'll take care of you." said generous Toni, full of compassion.

Gripping his skinny old arm, she half-supported him through a clearing in the bushes. Luckily, a taxi had drawn up there on the open road.

"Bellevue Hospital, please," muttered the old man. Toni repeated this to the driver, slipping a dollar into his hand. She started to say: "Now you be careful of your fare—he's ill—"

But the words were cut short as two men leapt from the inside of the cab. From behind one pinioned her arms. Before she could scream for help, a heavy hand was thrust across her mouth. She was dragged into the cab, gagged and blindfolded as the cab started. In utter darkness, she knew that consciousness was slipping from her.

AT THE BELLE

"ROOM SERVICE" "SMASHING THE RACKETS"

Absent from the screen for more than a year, the Marx Brothers make an auspicious return in what has been described as their funniest vehicle to date, "Room Service," now on the Belle screen.

Adapted from the smash comedy which had New York audiences in an uproar for more than sixty-one weeks, "Room Service", provides the three zanies with a ready-made story embodying the daffy situations and rollicking complications which always fit their peculiar comedy style.

In "Room Service," a shoestring producer wants to stage a footlight epic—without spending a penny! He and his cast of twenty-two put up at a splendid hotel and are $1,200 in arrears. He lures an "angel" with $15,000 into his trap to finance the hazardous venture. Employing ingenious methods, he and his two loyal assistants struggle desperately because "the show must go on" — and the result is a mirth-packed entertainment said to be the best done by the goofy comics.

The hilarious structure of the plot is built up by a series of suspense-packed highlights which keep the laughter rolling unto the very end. The unexpected arrival of the author in search of his advance royalties; the backer who is tricked into financing the show; the hotel manager who regrets that he ever became the producer's brother-in-law; the hotel supervisor who finances the play without knowing it; the hectic ruses by which the madcap Marxes restrain all interference until the curtain goes up—here's a steady stream of fun-making sequences which add up to the demoniacal comedian's greatest funfest.

A faithful transmutation of the play to the screen, "Room Service" features Lucille Ball and Ann Miller, two of Hollywood's more promising starlets; and Frank Albertson. The other principal roles are filled by their Broadway creators, Clifford Dunstan, Donald MacBride, Charles Halton, Alexander Asro, Philip Wood and Philip Loeb.

The Marx brothers head the cast, of course, with Groucho as the producer; Chico as his capable assistant and maker of trouble when a banker has to be fleeced or an auditor non-plussed; and Harpo as the erractic man-of-all-work.

"Smashing the Rackets"

Vividly disclosing how a fearless prosecutor works with a determined grand jury to break the stranglehold that a ruthless band of racketeers have on a great city, RKO Radio's "Smashing the Rackets", the added feature offering is said to be one of the most significant pictures of the year. Chester Morris, Frances Mercer, Rita Johnson and Bruce Cabot are cast in the top roles.

The story tells in dramatic fashion the methods used in obtaining the evidence that puts gang chieftains behind the bars. Along with its gripping disclosures and its tense crisis, a warmly human romance is woven into the story. The result is said to be an exceptionally entertaining picture as well as a vital human document that vividly lays bare the unhealthy soul of racketeering, and the obvious cure.

Chester Morris heads the cast as a determined F.B.I. agent who resigns his job to accept a post in the district attorney's office, from which he conducts his sensational campaign to smash the city's unwholesome rackets.

The Belle latest World News Events will also be presented.

AT THE CAPITOL

"ISLAND IN THE SKY"

Here's one swell picture!

"Island In The Sky," with Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen in grand combination of romance and excitement coming to the Capitol Theatre.

Beginning right at the beginning with more different angles than Hollywood has put in a story in many a day, this grand film treat starts out with what it calls "just a routine murder case."

Manhattan's highest hi-de-ho spot becomes the scene of the year's most exciting mystery. Whalen, as special investigator for the district attorney's office, has taken his secretary, Gloria, to the "Island In The Sky" club — 70 stories up—to announce to her that they are going on a honeymoon the following day. He has his leave all arranged. Gloria, who loves him, is stunned and amused at his "efficient" proposal.

Just as they get into the stride of celebrating their engagement murder strikes —and the honeymoon is off while Whalen hastens to make a quick clean-up of a routine murder case. But his clever secretary-sweetheart begins some sleuthing on her own.

Robert Kellard, by his refusal to talk and by a set of damaging circumstantial evidence, is convicted of the murder. June Storey convinces Gloria that there is something wrong. Paul Kelly in one of his most gripping portrayals brings the case to a successful solution.

Paul Hurst is a surprise find in the lighter vein and contributes much to a picture that is packed with thrilling excitement, unexpected laughs and mystery-romance.

Smash Hit No. 2

A top-flight cast of well-established and new-born stars brings to the Capitol Theatre screen an outstanding dramatic comedy, which provides healthy entertainment for all classes of audiences, as hit No. 2.

"A Desperate Adventure," and in the cast are Ramon Novarro, Marian Marsh, Margaret Tallichet, Eric Blore, Tom Rutherford and Michael Kent.

The action is swift and gay, and concerns a Parisian art'st, Novarro, who paints a daring masterpiece of the girl of his dreams, and suddenly finds her in real life in the person of Marian Marsh, an American heiress. Everyone tries to get the painting back from the gallery-Novarro because its daringness reflects on his newly found sweetheart, Tombes because it reflects on his daughter, Rutherford because he is engaged to Miss Marsh, etc. But the painting has been sold to an American gallery, and all board the ship that is carrying the focal point of the action back to the U. S.

Complications arise when Margaret Tallichet, younger sister of Miss Marsh, falls in love with Novarro and he finds there is no reason on earth why she too could not be the girl of his dreams.

Novarro and Miss Marsh, already well known to screen audiences, solidify their fame with their excellent portrayals in this film.

AT THE McCARTHY

"YELLOW CARGO"

In the role of a special government agent, whose task it is to break up a powerful Chinese smuggling ring, Conrad Nagel, always a favorite in romantic action roles will be seen in the fast-moving comedy-drama, "Yellow Cargo" which is the feature attraction coming next to the McCarthy Theatre. Playing opposite Conrad Nagel, who is starred, is the winsome Eleanor Hunt, who plays the role of a girl reporter, in quest of a big exclusive story, who mistakes Conrad Nagel for an actor out of a job instead of a government operative.

The story of "Yellow Cargo" concerns a ring of smugglers who specialize in landing orientals in Los Angeles harbor in violation of the Chinese Exclusion Act. The gang conceals its operations under cover of being a movie producing company.

Vince Barnett, Jack LaRue, Claudia Dell, Henry Strange, John Ivan and Vance Carroll all turn in excellent performances in support of Miss Hunt and the star Conrad Nagel.

Conrad Nagel and Eleanor Hunt featured in "Yellow Cargo" coming to the McCarthy Theatre.

A comedy scream entitled "Bury The Hatchet" with Tom Kennedy and Monty Collins, also a musical-comedy featuring George Campo, Nola Day, George Watts and Florence and Alvarez Garner, in a splendid variety of floor-show entertainment and a technicolor novelty cartoon entitled "The Brementown Musicians" will be presented in advance of "Yellow Cargo" daily.

"The Invisible Menace"

Boris Karloff in "The Invisible Menace" thrilling mystery comedy-drama with a splendid supporting cast including Marie Wilson, Eddie Craven and Regis Toomey now being presented at the McCarthy Theatre. A perfect programme of short subject entertainment will also be presented at each performance.

Talbot and Parker were asleep when the fire, of undetermined origin, spread rapidly through the house. Talbot managed to drag Parker through the window to a narrow ledge. As police rescued Parker from the ledge Talbot leaped 20 feet to the ground. Both men were removed to the hospital where they were pronounced suffering severe burns. It is feared that Talbot's burns will mean the end of his film career. Loss from the flames, which almost completely demolished the home, was estimated at $50,000.

NEWS ODDITIES AND BRIEFS

DEER SEASON FOR ARCHERS OPENS IN MICH.

White Cloud, Mich., Oct. 31 — Michigan's silent deer season opens tomorrow with 200 archers prepared to seek deer in two counties. Archers here are given two weeks hunting before the regular season starts.

Last year 186 hunters used bow and arrows in the annual hunt, but only three deer were shot and one wounded. Vetrean bowmen say the low kill is because archers must come within 30 to 50 yards of their prey, before shooting.

TO RESTORE "GREEN GABLES"

Charlottetown, Oct. 31 (CP) — "Green Gables" made famous by Lucy Montgomery's stories, will once again become the story book farmhouse, according to J. Smart of the National Parks Bureau. Workmen will restore the Cavendish, P.E.I., farmhouse to its original condition. It is in the Prince Edward Island National Park region on the island's north shore.

GIRL SHOT IN EYE

Cottam, Ont., Oct. 31 (CP) — Miss Hazel Osborne of Cottam, Ont., injured Saturday by a bullet in the eye, had her eye removed here yesterday. Her condition was reported good by hospital authorities. Miss Osborne was shot in the eye with a .22 bullet while picking nuts near her home here. Cottam is 25 miles west of Windsor.

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 31 — (CP)—C. Ernest Tatham, minister of the Gospel Hall at Lakefield, has what is claimed to be the oldest Bible owned privately in Canada. A "Breeches" Bible, it was published in 1599 and still is in good condition.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The heat equator! Hottest over the equator? Not generally. On the average all the year round, the hottest part of the earth is about 10 degrees north of the equator, and this is called the "heat equator". In summer the hottest part is farther north still, while in winter a part of the heat equator lies south of the geographical equator in South America, Africa and Australia. This heat equator is then a very irregular line moving northward in summer and southward in winter. The reasons for this are: (1) the largest land areas lies north of the equator and land absorbs heat more readily than water; (2) the southeast trade winds are stronger than the northeast and drive warm water north over the equator.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 31 CP)—An area of high pressure and cool weather extends from the Canadian-United States border northward to the Arctic and another area of high pressure covers the St. Lawrence valley and eastern States with a trough of low from Hudson Straits southwestward to the Rocky Mountain States. ANDERSON NAMED LORD PRIVY SEAL

Runciman Is Appointed Lord President of Council

London, Oct. 31 (AP)—Sir John Anderson today was appointed Lord Privy Seal in a cabinet shakeup believed to be preparatory to a widespread organization of the nation for defence.

Viscount Runciman was named Lord President of the Council.

Malcolm MacDonald, already Secretary for Colonies, was given the additional post of Dominions Secretary.

The post of Lord Privy Seal became vacant last week when Earl de la Warr was shifted to the Ministry of Education. Lord Runciman succeeds Viscount Hailsham, who resigned. The Dominions post had been vacant since the death of Lord Stanley Oct. 16.

Sir John Anderson was elected member of parliament for the Scottish Universities several months ago to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the death of J. Ramsay MacDonald. He had just returned from India where, as Governor of Bengal, he succeeded in suppressing terrorism in that province of British India.

Life Thrice Attempted.

In Bengal he survived three attempts on his life.

For ten years before going to India in 1932 Sir John was permanent Under-secretary at the Home Office. Prior to that he had been an assistant to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and played a big part in the British administration during the troubled years preceding formation of the Irish Free State.

He is 56.

Lord Runciman returns to the cabinet after eighteen months in retirement. He stepped down in May, 1937, at the time of Prime Minister Baldwin's retirement, after holding the presidency of the Board of Trade longer than any other man.

Mediator in Czech Crisis.

Early this summer he undertook the task of mediating the Czechoslovak-German dispute, submitting a report on his unsuccessful effort to Prime Minister Chamberlain during the September crisis.

Lord Runciman is an expert on merchant shipping. He is 68.

PRIESTLEY ACTS IN OWN PLAY

London, Oct. 31 (AP) — J. B. Priestley is to make his debut as actor tonight, playing the lead in his own play "When We Are Married".

The author's role is that of a comic Yorkshire Press photographer. He plays it as a "sporting gesture and necessity" since the regular lead, Frank Pettingell, was injured in an automobile accident on Sunday.

Tame Bear Claws Two-Year-Old Boy; Little Bruin Shot

Larder Lake, Ont., Oct. 31 (CP)—A tame bear, which went berserk and amost scalped a two-year-old boy, was shot today along with its companion. The bears were chained outside a service station as an attraction for tourists.

Yesterday afternoon Sonny White, one of a family of six children, left his home with a piece of bread to feed the bears. As he approached within reaching distance, one of the bears struck out and knocked him to the ground and began biting at the boy's head.

DOCTOR IS BURNED

By the Canadian Press

Ontario's week end fatalities stood at nine today—all male. Four men died in motor fatalities, two were shot, accidentally, another shot himself after wounding a 19-year-old girl, a doctor was fatally burned and a 10-year-old boy drowned in a pond.

A youth named Mertz, said to be from North Easthope Township, Perth County, was burned beyond recognition last night when an automobile left the highway near New Hamburg, crashed into a tree and took fire.

Two other occupants of the car, believed to be Stanley Helmuth and Leonard Curtis of the same district, suffered serious burns and were taken to hospital. Identifica-

HORSE FALLS INTO OLD MINING SHAFT

For the second time within a few weeks, a bay mare owned by W. N. Gilroy, prominent resident of Coe Hill, has been rescued from difficulties into which it has wandered. A short time ago men and ropes rescued the animal from a deep bog near the village where it had become heavily mired, unable to move. This week the same horse during a trip of exploration fell into an abandoned mining shaft into deep water. Fifteen men succeeded in removing it from the pit after two hours' work.

Guardian to be Sought for Ten Year-Old Bride of Week

Married Last Week To 34-Year-Old Miner of Kentucky

ATTORNEY AMAZED

Prestonburg, Ky., Oct. 31 (AP)—County Attorney Forrest Short said today a guardian would be sought for 10-year-old Rosie Columbus, a bride of a week.

"And if a guardian can be found to adopt Rosie," Short said, "annulment proceedings will be filed in his name."

Rosie was married last Monday to Fleming Tackett, 34-year-old miner. Rosie's mother, Mrs. Grace Columbus, said Rosie and "Flem" had been "sneakin' around and courtin' for a long time."

The county attorney said after he went to the windowless mountain cabin where "Flem" and his bride and three other relatives live in two rooms, that "I'm absolutely amazed —I hardly know what course to take".

Short said Tackett had told him "I love her, better than I love myself."

Chicago, Oct. 31 (AP) — Frank Rota, 24, opined today that "love will find a way" for him to be freed from the Cook County jail so he can live with his 12-year-old bride, Jennie.

Social service workers brought Rota before Judge Frank Bicek after they discovered the couple had been married at Valparaiso, Ind., last Aug. 30 by a Justice of the Peace.

Judge Bicek ruled the marriage violated Illinois laws prohibiting the marriage of girls under 16.

The young bride's attorney, Robert Romano, said he would go into court to ask for Rota's release on "humanitarian grounds". He said his client was expecting a baby.

Motorist Fined $20 and Costs For Reckless Driving

As a sequel to a motor accident on Victoria Ave. yesterday afternoon, Russell Storms, Napanee, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K. C., in today's local police court charged with reckless driving. The accused man pleaded guilty and was assessed $20.00 and costs, amounting to $36.75 in all. It was alleged by police, that a motor car driven by Storms failed to stop at a city stop-street sign, with the result it collided broadside with another car resulting in considerable property damage and minor injuries to occupants.

Robert Miles, a passenger in the above car, appeared before His Worship charged with the illegal possession of liquor, contrary to the L.C.A. Miles was convicted and fined $100.00 and costs or three months in default of payment. Police stated Miles had a bottle of wine in his possession at the time of the accident.

ROGERS DEFINES PRICE OF NATIONAL UNITY

Winnipeg, Oct. 31 (CP)—Price of Canadian unity must be paid in terms of national policy and individual effort, Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor, said today in a luncheon address to Winnipeg Board of Trade.

"A little more than a month ago in Canada and other countries we beheld a striking example of national unity in the face of a common danger and a common duty," he said.

SOME LISTENERS CONCEIVED IDEA MARTIANS IN U. S.

Fantastic Story of Mars' Invaders Taken For Fact By Some

RUSH TO HILLS

Listeners Advised Words Pure Fiction Drama Not Fact At All

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP)—The United States Communications Commission began an investigation today of a dramatic radio broadcast which led some persons to believe last night that men from Mars had attacked the United States.

Chairman Frank McNinch asked the Columbia Broadcasting System to furnish the Commission with an electrical transcription of the broadcast, a dramatized version of H. G. Wells' imaginative story "War of the Worlds". McNinch said:

"Any broadcast that creates such general panic and fear as this one is reported to have done, is, to say the least, regrettable."

McNinch told reporters that he had received many telephone calls last night about the broadcast, but that the commission had received only ten telegrams, all protesting it, this forenoon

Thousands In Panic.

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—A horrible broadcast fantasy of war waged on the United States by fearsome, space-conquering men from Mars brought near panic to thousands of radio listeners last night.

In the double-quick tempo of the news broadcasters, the fiction of a Columbia program became so realistic that hysteria prevailed among listeners throughout the United States and Canada.

Demands for investigation and correction came apace today with the belated reports of almost fantastic panic.

Senator Clyde Herring (Dem-Iowa) said he planned to introduce in the United Stteas Congress a bill "controlling just such abuses as was heard over the radio last night. Radio has no more right to present programs like that than someone has in knocking on your door and screaming," he added.

Will Demand Investigation.

City Manager Paul Morton of Trenton, N.J., near the locale of the fictional invasion, said he would demand an investigation by the Federal Communications Commission "with the view of preventing recurrence of what happened".

Some apartment houses in New York were emptied hurriedly by frantic listeners to the program—and by second and third hand accounts that multiplied the impending peril.

A woman in Pittsburgh tried suicide, saying "I'd rather die this way than like that."

Ready To Flee to Mountains.

At a high point in the program the electric power failed at Concrete, Wash., a town of 1,000, and the lights went out in most of the homes. Many thought the invasion had reached the west coast. Women fainted and men prepared to take their families to the mountains.

Switchboards in newspaper offices and police stations everywhere were swamped with calls from terrified people, many of them weeping.

Some reported they could smell the gas and see the flames started by the attackers.

Groups Pray For Salvation.

People gathered in groups to pray for salvation.

All over the metropolitan area, panicky persons jumped into their automobiles and headed for the open spaces to escape the hypothetical bombing of New York.

Brother of Franco Killed in Crash

Burgos, Spain, Oct. 31 (AP)—The death in an air crash of a brother of the Insurgent leader, General Francisco Franco, became known yesterday.

Lieut.-Col. Ramon Franco, 42, was killed Friday off Palma, Mallorca, while piloting a seaplane through a storm. Three others died with him. One person was missing.

Franco flew the South Atlantic Jan. 31, 1926, the first trip from Europe to South America. He was lost for 15 days during another flight, in 1929, when he was forced down in Portugal.

ACTION OF HUMAN HEART RECORDED WHEN MAN SHOT

John Deering, Noted Bandit, Executed By a Firing Squad

GIVEN ALTERNATIVE

Utah State Only One In Union Using This Method of Execution

Salt Lake City, Oct. 31 (AP)—A firing squad executed John Deering at dawn today in state prison while an electro-cardiograph recorded probably for the first time the action of the human heart pierced by bullets.

Deering, who had sought in every way to speed his death and who participated willingly in the scientific experiment to determine how long his heart would beat after being struck, was calm to the end.

The five man firing squad was given the order to fire at 6:45 a.m. M.S.T. (8:45 a.m. E.S.T.) and at 6:48½ a.m. Deering was pronounced dead in expiation for the May 9 holdup murder of Oliver Meredith, Salt Lake City businessman.

Strapped In Chair.

Deering was led from his cell and strapped in his chair against a prison wall. Electric wires were attached to his wrists and carried to a delicate machine to record his last heart beats.

Scientists began an immediate study of the record but said it would be a number of hours before they could announce any findings.

Utah is the only state in the Union using a firing squad. Convicted men are given the alternative of this or hanging. One of the five rifles used is loaded with a blank.

Convinced there was no place in society for him after half his life time had been spent in prison, Deering demanded that the state take his life. He had served prison terms for arson at San Quentin and for burglary at Folsom, both in California.

Then he sought to make restitution by giving his body to the University of Utah. He willed his eyes to the State that any blind person might obtain the corneas for transplanting to restore sight. No one had asked for them.

Captured in Detroit.

Deering was captured in Detroit Aug. 1, following an intensive search throughout the west and midwest. A gun he pawned for "three bucks" at Reno, Nev. brought about his identification and ultimate capture.

In Detroit he told officers "I want to talk to you fellows:. I'm wanted in Salt Lake City for murder. I want to go back there and die."

Returned to Salt Lake City, he told of shooting Meredith when "he reached into his pocket". He said he had a companion, but refused to give his name.

"I didn't mean to kill him but any rat that would shoot a harmless old fellow deserves to die," he said. "It's the least I can do. I'm ready. I hope they make it fast."

22,000 JEWS AWAIT DETAILS

Some of Polish Jews Have Already Been Deported

Berlin, Oct. 31 AP)—Approximately 22,000 Polish Jews are awaiting details of an agreement between the German and Polish governments which will determine their future residence.

Some already have been deported to Poland. (The Jewish Relief Committee in Warsaw estimated 13,000 had reached Polish soil.) The greater number, all resident in Germany until Friday, still are somewhere in camps, barracks or prisons along the German-Polish border to which they were hastily shipped by Germany after a roundup by police and storm troopers.

Agreement was reported near Sunday and some of the deported Jews started back to Germany. A trainload of 700 that had been held at the border since Saturday night was returned to Munich.

Germany started the deportations because of a new Polish citizenship regulation, requiring certification of all Polish passports issued abroad. Germany feared, officials said, that the thousands of Polish Jews residing in Germany were about to lose their Polish citizenship under this regulation and thus become persons without a country.

R.C.A.F. Sergeant Injured When Auto Crashes Into Trolley

Suffering from severe head injuries which occurred when his light coupe struck a street car head-on two blocks east of the city limits of Toronto early Sunday morning, Sergeant C. H. Wigant of the Royal Canadian Air Force base, Trenton, was admitted to the Toronto East General Hospital. A passenger in the car, Michael Bell of Port MacNichol, was less seriously hurt.

After lying on the pavement for over ten minutes before first aid was summoned, the two men were treated by Dr. F. D. R. Richardson and Dr. Grace Richardson and later taken to the hospital by a passing motorist. Bell was treated for lacerations of the head and face and was later released from the hospital.

HUNGARY FEARS GERMAN NAZIDOM IN PRESENT CRISIS

Might Lose Independence By Hitler's Quick Thrust In Balkans

CABINET TO MEET

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Budapest, Oct. 31 (AP)—The Hungarian government headed by Regent Horthy is experiencing probably its most difficult moment since it was re-established in 1919 after the overthrow of the Bolshevist regime of Bela Kun.

Directly or indirectly this situation in the main relates to German Nazidom.

The greatest burden is fear that Hungary may, in effect, lose her independence in Chancellor Hitler's quick thrust for domination of central Europe and the Balkans since his triumph over Czechoslovakia. This country is doubly fearful because it lies against the Reich and is, so to speak, right under the big guns of the Nazis.

Italy, Germany Arbitrate Czech-Hungarian Dispute

Signers of Munich Pact Britain And France Not Invited

MEET WEDNESDAY

Berlin, Oct. 31 (AP)—Not the four powers of Munich, but Italy and Germany are going to arbitrate the Czechoslovak-Hungarian territorial dispute, it became apparent today.

Czechoslovakia and Hungary, unable by themselves to resolve Hungarian claims to Czechoslovak territory because of predominant Hungarian population, accepted invitations to meet with representatives of the Fascist powers in Vienna on Wednesday.

The two disputants asked the arbitration last week.

The Hungarian claims grew from circumstances of the Munich accord of Oct. 1, by which Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany agreed that Czechoslovakia should give to Germany Czechoslovak Sudeten areas.

The Munich accord provided also that, if Hungary did not reach an agreement with Czechoslovakia on similar claims to territory within three months, the four powers should confer again.

An official announcement here Sunday, however, said only the foreign ministers of Germany and Italy would meet with the foreign ministers of Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

The chief issue appeared to be who should possess Bratislava, Munkacs, Kassa and Nitra, border cities now on the Czechoslovak side of the line.

Will Not Yield Part Of Congo State to Meet German Colonial Aims

'We Did Not Steal It' And 'Won't Let Anyone Steal It'

SAYS MINISTER

German Writer Says Germany Will Demand Place In African Sun

Brussels, Oct. 31 (AP)—Belgium answered today with a flat "no" to suggestions she might contribute in a general redistribution of colonial territory to meet Germany's demands. Albert de Vleeschouwer, Minister of Colonies, declared "we did not steal" the Belgian Congo and "nobody will steal it from us".

Berlin, Oct. 31 (CP-Reuters)—"We shall not cease to demand again and again our irrevocable right to colonial cooperation, our 'place in the sun of Africa'," writes Dr. H. W. Bauer in his book "Germany's Colonial Claim and the World".

Only the abolition of the present condition in which Germany is excluded from colonial possessions will contribute to a diminution of the tension in the world, he declares. Dr. Bauer sums up his views as follows:

Demand For Equality.

"It belongs to Germany's unconditional demand for equality that our vital needs should be respected and that the discriminating treatment accorded us in the colonial field should end. We are a second class nation if no attention is paid to our claim to colonial rights.

"The division into those who have colonies and those who have not colonies, which the so-called 'great democracies' still want to maintain, is no basis for a sound world order. The tension it produces has a bad effect. No matter what may be said today, only the abolition of the prevailing untenable condition will contribute to a lessening of tension in the world and a general appeasement."

Naval Bases and Colonies.

The argument that Germany desires colonies in order to build naval bases there and threaten other nations he parries as follows:

"It is not understood how German colonies could endanger the security of the British Empire, especially as by the conclusion of the naval pact with Great Britain, Germany gave the best proof of not touching Britain's vital interests. And this will be no different after Germany has regained her colonies.

"Not imperialism compels us to raise the colonial claim, but solely urgent economic necessities. Military considerations are completely excluded. For this reason alone white

BRITISH LOANS TO BULGARIA

London, Oct. 31 (CP-Havas) — Great Britain and France have agreed to grant loans of $15,000,000 and $10,125,000 respectively to Bulgaria to increase commercial relations between the three countries and permit development of the Balkan nation's natural resources, it was reported here today.

5 YEARS GIVEN FOR EXTORTION

Magistrate Describes Action of Youth As "Contemptible"

Galt, Ont., Oct. 31 (CP)—Cecil W. Rhodes, 25, pleaded guilty today to eleven extortion charges, described by Magistrate J. B. Blake as "contemptible", and was sentenced to five years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Magistrate Blake said he hoped the sentence is sufficient to let the people know this crime is not a joke." The extortion attempts were made in letters to Mrs. Eleanor Dolph of Preston, Miss K. L. Wilkes of Blair, Mrs. J. A. Wilkie and Miss Peggy Briscoe of Galt.

Crown Counsel Clement said the crime was "both cruel and cowardly". A provincial psychitrist's rely". A provincial psychiatrist's reciate the nature and quality of his act.

President Takes Personal Charge

Washington, Oct. 31 (AP)—President Roosevelt took personal charge today of efforts to effect a peaceful settlement of the critical wage dispute between United States railroads and their employees.

The president called representatives of rail management and labor to the White House to consider some long-range program to aid the carriers.

Of immediate importance, however, was the 15 per cent wage reduction ordered Saturday that the railroads withdraw their notices of the reduction, which would clip $250,000,000 annually from their payrolls.

Before the White House conference there was no indication whether the roads would accept the recommendation. A committee of the carriers' executive was asked to meet during the day. Its chairman, N. A. Enochs, said the wage question probably would be turned back to the individual roads.

PORT OF WUCHOW BEING EVACUATED

Gateway To Kwangsi Province Under Heavy Pressure

Canton, Oct. 31—(AP)— The inland Port of Wuchow, gateway to Kwangsi province, was being evacuated today under pressure of Japanese aerial bombardments, believed to be a prelude to a Japanese drive in that direction.

Wuchow, 90 miles west of Canton and terminus for ocean going vessels on the West River, is a large trading centre and distributing point for northern Kwangsi, southern Hunan and Kweichow provinces.

The Japanese also were driving northward from Canton. Chinese acknowledged the invaders had captured Kwangmoon, about 80 miles north of the fallen metropolis, but said 300 Japanese had been killed northeast of Tsungfa, about 50 miles from Canton.

Japanese warplanes were bombing Tsingyun, 45 miles north of Canton, and Yuyuan, 70 miles farther to the north. Chinese said 34 grade school pupils were killed at Yuyuan.

Large forces of Chinese peasant militia were reported to have been massed along the West and North Rivers, definitely checking Japanese advance forces near Tsingyun.

Canton continued deserted eight days after the Japanese occupation. Sporadic rifle and machine-gun fire still could be heard as Japanese soldiers pursued looters.

Karl Eskelund, Associated Press photographer, who reached Canton yesterday after being detained and robbed by numerous bands of Chinese outside the city, gave a graphic picture of desolation in the wake of the swift Japanese drive into the interior.

SLIGHT DAMAGE CAUSED TO AUTO

Crumpled fenders and smashed headlights were the result of a minor accident that occurred on Front Street yesterday when a car said by police to be driven by a resident backed into another motor car.

Amicable settlement of damages between the parties concerned followed an investigation by Police Constable William Evans.

LOCAL YOUTHS MAKE FRUITLESS SEARCH FOR WORK IN THE NORTH

Ray Spehar and Allan T. Trimm local youths who have been scouting the possibility of work in lumber camps of the north for the winter, have returned to the city with reports of the scarcity of jobs of this nature being offered this season in Northern Ontario. During their three weeks' workless jaunt, the boys estimate they have covered over 1,000 miles hitch hiking and "riding the rods".

"But there wasn't a job to be had," declared one of them this morning. "Lots of men were on the road looking for work, but there wasn't any to be had, and we were lucky to eat about once a day, sandwiches mostly.

For the little work that is offered, wages are much lower this year, averaging from $25 to $30 per month, and board, but even these jobs were being taken by the unemployed, it was reported by the youths.

ATTENDED CONFERENCE

Among those from Belleville and Hastings County who took part in and attended the Conference for Municipal Officers held at Queen's University during October 25, 26, 27, and 28, were city auditor, Fred Chamberlain, city assessor, Harold Bateman, and Miss H. Lynch, in charge of the Central Relief Office.

HEN AT NAPANEE LAYS 3 YOLK EGG

The G. E. Gibbard Memorial Baseball Park in Napanee, famed for its production of diamond champions, now has another reason to be proud of its endeavours.

One of the many hens, installed in the capacious poultry houses in the Park by Ernie Gibbard, Eastern Ontario baseball magnate, produced a rarity the other day when she laid a triple-yolked egg. Each yolk was as large as the individual yolk from an ordinary egg.

REALISTIC RADIO DRAMA STIRS THE IMAGINATION OF BOY

The scare that resulted from the too realistic presentation of a radio drama last night, which sent a large number of people in the United States in a more or less state of semi-panic, was experienced in one section of Belleville.

A small boy, listening to a neighboring radio, rushed to his home on the East Hill and told his mother, ill in bed, that a "turble war had broken out in the United States. There was gas 'n everything" he told his wide-eyed parent, who became badly frightened until neighbors reassured her that the "scare" was nothing but the result of the radio presentation.

Saint Michael's Church Sulphide Opened with Solemn Ceremonies

Archbishop M. J. O'Brien, Kingston, Conducts Ceremonies In New Edifice

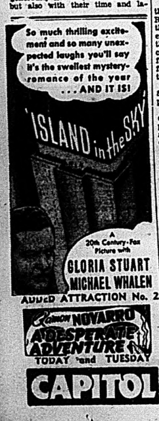
Tweed (Special) —On Sunday, October 30th, the new church erected at Sulphide was solemnly blessed. This ceremony took place immediately before the celebration of Holy Mass. It was conducted by His Grace, Most Rev. M. J O'Brien, D.D., LL.D., Archbishop of Kingston, assisted by Very Reverend Dean Cullinane pastor and Rev. Doctor Byrne. Msgr. NiNcholson of Belleville was also present. The blessing concluded, Mass was offered by Very Reverend Dean Cullinane. At its conclusion the Dean addressed the congregation thanking all who had aided him so generously not only of their means but also with their time and labour and prayed God to bless their many generous sacrifices.

The Archbishop then spoke to the people. He congratulated the Rev. Pastor and congregation on the work that has been done, the erection of a temple, suitable for the sacrifice of Holy Mass and encouraged them to be most faithful in attendance at the various functions which would be held there.

The blessing and erection of the Stations of the Cross next took place and together all joined.

During the Mass, the Ecce Sacerdos, Magnificat and other appropriate hymns were sung by some of the male choir of St. Carthagh's, Tweed.

The new church though simple in structure presented an aspect of beauty in its adornment. It was taxed to its utmost capacity by the assembled congregation, who had so long desired a place of worship in their midst.



So much thrilling excitement and so many unexpected laughs you'll say it's the swellest mystery-romance of the year ... AND IT IS!

HALLOWE'EN BRINGS MEETING'S DELAY

When Hallowe'en comes the majority of residents of this, and probably other cities believe the best thing to do is to stay at home and watch the verandah chairs.

This was clearly evident this morning when an effort was made by secretary of the Belleville Humane Society to call a meeting of the executive this evening.

"Can't get away tonight. Tonight's Hallowe'en. We've got to stay home and watch things" was the reply of several members when invited to be present.

In the face of this, the meeting was postponed until tomorrow evening.

RELIGION DEFINED AS UNION OF SOUL OF MAN TO GOD

Rev. Dr. H. Clarke of Kingston Preaches At Tabernacle United Church

ANNIVERSARY SERMON

"What is religion?" was the subject of the sermon on Sunday evening at the Tabernacle United Church by the Rev. H. Clarke, D.D., of Kingston, who was special preacher at the anniversary services. Is religion an essential human development or is it merely a sentimental escape? Can man dispense with it without any serious loss? the preacher asked. Those who fight against religion would like to write its obituary, he declared, but it survives. Russia has given the world perhaps the most organized attempt to stamp out religion but now the authorities are concerned that the young and old are turning again to the Christian sanctuary. Religion has been battered at the hand of bigots, but it is a bright reality. It flows on forever.

One cannot give an adequate definition of religion any more than he can define mother love. Dr. Clarke said religion is more than a profession of certain beliefs or acceptance of certain creeds, important as these standards are in the life of the church. Neither did Dr. Clarke suggest the repudiation of theology, because religion is more than theology. Religion is a life, he explained. Theology is a theory of life. Theology is a statement of creed. It often says too much or too little, according as language changes. "You will always have new theology, but you will never have new religion. If religion is not old it is not true. It belongs to eternity. It is an eternal reality between the soul and God."

Religion More Than Morality

Religion is more than observance of rites and ceremonies, it is more than worship, which of course is a vital necessity. "I do not believe a religious life can be strong without worship," Dr. Clarke declared, noting a tendency in the public of indifference to the ordinances of worship while he said he believed man would return to the church. But forms of worship differ, while the great reality is religion.

Religion is more than morality or code of living. Morality is an offshoot of religion. Reading the Bible makes men honest, virtuous and of good report. Yet religion is more than this. Were it mere morality, it would be cold. A man may not be dishonest or dishonorable in his dealings and yet be a Pharisee of the Pharisees. Religion is more than social betterment. The people are pleased that the hearts of men are being stirred on behalf of social betterment, yet that is not all.

Union of Soul to God

What then is religion? Three centuries ago a Scot defined it as "the union of the soul to God," a participation of the divine nature, the light of God in the soul of man. In the New Testament, Nicodemus is told that it means "born from above". This implies some power outside of men. Dr. Clarke said. "I like to think of God as the resident soul of the universe". Religion means being born anew in higher regions. It means "keeping the soul on top." It is not a social fact but an individual reality. It is the hand of God in the soul of man. It is not simply an extra, a sensuous panacea, it is not a bribe for a man who plays a good part.

There is no alternative for religion. Man must climb above his business and his pleasures. "Religion would interpenetrate everything we do and say. Man lives only his truest and best when he gives Himself to God," the minister stated. "Think of a man without eternity in his heart trying to find satisfaction out of the trivial temporal things. Religion is the thing that gives everything its perfection. God takes our imperfect achievements in His hand and brings them to perfection."

Rev. D. T. McClintock, Tabernacle pastor, conducted the service. He explained that the Rev. I. B. Naylor of Brantford, who was to have conducted the service filled Mr. McClintock's place in the evening service of anniversary at Plainfield to which Mr. McClintock had planned to go at the invitation of Rev. Mr. Everson. The reason was given that Mr. McClintock's car had been turned over in a collision accident on Sunday afternoon and Mr. Naylor felt that it would be asking too much of Mr. McClintock to have to take the special anniversary service at Plainfield and preach after the mishap. Mr. McClintock explained to his congregation that he was not injured except for a slight pain he was beginning to feel in his knee and that his automobile had been badly smashed.

Holloway Street and Bridge Street congregations united with the Tabernacle last evening and Rev. R. E. Newman of the latter congregation assisted in the service.

At the close of the service, Mr. McClintock announced that the givings and pledges of the anniversary services had totalled over eleven hundred dollars.

Special music of the anniversary included: at the morning service, the anthem and quartette "Awake O Zion", by Stainer, sung by the choir with the soloists, Mrs. H. Poste, Miss Betty Shorey, Mr. Fred Jobson and Mr. G. Wishart and a beautiful rendition of the "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte, sung by Miss Gwyneth Prise, L.C.C.M. of Port Hope; at the evening service, the anthem "Spirit Immortal" from "Attila" by Verdi which was sung very effectively by the choir, directed by Mrs. Bradley, the trio being composed of Mr. G. Wishart, Miss Frise and Mr. G. Duff; Miss Prise's very effective solo "Come to Me" to the setting of the first movement of "The Moonlight Sonata" by Beethoven, arranged by Aslanoff. In the absence of Mr. Howard through illness Mr. Fred Jobson substituted in the Radio Quartette.

FIRE DESTROYS RAWDON BARN

Rawdon, October 31—(Special)—A frame basement barn situated on the Walter Benedict farm on the boundary line between Seymour and Rawdon Townships along with a drive shed, machine shed and hen house was destroyed by fire Saturday night, the cause of fire being unknown. A valuable horse, twenty-one shoats, a number of hens and all the season's crop with a quantity of machinery was also destroyed in the blaze. The stock and implements were owned by Charles Smith, who has rented the farm for the last two years and his loss will be considerable as little insurance was carried. The barn is protected against fire and the owner's loss will not be great.

The thresher were at the place on Saturday but a tractor outfit owned by Allen Simpson was used and it is not believed the fire was caused from this source. The fire broke out about nine o'clock on Saturday night and noticed by Mr. Smith when flames shot from the upper part of the barn. A large number responded to the alarm and after a heroic effort the house and garage were saved.

Will Patrol City To Prevent Wanton Destruction

Departmental patrols making the rounds of residential and business streets in the city will attempt to keep down damage to public works property of the city this evening to a minimum. In the past hundreds of dollars damage to city-owned equipment has been reporter nearly annually following the yearly Hallowe'en frolic by the masked mischief-minded revellers. Stop signs by the score have been bent to earth and in many cases twisted and broken off. Lanterns on outside work projects, tools, wheeled equipment in city storehouses, and other effects have not been immune to the eager hands of the youths. But of late years, due to a more careful check and guard of the property, damage has been kept to a minimum. Last year scarcely any stop signs were broken. No wheelbarrows had to be hauled down from tops of telephone poles. Again this evening men employed by the department will make the rounds watching carefully for signs of damage, it was reported this morning.

Eleven Young Ladies Enter Walkathon Contest for Prizes

Eleven young ladies of Belleville started a unique contest this, Monday morning, in what is known as a "Walkathon." Each of the contestants has a Pedometer attached to her stocking at the knee and this registers the miles walked each day. The contest is not a long distance endurance endeavor for the entrants but rather to determine the endurance powers of a certain brand of hosiery. The contest is being promoted by the J. A. McNabb Limited firm and is bound to create considerable interest among the fair sex, while the unfair sex may also be depended upon to keep a weather eye of interest upon the contest. Included in the contest are the following: Miss Jean Fairbairn, Miss T. Cole, Miss E. M. Allison, Miss Madelyn McGirath, Miss Marion McLean, Mrs. E. Doolittle, Miss H. Moon, Miss Lillian Sprackett, Miss P. Davie, Miss H. Harrison and Miss Pearl Latchford.

Every step of the contestant is recorded on the pedometer, and the steps translated into miles so that each day's mileage is recorded accurately, in itself interesting to most folks who have no idea how many miles a day they walk.

Contestants check in every day at the McNabb store to have their mileage read and recorded, and the standing of contestants publicly announced.

In a recent contest in a nearby city the first week revealed a newspaper reporter as having walked 47 miles, a nurse, 40 miles, waitress 43 miles, housewife 11 miles, club woman 36 1-2 miles, beauty operator 8 miles, stenographer 8 miles, school teacher miles, salesgirl 31 1-2 miles.

Prizes will be awarded the first three contestants who walk the greatest distance before the stockings wear out. Daily results will be published in this newspaper.

Roscoe Turner Now Hopes to Build Plane That Will Do 500 Miles Per Terrific Speed is Entirely Problem of Horsepower, Says Thompson Trophy Winner.

Col. Roscoe Turner and his newest airplane, the ship with which he won the 1938 Thompson Trophy race in Cleveland at the record-breaking speed of 283 miles an hour.

By GEORGE MOISE
Central Press Canadian Writer

Cleveland, Oct. 31—An airplane capable of going 500 miles an hour is the chief desire today of Col. Roscoe Turner, two-time winner of the Thompson Trophy race.

Turner has changed from the day when he carried a lion cub, named for a sponsor, in his racing plane. He has but one uniform now, and his consuming desire is to build at least one ship faster than that in which he won the 1938 Thompson race at the record-breaking speed of 283 miles per hour.

"I would like to build a ship that would do 500 miles an hour," Turner said, "and I think I could do it."

It was said without fanfare or boasting. Turner sincerely believes such a ship can be built, and he intends to be the builder, with his mechanic, Don Young.

Next Year's Race

Turner already is negotiating with men who might form a syndicate to build a ship for next year's Thompson. This ship, faster than either of the present ones Turner owns would not be the 500-mile-per-hour job however.

"The Thompson next year will be won at more than 300 miles," Turner declared. "With a new ship I could beat that speed in a 300-mile closed-course race."

But the plane for next year's Thompson would not be the 500-mile ship.

"It couldn't be," Turner says positively. "It would take a couple of years to develop and test a ship that fast.

"The whole problem is horsepower. You've got to have the horsepower to get the speed."

Engine development, Turner said, will provide the horsepower. Higher powered engines than are now on sale are being made, but they are "hush-hush" affairs kept secret by government services.

Not Available

Turner would dearly love to acquire one engine now being installed in some of the service ships, but the complete production is taken by the government for at least a year.

In the meantime he will try to develop a faster ship around the engines now available, like the stock-model twin-row radial engine in his newest ship.

It is a difficult proposition, however. It takes time and effort to find men who are interested in a venture that will cost well over $60,000 and may end up in a flaming heap of twisted steel tubing.

Turner's record entitles him to some consideration. He has won the Thompson race twice, this year and in 1934.

This year he flew his silver ship, his newest plane, which he helped design, build and rebuild. In 1934 he flew his gold-colored plane which he also helped to design.

Other Records

Turner is the possessor of several double records in addition to his twice winning the Thompson Trophy even. In 1933 he won the Bendix cross-country race and he is the only man to have won both of the United States' major speed events.

He also is the only flier to take the Clifford Henderson award, for the outstanding pilot at the U. S. national air races. This he could win again, as he could the Thompson, to get out of the two-time class and become a three-timer.

"THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW"

by May Christie

Toni awoke to the sensation of a fiery liquid being poured down her throat.

The sky gleamed palely through bare branches of trees over her head. Voices sounded vaguely. Her head throbbed.

Where was she?—she wondered. What had happened? The voices about her were male ones.

Then terrifying recollection came—of the ragged old decoy falling before her horse in the park, the waiting taxicab, the men springing out to seize her, drag her into the car!

She'd been kidnaped! Would be held for ransom! But perhaps even that was too much to hope for. Perhaps they'd murder her!

Half fainting again, she closed her eyes.

Then a voice—the blessed tones of Guy Halstead-Flagg—came to her: "Antoinette! It's all right. I'm here."

Her eyes fluttered open. He was bending over her, reassuring her, drawing her up from depths of terror.

A policeman was there, too. He was saying gruffly: "I'd better call an ambulance."

"No! No!" Toni struggled to a sitting position. "I—I'm not hurt at all."

But her back ached, and many little fiery demons seemed to be doing a kind of tango in her head. Summoning all her strength, she reminded herself that publicity was the last thing in the world she wanted.

"Drink this," Guy spoke peremptorily, putting a flask to her lips a second time.

She drank the brandy, and felt a warmth go through her chilled veins.

"What happened?" she gasped in a weak voice.

"Just a gang of stick-up men. Two of our men are trailing 'em, but looks as though they're having a long chase," said the policeman.

"They—got me—into a cab."

"And when me and this gentleman gave chase—he on his horse, and me in a car — the scoundrels flung you from the car. I'm still of a mind to call an ambulance for her, sir. She may be badly hurt."

"I assure you," said Toni bravely "that I only feel a little bruised." She put out a hand to Guy. He helped her to rise. "I'm awfully grateful to you both." Her lips trembled. To her annoyance, she felt on the edge of hysterical tears.

"Let's—let's get away."

"Your name, miss?" asked the policeman.

"Oh, no. You see, I'm —a professional. It would hurt me—I mean, I don't want anything in the papers. You understand, officer "

"But we'll need you to identify the hold-up men. And now give me a description of them."

Guy drew the officer aside. Toni hobbled to a bench and drew deep breaths of the invigorating air.

Suppose her would-be kidnapers were catpured, she would have to go to police headquarters to identify them, and there the reporters would surely find her!

Front-page publicity for Toni Goddard!

Thank Heavens, she thought, for level-headed Guy. He would deal with the police. Keep her name out of things. He had influence.

CHAPTER XXIII.

That she had been specially singled out for attack, and followed, did not dawn on Toni, despite Guy's previous warnings as to dangers attending her job at the night club. She did not connect the two things.

He was coming toward her now as she sat on the bench.

"I've squared things with the officer, for the time being. I could see"—he gave a curiously sharp look at her—"that you had no wish to talk. I understand that. But before we leave, you must give him a description of your assailants. Otherwise," he added, with another piercing glance, "he may assume that for reasons of your own you don't wish to assist the law."

"I want to be let alone. I'm afraid."

"Of what?"

"Of stories in the papers. Of what may follow the stories," Toni said desperately and indiscreetly, thinking of her family and friends in San Francisco. She pictured the scandal sheets, her photographs sprawling across the exposure of Marie Antoinette's descendant, the mysterious "marquise," who was only a foolish girl from San Francisco trying to start a new life in New York.

"Of what may follow the stories?" thought Guy astutely.

Then she was not innocent? It was as he had imagined at the beginning of their acquaintance?

She dare not face the police. Dare not draw attention of headquarters to Le Chateau de la Marquise.

He said gruffly: "Here's the officer. He's going to ask you what these holdup men looked like. If I were you, I'd give him a straight answer. It'll be better in the long run."

T.q ?'5a

Thinking it over afterward, his words, the brusqueness of his tone seemed strange.

"Officer," Toni said truthfully, though her voice trembled, "I haven't the least idea what the men in the cab looked like. I could only identify the ragged old creature who fell before my horse, and who probably was in league with them."

"He sure was. He rode off with them in the machine." Notebook and pencil were poised. "You wouldn't know the others if you saw 'em again, miss?"

Toni was positive.

* * * *

At six thirty that evening, Toni arrived at Le Chateau de la Marquise.

She was still badly shaken from her experience of the morning. Nor had Guy's odd attitude in the matter of attempted kidnaping done anything to reassure her. Indeed, it seemed that the morning's events had somehow alienated him.

As though it had been her own fault.

True, he had turned up in the nick of time to rescue her. But afterward, in a restaurant, where they had hot coffee, he had made the oddest insinuations.

Incredible as it seemed, he had even hinted that she either knew or guessed the identity of the man who had tried to abduct her! And that, for excellent reasons, she wished to protect them!

"Or am I going crazy?" — she wondered. Her head still felt dizzy.

Tonight, she would beg off from the performance. Niklas would excuse her when he heard of the attempted kidnaping. .. ..

But Niklas was not in the club yet. And the place was filling. Business was good. She had proved a great attraction.

But it was dust and ashes tonight. For a gulf had risen between herself and Guy. Completely, thought Toni, of his own making.

Now, as she sat behind the palms, toying with an early dinner for which she had small appetite, she saw a slim girl in an orchid chiffon gown enter alone.

Toni had seen photographs of the once famous Lola Marquita, Spanish dancer and friend of Niklas's, with whom he had been associated in the entertainment world for some time. From remarks let slip by Diaz, the head waiter, and Lou Steiner, it seemed that Lola, ever since the opening of the club, had been in a sanitarium taking some kind of cure. From lowered voices and mysterious references, it seemed there was something sinister in her illness.

Probably, thought Toni, Nikla's one-time favorite had been drinking too much.

Giving her a quick scrutiny from behind the sheltering palms, Toni was certain that this wraithlike creature had once been the dazzling beauty whose picture hung in Nikla's office.

She was now painfully thin. In spite of careful make-up and the soft lights of Le Chateau de la Marquise, the skin that was tightly drawn over the prominent cheek bones seemed yellow as parchment. The curiously slanted eyes were deeply sunken.

"She has loved him and has suffered," thought Toni with quick sympathy.

Hadn't she heard Lou Steiner telling Niklas that Lola wanted to see him at the sanitarium, and the promoter curtly refusing the sick woman's request?

It had been Lou Steiner's custom to pay her visits from time to time, and report her progress to his chief who, thought Toni, was probably footing the bills. And why not?

He was rich. The girl had worked for him for a long time. Probaby loved him deeply too.

Lola glided with the sinuous movement of a panther into Niklas's private office.

More people came into Le Chateau de la Marquise. Close to Toni—on the other side of the palms, the boy who had questioned her about Brock at Harriet Brewster's party, seated himself with a smartly gowned woman at a table for two.

His companion, Toni noted, seemed highly keyed up. As jumpy as a flea ,in fact. Toni had met her at Miss Brewster's and knew she had a husband. Probably, thought Toni, she had come here for an evening on the sly. There was something, regretted Toni, illicit in the romantic atmosphere of the place.

More than one married woman had flirted here till dawn, in a party of two.

Was marriage such a failure?—Toni wondered. Or was New York impossible for marriage? Society women loathed monotony, the humdrum life. How oddly, for instance, that woman with Teddy LeStrange was behaving. She would jump up, stare about her, then sit down hastily. Too many cocktails? Or did she fear the arrival of an angry husband? Nervous herself tonight, Toni resolved she would see Niklas as soon as Lola left his office, and beg off from her perfrmance.

Lola emerged and came round the back of the orchestra, which was beginning to tune up.

She was behind Toni now, close to the couple on the other side of the palms. She gave a sharp, short cough, at which Teddy LeStrange's companion swung round abruptly and hastily got up.

There was something so distinctive in that cough of Lola's that Toni's interest was caught. She rose also.

"Excuse me Teddy; I just want to powder my nose. I'll be back in a minute."

This came over the palms.

With Lola standing there, Toni could not follow the speaker directly, but went to the powder room by a different route, via the club's privae office. It was done on an impulse.

Lola, she felt would follow this woman, though not by the flicker of an eyelash had a sign of recognition passed between them.

The ladies' retiring room consisted of a small sitting room with a mirror in it and beyond, a boudoir full of dressing tables and long mirrors.

It was empty now. Toni slipped into the boudoir.

Directly ater, she heard the outer door open and the quick rustle of taffetas hurrying to the boudoir.

Toni slipped back of a screen and peeked out to see who had entered.

Yes, there was the woman who was with Teddy LeStrange. She was pulling something white, like an envelope, from the bosom of her gown, feverishly gathering up the small cotton pads—used for applying powder—out of a large container on a dressing table shoving the envelope to the bottom, and replacing the pads of cotton on top of the envelope.

Toni waited till she heard the outer door close.

Then she hastened to the dressing table removed the pads from the container, and drew out the envelope whose flap was only half sealed. Cautiously, she slid a finger under it It yielded without tearing. Inside were ten ten-dollar bills!

She had only time to slip them back into the envelope, replace it at the bottom of the bowl seat herself before a mirror at another table, when Lola Marquita glided into the boudoir.

"How long have you been here?"

Toni forced herself to smile agreeably as she answered: "Why, I only came in this moment to fix my hair."

"Did you seen anybody here?"

"Why, no."

There was a look of hatred, almost amounting to mania, in Lola's sunken eyes. They had the glitter of live coals. Something was consuming the unfortunate woman.

"You are sure?"

She suspected then? Had she been watching?—Toni wondered.

"Probably some one was here before I came. You are looking for somebody?"

Lola gave her a penetrating look. "I left a clip here. Not of any special value, but I hope it hasn't been taken." Her gaze swept the tables.

"Can I," asked Toni, "help you?" She knew it was a supreftuous question, bound to get a refusal, which it did.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation

OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

FATALITIES

tion of the victims was difficult because of the multiple burns they received.

At Madsen, in the Red Lake district of Northern Ontario, Dr. Dennis Smith, 30, native of Burlington and resident physician of the Madsen Mine, died yesterday o' burns received when a masquerade costume he was wearing took fire. The accident occurred Saturday night and details were lacking.

Ten-year-old Raymond Nardini drowned near Cobalt Saturday when he slipped from a raft and plunged into icy waters of a small pond on Nipissing Mine property. The body was recovered in five feet of water.

Fell from Raft

William McKnight, 12, on another raft, also fell in the water when his raft was tipped over as the Nardini boy grabbed at it as he went down. McKnight reached shore and ran more than half a mile to Cobalt to summon aid.

Leonard Bacon, 24, shot himself to death last night less than two hours after wounding Myrtle Irwin at the farm home of her parents near Fowler's Corners, midway between Lindsay and Peterborough.

Miss Irwin was wounded in the neck by a bullet fired through the window of her home as she stood in the kitchen with her mother and father and six brothers and sisters. Her condition was not serious and she will be taken to Peterborough hospital today for removal of the small-calibre slug.

Bacon, adopted son of an Ops Township farmer, was said to have kept company with Miss Irwin the past two years previous to an argument four months ago.

Car Out of Control

Gordon Blaylock 24, Hamilton, died in hospital Saturday night a few hours after the car he was driving went out of control three miles west of Grimsby, rolled over four times and somersaulted once. Three Hamilton companions, including two girls, suffered injuries and were treated at their homes.

James Thorpe, 26, York Township, suburban Toronto, was killed and five Toronto companions injured when Thorpe's auto went out of control and overturned in a ditch a few miles east of Toronto. The party was returning from a celebration at Frenchmen's Bay in honor of Thorpe's birthday.

Suffered Possible Fractures

Helen Faseruk, 23, and George Matheson, 19, suffered possible fractured spines and abrasions and are confined to hospital. Two other young women are in hospital less seriously injured, while the sixth person, Charles Thorne, 22, was released from hospital following treatment.

Grant Pridham, 23, Grenville, Que., was killed Saturday night and four Montreal companions seriously injured when the car in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a parked truck on the highway 30 miles northeast of Hawkesbury.

Son of a former mayor of Grenville, Pridham was driving from Montreal with his sister, Mrs. A. Hull and her husband, Miss G. McCallum and A. Smith. The injured are confined to a Montreal hospital.

Accidental Discharge

Accidental discharge of a shotgun he was holding resulted in instant death yesterday for Corporal A. E. (Bud) Laing, 28, native of Halifax and senior N.C.O. in charge of the canteen, Royal Canadian Air Force at Camp Borden, near where the accident occurred. He was rabbit hunting at the time.

Thomas Barry, 23, of the Manotick Station district, 20 miles south of Ottawa, died while being taken to hospital last night after he was shot accidentally by Vincent Harney. Harney pulled the trigger of the gun, not thinking it was loaded, as Barry stood talking to friends. He was shot under the left arm.

A Word to Our Brother Merchants

How often have we heard our Merchants complain of Belleville residents buying their requirements out of town. This is a very old statement and one of which Merchants still complain:

Would it not be wise for Merchants to practice what they preach.

The Belleville Bread and Cake Bakers feel their Brother Merchants are not treating them fair at this time in handling and advising their customers to try Bread that is Baked outside of Belleville.

Try and keep Belleville Taxes down by buying Bread from local Bakers that are helping to pay Belleville Taxes

Do you know that outside Bakers do not pay one cent to Belleville for the privilege to use our streets, and that very few Belleville men are employed by outside bakers.

The Belleville Merchants have tried hard to bring industry to Belleville, yet here is an industry employing over one hundred men the year around, why not help industry that is here, by buying their products, and not let your local Bakers stand on our streets and see outside Bakers driving up to your homes serving you with Bread and Cake baked in some other town; where you have no chance to get any of the money their employees earn.

BE LOYAL TO BELLEVILLE FIRST.

HUNGARY FEARS

menaced.

Of more immediate concern is the protracted argument between Hungary and Czechoslovakia over the former's claim to territories taken from her at the end of the great war. The Hungarian public and army have been demanding that the government quit negotiating and occupy lands in question by force.

Admiral Horthy and his cabinet are said to be straining every nerve to avoid such a contingency. The Regent doesn't want to employ force against Czechoslovakia but desires peaceful settlement through negotiation. So he has been working hard to quiet the clamor of home. The public is said to like and trust the admiral and he is reported to have made progress in his campaign. Meanwhile Italy and Germany will arbitrate the minorities problem this week.

Position Aggravated.

The government's position is aggravated by the fact that there is a considerable Nazi party in Hungary.

Another phase of the situation is anti-Jewish feeling. Jews form about six per cent of the population and about twenty per cent of the population of Budapest. According to statistics, they control some 85 per cent of industry.

All these elements unite to form a situation of such difficulty that responsible observers say it is possible, though perhaps not likely, that the government may feel compelled to resort to dictatorship. This would represent the last hope of remaining independent of Nazidom.

Such a dictatorship could not be anti-German, however. Hungary must play along with the fatherland. There is no way out.

New System Devised To Raise Funds For Church Work

Walton, N.Y., Oct. 31 (AP)—The plate was "passed in reverse" yesterday at the First Methodist Church here and Rev. Grant Robinson, who inaugurated the plan, termed it a "great success".

The members of the congregation took one dollar each from the plate instead of putting something on it. About 100 were at the church.

Mr. Robinson, who has been pastor for 11 years, explained it this way:

"Each person will invest the dollar in any way he believes may be profitable and will, after six weeks, return the dollar and the profit to the church."

Women plan to embroider or make candy and popcorn and sell the products at a profit. The men will use the money in their business or on their farms.

All were pleased with the idea," the pastor reported.

HALLOWEEN

Fancy will be free and goblins of the imagination will ride according to the mythology and tradition pre-dating the Christian era with, the arrival of Halloween. The young observe the ancient event with every modern application, with high festivity. Children particularly find in it an occasion for experiences they would not forego for all the world.

Halloween appears in its original form to have been a celebration of the eve or vigil of Saman, the Lord of Death, according to the religion of the Druids. Down through millenium after millenium tradition of ceremonies and observances has come to this day. Upon Druidism was engrafted the observance of Pomona, a Roman festival, which observed the season of fruits, nuts and plenty. Christianity banished the Druid worship and religion but some of its rites and ceremonies remain. It has lived in literature and song. There is a vast folklore which has grown up with the "vigil". It stands in strong contrast with the observance of All Saints' Day, of which it marks the eve. Here Christianity has truly impressed its mark. It was a happy contrast which Christianity brought, the glory of the saints, after the night of revelry and death and the approach of evil on Halloween.

The old legends, beliefs and associations grew and attracted new accretions and it was only in recent times that some of the milder and happier observances were looked upon as merely fanciful.

Today it is all fancy. Saman, the Lord of Death, has ceased to reign as a power in religion, but he has left his mark on the spirits of the imagination which stalk abroad and fly the night of Halloween.

Halloween to the modern is a gay occasion. Man, woman and child use their wit to create all kinds of witchery of the imagination, in which they do not believe. The time is opportune at the close of the harvest when man can be happy in the midst of plenty.

Halloween was once also a time when men lighted bonfires. This is said to have been a relic of the worship of Baal, but fire ceremonies are passed away.

In Druidical days, Saman expressed the people's conception of life. It became a festival. In our time the relics of the old worship of Saman, and Pomona and Baal are gone, but the tradition dwells and impresses itself upon Christian civilization so that Halloween has a place and will have a place for many generations to come.

Today the interest is not in the sources of this Halloween festival but in the pleasure it can bring, the fancy and imagination it can stir. In many lands, whatever be their political condition, boys and girls and men and women will this night hold this festival.

YEARLY MODEL CHANGE

An interesting statement of the importance of annual production of new automobile models appears in the October issue of "Automobile Facts". "New models each year, improved to anticipate the public's developing desires, provide the greatest single factor, contributing to the long-range upward trend of employment in factories," it declares.

Such a system provides more work for more men per car than it did a decade ago, despite the constant development and installation of new labor saving machinery by the automobile industry.

Stabilization of models, manufactured year after year without material improvement would have brought about great displacement of labor, it points out. The resultant economy would not greatly affect the average cost of motor vehicles to the public despite the sacrifice of jobs, it is claimed. This is explained in this way: "As the greater proportion of automobile owners buy used cars, handed down by other purchasers, the true price of automobiles to the buying public is actually set in an active open market. This results in an average price level for good used cars far below any new car price the manufacturers would be likely to attain by long-range stabilization.

A wide range of used cars of varying price is therefore made available to the public.

"What the annual model policy does in the factory may be explained simply: From the start of a year's production, each factory has engineers striving to cut costs by devising quicker, less difficult operations. Some of this work is elimination of lost motion, other involves substitution of improved machinery for that currently used or for hand operations. Simultaneously, other engineering groups under the same management are hurrying to perfect new devices, and superior factors of performance, comfort and durability for the following year's car. This second group too has its eye on costs, but its biggest task is to make sure that its product is not outbid in public favor by the styling and mechanical improvements which competitors, working—like themselves—behind a wall of secrecy, are also developing. New equipment added each year to the models takes additional man-hours to make, frequently displacing machinery previously used.

"This constant conflict between forces working for economy and forces working for improvement has resulted in both winning almost continuously. With the exception of increases made necessary in late 1937 by the simultaneous sky-rocketing of wage rates and material costs, the trend of prices to the consumer has been consistently downward, while quality advance has not faltered."

STUMBLING ALONG

God sent us here to make mistakes
To strive and fall, and rebegin
To taste the tempting fruit of sin
And find what bitter food it makes.

And looking back across the past
We know we needed all the strain
Of fear and doubt and strife and pain
To make us value peace at last.

To miss the path, and go astray
To wander blindly in the night
But searching—praying for the light
Until at last, we find the way.

Who fails—finds later triumphs sweet
Who stumbles once—walks then with care
And knows the place to cry beware
To other unaccustomed feet.

Through strife—the slumbering soul awakes
We learn on errors' troubled route
The truths we could not prize without
The sorrow of our sad mistakes.

MANY FOLK WOULD LIKE TO RECAPTURE THE THRILLS OF YESTERYEAR—the first movie for instance, the first automobile ride, the first airplane ride, and similar firsts. This week a middle aged couple from Prince Edward County came to Belleville to see their first "Talkie". What a thrill that was, for the couple and their accompanying friends. Thrills are few and wide apart these days for the folks who are right up to the minute and despair of really seeing anything new. Well, the new automobile models will soon be out, and what about the new women's hats, are they not new?—in other words, aint they somepin?

JAPAN WANTS TO DOMINATE THE TRADE OF CHINA and thinks the sword is the best weapon to accomplish that purpose. Japan is paying a prohibitive price, even if it attains its avowed object, the undeclared war to force Chinese co-operation. Snatching at a gnat Japan may lose a camel, for her world trade has been greatly affected by the war, particularly the silk industry. Now Japan is faced with another blow, for the rayon DuPonts have announced the building of a seven-million-dollar plant to make synthetic yarn which can be used in all textile fields, particularly suitable for hosiery. The Celanese Corporation of America has announced plans for a new ten-million-dollar plant for the manufacture of synthetic yarn similar to the DuPont article. Hosiery men said introduction of new yarns by these major rayon producers would eat deeply into the market for silk hosiery. The DuPont yarn was reported to have been used successfully in experimental hosiery that can compete with all grades of silk stockings retailing at $1 a pair or less. It was expected that, as development continued and costs were reduced with volume production, it could compete successfully with much more expensive silk hosiery. Commercial production of both new yarns by du Pont and Celanese will not be ready for about a year.

OPENING OF THOUSAND ISLAND BRIDGE AT IVY LEA makes quite a change in the motor traffic situation. Thousands of motor cars are coming over that bridge every week, in fact one day's highwater mark was 4,000. Next summer the bridge traffic will be tremendous, over one thousand cars a day it is estimated. Most of these visitors will be filled with a desire to see the quintuplets at Callander. Hence the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and City Council, and other municipalities, in an effort to make it easier for the visitors to see the quintuplets and the finest scenery possible, as well as to bring new business for their merchants, are advocating a route from Belleville to Algonquin Park, a government reserve where fish and animals are protected and the country kept in natural state—connecting with a road to Huntsville and Callander, North Bay and all parts north. Construction of a short bit of road from Millbridge, in Hastings County, north, not more than thirty miles in extent, will give a paved roadway from No. 2 highway at Belleville to Callander, through the finest scenery imaginable. Looks like a first rate project which will benefit all concerned.

OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed

"We've come to an understanding, Mother—now we're going to patch things up!"

On Breaking a Fast

Many tributes have been paid to the great courage and luck of Mr. Douglas Corrigan in flying the Atlantic. Few people, however, appear to have considered the great test of stamina and physical endurance required to fly for 28 hours practically without food, while under great physical and mental strain. I wonder what this intrepid young man was given to eat when he landed in Ireland. I have asked myself what meal I would have served had I been called upon to provide a meal for somebody who had not broken his fast for nearly 30 hours.

What should such a meal consist of? I myself would have provided a clear soup made from a good meat stock because it is nourishing. Then I would have prescribed a mousse de sole with champagne sauce. The mousse de sole because it is easily digested and the champagne sauce because it is a stimulant. Then I think I could not do better than some asparagus tips cooked in butter—they are good for freeing the cramped muscles of the stomach.

Finally, I would suggest some fresh raspberries as they are light and easy to eat and tempting to the appetite, because it must be remembered that after 30 hours one has lost the desire for food. With the raspberries I would serve some muscat grapes which had previously been iced. They are so comforting to the parched throat. Perhaps a very little champagne might be taken with this meal.

We have noted with interest the letter from the Maitre Chef des Cuisines of the Dorchester Hotel The intrepid young man to whom he refers when landing in Ireland would have been some 28 to 30 hours without a square meal. We are entitled, however, to presume that he would not start hungry. This last meal should then have been sufficient to sustain him from eight to 12 hours. We also understand that he had with him a small quantity of biscuits and chocolate, and the food value of these would prevent excessive muscular fatigue.

The strain under which he had been travelling would result mainly in nervous fatigue and, therefore, the food at his first meal on landing should repair this. The muscular fatigue could be at once lessened by taking barley sugar, boiled sugar sweets, sweetened fruit juices, or glucose in some form on landing.

He would then be in fit condition to take a "balanced meal" intended to deal mainly with the excessive nervous fatigue. For this we would suggest the following menu: Cream of tomato soup, grilled lamb cutlets (lean), new potatoes, green (garden) peas (very little butter on peas and potatoes), cheese, biscuits, and butter, glass of good Burgundy, and white coffee.

This meal is simple, sustaining, and not too rich for a tired digestion.—By M. Emile Aymoz, Maitre Chef des Cuisines, Dorchester Hotel, in letter to London Times.

Mr. W. S. Drewry, D.L.S., will return to the city shortly after spending several months in the Rock Mountains on survey work for the Government.

Mrs. S. O'Brien has left the city to join her husband who has located at St. Paul, Minn.

Dr. Wilson of Edmonton, who has been made Speaker of the North-West Assembly is a native of Picton.

The long delayed work of repairing the lower bridge has been commenced at last.

EXPERIMENT

An experiment in prohibition, the first of its kind in the city, has come into operation in Bombay on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

No liquor, country or foreign, will be sold on these two "dry" days and all liquor shops will remain closed. Liquid will, however, be allowed to be served in hotels, railway restaurants and clubs, subject to certain conditions.

Government has found that consumption of toddy and country liquor in the mill area is heaviest on pay day and on the subsequent day. With a view to removing the temptation to spend money on these days, and thus save millhands from misery, Government has declared pay day and the day subsequent to it as "dry" days.—Calcutta Statesman.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

Heat in The Treatment of Skin Ailments

In the treatment of old wounds and sores where the condition refuses to improve, physicians sometimes apply a caustic or other irritant. This makes the condition much worse for a time but in an attempt to overcome the effects of this irritant Nature brings more blood to the wound or sore and carries away more wastes so that the wound or sore begins to heal instead of remaining at a standstill.

In the treatment of a number of disorders physicians are now causing the temperature of the body to rise by means of drugs, electricity and other means. When cases of paralysis due to syphilis were found to be cured of their paralysis after an attack of malaria, a number of cases were injected with the malaria organisms and developed malaria. After the malaria was cured by the usual treatment—quinine—it was found that a good percentage were likewise cured of their paralysis.

Research workers, believing that it was the extreme heat or rise in temperature that had caused the cures, stopped using the malaria method of treatment and used other methods to create the intense heat in the body. Their results were just as satisfactory as by causing malaria and there was not the danger from the attack of malaria.

With this same idea that chronic skin ailments—eczema, psoriasis, acne, hives (urticaria) and cases with very dry skin—might be helped by this heat or fever treatment, Drs. A. B. Litterer and K. Phillips, Miami, Florida, tell of their results in 167 cases. With the exception of hives or urticaria the results were very satisfactory, the skin clearing up immediately in half the psoriasis cases, of which two-thirds remained cured after 4 years, and in ailments due to gland conditions such as acne, there had been no return after 4 years.

These research physicians investigated 75 other cases for a period of seven years trying to find if some organ or body process was not working properly, and found that in 90 percent there was liver, gall bladder, stomach intestine and gland conditions at fault. When these conditions were found and given the special treatment required, together with the heat or fever treatment, there were 85 percent of cures with only 25 percent having a return of the skin ailment.

It is thus evident that clearing up other conditions in the body would cure many skin ailments.

SMALL TOWN

"That's small town stuff" is a phrase often heard. People make that remark when they hear something that they consider unsuited to modern life. What do they mean by it, and is small town stuff necessarily undesirable?

Many of our finest people came from small towns. A very disproportionate number of leading business men and statesmen originated in small towns. Small town stuff must have been rather helpful to them. They learned things in small towns that were of value.

Small town life helps people to become democratic. Everybody speaks to everybody else. And if any one is sick or in trouble, the neighbours are quick to offer substantial help. If that is small town stuff, it is very much needed in larger places.

There are some phases of small town life that are not so good. The people of many small towns have a kind of hopeless and stagnant feeling. They can't seem to arouse themselves to take energetic measures for town improvement. In some small towns there are local jealousies and dislikes that prevent people from co-operating. Competitors in business dislike each other, and will not work together. This may be called small town stuff, but symptoms of these tendencies are found in much larger places.

The country ought to cherish its small towns. More people should live in them rather than fewer. The small towns of Canada are good healthy places to grow up in. The country will not prosper if the population is concentrated in large cities.—Sarnia Observer.

Basic Pattern for London's Poor

The limitations of ill-shod feet impose the basic pattern of destitution. here are many free shelters and hostels scattered throughout London; but, when you have outlived your first welcome, you can seldom stay more than one night in succession at each. When you are turned out of your bed in the morning, you will organize the hours that follow according to the state of your feet. If they allow it, you will walk far, since the wider you cast your net, the more free meals you draw into it. For instance, leaving St. Martin's crypt at 6.30 a.m. with a good pair of feet, you might take in the Sisters of Charity in Victoria for a second breakfast, Miss Baxter's Hall in Kennington for luncheon, the skittle-alley near All Hallow's for tea, and arrive at the free shelter in East India Dock Road in time for supper and bed. Such an itinerary would entail walking all day, but on the other hand you would be rewarded with four cups of tea, eight slices of bread, a piece of cheese, a sausage, a bun and a comparatively comfortable bed. It is popular with the able-footed destitute.

The new-comer to destitution usually undertakes these long itineraries without any hesitation. They provide a sufficiency of tea and bread; and, what is more important, they provide an objective, however mean. But it is a lonely, miserable road to travel. No two pairs of feet ever hurt in exactly the same degree and the acquaintances made overnight are inevitably dropped by the way. As socks stiffen with sweat, and holes appear in shoes, demoralisation begins. After a while it seems stupid to walk to Kennington or Poplar for public charity when one might as effectively arouse private charity on any street-corner. So the new-comer makes his first attempt at begging, and at the behest of his bleeding feet elaborates further steps in the dance of the destitute.

Such is the basic pattern of poverty; the common experience of anyone who finds himself homeless and hungry in London. Up to this point, while such experience is futile and demeaning, it involves nothing that will permanently unfit the down-and-out for rehabilitation. But when the destitute man or youth has once overcome his reluctance to beg, he finds himself following a new pattern of behaviour. The first proceeds of begging are inevitably regarded as "kip-money." The accommodation provided in night-shelters is meagre, and the beds of even the cheapest lodging-houses restful by comparison. And when a man has trod for a week or two the barren road between soup-kitchen and night-shelter, the warm subterranean life of the kip-house becomes strangely attractive. Sitting around the glowing coke fire of the communal kitchen, he feels an animal security. He is once again part of a social context, however rudimentary. Around him men barter their property for food or their food for property. there are industrial activities — "crocuses" making up their boxes of corncure for the markets, "screevers" painting on pieces of cardboard for a pavement-display, rag-pickers sorting over their bundles. Old men who have lived out their wasted lives in lodging-houses will talk with him and tell tales that invest the new background with the depth and warmth of traditional lore. Soon he learns a score of anomalous methods for obtaining kip-money without undisguised begging, and occasionally has a few coppers to spare on such relaxations as the milieu affords.—Mark Benney in London Spectator.

Prophetic Journalism

Possibly S. Fowler Wright will be in a position to claim he had some sort of prophetic vision when he wrote his book "War in the Air" in 1936, and said the battles of which he spoke would be fought two years hence.

The Book Review section of the New York Times of March 1, 1936, has been handled to the Examiner by a reader, and this is the review then given. Remember it was in 1936:

WAR IN THE AIR
The War of 1938. By S. Fowler Wright. 308 pp. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $2.50

The war two years hence, graphically pictured in this novel, is fought entirely in and from the air, and sufficiently decisive in its single day's duration to gain the aggressor nation's immediate objective and end hostilities. The conflict breaks out over the strained relations long existent between Nazi Germany and Czechoslovakia because of the latter's unsatisfying compliance with demands for surrender of exiled Communists, traitors and conspirators inimical to the welfare of the Reich. Involving the diplomats of friendly foreign nations stationed in Prague, the crisis rests most portentiously upon the British Minister and his staff, these and two young English blades of the circle providing the chief characters in the sanguinary events that follow.

As a demonstration of her armed might, Germany hurls a vast force of combat planes and night bombers across the Czech frontier, the squadrons, advancing upon inadequately defended Prague, virtually destroying the ancient city and killing thousands of civilians. The bombings, conflagrations and carnage in the city during the German assaults are intensely vivid and harrowing, but in no detail deviating from the plausible. We wish to emphasize that this book is no paltry concoction of pseudo-scientific warfare, fabulous intrigue and spy stuff purveyed in the average adventure thriller. It deals in a most compelling fashion with uncertain world realities, which may be now just over the way, presenting them without exaggerating the likelihood that they must plunge this afflicted earth again into the horrors of Armageddon.—Peterborough Examiner.

Out at the Summer Home

Letter in Ottawa Journal.

Sir:—A clever article on "How to use your head" tells us to make a list of all the little things which annoy us or "make us see red." This will eliminate our pet peeves and enable us to think straight again.

So dear readers, possibly I can interest you in a few pet peeves. We may be able to get together on this question as it pertains to the timely subject — our Summer home. Here they are:

1. Radios, which the possessor keeps going, regardless of others. Morning, noon and night its raucous voice pursues us. In the hands of thoughtless, selfish people it is a menace to our peace of mind.

2. Guests who stay up until 2 a.m. and who walk around over our heads with shoes on. (Single floors and ceilings notwithstanding.)

3. Uninvited guests by the carload who descend upon us any day of the week, to go swimming and stay for meals.

4. The tenant who holds drinking parties which last until 4 a.m. (Sunday) and keep the whole neighborhood awake with their shouts, screams and loud laughter.

5. Drunken women, cigarette-smoking nuisances who are a disgrace to their sex.

6. Fat women in slacks or shorts.

After eliminating these I would add some of the beauties of a Summer place.

1. Beautiful sunsets—a feast to the eye and peace to the soul.

2. Children playing on the beach.

3. The beauty and grandeur of nature, the song of birds and the quiet of early morn.

4. A summer storm, wild and furious, sweeping over the water, followed again in a few minutes by the sun.

MODERN WHALERS

The speedboat whalers of Cook Strait, New Zealand, have already caught 53 whales this season, said Joe Perano, owner of the station at Whekenui Bay, Tory Channel. The kill includes a 90-ton blue whale, largest yet towed in to Tory Channel, and also the first sperm whale that has fallen to their harpoons. The blue whale was 93 feet in length, 14 feet thick and 40 feet in girth. Previously the largest rendered down at the factory was another blue whale taken last year, 78 feet long and 30 feet in girth. Being in poor condition it weighed only 60 tons. The record-breaker was a cow whale. The method of killing whales used by Mr. Perano is unparalleled elsewhere in the world. His four chasers, speedboats powered with 300 horse power petrol engines, are capable of 40 miles an hour through a choppy sea. Each carries a small gun firing an explosive barbed harpoon. Each carries two men—gunner and helmsman.

New Zealand, however, has no unique whalers. Nowadays, fishing fleets carry canneries with them. Indeed factory ships are now plowing all seas. They freeze and package fish, catch and can crabs, manufacture sardine oil and meal and reduce whales to oil and feed. They fly the ensigns of a dozen countries, among them Argentina, Germany, Great Britain, Russia and the United States and the fleet is growing. "Mother" ships served by small craft follow the runs of Atlantic salmon, freezing and storing the fish at sea for sale in England; they catch and can the spider crab in the Pacific for sale in the United States; there are floating salmon canneries in territorial waters of Alaska.

Factory ships ranging up to 43,000 tons displacement reduce whales by machinery. They distill fresh water. They have refrigeration equipment for food, large storage tanks for the whale oil, accommodations for crews of 300. New types of factory ships operating off the Pacific coast manufacture meal and oil from the pilchard or California sardine. U. S. government statistics show that in the seven years "since the entry of factory ships in the sardine industry the production of oil, amounting now to more than 22,000,000 gallons, and of meal, amounting to 100,000 tons, has increased threefold."—Brandon Sun.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

I'll Take You With Me

By Farley Faulkner

John Barrymore, possibly the greatest tragedian of the American theatre, has turned comic so convincingly in a series of cinemas that it seems possible at this time to confirm Hollywood's growing conviction that the youngest of the Royal Family has about assumed the mantle once worn by Charlie Chaplin.

No right-about-face in the theatrical history has been half so complete, so successful (financially and thespically) or so astounding. It is axiomatic in the theatre that tragedians yearn to be very funny fellows, and vice versa, but Mr. Barrymore is the first gentleman to prove that Hamlet and Pagliacci are brothers under the skin. Convincingly, that is.

The metamorphosis of John is probably a bitter-sweet potion to many who remember the distinguished actor in "Hamlet." Such memorable performances are not easily forgotten ,and it might be mentioned, too that John's London presentation of the Shakespearean drama proved to be the most successful, artistically and financially, of any "Hamlet" in three hundred years.

However, if those good souls who do feel badly because of Mr. B's departure from the halls of tragedy, shed tears for their lost hero, they are simply wasting good tears. For Mr. B. has willingly and happily renounced tragedy for comedy, and even if he cared he could not now change his status, for Hollywood has typed John as a comedian. A great comedian, yes; and a very happy one, too.

They have, just this past week, cast Mr. Barrymore in what Mr. Barrymore delightedly considers (after reading the script) the funniest picture he has ever been in. It is called "The great man votes" and for strictly comedic purposes John portrays the role of a shiftless, drink-loving father, a former college professor, who becomes a great man through the hero-worshipping and scheming of his two children, and an election.

That Mr. B. says "The great man votes" is the funniest picture he has ever been in, is something of a statement considering the rather large opportunities for shenanigans and humor he was given in such recent offerings as "Hold that co-ed", "Spawn of the North", "Romance in the dark," or "True Confession." It is certainly an indication of precisely how seriously John is taking his humor these days.

The story, your correspondent chronicles in support of Mr. B's. statement, has John playing a Chaplin-like role in the sense that he is a square peg striving to fit into a round hole, to coin a phrase. He is kicked about until, come election time in New York, the Party (definitely a capital) discovers that as goes the thirteenth ward, so goes the city, and as goes the city, so goes the state, as goes the nation. Mr. Barrymore is the only voter who resides in the so-goes-the-nation-thirteenth-ward. See?

"The great man votes" must be regarded as more than just another photoplay for Mr. Barrymore. It must be considered a major step forward toward the comedic pinnacle Chaplin once occupied, and which Mr. B. openly testifies he is determined to scale. The picture stars Mr. Barrymore and permits him to play a Chaplin-like character, and one that Chaplin himself might play exceedingly well, remembering the Charlie of "Modern Times." Like Chaplin's "The Kid" in which Charlie had four-year-old Jackie Coogan as his aide. Mr. B. has a little boy, Peter Holden, as his foil.

Peter Holden, incidentally, is the seven-year-old lad who was the sensation of Broadway last year in "On Borrowed Time," winning such critical praise as "the discovery of the year." That sort of support should not exactly hurt Mr. B's chances of achieving his goal.

It is not really surprising that Mr. Barrymore is desirous of attaining to the mantle once worn by Mr. Chaplin, because Charlie doesn't hide the fact that he would like to become a great Hamlet, such as Mr. Barrymore, let us say.

Green pastures, you know. And better pictures we hope.

A battle of automobiles is the newest outbreak in the puppy love war between Dead End Boys Bobby Jordan and Billy Halop for the heart of Judy Garland.

Halop won the first round with a new 1939 luxury model roadster. Bobby countered with dancing dates until Miss Garland tired of dancing and went back to Halop and his new car.

Bobby, however came back fighting at the sound of the horn. He reported to work in "They Made Me a Criminal" in a new ultra-ultra 8. It is a special speedster body (Cord) with a flivver engine.

Halop is working on a new plan of attack for the fourth round in the "buggy battle" and thinks that a supercharger might again win the affection of the fickle young lady.

Judy says: "A man's a man—but a car is a car for 'a that."

Decision to follow "Young Dr. Kildare" with a series of feature pictures with the Max Brand characters, which was held in abeyance during the making of this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, has been announced by the studio. Audience comments were so favorable at the preview that the studio put writers to work immediately preparing the second picture of the series.

Lionel Barrymore and Lew Ayers definitely will appear in the series.

And we feel that Jo Ann Sayers should also be retained in the series, because she is our idea of a young actress who is destined to achieve stardom.

When the Lane Sisters made their movie debut they marched in on Hollywood with two suitcases apiece. They carried these same two bags when they moved into larger quarters last week—but were followed by four moving vans.

Mickey Rooney, Eddie Cantor's guest star on his Monday airshow, stole a rehearsal period by taking over Edgar Fairchild's place at the piano and rattling off several two-piano numbers with Adam Carroll. Rooney went in for some astonishing pyrotechnics a la Paderewski until Cantor lay flat on the carpet and called to producer Vic Knight —"Give him the show. He can do anything."

Even if Mickey does mug the camera this column rates Rooney and Spencer Tracey as the two tops male actors in cinemaland.

While the murderous creed of Thuggee has been abolished in India, its leasly practices formed one of the great obstacles to civilizing that country. And one of the sporadic outbreaks that followed the British crushing of the religion a hundred years ago, forms the historic basis of "Gunga Din," spectacular film version of the famous Rudyard Kipling ballad.

The picture, starring Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., deals with the stirring adventures of three British sergeants who become involved in a native uprising during the 'Nineties'—an uprising of Thugs who hope to drive the white men out of India. And in the course of the film many interesting phases of this mysterious creed are disclosed.

Although the origin of the Thugs, from which our modern word for a hoodlum is derived, is shrouded in mystery, they are believed to date back to wandering Mohammedan tribes who roamed eastward in the van of the Mongal invaders and settled in the neighborhood of Delhi. They worshipped Kali, the multi-armed goddess of murder, and as sacrifices to Kali, they usually strangled their victims and buried them in previously-prepared graves, their yearly toll running high into the thousands.

For some five centuries Thuggee flourished throughout India, but not until 1829 did the British authorities set about a campaign to exterminate it. During the next eight years some 3000 Thugs were tried and convicted and the deadly creed was crippled, although Thug outrages occurred at intervals for many years thereafter. And even today, along the farther borders of India, the sinister goddess is still venerated and may some day inspire another murderous outbreak.

Realistic ceremonies in a Thug temple and the initiation rites of a group of neophytes are vividly portrayed in the new picture.

Eldorado Welcomes Couple From Cornwall

Eldorado—On Wednesday evening a number of the friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wright to honor their daughter Lily and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Potts have been residing in Cornwall and Belleville since their marriage nearly a year ago, and it was now, when they returned to live at Eldorado, that the young people took the opportunity to welcome them to their home here, and tender them a miscellaneous shower. The following address was read by Mrs. Clayton Blackburn.

Eldorado, Ont., Oct. 26, 1938

Dear Lily and John:

We, your friends regret that the opportunity to express to you our best wishes since your marriage has been so long in presenting itself. However delay does not indicate lack of sincerity and we heartily congratulate John, and wish you Lily, many happy years of wedded happiness.

Lily your life has been spent among us and we know you to be kind, loving and helpful—attributes that are needed in a home.

You John, have proven yourself a gentleman of sterling worth. Therefore we feel that Lily's happiness is safe in your hands, as yours is in hers.

As you journey through life as Mr. and Mrs. Potts, may your combined Christian efforts lend decided weight toward an active church and a friendly community.

May your home ever be a place of interest, activity and contentment.

Signed Grace Robinson, Iva McCann.

Mr.and Mrs. Potts both expressed their appreciation for the lovely gifts and invited all to visit them in their home. Games were played during the evening and lunch of cakes and sandwiches was served by the ladies.

Newlyweds Welcomed

On Friday evening a large crowd gathered at the I.O.O.F. Hall in Bannockburn to honor Mr. and Mrs. John Norman, a recent bride and groom. Dancing to the music furnished by Messrs Jack Wilson and Findlay Shaw was enjoyed during the evening. The young couple received a lovely array of gifts. Guests were present from Flinton and Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Magee, Hilda, Milton and Joan spent the dinner hour on Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gordon's.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Plane spent Sunday with the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Gordon and Mrs. Wes McAdams spent tea hour on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Andrew, Flinton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes of Stirling were tea hour guests of Mr. Wm. Holmes on Wednesday.

Mrs. S. B. Smith and Master David were guests of Mrs. Clifford Chambers on Friday afternoon.

RHEUMATIC VICTIMS

Was there ever a more distressing ailment than Rheumatic aches and pains?

Rheumatism, Neuritis, Lumbago, Sciatica—what does it matter what you call them? The root cause is generally the same—Uric Acid in your joints—and the usual cause of Uric Acid is a liver that's out of order. Strike a blow at the cause and begin to enjoy real relief.

Take a glassful of water. Stir a ½ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt into it and drink before breakfast every day. Soon Rheumatic aches and pains will begin to "let up". They'll become less frequent.

Remedy lies in the combination of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium in Fynnon Salt. These elements are similar to those from Mineral Springs which have brought fame to Spas the world over. But spas cost time and money to visit—Fynnon Salt comes to rheumatic sufferers in their own homes. Start today, get relief from rheumatic pains the Fynnon way. At all druggists', 75c a large bottle.

DRIVER NOT BLAMED

Charges Preferred After Accident At George St. And Victoria Ave.

One child sustained a fractured leg on Saturday while yesterday three other persons were injured as the result of motor accidents on the streets of Belleville over the week end. As a sequel to Sunday's crash two residents of Napanee were arrested and held in custody. A stolen motor car, badly wrecked added to the police activities also.

On Saturday afternoon five-year-old Lois Theobold, 297 Charles Street sustained a fractured left leg when she ran out in front of a motor car near her home while at play. The injured lass was removed to the Belleville General Hospital where Dr. R. W. Tennent reduced the fracture.

Mrs. Vida Kerr, 74 1-2 Alexander Street, was proceeding south on Charles Street and was passing an excavation, where city workmen were employed. As Mrs. Kerr drove by the little Theobold lass apparently failed to see the oncoming vehicle and while running across the street was struck by the right front fender. She was knocked down sustaining the fracture. City workmen assisted Mrs. Kerr in helping the injured girl. Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard investigated.

Property Damage Heavy

Considerable property damage to motor cars happened at the intersection of George Street and Victoria Avenue Sunday afternoon when an automobile being driven on George Street by Russell Storms, Napanee, is alleged to have failed to observe the stop street sign and crashed into the side of a west bound car on Victoria Avenue, and driven by Rev. D. T. McClintock, of this city. Rev. McClintock's car was turned over, but fortunately the driver escaped with minor injuries. Damage to the amount of $400.00 resulted to the vehicle.

Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard investigated and later arrested Russell Storms on a charge of reckless driving while Robert Miles, a passenger and also of Napanee, was held on a charge of the breach of the L.C.A. Damage to the amount of one hundred dollars resulted to Storms' car.

Mrs. Annie Storms, 55 of Napanee sustained head lacerations while two-year-old Ronald Storms and four-year-old Maxwell Storms, children in the vehicle driven by Russell Storms, sustained minor cuts and bruises. Mrs. Russell Storms escaped uninjured as did the two men held by police.

Car Wrecked on Highway

Early Sunday morning, George Ostrom, Jr., of this city reported his automobile stolen from Rossmore. Later Motorcycle Patrolman Caldwell, Trenton, discovered the vehicle wrecked near White's cemetery, nine miles west of Belleville on highway No. 2.

John Thompson, 19, of Rossmore, was later arrested on a charge of taking the vehicle without the owner's consent. Thompson was admitted to bail early yesterday.

Constable Caldwell stated today Ostrom's car was a complete wreck. The vehicle apparently got out of the driver's control and skidded a distance of 747 feet before crashing into a tree. Charges were preferred against Thompson.

Special Music and Speaker Mark Anniversary Services

Tabernacle Church Passes Another Milestone In Service To God

LARGE ATTENDANCE

Large congregations assembled at all services held in the Tabernacle United Church yesterday to assist in the church's annual anniversary services, featured by special music and the discourses of the guest speaker of the day, Rev. H. Clarke, D.D., of Kingston. Miss Gwynthe Frise, A.C.C.M. of Port Hope, was the special soloist at both morning and evening services, singing The Lord's Prayer during the morning service. In the evening the Tabernacle choir was augmented by the Belleville Radio Male Quartette, who also sang "Steal Away." The quartette consisted of Messrs. H. Moorman, Jas. Bankier, A. Evans and Fred Jobson.

For his morning topic at the opening Anniversary service the Rev. Clarke, who was introduced by Rev. D. T. McClintock, pastor of the Tabernacle Church, chose for his subject —"The Unseen Companion."

"St. Paul was one of the first to recognize "The Unseen Companion" on his road to Rome, when he uttered these words of the New Testament; 'the Lord stood by me and closed the mouth of lions.' Did St. Paul lose heart, when his friends forsook him? No, because he was conscious of the presence of the Lord Jesus Christ. St. Paul did not think upon Christ as one dead, but as one ever present.

"It is a great thing to realize the presence of a friend, which reminds me of reading an English newspaper in which a number of definitions of a friend were given. The prize answer was this—'A friend is one who comes in when the whole world has gone out', added Rev. Mr. Clarke as he quoted several personal experiences during the late war, when he personally felt the presence of "The Unseen Companion" with him.

"When sorrow comes we do not turn to the theatre, the golf links, rink or baseball park, but we always turn to "The Unseen Companion", emphatically stated the speaker, as he concluded his discourse with several anecdotes to more vividly impress his subject.

Mrs. Orley Parks of Latta, is spending a few days with her cousin, Mrs. Cecil Holway, Burnham Street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Christie Barclay of Toronto, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Stobie over the weekend.

Dr. R. J. P. McCulloch and Dr. K. McKenzie of Toronto, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Stafford.

Hallowe'en decorations made an attractive setting for the afternoon tea arranged in the Sunday School room, Friday, by the Mae Carruthers' Mission Band of St. Andrew's Church. The guests were received by Miss Helen McLean, president. Miss Betty Cormier was in charge of the tea. The tea table with its handsome appointments and interesting favors was presided over by Mrs. J. Fargey. Members of the band served, while the boys were in charge of a display table. Misses Phyllis Pigden and Dorothy Muir looked after the home cooking table and Misses Barbara Thompson and Jean Mills, the candy table. Miss Dorothy Walker was treasurer.

The new Catholic Church in Sulphide was blessed Sunday morning at ten o'clock by the Most Rev. M. J. O'Brien, Archbishop of Kingston. There were present on the occasion Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., Very Rev. Dean Cullinane, pastor of Tweed, of which parish Sulphide forms a part and Rev. Dr. Byrne and a large congregation. The Church was dedicated under the patronage of St. Michael the Archangel.

A delightful bridge and tea was held on Friday afternoon by Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E., in the Officers' Mess in the Armouries. The rooms were seasonally decorated with pumpkin faces and Hallowe'en colors. About one hundred guests were welcomed by the Regent. First prize for bridge was won by Mrs. Ted Clarke and second by Mrs. McKeown. Mrs. A. B. Gribble graciously invited the guests to the tea room. The tea table was tastefully arranged with a lace cloth and centred with a candelabra with orange and black candles. Mrs. Wills and Mrs. (Dr.) Morgan poured tea from four to five, after which they were relieved later by Mrs. Ponton and Mrs. Chadwick. Mrs. E. Bateman and Mrs. M. Davison replenished the tea table. The tea assistants included Mrs. Alford, Mrs. Pollitt, Mrs. Fairman, Mrs. Keel, Mrs. Lazier, Mrs. How- Mrs. Keel, Mrs. Lazier, Mr. Howard and Mrs. Miller.

Weddings

KEITH—BACKUS

The wedding took place on Saturday evening at 104 W. Moira Street, Rev. J. D. P. Knox officiating, when Lillian Bertha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Henderson Backus, 294 George Street, became the bride of Mr. John Nelson Keith, second son of Mrs. Keith, 10 West Moira Street, and the late David Oscar Keith. The young couple who were attended by Miss Ruby Wardle, Geddes St., and Mr. Harry Elwood Keith, brother of the groom, will reside in this city.

KNAPTON—SIMPSON

Toronto, Oct. 31.—The marriage took place Saturday evening in St. John's Church, Norway, of Ivane Irene Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Simpson, to Mr. Lloyd George Knapton, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Knapton. Rev. Canon W. L. Baynes-Reed officiated and Mr. Mould was at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a cream brocade gown with American Beauty accessories and carried American Beauty roses and lily-of-the-valley. Miss Enid Knapton, bridesmaid wore powder blue lace with matching accessories and carried Sweetheart roses. Mr. John Simpson was best man and the ushers were Arthur Brunning and, Mr. Arthur Galloway.

The reception was held at the home of the groom's mother. Mrs. Simpson wore wine lace, black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses and Mrs. Knapton wore teal blue cut velvet and corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

For a trip to Eastern Quebec, the bride chose a nightfall blue ensemble with burgundy accessories and kolinsky furs, the gift of the groom. On their return they will live in Trenton.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, November 1
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DAY of remarkable and surprising opportunities and adventures is presaged by the major planetary influences. There may suddenly be presented some grand opening which may have a paramount influence on the entire future fortunes and destiny. This is likely to demand a drastic reorientation of the personal life, with new objectives, surroundings and associates. But whatever the situation, the mind will be able to cope with difficulties. Discretion is enjoyed.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of important events, bringing unlooked-for opportunities for high achievements, expanded fortunes and possibly spectacular adventures. An entire about-face in the life seems imminent, leading on to fortune and to fame, but also provoking jealousy, enmity and treachery. The mental faculties and emotional forces will be found keyed to success and gratification, if activities are guided with circumspection.

A child born on this day may have original talents, much initiative and high ambitions which may lead it to a conspicuous place in the public esteem. It should be charming, gracious and of great humanitarian aspirations.

REV. C. WINTER IS HONORED BY PARISHIONERS

Rector And Wife Presented With Remembrances Before Departure

Picton, Oct. 31.—A large gathering representative of the various religious denominations, assembled in the Parish Hall on Friday evening to say farewell to Rev. Cecil Winter, and Mrs. Winter, who have won the esteem and friendship of so many during the twelve years of Mr. Winter's rectorship at St. Mary Magdalene's Church.

The platform of the hall was banked with baskets of gorgeous late autumn flowers, and softly shaded lights. Seated there were Mr. Winter and the speakers of the evening who were called upon by the chairman, James de C. Hepburn, M.L.A., Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon, Rev. E. N. Grant of Wellington, Rev. A. J. Anderson of Marysburgh, Rev. Fr. J. A. Meehan, Rev. Dr. M. E. R. Boudreau, J. K. Patterson, Thos. Kinney and Judge E. H. McLean, all paid high tribute to the sterling worth of Rev. and Mrs. Winter who are leaving on Monday for the parish of Cataraqui. Mrs. Winter, Mrs. Geo. Haddon and Mrs. Wm. Tait were then called to the platform. Mrs. Haddon, president of the Guild of St. Mary Magdalene's Church, read an address, following which Mr. and Mrs. Winter were presented by Mrs. Tait with a handsome silver tea service and tray and silver candelabra from the ladies of the congregation. The tray was suitably engraved as a momento of this occasion. Mr. Winter very feelingly replied for himself and Mrs. Winter expressing their appreciation of the gift and the good wishes of the parish they are leaving. Mr. Alfred Strickland then presented Mr. Winter with a purse of money from the men of the congregation. A very enjoyable social hour followed when refreshments were served by the laymen under the convenership of the Guild. Pouring coffee at the beautifully appointed buffet table were Mrs. Thos. Walmsley, Mrs. Jas. Colden, Mrs. Thos. Shaw and Mrs. Bert Tulley.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Jones are receiving the congratulations of their friends. Their marriage was an event of Wednesday, Oct. 26. Mrs. Jones was formerly Miss Nellie Todd of Picton.

Mrs. Ron Church was hostess of of the Bridge Club to which she belongs on Friday evening at her home on Union street.

Mrs. Patterson Dever picked a lovely rose in her garden on Thursday last. This perfect bloom was from a second series of blooms on one bush this season.

Over six hundred enjoyed the chicken supper served by the ladies of St. Gregory's Church in the Armouries on Thursday night. Dancing and bingo entertained the crowd during the evening.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

All my years as a practicing physician I have been a strong advocate of cod-liver oil. But since I have seen what it did for the Dionne Quintuplets I am stronger for it than ever.

I am bringing this subject up now because this is the time parents should begin giving this great food and medicine to their children. Yes, I'll go farther—it's the time for them to start taking it themselves!

Cod-liver oil has always suffered from an unsavory reputation, largely because, before chemists learned to refine it as they have now, the taste was pretty rank. In fact, I suspect that most of you who read this will remember your own struggles to swallow the oily, fishy preparation which was the only cod-liver oil we knew.

So I have found it much easier to get children to take it by calling it by another name that fits it to a T—"Bottled Sunshine." The Quints have had their cod-liver oil daily since they were two months old. It has given them rosy cheeks, strong bodies, happy hearts. And they love their Bottled Sunshine; they've had so much of it we sometimes call them the Sunshine Girls.

When I say they love oil, I'm not exaggerating. It's a regular routine morning and evening with them. They get a tablespoon of it twice daily, except in summer when we cut the dose to a teaspoonful. Some authorities calim that you don't need to give this oil during summer months, but we think it is beneficial.

The real time for our Bottled Sunshine is during the fall and winter when in this northern climate the sun doesn't shine as strongly, and when little bodies are covered with clothing that keep them from absorbing the ultra-violet rays in the sunshine. If your climate happens to be cloudy during winter, as it is in some sections around the Great Lakes, then the need for Bottled Sunshine is all the greater.

Wait until I tell you what cod-liver oil did for the Quintuplets in the early days when the fight to keep them alive was a 24-hour battle. The poor little things were born at least two months prematurely—and with rickets. Their legs were all deformed and out of shape; accordingly, when they were two months old, we started them on viosterol, which is merely a concentrated form of cod-liver oil. Since then never a day has passed but they have had this medicine.

In the early days we gave them a little more than we needed to, perhaps, but the case called for heroic measures and methods. Months afterward, when we studied the babies' joints under the X-ray we discovered where that extra viosterol went. We found that an extra amount of calcium had formed in the bones. This certainly was no harm, and it showed the value of our Bottled Sunshine. It had gone to make extra bone structure.

Don't Excuse Girl For Extravagance

It's a Mistake To Relieve Her of Responsibility For Expenditures

By LISA GRENELLE

RHODA had reached that age of social consciousness when she could not longer by anything, even with mother's full permission, when she knew that mother herself was not planning to replenish her wardrobe in any particular this year.

"Why don't you get a new dress, Mother? You rate one."

"I can't afford it, dear."

"But you said I could get one," Rhoda said.

"I know, but I think you need it more, going out the way you do now. At your age clothes mean so much."

It was very sweet, unselfish and understanding of mother, but it made Rhoda feel selfish and extravagant, and that was not comfortable. She did want the new dress, though.

"But, Mother! Don't you see? You make me feel so low, so selfish, with my planning a whole winter wardrobe and you getting nothing. I simply can't, Mother, not unless you get something for yourself."

Finally, just so that Rhoda could enjoy her winter wardrobe, mother bought a hat. She didn't really want it, and really couldn't afford it, but she did, anyway.

Mother had been touched by Rhoda's attitude. The child was really growing thoughtful and less selfish. All the same, mother had to pay the bills both for Rhoda's winter wardrobe and her own hat, the money for which she would much rather have had in the bank.

Was Precedent

And the worst of it was that the affair proved to be a precedent. Rhoda found that she enjoyed her purchase more if she duplicated it for mother, charging both to mother. Such thoughtfulness and generosity always made Rhoda feel warm inside, and made her feel justified in her own little extravagance.

But it begans to cause mother, who was in strained financial circumstances at the moment, real anxiety. It's one thing to pay for one fancy blouse, another to pay for two, especially as mother had no use for fancy blouses.

Rhoda had reached an age when she was ready to share responsibility and sacrifice. Her attitude showed that. She didn't want to give up, take the hard road —who does? But she proved by her attitude that she was capable and ready to.

If mother had refused to be influenced into justifying Rhoda's extravagance by soothing her conscience in allowing her to buy something also for mother, Rhoda's conscience would have painfully curbed her greed and limited her wants. Rhoda would have learned to live within the family budget.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN
(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Writing to Mother-In-Law To-Be

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please help me? I have been going with a young man for over a year, and we have seen each other very often. We are really engaged, although it has not been announced. His mother lives a great distance from here, and I have never heard directly from her. He has told her of his love for me. She is seriously ill and recently in her letters to him she asked him if he had told me of her illness. He has asked me to write to her. Please tell me if it would be all right for me to write to her. Harriet.

It is not only "all right" for you to write to this young man's mother, under the circumstances, but it would be a generous and thoughtful thing for you to do. You love her son; she knows that he loves you; she loves him.

Undoubtedly she is too ill to write to you. She knows that you know of her illness. Don't let another day go by without writing to her. Your letter can and will give her deep and satisfying happiness.

Write her a warm-hearted letter that reveals what a fine and appreciative girl you are. Tell her of your sorrow about her illness, of your prayers for her improvement, of your love for her son, of your mutual plans and hopes; tell her all the things that you know a mother will enjoy hearing about. Make this letter one that you will be proud of, one to make your fiance proud, one to make his mother proud of her son's choice. What a high opportunity you have to make this mother happy!

Besides sending the letter, why not find some gifts that you might send to her, to give her comfort and delight?

Correct Use of Divorcee's Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. What is the correct wording of a wedding announcement sent out by a divorcee for her daughter?

2. How should one's name be signed to a thank-you note after marriage? S.

1. It is most important that the form of the divorcee's name be correct on these announcements. A divorced woman correctly uses her maiden surname prefixed to her ex-husband's surname. That is, if Mary Robinson marries and divorces John Brown, her name after the divorce is Mrs. Robinson Brown (Not Mrs. Mary Brown.)

The announcement should read:

Mrs. Robinson Brown has the honour of announcing the marriage of her daughter Elizabeth Anne
to
Mr. Anthony Hillhouse
On Tuesday, the first of December,
Nineteen hundred and thirty-eight
Baltimore, Maryland

(The second and third lines may be condensed to read, "announces the marriage of her daughter". But the form given above is considered more gracious.)

2. Thank-you notes to relatives and close friends would be signed with only the first name. Letters to people whom the bride does not know very well (or not at all, as in the case, perhaps, of some of the groom's relatives or friends) should be signed.

Very sincerely,
Elizabeth Brown Hillhouse

(And may I add that, for presents sent before the wedding thank-you notes should be written before the wedding.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

WHAT MAKES A SUCCESSFUL MARRIAGE

Love of Children Declared Essential to Happy Marriage

If you are engaged to be married and disposed to think of life with your beloved as a prolonged (and, it must be admitted, selfish) twosome, spare a thought to the children.

For babies will come; they ought to come. Babies are, as a matter of fact, what marriage is for. These unborn human beings, however, won't have a square deal unless they've prepared for in advance. It's not just milk and fresh air that they need, but a welcoming love.

If I were a twenty-year-old and about to be married, I should be especially interested to notice how the boy, or the girl, whom I wished to marry, behaved toward children. For my own part, I like a girl who is always willing to leave her own companions to pick up a child that has fallen in the street or to dress her little sister's doll or to soothe a fretful baby.

I believe you can bank on a girl like that. It isn't only that she has the maternal instinct, which is an almost indispensable thing for a woman to have, though we've all seen women without it, but she's kind and even-tempered and unselfish. She'll make a good wife.

That's all very well for girls, you may tell me, but boys are different. You can't expect a boy in his 'teens, you say, to qualify for fatherhood by preferring such namby-pamby things as pushing a baby-carriage or minding a baby brother.

Well, boys may have their own way of betraying a sympathetic heart. I've seen youths who were surly and unkind when children innocently disturbed them or threatened to interfere with their work or pleasure. I've seen others who would go out of their way to play ball with a lonely youngster or to teach him to swim or perhaps just laugh and joke with him. I assure you it's the latter type that a girl does well to marry.

Sometimes babies have to be deferred a year or two for lack of money. But a permanently babyless marriage is a risky thing. On the other hand, a home where children are merely endured isn't likely to have much happiness in it, even for the parents.

What kind of a marriage is it whose partners regard the coming of a baby as a disaster and the little creature himself as an interloper?

How would you like, in his case, to be grudged your very existence? To be considered an unwelcome consumer of your young mother's time and strength and an expense that your small-salaried father thinks he can't afford? To be compared unfavorably with the amusements that your parents were free to indulge in before you barged into their lives and settled down for good? To be ranked far below dancing or bridge or tennis, and sourly accepted as a handicap to living?

Parents of this type haven't, of course, waked up. They may have married too young; certainly they are ignorant of what marriage means. It's true that not many people can long withstand the actual charm of babyhood, and that even an unwanted baby can usually, in the end, make a place for himself in the home by his sweet helplessness, his delicious roguery, his unmistakable urge to love and be loved.

There's a much sounder basis for family happiness when the young pair knows from the beginning that they love and want children, and when they make an intelligent effort to understand how these children should be treated once they have arrived.

Large families are no longer popular. The days when even modest homes fairly seethed with children, often fourteen or fifteen of them, are probably gone forever. The present fashion seems to favor the minimum allotment of two children per family.

Children bring cheerfulness, and while health and happiness may supremely flourish in the two-child home, I wonder if we have had to forego a certain careless joy that used to bubble up in those nice, sprawling, over-sized families of our great-grandmothers' days.

School Books Barred From Homes

WHY SHOULD the school forbid children to have school books and their parents from seeing these books in the home? To thousands and thousands of homes the school says "Thou shalt not have any book in thy home." The order is not just that in words but it is, in fact. For thousands and thousands of homes have practically no books except those the children bring from school.

As I go about visiting schools, and as I read your many letters, I learn that hundreds of thousands of children in the elementary grades are not allowed to take their school books home—not even, in some places, those the parents have bought. This practice of forbidding children to carry school books home is most prevalent, of course, where books are provided free by the school. The prohibition is by law in a few states; in some other places, by decree of the board of education; in still others, by a local principal or teacher, on his own accord.

This practice is somewhat in harmony with the modern trend of abolishing all school homework, especially in the grades. Certainly it is in keeping with the widening of the gulf between the home and school. I'm not arguing for assigned home work in the early grades, though a little of it, wisely directed, might be desirable in the upper elementary grades, trends to the contrary notwithstanding. Of course there still are excessive, even cruel, home assignments in the grades of some schools; , and this is to be deplored.

But why forbid the child the opportunity to read, even for fun, at home?

Poor Psychology

When one asks principals or teachers why the little child is not allowed to carry his primer or reading book home, one usually is told that the child reading the story or lesson at home will not be interested in reading it or hearing it read at school! It may be awfully dull, but I can't be much impressed with this argument. Doesn't it imply poor psychology at school? That the more they learn the less they will be interested?

Little children just learning to read, even those of the second, third or fourth grade, like to read at home for fun. They like to read to their parents, grandparents or baby brothers or sisters.

But, say some of these school leaders, "Let the children read books at home from the school library?" Very well, but how many children, do you suppose, ever get a book from the library to take home, in proportion to our total population? What about the many times more other children? Are we going to deny books to them and their families? Why should most young children of America, or of certain sections of America, be virtually forbidden by the schools supported by public funds, to have books at home? What do you think about this matter? Why not write your opinions to the editor of this paper?

Today's Garden-Graph

by DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Association

THIS IS THE TIME of year to give the perennial flower-bed its seasonal housecleaning. Lift up the clumps of flowers and set them in the shade while you fork over the soil and give it a feeding of fertilizer. In moving clumps of perennials take care not to shake off the soil clinging to the roots. The peonies, by the way, must not be disturbed, even for housecleaning purposes.

While doing over the perennial beds keep a wary watch for witch grass, illustrated in the Garden-Graph. This is a persistent pest, second only to crab grass, but it can be cleaned out of the flower beds at this time of the year without great trouble. Every piece of root of witch grass, no matter how small, should be pulled from under and between the roots of your perennials.

If you want to make certain rearrangements in your perennial beds this is the time to do it.

Goodnight Stories

(Goodnigh t Stories)

By MAX TRELL

KNARF AND HANID, the shadows with the turned-about names, went on a very strange journey. I'll tell you how it began.

They had gone to pay a visit to their friend, Mother Hubbard, who lived just outside the village of Gooseville. When they got to her house, they found she was out.

"She must have gone to market to buy her dog, Tray, a bone," Knarf said. "He's always hungry."

"But Tray is gone, too!" Hanid said. "No, something must be the matter. I wonder where they can be."

They ran down the road until they came to a very crooked house. It was the house where the very crooked man lived. They knocked on the door. They didn't think anyone would be home there, either. To their surprise, they heard the crooked man saying: "Come in! Come in!"

They opened the door and went inside. They found the crooked old man sitting on the floor with his legs all tangled up in a knot. "Quick! Untangle me!" he cried. "Oh! Did you hear what happened?"

"What happened?"

Simple Simon in Well

"First untangle me and I'll tell you."

So they got his legs untangled and he said: "Simple Simon has fallen into the well!"

"Into the well!"

Then they all ran as fast as they could across the meadow.

"Yes. He jumped right in, fishing-pole and all. I'm glad you happened along. Otherwise, I'd be here yet. But we must go to the well. Perhaps it isn't too late."

Then they all ran as fast as they could across the meadow and finally they came to the house where Simple Simon lived with his mother. Then they darted around the house.

"Look!" Hanid cried, pointing to the well. "There's everybody!" Sure enough, everyone in Mother Gooseville was crowded around the well. And at that moment, a great shout went up.

Travellers Find Holland Calm In Spite of Europe's Turmoil

By TEMPLE MANNING

DESPITE ALL the excitement in Europe, Holland, like Switzerland, remains calm and serene. With no desire to be concerned in international complications, Holland serves notice that whatever happens she is ready. Holland has been celebrating an anniversary, for Queen Wilhelmina was crowned 40 years ago on Sept. 6.

There is so much to see in Holland that it often amazes us how many who claim to be travelers have never even thought of visiting such a cosmopolitan spot, say, as The Hague, and its nearby sea-shore resort, Scheveningen. Amsterdam, too, is cosmopolitan and ultra modern, yet in a moment one can be transported back to yesterday as one strolls along the elm-shaded canals. Despite the bustle of the Kalverstraat, with its lovely shops, smart cafes and de luxe hotels, the fashionable quarters of the sixteenth century remain the same today.

Picture-Book Islands

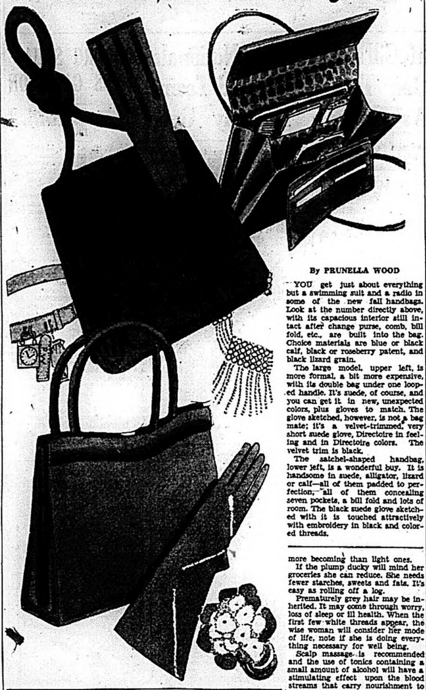
A quick trip from Amsterdam brings the traveler to picture-book islands of Marken and Volendam, where the natives dress in the lovely peasant costumes. Another short trip out of Amsterdam is to old Utrecht, with its ancient university and its cathedral, an architectural marvel. In Utrecht is the quaint canal, the Nieuwe Gracht, a waterway that crosses Utrecht from north to south, joining the Rhine to the Vecht.

.. Shopping center, The Hague

Near the city, along the Zuiderzee, are Bunchoten and Spakenburg, where the villagers wear characteristic and pretty costumes. If you love Delftware and fine tiles, then you would enjoy a visit to Delft, a lovely old city, with narrow, placid canals bordered by lime trees. These picturesque facades of seventeenth century houses are mirrored in the limpid waters Delft has its leaning tower, a church tower with a decided list.

The Hague is always busy and always delightful. It is the court capital of Holland and, as befits a court capital, there are palaces and royal residences galore. The Hague is a paradise for the shopper. The short trip to Scheveningen is through lovely woods, and the street car routes are lined with old elm trees. The Hague golf course is charmingly situated in meadows under the shadow of the sand dunes, so there are plenty of traps. Scheveningen is an extremely smart seashore resort, with a wide beach, a glass-lined pier, good shops and splendid restaurants. And the mention of restaurants brings to mind the fact that Holland is the spot for those who like fine food.

Handful of Style



By PRUNELLA WOOD

YOU get just about everything but a swimming suit and a radio in some of the new fall handbags. Look at the number directly above, with its capacious interior still intact after change purse, comb, bill fold, etc., are built into the bag. Choice materials are blue or black calf, black or roseberry patent, and black lizard grain.

The large model, upper left, is more formal, a bit more expensive, with its double bag under one looped handle. It's suede, of course, and you can get it in new, unexpected colors, plus gloves to match. The glove sketched, however, is not a bag mate; it's a velvet-trimmed, very short suede glove, Directoire in feeling and in Directoire colors. The velvet trim is black.

The satchel-shaped handbag, lower left, is a wonderful buy. It is handsome in suede, alligator, lizard or calf—all of them padded to perfection, all of them concealing seven pockets, a bill fold and lots of room. The black suede glove sketched with it is touched attractively with embroidery in black and colored threads.

HERE'S WAY TO MAKE FACES APPEAR LONGER

By HELEN FOLLETT

GIRLS WITH round, baby faces look at the movie stars who display cheek bones and a look of hunger, and wish their full-moon countenances could be made oval.

There are ways of making the face look longer. One way is to cultivate the pompadour, lift it high or pack the front part of the brain container with rolls. To brush the hair back sleek and smooth is to be all face and no hair. It won't do at all.

The large, brimmed hat is balm and soothing syrup to plump portraits, just as the hat the size of a sauce dish is fatal. The brim offers a crossline and throws a shadow.

The cut of the neckline must be considered carefully. The V shape is flattering, giving length to the neck as well as the face. If earrings are worn they can be those new danglers that almost touch the shoulders. The necklace must not be close-fitting, but should hang fairly low.

High collars are a mistake, especially of fur; they shorten the neck.

JAYNE REGAN . . . . hers is an interesting and pretty little face.

Dark colors worn near the face are more becoming than light ones.

If the plump ducky will mind her groceries she can reduce. She needs fewer starches, sweets and fats. It's easy as rolling off a log.

Prematurely grey hair may be inherited. It may come through worry, loss of sleep or ill health. When the first few white threads appear, the wise woman will consider her mode of life, note if she is doing everything necessary for well being.

Scalp massage is recommended and the use of tonics containing a small amount of alcohol will have a stimulating effect upon the blood streams that carry nourishment to the hair roots. The weekly shampoo is necessary because a clean scalp is healthier than one that bears atmospheric dust and dead skin scales.

It is believed that cod liver oil, taken internally, will help the hair. It is given to small animals to make their coats thick and glossy. Maybe what's good for the beasties is good for man and woman.

She will find that a model of the type depicted here will become the backbone of her wardrobe. This suit combines navy and dark red effectively. The knit jacket has a square neck and yoke, the latter being outlined with the dark red jersey that makes the skirt. The pockets are also outlined with the dark red jersey. The knit of the cardigan is navy and red with a touch of green. The striped effect is emphasized on the yoke where it is used horizontally. The skirt has an inverted box pleat center front and two side pleats on either side of it.

DELICIOUS RECIPES FOR PEAS

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

WOMEN VISITORS from Europe usually go into raptures about American fruit and vegetable markets. The idea of foods being in season the year around so that markets look like perpetual harvest festival, gives them joy tingled with envy. It means that we can give recipes for various foods at any time during the year and be sure that they will be used.

A friend who is an epicure when it comes to green peas has sent me some interesting recipes, including many of continental origin. Petits Pois a la Francaise is a simple but delicious French dish. Take a well washed iceberg lettuce, cut in quarters and pull it, while wet, in a pan with seasoning and a good piece of butter. Then add shelled peas, also wet, and a handful of tiny onions. Cook gently till tender, about 30 minutes. If liked, a pinch of sugar may be added. Serve very hot. Peas and shrimps combine to form a delicious chafing dish recipe. Make a cupful of rich white sauce with plenty of butter and seasoning to taste. Add about a cupful of shrimps and a cupful of previously-cooked peas Serve hot on crackers or toast rounds.

One From Greece

And here is a recipe for cooking green peas that comes all the way from Athens, Greece. To cook peas the Grecian way requires a tablespoon of oil, a large onion, three tomatoes and a pound of peas. Chop the onion fine and simmer gently with a tablespoon of olive oil. Peel tomatoes and add together with a large cup of water, pepper and salt to taste. Cook for a few minutes and then add the peas, partly boiled, to the mixture. Simmer gently until the peas are quite tender.

The thrifty French housewife manages to make a nice dish from old peas that are tough. Put the peas in a stewpan with a slice of ham, minced, for each pound of peas weighed before shelling. Add a chopped lettuce leaf, a sprig of minced parsley, salt, pepper, a good lump of butter and two or three spoonfuls of water. Cover closely and put in oven or on fire to simmer slowly for about two hours.

Another French notion is the idea of cooking peas in their pods. Wash pods and, with peas still inside, cook in boiling, salted water. After cooking, shell, and the result is excellent served either hot or cold.

STRIKING TESTS REVEAL HOW RECENTLY IMPROVED SOAP WASHES CLOTHES SHADES WHITER

THERE are many discoveries that are far less exciting, but few of greater importance in making life more enjoyable than the discovery of "scrubless" soap. One of the most outstanding of the "save work" soaps is the granulated soap, Rinso, which has helped so greatly to do away with the hard work of washday.

A new principle

For years Rinso has given millions of women whiter, brighter washes without scrubbing or boiling. It has done this by producing rich, lively suds that soak out the dirt—gently and safely luring out imbedded particles—and leaving to the housewife the comparatively easy job of scrubbing a few stubborn edges, rinsing and hanging out a dazzling white and much brighter wash.

The effectiveness of Rinso suds has been so marked that the makers of 26 famous washers have long recommended this soap above all others.

A further advancement

Recently the makers of Rinso announced that they had improved their soap. By actual test it was proven that the New Rinso gives, cup for cup, over 25% more suds than the old. These suds are longer-lasting and faster-acting, too. The New Rinso gives suds that last nearly one-third longer than ordinary suds. What a blessing that is in hard water areas!

The New Rinso in comparison to old-fashioned soaps washes clothes brighter and at least 5 shades whiter with perfect safety.

The discovery of New Rinso may not rate a mention in the history books, but to millions of women it means better washday results, economy, freedom from hard work washdays.

Women are amazed to see how many shades whiter the New Rinso washes clothes in comparison with old-type soaps

Correspondent Contends That They Can't be Spoiled; That Some Children Are So Good Parential Indulgence Sometimes Makes Model Men and Women

.opyright, 1938 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Miss Chatfield:

In regard to your column in which you predict dire ends for spoiled children, I would like to say a word. I admit many of them do turn out badly but there are exceptions. I was the youngest in a family of five children. From infancy I have been humored by loving parents, three sisters and one brother; also an aunt who always gave me anything I wanted. When I was in my early teens my brother gave me money to go to the movies every day because I would cry until I was sick, if I couldn't go. Even now at the age of twenty-six I get my way and my word goes with the family.

I am not the kind of person you described as the product of spoiling. I graduated from high school with honors when I was 16, took a business course in less time than was required and have been working for the same firm ever since, I am told that I have the best of manners, am unselfish and thoughtful of others. So I believe some children can't be spoiled. I believe they are born good or bad and will go through life that way.

Answer:

I'm not enough of a scientist to get into that heredity-environment argument you outline; though of course we are all agreed that what's in the egg plays a big part in the grown chicken. However, young lady, you beg your whole question when you admit that your word goes in the family and even now at 26 you have your way. Had it occurred to you that your father and mother brother and sisters would like occasionally to have their way?

Had you wanted to prove that their indulgence of you had not hindered your growth or injured your character, you should have said that they all conspired to spoil you when you were little and now that you are big, you are big enough to let them have their way.

I wouldn't contend that parental indulgence destroys brain cells and turns a bright child into a dolt. I wouldn't intimate that the most spoiled brat couldn't learn his lessons and graduate with honors. I do contend that a much indulged youngster won't study unless it suits his fancy and he won't take education if he hasn't a native taste for it. Why? because he hasn't been disciplined to do what's difficult and uncongenial.

Perhaps the 100 per cent rating you give yourself is correct. But you'll never know how good you are until you have come against some snags in life, crossed swords with other undisciplined darlings who have been brought up to kick and scream for what they want. Then it will be Greek meet Greek.

And it won't be long, my dear child, for life is a vast school of discipline and everybody that's born matriculates. There's no way of side-stepping the stark necessity of taking it on the chin now and again.

Caroline Chatfield.

Some Cells of Body Cannot Be Replaced

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THIS WEEK we are discussing the fundamental scientific aspects of the changes that occur in the human body in disease. As scientists we are trying to arrive at the truth, no matter where it leads us. We are not necessarily trying to say anything comforting, or to assure ourselves that there is a cure for all our ills, but to look at life with a completely unprejudiced eye, as if it were not ourselves concerned in it at all.

Yesterday we discussed the fundemental process of inflamation, and we saw that it was essentially protective to the body. Today we will discuss another process that occurs which is not protective but destructive — the degeneration of body cells.

When a group of cells degenerate in a single area, this defect can often be replaced. It depends upon what kind of cells are involved. Certain kinds of cells can never be replacedw—nerve cells are the best example of this. When a nerve cell is completely destroyed, as in infantile paralysis, it can never be replaced.

Apparent Exceptions

There may be some apparent exceptions to this, but they are only apparent. Nerve fibrils may be destroyed and then replaced by an outgrowth of new fibrils from the central nerve cell, but when the cell itself is destroyed, it is never replaced.

Skin cells, bone cells, connective tissue cells, on the other hand, replace themselves very readily. In the internal organs, what looks like a very good repair job can be done by having connective tissue take the place of destroyed tissue. Thus in the heart, when one of the small blood vessels gets plugged up and shuts off the supply of blood to some part of the heart muscle, (coronary thrombosis, as often reported in the newspapers), that part may degenerate, but if it is given time, connective tissue fills in, and the heart as a whole continues to function pretty well.

Of the internal organs, the liver is the only one that can regenerate its own cells. The liver is constantly bombarded with poisons which destroys some of its cells but they are replaced by others.

Sometimes instead of a local injury whole systems of cells are destroyed throughout the body. Thus strange poisons the nature of which we do not know attack the bones and render them soft, affecting no other tissue.

Heredity Influences

Hereditary influences may leave a congenital lack of certain cells. An example is in the strange blood disease, hemophilia, in which the cells which create the substance of coagulation are lacking. This is an important disease in the history of the modern world. If the good Queen Victoria had not transmitted it to two of her daughters — Alice and Beatrice — who were the grandmothers respectively of the Czar's son and the sons of the king of Spain, there would probably have been no Stalin and no Franco in the world today.

Fourth Consecutive Reverse Of Season for Panthers as Flyers Rally in Last Quarter

Score Is 17-6 With Locals Gaining Advantage In First Quarter

NO RESERVE STRENGTH

Feelings Run High And Players On Both Squads Banished

With a surprised opening attack the Belleville Panthers swept to an early lead over the R.C.A.F. gridders on Saturday, only to see their advantage cast into the discard, as the "Airmen" rolled up a last half score to hand the Panthers their fourth consecutive reverse of the season when the "Flyers" injected their reserve strength into action to win by the score of 17 to 6 in the final intermediate O.R.F.U. stand of the Panthers this season.

The tussle was by far the most bitterly contested of the season, feelings rising to a pugnacious pitch from the outset until subsequently players were banished for fisticuffs. Augmented by the return to the squad of the "old guard" of Mase Rigby, Jack Morgan and Harry McCreary, the youthful Panthers played inspired football in the first half to literally sweep the "Airmen" off their proverbial feet, but when the chips were down, the ultimate winners hurled continued reserve strength into the line not only to halt the lighter Panthers, but ultimately 'steam roller' over the locals in a last quarter barrage, that netted the winners ten points and stamped them winners of all they viewed.

Personal Feelings Run High

The pastime was not devoid of its moments, personal feelings being injected into the fray from the initial play. The "Airmen" were supported by some exceptionally fine punting from the boot of Laurie Gibson, who returned to the R.C.A.F. football wars after a month's leave of absence.

The presence of Rigby, Morgan and McCreary worked marvels in the ranks of the Panthers during the early stages, but the lack of reserve strength ultimately took its toll as the more seasoned Flyers injected a continuous substitution of seasoned reserve strength against the Panthers, which eventually took its toll. The feature play of the day was Jack Cooper's 65 yard run for Belleville's only touchdown, Cooper also playing a sterling game with his deadly tackling. Storey, at quarter, handled the Panthers in grand style and turned in his best effort of the season, as Skelcher, Haffey, Jackson, Dick Burns and Pepper stood out backed by the sterling line play of Rigby and Morgan and McCreary.

Shaw, the Flyers' backfield star, was the only "Airman" who could continually gain ground through the Panthers' line with Semple and Davidson crashing through on the defence to smear plays, while Winchuck and Brown carried for several fine gains. Zayerzierski and Cessford, coupled with Wilkie and Ripley stood out defensively for the winners. Gibson repeatedly out-kicked Pat Blaker, the local punter as the game progressed.

The Play

An inspired band of Belleville gridders literally swept the Air Force squad before them from the outset, Pat Blaker kicking superbly in the early stages. Belleville's initial play was a sneaker, Storey to J. Haffey for a substantial gain. Belleville's "old guard" of Rigby, Morgan and McCreary literally tore through the Flyers in the initial frame, but the Gibson-led clan held tenaciously. Gibson was punting well and had the ball in the Panthers' territory as the second quarter opened. On a second play Gibson booted over the local line and McQuaid was roughed for an R.C.A.F. point. Again a "sneaker play" gave Belleville yards and on an exchange of kicks the Flyers' fumbled.

A first play caught the Flyers napping as Johnnie Cooper snagged a forward pass and evading all tacklers raced along the sidelines for 65 yards and a touchdown for the longest run of the season on the local grid iron. Blaker converted giving Belleville a 6 to 1 edge. Eddie Schrieder's pet play, a forward followed by a latteral gave the Panthers 40 yards and an advantage as the halfway mark was reached.

Two Banished

To open the second half an R.C.A.F. player struck Pat Blaker, who in retaliation was banished along with Brown of the Flyers.

Feelings were running high at this point, but the penalties cooled the players somewhat, Belleville fumbled on their own 20 yard line and Gibson raced to the 5-yard line, Winchuck plunging for a subsequent touchdown, not converted, score 6-6. Later Gibson booted a single point and the last quarter opened with the score standing 7-6 for the R.C.A.F.

On a first play Gibson's attempted placement went for a single point and he added another seconds later with a punt to the deadline. A poor snap saw Rigby downed behind his own line for a safety touch and to culminate matters Wilkie leaped into the air to intercept an attempted Belleville forward and race over for a touchdown which he converted himself to make the final score stand 17 to 6 for the Airport. Belleville was tossing forward passes in desperation as the game ended. The reverse drops the Panthers into a deep cellar position in the group standing.

The line-ups—Belleville — Snap —Blaker, insides — V. Guay, G. Guay, middles—Skelcher, Bradford, ends—Cooper, J. Haffey; quarter—Storey, halves—McCreary, Pepper, C. Haffey; flying wind, McQuaid, alternates—Rigby, Morgan, Burns, Jackson, Laughlin, N. Guay, Knott, Whelan and Walt.

R.C.A.F. "Flyers"—snap—Loftus, insides—James, Zayerzieraki, middles —Cessford, Trepanier, ends—Semple Davidson, quarter—Wilkie, halves, —Ripley, Gibson, Brown; flying wing—Brown; alternates—Delmonte, Ulyott, Daignault, Dupruis, Golding, Williams, Staples, Gaschler and Winchuck.

Winnipeg Bombers Eliminate Regina

Winnipeg, Oct. 31 (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers accomplished an unprecedented feat, four straight victories over Regina Roughriders, to qualify for the Western Interprovincial Football Union final with Calgary Bronks.

Bombers, facing a rider machine rated in early season the most powerful in Regina grid history, suffered defeat in their first meeting this year but completed the string of four straight wins Saturday with a 13-0 conquest of riders here in a sudden-death union semi-final.

Reg. Threlfall's well-coached offensive tore the Regina line apart as Bombers made 11 first downs and 236 yards rushing to Riders' six and 108. Winnipeg failed to complete a forward pass in two tries while Regina completed one for 40 yards in six attempts.

Bombers travel to Calgary next Saturday for the first game of the total-point final to be completed in Winnipeg Nov. 12. The finalists meet again Nov. 19 with players barred who are ineligible under the Canadian Rugby Union residence rule. Winner of this game will represent the West in a national final.

"WONDER" TEAM FROM PITTSBURG BEST IN THE U.S.

Proved Their Ability By Rallying To Defeat Fordham

NORTHWESTERN SMART

Provides Major Upset of Saturday's Game By Downing Gophers

(By Bill Boni)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Oct. 31—(AP)—Pittsburgh's "Wonder" Football team, with its "dream" backfield and practically anonymous line, emerged from Saturday's form-following program with fresh and indisputable claim to its ranking as the No. 1 United States College gridiron power.

The Panthers proved their ability to come from behind under pressure by roaring to three touchdowns in nine minutes to beat back Fordham, 24-13, in a scoring feast that ended these rivals' three-year touchdown famine.

But if there's little doubt of Pittsburgh's might and right to first place, you can get an argument anywhere in the country on which team deserves the runner-up spot.

Northwestern Runner-up

In the western conference they offer Northwestern, responsible for the day's biggest casualty among the all-winning teams with its 6-3 conquest of Minnesota, beaten in the conference for the first time since the Wildcats' 6-0 victory two years ago. Non-conference midwest enthusiasts will offer Notre Dame, which over-powered army, 19-7, with the wealth of its reserves and the speed of its ball-carriers to stay in the unbeaten-untied ranks.

In the southwest they'll tout all-conquering Texas Christian, which rolled for 509 yards, 221 of them on Davey's O'Brien's passes, to wallop Baylor, 39-7, and look more and more like the best team that conference ever has produced.

In the South, depending on conference allegiance, they shrill for Tennessee, which remained unbeaten and hung up its fourth straight southeastern league victory in downing Louisiana State, 14-6, or for Duke, which kept its goal-line clear for the season with a 14-0 defeat of North Carolina, the Blue Devils, fourth win in the southern conference.

Eastern Ivy League worshippers are high on Dartmouth, which rode high, wide and handsome behind Captain Bob Macleod to a 24-6 rout of Yale and its first one-year clean sweep of the Big Three.

The decisiveness with which Pitt, Dartmouth, and Notre Dame, scoring 48 points among them in the last half, gained their victories was duplicated on other eastern gridirons. Harvard, finally mastering Coach Dick Harlow's style, sent Torbie Macdonald whirling away to three of its four touchdowns and 192 yards as Princeton bowed to the defending big three champion, 26-7. Holy Cross, paced by Bill Osmanski, plowed Colgate under 21-0. Ohio State scored four times in the second quarter to blank New York U., 32-0; Cornell spanked Columbia, 23-7, on power plays.

Meanwhile Navy and Penn, with the latter making two fine goal-line stands, battled to a scoreless tie and Rutgers, intercepting a pass and recovering a fumble, beat its middle three rival, Lehigh, 13-0.

WEATHERMAN IS FAIR-HAIRED BOY

War Admiral and Seabiscuit Ready For Long Race Tuesday

Baltimore, Oct. 31 (AP) — The weatherman was the fair-haired boy today as the match race of the mighty, the showdown tomorrow between Seabiscuit and War Admiral, neared the zero hour of starting time on Pimlico's manicured mile and three-sixteenths of cushioned turf.

War Admiral, now a four-year-old, will take the track tomorrow for his 24th race in three years of competition. He can afford to be calm. From his 23 starts he has garnered 19 victories, and only once has he finished out of the money. The little brown son of Man O'War has earned $247,050 for owner Sam Riddle.

The 'Biscuit, a year older than War Admiral has run 83 races in a busy four years, and on the credit side of his ledger are: 31 victories, 12 seconds, 13 thirds. He has put $331,405 in the pockets of owner Charles S. Howard. Victory tomorrow would add $15,000 to the pot.

Despite their victories in the Best-known stake races, the paths of these two have never crossed on the track. Thrice have they met—almost; at Laurel, at Belmont Park, at Suffolk Downs. But each time one or the other was scratched before the event in which they had both been entered.

McGill and Montreal Nationals Only Two Undefeated Teams As Season Halfway Over

Redmen of McGill Have Won All Games But Nationals Tied Twice

ARGOS LOSE TO OTTAWA

Peterboro Orfuns Swamped By Power of Balmy Beach

(By Sydney Gruson Canadian Press Staff Writer)

One of the major developments in eastern football this season has been the rapid rise to prominence of Montreal Nationals, a new entry in the Ontario Union relying for the most part on stars who failed Montreal Indians in the Interprovincial Union.

For two seasons previous to this, when Indians finally were disbanded, they started out as potential champions of the Big Four. Loaded with such stars as Johnny Ferraro, Ernie Hempey, Pete Jotkus, Bill Davies and Dave Ryan, they fell swiftly and without good reason to Ottawa and Toronto.

There was talk of the stars being unable to agree. Yet most of them have moved to Nationals under Hoddy Foster and they are blazing a streak that stamps them as probable Union champions—and a bet for section honors. With only two weeks to play, they are one of the undefeated teams in the east.

Assured of Playoff

Nationals assured themselves of a place in the two-team O.R.F.U. playoff Saturday with their second tie of the season against Sarnia Imperials, 6-6. They should have won for they outplayed the faltering champions throughout and only heroic work by Hugh (Bummer) Stirling saved Imperials a lacing.

Apart from Nationals gaining a playoff spot, the major developments from the fourth week of play were:

McGill Redmen dethroned Queen's as Intercollegiate champions by defeating Ted Reeve's tricolor 9-1 at Kingston and University of Toronto moved into a second place tie with the wild Western Mustangs by beating them 8-7 in the final minutes of a thriller at Toronto.

Question Tangled

Ottawa tangled the question of superiority in the Big Four with a 15-13 victory over Argonauts, who had beaten them the previous week in Toronto, and Toronto Balmy Beach rocketed back into a contending position in the O.R.F.U. by drubbing Peterborough Orfuns 30-3 at Toronto. In the only game that meant nothing, Hamilton Tigers gave Montreal Cubs a 13-9 beating.

Nationals, who lead the O.R.F.U. with six points to four for Balmy and Sarnia, rushed and passed better than Imperials, losing the advantage by fumbling three times in their own territory. Early in the first quarter a bobble on the 10 allowed Stirling to kick a placement and after Ray Mullins tied the score in the second, two more fumbles led to two singles by Stirling.

Bench-Warmer Stars

But Mullins, a bench-warmer with Indians and a star from this season's start, smacked a second field goal between the goalposts from 27 yards on the first play of the fourth quarter, and it appeared Nationals would win despite themselves. But Stirling had the better of a punting duel with Jimmy Riddell and he scored the tying point near the end.

Twelve thousand fans, largest crowd in Ottawa's football history, watched a comedy of fumbles made thrilling by a swiftly-changing lead in the Argo-Rider clash that left them tied for the top with three wins and a loss apiece. The winning shot came in the fourth quarter when the giant Tiny Herman booted a placement field goal.

Line Work Gives Edge

For the second successive week Ottawa's Rocky Rocano was the kicking equal of Bob Isbister and Johnny Munro. Riders held the vaunted Argo end run in check with speed of their own and in the end it was an acknowledged superiority along the wingline that gave Riders victory.

A Queen's fumble in the third quarter, when the champions were behind three points broke up the battle against McGill, who ran their undefeated record to four straight. Jimmy Hall dribbled the fumbled ball from the 45 across the goal line for a converted touchdown.

It was a fumble by Western halves, with five minutes to play, that led to Toronto's victory. Mustangs had outplayed the Blues all the way and were coasting on a 7-3 lead when the halves—no one knew just who it was—fumbled a kick behind the line and Murray Scott fell on it. Mustangs marched back to the Toronto 32 in the final minutes but they gambled on a field goal when a punt would have tied the score.

Kick is Blocked

The charging Toronto line, desperate in the knowledge defeat meant elimination, blocked Alf Hurley's attempt.

Balmy Beach scored four last-quarter touchdowns to stop Peterborough's challenge. Ab Box was the star, completing nine of 11 passes for 193 yards. Three touchdowns followed directly from the great pitching. Montreal Cubs made 3 first down's to Hamilton's three, but fumbles and a blocked kick led to Tigers touchdowns and nullified Cubs' superior groundwork.

NO BARGAIN

Detroit Tigers, in an effort to strengthen for the 1939 baseball wars, are said to be after shortstop Buddy Travis, ABOVE, of Washington Senators. Travis, just a good average fielder, but a consistent over .300 hitter, would be a valuable acquisition for any club and about all Washington President Clark Griffith is asking for him is half the Detroit team, a few sections of the ball park and the hog dog concession.

COBOURG SQUAD TAKES GARRISON

Galloping Ghosts Out In Front Alone In League Race

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 31 (CP) — Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts along in front of the pack in the O.R.F.U. Intermediate Eastern Division today, leading Kingston Garrison squad by two points.

Ghosts grabbed up two loose balls here Saturday, converted them into touchdowns and went on to a 20-7 victory over the Limestone entry.

The soldiers were never in front at any time, trailing 7-0 at the end of the first quarter and 8-1 at half time. Another touchdown helped boost the score to 15-1 at three-quarter time.

Meickle scored the first touchdown, carrying the ball over from two yards out after Newton picked up a loose ball at midfield and carted it to Kingston's 10.

Jacobs accounted for the other when he fell on the ball behind the Garrison line after Brant had fumbled.

J. Lucas booted a placement in the fourth quarter for three more Cobourg points. A safety touch and five singles boosted the winners' total to 20.

Kingston's lone touchdown was registered in the fourth quarter. Hayes recovered a Cobourg fumble at midfield. Line plays moved the sticks and Gey then advanced the ball to Cobourg's 15. On the third play, Armishaw barged through for five points. The touchdown was converted.

CHALLENGER

Three times amateur badminton champion of Canada, Doug Grant, ABOVE, now of Winnipeg, has issued a challenge to Jack Purcell, of Toronto, for his world's professional title. Grant took the dominion crown in 1933, '34 and '36, but has been out of championship competition since winning two years ago. Because of the challenger's recent inactivity, Purcell said he did not think the time ripe for a match.

TRAINING CAMP NOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

Professional hockey's warm-up campaign is drawing to a close with the rapid approach of the schedule opening Thursday, the earliest start in history. More than ever, the clubs have stressed exhibition games in the October preparations and New York's Rangers and Americans will have met six times when they finish their western tour tonight at Winnipeg.

The grind hasn't been exactly kind to the Americans. They have lost all five games thus far to their intra-city rivals and when they accepted the fifth straight beating Saturday night at Winnipeg, 5-3, they had to play without defenceman Joe Jerwa and Al Murray and forwards Lorne Carr and Red Beattie. Jerwa and Carr were out with injuries, while Murray and Beattie were suffering from colds.

Earl Robertson did a tidy job in the losers' nets, despite eight stitches in the neck which prevented him from dropping to the ice to save. Again the Ranger balance was to the fore, as the five goals were spread all through the lineup.

Americans head south after tonight's contest to help the world champion Black Hawks open the schedule Thursday at Chicago. Rangers last club to start, will play an exhibition the same night at St. Paul with that city's American Association team. Then they have to bide their time until November 13, when they meet the Red Wings at Detroit

Montreal Canadiens, generally expected to be near the top of the league from the start, are going to have to learn all over again the managers' axiom; "You can't win a game in the penalty box". In a 2-1 victory over New Haven the other night, the Habitants got into a punching bee. And when they tangled with Springfield Indians, another International - American outfit, last night at Shawinigan Falls, Que., there were three fist fights. Canadiens won the game 7-1.

Toronto Maple Leafs and their Syracuse Farm Club, breaking up into teams of Blues and Whites again Saturday at Galt, Ont., gave the fans a few minutes more than the regulation 60 after learning that they wouldn't have to travel to Syracuse for an exhibition last night.

As Whites defeated Blues 5-3, Red Horner and Bingo Kampman mixed a couple of times in shoving matches that earned them both penalties. But the Leaf defencemen were trying to show their aggressiveness, rather than creating an opening for talk about ill-feeling. Pep Kelly of Whites and Harvey Jackson of Blues got a goal and an assist each.

The same teams will put on an exhibition for Leafs' fans at Toronto tonight and end their preparations for the opening with another at Midland, Ont., tomorrow. Toronto opens at home against Boston Bruins Thursday.

Bruins defeated Boston's amateur Olympics 7-2 and the showing of Pat McReavy, Roy Conacher and Harry Frost, all just up from amateur ranks, indicated they will start the season in the Big Time.

Detroit Red Wings took a two-one lead in games over their Int-'Am Farm Club, Pittsburgh, with a 4-3 victory at Detroit last night. The teams finish the four-game series tomorrow night at Pittsburgh.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

The "boogey men" will get you if you don't watch out—for tonight sees youths' grotesque make-ups reign supreme on the eve of All Saints Day; Hallowe'en. Door bells will be rung, windows will be tapped and fence posts may be found high in the extremities of a nearby telephone pole. In the old days when 'out houses' were all the style the privy was one of the main targets of attack from most any direction or angle, but things have changed since the horseless carriage supplanted old dobbin and today more refined mischief has been devised by the youth of the mechanical age. Long years ago pagan people celebrated All-Saints' Day in honor of the good and evil spirits, while today spirits of a much different hue and category are the centre of Hallowe'en frivolities, however. Sometimes the present-day spirit results in subsequent difficulties, however.

But away with this nonsense because Saturday's football game, between the Panthers and "Flyers," looked like the morning after a real old time Hallowe'en celebration. It may have been somewhat early, but the Flyers must have thought they saw 'ghosts' during the early stages of Saturday's struggle, as the inspired Panthers ran the "Airmen" ragged, but once the Flyers applied the pressure and injected their sturdy reserve strength, the show was all over. As is the case with a young and inexperienced squad, the Panthers launched an early attack and literally swept the Flyers off their feet, but once again condition and experience took its toll, as the "Airmen" bided their time and subsequently "steam-rollered" over the later tired Panthers and behind the fine punting of Laurie Gibson, who kicked better for the Airport than his predecessors.

Saturday's game was undoubtedly the roughest of the current season, feelings striking a high pitch from the time of the kick-off. Strange as it may seem the Panthers had not received a single penalty while playing Garrison or Cobourg, as a matter of fact there was only one minor penalty registered in all games played by the Panthers against Cobourg or the Garrison, but once the Flyers appear on the scene, penalties, arguments and subsequently fights invariably result. It's high time the hatchet was buried for a change. We cannot pass without mention of Johnnie Cooper's sterling 65 yard run for a touchdown. It was not only a treat, but superbly executed. Incidentally the return of Morgan, Rigby and McCreary instilled early inspirations into the youthful Panthers, but although the heart may be willing, when the body and legs can no longer function under the strain—it's curtains. To us Shaw was the big thorn in the Panthers' side, while Gibson booted superbly, after a month's workout with Ottawa. Semple and Davidson were through too often for the good of the Panthers.

A few statistics — Belleville attempted 12 forwards completing four, two of which resulted in over 100 yards gain. The Flyers tried only four, completing but one, but they intercepted two of the local attempts. Speaking of rough play the Flyers were penalized seven times to Belleville's four and lost twice as many yards through this medium, which should prove something one way or the other. Why Blaker was banished for protecting himself still was mystifying some of the spectators, however.

That long-awaited matched race between Seabiscuit and War Admiral appears at last to be a reality; tomorrow is to be the big moment. Over the historic track at Pimlico Maryland these two thoroughbreds will race for a $15,000.00 purse. The distance is one mile and three-sixteenths and each horse is to carry 120 pounds. It is expected that nearly a million dollars will be wagered on the result, that is taking in all betting across the continent. However, if the track isn't considered fast by a neutral referee at 8.30 a.m. tomorrow the race will be postponed. Of course the son of that famous piece of horse flesh, Man 'O War, will doubtless be the favourite as War Admiral has only lost one race this year and that on a slow muddy track. Seabiscuit has only won five of ten starts this season, but on the other hand the latter horse has larger purse earnings.

The Pimlico track record is held by Pimpoon who covered the race distance in 1.54 4-5 seconds last May. If the horses run a dead heat all bets will be declared off even if War Admiral is considered a two to one favourite, so we'll have to string along with the favourite and call War Admiral to win.

Fred Dufton's Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" ran true to form beating the Kingston Garrison 20 to 7 over the week end on the home gridiron. Using their excessive speed the "Ghosts" ran around their heavier Garrison far this season. The Montreal Nathe McGill Redmen, the "Galloping Ghosts" are undefeated thus this season. The Montreal Nationals have not been defeated, but they have two tie games.

For the information of some anxious readers—the Alymer ball club won the intermediate "B" championship of the O.B.A. this year defeating Tilbury in the finals. Imagine playing baseball in Canada as late as November. Who says California has anything on this fair province of ours?

How the mighty have fallen. One week ago it was all milk and honey in the camp of the Peterboro Orfuns, where rejoicing was without bounds. Wonder what the Liftlock City squad thought of that 30 to 3 shellacking on Saturday?

There was no mention of Johnnie Lalonde's name when Les Canadiens clashed with the Springfield Indians over the week end. We hear Lalonde could have placed with the Quebec Aces, another Canadien farm, but it is expected the 'long fellow' will return to the R.C.A.F.

During the illness of Kemal Ataturk, president-dictator of Turkey, the reins of government in that country are held in the hands of Abdul Halik Renda, ABOVE, president of the national assembly, who called a council of ministers recently to discuss "constitutional problems," during which he pointed out that the constitution of Turkey provides that the president of the national assembly shall assume the interim presidency in the event of resignation, prolonged illness or death of the president. President-Dictator Ataturk is still in a critical condition.

PORRIDGE DOES IT

The Scots are celebrated as a sturdy race. They believe in quantity as well as quality in the matter of raising families. Take, for example, the Bell family in the small village of Whitehill, in Aberdeenshire.

There are six sons and six daughters in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander J. Bell. We have no date on the daughters, but we have no doubt they are bonnie specimens of womanhood. Every one of the six sons is six feet in height or over. His average weight is 217 pounds. As a tug-of-war team, they have never been beaten in Scotland in seven years. They go to Highland games and toss cabers about as if they were walking-sticks. They fling heavy weights, hurl hammers and they wrestle. The heftiest member of the family is the all-in champion of Great Britain.

And what do these fellows live on? Mainly porridge, oatcakes and milk. They have these items at every meal, with occasional scrambled eggs, fish and plenty of vegetables, not much meat and seldom tea.

These are the staples of Scottish fare. Many of the present generation have become "Englified" and taken to the bacon and egg breakfast. But there is nothing like oatmeal and milk for fitness, for building up strong bodies. Scottish country doctors say that in a lifetime of practice among those who stick to the fare that made Scotsmen noted the world over for their strength they never had to treat a family for digestive trouble. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

When Capt. Angus Walters, of the Bluenose, most famous of fishing schooners, gets married he will be through with sailing...or so the bride-to-be, pretty 22-year-old Mildred Butler, ABOVE, says. She doesn't want Capt. Walters to take his famous craft around Bermuda in a $5,000 challenge race with the Gertrude L. Thebaud, perennial Bluenose rival.

Theatres

AT THE McCARTHY

"Yellow Cargo"

Packed with thrills and generously sprinkled with laughs "Yellow Cargo" now on the screen at the McCarthy theatre, with Conrad Nagel and Eleanor Hunt and a cast of favorites in fine support is an outstanding action drama and a feature production that is entirely different in story form than has ever been presented to theatregoers before.

It is the story of a gang of smugglers off the California coast whose specialty is bringing Chinese past the customs barrier at so much per head. The traffic is very profitable and the various ruses employed by the gang are highly successful in keeping the authorities guessing until Conrad Nagel, in the role of Alan O'Connor, special government agent, is assigned to the case. Things begin to happen when O'Connor is mistaken for an actor out of a job and is introduced to Al Perrelli, played by Jack LaRue, the head of an independent movie company, for he finds that Perrelli is also leader of the gang he is after.

Eleanor Hunt, as Bobbie Reynolds, a girl reporter, who falls in love with O'Connor, supplies the introduction to Perrelli in the belief that she will get the sleuth an "extra" job. Instead she comes into contact with Perrelli's pretty blonde secretary and telephone girl, played by Claudia Dell, and for a time both are outwitted by her.

The comedy element is supplied by Vince Barnett, in the character of "bulb" Callahan, a bungling news photographer, who is continually getting into hot water by his bonehead actions and who finally succeeds in getting both Bobbie and himself in the clutches of the gang from which O'Connor perilously rescues them, only to find that he has been in love with Bobbie all along. Before he discovers this, however, there are plenty of fast moving scenes that will thrill every patron, showing how clever criminals are able at times to elude pursuers and throw them of the track. An excellent array of featurette subjects, precede "Yellow Cargo" at each performance and the entire two hour performance is highly entertaining and well worth seeing screen entertainment, that the entire family will enjoy.

"Holiday"

Coming on Wednesday, the most exciting romance of the year will commence at the McCarthy theatre when Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant will be seen in Columbia's outstanding screen production of 1938 "Holiday" with a splendid supporting cast including Doris Nolan, Lew Ayres, Binnie Barnes, Edward Everett Horton and Henry Kolker. This is a four star hit that every lover of excellent entertainment should plan now to see. You will never forget Katharine Hepburn's acting in "Holiday."

AT THE BELLE

"Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel"

One of the most popular characters in modern fiction is brought to the screen again in "The Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel," a new London film which will be shown in Belleville at the Belle Theatre beginning Tuesday.

Twenty years ago Baroness Orczy was asked by a famous publishing house to supply a thrilling serial story in rather a hurry. Within fifteen minutes of receiving the commission she had formulated mentally the story of "The Scarlet Pimpernel." Originally the setting was to be in Russia, but for diplomatic reasons Baroness Orczy altered it to the French Revolution. Since its first publication the story has been a best-seller in almost every language.

Three or four years ago Alexander Korda made a film of it, with Leslie Howard as the central character. It was a big success, in fact one of the biggest box-office successes ever made in this country.

"The Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel" is the sequel, interesting not merely because of the subject but because it serves to introduce to the public a brilliant young British actor, Barry K. Barnes. Acclaimed by the critics as the most promising star discovery of recent years, Barnes is now under long term contract to London Films. Mr. Korda, who has discovered and groomed more stars than any other British producer, is confident that Barnes will develop into a star of the highest magnitude.

"The Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel," also marks another upward step in the career of Sophie Stewart, one of Scotland's most beautiful contributions to the screen. Other well-known members of the cast include Margaretta Scott, Francis Lister, Anthony Bushell, James Mason and Henry Oscar.

Laurel and Hardy Return

In "Block-Heads," new Hal Roach M-G-M comedy starring Laurel and Hardy announced as the added feature offering at the Belle beginning Tuesday, the comedians find themselves in a swank, modern apartment house. The dignity of the surroundings, however, offers no bar to their continuous merriment. In fact the austerity of the backgrounds makes their famous gags all the more ludicrous, and the current comedy contains an abundance of side-splitting incidents.

In addition to the active imaginations of Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, who can endow the most trivial of incidents with laugh-compelling qualities either in real life or before the camera, they have been assisted in the new venture by a group of Hollywood's best known comedy creators.

The direction was in the capable hands of John G. Blystone, associated with Laurel and Hardy in previous pictures. The supporting cast includes Patricia Ellis, Minna Gombell, Billy Gilbert, one of filmdom's outstanding dialect comedians, and James Finlayson.

All of the studio's resources for the making of entertaining and stimulating comedies were placed at the disposal of the Laurel and Hardy unit. The result is a greater proportion of laugh-provoking sequences in "Block-Heads" than has been found in any recent comedy.

The Belle News of the Day will be presented on the same program.

Gala Hallowe'en Show

A gala Hallowe'en show that will delight every member of the family has been assembled for presentation at the Belle tonight only.

"Room Service," sensational Broadway comedy hit which ran nearly a year and a half, comes to the screen as an uproarious vehicle for the Marx Brothers, and brings the famous funmakers back to the screen in what is said to be their funniest vehicle to date. The cast includes Lucille Ball, Ann Miller, Frank Albertson and six members of the original stage cast.

"Smashing The Rackets"

A most revealing story of underworld intrigue and combat racketeering is presented in the added feature, "Smashing The Rackets" featuring Chester Morris, Frances Mercer, Rita Johnson and Bruce Cabot in the four leading roles. "Smashing The Rackets" deals with a sensational racket purge in a large city. A dual romance is threaded throughout the dramatic plot. "Moments of Charm", a beautiful revue in technicolor will be presented on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"ISLAND IN THE SKY"

Dancing in the clouds one minute—knee deep in a murder case the next!

Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen plan their honeymoon in Manhattan's highest hi - de - ho spot, only to find what they think is "just another routine murder case" is just about the most exciting mystery of the year.

"Island In The Sky" brings these screen sweethearts together again 70 stories above Broadway. 70 times more excitement, thrills, unexpected laughs and romantic romance than you ever could imagine pack this new 20th Century-Fox hit, now playing at the Capitol Theatre as hit No. 1.

When Assistant District Attorney Michael Whalen announces his engagement to secretary Gloria Stuart at the "Island In The Sky" night club, Paul Hurst marches in with news of a new murder which knocks the couple's plans for a honeymoon into indefinite postponement.

It's just an open-and-shut case to Michael, for young Robert Kellard, suspected of the crime, refuses to talk. His subsequent sentence to the chair almost breaks the spirit of his sweetheart, June Storey, whose courage is maintained only by Gloria's determination to risk Michael's reputation in some sleuthing of her own.

Gloria suspects there is more behind Michael's simple solution, and she tracks down Paul Kelly in the State prison to prove her point.

We'll stop here for suspense....

"A DESPERATE ADVENTURE"

Swiftly gay and tenderly romantic, "A Desperate Adventure," is delightful entertainment, enhanced by a capable cast, now showing at the Capitol as hit No. 2.

Ramon Novarro is starred in this dramatic comedy. The dark-haired Novarro has two romantic leads in "A Desperate Adventure," the lovely and blonde Marian Marsh, and the equally lovely and brunette Margaret Tallichet.

The story is excellent, and speeds along gaily. Novarro is seen as a Parisian artist, who has secretly painted a revealing portrait of the girl of his dreams. He meets his dream in real flesh in the person of Marian Marsh, an American heiress, at an artists ball.

He persuades Miss Marsh to visit his apartment to see his painting, but discovers that his three pals have found the masterpiece and decided to take it of their own will to a gallery exhibition.

The daring masterpiece wins fame for Novarro overnight. But he wants his painting back, and doubly so because it gives the wrong impression about his newly found love. Complications arise when he finds the painting has been sold to an American group and is being shipped immediately to America.

A gay comedy of errors follows, as action swings aboard the ship. Novarro's own worries are increased when Margaret Tallichet, playing the sister of Miss Marsh, falls in love with Ramon, and he finds himself attracted in return.

A refreshing series of comic events straightens matters out, and reveals to Ramon that perhaps his true love is not that portrayed on the canvas.

SOME LISTENERS

Church services here and elsewhere were broken up by intruders who screamed the world was coming to an end. . . .

"Is it true? Were 40 killed in New Jersey? Or 7,000 in New York? Are men from Mars attacking New York with deadly other-world weapons and gas? Was the world coming to an end?"

There wasn't a Martian in sight and the hysteria subsided almost as quickly as it started. But listeners viewed the broadcast with mixed feelings, principally that they had been untowardly frightened and duped.

Broadcast of "War of the World".

The broadcast was an adaptation of H. G. Wells' imaginative "War of the World", further dramatized and enacted by Orson Welles, the 23-year-old Broadway theatrical prodigy. Welles Americanized the locale and situations.

Four times during the program, the Columbia Broadcasting System pointed out, the announcer stressed that the story was nothing but fiction.

This comforting reiteration either escaped many of those who tuned in for the full program or was lost entirely to part-time listeners or late tuners-in, for it failed to prevent a hysteria unknown to the United States since the Great War.

Dash Out With Belongings.

Many of those who were listening to Charlie McCarthy's foolishness on the National Broadcasting Company network doubtless were caught up in the furore of neighbors dashing out of their homes, some with personal belongings, and heading for havens against invasion from an unknown foe armed with strange death dealing implements from other and presumably hostile planet.

Welles, who startled the theatre ocularly last season by portraying a Caesar in modern dress with Fascist leanings, was overcome by the unbelievable reaction to his presentation of the Wells thriller-turned-horrifier.

In a statement expressing "deep regret" over apprehension the broadcast caused among radio listeners, Welles said:

"Heard In Fragments"

"Far from expecting the radio audience to take the program as fact rather than a fictional presentation, we feared that the classic H. G. Wells story, which has served as inspiration for so many moving pictures, radio serials and even comic strips, might appear too old-fashioned for modern consumption.

"We can only suppose that the special nature of the radio, which is often heard in fragments, or in parts disconnected from the whole, has led to this misunderstanding," the actor-dramatist added.

His success as a terrifier was assured by last night's performance which started off with the brief preface about its being fiction. The Mercury Theatre of the Air program started out in routine fashion with announcements and a few bars of music.

Suddenly . . . "we interrupt this program of dance music to bring you a special bulletin. 20 minutes before eight, Professor Farrell of the Mt. Jennings Observatory, Chicago, Illinois, reports several explosions of the incandescent gas occurring at regular intervals on the Planet Mars."

Build-up of Martian Drama.

This was a buildup for a dramatization that eventually had the Martians landing in meteor cars with the shock of an earthquake in the vicinity of Grovers Mills (fictitious locale), New Jersey . . . a 30-second pause for studio music . . . then the octopus-like Martians using the dread "heat-ray" and then, by telephone from the scene, the report of 40 persons dead there . . . the Martians eventually succumbed to germs that the worldlings are immune to.

Cautionary Announcements.

The four cautionary announcements that it was fiction were lost and forgotten in the realism of the portrayal, in its faithful similarity to the style of the "newscasters", and in the realistic manner of breaking into regular programs with broadcasts of hot news.

Columbia declared afterward it had no intention of misleading listeners "and when it became evident that part of the audience had been disturbed by the performance, five announcements were made over the network later in the evening to reassure those listeners."

Wells' Statement.

London, Oct. 31 (CP)—H. G. Wells whose "War of the Worlds" furnished the basis of the broadcast which spread alarm in the United States last night, said today it was "implicit" in the agreement for selling the radio rights that any broadcast would clearly "be fiction and not news".

The novelist added he gave no permission whatever for alterations which might lead to the belief the broadcast material was real news.

News of the panic caused by the American broadcast recalled a similar incident in this country in 1926.

In January of that year the British Broadcasting Company, as it was then called, put on the air a program in which Rev. Ronald Knox, speaking in Edinburgh, told an imaginary story under the title "Broadcasting Barricades".

Bombing Fiction.

In it he described how the House of Commons had been bombed and the National Gallery had been laid in ruins by a mob of unemployed. Listeners who had not heard the preliminary announcement, took it seriously. The "news" spread swiftly and newspaper offices were bombarded with telephone calls. The B.B.C. issued a statement of regret.

During the recent European crisis B.B.C. cancelled a scheduled realistic broadcast of an air-raid test and black-out in Paddington, fearing it might be misunderstood in the situation then prevailing.

Marmora

Marmora—Mrs. G. Deacon left this week to spend the winter months in St. Petersburgh, Florida.

Mrs. P. McCann who has spent the past few months with Misses Mary and Hilda Hughes has returned to her home in Tweed.

The regular monthly meeting of the C.W.L. was held in Deloro Hall on Thursday evening, with a large attendance. Miss Gertrude Moloney presided. The meeting opened with prayer and the League hymn, after which letters were read by the secretary, Miss Mary Hughes, from Missions in Western Canada. It was decided to do something for those missions, who are sorely in need of assistance. Mrs. E. Shannon gave a piano solo. Mrs. J. A. McNally then tendered a vocal solo, accompanied by Mrs. E. Shannon at the piano. Current events were ably given by Miss Florence Auger, after which members discussed plans for the coming bazaar. Rev. Father Farrell addressed the meeting and commended the League on its activities in the parish. Euchre and bridge were then enjoyed for an hour, the bridge prize going to Mrs. L. P. Hughes and the euchre prize to Mrs. Gordon Doyle. A delicious lunch was served by the Deloro ladies and the meeting adojurned.

Mr. Stanley Pearce left on Wednesday to spend the winter in Florida.

Mrs. K. Yaschuk visited friends in Toronto this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cuddy and family have moved into the residence on Forsythe Street belonging to the estate of the late Mrs. John Terrion.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Haacke took a motor trip last week to Port Huron and points in Western Ontario.

Ewart M. Haacke who secured his senior matriculation with honors at Marmora High School this year has been awarded the McDowell Scholarship in Physics at Queen's University.

A clinic for the examination of the chest and lungs will be conducted in Marmora under the direction of the Department of Health in November.

St. Andrew's Young People's Association held a short meeting in the church on Tuesday evening to make plans for organizing for the coming year. As the attendance was small, the officers were not elected. Misses Miriam Nobes and Dorothy Henry were appointed to have charge of the next meeting.

Ross Varty of Campbellford passed away as he reached Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, on Saturday. The late Mr. Varty was a war veteran and had been in a serious condition for some time as a result of wounds sustained overseas. He was a former resident of Marmora, and a brother of Mr. Stewart Varty. The funeral was held in Campbellford on Monday.

With 12,500 officers at present, the British army wants only 600 news ones in the next year to keep it up to strength.

In three weeks more than 4,000 men applied for admission to the British Royal Air Force as pilots or other positions.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP)—Base metal shares were inclined to heaviness today on the Toronto Exchange but other groups maintained a firm to strong tone and the western oils staged quite a little flurry on the news about the successful drilling on the Okalta territory. Trading slowed down and fewer than 600,000 shares changed hands in the session, a sharp decline from last week's average.

Aside from a flurry in western oils, stimulated by a new well on Okalta property, Toronto Stock Exchange was sluggish today in the early trading.

Lower London metal prices were a drag on base metals and all the leaders, Smelters, Nickel and Hudson Bay lost ground.

Changes in the gold group were limited to a few cents. Ronda Gold Mines shares appeared on the board for the first time today, selling around 23 cents. Listing covers the 3,267,016 issued shares.

Steel, food and utilities were firm to strong and other industrial groups were mainly unchanged.

Okalta, Anglo-Canadian, Home, Calgary-Edmonton, East Crest. Highwood and Pacalta were all strong spots in western oils.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, Oct. 31 (AP)—Quiet buying of industrial stocks offset selling of rails in today's market.

Railway issues, down as much as two points at the start, soon steadied and, near the final hour, most had reduced losses to inconsequential amounts. Dealings were comparatively slow, transfers being at the rate of approximately 1,200,000 shares.

Selected steels, aircrafts, rubbers, coppers and specialties held gains running to a point or so.

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP)—Hog prices move higher at three markets today with other points reporting steady prices. Brantford, Chatham and Hull gained 10 to 25 cents.

Liveweights: Brantford $7.50; Chatham $7.50; Hull $7.40; Peterborough $7.40.

Dressedweights: Chatham $10; Hull $10.15; London $9.75: Stratford $9.75; Peterborough $9.85.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

The action of the market in recent weeks has been difficult to explain. During the war scare, many people sold their stocks at any price irrespective of value, and when the crisis passed, the rebound was a natural phenomenon. The odd thing, however, is that despite the sensational rise in the short space of a month in many sections of the list, the public has hesitated to come in, which explains the general dullness.

The question therefore arises as to who were the purchasers of the large blocks of stocks that have changed hands. From what can be learned, it would appear as if institutional buying has been the chief factor in the demand and a good deal of buying has emanated from such financial centres as London and New York.

The average trader is at a loss to know what to buy. Some quarters favor the newsprint stocks, some the building securities and others the equipment issues. About the best advice that can be offered is for a prospective purchaser to analyze the situation surrounding the particular stock he has in mind and follow his opinion accordingly. Some attractive situations exist that offer good appreciation possibilities for the investor with a little patience, but it requires a little study to find these "sleepers."

Local Trader Has Been in the Big Money in New York

While making our rounds of the Street the writer learns that a well-known stock market operator has been doing well by himself trading on the New York Stock market. The party in question swings a substantial line of stocks and can read a tape as well as Durant could in other days. Before long, it is just possible that his influence will be felt in the Canadian markets.

ELMER PARTRIDGE HELD FOR THEFT

Percy Township Farmhand Arrested When Police Surround House

Culminating an extensive police probe which has been conducted for some weeks, Elmer Partridge, 20-year-old Percy Township farmer, residing in Northumberland County, was arrested by Provincial Police on Sunday charged with multiple robberies which had baffled police for some weeks. Today Partridge appeared before Magistate E. J. Butler K.C. in police court and was remanded on a charge of breaking, entering and theft of goods amounting to over $200.00, the property of F. N. Marett and Company, Marmora. The accused was not asked to plead, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. requesting a week's enlargement.

Provincial Police swept down upon the home of Partridge yesterday following investigations looking into robberies at Roseneath, Hastings, Marmora, Westwood, Trenton and other district centres. The robberies included the theft of clothes, garage accessories, wearing apparel and general merchandise, much of which the Provincial Police claim they recovered in Partridge's garage yesterday.

Authorities were in pursuit of the owner of an old model T Ford automobile seen in the vicinity of several break-ins of late. Late Sunday Sergeant H. E. Thompson, Constables W. McBrien and Mennie of the O.P.P., Chief Gray of Marmora and Sergeant Walter Probert of the Trenton police, surrounded Partridge's residence later placed him under arrest. Partridge was only charged with the Marett robbery today, but subsequent multiple charges will be preferred, Sergeant Thompson stated.

"Fortunately we recovered much of the goods stolen, particularly the automobile accessories and wearing apparel. Partridge's old car was most modern motor car equipment, heater, fog lights and all of the most modern moto car equipment which we believe to have been stolen," stated Constable McBrien today. Partridge was remanded in custody.

POLICE ISSUE NOTE OF WARNING

Wilful Destruction of Property On Hallowe'en Not Allowed

Police today issued a note of warning against the destruction of property tonight during the annual Hallowe'en activities. His Worship Mayor Bone convened with Chief Kidd over the week-end following which the warning was issued.

"We do not mind children having a good time and plenty of fun, but the wilful destruction of private and personal property will not go unpunished, if the guilty culprits are apprehended. For the past few years no serious damage has been reported in Belleville," revealed Chief Kidd today as he stated that the local police force would be augmented by special constables, who would patrol the city streets in an effort to preserve law and order.

Mischievous persons have been prone to damage city property in years past, this along with other acts of vandalism will be carefully watched tonight. "Hallowe'en comes but once a year, but that is no reason why private citizens should be molested and their holdings damaged," police authorities stated as they reiterated warnings against such practices.

Perhaps citizens would be well advised to secure all articles that may readily be moved. "Just as a precaution front door mats, flower pots on the verandah and any small fixtures that are easily removed, should be removed to a place of safety so as not to tempt the children," suggested police officials this afternoon.

A constant police vigil, with special constables patrolling the city streets in police cruisers will be maintained until late hours tonight in an effort to keep the destruction of property to the minimum.

GOV'T STOPS HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION WORK

Work at Gibson's Crossing, just east of the city, and other Provincial Department of Highways construction projects throughout the province will be discontinued today for the season, it was announced today.

The highways department has decided to quit all work for this year owing to the approach of winter as costs increase and there is always the danger of frost affecting the work.

The delay until next Spring will give highway engineers an opportunity to study the important matter of traffic congestion at various points, and enable them to arrive at a definite conclusion before the resumption of work, it was added.

Projects in North Hastings as well as that at the Carrying Place will continue for a few days to enable construction companies to "clean up" work for the season.

Egg Prices Ease, Butter Firmer

Toronto, Oct. 31—Butter firmed and eggs eased on the Toronto produce market during Saturday's abbreviated session.

The Toronto egg market was still rather sloppy in the past week's final session. Dealers in graded eggs report that grade A-large was in comparatively good demand and worth 39c, but that in some instances shippers who sent mixed loads, including A-mediums would find that they could not get more than 38c for the A-large.

Grade A-medium eggs dropped from 35c to 34c a dozen and were said to be hard to sell, accumulating both in Toronto and at Montreal. Pullet eggs, a Toronto broker pointed out, have been a much better buy at 28c, although the now easing A-mediums are reducing the advantage. There is no scarcity of pullet eggs currently in Toronto, a fair quantity of receipts being enough to fill demand.

The "out-of-storage" movement of eggs is reported by a reliable authority to have been very slow. He believes that a shortage of storage eggs which has existed as a result of high prices, last spring, may become erased as a factor in egg prices before long. Taking into account that it is usual to start the distribution of storage egg holdings in September and have the movement well under way by this time of year, coupled with the fact that demand this season has been poor, the apparent shortage in storage holdings is gradually becoming less. Dealers point out however, that they are not selling fresh eggs in the same volume, business in fresh being more local and smaller.

No definite price change was made for Ontario No. 1 creamery butter solids in Saturday's short session at Toronto. A slightly better tone at Montreal strengthened Toronto, where solids were firm at 22 1-2c asked dealers being reluctant to offer butter at Friday's range. Receipts of current Ontario make continued light. Butter speculators are not offering any of their holdings yet but wholesalers are selling some of their storage butter to the retail trade, cut into prints. The price of prints was reported unchanged.

Produce Prices steady at Montreal

Montreal, Oct. 31 (CP)—Prices for butter cheese and eggs ruled steady on Montreal open produce markets last week while according to Dominion Department of Agriculture reports while potatoes firmed.

Creamery butter prints to retailers sold for 23 1-2c to 24 1-4c a pound and creamery solids for 23c to 23 3-4c.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 39c to 40c a dozen for A-large 36c to 37c for A-medium 29c to 30c for A-pullets, 26c to 27 for B-large, and 20 1-2c to 21c for C. Receipts: 7,864 cases, including 3,238 for export.

Two Conditions Detrimental to Scales

There are two conditions on a kill floor that are very detrimental to a scales. They are the wide variation in temperature, and the high moisture content of the atmosphere.

In order to counteract these conditions an electric light was installed in the scales which burns continually and keeps the scale ready for service at all times.

Spirit of the Masquerade Will be Abroad Tonight

Witches And Ghostly Forms Will Dominate The City's Streets

CHILDREN'S NIGHT

Tonight is All-Hallowe'en. Tonight ghostly hobgoblins, and witches astride brooms will emanate from dark corners. Black cats, eyes alight with a yellow baleful glare will peer from the least suspected places. Eerie sounds will ring out in the night air, rattling on the window panes of innocent householders, And groups of grostesquely made-up clowns, witches, negroes and other products of the Hallowe'en imagination of small children will converge on householders where they will demand payment.

There will be strange doings abroad. The wan moonlight will cover dark ghostly figures that will flit from place to place carrying objects to be placed far from their original positions. The morning sun will in all likelihood see strange sights, as more or less innocent pranksters view their handiwork of the night before.

"It promises to be one of the best Hallowe'en's yet, if the volume of business done in the last two days is any criterion", a department store manager stated this morning. "The children appear to be more in the seasonal mood than ever before, and they are favoring the comic strip characters rather than the proverbial witch and hobgoblin masks."

Socially, the evening should be a success. A number of parties have been planned with the popular masquerade holding a prominent position. Houeholders generally have been stocking up with candies and other goodies in preparation for the children's invasion that inevitably takes place on Hallowe'en.

ONE SENTENCED TWO COMMITTED

Fred Politick Given Six Months On Conviction of Attempted Break-in

Fred Politick, 21 of Montreal, was sentenced to serve six months determinate, with an indeterminate sentence of one year in the Ontario Reformatory after being convicted of attempting to break and enter the premises of McIntosh Bros. Front St. Tony Kulczycki and Leon Bergeron, alleged companions of Politick at the time of their arrest, elected trial by judge and jury when arraigned before His Worship Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. in today's local police court.

P. C. Evans told of finding Politick and Kulczycki crouched down behind the skylight on the roof of McIntosh Bros. sttore last Sunday. "I arrested Bergeron previously, he was hiding behind a pole and was the look out, I thought," stated Constable Evans, as P. C. Arnott corroborated this evidence adding that one of the men had a flashlight in his pocket, when apprehended.

"We were only seeking a place to doze off while waiting for an out-going freight train. Why the police kicked us in the leg to awaken us," pleaded Politick. Kulczycki gave evidence on his friend's behalf stating—"We had no tools nor any intentions of breaking in.' '

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan. K.C., introduced Politick's record of previous convictions, which included terms for robbery and carrying burglar tools. Mr. Donnan also read Kulczycki's list of convictions which totalled eleven.

"I don't credit any of these stories. I believe they were on that roof for the express purpose of robbery. I find Politick guilty and sentence him to not less than six months nor more than one year in the Ontario Reformatory," concluded His Worship.

Kulczycki and Bergeron, who were alleged companions of Politick police say, elected trial by judge and jury at the next court of competent criminal jurisdiction. The charges were of the indictable nature.

PARISH MARKS FEAST DAY OF CHRIST THE KING

Special Ceremonies Sunday In Church of St. Michael The Archangel

PASTOR'S ADDRESS

The Feast of Christ the King was commemorated in the Parish of St. Michael the Archangel by special ceremonies yesterday. The Blessed Sacrament was exposed throughout the day and at seven-thirty in the evening there was a procession in the church with the Blessed Sacrament followed by the Benediction. The Holy Name Society, the Children of Mary, the Holy Angels' Sodality participated, with the banners of the various societies being carried by the presidents. The Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus provided the Guard of Honour.

Children's Choir

The Children's Choir under the direction of Sister Mary Joan of Arc sang very beautifully during the service. Monsignor Nicholson, assisted by Rev. G. T. Martin and Rev. C. E. Baker officiated at Solemn Benediction.

The sermon for the occasion was given by Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G. The speaker stated that the world-wide festival of Christ the King has been established to make men recognize in private and in public life, the supreme authority of Jesus Christ, for only then will society receive the great blessings of real liberty, of peace and of harmony.

Royalty may be founded on three titles: hereditary succession; just conquest and the free choice of the people. By all these three titles Jesus is our King. He is our King by right of birth, inasmuch as He is the Man-God, by reason of His personal union with the Godhead. He is the King of heaven and earth. He created them. He tells us that all power is given Him in heaven and on earth. He is King by right of conquest since the apostle assures us "He hath delivered us from the powers of darkness." Finally He is our King from the choice we made of Him in baptism and by the fidelity we then promised to Him, to renounce His enemies, the world, the flesh and the devil.

This promise we have renewed over and over, that faithful to it, we may one day be deemed fit to share in the eternal glory of Him at whose Name every knee bends in Heaven, on earth and under the earth.

"To the King of Ages, immortal and invisible, the only God, be honor and glory for ever and ever. Amen."

Born a King

At His birth the Eternal Father sent an army of celestial spirits to greet their Lord and Master in His human nature as we read in St. Luke: 'Suddenly there was with the angels, a multitude of the Heavenly Army, praising God and saying 'Glory to God in the Highest.' The shepherds gave Him of their flocks, the Magi offered Him costly and appropriate gifts, gold, frankincense and myrrh. A strange new star shone in the Eastern sky telling the Gentiles to do Him homage. He was born of an earthly mother but His mother remained a virgin. We recite in our Apostles' Creed "conceived of the Holy Ghost and born of the Virgin Mary."

His Kingdom

From the King we may pass on to consider His kingdom which is His Church. Like Himself it is a sign set up for the rise and fall of many but on the other hand, remarks the royal Psalmist, "The desire of wicked shall perish for there shall be no wisdom, there shall be no prudence, there shall be no counsel against God." I am with you all days even unto the consummation of the world. The stone which the builders reject the same shall become the head of the corner and whosoever shall fall on that stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall it shall grind to powder. Go therefore and teach ye all nations, all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

His Supreme Authority

Truly in all these things Jesus acted like a King, displaying supreme authority, supreme wisdom, supreme power. During His mortal life He exerted His divine power and astonished the whole world by His miracles. He put His boundless power at our disposal. "Ask and you shall receive, seek and you shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you." He spoke like one having authority and distributerd His largesse on every side. The dead arose, the lame walked, the blind saw and the poor had the gospel preached to them. One look, a single word was enough to make all the apostles leave all things and come with Him.

Influence Far-Reaching

His influence was so far-reaching, that no sooner did He breathe His last than the sun lost its brightness, the earth trembled, the rocks were shattered, the dead came forth from their graves, the veil of the Temple was rent in twain, the centurions, and they that were with them, struck their breasts and said: "Truly this was the Son of God." The power of Jesus the King was working; the heavens felt it, the senseless earth and the rocks and the dead felt it, the hearts of men, both good and bad felt it.

Attracts Human Race

Since the day of His Resurrection He has been unceasingly attracting the entire human race. By means of His Church. He entered society and gave it new life, a new spirit, new principles and motives of conduct. He called the poor and the outcast with divine tenderness, "Come to Me all ye who are weary and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." No one else had such an invitation for them. They came in multitudes. St. Paul describes them, "Brethren, among them are not many wise according to the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, but the foolish things of the world hath God chosen that He may confound the wise, and the weak things of the world, that He might confound the strong."

Called All Types

Next He called the wise, the talented, and genius forsook the cause of error and enlisted to defend the cause of divine truth. Philosophy and all the fine arts were forever emancipated and all science reached forth to describe and depict the all true and all beautiful. Finally He drew power unto Himself and the Kings and rulers of the earth threw themselves before Him acknowledging Him as Lord and King.

World Changed

It is owing to the attraction exerted by Jesus Christ that the world has been changed, enlightened, civilized, made free and quickened by the spirit of charity. Not only has society at large felt and obeyed this universal attraction but the individual man as well.

He is the only ruler that has ever succeeded in governing the minds of men and minds of all men so different from each other in education, disposition and all that goes to make up life and nationality. Jesus is the Universal Sovereign of mankind. He continually attracts it. From every generation he asks for His apostles and martyrs and every succeeding generation gives its tithes gladly and heroically and the service of love goes on forever from men who never even saw Him.

Never-Ending Kingdom

Of the Kingdom of God there shall be no end. "Cujus regni non erit finis.' It is destined to be transferred to eternity to endure forever through endless ages. There will surely come a day and we shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds of heaven with great power and majesty. "Rex tremendae majestatas." He shall judge the earth in justice. He shall render to each man according to his works." Come ye blessed of My Father. Depart from me ye cursed." What awful words, what boundless authority, what formidable power. The Father has given all judgment to the Son. "Venite adoremus".

We adore him as our Lord and King. We offer Him our mind with its memory and understanding. We offer Him our heart with all our love. "Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever, a sceptre of justice, is a sceptre of our Kingdom."

College Hill Couple Honored

Honouring Mr. and Mrs. Peter Grass, North Park Street, who are soon leaving to take up residence in Frankford, friends and neighbours of College Hill district gathered at their home Wednesday for a farewell party.

Eighty guests were present and an enjoyable evening was spent in dancing and games. Shortly before the serving of a delicious lunch an address was read, as follows by Mr. Fred Burley:

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Grass:

"I have been called upon tonight to perform an important duty which is hard. This time it is to speak of the departure of friends from our community—and such good old friends as Mr. and Mrs. Peter Grass.

We are sorry to lose you from our neighborhood, and we are glad that you will not be far away. However what is our loss is another's gain.

"As a slight sign of our esteem and good wishes, Mr. and Mrs. Grass, we your friends, ask you to accept this little token of remembrance.

Your friends to you doth give
And till we're called to death's cold sleep
This wish for you shall live
That the rest of your life may be a happy way
And sorrow be unknown
That friendship warm and heavenly may ever be your own
And may God's richest blessing ever follow you the rest of your journey."

Signed on behalf of your College Hill friends.

In behalf of their friends, Mr. Thompson then presented Mr. and Mrs. Grass with a purse of money after which dancing continued.

peoples should never again fight one another after the terrible and serious experience of the great war. May the joint factors of Europe's colonial future in the African sphere be at last realized."

Respect For Natives.

Dr. Bauer in discussing arguments raised in recent years against return of colonies refers to one: that Germany would not be suited to administer different peoples in view of her race theories. To this the author replies: "Germany's race policy respects the native. It wants to preserve him in his natural individuality, in his tribe and family ties, as well as in his other manifold conditions of life."

Mayor William Morrison

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson

The race for the leadership of the Ontario Conservative Party was thrown wide open following the announcement of Leopold Macaulay, House leader of the party and considered the most likely candidate for the leadership, that he definitely would not be in the field. Unconfirmed rumors have circulated that the leadership race might now be contested by six entries: W. J. Stewart, former mayor of Toronto, and recently elected to the provincial house; Morley MacKenzie, Wilfrid Heighington, Cecil Frost, Mayor William Morrison, of Hamilton, and Hon. C. Howard Ferguson, former Ontario premier.

RETIRED PRINTER DIES

Winnipeg, Oct. 29 (CP)—George H. (Paddy) Johnson, 72, a member of the Winnipeg Free Press typographical staff for many years, died today.

Mr. Johnson, born in Belfast, Ireland, retired from the Free Press two and a half years ago after more than 30 years of service.

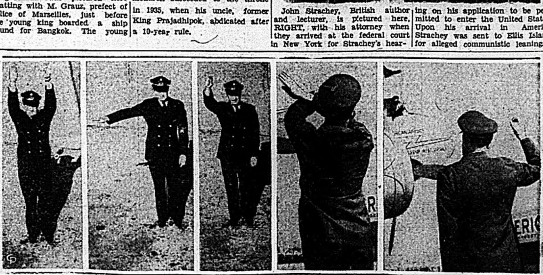
The Humberstone Shoe Company's plant near Port Colborne, Ont., was the scene of a clash between provincial police and strikers when more than 100 employees attempted to pass picket lines during the present strike at the plant. Police are shown here as they mingled with strikers and non-strikers in an attempt to prevent a clash between the opposing factions.

Silver, 600-pound polar bear in the Cleveland, Ohio, zoo, is shown after attendants had rescued 21-year-old Julia Zemnick, INSET, from his claws. The girl had climbed a ledge over the cage to sketch the animal when she fell into the enclosure and was viciously clawed. Some of Miss Zemnick's sketches can be seen in the pool.

After having being thoroughly schooled in Europe, 14-year-old King Anada Mahidol, LEFT, is now enroute to Siam, where he will prepare for his kingly duties. King Anada was pictured here chatting with M. Grauz, prefect of police of Marseilles, just before the young king boarded a ship bound for Bangkok. The young monarch succeeded to the throne in 1935, when his uncle, former King Prajadhipok, abdicated after a 10-year rule.

The Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, was secretly married to Miss Nowell Edwards 31, it was revealed in London recently. The dean accompanied Miss Edwards to Spain last August to study the problem of moving orphaned children to safety.



ARM SIGNALS ETC. O

Despite the rapid developments of modern transportation, arm waving still plays as big as part as in the days of the Pony Express rider, who waved his arms in the distance to denote his approach and the need of a fresh horse. With advent of the Trans-Canada Airlines, scenes like the ABOVE, common enough at all United States airports, will be witnessed at airports all across the Dominion. Here we see a pilot of a modern airliner receiving instructions by arm-signals from a ground crew member. F LEFT to RIGHT; two hands straight up in the air is the signal to the pilot denoting the gate he is to use in unloading his passengers; right hand straight out at right angle from body means taxi to gate, all clear; two fingers of right hand extended means taxi out for take-off, all clear; crossed arms in front of face is the order to come to a complete stop; index finger and thumb of right hand forming a circle tells the pilot he has arrived on time.

Wilfred Pichette and his wife, Laura, are being held at Houghton, Mich., for the murder of their 19-year-old housemaid, Marion Doyle, who was beaten to death with a flatiron and poker. According to police, Pichette is a self-proclaimed Messiah who claims he purchased the "power of Christ" for $2,000 from a band of gipsies. He and his wife are alleged to have confessed the slaying because they believed the Doyle girl was the "devil" and had the power to offset his mystic gipsy charm.
